Attlee Defends Palestine Raids, Reveals Plea to U. S. for Help

JUL 2 1946

T. Williams

LONDON, July 1 — (AP) Prime Minister Clement Attlee, answering charges by two parliamentarians that the British weekend raids and arrests in Palestine constituted a policy of war, declared tonight that he was seeking an agreement with the United States on a policy to bring peace to the Holy Land.

Great Britain, Attlee said, would reject any peace plan unacceptable to all parties concerned and which would require force to enforce it. He added that Great Britain hopes to settle the Palestine question in accordance with the recommendations of the British-American inquiry committee.

The committee has recommended that 100,000 European Jews be allowed to enter Palestine this year and has suggested placing Palestine under a United Nations trusteeship.

In a sharp debate in the House of Commons, Attlee charged that the Jewish Agency, a chief British target in the weekend operations in the Holy Land, had a "close link" with Haganah, illegal Jewish resistance organization.

The House adjourned without voting on the Palestine question.

"The Jewish Agency," Attlee asserted, "cannot be a cover for an illegal army. There is evidence that Haganah works under the general direction of some members of the Jewish Agency. I do not say all of them."

Moreover, Attlee said, "We also have evidence of a very close link between Haganah and Irgun Zvai Leumi," another underground organization with a greater record of violence.

"The only possible way of dealing with these widespread disturbances is to deal with the ofganization of the highest command," the Prime Minister declared.

"We are trying to deal fairly with the Jews and Arabs in Palestine," Attlee told the House members. "It is no good suggesting that we have not got obligations to Arabs as well as Jews."

"No government worthy of the name will yield to the kind of pressure by violence that has taken place. Certainly this government is not going to do so."

He explained the widespread police and military operations launched without warning in Palestine Saturday in which more than 2,000 Jews were arrested, and cheers greeted his assertion that "the government will not tolerate any attempt by any party to influence a decision on the Palestine question by force."

But R. H. S. Crossman, a member of the British-American committee, referring to the military action, told the Prime Minister "in this action of the government, we are drifting into war. We are drifting first into war with the Jews, and after that into war with the Arabs."

"There is only one way I know of smashing a resistance movement and that is liberating it—smashing the conditions under which the movement has grown, giving the people the thing for which they are willing to die."

Laborite S. S. Silverman termed the British military operation a "plain, naked war upon the Jewish national home," and called upon the government to announce "in plain, clear terms" acceptance of the British-American recommendations."

"It could go further and say though we accept them in principle wholeheartedly, nevertheless the responsibilities involved are such that we cannot bear them alone.

"Let the government say they are negotiating with other powers involved—I think the United States is the only one—for cooperation, if that is necessary."

Silverman's criticism followed a lengthy period of questioning in which Attlee pledged that "these events will not stop us from going ahead" with implementation of the British-American inquiry committee report on Palestine. (ADD)

Attlee Urges Anglo-U.S. Plan As Jewish Solution

JUL 2 1946

London, July 1 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee told Commons today Britain intends to seek a settlement of the Palestine question along lines of the Anglo-American commission's report.

Explaining British military and police action in the Holy Land Saturday, Attlee said Britain had a mandatory duty to maintain law and order and could no longer tolerate lawlessness.

"Informed," But Not "Consulted"

Attlee said the United States Government was fully informed of our action.

"They (the United States) were not consulted," Attlee declared. "We took responsibility for our own action. It would be quite unfair to try to put the onus on another government." It was not clear from Attlee's remarks whether he meant the United States was informed in advance.

The Prime Minister told the House that in recent months it had been made "increasingly clear that the acts of terrorism and sabotage in Palestine formed part of a concerted pla..."

Some Jews To Be Released

The Jewish Agency, he added, had been warned repeatedly of the gravity of the development of disorders. Attlee reported sixteen British soldiers and five policemen killed and more than $16,000,000 in material damage done since December.

Of the 2,000 Jews detained for questioning, Attlee said, many will be released when their examination is completed. Although some members of the Jewish Agency have been arrested, Attlee said it was not intended to close the agency or forbid its operations.

"The Government will not tolerate any attempt by any part to influence a decision on the Palestine question by force," Attlee declared. "We have done our utmost to expedite" discussions with the United States on the commission's report recommending the immediate immigration of 100,000 to Palestine. He did not amplify the remark.

Earlier, the Foreign Office said President Truman was advised June 19 that "drastic countermeasures" were contemplated in Palestine. The American Embassy said it had known only that Britain was "deeply concerned" about terrorism.

British and American versions of what was said by Prime Minister Attlee to President Truman varied thus:

BRITISH VERSION—On June 19 a message was sent to President Truman through Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, telling him the situation in Palestine was very grave and drastic countermeasures were necessary. On June 29, the United States was advised of the beginning of the countermeasures, about an hour after operations started.

AMERICAN VERSION—Britain informed the United States of its deep concern at terrorism in Palestine, but did not indicate in advance its intention to make mass arrests.

2,700 JEWS HELD AS BRITISH WIDEN HOLY LAND RAIDS

JUL 2 1946

JERUSALEM, July 1—(AP)—The Palestine government announced tonight that during its sweeping security raids of the past three days, 2,650 Jewish men and 59 women had been arrested in an effort to stamp out disorders that have gripped the Holy Land for the past two weeks.

British troops and police, an official communique said, searched 25 Jewish settlements throughout Palestine, in addition to Jewish-owned buildings in Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, and Haifa. During the weekend operations, four Jews were killed and 80 were injured while resisting the searchers, the government said.

The only appreciable amount of munitions found during the raids, the army said tonight, was a cache so large that "it is not yet possible to count, even estimate, the amount of ammunition and arms it contains." The cache was discovered today in an underground chamber at Mesheq Yagur, a Jewish settlement near Haifa.

The announcement came as an uneasy quiet settled over most of Palestine and as Zionist leaders—both conservative and radical—urged Jews to remain calm in the face of mass British arrests until a course of action is plotted by Jewish officials.

Great Ammunition Supply

The munitions dump was so large, the army said, that it had an overhead trolley for conveying ammunition. The hoard included "many thousands rounds (of ammunition) of various types x x x plus hundreds of grenades, detonators, explosives and other sabotage material."

Also found in the main cache were a large number of rifles and small arms. Apart from the main dump, the announcement said, there were "15 subsidiary caches discovered in various parts of the settlement, all containing arms."

The Mesheq Yagur settlement, one of a number of Jewish cooperative colonies founded in the Haifa bay area in the last decade, was the only place searched for arms today, the British announcement said.

Jewish Leaders Meet

While the search was in progress, an emergency meeting in Jerusalem of members of the Jewish National council and other community leaders issued a statement declaring that any government waging an attack of the sort which the British staged over the weekend cannot hope for cooperation from Palestine Jewery.

The meeting—protesting the British dentention of 2,000 Jews in sweeping security raids which resulted in four deaths over the weekend—said that "Palestine Jewry cannot maintain relations with authorities unless this attack is ceased and the prisoners are released."

The weekend operation, the meeting said, "is the peak of repudiation by the British government of its international obligations to the Jewish people and the entire moral and legal basis of its existence in this country."

May Order Passive Resistance

Vaad Leumi, the executive body administering Jewish community affairs, was reported considering the ordering of passive resistance to the British, including non-payment of taxes, complete non-cooperation, and a strike by all Jews in government service. (ADD)

Threats of Retaliation.

Jerusalem, July 1 (A. P.).—Threats of retaliation came from the Jewish underground as British troops held 2,000 persons for investigation today following sweeping weekend security operations during which four persons were killed and a number injured.

The secret radio of the Jewish resistance movement, "the Voice of Israel," trumpeted that "Britain has declared war on the Jewish community" and added ominously:

"We will return it."

In Tel Aviv, leaflet bombs were exploded by the Jewish extremist organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi, spreading pamphlets which charged that Palestine Jews had had their "Pearl Harbor" because they had been "attacked by the British at the moment of mutual negotiations."

The pamphlets urged immediate formation of an underground Jewish government and unification of all Jewish resistance groups, including Irgun Zvai Leumi and the "stern gang" of extremists.

Passive Resistance.

At the same time a high Jewish source in Tel Aviv announced that meetings had been called throughout Palestine to consider a retaliatory "passive resistance" movement similar to those undertaken by nationalists in India.

Passive resistance would include non-payment of taxes, a strike by all Jews in Government service and "complete non-cooperation with the British" in other ways, this source declared.

President Isaac Ben Zvi told an extraordinary meeting of the Jewish National Council today that widespread police and military operations launched by the British Saturday was an "attack against Palestine Jewry in general, against Zionist reconstruction and against Zionist efforts to save the remnants of the Jewish people."

Tears glistened in the eyes of many men and women delegates to the meeting, called to protest the British action.

"The sudden attack on the Jewish committee," he declared, "was made by forces of a nation whose whose allies we were only yesterday when we fought the common enemy, the Nazis."

The delegates appealed to all Palestine Jewry to remain calm, undespairing and united in the tasks of Zionism.

Jewish labor leaders in Palestine simultaneously cabled various labor organizations and parties throughout the world protesting the "attitude" of the British Government toward Palestine.

Four Are Killed.

The dead were listed as three Jews—one of whom was shot when he stepped out onto a balcony of his home after the curfew hour—and one British soldier. At least thirteen Jews were admitted to hospitals with injuries and a number of other persons suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Seven members of the Jewish agency, recognized by the British as the Jewish supervisory power in Palestine, were among those being held by the British.

They were Moshe Shertok, head of the agency's political department; Rabbi J. L. Fishman, acting chairman of the agency; Dr. Bernard Joseph, Itzhal Greenbaum, David Remez, David Hacohen and David Shingarevsky. Military authorities would not disclose yesterday where they were being held.

Aryeh Chill, Shertok's private secretary, said the imprisoned Jewish leaders were "as comfortable as possible" in Latroun's hospital ward. Chill, who is 33, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Chill, of 124 East 177th street, the Bronx, said he had sent Shertok twenty books at his request.

Dr. Wise to Come.

Other Jewish leaders cabled Jewish agency officials abroad to come to Palestine immediately. It was reported that Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver and Dr. Stephen Wise might arrive from the United States tomorrow in response to the appeal.

In New York last night Dr. Wise said he and other Jewish leaders would leave for Palestine as soon as possible to lend their support to the Jewish agency.

It was reported that an emergency committee might be organized under Dr. Chaim Weizmann, leader of world Zionists.

High Jewish sources said, however, that illness would prevent Welzmann from attending a joint meeting today of the action committees of the Zionist world organization and the General Council of Palestine Jewry. (ADP)

National Council Meets

Jerusalem, July 1 (AP)—President Isaac Ben Zvi told an extraordinary meeting of the Jewish National Council today that widespread police and military operations launched by the British Saturday were an "attack against Palestine Zionist efforts to save the remnants of the Jewish people."

Tears glistened in the eyes of many men and women delegates to the meeting, called to protest the British action.

"The sudden attack on the Jewish committee," he declared, "was made by forces of a nation whose allies we were only yesterday when we fought the common enemy, the Nazis."

Delegates from towns and villages throughout Palestine attended, including some members of the Jewish agency who were not arrested. In all, more than 2,000 arrests were made in the raids by British troops and police.

U. N. GROUP SCANS ATOMIC CONTROLS

Six Proposals Offered to Sub-Committee Calling for World Pact.

L. Hyde

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP) Six propositions on which a charter for controlling atomic energy might be built were laid before a special sub-committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy commission at its first closed meeting today by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia.

Evatt, chairman of the Atomic Energy commission, announced this morning that the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France, Mexico and Australia would make up the sub-committee. He called a meeting immediately and placed the following propositions before the sub-committeemen for bases of discussion and recommendation.

NIGHT

Proposed World Pact

"1. There should be a single international instrument embodying:

(A) A comprehensive plan for international control of development of atomic energy,

(B) An international atomic energy authority to administer and carry out the plan and to be vested with wide discretionary powers,

(C) As part of the plan there should be undertakings by member nations not to use atomic energy for purposes of war,

(D) Several parts of the plan should come into effective operation under terms and conditions which are just and equitable, having regard to the overriding purpose of the plan.

"2. For purposes of carrying out the plan an international authority should be vested with all necessary rights relevant to raw materials, processes, plans, and products of plans.

"3. That effective systems should be established for preventing breaches of the agreed restrictions and controls.

"4. The international authority shall be required to promote and carry out plans for development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

Exchange of Information

"5. That scientific information on nuclear processes and their application to peaceful purposes should be exchanged, care being taken at each stage not to prejudice the effectiveness of the agreed safeguards against misuse. Such exchange of information should take place by an interchange of personnel and through open publication.

"6. That the general plan should provide that at times and under conditions to be fixed by the international authority, the manufacture of atomic bombs should cease and all existing bombs should be dismantled."

Evatt was named chairman of the sub-committee. He announced it would meet again in private tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

Present at the closed meeting besides Evatt were Andrei A. Gromyko, Russia; Sir Alexander Cadogan, Great Britain, Dr. Manuel Sandoval Vallarta, Mexico; Prof. Federic Joliot-Curie, France; and Ferdinand Eberstadt, United States.

It was observed that Eberstadt and Gromyko remained in earnest conversation about ten minues after the meeting was over. They represent the two countries who have submitted the principal plans before the commission for controlling atomic energy.

The sub-committee is predominantly big-power. China was the only one of the five great powers not named.

Australia will hold its seat only while serving as chairman of the commission under the monthly rotation plan, being replaced by Brazil when that nation takes the chair later this month.

Dr. Evatt said the sub-committee would consider policy speeches made by the 12 delegates to the commission, and then suggest the framework for a general plan. This means that almost all its time will be devoted to analyzing proposals put forward by Bernard M. Baruch, U. S. delegate, and Gromyko, as plans of the other nations conform on most points.

A spokesman for the U. S. delegation said the six-man body would not vote on any final plan, but merely define the differences in viewpoints. He thus predicted that any disagreements between the U. S. and Russia eventually would have to be argued out before the full commission. (INSERT)

The full atomic commission will go back into session at 3 p. m. Wednesday to consider rules of procedure. Russia has served notice that it will at that time reiterate a demand that decisions be made by a two-thirds vote instead of the suggested majority.

meet again in plenary open session Wednesday at 3 P.M.

The Subcommittee No. 1 will have before it a chart prepared by Bernard M. Baruch, United States member of the commission, showing the expressed views of all twelve members.

The United Nations Security Council remained in recess, awaiting the call of the chairman. There was considerable speculation that the Council might not meet until some time next week.

Both the Atomic Energy Commission and the Council, when they meet for approximately the next six weeks, will hold their sessions in the ballroom of the Henry Hudson Hotel, in Manhattan, which has been converted into a Council chamber.

Hunter H.Q. Dismantled

The council chamber at Hunter College, where the Council has sat since it started in the United States in March, is being dismantled and its fixtures are being taken to the temporary headquarters of the United Nations at Lake Success, New York. The United Nations is slated to be out of Hunter College by August 15.

Herschel V. Johnson, of the United States, and Dr. Quo Taichi, of China, in a broadcast Saturday night deplored irresponsible use of the veto power in the United Nations. Dr. Quo said the veto weapon might eventually be abandoned.

Johnson disagreed with Quo on his prediction that the veto would be killed. Johnson said the veto power "was accepted by the United Nations at San Francisco with the clear understanding that it would be used sparingly. It should certainly not be used lightly or irresponsibly to prevent peaceful settlement of disputes that have been agreed to by the majority," he said. (POO)

Groundwork Committee For Atom Plan Named

JUN 2 1946

New York, July 1 (AP)—Dr. Herbert A. Evatt, chairman of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, today named the United States, Russia, Great Britain, France, Mexico and Australia to a special subcommittee to lay the groundwork for a plan to control the bomb.

Dr. Evatt, Australian delegate, called the sub-group into session later today to begin work.

DAY

In his announcement, the chairman said the subcommittee was being charged with the responsibility of considering all policy speeches made by delegates and suggesting the framework of a general plan.

The first five nations were named as "permanent" members of the subcommittee, while Australia was seated as the country holding the chairmanship of the commission.

Agreeemnt On Group

The entire Atomic Energy Commission agreed last Friday that the smaller group should analyze the views already presented to the commission. The commission itself will

Rich And Romantic Sarawak Becomes Crown Colony

JUN 2 1946

London, July 1 (AP)—Sarawak, rich and romantic Borneo kingdom of the white rajahs, became a British crown colony today.

An order in council put into effect legislation approved by the British Parliament and Sarawak's Supreme Council.

King George VI issued a statement saying "I extend a warm welcome" to the people of Sarawak and pledged Britain to "promote your welfare and to bring Sarawak to a higher stage of social and economic development than has hitherto been possible."

DAY

Colonial Secretary George Hall announced that Christopher William Dawson, formerly of the Malayan Civil Service, had been appointed chief secretary of Sarawak pending appointment of a governor.

Sarawak, North Borneo state with 500,000 inhabitants and 300,000 acres of rubber plantations, was ceded to Britain by its last white rajah, 71-year-old Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, under an agreement by which he and his three daughters and some local officials receive the proceeds of a $4,000,000 trust fund established from Sarawak funds.

The rich kingdom has been in the Brooke family since 1840, when the Sultan of Brunei gave it to Sir James Brooke for quelling an attack by headhunters.

FRENCH PROPOSAL ON ITALY'S BORDER ACCEPTED AT PARIS

Boundary with Yugoslavia Approved by 'Big Four' Ministers.

TRIESTE PACT NEAR

Russia Agrees to International Control, U. S. and Britain Delay.

J. Eyatt

PARIS, July 1—(AP) The four-power foreign ministers council approved tonight a French-proposed boundary between Italy and Yugoslavia and appeared to be within striking distance of a solution to a companion problem—the disposition of riot-torn Trieste.

Russia accepted a plan to place Trieste under international control. Britain and the United States asked for further time to study this proposal on the Adriatic city, but promised to give their answers tomorrow.

NIGHT

British and American acceptance of the Trieste compromise, also offered by the French, would remove the last road-block to writing peace treaties for Italy and the Balkans and would pave the way for a European peace conference.

Great Progress Reported

a Russian proposal for internationalization of Trieste.

Under the Russian plan the Trieste international zone would have been entirely surrounded by Yugoslavia. Bevin and Byrnes objected to this. On the Italian-Yugoslav boundary question Molotov first suggested the use of the Morgan line as the southern extremity.

According to American sources, Byrnes answered that the Morgan line—which separates British and American from Yugoslav troops—was drawn for military reasons and not along ethnic considerations. After Byrnes opposed this Russian suggestion Molotov said he was ready to accept the two French proposals.

A spokesman also disclosed that France favors eventual federalization of German states under a weak central government. German problems are still before the ministers.

These German states, the spokesman said, should be established along their historic boundaries, thus cutting across the present zonal borders marched out by the major powers for what he described as primarily military reasons.

According to the French proposals, the future German federation would not include the west bank of the Rhine nor the Ruhr which would be detached politically from the Reich. In addition, the Ruhr would also be detached economically and placed under an inter-Allied political and economic regime of wide powers.

The Rhineland under the French plan would be established as a separate state. The Saar region would be integrated into French economy.

A British source said the foreign ministers had made "dramatic progress."

In accepting the Trieste proposal, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov suggested that internationalization of the city be considered as a permanent solution instead of a 10-year stop-gap. It was learned privately that the British delegation also favors permanent internationalization. Both Italy and Yugoslavia have demanded sovereignty over Trieste.

As advanced by George Bidault, French president and foreign minister, the Trieste plan calls for internationalizing the key city for at least 10 years under United Nations guidance, but with mixed Italian-Yugoslav and Allied control. The international zone would have an ample strip of coastline.

Sets Division of Land

The Italian-Yugoslav border approved by the ministers fixes the division of territory in the disputed Venezia Giulia area. The line would run generally from Tarvisio to Gorizia, then over to a few miles east of Trieste and down to the coast just south of Capodistria.

This French-proposed line actually was the last of the proposed American and British lines for dividing the area. U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, supported by Bidault and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, previously had emphasized that the United States never would consent to extend Yugoslavia west of the line approved tonight.

It was pointed out that Molotov made three important concessions in accepting both French compromise proposals. He backed down on the original Russian demand that Trieste be given to Yugoslavia and also agreed that Italy should retain a strategic valley area containing the main railway from Austria to the Adriatic coast as well as the important shipyards at Monfalcone.

The French compromises sent the meeting so far along toward an agreement on the Italian treaty that Byrnes did not bring up again his plea for convening a 21-nation general European peace conference July 20.

Bidault brought forward his compromises after Byrnes had rejected

Trieste Issue Tackled Anew By Big 4 Parley

JUL 2 1946

DAY

Paris, July 1 (AP)—The Big Four Foreign Ministers Council tackled the critical problem of Trieste again today in a renewed effort to clear the way for fixing the date of a 21-nation European peace conference demanded by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

Under the compromise agenda adopted Saturday at the suggestion of French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, the Council scheduled consideration of the Yugoslav-Italian frontier question—including the future of the port city of Trieste; Italian colonies; the peace conference and German questions, in that order.

Considering French Proposal

The new attack on the knotty question of Trieste was expected to be based on the Bidault compromise plan under which the Adriatic city—demanded by both Italy and Yugoslavia—would be internationalized for at least ten years under United Nations guidance, but with mixed Italian-Yugoslav and Allied control.

Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi sent a "last appeal" to the Council yesterday asking that Italy be heard before any action was taken on Trieste, where five American soldiers were injured yesterday while helping to quell riots by pro-Italian residents.

Speaks For "Anguished" Italy

"In critical hours for my country," de Gasperi's message said, "I beg you not to neglect this last appeal I send you, trusting to your equity, and pressed by the anguished anxiety of all Italians."

He said the French compromise proposal "transforms radically the approach to the problem" and would "cast aside" principles recognized by the ministers at their first meeting in London.

The ministers also were expected to argue further the question of Italian colonies, in which Russia insists that she be given some advisory voice for administration, pending final solution. British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin maintains that other nations must not intervene in Britain's present military administration of the colonies.

Byrnes-Molotov Clash

Byrnes, who engaged in a bitter exchange Saturday with Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov on the question of fixing a date for a general European peace conference so that invitations could be sent to the other seventeen nations immediately, was said to be convinced that it would be useless to pursue the matter further unless Russia consents to fixing an early date.

In the event Russia declined to do this, American sources said, the American case on the disputed points in the Italian and Balkan treaties would be taken before the United Nations General Assembly in New York in September.

Byrnes conferred today with Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy commander of United States forces in Germany, and the latter's political adviser, Robert D. Murphy. The conference is scheduled to take up Germany soon.

German Inquiry In Mass Killing Called a Farce

Commission Member Tells War Trial It Could Not Investigate Poles' Murder

NUERNBERG, July 1 (AP).—A member of the German commission that investigated the mass murder of 11,000 Polish officers in Katyn Forest near Smolensk told the international military tribunal today that the commission was given no chance to make any kind of scientific inquiry.

Marko Antonov Markov, a Bulgarian legal and medical expert, told how the Germans set up the commission in order to prove that the Poles were slain by the Russians and not by the German Army. The German and Russian Armies accused each other of responsibility for the murders, and the dispute over responsibility caused the rupture of relations between Russia and the now defunct Polish government in exile in 1943.

NIGHT

Markov was one of several witnesses who presented both the German and Russian viewpoints. Their testimony was sought by former Reich Marshal Herman Goering, the No. 1 defendant in the trial of twenty-two high Nazi leaders on war-crimes charges.

Markov said he was reluctant to serve on the commission, chosen from satellite countries, but was told it was a war-time order.

Examined by the Russian prosecutors, Markov testified that the group met in Berlin with German Cabinet representatives and was flown to Smolensk in two planes. He said the commission was permitted to pass only two days at the scene of the mass graves, never saw the actual exhumation and performed autopsies on only eight bodies.

Colonel Friedrich Ahrens, commandant of the German regiment that occupied the forest in 1941 and 1942, said his men followed the trail of a wolf to find the graves in the winter of 1941-'42. He said one of the commission of experts told him the Poles were slain in the spring of 1940, more than a year before the German Army moved into the Katyn area.

Another German witness, Major General Oberhauesser, who was a signal corps commandant near Katyn, testified that there had been no orders from superiors to kill Polish prisoners.

NAZI SLAUGHTER VERSION IS TOLD

German Officer Tells of Katyn Forest Horror.

Nuernberg, July 1 (A. P.).—The trail of a wolf led German soldiers to the mass grave of 11,000 Polish officers slain in Katyn Forest, the International Military Tribunal was told today.

The German and Russian armies have charged each other of the massacre killings and the tribunal, at the insistence of Wilhelm Goering, No. 1 defendant in the war crimes trials here, consented to hear witnesses on both sides of the matter.

DAY

Col. Friedrich Ahrens, commandant of the German regiment which occupied the forest area near Smolensk in 1941 and 1942, was the first German witness and described how the graves were found.

He said he had heard from some of his soldiers that there had been shootings and that there were graves in the forest but that he had never investigated. Several of his men followed the spoor of a wolf one day in the winter of 1941-42 and discovered uprooted bones, he testified, after which he notified Army Group Headquarters, which sent experts to make exhumations.

Ahrens testified that one expert from that group told him he was convinced the Poles were slain in the spring of 1940, more than a year before the German Army moved into the Katyn area.

Russian prosecutor Roman A. Rudenko said he would establish that the Poles actually were shot when the German Army was there, through the testimony of a medical expert, the former deputy mayor of Smolensk and a Bulgarian who served on the German investigating commission.

Reinhart von Eichborn, Wehrmacht telephone expert assigned to the Katyn area, testified that he was in a position soon after the fall of Smolensk to know if such mass killings had been carried out during the German occupation and was certain they had not been.

"An important matter like that would certainly have come to my attention," Eichborn declared.

Russian prosecutors introduced a document purporting to show that the Germans based in Smolensk a special unit assigned to "commit mass crimes" in prisoner camps. Eichborn said he knew nothing about that.

5 LICHFIELD OFFICERS DENY CRUELTY DATA

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 1 (AP)—Five officers formerly stationed at the United States Army's guardhouse in Lichfield, England, testified today that they had never seen any evidence of prisoners being cruelly mistreated there. The officers were defense witnesses at the court-martial of Lieut. Leonard W. Ennis of Peekskill, N. Y., accused of aiding and authorizing the inhumane punishment of soldier-prisoners.

In the simultaneous trial of Col. James A. Kilian of Highland Park, Ill., Lichfield commandant, on similar charges, defense attorney's tried unsuccessfully to obtain an admission from a former Lichfield guard that he and several other enlisted men had tried to shift the blame for the beatings to the officers. The former guard, Corp. Ellis Adcock of Hot Springs, Ark., was recently find $60 for striking prisoners. He told the court trying Kilian that officers had ordered the guards to "work over" prisoners.

NIGHT

"Did you and your fellow-defendants talk this over and reach the conclusion that the best thing for you to do was to admit these things occurred and contend you were acting under orders?" Corp. Adcock was asked on cross- examination. "We decided to tell the truth—to take some responsibility but not all the responsibility," he replied.

BLOC'S TESTIMONY AGAINST KILIAN

JUL 2 1946

Bad Nauheim, July 1 (A. P.).—Prosecution attempts to trace the "be rough" policy at the Lichfield, England, guardhouse to Col. James A. Kilian of Highland Park, Ill., were blocked today by a court ruling.

Cpl. Ellis Adcock of Hot Springs, Ark., testified that Lieut. Leonard W. Ennis of Peekskill, N. Y., ordered guards to "run this guardhouse so rough these prisoners will never come back again," and to "work them over" if they caused trouble.

"Ennis said he had orders how to run this guardhouse, and he was going to run it that way," said Adcock, who recently was fined $80 for striking prisoners while a guard at Lichfield. However, Adcock was prevented from testifying where Ennis said he got his orders. The military court upheld a defense objection against such "hearsay" evidence.

Ennis, now on trial himself, is scheduled to testify later in the trial of Kilian, former Lichfield commander, who is accused of aiding and authorizing the cruel and unusual punishments, which seven guards have been convicted.

Election Forecasts Return To Weimar Republic Forms

By O'Regan

Frankfurt, Germany, July 1 (AP)—American political observers forecast tonight, on the basis of Sunday's elections that conservative-minded legislators, reviving many of the forms of the Weimar Republic, would govern most of American-occupied Germany by the year's end.

NIGHT

Five and a half million voters in the United States zone went to the polls over the week end to elect assemblymen who will approve constitutions for "little parliaments" in Bavaria, Greater Hesse and Württemberg-Baden.

With a decline of nearly seventeen per cent in popular interest since city elections—a month ago, —the Germans again thrust the church-supported Christian Social Union into position as the zone's strongest party.

JUL 2 1946

Two-To-One In Bavaria

The Right-Wing party won a two-to-one victory over its nearest rival—the slightly Leftist Social Democratic party — in agricultural Bavaria. In the entire zone the CSU had a margin of 350,000 votes over the combined strength of the Social Democrats and Communists.

As in three previous elections since the United States restored frae balloting to Germany, the conservative Catholic farmers and city folk of Bavaria swung the zonal totals in favor of the CSU. The Social Democrats won by a slight margin only in industrial Greater Hesse.

The CSU throughout the zone obtained one short of half the 370 seats in the three state assemblies which will put their constitutional recommendations to popular referendums in December.

Minor Incidents Reported

Opposing them, the Social Democrats and the Communists won 153 seats, with minor parties taking the remainder.

Election officials said the voting went off quietly, although minor incidents were reported. In Frankfurt, a CSU speaker was followed to his home and beaten, and a number of church services were halted when Left-Wing sound trucks appeared before their doors criticizing church elements who lent support to the CSU campaign.

American observers said drafts outlined by preparatory committees for submission to the assemblies contained many Weimar Republic ideas but that some principles dated back to Bismarck.

Many elected CSU assemblymen are Catholic, and certain Catholic clergy have recently criticized America's denazification policies, in line with an Easter pastoral letter.

Zonal Results

Final, but not validated, figures gave these zonal results:

Christian Social Union, 2,579,403 votes, 184 seats.

Social Democratic party, 1,815,535 votes, 126 seats.

Communist party, 406,009 votes, 27 seats.

Economic Reconstruction party (Bavaria only), 135,128 votes, 8 seats.

Nearly 160,000 incorrectly marked ballots resulting from German unfamiliarity with free balloting were declared void.

Meanwhile, Soviet authorities in Berlin announced that more than 77 per cent of the electorate in lower Saxony—in the Russian occupied zone—voted yesterday in favor of nationalization of industrial plants classified as formerly belonging to war criminals and active Nazis.

They said that virtually complete results showed a poll of 3,469,658, or 94.1 per cent of those eligible to vote. The "Yes" vote was announced as 2,693,401, or 77.7 per cent, against a "No" vote of 571,600. There were 204,657 ballots ruled "invalid" for various reasons.

Prisoners of Nazis Write Book on Them

MUNICH, (AP)—Gen. Lucian D. Truscott, commander of the Third American Army, is one of the few owners of a literary work graphically describing the growth of Nazism from 1918 to 1945.

Liberated inmates of Nazi concentration camps in Bavaria have compiled data for this book. The Bavarian state commissioner for political prisoners, Otto Aster, and Gottlieb Brantz, vice president of the Bavarian Red Cross, presented the book to the general on their behalf.

Pravda Sees Infringement of Sovereign Rights.

B. James

Moscow, July 1 (A. P.).—A press freedom amendment to a bill appropriating United States funds to UNRRA was denounced by a Pravda writer today as "nothing else but" a tendency on the part of the United States to "dictate" to other countries, and infringe upon their "sovereign rights."

Commentator Jacob Victorov of the Communist party newspaper charged that "reactionary circles in the United States are trying more and more persistently to bring about an attitude of dictating to others as the main course of the American foreign policy."

DAY

Referring to the press freedom amendment to a United House of Representatives UNRRA bill under which United States funds for UNRRA would be made available only to countries which allowed newspaper correspondents to send uncensored dispatches on UNRRA activities, Victorov said there was no need to give American correspondents "special privileges."

UNRRA missions now operating in the Ukraine and White Russia "have every chance of reporting about everything that concerns food distribution and not be forgotten that UNRRA is an international organization and there are no reasons for giving special privileges to American correspondents in connection with its activity.

"The question of the activity of correspondents, which is regulated by each nation in accordance with rules established by her, has nothing in common with the activity of UNRRA. Any attempt to connect these two questions is nothing else but an infringement of the sovereign rights of another country—a tendency to dictate to it from the outside." He said that UNRRA Director-General F. H. LaGuardia concurred in that view.

Explains Resignation.

Berlin, July 1 (A. P.).—Marshall MacDuffie of New York, who has resigned as chief of the UNRRA mission in the Ukraine, explained today that he had quit in protest against United States House of Representatives action to prohibit the use of relief funds in any country where American newspaper correspondents are not free to report on the use of the funds.

At the same time he made public a radiogram from F. H. LaGuardia, director-general of UNRRA, accepting his resignation and giving assurance that LaGuardia would "fight on for continuation of relief to the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia."

SOVIET ANNOUNCES BIG CUT IN PRICES

JUL 2 1946

Moscow, July 1 (A. P.).—A price reduction on many kinds of consumers goods opened the way today for a large part of the Soviet Union's people to get extra hats, stockings and other articles.

The cuts are effective in commercial stores where goods are sold without ration tickets. Their prices have been out of reach of many persons.

DAY

Percentage reductions included: leather shoes, 42; rubber galoshes 57; woolen goods, 45; silk stockings 50; socks, 45; hats, 30; toilet soap, 46; aluminum pans, 54; wallpaper, 50; knitted goods 30.

The Moscow announcement, which was broadcast to the world over the Moscow radio Sunday night, did not state the new prices in money. Soviet announcements on economic developments frequently state changes only in percentages, making it difficult for persons unacquainted with previous figures to assess the new situation accurately. Previous prices in Russian commercial stores were not immediately available.

Report Bands Beat and Killed 'Thousands' of Voting Officials During Referendum.

Larry Allen

Warsaw, July 1 (A. P.).—A Foreign Ministry spokesman said today that outlawed armed gangs roved the Polish countryside last night "beating, wounding and killing hundreds, probably thousands" of voting officials appointed to direct yesterday's referendum.

DAY

The spokesman said the terroristic activity was "increasing greatly," with bands pursuing gangster tactics striking off the lists the names of election officials as slain and destroying voting and registration books.

The results of the referendum, it was announced, probably would be known by Wednesday with final results available within twelve days.

The balloting, first in eleven years in war-ravaged Poland, provides the first sign as to which way the 11,000,000 registered voters lean in the bitter struggle for power between the Communist-backed party bloc, headed by Socialist Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski and the opposition Polish Peasant Party, led by Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk.

Although the general opinion prevailed that the electorate had answered yes to all three referendum questions—do you want a one-house Parliament, do you approve the acts of the provisional regime nationalizing basic industries and agrarian reforms, and do you approve the establishment of Poland's western frontier on the Oder and Neisse rivers—a determination of Mikolajczyk's strength was expected in the size of the no vote on the first question.

BASTOGNE EARTH TO BE FLOWN HERE

JUL 2 1946

Brussels, July 1 (A. P.).—High-ranking Belgian and American authorities will attend a ceremony in Bastogne July 4 when earth from fields drenched with American blood will be placed in a casket to be flown to Washington.

The ceremony was initiated by the Belgo-American Association in Brussels which plans to erect a memorial to the memory of Gen. Anthony MacAuliffe's troops who lost their lives during the Battle of the Bulge.

The Belgian post office, collaborating with the association, already has issued a special stamp recalling the event. Funds raised by sale of the stamp will enable the association to build a monument in the heart of the Ardennes.

Assembling at Bastogne the morning of July 4, authorities will witness the turning over of the casket of earth to Col. R. Solborg, military attache at the United States embassy in Belgium, who will bring it by plane to Brussels.

In the afternoon Admiral Allan G. Kirk, United States Ambassador to Belgium, will take over the casket in the name of his Government at the Brussels airfield in the presence of the Archbishop of Belgium, the presidents of the Belgian Chamber and Senate and representatives of the Belgian Government.

Representatives of Belgian underground groups will be present at the Bastogne ceremony and will accompany the casket on its way from the Ardennes to the ceremony in Brussels. It will be flown to Washington by the Belgian Airways Company on the first Belgian test flight to the United States.

On July 8 the casket will be handed over to American authorities in a military ceremony at Arlington Cemetery and the Ardennes earth will be placed in the tomb of a United States enlisted man who fell in the Battle of Bastogne. The War Department will receive the emptied casket for placing in the Smithsonian Institution.

Signor de Gasperi's six-party coalition has held sway since last December and is expected to head the new Government, by reason of his Christian Democratic party's strong showing in the June 2 Assembly elections.

NIGHT

President de Nicola, in a series of consultations at Montecitorio Palace, met with the head of the Constituent Assembly, Giuseppe Saragat, Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, World War I Premier, United States Rear Admiral Ellery W. Stone, Chief Allied Commissioner, and Count Carlo Sforza, a former President of the now defunct Consultative Assembly.

TRIESTE RIOTERS STONE AMERICANS

U. S. Troops Break Up Attack on Communist Headquarters.

TRIESTE, July 1 (AP)—American troops were stoned tonight when they broke up an attack by an angry mob on the Communist party headquarters here, as a series of new riots broke out in this strike-paralyzed city claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

At least eight civilians—seven men and one woman—were wounded during the night, bringing the toll of two days of armed conflict to one person killed and approximately 38 injured, and there was no indication that the violence was subsiding.

NIGHT

Nine Soldiers Injured

Seven American and two British soldiers were among those injured yesterday, when hand grenades exploded near their jeeps. Names were withheld. There was no announcement of additional casualties today among military personnel.

American troops and British tommies were called into action to help the hard-pressed Venezia-Giulia police when the rioters got out of hand.

The Americans, helmeted and carrying rifles and carbines, fired several volleys into the air before the mob in front of Communist headquarters dispersed.

One civilian was shot when he stoned an American jeep loaded with military police. His comrades carried him away.

Others in the crowd threw bottles and rocks at the Americans.

Additional Troops Arrive

One hundred additional British troops, arriving tonight to reinforce the Allied garrison, were ordered to "act as police unless it gets too difficult. Then you will act as soldiers."

The riots, which began as clashes between Italian and Yugoslav sympathizers, seemed to have developed into hostilities between rightists and leftists.

Despite intervention by the Americans and British, crowds remained on the streets near the Communist building. Women and children within that structure armed themselves with sticks, bottles and stones against a possible resumption of the attack.

Earlier tonight, civil police broke up a mob besieging the "Progresso" plant where several Slav and leftist newspapers are printed. Twenty-two workers in the building were taken into what police described as protective custody.

A police detail posted temporarily within the building was removed for more urgent duty elsewhere, officials said, and some 50 persons promptly broke into the plant and did considerable damage to machinery.

News Office Attacks

Six men and women were injured this afternoon when a group of Italian youths attacked the distributing office of the Communist newspaper Il Lavoratore.

Throughout the day, Italians attacked stands and trucks distributing the paper, which carried the banner headline:

"After one year of Allied administration, fascist terror reopens in Trieste."

Meanwhile a general strike of 200,000 workers halted all traffic and closed public establishments. The general strike extended beyond the limits of this vital adriatic port into provincial areas.

Organizations participating in the walkout included the Communist party, the Italian General Labor confederation, the United Syndicates and the Italo-Slav anti-fascist youth organization. Most of them have Yugoslav and Italian members.

Mobs yesterday broke into buildings housing Yugoslav organizations and destroyed furniture. During the night, bands of youths armed with iron bars invaded 22 homes inhabited by Slavs.

The lone fatality occurred when an Italian dock worker was stabbed by a mob of armed youths, police officials said.

The rioting broke out when 50 participants of the around-Italy bicycle race were set upon, as they approached Trieste, by a crowd described by police as "Slav Communists." News of the attack sped quickly through this city, which has been awaiting tensely a decision of the Foreign Ministers Council in Paris as to whether it shall remain Italian or be ceded to Yugoslavia.

Yanks Rout Mob In Trieste Riots

Trieste, July 1 (AP)—American troops armed with rifles and carbines broke up tonight a mob attacking Communist party headquarters as rioting raged through this disputed Adriatic port city for the second successive day. There was no sign that the violence was subsiding.

At least five American soldiers had been wounded in disturbances yesterday.

DAY

Seven More Civilians Shot

Six men and a woman were shot today in riots between pro-Slav and anti-Slav groups in this city, claimed both by Italy and Yugoslavia Two of the wounded were hurt seriously. All were members of labor organizations which struck in protest to what they claimed were Rightist attacks on Communist, labor and Slav establishments yesterday. Some 200,000 workers were reported out.

The tight strike continued in Trieste and the mood of the Italian and Yugoslav sympathizers appeared to be growing uglier.

Shots Fired Over Crowd

The Americans were called out along with their British allies to help the hard-pressed civil police of Venezia-Giulia. They fired several volleys into the air before the attackers, flinging stones and bottles, were dispersed from the Communist headquarters.

One man in the mob was shot and wounded when he stoned an American jeep loaded with military police. Comrades carried him away.

It was not immediately clear who fired the first shots causing the seven other casualties. The civil police of Venezia Giulia denied they had fired upon the crowd.

The incident occurred in the Piazza Goldoni when a group of Italian youths attacked an office of the Communist newspaper Il Lavoratore. Newspapers were hurled from trucks.

Strikers Defend Newspaper

A crowd of striking laborers responded, charging to the defense of the newspaper. Shots were fired durin gthe melee.

One person was run over by a jeep, driven by a Venezia Giulia civil policeman.

Throughout the day, Italian youths attacked stands and trucks carrying the Communist newspaper, which was published with this headline:

"Afte. one year of Allied administration, Fascist terror reopens in Trieste."

The general strike, tying up traffic and closing public establishments, extended beyond the city and into provincial areas.

Italian Stabbed To Death

During the night bands of youths armed with iron bars invaded 22 homes inhabited by Slavs in the central part of the city and destroyed furniture.

The lone fatality last night occurred, police said, when an Italian dock worker was stabbed to death by a band of armed youths.

A communiqué issued by Allied authorities said that four Allied officers and soldiers were seriously injured when a hand grenade exploded underneath their jeep. Two of the men were Americans and two Britons. Their names were withheld for the time being.

Five Other Americans Hurt

Two other American officers and three American soldiers were less seriously hurt in rioting yesterday.

The communiqué said the jeep was blown up when a unit of Allied troops answered a call to disperse a crowd which had gathered in the street. A grenade, thrown from the window of a near-by building, rolled under the jeep and exploded.

Organizations participating in the strike call included the Communist party, the Italian General Labor Confederation, the United Syndicates and the Italo-Slav Anti-Fascist Youth Organization. Most of them have both Italian and Yugoslav members.

Bike Riders Attacked

Yesterday's rioting broke out, police said, when a group of "Slav Communists" attacked 50 participants in the around-Italy bicycle race. Many Trieste Italians had assembled to welcome the cyclists and police said the Slavs, evidently believing that the demonstration might have political implications, set upon the riders with sticks and stones to prevent the welcome.

Twenty persons were injured, one man possibly fatally, and at least 25 offices and stores used as Slav Communist and Socialist centers were wrecked before British and American troops were summoned to help police quell the rioting.

The five Americans injured when the grenade exploded under their jeep were members of the 1st Battalion, 349th Regiment, 88th Division. They sought to break up a crowd in midtown Trieste. Though hospitalized, they were not injured seriously.

Arrival Stops Rioting

The troops appearance ended the rioting. Ten persons were arrested and five of them were charged.

The attack on the cyclists occurred as the riders, 30 days out of Milan, started to cross the Isonzo River at the village of Rieris. Italian police escorting them fired more than 100 shots into the air before the attack ended.

CHINA IN TURMOIL AS FACTIONS FAIL TO ARRANGE PACT

H. Dicks

NANKING, July 1—(AP) Suspense hung heavily over China today as failure by both the government and Communists to reach an agreement for ending the country's civil war produced an ominous situation [illegible] observers declared could [illegible] civil war.

NIGHT

The government extended its orders against military action after the 15-day formal truce expired at noon Sunday, but this still left wide the way for possible resumption of civil war.

North China was the nation's powder keg. Both sides agreed that a settlement of problems in Manchuria was simple compared to the complexities for reaching an agreement covering disputed North China points.

The problems involve the Government demand that the Communists evacuate certain areas of Shantung, North Kiangsu, Jehol, and Chahar provinces. The Communists agreed on certain evacuations providing that the local governments they established remain in control of those areas.

Chou En-Lai, Communist spokesman, yesterday blamed failure to reach a full agreement on reorganization of the Chinese army—chief stumbling block—on the Government's "unreasonable demands."

Chou branded as "some fancy ideas" the statement Sunday by Information Minister Peng Hsueh-Pei that the Government had agreed to extend the truce so long as the Communists refrained from military action. Peng said that if the Communists "continue to attack as they have recently, the government will be compelled to resist and counterattack."

The Communist spokesman charged that while talking peace the Government actually had started an offensive, using 21 divisions in an attempt to "annihilate" Communist forces in the central military area involving the Hupeh-Honan border region.

recently the Government will be compelled to resist and counterattack."

Chou, on the other hand, asserted the Government, while talking peace, actually had started a large-scale offensive and was using 21 divisions in an attempted annihilation of Communist forces in the central military area involving the Hupeh-Honan border region. The Communist leader said an attack order captured from Government forces said it was planned to wipe out the Communist defenders in one action.

Timberman Is Active

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Timberman, acting director of executive (truce) headquarters, will fly to Harbin tomorrow to see Gen. Lin Piao, commander of Communist armies in Manchuria, according to dispatches from Changchung, quoted in Peiping. It is believed that Timberman would try to persuade the Communist general to let executive headquarters send a cease-fire team to Communist territory in central and northern Manchuria.

Timberman conferred yesterday with Gen. Tu Li-ming, Government commander in Manchuria. He was reported to have agreed to permit a cease-fire team to go to Haicheng, south of Mukden.

China's Uneasy Truce Still On; Blasts Hurled

Nanking, July 1 (AP)—Communist spokesman Chou En-lai asserted today, while an uneasy truce continued, that the National Government's "unreasonable demands" were responsible for failure to achieve an agreement on reorganization of the Chinese Army.

The Communists still desire the assistance of Gen. George C. Marshall, United States envoy, in efforts to reach a political settlement, Chou said.

DAY

"Some Fancy Ideas"

He described Minister of Information Peng Hsush-pei's statement of yesterday as "some fancy ideas of Dr. Peng." Peng announced the Government had agreed to continue the truce, which was to have expired yesterday, so long as the Communists halted their attacks, adding "if the Communist troops continue to attack as they have AHMADABAD, India, July 1.—Nineteen persons were killed and 130 were injured today in a clash between Moslems and Jains during a parade at whose head rolled a silver chariot containing an image of Mahavira, founder of the Jain faith.

Police opened fire several times on the fighters, who engaged in pitched battles and looted and burned shops.

[The British Broadcasting Corporation, heard by the National Broadcasting Company, said the toll at Ahmadabad was twenty-three dead and 160 injured. It added, "Police were forced to open fire nine times during the riots.]

Similar disturbances developed in Calcutta, where a Jain procession was stoned.

Fires Rage Aboard Bikini Target Ships, Damaged Jap Cruiser Sinks at Mooring

JUN 2 1946

A-Bomb Toll Is 5 Vessels Sunk, 6 Wrecked, Others Less Heavily Hit.

By D. Whitehead

ABOARD THE U.S.S. APPALACHIAN OFF BIKINI, Tuesday, July 2—(AP)—The atomic bomb—its wrath pitted against a naval fleet for the first time—sank five of Bikini's target array of 73 ships, wrecked six, damaged 25 and possibly damaged every other of the remaining vessels, official and unofficial surveys showed today.

Latest vessel to succumb to the smashing power of the bomb was the Japanese cruiser Sakawa, which sank quietly at its mooring this morning. It was under completely within 10 minutes after the stern started down.

NIGHT

No Capital Ship Sunk

However, not a capital ship was sunk by Monday's atomic bomb blast—man's fourth such experiment— and goats chewed calmly on hay at the rim of the target fleet as the first observer craft poked into the lagoon three hours later.

But the havoc wrought by the terrifying power of the bomb was evident at every hand. Fires raged aboard at least eight of the vessels, including one ship two miles from the target center.

Carrier in Flames

One big warship, the battle-scarred light carrier Independence, was wrapped in smoke and convulsed by internal explosions of ammunition and gasoline, touched off six hours after the bomb let go in a blinding flash of light that outshone the sun.

Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy, task force commander, assessing the violence of the bomb, told a press conference that despite the damage there was no reason to conclude the day of the carrier and the destroyer was done.

"We had carriers and destroyers sunk in the war with Japan," he said, "but we didn't stop building them. We continued to build them because we needed them and that's what we will do in the future."

Blandy declared that while the fire-swept Independence was "not a carrier any more" with its flight deck destroyed and its bridge structure over the side, he said he had seen ships that were damaged worse by raiders of the Kamikaze—the Japanese suicide pilots.

He predicted it would require months to assess the full facts of the test.

Radioactivity prevented inspection crews from boarding ships in the center of the target. Blandy said a cursory inspection had been made of less than a dozen ships on the fringe of the fleet.

While many a watcher styled the test a disappointing spectacle, the fact remained that the bomb took a heavy toll and no one could say how many men might have died from heat and deadly rays even had they been aboard ships that got off with relatively light damage.

Fireboats fought to save some of the flaming ships, moving in close and pouring in streams of water.

They were fighting to save valuable recording instruments, Army equipment put aboard to see how it would stand up, and animals left behind to test the effects of heat, blast and lethal rays on living organisms.

It seemed unlikely that the fire-fighters could save the gallant old Independence, for death shudders ran through her as ammunition in the hold blew up. The hangar deck was in flames.

Every Ship Damaged

From the U.S.S. Panamint, carrying the world's scientific observers, anchored inside Bikini lagoon, Associated Press Correspondent Paul K. Lee messaged that a binocular inspection indicated that it was unlikely a single vessel escaped the bomb's fury.

Lee said some of the more fortunate ships got off with bent masts or light damage above decks.

From the U.S.S. Mount McKinley, flagship of Admiral Blandy, AP Correspondent Elton C. Fay said the official tally by Monday night stood at four ships sunk, one missing and presumed sunk, six heavily damaged, and 26 slightly damaged.

This was the lineup:

Sunk—The destroyer Lamson and the attack transports Carlisle and Gilliam, all within a mile of the center of the target, and the Japanese cruiser Sakawa.

Missing and presumed sunk—The destroyer Anderson, seen earlier to be badly damaged and in a sinking condition.

Badly damaged—The old carrier Independence, near where the bomb exploded; the battleship Arkansas, its superstructure wrecked; the Japanese battleship Nagato; the U.S. heavy cruiser Pensacola; the submarine Skate near the target center with all its structure above board blown away; and a tank landing ship.

Fires licked at all these damaged ships, Fay reported, with the exception of the submarine Skate.

Nevada's Decks Blackened

Among the 25 ships suffering varying degrees of damage was the old battleship Nevada, bullseye of the target fleet. Its orange and white deck was seared and blackened by the blast.

Observers watching the television screen aboard the Panamint said the bomb exploded about 1,000 feet up off the Nevada's starboard bow, indicating that the Independence which was in that vicinity must have caught nearly the full fury of the bomb.

The famed old carrier Saratoga, anchored two miles from the target's center, blazed briefly but its fire was put out and observers could see its planes still lashed to the decks.

When a fireboat pulled up to the smoldering battleship Pennsylvania it found the goats there eating hay as though man had not just loosed his most terrifying weapon.

The latest word on the German Cruiser Prinz Eugen, likewise about two miles from the target center, was that it was not damaged by the blast. It twice had been reported damaged.

So were the battleship New York, the destroyer Wilson, the cruiser Salt Lake City, the transports Briscoe, Niagara, Bladen, Banner and Butte, and a number lesser vessels including small landing craft.

Draws No Conclusions

Blandy declined at a press conference to draw any conclusions from the test or to say that the navies of the world might have to change their designs and tactics.

"That's not our job," he said. "We put facts before the evaluation board of the joint chiefs of staff and the evaluation commission of the President, and they draw the conclusions."

He sent out a "well done" to all hands of the task force.

To the airmen he declared that the bombing and the drone plane operation were "probably the most remarkable airmanship in history."

Only one of the unmanned drone planes sent out to sample the atomic cloud crashed into the sea. The others got back with their data.

In sheer delight, Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt who piloted A-bomber, "Dave's Dream," buzzed the field as he returned to base at Kwajalein after the successful run.

"Nice pitching Woody," a spectator called as Maj. Charles H. Wood, bombardier who laid the bomb down fairly close to the aiming point, climbed from the ship.

Scientific observers said the bomb was about efficient as the one loosed on Nagasaki, which far exceeded the power of the one dropped on Hiroshima.

35,000-Foot Cloud

The cloud of radioactive smoke and fog rose an estimate 35,000 feet, thrusting its mushroom cap into the stratosphere upon a shaft of pure white cloud.

Scientists said the brown, dirty color that had stained the clouds over New Mexico, Hiroshima, and Nagasaki was due to the dust, dirt and debris kicked up on land.

While the estimate that the cloud did not reach the 40,000 to 60,000 feet of the one over Nagasaki was made on the scene, Kwajalein observers said they saw the cloud from their base 240 miles away.

Meteorologists on Kwajalein said that if what they saw was the cloud from Bikini, then it too must have risen to 60,000 feet.

Destroyers and planes speeding out to track the cloud lost it at 35,000 feet in the fierce winds of the stratosphere. Two other planes with instruments designed to record radioactivity went out to try to track it down.

Blandy announced that the second underwater atomic bomb test would be held within the next three or four weeks.

3 Of 73 Target Ships Sunk By Atom Bomb

By Don Whitehead

Aboard the U.S.S. Appalachian off Bikini, July 1 (AP)—Three of the 73 old target warships were sunk and eight others badly damaged in today's spectacular test of the fourth atomic bomb, Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy reported tonight as vessels of his task force moved into Bikini lagoon to survey damage.

DAY

This was based on a cursory inspection. Many ships are burning. The total could be higher by daybreak.

Whether the atomic bomb will force navies of the world into new construction and battle tactics remained the day's big question.

The bomb wrought a great deal of damage to ships anchored in the lagoon but the blast did not sink a capital ship, even though they were directly under the explosion.

Manila Gets Set For Celebration

Manila, July 1 (AP)—War-blasted Manila prepared today for its greatest day since the Spanish landings of four centuries ago—its independence inaugural on July 4.

Events on that day will climax three centuries of bloody struggle against feudal Spanish rule and 45 years of political evolution under United States tutelage.

All roads led to this jammed, housing-short capital. The 116 official delegates headed the list of arrivals which included hundreds of thousands of peasants from the hinterlands, descendants of Spanish dons and wealthy hacienda owners, Igorote hill tribesmen and fierce Moros from Mindanao.

Traffic Snarled

Traffic was already badly snarled at bridge bottlenecks across the Pasig River. The city's population of at least 1,000,000 was expected to be doubled for the independence

Declines To Draw Conclusions

Admiral Blandy declined at a press conference to draw any conclusions from the test.

"That's not our job," he said. "We put facts before the evaluation board of the joint chiefs of staff and the evaluation commission of the President and they draw conclusions."

Scientists aboard the Admiral's flagship said they thought today's bomb was about equal in nuclear efficiency to the one used at Nagasaki.

A recapitulation of the bomb's destructive power showed two attack transports, the Carlisle and the Gilliam, sunk. The destroyer Lamson was capsized and later went down, and the destroyer Anderson was so badly damaged it was expected to sink momentarily.

Jap Cruiser Ripped Open

The Japanese cruiser Sakawa was ripped open at the water line and may sink.

Fires still were burning late tonight aboard the carrier Independence, which suffered the greatest damage of any vessel afloat and was listing badly.

Heavy damage, particularly topside, was done to the battleship Arkansas, the Japanese battleship Nagato, the submarine Skate, the heavy cruiser Pensacola and a tank landing ship.

Some 25 other vessels received slight damage.

One of these was the battleship Pennsylvania, which had a small fire which was put out by a fireboat.

Fate Of Animals Unknown

What happened to the animals which were placed aboard several of the target ships is not yet known. Observers saw animals still alive on ships at the fringe of the fleet, but nothing is known of those put aboard vessels in the center of the blast area to test the effects of the atomic bomb on humans in a similar position.

An underwater test of the bomb will be held in the next three or four weeks, Admiral Blandy said, depending on how soon he will be able to make preparations and get the fleet into position.

Today's bomb burst in a huge blast, sending up great multi-colored balls and a tremendous column of lethal cloud.

Successful, Says Blandy

Blandy described the experiment as successful and congratulated all hands involved. Navy Secretary Forrestal likewise termed the test a "well-planned and well-executed operation."

Th bomb burst with a blinding flash at 9 A.M. (5 P.M., Sunday, Eastern Standard Time.)

Associated Press Science Writer Howard Blakeslee reported that the heart of the resultant cloud was pink, turning to gold as it shot up at about one quarter of a mile a minute.

"The bomb burst began to lose its ball shape and mushroomed," he wrote. "As it pierced one cloud layer above another there seemed to be several balls, one above another.

Cloud Upon Cloud

"After one hour the top of the cloud was well above 30,000 feet. This top was a mushroom which had shot out and up from the original mushroom, but after one hour this top was a huge, hazy cloud, distinguished from other natural clouds around it only by its slightly brown color.

"It's shape was that of an ice-cream cone that had melted quite flat. It was probably 20 miles wide."

The first craft entered the lagoon within three hours after the bomb burst, to study radioactivity and combat the fires.

Binocular Inspection

A close binocular inspection of the target ships from the Panamint showed that probably no vessel escaped damage, Associated Press Correspondent Paul K. Lee reported. He said that in most cases, however, damage appeared small, consisting mainly of bent masts and wrecked superstructure.

No attempt was being made immediately to fight the fire steadily eating away the carrier Independence, but fireboats poured heavy streams on the smoking battleship Pennsylvania, which evidently had been considered salvagable.

The carrier Saratoga no longer burned. Planes could be seen lashed to her decks.

Instruments Endangered

Fires may have been kindled aboard other ships by the unearthly heat of nuclear fission and not yet eaten their way into view.

A new fire suddenly flared out aboard the transport Cortland in midafternoon.

The blazes endanger scientific instruments in the hulls of the vessels and materiel placed aboard for study of the effect of the explosion.

Strangely, the bullseye ship Nevada appeared not badly damaged although the bomb was aimed to burst directly above it. Its bright orange and white paint was blackened and burnt, however, apparently by the incredible heat.

Burst 1,000 Feet In Air

The north side of the ship showed the greatest loss of paint, indicating that the bomb burst just north of it, toward Bikini Island. Observers watching the television screen aboard the U.S.S. Panamint said the bomb appeared to burst about 1,000 feet in the air, slightly to the starboard of the Nevada.

The German heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen was listed among the heavily damaged. Reported damage to the Prinz Eugen caused surprise because it was on the fringe of the target fleet.

Fires were reported aboard the famed old carrier Saratoga, battleships Nevada and New York, destroyer Wilson and transports Briscoe, Niagara, Bladen, Banner, Butte and Cortland.

As Blakeslee Saw It

Blakeslee saw the blazing ball of fire and smoke roll up from the horizon minutes after the bomb was dropped. The heart of the hot cloud was pink—a pink that turned to gold as the cloud surged upward.

The cloud broke into three mushrooms, with the great cap thousands of feet over the lagoon within ten minutes.

How many men would have been killed or put out of action by the great flash of the X-rays was not known, Blakeslee said.

These X-rays traveled with the speed of light and were recorded at least 18 miles from the explosion, where they were very weak.

Explosions aboard the Independence reportedly were caused by ammunition and aviation gasoline placed aboard to see what would have happened had she carried a normal load. The explosions followed the bomb blast by nearly six hours, however, and had a crew been aboard the flames might have been extinguished before reaching shells or gasoline.

Least Effective Way

All of the widespread damage to the target fleet was from the use of the atomic bomb in the air—the least effective way, in the opinion of scientists, for using this weapon against naval power.

Pilotless "drone" planes roared into the clouds at once, gathering radioactive substance for study. The thousands of watchers—military men, scientists, newsmen and observers—snatched off their blackened goggles to watch the billowing column.

From the U.S.S. Panamint, Associated Press Correspondent Paul K. Lee reported that opinions on the exhibition and its final results varied. All agreed that they had expected more than they saw.

Praised By Blandy

Admiral Blandy praised the work of the Army, Navy and air arm as "probably the most remarkable airmanship in history," referring to the intricate synchronization of the planes and ships involved.

Blandy later told newsmen that the operation "went so much the way we planned it that it really is not newsworthy."

The bomb burst as seen from this press ship was somewhat like a fairly unusual sunset.

There was little noise, a slight heat wave, and no heavier sea as a result.

Correspondents Cautioned

Correspondents had been provided with darkened goggles, and warned against looking directly into the "terrific glare." They were cautioned not to perch on a precarious position because they "might be knocked off by the blast."

Brilliant Red Ball

Aboard U.S.S Appalachian off Bikini, July 1 (AP)—The most beautiful sight of the atomic blast was that seen on the Appalachian by Seaman First Class Kenneth Thorn, who kept his uncovered eyes looking directly at the flash all the time, despite warnings that all aboard should wear special dark goggles.

Thorn, who lives in the Bronx, New York, unwittingly contributed a new scientific chapter to the A-bomb explosion. He saw the first flash as a bright red ball. Everyone who kept his glasses on saw this flash as white.

What happened to Thorn was that in the first few millionths of a second, the flash caused slight blind spots in the center of his eyes. Because of these spots he saw the red color for a few seconds.

"Boy!" he exclaimed. "It was the most beautiful thing I ever saw. I can't describe the brilliance of the red ball I saw. It was a lighter color than a red stop light. It was alive. It spread in a flash to a big red ball and the color turned red-yellow. I never dreamed anything could be so brilliant."

After that, in a few seconds Thorn's color vision returned to normal and he saw the spectacle the same as other observers.

Rays Restrict Reporters' Ship

Aboard the U.S.S. Appalachian July 1 (AP)—Reports tonight indicated that this press ship would not be permitted close to the target ships until tomorrow afternoon—30 hours after the atomic bomb was dropped—because of the danger of radioactive rays.

The source of the rays was not explained.

Bomb's Wave Slightly Exceeds Spring Tide

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian Tuesday, July 2 (AP)—The atom bomb wave in Bikini lagoon ran up the beaches like a high tide, washing half a dozen small boats up onto the sand but subsiding before it had reached the bases of the palm trees.

The high water mark evidently had been little higher than normal spring tides.

JUN 2 1946

The Goats Survived

Aboard U.S.S. Mount McKinley at Bikini, July 1 (AP)—Goats on the deck of the battleship Pennsylvania were standing munching hay, undisturbed by the atomic blast that started a fire on the vessel.

Read Admiral Thorvald Solberg, director of ships, saw the animals while making a preliminary check of damage.

A small fire on the Pennsylvania was extinguished by a passing tug. The battleship was near the outer edge of the target area.

Solberg said he did not see any dead fish, but on the contrary saw minnows swimming around.

There have been no reports of what happened to animals on other ships, some of which were near the center of the lagoon.

'Bring Back My Bikini To Me'

Aboard Flagship Mount McKinley, Atomic Bomb Fleet, July 1 (AP). You dinna find heather or hear the skirl of pipes in the Marshalls, but the lads and lassies sing, "Bring back my bonnie to me."

The tone has the flatness of native music and the words are without burr, but the air and lyric sung by Marshallese children are instantly recognizable.

The song, together with such others as "You Are My Sunshine" and "Working on the Railroad," have been taught the youngsters by missionaires, along with old familiar hymns.

Compton Revises Damage Opinion

Kwajalein, July 1 (AP) — The atomic bomb dropped over Bikini lagoon yesterday probably caused considerably more damage than his first quick inspection from the air indicated, Dr. Karl T. Compton told a press conference today.

Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Evaluation Board, said his first impression when the mushroom lifted to reveal the lagoon was that the ships appeared virtually intact.

"Later it was my impression that a good many ships were displaced," Compton said. "I don't know whether it was because small ships were sunk or whether the ships pulled loose from their anchors. Later I saw that four large ships in the center of the target had swung around."

Expects Nevada Is A Wreck

Bradley Dewey, president of the American Chemical Society, said: "I predicted in advance the Nevada would be afloat but would be a wreck, never again worth anything. I bet I'm still right. I think the blast wave bounced off the water. We may find many hulls damaged."

Dr. Rogers Warner, Jr., head of the Los Alamos scientists, was reported "convinced from descriptions that it was a high-order explosion and I am satisfied."

Compton said he believed he saw a series of three waves striking Bikini reef at angles, but there was no way of telling how high. A little later, a wave washed over the reef, he declared.

Compton carried quartz crystal radio-activity indicators, which he said registered only 2½ points at 7,500 feet altitude, 23 miles from the explosion. Forty-seven points is considered dangerous.

SAYS CLOUD HAD ODOR OF HOT STEEL

JUN 2 1946

Roi Island, July 1 (A. P.).—The atomic cloud which mushroomed over Bikini atoll today had a peculiar odor—like that of steel which got overheated, said Lieut. George Bright of Vineland, N. J., drone control pilot.

Bright's report was believed here to be the first ever made on atomic odor.

He was able to notice the smell because his guide plane went within six miles of the mushroom instead of the prearranged ten, explained Commander John W. Davidson, commander of the Shangri-La drone unit.

Except for the odor, Bright said, he was disappointed.

"I didn't see a flash and felt no shock . . . no heat . . . no nothing," he declared.

Bright and Lieut. David E. James of Madison, Wis., pilots of two mother planes controlling one of the Navy's three successful drones, sent their baby into the cloud of 15,000 feet ten minutes after the bomb was dropped. Both said the normally red drone "came out snow white—because it was covered with ice, "but the ice melted before they landed here.

Davidson said the Navy's missing drone was lost because the automatic pilot failed, presumably because of ice conditions at 28,000 feet altitude.

B. B. C. Cuts Off Blast, Reception Too 'Woolly'

Britons Hear Only Metronome; Music, Then Commentator

LONDON, July 1 (AP).—Millions of Britons who waited beside radios last night in hope of hearing the reverberations of the atomic bomb blast at Bikini heard only the ticking of a metronome, the reception of which was described by a British Broadcasting Corporation official as "very woolly, indeed."

Atmospherics interfered with voice reception, and not long before "A" hour the B. B. C. announced it was substituting a program of music "until reception from the Pacific becomes intelligible." The Pacific broadcast was switched back on just as a commentator was describing the column of smoke rising over Bikini following the bomb blast.

London morning papers featured front-page stories on the bomb test. Some of the headlines read: "Daily Mail"—"U. S. Navy Chiefs Say Atom Bomb Is Debunked".

BLAST STUDIED BY FORRESTAL

Secretary Notes Heavily Armored Ships Stood Test

San Francisco, July 1 (AP)—James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, inspected the Bikini target fleet today and broadcast in a radio interview two general conclusions: "There will still be navies in the future," and "Havily built and heavily armored ships are difficult to sink unless they sustain underwater damage."

He added in the informal question-and-answer session aboard the flagship Mount McKinley the hope that "the American navy will continue to be the most efficient, the most modern and the most powerful in the world."

Based On Early Observations

Heavy ships in Bikini's target fleet sustained "relatively unimportant" damage and apparently still are operable, he said, after the atomic bomb blast that sank five vessels and damaged 31.

Forrestal made it clear that his comments were drawn from early observations, and "it is too early to draw specific conclusions."

One questioner pointed out that many observers had been disappointed in the atomic blast as a spectacle.

"Final results," the Secretary replied, "will have to be determined—only after a complete examination."

Reiterates Merger View

Responding to another query on Army-Navy merger proposals, Forrestal said that the Navy has always believed there must be unity of command in the field of operations.

He also informed his interviewers that he plans a tour of oriental bases and possibly may follow this with a trip around the world.

Forrestal asked that opinions on the relative strength of the atomic blast be "held inabeyance" until all information can be compiled.

Not One Person Killed Or Injured

San Francisco, July 1 (AP)—Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, commander of the Bikini atom bomb fleet, said today that not a single person was killed or injured in the atom bomb test. One pilotless drone plane plunged into the sea.

In a broadcast from his flagship, the Mount McKinley, heard here, Blandy said all other drones were successfully flown through the clouds created by the atomic bomb and returned to their bases for inspection. The missing drone crashed before the bomb was dropped, he added. (600)

CALLED A SUICIDE OVER BIKINI TEST

Los Angeles, July 1 (A. P.).—Police reported that Susannah Gregory, a 23-year-old registered nurse, leaped to her death from the roof of a thirteen-story apartment building yesterday. Mrs. R. L. Garlich, an aunt whom the nurse was visiting, told the police that Miss Gregory became visibly depressed by the radio broadcast of the Bikini atom bomb test "and feared for the future of the world."

OPA's Demise Viewed Favorably In Brazil

Sao Paulo, Brazil, July 1 (AP)—News of OPA's death met with generally favorable reaction from producers in this world coffee capital.

Coffee plantation valuations have improved in recent weeks and private Brazilian capital is showing interest in new investments believed to be based on opinion that remunerative prices are imminent.

A Santa Cruz coffee fazenda was sold recently for $1,000,000.

0 was voted overwhelmingly tonight by the House but the Senate leadership decided not to go along with that method of reviving price control.

NIGHT

The Senate-House difference meant that price controls, which expired Sunday midnight, will remain dead until the two branches can agree on new extension legislation.

May Remove Rent Curbs

There was a possibility that rent

But in the face of Senate opposition, Democratic Leader Barkley (D-Ky) decided not to bring it to a vote, as such. Instead, the House measure will go to the Senate Banking committee to be overhauled into a new one-year extender—with as few as possible of the amendments which led President Truman to veto the original extension bill.

Officials Urge Restraint

This will leave the country without statutory brake on prices for as long as it takes Congress to act, but with officials hoping that voluntary restraint evident today will be continued.

Price Administrator Paul Porter expressed the belief that the price line could be held by voluntary action for two or three weeks. He also voiced confidence that "we will get the kind of price control that meets the specifications laid down by the President."

House debate on the stopgap extension brought a prediction from Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the Banking committee that "a great catastrophe will come to the American people" unless price controls are revived. On the other hand Rep. Allen (R-Ill) asserted there can be "no compromise" unless Congress "completely abdicates, completely surrenders to the bureaucratic administrators of the OPA."

A chorus of boos greeted Allen from the visitors' gallery. Speaker Rayburn sternly ordered them hushed.

Amendments Rejected

Proposals by Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill) to make the temporary extension only 10 days and by Rep. Smith (D-Va) to make it 60 days were defeated—Dirksen's on a 166 to 83 standing vote, Smith's on a voice vote. Smith, although a frequent critic of the OPA, said he fears "we will experience inflation of disastrous proportions."

A move by Rep. Baldwin (R-NY) to continue with the old law unchanged until Jan. 20, allowing the new Congress to deal with the matter after the elections, also lost—on a 168 to 82 vote.

Western congressmen moved to save from the OPA wreckage the program by which the government subsidizes production of critical metals from mines with high operating costs. Two identical bills to transfer this program to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and continue it were introduced in the Senate by Senators Hayden (D-Ariz), Murray (D-Mont) and McFarland (D-Ariz) and in the House by Reps. Bunker (D-Nev), Harless (D-Ariz) and Murdock (D-Ariz).

The C. I. O., through its legislative counsel, Nathan E. Cowan, called on all its member organizations to "organize mass citizens protests against the loss of price control and to channel demands for action to Washington."

Porter prepared a radio broadcast to the OPA employes in the field, saying that rising stock and commodity prices are "an ominous sign that speculators are already placing bets on inflation." He added, however, that they "misread the temper" of the people and Congress. To a rally of OPA workers here, Porter similarly predicted that price control will win out.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) also took to the radio, repeating over NBC the speech he delivered last night over the Mutual Network. In reply to an announcer's question, Taft predicted that the House stop-gap extension will not pass the Senate. He expressed hope, however, that a new one-year extension will be enacted.

Barkley, Speaker Rayburn, Senator McKellar (D-Tenn), presiding officer of the Senate, and House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts conferred with Mr. Truman during the morning and outlined the situation to him. Barkley reported that the meeting was "friendly" despite the chief executive's veto action, which ran counter to the congressmen's advice.

Senator Byrd Proposes Rent Controls Be Revived at Once.

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)—An extension of the OPA until July controls may be re-established quickly.

Senator Byrd (D-Va) introduced a measure to restore rent control immediately for another year, saying "we ought to get started on retaining these controls while we fight out the question of price control." A group of Republicans drafted a similar House bill.

Stabilization Director Chester Bowles at the same time telegraphed governors suggesting state action on rent control "until federal action can be taken." Governors already had acted in Alabama, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York.

The House passed the stopgap bill which would continue the now-dead price control for 20 days by a vote of 283 to 61, intending it to serve until Congress can whip into shape a long range bill.

[By the Associated Press]

Prices of agricultural products swung upward in cash and futures markets at Chicago today as dealers endeavored to adjust themselves to the first free markets since the early days of the war. Many markets were reported as highly confused.

Opening prices in futures on the Chicago Board of Trade, the New York and New Orleans cotton markets and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange were sharply higher, but selling then entered the markets and reduced some of the early gains. Cash markets were also up sharply. Two-dollar wheat returned to the country for the first time since 1925 when bids above that figure were made at Chicago. A New all-time high was made for cattle, and hogs reached their best levels since 1919.

Butter Market Confused

At Chicago the butter market was reported as "too confused for a quotable basis."

Cattle prices soared as much as $4 a hundred pounds on the Chicago livestock market with two loads of choice offerings bringing $22 a hundred pounds. The previous high for best grade cattle was $21.50 in 1919. The OPA ceiling

Advances in the hog market ranged from $2 to $3.65 a hundred pounds. Top price was $18.50, which compared with an OPA ceiling last week of $14.85. Hogs reached an all-time peak of $23.60 in 1919.

Receipts Not Large

Receipts in the livestock market were not large, as farmers did not have time to react to removal of OPA ceilings by increasing their shipments.

Hogs scored a more spectacular g.in at Indianapolis, jumping $5.15 a hundred pounds to $20.00, the highest level in 25 years.

The Omaha livestock market reported that best grade cattle sold there at $22.50 a hundred pounds, highest level in history.

Cash grain dealers on the Chicago Board of Trade said that No. 2 hard wheat was bid at $2.05 for immediate shipment. No sales were reported. The ceiling last week was $1.97.

Corn made an even more spectacular advance. Bids opened at $1.85 a bushel for No. 2 yellow and then were raised to $2.10. Nothing was reported sold at either level. Ceiling price last week was $1.46½.

At New York the cotton futures market reached extreme gains of $4.10 a bale, scoring the highest prices since 1923-24. Prices slumped later in the session.

Corn Futures

Corn futures were bid 5 cents higher on the Board of Trade, the limit advance permitted in a single session. Only a few sales were made at the $1.51½-a-bushel price. Oats scored gains ranging to 5 cents at the opening and then lost about half the upturn.

Official quotations of some items in the wholesale live poultry market in New York today quickly caught up with illegal prices prevailing prior to the expiration of price controls. Increases ranged up to 22 cents a pound.

In the freight market Rock chickens were quoted at 45 cents a pound, compared with Friday's quotation of 28-30 cents; colored fowls, sold at 37-38 cents, against 32.7 cents Friday.

In The Express Market

In the express market, colored, southern fowls were quoted from 36 to 37 cents a pound, against 31.5 cents on Friday; leghorns, nearby, were 34-35 cents, compared with Friday's 31.5 cents. Increases of pullets ranged from 16 to 22 cents a pound. Others were generally unchanged.

The dressed poultry market generally was unsettled and no sales were made at definite prices on which to establish quotations.

On the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, egg futures opened sharply .8 to 1.1 cents higher, then reacted somewhat, only to recover again to parital gains. Onions were 3 cents up, but potatoes dropped 5 cents on heavy receipts.

As a reaction to the definite removal of high margin requirements on future trading, the New Orleans cotton market was flooded with trading at the exchange requirement of only $15 a bale for margins. Immediately there was a rush to take profits and the market declined quickly $1.75 to $2.45 a bale from the highest levels. After the opening flurry trading subsided considerably.

New York Trading

Traders on the New York Cotton Exchange operated today on the old margin rulings in effect before OPA raised them drastically two months ago, but with the same $5 a bale limitation in price changes in any one trading day.

In the Chicago market a large cereal company was bidding 10 cents over OPA ceilings for No. 2 white oats for shipment within the next ten days.

The New York Stock Market ran into profit cashing today, after an early rallying sprint, and top gains of $1 to $4 a share were reduced or converted into declines at the close. Late selling was attributed to the thought that Congress might enact a new price-control law.

Steels, motors, coppers, mail orders and assorted industrials led the forenoon swing, although some of these backed down at the finish. Commodities rose sharply and the majority held their advances, some at the day's permissible limit. Bonds improved selectively. Stock transfers ran to around 1,700,000 shares, largest since May 29.

Wool top futures opened at an advance of 4 cents a pound in the New York market—the equivalent of 40 points, against a permissible rise of 100 points in a single session. Wool climbed the limit of 10 cents a pound to $1.43 a pound.

Cocoa Market Up

New York cocoa market prices opened up 1 cent a pound, which is equal to the 100-point limit.

Cottonseed oil futures also advanced 69 points soon after the market opened. Cottonseed oil jumped the allowed limit of a cent a pound.

No flour was offered by millers this morning in the New York market. Traders attributed this to the confusion caused by the abolition of price control.

Trading in black-pepper futures was suspended on the New York Produce Exchange. The board of managers gave no reason for the suspension, although it is generally known that stocks of black pepper are almost exhausted in this country.

But a check of food and department stores in leading cities of the country showed an evident hold-the-line attitude. In Baltimore, New York and Milwaukee some stores even advertised price slashes.

Rise In Milk Price

Milk rose 2 cents a quart in Connecticut and some parts of Massachusetts. Meat prices appeared about the same, although some experts had predicted a ten per cent price boost.

Definite increases were predicted for meat, milk and sugar—ten per cent for meat. 2 cents per quart for milk and 1 cent a pound for sugar.

The A. and P. chain said its 6,000 stores in 37 states would not increase prices today and the company said it would "take absolutely no advantage of the fact that price control has been removed."

The American Meat Institute, which represents packers generally, said it would take a little time for the industry to get back on its feet and that the speed of recovery depends to a large degree on the supplies of livestock coming to the market.

F. Eugene Ackerman, executive director of the American Wool Council, expressed doubt that clothing prices would be substantially increased.

Fall Lines Already Priced

He declared that manufacturers have advised retailers of prices for fall lines "and they would be foolish to kick their customers around by hiking prices now." Retail stores face the possibility of a "buyers' strike" if they raise prices, he said.

The National Association of Retail Grocers said it had sent telegrams to all its members asking that there be no "radical increase." The telegrams said there "ultimately would be increased production . . . and consequently greater supplies at reasonable prices."

Gwylim A. Price, president of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, said that the company "will exercise great restraint in raising the prices of its products . . . with or without OPA control in effect."

BUSINESS STUDIES NEW CONDITIONS AS ALL CONTROLS END

JUN 2 1946

Commodity Markets Climb with Near-Record Quotations Reported.

RENT HIKES NOTED

Emergency State Legislation Is Sought in Several Capitals.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nations retailers—despite lifting of government controls—generally held prices at OPA levels yesterday in the face of near record-high quotations in cattle and hog markets, grain, cotton and wool.

Industrial stocks on the New York Exchange rose sharply in the morning but extreme advances were reduced ultimately and a number of losers appeared at the close.

Rent Boosts Reported

Rents advanced 15 to 33 1-3 percent in many places and soared out of sight in a few in the first 24 hours of freedom from four-year-old Federal ceilings.

Prospects of early congressional action to restore some system of price control faded in a welter of parliamentary difficulties and die-hard opposition.

A rising clamor for emergency state legislation was heard in some sectors, especially where rents shot up sharply.

Most disturbing to hold-the-line adherents were market trends such as $20 hogs in Indianapolis—highest in 27 years, the first two dollar wheat since 1925 at Chicago and an all time $22 high for cattle compared to last week's $18 OPA ceiling.

The Western States Meat Packers association, claiming 90 percent of the business done by independent packers in nine western states, announced that prices would be raised today an average of 20 percent above ceiling prices on all grades of meat. E.F. Forbes, president of the association, said prices for top grades would go up 30 percent.

Retail Increases to Follow

Such increases would be reflected almost immediately in the retail price of meat and flour under normal conditions, economists said.

Similar advances were scored in wool and cotton futures, certain to be translated in increased clothing prices if the trend continues.

The first reports of increases following OPA's Sunday midnight demise came in rents and milk.

In the east, few cities reported sufficient meat supplies to detect any rising price trend but farther west, at Phoenix, Ariz., for instance, one meat wholesaler announced a 25 percent hike except on luncheon meats which were boosted 10 percent.

Fresh beef was up 5 and 10 cents a pound in Chicago.

Fresh fruits and vegetables, some of them early and out-of-season, registered slight gains at scattered points—Portland, Ore., Boston, Columbus, O., Washington, D.C., among others.

Restaurant prices were steady except in a few cases where fancy items heretofore forbidden by OPA ceilings reappeared on menus for those with that kind of appetite.

Reports of rent increases ranging from 15 per cent to 300 per cent—the latter case in Florida resort areas—were widespread.

In Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Ohio state officials heard demands for state legislation to curb the rising trend.

New York already had its own rent control program as well as the District of Columbia. In Massachusetts OPA rent ceilings were held through an emergency order from Gov. Maurice Tobin.

Acting Governor Haydn Proctor of New Jersey and Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama took similar action last night, freezing rents at the OPA level.

Stores Hold Ceiling Prices

Leading department stores throughout the country adhered to OPA ceilings, announcing they would continue to do so until Congress had time to act.

Sears, Roebuck and company, one of the nation's largest merchandising firms, said "Sears policy will be to retain prices at established ceilings."

In housing materials and used cars there was not enough activity to establish any trend. In Newark, N. J., a 10 per cent hike in lumber prices was reported at one lumber yard. In Chicago, a used car dealer was reported asking $1,800 for a car listed at $1,500 under OPA ceilings.

Reports of reduced prices and rents were not at all rare. A Milwaukee, Wis., men's store cut prices five per cent. So did a New York delicatessen.

The price of oranges declined from $6 a crate to $4 in Baltimore. A Boston fruit dealer lowered the price of peaches and bananas.

In Phoenix, Ariz., and Miami, Fla., two sets of tenants received notices of lower monthly rent payments.

One report of increased wages due to the passing of OPA came from Portland, Me., where A.F.L. carpenters boosted their hourly rate from $1.15 to $1.37½ cents.

The nation's consumers heard numerous "hold-the-line" pledges from business and industrial leaders but not all were completely satisfied.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), summoned his policy committee to plan a nationwide buyers strike until price controls are restored.

Interviewed in New York on his return by airplane from Europe, President Robert R. Wason of the National Association of Manufacturers asserted that benefits would accrue to the public from OPA's demise, and that production would be accelerated.

Wason said he believed increased production and competition would curb price increases.

War Lifted Farm Income, Commerce Dept. Reports

JUN 2 1946

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP) War brought America's farmers their most prosperous years in history, increasing their net income 200 percent and piling up a $10,000,000,000 backlog in cash and government bonds, the Commerce department said today.

Looking ahead, the department declared that "farm prosperity should continue at least until well into 1948, but after that there is no assurance that the old farm problem—lack of adequate markets and hidden farm unemployment—may not again appear."

The department said present farm prosperity "is due directly to the high wartime earnings of American labor that enabled millions of persons for the first time to enjoy somthing like an adequate diet and to dress satisfactorily."

Net Income Increases

It added in an analysis of postwar farm markets that the net income of farmers increased from $5,600,000,000 to $14,800,000,000 in the 1940-45 period.

This boost came despite the fact that 5,000,000 persons left the farm during that period.

In 1940, it said, there were 30,000,000 people living on farms, or 23 percent of the total population. In 1945, the number decreased to 25,000,000 or 18 percent of population.

So far, the department said, there is "no evidence of any extensive back-to-the-farm movement even on the part of veterans drafted from farm areas. Despite a small increase in farm population figures for January this year over 1944 and 1945, the farm population is still 4,600,0000 below January, 1940."

Fears Land Boom

The department said the "effective size" of the postwar farm market will depend in part upon whether farm savings go into purchase of goods or into speculation in farm properties, where it observed the situation is "reminiscent of the speculative boom following World War One."

Last March 1, the department's index of farm land prices was 69 percent above the 1939 index figure, compared with a 70 percent increase in the index from 1913 to 1920.

"However, per acre farm land prices have not yet reached the level of 1920 and one relatively favorable factor in the present situation is that credit financing of sales has been a minor factor," the department said, adding that more than half of all 1945 farm land sales were for cash.

The analysis included these observations:

1. "The best insurance of continued farm prosperity lies in an adequate number of jobs in business and industry for the excess farm population and continued business prosperity and a high level of wages so that the people can continue to buy farm products."

2. About half of the nation's farms produce some nine tenths of all farm output, and many farms "furnish only a meager subsistence and a very little cash income to their operation."

3. "The birth rate on the farms is larger than that in the cities and this, coupled with the trend towards increased mechanization and larger farms, means that increasing numbers of farm people will be seeking industrial employment."

WAR-PROFIT LOOPHOLES IN LAW PROBED

Mead Committee Told of Rapidly Formed And Interlocking Firms

Washington, July 1 (AP)—The Senate War Investigating Committee today looked into the affairs of nineteen closely linked Illinois manufacturing concerns—termed by Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) a "sprawling industrial paper empire"—in search of a formula to prevent war profiteering.

George Meader, committee counsel, spread upon the record documents purporting to show that the nineteen partnerships and corporations had received $79,094,101 in war contracts, beginning with a $3,000,000 order issued to one company before it existed legally.

Into what began as a fiscal accounting of the concern's wartime operations came references to the Lindbergh kidnapping, the operations of Dutch Schultz, Washington lobby activities, and the story of a $16,264 celebration of an army efficiency award.

"30 Or 40" People Employed

The inquiry centered chiefly around affairs of Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., of Elgin, Ill., a corporation formed February 4, 1942, with A. B. Gellman, J. T. Weiss and the Garsson brothers, Henry and Murray, as the directors.

Edward Schaefer, chief accountant of the Government's General Accounting Office in Chicago, testified this corporation, never employing more than '30 or 40" people, obtained an order for $3,240,000 worth of mortar shells.

The corporation hired a factory from the Illinois Watch Case Company, paying as rent two per cent of the cost of the work done for the Government.

Repetition Of Ownership

Gellman and Weiss were the sole owners of that company and received for rent, Schaefer testified, $683,750.

Records showed the Erie Corporation obtained an advance from the Government of almost $1,000,000 and purchased its machinery from the Interstate Machinery Company, Inc., of Chicago. All the stock in that corporation, the committee learned, is owned by the Weiss and Geliman families.

Brig. Gen. Paul X. English, retired, former chief of the industrial division of the Chemical Warfare Service, testified he thought Henry Garsson was connected with the Segal Lock and Hardware Company, of New York, when the first contract was awarded.

Connection Denied

The committee produced a letter quoting Loius Segal, president of that company, as denying any connection with the Erie Corporation.

Meader introduced records purporting to show that Murray Garsson had twice gone through bankruptcy proceedings and that Henry Garsson, a former revenue agent, had been discharged after being acquitted of an extortion charge in connection with income-tax collections.

He had English read into the record an FBI report on Murray Garsson, a native of England, which related that he had taken a personal hand in atempting to solve the Lindbergh kidnapping.

House Will Get Rent-Control Resolution

JUN 2 1946

Washington, July 1 (AP)—Republican House leaders today drafted a resolution to re-enact OPA rent controls.

This resolution, if passed, would block any hikes in rents already announced by landlords—provided OPA orders such a rollback.

Representative Wolcott of Michigan, senior Republican on the House Banking Committee, announced he would offer the resolution, as he emerged from a meeting in the office of Republican Leader Martin, of Massachusetts.

Coverage Retroactive

Wolcott said the resolution would make Government control over rents retroactive to last midnight, when OPA's life expired. He told newsmen his rent resolution would be "separate and apart" from any legislation to restore the general function of OPA.

The Michigan member said he would oppose an Administration resolution for a twenty-day stopgap revival of OPA, because he believes no better OPA bill can be written than the one President Truman vetoed.

Bowles's Rent Plea To Governors

JUN 2 1946

Washington, July 1 (AP)—Chester Bowles, retiring economic stabilizer, today called upon governors of 47 states to use emergency powers to freeze rents at June 30 OPA levels.

Telegrams went to the governors of all states except New York, where a state rent control measure is in effect.

Declaring he still has "real hopes that firm controls over prices and rents will be put back in short order," Bowles said:

"As a stop gap, I respectifully suggest that you exercise such emergency powers as you have, or move to secure the speedy enactment of emergency legislation, if necessary, to freeze rents at June 30 OPA ceilings and maintain safeguards against unwarranted evictions until Federal action can be taken."

Rents Up Much As 40 P.C.; Some Eviction Hints

[By the Associated Press]

Rents soared upward as much as 33⅓ per cent and in isolated cases even higher today as the OPA's death ended ceilings in all but two states and the District of Columbia.

In Miami, Fla., many tenants were notified of raises of one third up. One twenty-unit apartment house in Miami Beach hoisted $50 rents to $150. A tenant of a small apartment reported her rent raised from $25 to $90 a month.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer reported numerous telephone calls complaining of rent increases of 15 to 40 per cent.

A Cleveland Heights apartment house increased its $60 and $70 a month suites a flat $15 a month.

Eviction Moves Indicated

In Denver, one justice of the peace said he had issued 1,000 blank forms used for ten-day eviction notices under Colorado law.

Some Miami landlords were also seeking outright eviction of tenants, declaring they did not want Miami residents as tenants and would hold their property for a "killing" in the winter tourist season.

By telegram, some apartment tenants received notice that their rents would be raised from $36 to $95 a month, effective today.

Fight Is Urged

Meanwhile, Max Goodman, of the Miami Beach Tenants League, urged tenants receiving eviction or rent-raise notices to "refuse to be bullied."

On the brighter side of the picture, Miami's two biggest department stores pledged in full-page advertisements that they would not mark up their prices from present levels and would set prices "even lower where possible."

Some Miami shoppers pledged a "buyers' strike" against any trend toward inflationary prices.

The Miami Daily News said a survey of downtown shoppers showed they would combat inflation by refusing to buy—except for necessities. First reports, however, were that most merchants were keeping in line.

Ohio Action Urged

In Ohio, Gov. Frank J. Lausche was requested to recall the special session of the Legislature to deal with the situation.

State Representative Howard M. Metzenbaum, Cleveland Democrat, telegraphed the Governor suggesting that the Legislaure be reconvened "to enact a law setting rent controls."

Jack Lenco, a Cleveland apartment dweller, said 40 families in his neighborhood were notified of a fifteen per cent raise and all sent wires to Lausche urging special legislative action.

Officials of the CIO-United Automobile Workers' Cleveland district advised the union's 4,000 Fisher Body workers to "offer the landlord the existing rent."

"If the landlord refuses to accept it," the union advised, "the tenant should take no further action, for he has met his obligation."

Tenants in a great majority of states were faced with rent increases to become effective in 30 days.

The death of OPA rent controls found only New York state and the District of Columbia with legislation substituting local ceilings for national regulation.

In Massachusetts, Gov. Maurice J. Tobin issued an executive order early today freezing rents at present figures.

The situation in the rest of the country seemed to indicate rent increases for householders, except for a few states where the governments prepared to take quick action to hold present rates.

The National Apartment Owners Association sent telegrams to owners of 50,000 apartment houses in 50 principal cities asking them to hold rent increases within fifteen per cent of present rates.

In New Orleans, F. Poche Waguespack, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, predicted a rise in rentals "not to exceed fifteen or twenty per cent."

Plans For Des Moines

In Des Moines, Iowa, Dalton Fox, president of the Property Owners Association controlling more than half of the rental properties in the city of 183,000, said members planned immediate 30-day notices of increases to tenants. He said the association hopes to hold increases to fifteen per cent.

In Connecticut, Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin said he was prepared to suspend state laws dealing with summary process and evictions and to call a special session of the Legislature to provide emergency rent control laws "if the situation becomes acute."

Gov. Mortimer R. Proctor, of Vermont, said he would call a special session of the Legislature "to protect Vermonters against rent increases."

Gov. Edward Martin, of Pennsylvania, said he may invoke state control over rents if he finds he has that authority under war-time emergency powers.

Maine On The Watch

Gov. Horace Hildreth, of Maine, declared that the Legislature would take "appropriate action" if the situation were not clarified nationally. He called attention to Maine laws "prohibiting profiteering in the necessities of life, including rents."

In Oregon, tenants could draw some slight comfort from a statement by District OPA Director McDannell Brown saying that Oregon law required 30 days' notice for rent increases, allowing Congress time to act before any rent increases could become effective.

Fair-Rent Committees

The National Home and Property Owners Foundation announced in Washington that it would sponsor local fair-rent committees throughout the nation to hold rents to minimum levels.

Rent rises of fiftcen per cent were predicted by President Kyle McCarthy of the Portland (Ore.) Apartment House Owners, and C. Earl Giraldin of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

Greater increases were foreseen by E. M. Wimpee, rent director of an area including Chattanooga, Tenn., and several counties in Tennessee and Georgia, who predicted that rents would be "doubled in a month," and by E. M. Chapman, president of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, who said that "many tenants will be literally crucified."

OPA CHIEF SCORES CLIMB IN PRICES

JUN 2 1946

WASHINGTON, July 1 — (AP) OPA Administrator Paul Porter asserted tonight that rising stock and commodity prices following removal of controls are "an ominous sign that speculators are already placing bets on inflation."

"I think that they will find they have put their money on the wrong horse," he added in an address prepared for an ABC broadcast.

He cautioned the public not to be deluded if "supplies of hard-to-get goods may suddenly seem to become abundant."

Any sudden flow of scarce items to market "would represent only an effort to capitalize on the present situation by those who have been holding back goods for higher ceilings, or none at all," Porter declared.

"It could not, of course, represent a sudden spurt in production," he continued. "As a matter of fact production under price control has been expanding steadily until today we are now producing more than ever before in peacetime."

Porter earlier addressed a mass meeting of OPA's 3,300 Washington employes.

Sharing the rostrum with Chester Bowles, retiring stabilization director, he expressed confidence that "we will get the kind of price control that meets the specifications laid down by the President."

Bowles, who resigned last week in protest over the OPA extension bill passed by Congress, told the OPA employes that "if we ever wanted vindication of what we have been fighting for, we got it today."

This apparently was a reference to reports of rising prices.

SLOWDOWN IN HOUSING IS FEARED BY WYATT

JUN 2 1946

WASHINGTON, July 1—(AP) Home building has hit its highest rate since booming 1925 but the housing drive will miss its goal unless price control is saved, Wilson Wyatt declared tonight.

Lacking OPA's control over building materials prices, the national housing administrator said in a broadcast, "we cannot start 2,700,000 homes and apartments by the end of 1947."

"Without controls it is equally certain that we cannot build homes and apartments that veterans can afford."

Earlier, in his first formal report as housing expediter, Wyatt revealed that 406,000 dwellings had been started this year, 34 per cent of the 1946 goal.

OPA'S END HITS UNRRA

Washington, July 1 (A. P.)—Fiorello H. LaGuardia, director-general of UNRRA, declared today "unless some price control is passed, we looked forward to having to readjust our entire purchasing program." He said "this will mean, of course, greatly reduced quantities in order to meet increased prices with remaining available funds."

LaGuardia was asked whether the loss of the agricultural products set-aside would affect UNRRA and what effect the ending of the Office of Price Administration would have on UNRRA purchasing. LaGuardia, in a special statement issued to reporters who asked the questions, said the death of the OPA would be detrimental to UNRRA's program.

AUTO PRODUCERS HOLD OPA PRICES

JUN 2 1946

DETROIT, July 1 — (AP) The automobile manufacturers, most of whom long have protested that price ceilings on their products were too low, apparently have no intention of boosting car prices overnight as a result of the death of OPA.

A survey of the larger manufacturers today indicated rather a disposition to await developments in the Administration's effort to revive price control through temporary legislation.

There was no outright assertion that the industry had decided against price increases. One industry spokesman who asked to remain unidentified, intimated that they may be deferred for a few weeks at least and even then be of "modest proportions."

He explained that the manufacturers do not fix prices. "We recommend them," he said, "and the dealer usually accepts our recommendation.

Considerably different was the effect of the lifting of ceilings on used cars. A spot check at a couple of used car lots showed one 1941 model with an OPA ceiling of $1,422 selling for $2,000 and in another instance one with a former ceiling of $1,186 selling for $1,895.

The car industry currently is producing at less than 40 per cent of its capacity. In round figures it has made about 650,000 passenger cars and slightly more than 325,000 commercial vehicles since Jan. 1. All the manufacturers are agreed that operations at that level do not yield a profit.

UAW Head Asks Tenants Resist, Buyers Strike

JUN 2 1946

Detroit, July 1 (AP)—Walter P. Reuther, UAW-CIO president, today urged a nation-wide buyers' holiday and tenants' resistance to rent increases until Congress approves a new price-control law.

Reuther called a meeting of the union's policy committee for tomorrow to discuss "the crisis created by expiration of the Price Control Act."

At the same time he sent instructions to all regional directors and all local unions asking them to report at once all instances of rent increases and increases in prices of food, clothing and other essential items which they have experienced.

Will Work Out Plans

The policy committee, Reuther said, will be asked to work out plans in conjunction with other unions and with other consumer groups to include the following action:

1. A nation-wide buyers' holiday until Congress restores the price control law. I shall recommend to the committee that we ask all our members and call upon consumers to purchaset only minimum requirements of grocminimum requirements of groceries and milk until price control is reinstated.

2. Resistance to rent increases by tenants continuing to pay only regular rent without any increases which may be asked; and UAW assistance in the formation of a tenants' league to enforce such resistance.

3. Plans to organize a nation-wide demonstration of ocnsumers to demand reinstatement of the price control law.

"The American people have declared unmistakably that they want genuine price conttrol continued urtil the danger of inflation is past," Reuther asserted.

CATTLE PRICES HIT NEW PEAKS

JUN 2 1946

Major Agricultural Commodities Soar Spectacularly

Chicago, July 1 (AP)—Prices in both cash artieles and futures contracts of major agricultural commodities soared spectacularly today as OPA price controls were removed.

In livestock markets prices for cattle and hogs climbed well above ceilings which prevailed last week. Removal of ceilings was accompanied by small receipts, an additional factor supporting the sharp price upturn.

Advances in grain futures on the major grain markets were restrained by rulings which restrict daily fluctuations to 5 cents a bushel, but cash grain prices shot up as much as 70 cents a bushel.

Highest Price On Record

A small number of choice steers brought $22 a hundred pounds in the Chicago livestock market, highest price on record for cattle. The previous peak was $21.50 in 1919. Gains in cattle prices range to $4 a hundred pounds while hogs were up $2 to $3.65.

A new peak for cattle also was established at Omaha, where the price reached $22.50. At Indianapolis, hog prices soared as much as $5.15 a hundred pounds to $20, the highest level in 27 years.

Hogs sold at $20 a hundred pounds at Buffalo and $17 at East St. Louis. Calves at Lancaster, Pa., sold at $24, up $6 from the OPA ceiling, and at Portland, Ore., the price was $20, compared with the OPA ceiling of $18.60.

Calf Prices Jump

In Fort Worth, Texas, calves which brought $16.50 a hundred pounds late last week sold at $18.35 today.

Two-dollar wheat returned to the Chicago cash grain market for the first time since 1925 as dealers bid sharply higher prices for all types of grain. Very little grain has been coming to market centers and dealers made frantic efforts to lure it out of hiding today.

A car of No. 2 red wheat sold at $2.12 a bushel or 14½ cents a bushel over the OPA ceiling for this grade. Cash corn, under a $1.46½ ceiling last week, was wanted at prices ranging from $1.84½ to $2.14. The latter price was paid for grain grading No. 4 yellow.

A large cereal company bid actively for oats at prices ranging from 10 to 12 cents over the OPA maximum. Highest price was $1.05 for No. 1 extra heavy white grade oats.

At Kansas City, No. 2 hard winter wheat was quoted at $2.03 to $2.08. A sale was made at Omaha at $2.07.

Gains in cash wheat at Kansas City ranged from 15 to 17 cents a bushel and in corn 40 to 60 cents, while oats were up 10 cents. Omaha cash wheat was up 18 to 20 cent, corn 60 to 70 cents and oats 15 to 16½ cents.

At Minneapolis Montana winter wheat was quoted at $1.90 to $2. No. 2 white oats were 95 to 98 cents.

The Fort Worth market failed to post official prices because of "unsettled market conditions."

Corn and barley futures at Chicago were bid 5 cents a bushel higher at $1.51½ and $1.40½, respectively. Oats were 2½ to 5 cents higher. At Minneapolis September and December wheat futures jumped the 5-cent limit to $1.95½.

Directors of the Kansas City board at a special meeting decided not to resume trading in futures at this time.

Final prices on cotton futures at New York were $2.10 to $2.70 a bale higher. Egg futures at Chicago closed 30 to 45 points higher.

Eric Johnston Favors Brief OPA Extension

Spokane, Wash., July 1 (AP)—Eric A. Johnston, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said today he hoped that Congress will "extend the OPA for a short period until a workable plan can be devised."

Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Proucers Association, said in an interview that his attitude toward price control has not changed.

"We need controls on commodities that go into the cost of living until the supply begins to equal the demand," he said. "The supply is short in such items as housing, clothing and food. It would be extremely difficult to hold the price line on these items without some Federal legislation."

N.A.M. URGES PRICE CURBS

JUN 2 1946

Membership Told To Reassure Public Of Policy

New York, July 1 (AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers called on its membership today to reassure the American people that industry would take no short-sighted advantage of the temporarily disrupted price control situation.

In a letter sent to all members, Ira Mosher, chairman of the association, said:

"You and every producer in this country will be judged for years to come by the price policies adopted in the immediate future.

"System Will Be Condemned"

"The Left Wing propagandists who fought for perpetuation of price control have charged that business and industry would seize any opportunity to charge exorbitant prices to reap inordinate profits.

"Your answer to that slanderous charge must be action, action that will make industry's price policy crystal clear to the American people. If we do not take such action, our enterprise system will be condemned and another long step will be taken toward a totally regimented economy.

"The people have heard President Truman's views on the removal of price controls. They are looking now to you asking . . . 'Where do we go from here?'

"True Statesmanship"

"Let them know where you stand. Prove once and for all that American industry is capable of true statesmanship."

Mosher urged the N.A.M. membership to make individual price policies known by newspaper advertising, radio time and other media.

In Washington William Jackson, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, sent a message to all the chamber's member organizations urging them to stress to business concerns the importance of preventing "unwarranted price increases."

Buyers' Obligation

"Businessmen," Jackson said, "should scrupulously hold to prices which will be to the advantage of the consumer and yield only normal profits. The buying public, too, has an obligation to keep purchases within the level of current needs. There should be no profiteering; there should be no hoarding."

He said it was questionable how fast prices might have to rise "before full production and normal competition are attained," but declared that "runaway prices . . . will bring adverse public reaction and . . . may end in disastrous consequences."

"The end of price control," Jackson said, "imposes upon business a heavy responsibility. It puts private enterprise to a severe test."

Manufacturers Comment

Leading manufacturing, processing and retailing companies and associations hastened today to reassure the American consumer he faced no immediate increase in their prices.

Many of them issued "hold the line" instructions to their dealers.

Some, however, said price adjustments would be inevitable once Congress had dealt with the price control problem.

Businesses Planning To Hold The Line—If Their Costs Do

JUN 2 1946

New York, July 1 (AP)—Scores of business and industrial executives declared today prices would be held at OPA levels despite the death of the price-fixing agency.

This was not a unanimous view, however.

A spokesman for the National Association of Shirt and Pajama Manufacturers, for instance, said it was probable that prices would be advanced in the industry to balance the higher costs of the last few years.

More Shirts Not Certain

The overall increase, he said, would not exceed three per cent on a retail basis. OPA, he asserted, had planned to allow the industry increases averaging close to that figure.

The removal of OPA restrictions, he added, did not mean more shirts would be produced. Higher shirt output, he explained, was contingent on availability of labor, machinery and piece goods.

The American Paper and Pulp Association stated no general rise in paper prices was likely to follow the end of OPA. A spokesman held the door open for possible advances, however, by adding "but the only increases likely to be made were those forced by rising costs.

Paul Willis, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., asserted today: "We can assure the public there will be no runaway price increases of branded foods and grocery products."

Retailers' Pledge Asked

The National Retail Dry Goods Association meanwhile called upon its members to pledge they would not "exploit current conditions by increasing prices beyond our costs, plus our normal, necessary markups."

Retailers were also asked to pledge to "make merchandise of honest quality available to the public as rapidly and in as large volume as the circumstances permit," and as long as shortages continue "to distribute goods equitably among our customers."

Lew Hahn, general manager of NRDGA, said the pledege would be sent immediately to all members with the suggestion that it be signed and given publicity in each community.

Cigarettes.

Eric Calamia, president of the Retail Tobacco Dealers of America, said most dealers did not plan to increase cigarette prices unless manufacturers make an increase.

Jack I. Straus, president of R. H. Macy Company, Inc., one of the country's largest department stores, said it would be the policy of his store to observe prices prevailing under OPA while awaiting further action from Congress.

OPA Oddities Here And There

[By The Associated Press]

The first full day without OPA had strange results:

In Boston, a fruit huckster cut the price of bananas from 8 to 6 cents apiece.

A landlord in Phoenix said he would forget the rent for one week, then cut rates, just to "start some healthy competition right away."

In the midst of a bitter skirmish between price-boosting landlords and tenants in Miami, an electrician named P. H. Beebe, who described himself as a "working man who happens to own a house," cast a bright light through the gloom by reducing the monthly bill for his tenants from $60 to $50.

In New York, where the cost of cold cuts and salami is a vital factor in life, one delicatessen posted a sign reading: "Since there is no more OPA, to meet competition our prices will be greatly reduced."

In Milwaukee, the owner of a men's clothing store met the crisis with a smile, announcing: "I'm changing my prices right now—a straight five per cent reduction."

In Rhode Island, OPA officials received reports of 80 rent rises and 28 eviction orders by early afternoon.

Three of the most optimistic women in the nation applied for jobs at the New York office of the OPA as soon as the office opened. They were firm in their belief that OPA had a future.

SENATOR AWAITS TRUMAN DECISION ON TERMINAL PAY

JUN 2 1946

WASHINGTON, July 1. — (AP) The touchy political question of some $3,000,000,000 in proposed terminal leave payments for 14,000,000 war veterans was tossed at President Truman today by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo).

Johnson instructed clerks of the Senate Military committee to obtain an immediate report on the terminal pay bill from the Budget bureau, the White House's fiscal spokesman.

Previously the Budget bureau had informed Congress that the terminal pay plan was "not in accord with the program of the President."

Voted by House, 379 to 0

The House ignored this when it passed by an overwhelming 379 to 0 vote the bill to give all wartime enlisted personnel the same terminal leave pay granted officers.

"Let's get the President's views on the measure as it now is revised," said Johnson, acting as chairman of the Military committee.

The Senate revision would eliminate cash payments for accumulated leave for both men and officers after September 1. It would require that leave, accumulated at the rate of 2 1-2 days a month, be used up during the current year or lost, with a limit of 30 days accrued leave.

Protest on Limitations

This limitation drew protests from both the War and Navy departments at a hearing today.

Johnson, sitting alone as a military sub-committee, told the service spokesmen that some members of Congress regarded the terminal leave pay plan as "degenerating into something of a racket" because some wartime officers had been paid leave "without earning it."

At the same time Johnson made it plain that he wants to give enlisted war veterans the same pay allowed to commissioned officers before the curtailment plan goes into effect.

Brig. Gen. Ira P. Swift, army deputy personnel chief, said the Senate provision would be a "discrimination" against military personnel.

He said that over a period of years a civil service worker can pile up 90 "working days" which amounts to as much as 135 calendar days, while State Department foreign service workers can accumulate up to 180 days leave.

Swift testified that many army officers and men on overseas or foreign duty for several years are unable to take leave.

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Navy personnel head, also opposed the limitation. He said officers and men at sea need to accumulate leave to be used when they return home.

Both the War and Navy department spokesmen said they favor equal treatment for enlisted and commissioned personnel.

45 More Generals Reduced by Army

Lowering Top Officers' Rank Virtually Completed

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP).—The War Department said today in announcing reduction of fifteen temporary major generals to one-star rank and thirty temporary brigadier generals to colonel status, that it has virtually completed its program of reducing general officers.

During the war there were 1,500 generals rating from one to five stars. The number now is down to about 600 on active duty.

The temporary major generals given the temporary rank of brigadier generals include:

Hobart R. Gay (permanent lieutenant colonel), who served as chief of staff of the 7th Army and of the 3d Army, and later as commanding general of the 15th Army.

Frederick A. Irving (permanent Lieutenant Colonel), now commanding General at Fort Dix, N. J. He led the 24th Infantry division in Leyte, commanded the Army garrison force in the Pacific Ocean area, and was commanding General of the 38th Infantry Division.

Harry J. Malony (permanent Colonel), former director of the London Munitions Assignment Board and commander of the 94th Division, now on duty here with the Chief of Staff.

Joseph C. Mehassey (permanent Colonel), Governor of the Panama Canal. He served as engineer of maintenance there.

James E. Moore (permanent Major), Chief of Staff of the 2nd Army, Baltimore. He was Chief of Staff of the 4th Army and of the 9th.

Douglas L. Weart (permanent colonel), division engineer on the New England engineer division, Boston. He was formerly commanding general of the Shanghai base command and chief of staff of the Caribbean defense command.

Among the brigadier generals reduced to the temporary rank of colonel is Clinton D. Vincent (permanent rank of first lieutenant in the Army air forces.) He is now commanding general of Iceland base command. Another is Kenneth D. Nichols (permanent captain), who was district engineer of the Manhattan Project at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Also on this list is Robert N. Young (permanent lieutenant colonel), former commanding general of the Military District of Washington and now with the command and general staff school.

Drive Renewed To Get Atomic-Control Law

JUN 2 1946

Washington, July 1 (AP)—A fresh drive for domestic atom controls gained momentum today as the world learned anew from Bikini the terrific potency of nuclear energy.

It remained to be seen, however, whether the pressure for action could overcome the opposition of those who want the Army to remain supreme over atomic developments until international safeguards are perfected.

The House set asside an earlier agreement to meet tomorrow at 10 A.M. and decided to convene at 11 o'clock instead to give its Military Committee an extra hour on the control legislation, already passed by the Senate.

May Alleges Filibuster

Chairman May (D., Ky.) declared he would read the "riot act" to the committee if tomorrow's session fails to break what he called "a filibuster to keep this bill off the House floor."

May said a group of committee members has been blocking action by demanding time-consuming roll calls on every issue and preventing meetings while the House was in session.

Irked by the committee's slowness—it has been considering the bill for weeks—another member, Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) added that unless action comes quickly she will file a petition aimed at forcing a control bill onto the floor for a House vote.

While this maneuver would be aimed at the original May-Johnson bill which the Military Committee approved months ago, but which is not acceptable to the Administration, Mrs. Luce said the Senate measure, or a revision of it, could be offered as a substitute.

The Military Committee already has sharply revised the Senate proposal which calls for a five-man civilian control commission. The committee has voted to require that at least one member be a military representative.

It was this dispute over civilian vs. military authority that led to shelving of the May-Johnson bill.

"Not Too Anxious" For Action

One member of May's committee who acknowledged privately that he has been in the delaying group said he was "not too anxious to get this bill acted on."

"As things stand now," he said, "the military has control of the atom bomb, and until such time as we are convinced that a group of professors won't get control of it and share it with the world we would just as soon see it stay this way. The Senate committee apparently yielded to the professors. In times like these we must be realistic, not idealistic."

The Army's Manhattan Project, he added, still is producing atom bombs and can continue to produce them "unless and until Congress says the Army must get out of the picture."

WASHINGTON, July 1 — (AP) Dismissal of deportation proceedings against Senzo Usui, Japanese instructor at Yale university, was sought today by Senator McMahon (D-Conn).

He introduced a bill to authorize the attorney general to drop any deportation efforts. The senator supplied this background:

Usui entered this courny in 1934 as a merchant. For the past two years he has been at Yale instructing servicemen in the Japanese language.

Application has been filed at Hartford for his deportation "on the charges that he has remained in the United States after failing to maintain the status, under which he was admitted, of an alien entitled to enter the United States solely to carry on trade between the United States and Japan."

Usui is married to an American. He is the father of two children. They reside at 58 Hilltop place, West Hills, New Haven.

McMahon also introduced a bill for payment of a disability retirement annuity to Joseph J. O'Loughlin, former postmaster at Lakeville, Conn. O'Loughlin was appointed postmaster in 1934. He resigned because of illness in 1941. The bill would extend to him the annuity subsequently voted for postmasters.

U.S. Sale Of Aircraft Is Called Largest Deal

Washington, July 1 (AP)—The Government was offered $6,582,156 for an estimated $3,900,000,000 worth of surplus army and navy aircraft in apparent high bids opened today by the War Assets Administration.

War officials called the sale "the largest in the history of the country in terms of original value."

The sale involved 20,690 non-commercial-type planes located at five airfields. WAA regulations provide that the planes must be scrapped and specifically prohibit their use for flying.

Night Life Spurt Shown By Tax Returns

Washington, July 1 (AP)—Tax figures indicated today that Americans made May a merry month indeed, despite the coal and rail crisis of the period.

The tax take on admissions to night clubs, movies and other entertainment spots indicated the nation was spending about $1.25 last May for every dollar it spent the previous May, which marked war's end in Europe.

Uncle Sam took in $39,499,000 in taxes on admissions last May, or $7,577,000 more than for May, 1945.

Club dues and admission fees, at $2,855,000, were up $447,000 from a year earlier.

Liquor Revenue Increases

The consumption tax on United States distilled liquors—imports were scarcer—brought in $134,540,000 for the Government, or $47,602,000 more than a year earlier.

The beer shortage, however, played a part in reducing the take from that source to $50,000,000, off by $4,620,000 from a year earlier.

On the other hand, taxes on consumption of domestic wines and cordials were up $2,275,000 to a total of $6,060,000.

Taxes on retailers' sales of luxury goods reflected increased buying.

Cosmetics Yielding More

The tax yield on jewelry was up $3,188,000 at $17,816,000; that on furs up $849,700 at $5,191,600 and on perfumes, cosmetics and the like, up $961,000.

Tax collections on tobacco, totaling $112,600,000, were up $29,576,000.

The yield from playing cards rose $245,000, to a total of $879,000, and receipts from pool halls and bowling alleys advanced $5,381, to a total of $54,000.

Overall Taxes Shrink

All tax receipts were not up over the 1945 figures, however, and total collections from all sources were off almost $700,000,000, at a total of $2,574,000,000.

Corporation taxes at $82,300,000 were off $36,000,000; total individual income taxes at $1,420,000,000, were down $568,000,000; gasoline taxes, at $29,061,000, were off $13,570,000.

But tax revenue from passenger cars, reflecting auto production, was up to $3,466,000, compared with $283,000 in May, 1945.

Under-Sea Atom Blast Called Key to Navy Fate

Explosion in Air Is 'Not Too Important,' Scientist Says

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—The first underwater detonation of an atomic bomb "really will determine the future of naval fleets," Dr. Donald J. Hughes, nuclear physicist at the University of Chicago, predicted today. He was one of the scientists who helped develop the atomic bomb.

"Scientists, as a whole, did not consider yesterday's test (the overhead explosion of an atomic bomb at Bikini) too important," he told a Chautauqua Institution audience. "The first underwater detonation of such a bomb, scheduled for some time during the coming year, really will determine the future of Naval fleets. We expect far more from that test."

[A dispatch from Bikini said an underwater test of the atomic bomb will be held there in three or four weeks, depending on the time required to make necessary arrangments.]

ATTLEE DECLARED "WE HAVE DONE OUR UTMOST TO EXPEDITE" JUN 2 1946 DISCUSSIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES ON THE COMMISSION'S RECOMMENDATION FOR IMMEDIATE IMMIGRATION, BUT HE DID NOT AMPLIFY THE STATEMENT.

IN HIS EXPLANATION OF MILITARY AND POLICE INTERVENTION HE SAID THE UNITED STATES WAS "FULLY INFORMED OF OUR ACTION." HE ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT THE UNITED STATES "WAS NOT CONSULTED. WE TOOK THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR OUR OWN ACTION. IT WOULD BE QUITE UNFAIR TO TRY TO PUT THE ONUS ON ANOTHER GOVERNMENT."

HE DID NOT MAKE CLEAR WHETHER THE UNITED STATES WAS INFORMED IN ADVANCE OF THE MILITARY OPERATIONS OF SATURDAY OR AFTERWARDS, AND A SPOKESMAN AT THE PRIME MINISTER'S OFFICIAL RESIDENCE DECLINED TO EXPAND OR INTERPRET THE REFERENCE.

"WE HOPE A JUST AND LASTING SETTLEMENT OF THESE PROBLEMS WILL BE FOUND," ATTLEE SAID.

DETAILING THE COST IN LIVES AND PROPERTY OF THE PALESTINE DISTURBANCES, WHICH HE SAID INCLUDED 16 BRITISH SOLDIERS AND FIVE POLICEMEN SLAIN SINCE DECEMBER, ATTLEE DIRECTLY ACCUSED UNDERGROUND JEWISH ORGANIZATIONS.

"THE HAGANAH HAVE BEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR MANY INCIDENTS OF THE DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY AND ARMED RESISTANCE TO THE GOVERNMENT," HE SAID.

THE IRGUN ZVAI LEUMI AND THE STERN GROUP, ATTLEE CHARGED, WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR "NUMEROUS ACTS OF VIOLENCE AND RECENT KIDNAPINGS." THREE BRITISH OFFICERS ARE BEING HELD AS HOSTAGES BY THE FORMER GROUP.

ATTLEE SAID THAT IN RECENT MONTHS IT HAD BEEN MADE "INCREASINGLY CLEAR THAT THE ACTS OF TERRORISM AND SABOTAGE IN PALESTINE FORMED PART OF A CONCERTED PLAN PREPARED AND EXECUTED BY A HIGHLY DEVELOPED MILITARY ORGANIZATION WITH WIDESPREAD RAMIFICATIONS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY."

BESIDES THE DEATHS OF 16 BRITISH SOLDIERS AND FIVE POLICEMEN, THE PRIME MINISTER REPORTED THAT MATERIAL DAMAGE BY TERRORIST ACTIVITY EXCEEDED $16,000,000. JUN 2 1946

ATTLEE TOLD THE COMMONS THAT A "VAST" AMOUNT OF ARMS, AMMUNITION AND EXPLOSIVES WAS CONFISCATED DURING THE WEEK-END OPERATIONS. OF THE 2,000 JEWS DETAINED FOR QUESTIONING, HE ADDED, A NUMBER WILL BE RELEASED WHEN THEIR EXAMINATION HAS BEEN COMPLETED.

ATTLEE SAID THAT ALTHOUGH SOME MEMBERS OF THE JEWISH AGENCY WERE ARRESTED, IT WAS NOT THE GOVERNMENT'S INTENTION TO "CLOSE OR PRESCRIBE THE AGENCY AS SUCH."

HE APPEALED TO ALL PERSONS OF GOOD WILL IN PALESTINE" TO COOPERATE WITH THE AUTHORITIES IN RESTORING LAW AND ORDER. JUN 2 1946 S.S.

ATTLEE'S STATEMENT CAME IN REPLY TO A DEMAND BY LABORITE SILVERMAN FOR AN EXPLANATION OF BRITISH MILITARY AND POLICE ACTION.

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS PROTESTED THAT THE PROSECUTION HAS MADE TWO DIFFERENT TRANSLATIONS OF THE BULKY DIARY OF THE EMPEROR'S CLOSEST PRE-WAR AND WARTIME ADVISER, MARQUIS KOICHI KIDO.

BY FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW.
REPRESENTING THE COMBINED AMERICAN PRESS.
ABOARD B-29 PRESS RADIO OBSERVATION PLANE OVER BIKINI, JULY 1-(AP)-THE ATOM BOMB HAS EXPLODED OVER BIKINI LAGOON.

A TWISTING, SINUOUS COLUMN OF BROWN AND WHITE SMOKE IS BOILING DIRECTLY INTO THE SKY TO THE LEFT OF THIS AIRPLANE.

WE ARE FLYING AT 7,000 FEET, AND ALREADY THE COLUMN IS MANY TIMES OUR ALTITUDE.

WE FELT NO BLAST WAVE. THROUGH SHIELDING GLASSES, I SAW NO FLASH.

WE ARE CIRCLING IN TOWARD THE BEAUTIFUL, SINUOUS CLOUD NOW. IT HAS STARTED TO LEAN WITH THE TRADE WINDS TOWARD THE SOUTH.

WE ARE CROSSING IN OVER BIKINI REEF; IT IS 9:04 A.M., (5:05 P.M., SUNDAY, E.S.T.) THE BASE OF THE ATOMIC CLOUD SEEMS TO COVER ALL THE SHIPS IN THE TARGET ARRAY. WE CANNOT TELL YET WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO THE VESSELS THEMSELVES.

AT 9:06 A.M., THE CLOUD BEGINS TO SEPARATE INTO TWO MUSHROOMS, SUPERIMPOSED. THE TOPMOST IS ASSUMING A CREAMY YELLOW COLOR. THE BOTTOM ONE IS PURE WHITE.

AT 9:11 A.M., WE WHEEL IN CLOSE AGAIN, AND I CAN SEE A SCORE OF SHIPS IN THE TARGET FLEET STILL AFLOAT. NONE SEEMS TO BE AFIRE. I CANNOT SEE THE BATTLESHIP NEVADA.

THE GREAT CLOUD BASE IS MOVING WESTWARD ACROSS THE LAGOON.

AT 9:13 A.M., A SECOND CLOUD IS SEEN FORMING, PERHAPS A MILE AWAY FROM THE BASE OF THE FIRST. WHETHER IT IS AN EXPLODING SHIP OR AN OFFSHOOT OF THE ATOMIC BLAST ITSELF WE CANNOT YET TELL.

THE ATOMIC CLOUD IS THINNING OUT, LOSING ITS DEFINITE OUTLINES. THE BASE OF THE COLUMN IS BEING BLOWN WESTWARD ACROSS THE ENTRANCE TO THE LAGOON. THE TOP, HOWEVER, SEEMS TO HOVER, STATIONARY, DIRECTLY OVER THE TARGET FLEET--OR PERHAPS MOVE SLOWLY IN OUR DIRECTION, TOWARD THE EAST.

A84FX

NOW THE COLUMN BECOMES RAGGED, WITH THE TOP MUSHROOM LINKED BY A THIN, FOG-LIKE CONNECTION WITH THE LOWER PORTION.

PERHAPS FROM HER WOODEN DECK, PERHAPS SOMETHING MORE SERIOUS, THE CARRIER INDEPENDENCE IS CLEARLY AFIRE. THE CRUISER PENSACOLA SEEMS SERIOUSLY DAMAGED.

THAT WAS OUR LAST LOOK--ONE HOUR AFTER THE BOMB BURST--AND AT 10 A.M., WE POINT SOUTHWARD TOWARD OUR KWAJALEIN BASE. CURIOUSLY, WE SEEM CLOSER TO THE TOP LAYER OF THE ATOMIC CLOUD NOW THAN AT ANY TIME DURING THE LAST HOUR--ALTHOUGH WE ALREADY ARE MANY MILES FROM THE DETONATION POINT.

(EDITORS:--A COMPLETE STORY OF EARLIER PHASES OF THE OBSERVATION FLIGHT WAS CARRIED ON SOME CIRCUITS IN THE SUNDAY NIGHT REPORT.)

OVER BIKINI LAGOON IN A B-17 JULY 1-(AP)-"TWO MINUTES BEFORE DROP. PUT ON GOGGLES" THE FLAT METALLIC VOICE OF THE BOMBARDIER CRACKLED THROUGH THE AIR.

WE TIGHTENED OUR CIRCLE TO STAY IN THE ORBIT OF PLANES FLYING OVER BIKINI LAGOON AS "DAVE'S DREAM" THE ATOMIC BOMBER WENT IN FOR THE THIRD TIME. THE FIRST TWO RUNS WERE TESTS. THIS WAS THE REAL THING.

ONE MINUTE TO GO. THE AUTOMATIC TONE SIGNAL FROM THE BOMB CARRIER STARTED TO BUZZ.

THE NAVIGATOR MECHANICALLY CLICKED OFF THE SECONDS.

"FIFTY EIGHT..59..60.. BOMB AWAY! BOMB AWAY!

THEN SILENCE. THE ATOM BOMB WAS HURTLING EARTHWARD. WE WAITED. SECONDS SEEMED LIKE HOURS.

LIKE ONE OF THE SPOKES OF A HUGE WHEEL SUSPENDED HIGH IN THE SKY, OUR PHOTOGRAPHIC B-29'S CIRCLED THE TARGET. FAR BELOW, THE BATTLESHIP NEVADA LOOKED LIKE A RED BUG ON A BLUE CARPET.

THEN ALL HELL BROKE LOOSE. IT WAS 25 CECONDS AFTER 9.A.M.

STRONGER THAN A THOUSAND SUNS, THE FLASH SWISHED THROUGH THE SKY LIKE A GIANT FLYSWATTER BLOTTING OUT EVERYTHING--THE OCEAN, THE CLOUDS, THE SHIPS, THE SUN.

WE THREW OFF OUR GOGGLES.

JUL 2 1946

THE FIREBALL WHICH APPEARED AFTER THE INITIAL FLASH WAS SO BRIGHT WE COULDN'T LOOK AT IT. IT COVERED THE ENTIRE TARGET AREA.

AT FIRST, IT WAS AS SMOOTH AS A BILLIARD BALL. IT STARTED CURLING UPWARDS, BOILING LIKE A POT OF HOT SUGAR. THEN EACH BUBBLE BURST INTO BIGGER ONES IN COLORS OF RED, BROWN, YELLOW AND WHITE.

WITHIN A FEW SECONDS THE MOLTEN BALL HAD RISEN BEYOND 15,000 FEET.

A60FX
THEN CAME THE SHOCK WAVE. IT FELT AS IF THE AIRCRAFT HAD BEEN HIT WITH A SLEDGEHAMMER. JUST ONE BLOW THAT DROWNED OUT THE ROAR OF THE ENGINES. THEN IT DISAPPEARED.
THE BALL KEPT SPIRALING UPWARD TO 26,000 FEET INTO A CLOUD AND REAPPEARED ATOP THE CLOUD. IT LOOKED LIKE AN IMMENSE ICE CREAM CONE WITH THE TIP POINTING STRAIGHT TO THE NEVADA.
THE CENTER OF THE TARGET WAS SO COMPLETELY COVERED IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE NEVADA WAS STILL THERE.
THE MASS KEPT RISING HIGHER AND HIGHER. AT 50,000 FEET THE TOP OF THE MUSHROOM-SHAPED HEAD SPREAD OUT SEVERAL MILES. HUGE CRACKS IN OHE BUBBLES WERE STREAKED WITH A BRILLIANT RED. IT LOOKED AS IF THE EARTH'S FURNACE WAS BURNING AT TERRIFIC HEAT.
THE LOWER HALF OF THE CLOUD COLUMN KEPT TURNING DIFFERENT SHADES OF RED. RIGHT OVER THE TARGET THE STALK WAS A MILKY WHITE. FROM 10,000 FEET UP IT HAD TURNED INTO A RED. ABOVE THAT IT WAS A DARK BROWN.
THE CLOUD BEGAN SPREADING AT A FASTER RATE. CLOSER AND CLOSER IT CAME TO OUR SHIP. OUR PILOT, LT.JOE LIEBICH OF SPRINGFIELD, MO., KICKED THE PLANE OVER TO GET OUT OF THE WAY OF ANY POSSIBLE RADIOLOGICAL EFFECTS. WE GOT ON A 12-MILE CIRCLE.
SIX MINUTES AFTER THE DETONATION WE HEADED FOR KWAJALEIN. THE TOP OF THE CLOUD STILL WAS RISING AND THROWING OFF OCCASIONAL BUBBLES. BELOW, THE STALK OF THE COLUMN NARROWED TO A TAIL.
THERE WERE SHIPS IN THE HARBOR.

WHATEVER THE DAMAGE OR LACK OF IT TO THE NAVAL TARGET ARRAY OF 73 VESSELS, THE FOURTH ATOMIC BOMB PUT ON A SPECTACULAR SHOW.
IT WAS LIKE WATCHING A THREE-RING CIRCUS FROM A FLYING BOX SEAT, FOR THE BOMB BURST, THE CHANGING ATOMIC CLOUD FORMATIONS AND THE GALLANT STAND OF THE NEVADA--THESE WERE THE DRAMATIC MOMENTS OF THE BIKINI ATOMIC BOMB TEST AS SEEN FROM THE AIR.
THE BOMB BURST WAS A BEAUTIFUL THING, LIKE A HORROR PICTURE IN TECHNICOLOR. THERE WAS A BALL OF FIRE THAT BROKE OVER THE LAGOON AS THE ATOMIC BOMB WAS DETONATED.
A BALL OF FIRE WITH ELECTRIC SPARKS ON THE EDGES, BRILLIANT AND DAZZLING LIKE AN ANGRY SUN FOLLOWED IT, SO QUICKLY, SO TRANSITORY, THAT THE SECOND FIRE BALL SEEMED AN ILLUSION--YET IT WAS THERE.
DESPITE ALL THE VIOLENT VISUAL ENERGY UNLEASHED, OUR SHIP DID NOT ROCK OR SWAY; 20 MILES AWAY WE FELT NO HEAT FLASHES IN OUR FACES AS OTHERS HAD DESCRIBED IN OTHER ATOMIC BURSTS.
OUR SHIP SPED ON ITS COURSE UNHARMED AND UNMOLESTED, AND I TORE OFF MY GOGGLES. IN THAT SHORT TIME THE ATOMIC CLOUD ALREADY WAS CHURNING UPWARD THOUSANDS OF FEET IN SECONDS. THOSE WERE DRAMATIC MOMENTS IN SHEER BEAUTY.
THE CLOUD WAS A PHEASANT BROWN WITH WHITE PATCHES AT FIRST, THEN IT BEGAN AN AMAZING TRANSFORMATION IN COLORS AND SHAPES. IT SEEMED TO STEAM AND BOIL AND CHURN AT THE BOTTOM. THERE IT TURNED LAUNDRY WHITE.
IT WAS PINKISH IN THE MIDDLE, SALMON COLORED AT THE TOP. IN LESS THAN TWO MINUTES IT CLIMBED HIGHER THAN THE ALTITUDE OF OUR SHIP, "THE VOICE."
THERE WERE SOME UNFORGETTABLE MOMENTS IN OUR AIRPLANE ON ATOMIC DAY, MOMENTS THAT DIG INTO YOUR MEMORY AND SLEEP THERE. THERE WAS EXCITEMENT IN THE RAW THEN "DAVE'S DREAM" MADE ITS LIVE BOMB RUN. WE WERE 20 MILES AWAY, WITH THE TARGET ARRAY OUT OF SIGHT.

A77DT
JUN 2 1946
AT 8:52 A.M. "THE BOMBER IS ON ITS LIVE RUN, 10 MINUTES OUT," THE RADIO SAID. AT 8:55 "THE LIVE BOMB IS FIVE MINUTES FROM RELEASE, PUT ON YOUR GOGGLES."
AT 9:03 OUR PILOT MADE HIS TURN. THE A-BOMB WAS TWO MINUTES FROM THE DROP. AT 9:04, "ONE MINUTE TO GO." AT 9:05; "THIS IS BROADWAY," ANNOUNCING THE BOMBING.
THERE WAS 30 SECONDS OF WAITING BUT IT SEEMED TO ME THERE WAS ONLY ONE. THEN THE BOMB BURST INTO THE SKY. THIS IS WHAT WE HAD BEEN WAITING FOR.
IT WAS THE BIGGEST SHOW OF EARTH, SPECTACULAR, UNUSUAL, FASCINATING. THE ATOMIC PHENOMENA WAS WORTH A LIFETIME TO WATCH.

ABOARD USS PANAMINT, JULY 1-(AP)-A VIRTUAL HULK, ITS ENTIRE LOFTY ISLAND STRUCTURE CUT OFF TO DECK LEVEL, THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER INDEPENDENCE PROVIDED TODAY THE FIRST CLOSE-RANGE VIEW OF WHAT AN ATOMIC BOMB CAN DO TO A CAPITAL WARSHIP.

THE HEROIC VESSEL, WHICH TOOK TERRIFIC PUNISHMENT FROM THE JAPANESE DURING THE WAR, REMAINED AFLOAT BUT CONTINUED TO SMOULDER.

SHORTLY AFTER THE HAZE CREATED BY THE ATOMIC BOMB'S EXPLOSION CLEARED OVER BIKINI LAGOON, ONE BIG EXPLOSION AND TWO SMALLER ONES SENT FLAMES LEAPING AT LEAST 100 FEET ABOVE THE INDEPENDENCE. A VAST COLUMN OF WHITISH SMOKE GUSHED OUT AS FIRES APPARENTLY REACHED FUEL AND MUNITIONS DEEP INSIDE THE CARRIER.

THE ONLY PART OF THE SUPERSTRUCTURE VISIBLE FROM A FEW MILES AWAY WAS THE SHIP'S CRANE. TWO PLANES LAY BUCKLED ON THE DECK.

(ELTON FAY, ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTER ABOARD THE USS MT. MCKINLEY, SAID THE INDEPENDENCE'S FLIGHT DECK APPEARED BUCKLED AND THERE WAS NO EVIDENCE FROM HIS VIEW OF THE PLANES AND OTHER ITEMS MOUNTED ON THE DECK FOR TEST PURPOSES.

BY HOWARD BLAKESLEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS SCIENCE WRITER

ABOARD U.S.S.APPALACHIAN OFF BIKINI, TUESDAY, JULY 2-(AP)-CORRESPONDENTS ON THE APPALACHIAN, REGISTERING PEOPLE'S REACTIONS TO THE ATOMIC BOMB EXPLOSION, FOUND ASTONISHING DIFFERENCES IN EYESIGHT AND NERVES.

GREATEST SINGLE DIFFERENCE WAS IN EYESIGHT. MOST OBSERVERS SAW THE FLASH AS PURE WHITE AND THE ATOMIC SUN AS WHITE, WITH A GREAT VARIETY OF SHADES OF PINK OR GOLD SHOWING UP AFTERWARD IN THE ATOMIC CLOUD.

BUT A CANVASS OF THE SHIP REVEALED THAT MANY MEN, EVEN THOUGH THEIR EYES WERE PROTECTED FROM BLINDING BY GOGGLES, DID NOT SEE WHITE AT ANY TIME. TO SOME THE FLASH WAS PINK. TO OTHERS IT WAS AMBER. EVEN THE ATOMIC SUN LOOKED REDDISH. THESE MEN WHO SAW COLORS HAD VISION FULLY AS DISTINCT AS THOSE WHO SAW WHITE. ACTUALLY, WHITE WAS THE REAL COLOR, BECAUSE RAYS OF ALL COLORS WERE EMITED BY THE BOMB--AND ALL COLORS, MIXED, MAKE WHITE.

A FEW FELT THE HEAT OF THE FIRST ATOMIC FLASH ON THEIR FACES, BUT MOST FELT NOTHING AT ALL. SOME FELT THE BLAST THAT ARRIVED LONG AFTERWARD. THESE REPRESENT PHYSICAL DIFFERENCES IN NERVE SENSITIVITY AND ALSO REPRESENT IN SOME MEN THE EXCITEMENT THAT DEADENS FINE SENSE PERCEPTION.

THE BLAST WAS NOT VERY STRONG ON THE APPALACHIAN. EIGHT MILES CLOSER, ON VICE ADMIRAL WILLIAM H.P.BLANDY'S FLAGSHIP, IT WAS SO STRONG THAT IT PUT THE ATOMIC TEST COMMANDER'S MICROPHONE OUT OF COMMISSION AND PREVENTED HIS BEING THE FIRST TO TELL THE AMERICAN PEOPLE THE BOMB HAD EXPLODED.

SOME ABOARD THE APPALACHIAN SAID THEY WERE KNOCKED BACKWARD AGAINST THE BULKHEADS. STILL OTHERS FELT NOTHING.

JAMES CAMERON OF THE LONDON NEWS-CHRONICLE FELT THE BLAST VERY SLIGHTLY. YET HE OBSERVED WITH AMAZEMENT THAT A HEAVY STEEL CABLE NEARBY WAS VIBRATING. THE VIBRATION PROBABLY WAS DUE TO THE RHYTHMIC MOTION OF AIR WAVES IN THE BLAST BEING TUNED TO THE TENSION OF THE CABLE.

"HOWEVER, THERE APPEARED TO BE LESS DAMAGE THAN I EXPECTED--BUT IT IS TOO EARLY TO DRAW CONCLUSIONS."

ADMIRAL SOLBERG, THE NAVY'S DIRECTOR OF SHIPS, SAID HE BELIEVED THE BLAST AND PRESSURE ACCOUNTED FOR MOST OF THE DAMAGE AND DESTRUCTION.

JUN 2 1946

ALTHOUGH FIRES WERE SET OFF BY THE INSTANTANEOUS FLASH HEAT FROM THE BOMB, THEY ACCOUNTED FOR ONLY SECONDARY DAMAGE.

SCIENTISTS AGREED THAT TODAY'S BOMB WAS ABOUT EQUAL TO THAT USED AT NAGASAKI, EVEN THOUGH THE RADIOACTIVE CLOUD ROSE ONLY ABOUT HALF AS HIGH AS PREVIOUS ATOMIC EXPLOSIONS. THEY SAID THIS PROBABLY WAS BECAUSE THE BOMB EXPLODED OVER WATER INSTEAD OF LAND, AND BECAUSE OF ATMOSPHERIC CONDITIONS PECULIAR TO THIS PART OF THE WORLD.

THEY EXPLAINED THAT WHEN THE BOMB BURST, THE AIR AT THE WATER'S SURFACE WAS SHOVED ASIDE, CREATING RARIFIED AIR WHICH WAS COOLER THAN THE SURROUNDING AIR. THIS PHENOMENON IN TURN CREATED DENSE FOG, WHICH BILLOWED UP THE EXPLOSIVE CLOUD.

THE SHAFT OF CLOUD ABOVE BIKINI WAS PURE WHITE IN CONTRAST TO THE BROWN, DIRTY-LOOKING CLOUD IN THE NEW MEXICO, HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI EXPLOSIONS. THIS, SCIENTISTS SAID, WAS BECAUSE THE FIRST THREE EXPLOSIONS WERE OVER LAND; DUST, DIRT AND DEBRIS ROSE WITH THE SMOKE.

ONE DRONE CONTROL PILOT REPORTED THE BIKINI CLOUD HAD A PECULIAR ODOR--LIKE OVERHEATED STEEL.

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 1--BRIG.GEN.ROGER M.RAMEY, CROSSROADS AIRFORCE COMMANDER, SAID IN A RADIO ADDRESS FROM KWAJALEIN TODAY THAT THE ATOMIC BOMB DROP "WAS A COMPLETE AND UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS" AND THAT BIKINI HARBOR WAS STILL REACTING FROM EFFECTS OF THE BLAST AT MID-AFTERNOON TUESDAY, BIKINI TIME.

RAMEY STRESSED THAT THE AIRFORCE MISSION WAS "BY NO MEANS A TEST OF AIRPOWER AGAINST THE NAVY."

"AS I MAKE THIS REPORT," HE CONTINUED, "BIKINI HARBOR IS STILL REACTING FROM THE EFFECTS OF THE BLAST AND RADIATION OF THE WORLD'S MIGHTIEST BOMB. DESTRUCTION THERE WILL PROVIDE A VALUABLE SCIENTIFIC CLUE FOR THE FUTURE.

"BUT IT IS NOT DESTRUCTION THAT WE OF THE AIRFORCES ARE PRIMARILY CONCERNED WITH. OUR PRIMARY TASK HAS BEEN TO DEMONSTRATE THE FLEXIBILITY OF AIR POWER AND ATOMIC POWER. WE HAVE DEMONSTRATED THAT FLEXIBILITY.

"MANY PEOPLE," RAMEY ADDED, "WILL BE DISAPPOINTED THAT THE ATOMIC BOMB DID NOT WIPE OUT AN ENTIRE FLEET, OR DISINTEGRATE AN ISLAND, OR SET UP A CHAIN REACTION THAT WOULD BE FELT THROUGHOUT THE WORLD. WE DID NOT EXPECT IT TO. TO US, BIKINI WAS A LABORATORY."

THERE IS SLIGHT DAMAGE TO ABOUT 25 OTHER SHIPS.

"THERE WERE ALSO NUMEROUS FIRES, MOST OF WHICH NOW HAVE EITHER DIED OUT OR ARE BEING EXTINGUISHED BY FIRE FIGHTING TUGS.

havana, july 1 - (ap) - cuban sugar circles, believing that the price of many commodities imported from the united states may be increased soon, said today that the expiration of price controls in the united states justified the recent slowdown in exports of the 1946 sugar crops to america.

spokesmen for sugar producers pointed out that cuba refused to sign any contracts for the 1946-1947 crop unless it was guaranteed that prices during those years of american exports to cuba would not be increased.

negotiations for shipment of the 1946-1947 crop still are in progress.

business sources said that if prices of the many commodities cuba imports from the united states were raised, the increased cost would be passed on to the consumer who, in turn, would press for a higher wage. the demands for higher wages, these sources said, probably would be met by presidential decree.

higher wages and higher costs of materials, it was pointed out, would require a higher price for any cuban-produced product. then, if the sale price of sugar had been fixed on the basis of opa-controlled prices, mill owners in cuba would face bankruptcy.

KFEPC (350)

WASHINGTON, JULY 1-(AP)-FEPC, LONG THE STORM CENTER OF CONGRESSIONAL DEBATE, PASSED OUT OF OFFICIAL EXISTENCE TODAY WITH NO COMEBACK HOPES FOR THIS YEAR.

THE FAIR EMPLOYMENT PRACTICE COMMITTEE, LIKE OPA, DIED AT MIDNIGHT AND EVEN ITS STAUNCHEST SUPPORTERS CONCEDED THAT CONGRESS WILL DO NOTHING TOWARD REVIVING IT THIS YEAR. THEY SAW IT AN ISSUE AGAIN IN 1947, HOWEVER, AND PROBABLY IN SUBSEQUENT YEARS.

IN A SOMBER FINAL REPORT TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN, THE SIX MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE ASSERTED THAT AN "UNCHECKED REVIVAL" OF RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IS DESTROYING WARTIME GAINS IN FAIR PRACTICES.

THEY SAID NOTHING SHORT OF CONGRESSIONAL ACTION CAN REMEDY THE SITUATION THEY SEE DEVELOPING. AND THEY FORESAW "CIVIC DISCORD" IF DENIAL OF EQUAL OPPORTUNITY TO RACIAL GROUPS BECOMES PERMANENT.

THE COMMITTEE MEMBERS PRESENTED THIS SUMMARY OF THEIR VIEW IN HANDING THEIR RESIGNATIONS TO MR.TRUMAN LAST NIGHT. THE PRESIDENT STRONGLY FAVORED PERMANENT CONTINUATION OF THE AGENCY, BUT HIS URGINGS FAILED TO MOVE CONGRESS TO ENACT THE NECESSARY LEGISLATION.

FEPC WAS FIRST SET UP ON JUNE 25, 1941, BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IN AN EXECUTIVE ORDER WHICH DIRECTED IT TO SEE THAT NO FEDERAL AGENCY OR COMPANY DOING BUSINESS WITH THE GOVERNMENT DISCRIMINATED AGAINST ANY PERSON FOR REASONS OF RACE, CREED, COLOR OR NATIONAL ORIGIN.

THE FINAL DEMISE OF FEPC WAS LARGELY A FORMALITY. ITS OPERATIONS ENDED WEEKS AGO WHEN IT FINISHED SPENDING THE $250,000 VOTED IT BY CONGRESS LAST YEAR FOR LIQUIDATION PURPOSES.

THE COMMITTEE MEMBERS RESIGNING ARE: CHAIRMAN MALCOLM ROSS, SARAH SOUTHALL, BORIS SHISHKIN, MILTON P.WEBSTER, CHARLES L.HORN AND JOHN BROPHY.

MR.TRUMAN COMMENDED THEM FOR CAPABLE PERFORMANCE OF AN IMPORTANT WARTIME TASK OF "GREAT DIFFICULTY AND DELICACY" UNDER A "CONTINUOUS BARRAGE OF CRITICISM AND HARASSMENT."

HE SAID THEY HAD SHOWN "IT IS POSSIBLE TO EQUALIZE JOB OPPORTUNITY BY GOVERNMENT ACTION, AND THUS EVENTUALLY TO ELIMINATE THE INFLUENCE OF PREJUDICE IN THE FIELD OF EMPLOYMENT."

Jewish Accusations Against British

T. Williams

London, July 2 (AP)—The Jewish agency for Palestine accused Palestine police tonight of using "medieval tortures" against Jews in the Athlit detention camp near Haifa and asserted Jews were "beaten up, given enemas" and otherwise abused.

The agency charged some victims "probably will remain crippled for life."

A spokesman for the British Colonial Office said the office had received no reports of mistreatment, and that "the allegations seem absolutely unfounded."

For Illegal Immigration

Athlit houses Jews detained on charges of illegal immigration. There have been no reports that Jews arrested in Saturday's operations in Palestine were taken there.

The agency's statement was made public a few hours after Berl Locker, member of the world executive committee of the Jewish agency, charged at a news conference that Jews were being tortured and beaten at Athlit and "another camp." Locker also warned that a civil disobedience campaign might be launched against the British in the Holy Land.

The Jewish agency statement gave no source for its information, but said "it is reported that some of the many detainees at the Athlit camp have been gravely injured by third-degree treatment."

Described As "Questioning"

"Special squads of investigators brought from Jerusalem and Beersheba are 'questioning' the victims who are beaten up, given enemas, and subjected to hour-long treatment of stones wedged under the arms."

"The central committee of the General Federation of Labor in Palestine has appealed to pressmen (reporters) to rouse world opinion against the use of 'medieval torture' by Palestine police."

The statement reiterated a charge by Locker that Rabbi Jehuda Fishman, 73-year-old acting chairman of the Jewish agency, "showed signs of assault on his face." Fishman was arrested by British authorities in joint military-police operations in Palestine over the week end.

"How is it possible that such disrespect to religion should be tolerated by the British people, who claim to be so greatly inspired by the Bible?" the statement asked.

Former Buchenwald Inmates

Locker said he had received reports that men and women prisoners had been beaten and tortured at the Athlit detention camp near Haifa, Palestine, and that former inmates of the Nazi's Buchenwald prison were beaten at another Palestine camp.

He said the Jewish Committee in Palestine had warned the British that it would proclaim a policy of civil disobedience unless Jewish leaders were freed promptly and unless actions were halted against the Jewish community.

"The world must know that the situation is graver than has been painted by the British press or in the House of Commons, and it is getting graver from hour to hour," Locker declared.

He said that all males over 10 years of age had been arrested at the collective settlement of Yagui and confined in Athlit. A number of houses at Yagui were destroyed, he added, and trees were cut down, fields plowed up, vineyards partially destroyed, and water installations damaged.

Attack "Not Yet Finished"

Locker said an "attack was begun three days ago" against Yagui, a settlement near Haifa, and "the attack is not yet finished." British soldiers, Locker added, "are said to be searching for arms" at Yagui, and claim to have found some.

He said that any implication that the Jewish agency was connected with any terrorist organization was "100 per cent false." He also denied that Haganah, Jewish underground organization was "directed" by the Jewish agency, but said that "every able-bodied Jew in one way or another is connected with the Haganah, which means that he is ready to take up arms in self-defense."

Meanwhile, members of Parliament were engulfed by letters and telegrams from British Jews protesting the Government's action in Palestine.

The London press warned editorially of the gravity of the situation. The liberal News-Chronicle said that the Government had served notice repeatedly "it would not countenance any attempt by Jews or Arabs to impose their own solution by violence." The newspaper added, however, that "it cannot be too strongly emphasized that force is no substitute for policy."

Detention-Camp Torture Alleged In Palestine

T. Williams

London, July 2 (AP)—Berl Locker, a member of the world executive of the Jewish Agency, said today he had received reports alleging acts of torture on Jewish men and women detained at the Athlit camp near Haifa, Palestine.

He said former inmates of the Buchenwald prison in Germany were beaten at another Palestine camp.

"Getting Still Graver"

Commenting on British operations in Palestine, Locker declared:

"The world must know that the situation is graver than has been painted by the British press or in the House of Commons and it is getting graver from hour to hour."

Locker declared that the male population of the collective settlement of Yagui, including boys over 10 years of age, had been arrested and detained at Athlit.

Picture Of Destruction

A number of houses at Yagui were destroyed, he added, trees were cut down, fields plowed up, vineyards partly destroyed and the water installations made unworkable.

The Jewish committee in Palestine, he said, has already issued a warning to the Government that unless what it termed attacks on Jews were stopped and Jewish leaders freed, the commiteee would have to proclaim a policy of civil disobedience.

Locker reported Rabbi Jehuda Fishman, 73-year-old acting chairman of the agency's executive, who was arrested in joint military police operations Saturday, "showed signs of assault on his face."

Parliament Hears From Public

Telegrams and letters poured in meanwhile on members of Parliament from Jewish organizations protesting the arrest of 2,718 Jews in Palestine over the week end by British military authorities.

The communications followed a visit to the House of Commons last night by several hundred men and women from the east end of London, intent on personally protesting the Government's Palestine policy, which was defended on the floor of the House by Prime Minister Attlee. The delegation, an orderly one, left without accomplishing its mission. (ADD)

Two Officials Remain To Man Jewish Office

Jerusalem, July 2 (AP)—An emergency office of the Jewish agency, charged by the British with involvement in recent violence, was opened in Jerusalem today by the only two officials of the local agency who were not arrested over the week end. NIGHT

British Tommies, meanwhile, still occupied the regular headquarters of the agency, in another section of the city. The headquarters was seized Saturday in a joint police and military operation.

The two officials were Eliahu Dobkin, head of the immigration department, and Dr. Emil Schmorak, head of the trade and industries department.

Seven other officials of the agency were still in custody—six at Latrun detention camp and the seventh, Rabbi Jehuda Fishman, at Hadassah Hospital.

Fishman, who had been on a hunger strike since his arrest, broke this fast today at the behest of Meir Hai Uziel, sephardic chief rabbi, who visited him at the hospital.

[An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Jerusalem said Fishman's condition was serious.]

Arrested For Cabaret Song

Jewish newspapers were prevented by censorship from publishing a statement by the Jewish National Council that Jews could not co-operate with the Palestine Government as long as it continued to "attack" them.

A cabaret performer who referred to the statement in a song was arrested in Haifa and taken away in an armored car.

It was announced that 1,100 illegal refugees, including 400 women, who arrived off Haifa yesterday on the Turkish motorship Aghel would be kept under quarantine for a minimum of six days because of the discovery of a case of plague aboard. The ship was spotted by planes, and escorted to the coast by three destroyers.

Quiet in Palestine.

Jerusalem, July 2 (A. P.).—Jewish leaders continued to heap denunciation on the British Government today as the British military authorities sifted information on the activities of 2,659 Jewish men and fifty-nine Jewish women arrested over the week end in a drive to restore order on Palestine. DAY

As the result of an emergency meeting in Jerusalem yesterday, members of the Jewish National Council and other community leaders issued a joint statement condemning the arrests and declaring that Palestine Jewry cannot maintain relations with the authorities unless the prisoners are released and that "we shall maintain this stanch front unitedly and solidly in unwavering discipline and with unflinching spirit." They characterized the arrests as "the peak of repudiation by the British Government of its international obligations to the Jewish people."

Censorship presented the Jewish newspapers from publishing the council's assertion that Jews cannot co-operate with the Palestine government as long as it "attacks" the Jewish population, and a cabaret artist who alluded to the statement in a song at Haifa was arrested and borne away in an armored car.

Palestine generally was reported quiet as the Zionist leaders called for their followers to remain calm until a course of action has been decided on.

Big Arms Haul Revealed.

An official British announcement, meanwhile, disclosed the discovery in the Jewish coastal settlement of Mesheq Yagur yesterday of a hidden store of munitions so large, the British said, that they had not yet been able to estimate, much less count, all it contained. The cache was found in an underground chamber in the village, one a number of Jewish co-operative colonies founded in the Haifa Bay area in the last ten years.

So large was the munitions dump, the communique said, that it was equipped with an overhead trolley for moving ammunition. The store included "many thousands of rounds of ammunition of various types . . . plus hundreds of grenades, detonators, explosives and other sabotage material," the communique declared, and added: "Fifteen subsidiary caches were discovered in various parts of the settlement, all containing arms."

The British had previously announced the seizure of minor caches of arms during the week end operations, in the course of which, they said, four Jews were killed and eighty injured while resisting the searchers.

On the other hand, there was still no information concerning the whereabouts of three British officers who were kidnaped two weeks ago and held as hostages by members of the Irgun Zvai Leumi, the Jewish resistance organization. A reliable military authority, however, said last night that one of the missing men, Capt. T. H. Spencer, had written a letter to another officer asking that Spencer's wife be notified that he was alive and well.

MORE JEWS AT HAIFA

Jerusalem, July 2 (A. P.).—A ship bearing 1,100 illegal Jewish immigrants and a case of plague aboard arrived off Haifa yesterday, escorted by three destroyers. The Jews will be kept in quarantine for at least six days.

The disease developed as the ship, a 284-ton Turkish vessel, crossed the Mediterranean. Planes spotted her and summoned the destroyers. JUL 3 1946

Censorship Described

JERUSALEM, July 2 (AP).—"The Palestine Post" said tonight that the government had censored a statement made in New York by Rabbis Abba H. Silver and Stephen S. Wise. The statement said the British government had virtually declared war on the Jews.

Truman's Views On Palestine

Washington, July 2 (AP)—President Truman expressed "regret" today at British military operations in Palestine and voiced hope that the arrested Jewish leaders will be released. NIGHT

He disclosed his attitude to a group of Jewish officials at the White House and made it public in a statement. Diplomatic authorities expect that it also will be communicated to Prime Minister Attlee.

Reports are current among diplomats that Mr. Attlee informed Mr. Truman of the reasons for the operations and appealed to him for a statement of support. If this is correct, today's action would indicate that no such statement will be forthcoming.

Confers With Four Leaders

The President's views were announced by the White House after he conferred with four American leaders of the Jewish agency for Palestine—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Dr. Nahum Goldman, Louis Lipsky and Rabbi Abba H. Silver.

The statement said the President indicated to them that "the Government of the United States was prepared to assume technical and financial responsibility for the transportation" of 100,000 Jewish immigrants to Palestine from Europe.

At the State Department, Dean Acheson, acting secretary, told a news conference that a group of officials operating directly under the Cabinet will leave early this month for London to complete the arrangements.

Acheson said at the time of the news conference no protest had gone to Britain over military operations in Palestine.

Emphasized By Statement

The American attitude, however, was emphasized by the fact that the White House released his comments in a statement rather than leaving it up to the Jewish agency members themselves to report.

"The President," the statement said, "expressed his regret at these developments in Palestine. He informed the representatives of the Jewish agency that the Government of the United States had not been consulted on these measures prior to their adoption by the British Government.

"He expressed the hope that leaders of the Jewish community in Palestine would soon be released and that the situation would soon return to normal."

Truman Says He Hopes Jews Will Be Freed in Palestine

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—President Truman expressed hope today that the leaders of the Jewish community in Palestine will soon be released and that the situation there will soon return to normal. He also told a Jewish delegation that the arrest of the alleged Jewish terrorists would not affect his determination to avoid delay "in pushing forward with a policy of transferring 100,000 Jewish immigrants to Palestine with all dispatch." DAY

A White House statement, released after the conference, declared that "the President indicated that the Government of the United States was prepared to assume technical and financial responsibility for the transportation of these immigrants from Europe to Palestine."

The President, the statement said, expressed his regret at recent developments in Palestine, and told the representatives of the Jewish Agency in Palestine that the United States had not been consulted on these measures prior to their adoption by the British Government."

To Hasten Conference.

Acting Secretary of State Acheson said meanwhile that deputies of President Truman's Special Cabinet Committee on Palestine will probably advance their departure time for London. They are due to confer there with the British Government on how to put 100,000 Jews into the Holy Land as soon as possible. They had originally been scheduled to leave on July 15.

The White House statement was issued after the Jewish Agency committee protested against what it called "acts of brutal aggression" perpetrated "by the British Government."

U.S. ADVANCES ATOMIC PLAN

Suggests Security Council Act On Treaty Violators

F. Carpenter

New York, July 2 (AP)—The United States delegation to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission today for the first time suggested that serious violations of a proposed treaty controlling atomic energy should be referred to the United Nations Security Council. NIGHT

The American view, contained in a detailed memorandum on what the treaty should contain, was submitted by Ferdinand Eberstadt, New York investment banker, to the Atomic Energy Commission's subcommittee No. 1 in the subcommittee's secret session.

The French representative on the subcommittee, Prof. Frederick Joliot-Curie, presented the French views on the proposed treaty in a memorandum handed in at the same time. JUL 3 1946

Making "Good Progress"

An authoritative source said the subcommittee was making "good progress." It will meet again Friday at 11 A.M.

The American memorandum generally followed the outline of the United States plan laid down by Bernard M. Baruch June 14—until it came to the provisions for enforcement which should be included in a treaty.

There one paragraph suggested that an atomic development authority advocated by the United States to handle all atomic control matters should refer "serious violations to the Security Council of the United Nations." (ADD) member of the subcommittee, Andrei A. Gromyko, wanted to work on an atomic treaty as a whole in accordance with a proposed convention Russia laid before the Atomic Energy Commission in presenting its plan for turning atomic weapons into atomic aids to peace.

U.S. Representative

In contrast, it was reported, the American view was advanced that a treaty should be considered step by step.

But throughout the meeting, this source said, there ran a current of good understanding.

The United States was represented by Ferdinand Erberstadt, New York investment banker and a member of the United States delegation to the commission.

Others present at the closed meeting were two other diplomats, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, named chairman of the subcommittee; Sir Alexander Cadogan, of Great Britain, and two scientists, Dr. Manuel Sandoval Vallarta, of Mexico, and Prof. Frederic Joliot-Curie of France.

Observers noted that Eberstadt and Gromyko talked earnestly for about ten minutes after the meeting was over. Their countries have presented to the Atomic Energy Commission the two principal plans for harnessing atomic energy for peaceful purposes. (ADD)

Strachey To Disclose British Food Data

London, July 2 (AP)—Minister of Food John Strachey is expected to disclose tomorrow some of the facts regarding Britain's cereal stocks in defense of the Government's decision to ration bread.

Parliamentary sources reported the Cabinet, mapping strategy for tomorrow's House of Commons debate, had agreed to disclosure of "a good many" of the facts and figures which led to the bread decision. Information on Britain's cereal stocks has been a closely guarded secret since the start of the war. DAY

Strachey, beset by a rising storm of protest, will reject the bakers' demand that bread rationing, to begin July 21, be postponed for two months, the parliamentary informants said. (ADD)

AGREEMENT NEAR BY 'BIG FOUR' ON PLAN FOR TRIESTE

Principle of Internationalizing Adriatic City Is Approved.

U.N. CONTROL ASKED

JUL 3 1946

Byrnes, Bevin Oppose Rule by Four Allied Nations.

U. DYNAN

PARIS, July 2—(AP)—The United States and Great Britain agreed "in principle" today to the internationalization of uneasy Trieste and its environs but held out for United Nations control of this strategic area at the head of the Adriatic.

NIGHT

Both American and British informants said U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin maintained that the United Nations should have responsibility for the integrity and administration of the proposed international zone.

Under the Russian and French proposal, the Trieste area would be placed under the big four.

Favor 21-Nation Action

Byrnes and Bevin also sought to have the Trieste statute drawn by the 21-nation general European peace conference instead of by the foreign ministers council.

After a four-hour session in sultry summer weather the foreign ministers adjourned without reaching a definite agreement on the future structure of Trieste.

The ministers were to consider later a French proposal requiring the council to submit a Trieste statute to both the peace conference and to the United Nations Security council in New York for approval. Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of the American delegation said the ministers did not fix a date for the peace conference at today's session. Byrnes wants the peace conference to open this month.

Informants said both Byrnes and Bevin argued that the four-power ministers council should not attempt to draw the future constitution for the international zone, but should leave this work to the peace conference where, among others, both Italy and Yugoslavia could be heard. Italy and Yugoslavia have made conflicting claims for sovereignty over Trieste.

Compromise on Frontier

The proposed internationalization of Trieste was coupled with a French compromise on the Italian-Yugoslav frontier which the ministers previously agreed upon.

While the ministers were wrestling with the Trieste problem, the Italian government sent word to them that cession of the southwestern zone of Istria to Yugoslavia would "open an insufferable wound in the Italian national conscience."

A communique from Premier Alcide de Gasperi's office in Rome said de Gasperi had telephoned Italian envoys to restate Italian objections to the ministers' planned solution to the boundary question.

After voicing "reservations" to the French-proposed line "which among other things separates Gorizia from its cemetery," and to the proposal to internationalize Trieste, the communique said de Gasperi directed the Italian ambassador to urge the ministers not to heed Yugoslavia's claims to southwestern Istria.

Byrnes told other foreign ministers that the United States could only agree to the internationalization of Trieste if the zone were placed under the U. N. He argued that the governor of the area should be appointed by and represent the United Nations.

Would Add to Trade

Declaring the closer the ministers tied the United Nations to Trieste the better it would be for the city, Byrnes said U. N. prestige would add greatly to the international zone's trade and commerce.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov wanted to know what Byrnes meant by the United Nations. The American secretary replied that he was referring to the Security council, informants said.

Bevin urged the council to confine itself to agreement on the principle of internationalization and let the peace conference work out the details. He pointed out that the British dominions would not consent to internationalization unless they had a chance to discuss the project and added that this could be done only at the peace conference. The United Nations should take responsibility for the Trieste statute and governorship, he declared.

Molotov proposed that the statute for Trieste be adopted "on behalf of the United Nations" by the four powers which would draft it with the participation of Italy and Yugoslavia.

Under the Russian plan, Byrnes said, the Big Four would be acting on behalf of the United Nations without any authority to do so.

Molotov countered with the argument that the United Nations Charter does not provide for the U. N. taking over any territory except trusteeship and there had been no proposal to make a trusteeship of Trieste. Molotov accepted the proposal to internationalize Trieste yesterday after this was suggested by Georges Bidault, French president and foreign minister. Russia previously had insisted that the city go to Yugoslavia while the United States and Britain favored its retention by Italy.

Paris, July 2 (A. P.).—The Foreign Ministers Council agreed in principle today on the internationalization of Trieste, but has not yet agreed on a statute, Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) said.

DAY

Vandenberg said the council had also agreed on the area to be included in the eventual international zone, foreshadowing eventual acceptance of the French compromise proposal on the Italian-Yugoslav frontier.

General Parley Date Deferred

The council did not discuss the question of fixing a date for the general European peace conference, the Senator said on returning to the American delegation headquarters after a four-hour meeting.

Edvard Kardelj, deputy premier of Yugoslavia, said today his country could not accept the French compromise border proposal.

He spoke to a news conference as the foreign ministers of the United States, Russia, France and the United Kingdom grappled with the knotty problem of Trieste.

Makes Counterproposal

Kardelj said he proposed a compromise frontier to Secretary of State Byrnes during a morning meeting at the American's hotel.

He said his Government would accept internationalization of Trieste on condition that Yugoslavia participated in the administration of the city. He asserted it was impossible for any Yugoslav Government to agree to the border proposed by France, even though the United States, Russia and the United Kingdom have accepted it.

The Council yesterday, in what Western powers sources described as a "very great advance," adopted French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's compromise proposal for Yugoslavia's western frontier, but both Secretary Byrnes and British Secretary Bevin said they wanted more time to consider a companion project for internationalizing Trieste.

(INSERT)

Molotov Accepts

Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov accepted both proposals, thus agreeing to establish the new Italian-Yugoslav boundary along a line running generally from Tarvisio to Gorizia, then over to a few miles east of Trieste and down to the coast just south of Capodistria.

This line deprives Yugoslavia of the Tarvia Railway from Austria to the coast, and the Monfalcone shipyards, which would remain Italian. The Adriatic port city would be internationalized for at least ten years under combined Italian-Yugoslav and Allied control.

Bevin Expected To Agree

British sources predicted Bevin's response to internationalization would be favorable, while American sources were inclined to think that Byrnes would approve internationalization if control were vested in the United Nations rather than the four major powers.

Acceptance of the French plan would remove the most troublesome barrier blocking the convocation of a general European peace conference. Council sources said invitations probably would be sent to the other seventeen nations within a few days while the Ministers continued work on other issues.

Time Question Debated

In accepting the suggestion to internationalize Trieste, Molotov proposed that internationalization be made permanent, instead of a ten-year stopgap. The British also werer eported as favoring permanent internationalization. In any case, the international zone would include an ample coastal strip, extending from Duino in the north to Cittanova in the south.

Molotov's acceptance of the French compromise followed Mr. Byrnes's rejection of a Russian compromise plan which proposed an internationalized Trieste completely surrounded by Yugoslavia.

ORDER IS RESTORED AS TROOPS PATROL CITY OF TRIESTE

TRIESTE, July 2—(AP)—Order was restored today in this strike-paralyzed city after three days of rioting in which two persons were killed and 60 injured, but the atmosphere remained tense.

NIGHT

JUL 3 1946

British and United States troops were kept on the alert to quell any new outbreaks.

[The Italian Embassy in Paris said Yugoslavs riding through Trieste in trucks had thrown bombs at Italian citizens and had attacked homes. It said the Italian population of Pola, south of Trieste at the tip of the Istrian Peninsula, was preparing to evacuate that city because of Yugoslav attacks.]

Military authorities, fearing new clashes between Communists and pro-Italian sympathizers, denied permission to the Italo-Slav Strike committee to hold a mass demonstration in connection with a funeral procession for a Communist worker who was shot to death Sunday night.

Transportation was still halted and most stores and businesses were closed by a general strike of 200,000 workers, called yesterday in connection with the riots.

Some stores owned by Italians, which also had been closed, reopened today, but shutters were kept half closed so that they could be dropped quickly if new riots occurred.

Among the injured were seven United States soldiers, wounded Sunday by hand grenades. Names still have not been disclosed. A Venezia Giulia policeman was wounded last night. Most of the others injured were Slavs.

The riots broke out Sunday when a group described by police as "Communist Slavs" attacked 50 participants in the around-Italy bicycle race as they approached this disputed city, which is claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

DEMONSTRATION IS BARRED

Funeral Parade for Communist May Touch Off Further Factional Fights.

Trieste, July 2 (A. P.).—Strike-ridden Trieste quieted today after week-end riots in which one person was killed and forty-five were injured. Another Venezia Giulia policeman was wounded last night.

DAY

Telephone communications between Trieste and Rome, interrupted early in the day, were restored later.

Most of those injured, in what appeared to be a conflict between partisans of the right and the left, were Slavs. The civil policeman was shot in a working class district. The possibility of further fighting between striking pro-communist workers and pro-Italian sympathizers still was feared.

A funeral procession scheduled for this afternoon by the Italo-Slav strike committee for a Communist worker shot Sunday night was expected to touch off further trouble. The committee said it expected between 10,000 and 20,000 persons to participate.

Demonstration Barred.

Military authorities denied permission to the strike committee to stage a demonstration today, but were not empowered to forbid the funeral procession. However, both Allied troops and civil policemen, armed with rifles and carbines, were on hand to maintain order. Some shops operated by Italians in the center of the city reopened today but kept their shutters half closed and ready to drop. Roving bands of Italian youths jeered at the owners for reopening.

American troops were stoned last night as they broke up a mob attacking Communist party headquarters, but there was no immediate announcement of casualties. Seven American soldiers and two British soldiers were injured Sunday while quelling outbursts of violence.

One civilian was shot when he stole an American military police jeep. Others in the crowd hurled bottles and stones at the American and British troops sent in to reinforce the Allied garrison. The troops were directed to "act as police unless it gets too difficult. Then you will act as soldiers."

Mob Damages Plant.

During the night a mob broke into the "Progresso" plant where several Slav and Leftist newspapers are printed and did considerable damage to machinery. Earlier, the Communist newspaper Il Lavoratore was attacked by Italian youths. Six men and a woman were injured.

The rioting, which began Sunday with clashes between Italian and Yugoslav sympathizers, resulted in a general strike of 200,000 workers, halting all traffic and closing public establishments in Trieste and surrounding provincial areas of Venezia Giulia.

U. S. AMNESTY DECLARED FOR GERMAN GROUP

Pardon Is Granted All Born After January 1, 1919, With Few Exceptions.

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS GAIN

War Criminals, Higher Officers of Hitler Youth Groups and SS Aids Are Excluded.

JUL 3 1946

Berlin, July 2 (AP)—Lieut.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Deputy American Military Governor, today proclaimed a general political amnesty for all Germans in the American Zone born after January 1, 1919, except major offenders under the denazification laws.

DAY

Clay acted on a recommendation of the Denazification Committee of the German States Council of the American Zone in order, he said, to "grant youthful offenders full opportunity for rehabilitation." The pardon applies to hundreds of thousands of young men and women who were less than 15 years old when Adolf Hitler seized power.

Excluded from the amnesty were higher officers of the Hitler Youth and Nazi Girls' organizations, all members of those groups who had worked under SS commanders, all persons who had actively taught and propagated Nazi ideology and any who may have been war criminals.

The Russians for some time have been following generally the same procedure, but on a less formal basis.

Approved by McNarney.

The American move was announced in a message Clay sent to the tenth meeting of the States Council. In this Clay stated that the proposal was approved by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, the American Military Governor.

The message added: "We are fully aware of the insidious indoctrination in Nazi ideology to which this age group was subjected during impressionable years. It is the desire of the United States Military Government in Germany to offer encouragement to the youth of Germany to understand and to develop a democratic way of life which was denied them under the Nazi regime."

GERMAN TOYS DUE HERE BY CHRISTMAS

Berlin, July 2 (A. P.).—The first post-war "made in Germany" labels will appear in American stores on toys, porcelains, leather goods and jewelry intended to reach the market for the early Chirstmas shopping season, export officers of the American Military Government said today.

DAY

Development of this trade is intended to produce American dollars to pay for food imports which the United States has been shipping to Germany. Thus far the only post-war export from Germany to the United States has been of 870 tons of Bavarian hops, officials said.

TOP FRATERNIZATION IS BANNED BY CLAY

BERLIN, July 2.—(AP) A "top secret" order, described by one official as "a ban on political-social fraternization on the top side," has been issued by Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay. The directive directs all military government officers to keep their relations with German officials on a strict business basis.

One official said the order is intended to avert "any appearance of playing favorites among the Germans politically or otherwise" and rules out "the practice of taking a German mayor, manufacturer or business man to your golf club or home with the idea that over a couple of drinks or a good dinner you could do business better."

SIGNER DISAVOWS MASSACRE PROBE ABSOLVING NAZIS

T. Reedy

NUERNBERG, July 2. — (AP) The Germans compelled a so-called international investigating commission to sign a report absolving Germany of responsibility for the Katyn forest murder of 11,000 Polish officers and men, a member of the commission testified today before the International Military Tribunal.

NIGHT

M. A. Markov, a Bulgarian expert on the commission, called as a witness by the Russians, said the commission members had to sign documents which they never had an opportunity to read, much less to write.

Nazis Accused Russians

The Germans blamed the Russians for the massacre. Markov said the documents on the "findings" of the commission were produced during a stop at a lonely airport en route back to Berlin after a three-day visit to Katyn starting April 29, 1943. He said there was an unusual number of German military personnel at the airport and that all commission members signed.

JUL 3 1946

He added he was afraid not to sign "in spite of my opinion that the date of the deaths must have been incorrect."

The signed document said the scientists had decided that the Poles had been buried three years—and thus were killed before the Germans entered the Katyn area near Smolensk.

Markov said the commission was allowed to examine only eight bodies in two days. He testified he had been "drafted" from the University of Sofia to serve with the commission members from other satellite countries.

Story of Escape Sought

It was announced that Hans Kempka, Hitler's chauffeur for years, would be questioned in court tomorrow about the efforts of high Nazis to escape from the surrounded Reichschancellory bunker when Berlin fell.

The war crimes tribunal announced the admission of Kempka's testimony in behalf of the defense of Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy, who never has been apprehended and proof of whose death has never been established.

Kempka drove an automobile from the burning chancellory the night of May 1, 1945, but did not get far before a shell blast disabled the car. Bormann and others in the automobile proceeded on foot, according to Kempka.

The testimony of Kempka and one other witness will conclude presentation of defense evidence.

DISAVOWS VERDICT ON KATYN KILLINGS

T. Reedy

Nuernberg, July 2 (A. P.).—M. A. Markov, Bulgarian member of the so-called International Commission picked by Germany to investigate the Katyn Forest massacre, testified before the International Tribunal today that he and his fellows were compelled to sign the report exonerating the German armed forces. The German's he said, used sharp psychology to obtain the signatures of legal and medical experts to documents they had never had a chance to read, much less to write themselves.

DAY

The witness was called by the Russians in an effort to establish before the world that the German and not the Soviet Army slew the 11,000 Polish officers near Smolensk. He declared that he was "drafted" from the University of Sofia to serve with members from other satellite countries, and that all were flown to Katyn on April 29, 1943, were allowed to examine only eight bodies in the course of two days and then were placed on planes for Berlin.

En route to Berlin, he continued, the convoy planes halted at a lonely airport and there, in the presence of an unusual number of German military personnel, the commission received copies of the "findings," in which it was set forth that the scientists had decided that the bodies of the Poles had lain in their mass grave for three years and must therefore have been buried many months before the Germans reached the area.

All the members signed, Markov said, adding that he himself had been afraid to do otherwise "in spite of my opinion that the date of the deaths must have been incorrect."

Kilian Angered As Own Words Are Quoted

Bad Nauheim, Germany, July 2 (AP)—Red with anger, Col. James A. Kilian heard a prosecutor charge today that he had instituted a "deliberate policy of making it so rough on prisoners that they wouldn't come back" to the United States Army guardhouse in Lichfield, England.

DAY

The accusation came from Major Joseph S. Robinson, who was using Kilian's own testimony in the previous trial of Sergt. Judson H. Smith, who was convicted of beating prisoners at Lichfield. Kilian, former camp commandant, is accused of authorizing cruel punishments.

Wants To Address Court

Kilian's attorneys protested to the United States court-martial that the Smith trial was "illegally conducted" and that Kilian, a Highland Park (Ill.) cavalry veteran, was quizzed five days "in an attempt to build up a fabricated case against him."

Kilian started from his seat and asked permission to address the military court, but was restrained by his lawyer and sank back into his chair, muttering angrily.

"Too Easy A Life"

Robinson read from the record of the Smith trial, in which Kilian conceded "it could have been possible" that he said "we are going to have to get a little tougher on these fellows." He was also quoted as saying "prisoners were living too easy a life."

Also at the Smith trial, first of the Lichfield cases eight months ago, Kilian denied he had any knowledge of prisoners being beaten. He told the court then, Robinson said, it was a general complaint that Lichfield was compelled to "use these limited service guards or jailers of the psychoneurotic type."

Kilian's Three Steps

Robinson said he was trying to show that Kilian first wanted to send recalcitrant soldiers into battle "under the gun"—with guns at their backs.

When that was rejected, Robinson said, Kilian proposed charging desertion against soldiers a.w.o.l. from units headed for combat. Kilian testified a colonel in the judge advocate's section told him "we would not dare try them for desertion."

Then, Robinson said, Kilian "instituted the final policy of making it so rough on prisoners they wouldn't want to come back."

Went To See Kilian

A former guard recently fined for striking prisoners testified they were beaten under orders from officers. Pfc. William B. Norris, of Mulga, Ala., said Lieut. Granville Cubage, of Oklahoma City, also fined recently, told him he had been to see Kilian to suggest sending some of the tougher prisoners to detention training centers.

"No," Kilian was quoted, "don't take them to the DTC. Take them out, but don't break too many bones."

Russians Start on Buying Spree As Government Order Cuts Prices

R. JAMES

MOSCOW, July 2 (AP)—Commercial stores throughout the Soviet Union were packed today following yesterday's announcement of reductions averaging 40 percent in consumer's goods sold in these stores, the heaviest slash since the war.

NIGHT

The commercial stores sell goods without requiring ration tickets. Rationed goods are cheaper.

(Despite the deep cuts as expressed in percentages, prices remain high as expressed in rubles and converted into dollars, as figures cited below show. These reflect the continued scarcity of consumer's goods and the low purchasing power of the ruble. The official ruble rate is 5.2 to the dollar; diplomats are permitted to buy rubles at 12 to the dollar.)

JUL DAY 1946

Here are some new prices:

Men's leather shoes, cut 42 per cent, now sell from 810 to 1600 rubles (at 5.2 rubles to the dollar this would be $156 to $308; at 12 to the dollar, $67 to $133.)

Women's leather shoes, cut 42 percent, 810 to 3,030 rubles ($156 to $566 at the 5.2 rubles rate; $67 to $252 at the 12 ruble rate.)

Other prices (converted at the diplomatic ruble rate):

Stockings, cut 45 percent, cotton, 30 rubles ($2.50); sheer silk, 120 rubles ($10).

Women's ready-made dresses, cut 43 percent, now 1,500 to 2,200 rubles ($125 to $183.33).

Men's suits, cut 43 percent, now 1,600 to 4,000 rubles and up ($133.33 to $333.33 and up.)

Women's suits sell for the same prices as men's, and cotton ready-made dresses now are 300 to 550 rubles ($25 to $45.83).

Toilet soap, cut 46 percent, now 15 to 60 rubles ($1.25 to $5) per cake.

Wall paper, cut 50 percent, now 30 to 40 rubles ($2.50 to $3.33) per roll.

Silks, cut 50 percent, now 310 to 550 rubles ($25.83 to $45.83 per meter.

Knitted wolen sweaters, cut 30 percent, now 240 to 1,000 rubles ($20 to $83.33).

'Izvestia' Replies to Lee On Reds 'Backwardness'

Says General Lays Basis for U. S.-British Aggression

MOSCOW, July 2 (AP).—The government newspaper "Izvestia" said today that American Lieutenant General John C. H. Lee was laying the groundwork for British-American aggression against the Soviet Union when he declared in a recent speech at Bristol, England, that the Russians are a century behind the times. "Long ago any aggression always was justified by the 'backwardness' of the victim and the 'civilizing mission' of the aggressor," "Izvestia" commented.

The paper said Lee referred "to the great Russian people in the manner of a colonizer talking about some tribe which needs the 'civilizing influence' of the Anglo-Saxon countries." It added that it did "not know what untied the tongue of the American general," but declared, "The elementary feeling of decency undoubtedly left him for the moment."

[Lee, American commander in the Mediterranean, was quoted in dispatches from Bristol on June 22 as saying that if the Russians "are 100 years or so behind our ways, let us have patience with them."

SAYS NAZIS FOOL G. I.'S

Moscow, July 2 (A. P.).—The New Times asserted today that the Germans were using women and liquor to inveigle and "re-educate" Americans in the United States zone of Germany.

As as example, the publication quoted a letter which it said one German wrote to a Bavarian newspaper, as follows:

"The Americans are suffocating from loneliness in rural areas.

30.24-3919

They are deathly lonesome. Here come the Nazis. One has liquor another has a pretty daughter or his wife. This helps to embellish life."

Premier Beel's Dutch Cabinet Selections

The Hague, July 2 (AP)—A new Dutch Cabinet prepared to take office today and there were indications that one of its first considerations would be to gain a peaceful settlement of Indonesian claims for independence.

Prime Minister Dr. Louis J. M. Beel, who announced composition of the new Government early today, was expected to nominate former Prime Minister Willem Schermerhorn as commissioner for the Netherlands East Indies.

It was understood authoritatively that the appointment would mean continuation of the liberal policy of Schermerhorn's Labor Government in seeking accord with the Indonesians.

Would Be Over Van Mook

Schermerhorn, conspicuously absent from the Cabinet of the Catholic-Labor coalition, would go to Batavia with authority superior to that of Hubertus J. Van Mook, Acting Governor General.

Reliable inform[illegible] the new Cabinet would consider the plan at its session tomorrow shortly after it is sworn in by Queen Wilhelmina at Princess Juliana's palace at Soestdijk. In the last century, Holland has at various times sent commissioners to the Indies, usually in cases of emergency. (INSERT)

TWO-PARTY DUTCH CABINET IS FORMED

The Hague, July 2 (A. P.).—Dr. Louis J. M. Beel, leader of the Catholic party, formed a new bi-partisan Cabinet today to succeed the Laborite Government of Premier William Schermerhorn. The new Cabinet, in which five portfolios were awarded to each of the major parties emerging from the May 17 election—the Catholics and the Laborites—and three to non-party men, will be sworn in tomorrow by Queen Wilhelmina at Princess Juliana's palace, Soestdijk.

Beel was reported preparing to appoint Schermerhorn as Commissioner General to the Dutch East Indies in an effort to win peaceful settlement of Indonesian claims for independence. Schermerhorn, conspicuously absent from the new Cabinet, would go to Batavia with authority superior to that of Lieut.-Gov.-Gen. Hubertus Van Mook. It was understood that this appointment would insure the continuance of the Schermerhorn Government's policy of seeking an accord with the Indonesians.

TOP CHINA LEADERS CONFER AT NANKING

NANKING, July 2—(AP) A half hour conference on the knotty questions delaying a settlement of China's internal strife was held today between top-ranking leaders of both sides, apparently without immediate results.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Gen. Chou En-lai, chief Communist negotiator, discussed all phases of the problem that so far has stalled efforts to reach an agreement, a spokesman said.

It was the first meeting between the two leaders since the Government returned to Nanking early in May. They conferred at Chiang's presidential home.

Chou left without scheduling a future meeting, the spokesman said.

The Government's announcement that the formal truce, which expired at noon Sunday, would be continued indefinitely operated meanwhile as a stay to all-out civil war.

An unconfirmed conclusion that General Marshall, who has been laboring for months to bring peace to China, soon would return to the United States was expressed by some observers in Shanghai. Spencer Moosa, Associated Press correspondent t[illegible] said observers based their belief on reports that U. S. Lt. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer is returning to China to command American army forces. It was their supposition, Moosa said, that Wedemeyer would not be returned to China merely to command the small American forces still in the country.

CHIANG AND CHOU CONFER IN PRIVATE

Nanking, July 2 (A. P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and the chief Communist negotiator, Gen. Chou En-lai, held a half-hour personal conference today but made no progress toward a settlement of China's civil conflict. A spokesman reported that the discussion had covered a number of points but resulted in no agreements. Chou left the Generalissimo's home without scheduling a future meeting.

Gen. Marshall, the American special envoy, was reported to have arranged the meeting, shortly after the Government's announcement that it would maintain the current truce with the Communists indefinitely to permit of further peace talks.

Port Near Tsingtao 'Under Attack'

Peiping, July 2 (AP)—Two Chinese Communist divisions were reported converging today upon Chimo, 25 miles north of the United States Marine and Navy base at Tsingtao.

Some 10,000 Chinese Communist troops already had started a night battle seven miles west of Chimo, Yellow Sea port, the Chinese Central News Agency said. Tsingtao dispatches added that there were 40,000 Communists concentrated northwest and southwest of Chimo, reportedly evacuated from Manchuria.

Meanwhile, establishment of a general cease-fire team for Shantung province was proposed, informed sources reported; and organization of a people's self-protection corps was begun by the Tsingtao municipal government. Men from 18 to 45 will be drafted for quick military training.

TROOPS IN INDIA CONTINUE BATTLE TO QUELL RIOTING

AHMEDABAD, India, July 2—(AP) Troops fired rifles into rioting crowds of Hindus and Moslems in Ahmedabad today to suppress "arson and looting" and the toll in continued communal clashes rose to 33 dead and 250 injured.

Crowds fought with stones and knives in new clashes starting after the lifting of curfew at 6 a.m.

The 25th Rajputana Rifles opened fire at noon to control some "flagrant cases of arson and looting accompanying the riots, a Bombay provincial communique said.

(One person was reported killed in similar disorders in Monghyr in eastern India, 250 miles northwest of Calcutta.)

Nineteen persons were killed and 130 injured yesterday in a clash between Moslems and Jains, a sect of dissenters from Hindus, and police fired several times at groups fighting pitched battles and looting shops.

The wave of disorders stemmed from political tension which flared during Hindu religious processions in honor of their god, Jagannath Rath, sometimes called Juggernaut, whom the Hindus revere as lord of the universe.

Rioters sweeping through the streets of Ahmedabad engaged in sporadic pitched battles today with stones, bottles and knives. Regular traffic was paralyzed.

Some 3,000 railway passengers were reported stranded on a station platform until rescued and led to safety by Congress party volunteer workers.

Crowds of pedestrians who sought refuge in the Congress party headquarters were also led home by volunteers.

Shops remained closed today.

Meanwhile, remaining workers walked out of textile plants previously crippled by strikes. The plants were closed immediately but troops remained at strategic positions.

All was reported quiet in Bombay, drenched by monsoon rains.

Troops Battle Riot In India Over Religion

Ahmedabad, India, July 2 (AP)—Troops opened fire today on rioting crowds of Hindus and Moslems in disturbances which have already left 33 dead and 250 injured.

A Bombay provincial government communiqué said the 25th Rajputana Rifles went into action at noon to control some "flagrant cases of arson and looting" attending the riots.

[Similar disturbances were reported from Monghyr in eastern India, 250 miles northwest of Calcutta. One person was reported killed there.]

The Hindu Go-

The disorders stemmed from political tension which flared violently during Hindu religious processions in honor of their god, Jagannath Rath, sometimes called Juggernaut, whom the Hindus revere as lord of the universe.

The rioters engaged in sporadic pitched battles with stones, knives and pop bottles. Traffic was paralyzed.

Passengers Stranded

Some 3,000 railway passengers were reported stranded on a station platform until rescued and led to safety by Congress party volunteer workers.

Crowds of pedestrians who sought refuge in the Congress party headquarters also were led safely home by volunteers.

DOCTORS SAY KING OF SIAM WAS SLAIN

Bangkok, July 1 (Delayed) (A. P.).—A Siamese police communique said today that twelve of the twenty physicians who conducted a post-mortem on the body of youthful King Ananda Mahidol reported that murder was the most likely explanation of his sudden death.

"It was absolutely murder," said Dr. Chook Chotikashien, a prominent physician.

Dr. Edwin Cort, an American medical missionary and member of the medical commission, was quoted in the communique as saying: "The position of the wound and the bullet track seem to show that death was the result of assassination rather than suicide. Accidental death was improbable."

REPORT STIRS TOJO JUDGES

Jap Claims U.S. "Tacit Understanding" On Expansion

Tokyo, Wednesday, July 3 (AP)—Exploring into the 1931 Manchurian incident, the international war tribunal professed itself "shocked" by testimony that there may have been a "tacit understanding" between the United States and Japan permitting Japanese movement into Manchuria.

This testimony came from Admiral Keisuke Okada, former Premier and former commander-in-chief of the Japanese navy, at Tuesday's session of the trial of Tojo and 26 others on war crimes charges.

Under Cross-Examination

It was his understanding, Okada said on cross-examination by counsel for Tojo, that there was such a "gentlemen's agreement" and accordingly Japan expanded westward instead of "in the opposite direction."

Sir William Webb, president of the tribunal, said the court was "shocked" by Okada's statement.

While Okada did not elaborate, he brought out that Japan was greatly over-populated in the period when Giichi Tanaka was premier—1927-29—and that the United States acted to avoid Japanese immigration under the 1924 Oriental exclusion law.

It was Tanaka's plan, therefore, Okada continued, to advance peacefully and "by degrees" into the potentially rich land of the Manchus. Radical young army leaders who defied the emperor and the government, however, upset things and pushed the country into armed conquest.

Wrangle Over Diary

The inside story of this aggression may be disclosed in a diary of 1,115 pages written by Marquis Koichi Kido, the emperor's closest advisor. There was a spirited wrangle over this between prosecution and defense counsel.

The defense protested that the prosecution had made two entirely difference translations of the document, forcing it to prepare a second defense.

American attorneys said the diary probably was the most important document of the trial because Kido wrote into it the details of the plot involving the biggest names in Modern Japanese history.

U.S.-Japanese 'Deal' Alleged

Tokyo, July 2 (AP)—Aged Admiral Keisuke Okada told the International War Crime Tribunal today he understood there was a "gentlemen's agreement" between the United States and Japan to permit Nippon's westward expansion into Manchuria for "living space."

He said the American ban on Japanese immigration had caused Japan to attempt to solve its overpopulation problems by moving into the Asiatic mainland. In 1927 Japan acquired substantial rights in Manchuria through treaties, he declared, and decided to develop these rights as fully as possible.

Okada, former Premier and commander in chief of the Japanese Navy, was a prosecution witness in the trial of 27 alleged warmongers.

Testimony "Shocks Court"

The 77-year-old witness did not elaborate his statement that he had heard of a "tacit understanding" between the United States and his country to allow Japanese movement into Manchuria. Sir William Webb, president of the tribunal, said the testimony "shocked the court."

Crossexamination of Okada brought up the first mention of the Tanaka Memorial — the reported plan for world aggression written by one-time Premier Baron Giichi Tanaka.

Okada testified he seriously doubted if the Tanaka Memorial ever existed.

Tanaka Policy "Too Slow"

He said the Army in Manchuria had become dissastified with Tanaka's policy of negotiating with Manchurian collaborationists, thought the negotiations were going too slowly, and decided to use force and occupy the rich and strategic land.

Okada said it was Tanaka's plan to advance into Manchuria "by degrees, peacefully, if possible, when the United States acted to avoid Japanese immigration under the 1924 Oriential exclusion law.

However, radical young army leaders, he said, defied both the Emperor and the Government and pushed the country into armed conquest.

Accuse Jap Firm, Partly U. S.-Owned

Tokyo, July 2 (A. P.).—The Titan Industrial Company, a paint ingredient manufacturer, half of whose stock is held by five foreign firms, was placed on the Allied Powers' restricted list today as a potentially monopolistic concern.

J. MacIver Henderson, chief of anti-trust and cartels division at Supreme Headquarters, declared: "The Cartel feature is inherent in the ownership and management of the plant." Among the foreign corporations listed as holding 50 per cent of the stock were the Titan Company, Inc., of Wilmington, Del., and the I. G. Farbenindustrie of Frankfurt.

Freed

Tokyo, July 2 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Akiya, the Viennese entertainer who failed in an attempt to kiss General MacArthur last March, left prison today. She had served 60 days for a United States mails violation.

Incarceration was not without its rewards. The blond, middle-aged woman, who came to Japan thirteen years ago as a singer and piano player and remained as wife of a native, told prison officials she gained twenty needed pounds and said she felt like a new woman.

She thanked Sugamo guards, declaring she never had been better treated in her life.

"Bomb"

Tokyo, July 2 (AP)—"It's a bomb," excitedly reported Heijiro Hirayama to police after he and his family had received a box of American canned goods distributed by the Japanese Government.

Poking out of the half-unwrapped box was a fuse.

An interpreter discovered that the "fuse" was an attachment for a device to heat a can of green pea soup.

Food

Tokyo, July 2 (AP)—Release of an additional 47,450 tons of United States army foodstuffs today assured residents of ten food-scarce districts that they will eat for at least another week. The area includes Tokyo and Yokohama.

Agriculture Minister Hiro Wada announced the Government is endeavoring to boost the ration of staple foods 30 grams to the 330 grams daily formerly in effect.

Test Case

Tokyo, July 2 (AP)—Allied headquarters today ordered the Japanese Government to search for and report on the location of an iron gate removed from a family grave during the wartime scrap metal drive. The gate was selected as a test case to determine if records were kept of such seizure and what was made of such material.

GI Electrocuted In Japan

Tokyo, July 2 (AP)—A soldier identified by companions as Staff Sergeant Joe D. Moore, of Centerville, Texas, was electrocuted today when he touched a guy wire rigged across a power line. The lights and loud-speaker system of the international war-crimes tribunal were disrupted.

Raises

Tokyo, July 2 (AP)—The Japanese Government today granted living allowance increases to employes, retroactive to June 1. A graduated scale up to 200 per cent gives largest benefits to those in low-salaried brackets.

Cash

Tokyo, July 2 (AP)—Nationals of Korea, Formosa, China, the Ryukyus, Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria being repatriated from Japan today were given permission by Allied headquarters to take with them the equivalent of $250.

Mail Exchanged in Korea.

Seoul, July 2 (A. P.).—An exchange of mail between American and Russian zones of Korea took place today at Kaesong. It was the twelfth such exchange in as many weeks.

FREEDOM COMES TO PHILIPPINES ON JULY FOURTH

MANILA, Wednesday, July 3—(AP) Independence comes to the Philippines tomorrow, officially ending nearly 48 years of American administration.

Before dignitaries from many nations, Manuel A. Roxas and Elpidio Quirino were sworn in as the first president and vice president, respectively, of the new republic.

A treaty of general relations between the United States and the republic then will be signed . . . Guest speaker of the occasion, General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, probably as much as any other man made the independence ceremony possible.

MacArthur, favorite hero of the Philippine man in the streets, arrived Tuesday by plane from Tokyo. He descended from his glistening C-54, the "Bataan," his five stars agleam, amid shouts of "mabuhay" (good wishes). With him were Mrs. MacArthur and their son Arthur.

The welcoming group was headed by Roxas and the American high commissioner, Paul V. McNutt.

More than 50 nations have been invited to send official representatives for the ceremonies.

MANILA HAILS GEN. M'ARTHUR

He Flies From Tokyo for Independence Rites.

Manila, July 2 (A. P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, honor guest at the July 4 Independence ceremonies of the islands he liberated, arrived from Japan today in his glistening C-54 transport plane Bataan.

He was given a tumultuous welcome at Nichols Field. The first to greet him were Philippines President Manuel Roxas and the American High Commissioner, Paul V. McNutt. MacArthur embraced Roxas affectionately several times. He had a big "hello" for McNutt.

Mrs. MacArthur was with the Supreme Allied Commander on his first trip from Japan since he left Manila last August upon the Japanese surrender.

Senator Millard E. Tydings (D.-Md.) and Postmaster-General Robert E. Hannegan flew in from Guam a day ahead of schedule, hitchhiking by air with Lieut.-Gen. George E. Kenney. Although they showed up unexpectedly, President Roxas was on hand to greet them. Roxas and Tydings are old friends.

Bad weather held up the arrival of the Chinese delegation. This disappointed a large crowd of Manila Chinese waiting patiently at Nichols Field.

Philippine Congress Acting On Trade Pact

Manila, July 2 (AP)—Both houses of the Philippine Congress were expected to approve today an executive agreement making the Bell trade bill effective.

The administration's majority promised to overwhelm opponents, who asserted the trade pact with the United States would mean selling the Filipino birthright for rehabilitation and economic aid.

Supporters of President Roxas said aid was vital to implement independence—which will be proclaimed on Thursday.

Philippine Rice Crop Outlook Very Poor

Manila, July 2 (AP)—Official estimates of the 1946 rice crop today indicated that expected August food shortages may reach famine proportions.

Mariano Garchitorena, Philippine Secretary of Agriculture, said the situation was serious, and estimated the 1946 rice crop at "substantially less than 1945," when the crop was 60 per cent of normal. Civil strife in central Luzon and lack of work animals eaten by the Japanese in the southern islands contributed to this, he said.

Rice-rationing machinery was ordered set up in Manila today for possible use within a fortnight, and President Manuel Roxas set an example by spading up a garden plot in the Malacanan Palace grounds.

BIKINI TEST STIRS A-BOMB DISPUTE

One Group Sees Failure Against Ships, Another Cites Damage.

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, Wednesday, July 3—(AP) The Navy today tentatively added three more ships—including the heavy cruiser Salt Lake City—to the "badly damaged" category after Monday's atomic bomb blast in Bikini lagoon, raising that total to nine.

The toll of sunken target vessels stands at five; no more went down since the Sakawa slid under early yesterday.

Two Destroyers Damaged

The destroyers Rhind and Stack were added, with the Salt Lake City, to the badly damaged list.

Associated Press Correspondent Elton C. Fay reported from the flagship Mt. McKinley that the Rhind had been "well out" toward the fringe of the target fleet, and that the Stack also was beyond the hard-hit inner circle.

Arguments over the power of atomic bombs on ships already were raging today and doubtless will continue for years.

Revised Toll

Fay gave this revised list of damage to 59 of the 73 atomic target ships:

Sunk, five.

Heavily damaged, nine.

Moderately damaged, five.

Superficially damaged, nine.

Negligible damage, 31.

Thus, in all, 59 of the 73 target vessels were affected by the burst of the single bomb hundreds of feet above the lagoon. Arguments continue, however, on whether this score makes it a mighty naval weapon.

Failure Is Charged

One group argues that the atomic bomb was a failure as a destroyer of surface ships, and that on the basis of the first Bikini test there is little chance that any drastic change in naval design will be necessary.

Another group holds that the atomic giant did everything expected of it—that it sank the Japanese cruiser Sakawa, the destroyers Anderson and Lampson, and sent two transports to the bottom as well as heavily damaging other ships.

(Radio reports quoted Dr. Karl Compton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as saying: "There is no need to apologize for the results of this test. The damage we see here was done by one bomb. The bomb missed the main target by only 300 to 500 yards south and to the west. There certainly would have been serious damage to personnel aboard one half mile from the center of the blast.")

This group also points out that this was accomplished despite the fact that the experiment was not intended as a test of the bomb against ships primarily, but as a means of gathering scientific information. They feel that judgment should be suspended until further tests are made.

Did Not Crush Big Ships

The fact remains that the air burst of the A-bomb did not crush battleships like paper-mache, nor drive them to the bottom of the lagoon.

Correspondents who watched the explosion were able to make an inspection tour through the target array for the first time Tuesday and got a closeup view of the entire fleet.

A preliminary survey of the damage brought varying estimates of the success of the experiment.

Navy Secretary Forrestal expressed surprise at the "relatively unimportant" damage he saw during an inspection of the heavier ships.

Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, Air force commander, said at Kwajalein that the operation was "a complete and unqualified success."

(Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, University of California physicist, was of the opinion at Berkeley that early reports could not be expected to provide a true evaluation of the bomb, that detailed scientific study must be awaited.

(Oppenheimer said the preliminary reports did not indicate the test was a failure. He pointed out that the sinking or damaging of a ship of itself is not too important, that what is "more important is what was done to life aboard the vessel and to all its intricate mechanisms.")

A-Bomb Toll

Official announcements gave this as the atom bomb's toll of the anchored target ships:

Sunk—destroyer Anderson; destroyer Lamson; attack transports Gilliam and Carlisle; and the Japanese cruiser Sakawa, a modern welded craft.

Heavily damaged—light carrier Independence; battleship Arkansas; heavy cruiser Pensacola; submarine Skate; a tank landing ship; and the Japanese battleship Nagato. The Independence was still burning.

About 25 other ships suffered damage in varying degrees.

Forrestal, while viewing the damage to the heavier ships as relatively unimportant, observed that such ships are "difficult to sink unless they sustain underwater damage." He warned against hasty conclusions but expressed the opinion "there still will be navies in the future."

Second Test Soon

Another atomic bomb is to be set off under water in the lagoon, probably within three or four weeks, to test the destructive power of the blast transmitted by water to the hulls of ships.

While viewing Monday's test as a complete success, General Ramey said it was "by no means a test of airpower against the navy" but a demonstration of the "flexibility of air power and atomic power."

"The feasibility of such intricate timing has been demonstrated, even to those of us who planned it while doubting its possibilities," General Ramey said.

"Should we have to fight again, I believe that Bikini demonstrated our capability to enter the fight with a precision team of air and atomic power."

One big question still remained unanswered: Could crewmen have lived through the blast?

Scientists hoped to get an answer to that question by observing the effects of rays upon surviving test animals. Animals survived aboard all ships so far visited by the press boat, but a complete animal census has not been made.

Goats on the battleship Nevada still were alive, although one of the half dozen aboard was reported sick. The Nevada was the principal target, but the bomb was believed to have exploded astern and a little to port of the ship.

Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, commander of the operations, said he believed casualties would have been heavy aboard the battleship New York had it been manned. The New York was one of the ships the admiral and Forrestal inspected after it had been declared free of harmful radioactivity. Blandy pointed out, however, that while army materiel exposed on decks of the ships was damaged "the heavy parts of the ship itself were undamaged."

The submarine Skate was so heavily damaged it had to be beached. The craft's tower had been blasted overboard on the starboard side and the steel deck ripped open.

Bikini island, three miles from the center of the blast, apparently was undamaged. Reporters who visited the island said palm trees were unseared and that there was no dangerous radioactivity.

Fires On Ships Burning Long After Blast

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, July 2 (AP)—Fire-fighting crews worked on into the second day in atom-blasted Bikini lagoon today, dousing lingering pockets of flame through the target fleet—five of whose 73 vessels already had been sunk.

That the second test, tentatively scheduled within three or four weeks, may take a far greater toll was indicated in an interview with Navy Secretary Forrestal radioed from the flagship Mt. McKinley. He expressed surprise at the "relatively unimportant" damage inflicted upon the heavier ships by Monday's air drop, but noted that such ships are "difficult to sink unless they sustain underwater damage."

The second blast is to be set off under water, with the sea transmitting a terrific blow to the hulls of the test fleet.

Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, Air Force commander, reported from Kwajalein that the operation was "a complete and unqualified success."

Navies Still Needed, Secretary Says

Forrestal warned against premature conclusions, but voiced one generality as the result of his own observations: "There still will be navies in the future."

Whether crewmen could have lived through the blast remained an unanswered question, but scientists expect to learn much by observing the effects of the rays upon surviving test animals, tethered at battle stations.

They survived on all ships visited by the press boat, but no vessel as yet had time for a complete animal census.

The Nevada's goats were said to be alive. One of the half dozen aboard was reported sick. It was directly in the path of atomic rays.

Here and there animals were reported dead, but apparently more animals survived than perished. This was about as the Navy and scientists had figured it.

The fifth test ship to sink was the broken Japanese cruiser Sakawa—a modern warship, welded instead of riveted and consequently much stronger structurally.

First listed as "missing," the destroyer Anderson later was announced definitely sunk, as were the attack transports Gilliam and Carlisle and the destroyer Lamson.

Nevertheless, it was "by no means a test of airpower against the Navy," General Ramey announced. The primary task of the air forces was "to demonstrate the flexibility of air power and atomic power," he explained—and "the feasibility of such intricate timing has been demonstrated, even to those of us who planned it while doubting its possibilities."

"Should we have to fight again, I believe that Bikini demonstrated our capability to enter the fight with a precision team of air and atomic power."

Drone Planes Amaze Him

"I can't describe the reaction I felt on seeing the first drone plane plow through the center of the atomic cloud and emerge, dragging part of the cloud with it," he added. "I knew it wasn't possible, but there it was.... Even present-day airplanes can carry out missions in that cloud...."

Secy. Forrestal, Blandy Watch Cruiser Sink

Aboard U.S.S. Mt. McKinley, July 2 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal and Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy today risked exposure of radioactivity to inspect atomic devastation in Bikini lagoon on A-day plus 1 and witness the sinking of the Japanese light cruiser Sakawa.

The Sakawa, her superstructure flattened and her stern open to the sea, started slipping under while Forrestal and the commander of Joint Task Force 1 were looking over the blasted light carrier Independence from the deck of a picket boat.

Disregarding radioactivity still lingering aboard ships in the target array's bull's-eye circle, Blandy ordered the picket boat "full speed ahead" as soon as he heard the shout from a salvage tug that the Sakawa was going down.

Goes Down Gradually

For a dozen minutes, Forrestal, Blandy and others of their party watched from 50 yards away while the Japanese 6,000-tonner gradually gave up the ghost.

The Sakawa finally disappeared at 10.40 A.M.

Earlier, Forrestal and Blandy had braved gamma radiation for a closeup view of the heavy-hulled submarine Skate—hardest hit of the 73 craft subjected to atomic violence, Blandy's deputy for technical direction, Rear Admiral W. S. Parsons, expressed the belief that the Skate was the closest of all targets to the bomb burst. He said she was subjected to more than 500 pounds pressure per square inch.

The Skate was about 50 yards astern of the Nevada, aiming point. Because of her wrecked condition, she was towed out of the target area today and may be beached if inspection shows she is taking water.

Radioactivity Detected

James Nolan, of St. Louis, radiologist of the Las Alamos (N.M.) atomic bomb laboratory, carried a Geiger counter, which registered radioactivity on its dial and via earphones.

After the picket boat circled the Skate and was lying off alongside, Nolan reported radiation so intense that the counter was "off the scale"—meaning more radioactivity than the sensitive instrument could register.

Blandy laughed and said: "Let's get the hell out of here!"

He explained to Forrestal, however, that Nolan's counter was so delicate that "my luminous watch dial will make it go off the scale."

Nevertheless, the picket boat got out—but not before those aboard got a good look at the Skate's ruined weather deck and tower.

Damage To The Submarines

The Skate's tower had been blasted overboard and the entire steel deck structure had been ripped open from bow to stern. Heavy steel beams had been twisted like taffy. The hull seemed outwardly to be intact, but was dished in several places aft.

Blandy explained that modern submarines are capable of withstanding terrific pressures because their hulls are thicker than any surface craft's.

Throughout the area where atomic damage was greatest, and in remoter parts where fires started, the smell of stale smoke filled the air—an odor like that which hangs over a building where firemen have put out a blaze.

Blandy and Forrestal boarded only one ship, the 32-year-old battleship New York. Unlike those nearer the target center, it bore an "affirmative" flag, a blue and white barred banner indicating radiological safety monitors had found it free of harmful radioactivity.

The bomb's blast effects were visible everywhere starboard aft where the New York was hit hardest. They included twisted mast structures, shattered plexiglass and ripped fuselages of exposed planes.

Faces Underwater Test

But it still has Test B, the shallow underwater atomic burst three to four weeks hence, to go through.

One phenomenon was observed aboard the New York which proved the atomic bomb a terrific anti-personnel weapon even if it did not damage the old battleship fundamentally:

The shadow of a folding metal chair leaning against the after gun turret had been photographed on the turret by the bomb's super-solar flash.

Parsons said "anybody sitting there would have been burned and would have received gamma radiation."

Other Ships Inspected

Blandy reminded Forrestal that the Navy promised Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York that his State would receive the old ship as a shrine if it survived the tests. Blandy said he had promised Dewey the New York would not be exposed as much as some other target ships.

Forrestal and Blandy also inspected, without boarding, these ships:

The heavy carrier Saratoga, which suffered only slight damage amidships due to a fire started in army ammunition exposed on deck. Shattered plexiglass and mirrors proved, however, that the Sara felt considerable of the bomb's blast. Nolan's Geiger counter indicated more than normal but still harmless radioactivity around the Sara.

The Pennsylvania, whose catapult plants were put out of commission and where fires amidships left blistered skin, wrecked life-rafts and charred equipment. The bomb flash did not even scorch a bale of hay on the after-deck. A pair of goats on the Pennsylvania's forecastle deck seemed lonesome, but otherwise unharmed by slow-acting rediation.

Independence In Bad Shape

The Independence, whose stern was all but blown off by ammunition explosions set off by the bomb's heat. Her flight deck was buckled and hangar deck gutted and twisted.

The heavy cruiser Salt Lake City, whose two stacks were destroyed and whose radio mast was wilted. Her superstructure bulkheads were dished in.

The Nevada, whose entire aft topside structure was changed by heat from a gaudy red-orange with areas of white to a dirty, sooty color. Equipment exposed on the Nevada's after-deck was chewed up and scorched. The ship seemed, however, to have suffered no fundamental damage.

The heavy cruiser Pensacola, whose stacks were knocked over and whose masts were mangled at the top.

The 34-year-old Arkansas, oldest battleship in the United States fleet, whose superstructure showed the hammer-like flattening effect of the bomb.

The Japanese battleship Nagato, whose new scars were lost among the heavy bomb damage suffered at the hands of United States naval flyers during the war.

The German heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen, whose bow, forward structures and entire starboard side was scorched, although she was nearly 3,000 yards from the target center. The wooden forward mast was splintered and the top of the steel mast aft had broken off.

The destroyer Rhind, whose funnel was gone and whose masts were bent.

Pacific Flights Resumed

Kwajalein, July 2 (AP)—Trans-Pacific air travel resumed today after the Central Pacific area, scene of the atomic bomb test, was ruled safe. The precautionary ban against all flights except planes actually in the test was put into effect Monday night.

SCIENTIST SEES NO GAINS IN TEST

WASHINGTON, July 2 — (AP) W. A. Higinbotham, chairman of the Federation of American Scientists, said today that last Sunday's atom bomb experiment contributed nothing to scientific knowledge and that the "only truly significant test" will be the deep underwater explosion scheduled for next year.

Results of Sunday's experiment at Bikini atoll only bore out the predictions made by scientists weeks ago, Higinbotham said in a statement, adding:

"Besides the military reasons for holding the test, there will no doubt be some technical items gathered but there will be nothing learned of value to peacetime uses which could not have been learned much more cheaply and more accurately in laboratory tests with less of a circus atmosphere."

Higinbotham noted that his group, embracing scientists who helped develop the atom bomb, had forecast on May 29 that probably only one or two ships would be sunk in Sunday's test—an explosion of the bomb in the air over the target vessels.

He said the second test scheduled for this month at Bikini—an explosion slightly below the surface—probably will be more damaging to the ships. But he emphasized that the experiment will be conducted in shallow water and the effects of the explosion thereby multiplied.

Bomb Cloud Chased; Planes Radioactive

Kwajalein, July 2 (AP)—Two radiological B-29's assigned to locate the vanished atomic bomb cloud succeeded so well that both were grounded today as dangerously radioactive. Crewmen were reported "okay," however.

The planes, piloted by Major Allen B. Rowlett, Chula, Va., and Major Claude R. (Buck) Eatherly, Van Alysne, Texas, found the cloud last night, solely by radar. Twelve hours after the blast the largely dissipated mushroom cloud was 60 miles northeast of Bikini.

The planes carried air samplers to gather ions, radiologists.

ROSE WARNS OF THIRD WAR

Canadian M. P. Convicted as Spy Assails U. S., British Leaders

MONTREAL, July 2 (AP)—Fred Rose, convicted of conspiring to communicate information to Russia, said in a statement today that "the Canadian 'spy scare' can easily become the match that sets off World War III."

Mrs. Rose released the mimeographed statement to the press.

Her husband, a Communist Member of Parliament, has been sentenced to six years in prison. His application for release on bail pending hearing of his appeal next fall was rejected.

In his statement, Rose said he had been convicted of a crime he did not commit but that he did not blame the jury members because they had been "victims of a vast propaganda machine let loose in this country since the establishment of the Royal Commission early in February."

"This Commisison, set up by the Government on the advice of unscrupulous individuals in high office in London and Washington," he said, "resorted to methods unheard of in a democratic country in order to get people to condemn themselves and others. I am one of the victims."

CANADA TO CHART GRADUAL REMOVAL OF PRICE CONTROLS

OTTAWA, July 2 (AP) Canada, which has been following a policy of gradual decontrol of prices, will make a strong effort to insulate herself against any great price rise in the United States, reliable authorities said today.

An attempt will be made to seal the border to prevent inflation spreading here, but government officials, frankly admitting that the pressure of the American developments would be strong and persistent, are not overly optimistic that they can hold the line.

The Canadian program, now only in a formative stage because of the uncertainty of Washington's eventual policy, is expected to be along these lines:

1. Increasing of subsidies on imports from the United States which are vital to the Canadian economy. The most important of these items are coal, fuel oil, cotton textiles and certain foods, such as dried fruits.

2. Enforcement of a strict export control to prevent Canadian manufacturers from quitting the domestic market to take advantage of higher prices in the United States.

3. Continuation of the progressive decontrol now being followed, but only at the rate planned before disintegration of the American controls.

Government officials met constantly over the weekend to discuss latest developments in Washington and chart a course for the dominion.

Canada still has control on rent and on prices of all goods considered essential to keep down the cost of living.

CUBANS JUSTIFY SUGAR SHOWDOWN

Havana, July 2 (A. P.).—Cuban sugar dealers, believing that the price of many commodities imported from the United States may be increased soon, said today that the expiration of price controls in the United States justified the recent slowdown in exports of the 1946 sugar crop to America.

Spokesman for the sugar producers said that Cuba had refused to sign any contracts for the 1946-1947 crop unless guaranteed that prices of American exports to Cuba would not be increased during this period. Negotiations for shipment of the 1946-1947 crop still are in progress.

Business sources said that if prices of the many commodities Cuba imports from the United States were raised, the increased cost would be passed on to the consumer who, in turn, would press for a higher wage. The demand for higher wages, these sources said, probably would be met by presidential decree. Higher wages and higher costs of materials, it was pointed out, would require a higher price for any Cuban-produced product.

Wherry and O'Daniel Block New Move for Stop-gap Action---Barkley Seeks Compromise.

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—Adamant opponents blocked efforts to speed an OPA revival today as Senate leaders sought informal agreement on a compromise price cotnrol bill. All price controls were off. The Senate opposition made it increasingly apparent that any restoration will be delayed—possibly several weeks.

Bolstered by apparent majority support within the Senate Banking Committee, Democratic Leader Barkley tried to get the opposing sides together on a year's extension of the OPA as a substitute for the twenty-day revival resolution passed, 283 to 61, by the House yesterday.

But when Senator Maybank (D.-S. C.), presiding, sought to assign a temporary extension bill offered by Senator Wagner (D.-N. Y.) to the banking committee, Senators O'Daniel (D.-Tex.) and Wherry (R.-Neb.) objected. This had the effect of delaying for one day the sending of the bill to the committee.

A few minutes later, when the House's extended (officially ar-[illegible] the Senate, Barkley asked unanimous consent to send it immediately to the banking committee. Wherry objected. He and O'Daniel then raised another parliamentary technicality which delayed its assignment to the committee until tomorrow.

Barkley Looks for Compromise.

The House measure probably will be used by the committee as the basis for any compromise extension legislation it may draft.

Without waiting for the bill assignment, Barkley carried on informal discussions with OPA opponents in search of middle ground for a compromise the committee might consider when it takes up the subject, possibly tomorrow.

Administration leaders fought today against giving rent controls a right-of-way in the Senate over a revival of the OPA's general price powers. Barkley told the Banking Committee it would be "going through a farce" to recommend Senate action on a bill dealing only with one phase of the price question.

Senator Capehart (R.-Ind.) proposed the immediate consideration of a rent bill on the ground that restoration of such controls is not controversial.

"I see no harm in reporting this bill and passing it this afternoon," Capehart told the committee. "It may be two weeks before we report an OPA bill—if we report one at all."

In the face of Barkley's opposition, Capehart said he again will ask tomorrow for a committee vote on rents.

"It seems to me," Barkley said, "that we ought to try in an honest, fair way, without too much delay, to work out something comprehensive."

Taft Agreeable to Rent Rise.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said he thought the chances good that the committee could agree on a general bill this week. If not, Taft said he would favor reporting the rent control measure, perhaps including authority for a 10 per cent increase in rents if it appears there is to be no general price control law.

At the White House Chester Bowles told reporters he was hopeful that the Senate will pass the continuing OPA resolution this week and then more permanent legislation "within two or three weeks." Asked why he thought action might come this week, the retiring economic stabilizer said: "I'm always optimistic."

On the basis of what happened in markets yesterday, Bowles said, "You can look for a 75 per cent increase in meat prices."

"Hogs were up 35 per cent yesterday," he continued. "With subsidies off, you can add another 20 per cent, and when the dealers add a mark-up it will push it up to 75 per cent."

Truman Gets 7,000 Telegrams.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told news men that telegrams to the White House on Mr. Truman's veto of the original OPA extension bill had slowed to a "trickle" today. He said the messages totaled 7,000 to date and continued to support the President's position at a ratio of about 40 to 1.

There were these other developments as the nation went into its second day of a completely free economy:

1. The Labor Department's price index for basic commodities—such things as livestock, grains, hides, textiles and metals—jumped 7.7 points yesterday compared with a rise of two-tenths of one point last week. Farm products accounted for most of the surge.

2. Paul Porter, OPA chief, broadcasting to agency employees across the nation, asserted that rising stock and commodity prices are "an ominous sign that speculators are already placing bets on inflation." But he insisted that price controls would win out.

3. Despite the soaring prices at primary markets, retailers for the most part held to OPA ceilings. Meat was a notable exception, when it could be found.

4. The sharpest jump of all was in rents, with advances running up to one-third more in many places and out of sight in a few. This prompted Bowles to urge Governors last night to invoke their emergency powers to freeze rentals.

5. Republican efforts in the House to put through a separate rent control measure hit a temporary snag when Representative Spence (D.-N. Y.), chairman of the House Banking Committee insisted that the price and rent control issue be handled in one legislative package. A similar measure in the Senate was routed to that chamber's Banking Committee for routine, unhurried treatment.

Week's Delay Expected.

Thus the developing administration strategy appeared to be to let the full effect of the OPA's death be felt for at least a week or two and then buckle down to work.

Senate attention was focused also on Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.), who earlier switched his position to support the administration in its insistence that meat remain under price control. But Tobey declined at his home in New Hampshire to chart his future course.

With Radcliffe's vote, the administration apparently had a shaky majority in the Banking Committee for a new extension bill more in line with the President's wishes. Tobey's vote might make that majority firmer.

BOWLES PREDICTS SHARP INCREASE IN LIVING COSTS

Will Double Within 20 Days If Commodity Prices Continue to Rise, He Says.

SENATE STALLED ON OPA

O'Daniel, Wherry Delay Committee Action on Extension.

WASHINGTON, July 2 — (AP) Stabilization Director Chester Bowles forecast tonight that the cost of living will double within 20 days if commodity prices continue their present rise.

Senator Moore (R-Okla), foe of a continued OPA in any form, urged the nation at the same time to "wait and see" whether "the prices we are [illegible] today are as bad, or at least any worse, than the black markets under which we have suffered so long," and whether inflation will develop. He added that "Congress is always available for emergency legislation."

Senate Action Blocked

These warning views were prepared for the radio at the end of a day which found congressional action on price controls stalled by Senators O'Daniel (D-Tex) and Wherry (R-Neb) but Administration leaders busy behind the scenes seeking to clear the way for a compromise bill.

Bowles qualified his prediction of a 100 percent cost of living hike by saying that he doubts that the prime commodities could continue "under any circumstances" their jump of yesterday, which the Bureau of Labor Statistics put at the index figure of 3.7 percent.

The bureau reported today's rise on commodity markets at .7 percent, bringing the price index for 28 basic commodities to 208. Its index for domestic commodities stood at 230.8 compared with 228.4 yesterday.

But Bowles added that "the price and rent increases you read about in your paper yesterday and today are only a taste of what lies ahead if we accept anything less than really effective price and rent control legislation."

Does Not Fear Inflation

Moore said he has heard nothing so far "that indicates we will suffer a national collapse or that uncontrolled inflation" will develop and he is convinced there will be none.

"The plain fact," he declared, "is that the Administration is a captive of the C.I.O., which demands complete wartime control of prices as a basis for an over-all regimentation of our economy and is willing to use any means at its command to effectuate this unAmerican, unconstitutional policy."

Objections by O'Daniel and Wherry stymied an attempt to start OPA extension legislation through the Senate Banking committee.

Meanwhile the Administration leadership blocked consideration of a separate rent control bill in the Senate, as it had done yesterday in the House, seeking to tie in this generally approved provision with other curbs which face opposition, all in a single measure.

Barkley Opposes Separate Bill

Senator Capehart (R-Ind.) sought to get the Banking committee to act immediately on a rent control bill which Senator Byrd (D-Va) introduced yesterday. But Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) has [illegible]tened from the floor to the committee room to oppose it and Capehart held off.

Downtown, meanwhile, the second day of the OPA's wake found officials conferring on anti-inflation measures and warning of grave consequences in many fields if price controls are not revived:

1. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder told a news conference that taxes may be raised next year as an inflation curb if prices "get too far out of hand." Snyder, George Harrison, New York banker, and Paul Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation, discussed anti-inflation policies with President Truman but gave no details.

2. Housing Administrator Wilson Wyatt, in another news conference, predicted the costs of home building will jump at least 14 to 25 percent unless the OPA is revived. He appealed to producers of building materials to retain ceiling prices voluntarily until Congress acts one way or the other, and said that subsidy payments will remain in effect at least through July.

3. Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson told newsmen that price increases here will cause economic difficulties abroad. He also reiterated that the end of OPA meat and grain price controls will hamper the famine relief program.

4. Lt. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, war assets administrator, announced that prices on surplus property will stay put on the assumption that the dealers who purchase it will abide by OPA ceilings.

5. The Civilian Production administration acted to protect vital construction and reconversion activities now that price controls are off. It ruled that suppliers may not charge higher prices to priority holders than to other purchasers and that if the supplier makes a general price increase he must give the priority holder a week in which to accept. The order is designed to keep producers of luxury goods from bidding up prices on materials.

Must Preserve Records

6. The OPA announced that retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers must preserve until July 1, 1947, the records they were required to keep under price regulations. The agency has been authorized to prosecute price violations which occurred before the law expired at midnight June 30.

7. The Office of International Trade said it is studying the effect on exports of the end of price controls and that export license controls will be restored if necesary to prevent "any serious drain of critical U. S. supplies not now under control."

8. William Green, president of the A.F.L., made public a telegram to senators asserting that "labor unrest, discontent and perhaps strikes will take place throughout the nation in event prices continue to mount." He urged immediate "temporary price control legislation, at least."

The 20-day stop-gap extension which the House passed yesterday, however, was shelved JUL 3 1946 ch, in the Senate Barkley explain is for the Banking committee to overhaul it into a one-year extension which will contain everything Congress may be willing to grant.

Objections by O'Daniel and Wherry prevented the bill from going to the Senate Banking committee today. The two also blocked an extension bill by Chairman Wagner (D-NY) of the committee. The group thus had no legislation officially before it, but the bills may be referred to it tomorrow under different procedure.

Radcliffe For Compromise

Barkley meanwhile held informal discussions with senators opposed to various OPA powers, trying to get them to recede from their opposition. Senator Radcliffe (D-MD) of the Banking committee, who had supported the Taft amendment on manufacturers' profits which President Truman particularly assailed, told a reporter he now is inclined to support a compromise.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), author of that amendment, said he thinks the chances are good that the committee can agree on a new bill this week. If it does not, he added, he would favor a separate rent control measure, possibly providing for a ten per cent increase if other prices are not to be controlled.

Barkley said he feared that if action were taken on rents as a separate bill, the country would get the impression that Congress was not going to act further. He also commented that it would be "going through a farce" because a rent bill would be subject to all the amendments which might be attached to general control legislation.

Capehart contended, however,

BOWLES TO LEAVE CAPITAL THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP) Chester Bowles, asked by White House reporters today whether he will be a candidate for U. S. Senator in Connecticut, replied:

"I don't know what I'm going to do. The first thing is to get some sleep."

The retiring economic stabilizer was a White House visitor today. He said he and his family will leave Washington Friday on a vacation.

"I definitely am not going back into business," Bowles said.

He probably will make up his mind about the political situation, he added, after a three-weeks vacation in Connecticut and Maine.

He said Mrs. Bowles told him last night that he is in no frame of mind at this time to make a decision on the Senate race.

After his vacation, he said, he is coming back to Washington "to talk the situation over with the President again."

Whatever he does, he said, he is not considering returning to the stabilization post from which he resigned last week when it became evident the Congress would pass the compromise OPA bill the President later vetoed.

"The President did a very courageous thing," said Bowles.

BOWLES IS SILENT ON SENATE RACE

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—Chester Bowles, asked by White House reporters today whether he will be a candidate for Senator in Connecticut, replied:

"I don't know what I'm going to do. The first thing is to get some sleep."

The retiring economic stabilizer was a White House visitor today. He said that he and his family will leave Washington Friday on a vacation.

"I definitely am not going back into business," Bowles said.

He probably will make up his mind about the political situation, he added, after a three-week vacation in Connecticut and Maine.

He said that Mrs. Bowles told him last night that he is in no frame of mind at this time to make a decision on the Senate race.

After his vacation, he said, he is coming back to Washington "to talk the situation over with the President again."

He made this statement when reporters asked him whether he might return to Government if he does not make a political race.

Whatever he does, he said, he is not considering returning to the stabilization post from which he resigned last week when it became evident the Congress would pass the compromise OPA bill the President later vetoed.

"The President did a very courageous thing," said Bowles.

Split Almost Evenly

With the Senate Banking Committee split almost evenly between those who want the OPA revived in a form agreeable to Mr. Truman and those who want controls relaxed as provided in the vetoed bill, the vote of the Maryland Senator may be the deciding factor when the issue is fought out again within the banking group.

Bolstered by apparent majority support within the committee, Barkley tried to get opposing sides together on a year's extension as a substitute for the twenty-day resolution passed 283-61 by the House yesterday.

Separate Senate Rent Step Is Opposed

JUL 3 1946

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Administration leaders fought today against giving rent controls a right of way in the Senate over a revival of OPA's general price powers.

Blocked by opponents from speeding action on legislation to restore the OPA, Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) told the Banking Committee it would be "going through a farce" to recommend Senate action on a bill dealing only with one phase of the price question.

Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) proposed the immediate consideration of a rent bill on the grounds that restoration of such controls is not controversial.

Capehart To Try Again

"I see no harm in reporting this bill and passing it this afternoon," Capehart told the committee. "It may be two weeks before we report an OPA bill, if we report one at all."

In the face of Barkley's opposition, Capehart DAY will again ask tomorrow for a committee vote on rents.

"It seems to me," Barkley said, "that we ought to try in an honest, fair way, without too much delay, to work out something comprehensive."

Taft Appears Hopeful

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said he thought the chances good that the committee could agree on a general bill this week.

If not, Taft said he would favor reporting the recent control measure, perhaps including authority for a 10 per cent increase in rents if it appears there is to be no general price control law.

Senator Radcliffe (D., Md.), who supported the Taft profit amendment Mr. Truman criticized in vetoing the price-control extension bill, said he is inclined to back a compromise.

But when Senator Maybank (D., S.C.), presiding, sought to assign a temporary extension bill offered by Senator Wagner (D., N.Y.) to the committee, Senators O'Daniel (D., Texas) and Wherry (R., Neb.) objected. This had the effect of delaying for one day the sending of the bill to the committee.

Second Attempt Made

A few minutes later, when the House extender officially arrived in the Senate, Barkley asked unanimous consent to send it immediately to the committee. Wherry objected.

He and O'Daniel then raised another parliamentary technicality, which delayed its assignment to the committee until tomorrow.

The House measure will probably be used by the committee as the basis for any compromise extension legislation it may draft.

Without waiting for the bill assignment, Barkley carried on informal discussions with OPA opponents in search of a middle ground for a compromise the committee might consider when it takes up the subject, possibly tomorrow.

Telegrams Decreasing

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told newsmen that telegrams to the White House on Mr. Truman's veto of the original extension bill had slowed to a "trickle" today. He said the messages totaled 7,000 to date and continued to support the President's position at a ratio of about 40 to 1.

Thus the developing Administration strategy appeared to be to let the full effect of OPA's death be felt for at least a week or two and then buckle down to work.

Attention Shifts To Tobey

With Radcliffe declaring in favor of a compromise, Senate attention shifted to another member—Senator Tobey (R., N.H.) who earlier switched his position to support the Administration in its insistence that meat remain under price control.

But Tobey declined at his home in New Hampshire to chart his future course.

He said he thought the congressional conference committee produced a better bill than either the Senate or House had voted separately and that he was "surprised at the President's veto." He added that he wants to "look into the subject some more" before deciding what to do.

Shaky Majority Seen

With Radcliffe's vote, the Administration apparently had a shaky majority in the committee for the effort of Barkley to write a new extension bill more in line with the President's wishes. Tobey's vote might make that majority firmer and enhance the possibility of Senate acceptance of any compromise the group might agree upon.

Taft, who criticized OPA operations in a radio address last night, said today he is willing to make some changes in his presidentially criticized amendment so long as any bill retains the principle of making prices keep pace with cost increases on major items.

Taft said he is not "wedded" to the language of his amendment, nor is he insistent upon its particular formula.

JUL 3 1946

Make O[illegible] Proviso

"But I shall insist upon the principle that increased costs be reflected in increased prices for major items," he said.

Radcliffe said there had been some talk of setting up the principle of such increases without putting in the bill what Mr. Truman said in his veto message was the "complex" formula of the Taft amendment.

"If we can get some elasticity on this point, I believe the President might accept it," Radcliffe said. He added that he might propose that still wider powers be given a separate decontrol board, to which Mr. Truman said he did not object.

Asserting that "taxes will probably follow prices," Snyder told a news conference that a rate hike may be used as a brake on inflation.

But, he said flatly, no new tax bill will be proposed by the Treasury for 1946.

Summarizing the Government's financial position for the fiscal year ended last Sunday, Snyder said the deficit was $788,000,000 less than President Truman estimated it would be in a budget revision April 11.

Spillover, Not Saving

The improvement, however, was due to slow progress of the international finance program, he said, and the "saving" actually will be merely a spillover into the fiscal year just started.

Because of the slow development of the World Bank and Fund, and the failure of Congress to pass the British loan proposal thus far, the Government put $1,061,000,000 less into international finance than President Truman anticipated in April.

The Administration expects, however, that this sum will be put into the foreign loan program in the fiscal year 1947.

More Than Estimated

Increases over Mr. Truman's April estimates were reported in war activities, veterans' and tax refunds.

The public debt at the 1946 fiscal close was $269,898,484,032, an increase of $10,740,000,000 over a year ago but sharply down from a high of more than $279,000,000,000 registered last February 28.

There were indications that further debt retirement out of the Treasury's cash balance of more than $14,237,000,000 would be deferred for the present because of fear it might contribute to inflationary pressures.

Snyder Foresees Tax Boost To Match Rising Prices

JUL 3 1946

Washington, July 2 (AP) [illegible]try of the Treasury Snyder said today that there may be an increase in tax rates next year if prices "get too far out of hand."

by reports of rising commodity prices, the Government's housing, production and economic chiefs stacked fresh ammunition today for their battle to save OPA.

Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt told the nation and its lawmakers by radio that the emergency home-building program is "doomed" to miss its goals unless the price lid is put back on.

Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small hurriedly drafted steps designed to prevent "speculative hoarding" by business and at the same time pleaded for "firm, fair and reasonable" ceilings to stave off inflation which he said would put a crimp in output of needed goods.

Appeals To Governors

And retiring Stabilization Director Chester Bowles appealed to state governors to use whatever emergency power they possess to halt reported "wild price increases and heartless rent gouging in many scattered areas."

Bowles, whose resignation becomes effective July 10, urged the governors by wire to move for speedy state laws, if necessary, to freeze rents at June 30 OPA ceilings and protect tenants from unwarranted evictions.

Even Administration officials were astonished at yesterday's 7.7 zoom in the Labor Department's spot-market index for basic commodities. This jump carried the index to 206 on the first OPA-less day, 97½ per cent higher than when war broke out in Europe.

Effect Weeks Off

JUL 3 1946

The effect on retail prices of this market explosion will be delayed for weeks in most cases, although reports of price rises in meats and other scarce foods in many cities poured into the capital. Otherwise most stores were holding to OPA ceilings.

OPA Chief Paul Porter called attention last night to the sudden if short-lived rise in stock quotations and to climbing commodity prices; terming them "an ominous sign that speculators already are placing bets on inflation."

Before his broadcast, Porter addressed OPA's 3,300 Washington employés, still standing "at battle stations" as President Truman requested.

Claims Indication

"If we ever wanted vindication of what we have been fighting for, we got it today," he asserted. An-

Wyatt, Small, Bowles Girding To Save OPA

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Spurred

other reference to reports of rising prices.

At CPA, meanwhile, Small's staff worked on three measures intended to safeguard essential production in the absence of price control.

One would tighten up Government controls on the stocks which business firms may hold in inventory. The purpose is two-fold (1) to prevent the withholding of finished goods from market in anticipation of higher prices, and (2) to prevent firms from quickly buying up and holding raw materials as a guard against price rises later on.

Other Effects

Another would extend export controls to prevent scarce goods from fleeing the domestic market, and the third would prevent a seller from squeezing a priority purchaser out of the market by charging him more than other buyers.

"Unless costs are kept within bounds, production will be impeded," Small said last night. "And production—all-out, sustained production—is the only answer to the shortages which are still with us almost a year after the end of the war."

Wyatt, forecasting a twenty per cent increase in the cost of building materials, said that without price controls "it is certain that we cannot start 2,700,000 homes and apartments by the end of 1947"—the President's housing goal.

Cites Cost To Veterans

"Without controls it is equally certain that we cannot build homes and apartments that veterans can afford," he added.

"If the country abandons price control, it also abandons its fight against inflation. It abandons the veterans' housing program. It starts us on the road to a boom and a bust, not only in housing but in the whole economy."

The talk was a gloomy postscript to an otherwise glowing progress report on the first five months of the housing drive. Wyatt said 406,000 homes were started in that period, 34 per cent of this year's goal and the biggest volume of building since the record year of 1925.

Must Adhere To Prices

Builders still must adhere to the sales price and rental ceilings imposed by the housing agency on new homes in order to get construction approval. However, Wyatt said these ceilings inevitably would have to be raised if building material costs rise as anticipated.

The price ceilings on new houses are authorized under the Emergency Housing Act, whereas the OPA law controlled prices on building materials.

WSB Group Asked To Remain On Job

Washington, July 2 (AP)—President Truman today called upon all employés of the National Wage Stabilization Board to remain at their posts pending a congressional decision on new price-control policies.

In a letter to W. Willard Wirtz, chairman of the board, the President recalled that he had made a similar appeal to employés of the Office of Price Administration Saturday night.

He asserted that because the stabilization board draws its funds from the Labor Department appropriations and functions under the War Labor Disputes Act, its financial and administrative position is different from OPA.

"Nevertheless, I want the members and the staff of the board to realize that they were included within the spirit of my request," the President wrote. "I hope every employé will remain on the job until the Congress can act."

In the same communication the President expressed his appreciation of a letter from the board members Friday asserting that the compromise OPA extension bill he subsequently vetoed would bring inflation.

Probe Of Sugar Situation Requested Of House

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Investigation of the nation's sugar situation by the special House food investigating committee was suggested today by Representative Horan (R., Wash.), who said 8,192,000 100-pound bags of sugar were stored in western warehouses.

Horan said that a June 15 inventory showed that 238,400 tons of sugar was stored in California, 21,000 tons in Oregon, 29,500 tons in Washington, 30,650 tons in Idaho, 48,450 tons in Montana and 41,600 tons in Utah.

The representative said the bulk of this sugar was earmarked for "deficit areas" of the East and that last year 1,400,000 bags were moved from the West to the East.

Working On Plan

He said the Agriculture Department now was working on a plan to move sugar East this year and the total movement may reach 3,000,000 bags.

"While an investigation probably won't increase our overall supply of badly needed sugar," Horan said, "it certainly will point out to a hungry and populous East, the value of a productive West."

Horan said beet sugar producers would probably produce about 1,500,000 tons this year, but asserted that the "overall situation" reflects a continued sugar shortage.

War Surplus Prices Unchanged

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—Prices on surplus property will stay put, Lieutenant General Edmund B. Gregory, War Assets Administrator, announced today, despite the lapse of the Office of Price Administration. General Gregory said he assumed dealers who purchase surplus goods would adhere to President Truman's request that O. P. A. ceilings prices be retained, even though legal restraints do not now exist.

THOUGH OPA'S GONE STAFF LINGERS ON

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—The OPA is like a zombi: There's life there but no soul. You can see how it is in a short walk through OPA headquarters.

The life there is in the 3,300 OPA workers who have returned to their jobs, knowing that the OPA is dead and may not be revived. They're sticking around, hoping Congress will continue the agency. But they can't be sure it will. They can't even be sure, it seems, that they'll get paid for their days of work if Congress lets the OPA stay dead.

OPA headquarters are in a six-story building and on every floor there are desks row upon row, or offices, hastily built in wartime, with paperwood walls.

Men and women stand in knots in corners, talking about the OPA's fate, which, after all, is their fate, too. Or they sit around desks, talking. From Paul Porter, OPA boss, they seem to have picked up a phrase to dramatize their situation. When asked what they're doing in an agency which is officially dead, they reply: "We're manning our battle stations."

There's nothing very embattled looking about those rows of desks, the men in shirtsleeves, the women in colored dresses. The greatest activity is on the third floor, where long ago the OPA had installed a battery of news machines. Yards of yellow paper roll out of those machines, telling news of the United States and of the world. Crowds of OPA people jam around the machines. They get excited only when news of Congress, and what it's doing about the OPA, comes in.

TRADING MARKED BY MIXED PRICES

Livestock Quotations Continue High, Cotton Declines

New York, July 2 (AP)—Record-high cattle prices and above-ceiling premiums for hogs brought farmers to the nation's livestock markets in droves today as buyers and sellers groped uncertainly in the confusion left by OPA's end.

This was the situation:

Stocks steadied.

Cotton futures fell off.

Wool was up.

Textiles didn't budge.

Some OPA ceilings and none was offered for sale.

Poultry jumped 7 to 10 cents a pound.

Flour reappeared at OPA-plus prices but below black market quotations.

Cattle hit $22.50.

Hogs closed at $17.50—short of yesterday's $18.50 top but above OPA level.

Loss of subsidies was blamed for increases in milk, butter, cheese, flour and meat prices in some parts of the country, while others chose to wait and see if Congress would make payments retroactive in the hoped-for resurrection of price controls.

Retail Outlets Keep Pledge

Retail outlets for food, clothing and other staples generally stuck to their pledge to hold prices at the OPA level until Congress has a chance to do something.

Increasing pressure came from the tenant population for emergency relief from rising rent prices through state and civil restrictions in the absence of Federal action.

In Chicago, cash grains held steady, with indications that heavy supplies of corn and oats were on their way from producers. Bookings of corn on a to-arrive basis were more than 1,000,000 bushels and the oats bookings pushed up to 225,000 bushels.

Oats And Barley Falter

Corn futures held strong at a 5-cent advance over the previous close at the Board of Trade, but oats and barley faltered. Influencing factors were the weakness of the cotton market and the heavy supply of hogs and cattle at the stockyards.

At Minneapolis, September and December wheat futures advanced the permissible 5 cents, up 10 cents from the ceiling a week ago. In contrast to the Board of Trade market Minneapolis oats were 4¼ cents higher to 3⅛ lower than the previous close, the July contract finishing at 93¼, holding most of its gain. July oats were up the 5-cent daily limit here at the opening, but held only a 5⅛ cent gain at the finish.

When the day's trading at the Board of Trade finished, September, November, December and March oats were ranged from ⅛ to ⅞ cent under the ceiling which expired the night of June 30.

Prices May Have Caught Up

The heavy bookings of corn at a price range of $2.16 to $2.18 led some grain authorities to the conclusion that cash prices had caught up with the prices producers had been receiving from other sources. Shipments to arrive on a 10-to-20-day basis carried a cancellation clause in the event the OPA is revived.

Eggs on the Chicago spot market climbed in price with beef and grain today although shell egg futures showed a very narrow range in light trade.

Trade in butter was announced as too "confused" for price quotations either by the Chicago Mercantile Exchange or the United States Department of Agriculture.

Lard Rises Its Limit

But cash lard on the Chicago Board of Trade rose another cent a pound, the daily permissible limit, bringing this commodity to 16.05 cents a pound. Loose and leaf lard also rose another cent to 15.05 and 14.75 cents a pound, respectively. All prices were two cents higher than the former OPA ceiling prices.

Cash market prices for eggs had risen ½ to two cents a dozen since a week ago, all grades showing increases.

Egg futures prices eased off .2 to .3 cent a dozen under the news of heavy shipments of meat animals and the expectation from Washington that OPA controls might soon be restored.

Cotton Declines

Wool futures were on the rise again but cotton fell off $1.80 to $2.40 a bale. In the cotton textile and wool goods markets, however, most mills refused to offer goods for sale and prices clung to OPA lines despite insistent buyer pressure.

Tagging along behind the boom in hogs and cattle, poultry prices jumped between 7 and 10 cents a pound in Chicago and New York.

Just how long retailers would be able to hold the OPA line if markets continued to rise was an unanswered question but one which gave anti-inflation forces considerable worry.

Cattle Up 25 P.C.

Cattle prices at Chicago, for instance, had climbed 25 per cent above the $18 OPA ceiling in two days of unrestained trading.

Cattle closed at a $22.50 top—50 cents above yesterday's all time record high—but the glutted hog market ended at $17 and $17.50 compared to yesterday's $18.50 limit, best since 1919.

In Omaha, the rush to take advantage of top prices was so great that traffic was disrupted by a three-mile long parade of cattle trucks, loaded with 10,000 animals for sale.

Chicago's hog pens were glutted with the biggest receipts since last January and it was the greatest cattle Tuesday in six months.

Offers At Ceilings

At Chicago, Wilson & Co., one of the larger packers, said they were offering meat on hand at ceiling prices.

"Unstable markets are to be expected for a short time in view of temporarily limited supplies of livestock and meat," a statement said.

Ultimately, Wilson predicted, meat "will be little if any higher on the average than ceiling prices plus the consumer subsidies which were eliminated with the end of price control."

In New York, millers resumed selling flour for July shipment at from $5.17 to $5.35 per hundredweight. This was above OPA ceilings, due to the loss of wheat subsidies, increased freight and bagging costs, but about $4 under black market quotations, dealers said.

New prices above OPA ceilings began to crop up in scattered places on other commodities like Savannah turpentine which rose to 96 cents a gallon. The OPA limit was 83½ cents prior to a 6-cent jump Monday and 6½ cents yesterday.

"In Scattered Places"

The first special legislative session to head off rent increases was reported in Rhode Island, where Gov. John O. Pastore summoned legislators to the State House Friday to meet the emergency.

New York, Massachusetts, Alabama, New Jersey, Iowa and District of Columbia, already had taken steps to control rents, and some municipal authorities contemplated similar action.

In Connecticut Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin suspended a State statute governing evictions.

Evictions Halted

Under the Governor's order tenants of houses, apartments and rooms cannot be evicted provided they have paid their rent under the former OPA standard.

James L. Meader, New York regional administrator of the expired OPA, said a survey showed that in New York city the price picture was "pretty good," but that in some near-by resort and summer residence areas butter prices had climbed to $1 a pound, milk was up 5 cents a quart and sandwich prices were up 100 per cent.

Dairy Co-Op, a major distributing firm in the Portland (Ore.) area, boosted retail butter prices from 68 to 80 cents.

In Denver, the OPA continued prosecution of local complaints. A used-car dealer was fined $1,520 in Federal court when he pleaded no contest to a charge he sold cars before July 1 (when OPA expired) at above ceiling prices.

George A. Eastwood, president of Armour and Company, said in Chicago "confusion in meat prices would continue "until the immutable law of supply and demand brings about stabilization. . . . It will take a little time to learn what the public regards as a fair level of prices."

In St. Louis, a large meat market which has had meat for sale all through the shortages posted a sign reading: "We have meat—$1 a pound."

30.24-3925

Corn, Barley, Poultry Quotations Rise; Cotton Dips

JUL 3 1946

[By the Associated Press]

A flood of cattle and hog shipments swamped the nation's livestock markets today in answer to yesterday's upsurge in prices, and in Chicago cattle scored a record high of $22.50—exceeding the OPA ceiling by $4.50.

Lifting of OPA ceilings brought a jam of trucks three quarters of a mile long at the Chicago stock yards, deluged with the greatest arrival of hogs since last January and the largest arrival of cattle for a Tuesday since that month. Hog prices dropped $2 under yesterday's $18.50 peak—highest since 1919—but even that figure was $1.65 above the old OPA maximum.

All previous records were smashed by yesterday's $22 cattle top.

A survey of the twelve ranking markets in the country showed 111,700 hogs in the pens, compared to 23,400 a week ago and 54,500 a year ago—first indication since the end of OPA that the gears of supply and demand were beginning to creak again.

The Stock Market had cooled off, with price changes narrow.

Cotton futures, star performer in the commodity field the day before, fell $1 to $1.60 a bale in less active trading. Wool tops lost ground at the start but heavy Boston demand later lifted the July delivery around 5 cents a pound.

Retailers "Hold The Line"

These fluctuations still had not generally affected the nation's retail prices, held in check for the most part by merchants who pledged to "hold the line" until the situation is clarified.

There was no change in the pattern of rising rent prices except in scattered instances where state and civil authorities attempted to impose their own emergency ceilings.

Meat Prices Boosted

The sudden activity in livestock markets was not reflected in areas stricken with meat shortages, none reporting increased supplies of fresh beef and pork.

In contrast to generally steady food prices, meat was climbing in the West and mid-West. The Western States Meat Packers Association claiming 90 per cent of business done by independents in nine mid-Western states, upped prices 20 and 30 per cent.

Poultry Prices Rise

Poultry prices at Chicago followed the general high rises in other commodities today, with roasters, fryers and broilers soaring more than 7 cents a pound higher than last week's levels.

Choice birds sold at 39 to 41 cents a pound today, compared with 31.9 to 33.4 cents a week ago. Fowl were up to 31 and 32.5 cents, compared with 26.6 to 28.1 cents a week ago, a gain of 4.4 cents.

Ducks were up from 2 to 2.5 cents a pound, best ducklings selling at 30 cents today.

Corn, Barley Futures Up

Corn and barley futures were up the 5-cent a bushel daily limit in early trading at Chicago today, but there was pressure on oats from the opening bell, as commercial interests held off, trying to determine what the trend of the market will be.

Cash grain interests were reported bidding 10 cents over the old ceiling for oats on ten-day shipments and 5 cents over for grain on a twenty-day shipment basis.

Barley advanced 5 cents yesterday from the ceiling of $1.35½ and was up the limit today, holding at $1.45½ in all deliveries.

Auto Trade Holding Line

Automobile manufacturers indicated they would hold to OPA prices for the present, while several spokesmen for used-car dealers' groups said they would do the same. The executive board of the Southwest Used-Car Dealers Association, representing approximately 1,000 dealers in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico and Louisiana, said it had found a definite downward trend in prices.

Major department stores in New York and throughout the nation, along with clothing manufacturers, announced their intention of keeping prices at OPA levels.

Governors of New Jersey, Alabama and Massachusetts froze rent charges by executive order. Rentals in New York and the District of Columbia already were controlled by law.

Iowa Stops Evictions

Gov. Robert D. Blue of Iowa asked citizens to observe all provisions previously in effect, and requested magistrates and officers to refrain from serving eviction writs in rental increase cases.

Other states were reported studying proper action, with special legislative sessions expected in some.

The Los Angeles City Council, in special session, passed an emergency ordinance making it a criminal misdemeanor for any landlord to increase rents above those in effect June 30.

No Raises, Or Just Small Ones

In Washington, Boyd Barnard, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said after a crosscountry checkup he believed there would be no immediate "across-the-board" rent increases and not more than ten per cent boosts during the next twelve months. Apartment-house associations in San Diego and Milwaukee backed him up by voting, no raises, or else small ones.

Some rents in Denver were increased more than 100 per cent despite an appeal from the Denver Board of Realtors to maintain ceilings, while in Dallas rents went up sharply, many doubled.

Russia's Envoy Sure Disputes Can Be Solved

Novikov Says 'There Is No Basis' for War, Calls for Patience and More Trade

Copyright, 1946, The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Soviet Ambassador Nikolai V. Novikov expressed belief today that "there is no basis whatever for war" between his country and the United States and declared he is confident all differences between them will be "ironed out."

In his first interview with an American reporter since he presented his credentials to President Truman a month ago, Mr. Novikov said with feeling:

"I know this—that the people of the United States do not want to wage a war against the Soviet Union or any other country. I know the Soviet Union will never start a war against the United States or any one else.

"Thus, any differences between us must be ironed out. I believe they will be ironed out."

"To that extent you might say I am an optimist," Mr. Novikov added with a grin. He had been asked if he were optimistic about the world situation and particularly about American-Soviet relations.

However, the ambassador emphasized his belief that solutions for all existing world problems would not be hammered out overnight. Many would require time and patience, he said.

"Europe is now in its most difficult period—the transition from war to peace," he said. "Problems inevitably will be difficult."

Asked how the United States could best assist the Soviet Union in rebuilding areas devastated by German aggression, Mr. Novikov said: "First of all, we wish the Allies, including the United States, would carry out the agreements on reparations from Germany, especially in respect to deliveries from the western areas of Germany to the U. S. S. R. It would facilitate our reconstruction of the devastated territories of the U. S. S. R."

He said deliveries of industrial reparations from the western occupation zones to Russia—now halted entirely—had amounted to little, so far as Soviet rehabilitation purposes were concerned.

Some devastated Soviet areas, particularly the Ukraine, could make good use of equipment from plants in the western zones having to do with manufacture of iron, steel and related products, he added.

In reply to a question, the ambassador said he believed the Soviet fear that the Western Allies did not actually intend to destroy Germany's war-making capacity would continue until the plants actually were dismantled or made available as reparations.

Mr. Novikov did not mention the talked-about billion-dollar American loan for Russia, but said a "more intensive trade" between the two nations could be "of great importance" to the Soviet rehabilitation program. This, he said, would be "of no less advantage for the U. S. A., itself."

When the interview began, in the large ambassadorial study, Mr. Novikov produced written replies to six questions submitted.

For half an hour, however, the Ambassador—who has seemed reluctant to talk to newsmen during his State Department visits—chatted easily in a soft, high-pitched voice on a variety of subjects. He seemed eager to answer all questions completely and to make his position absolutely clear.

He said he presumed it would be possible for Americans to travel in all parts of the Soviet Union as soon as facilities "essential for the normal service of tourists" are restored.

Mr. Novikov added that he hoped to travel widely in the United States, but said this would depend on circumstances of his work as ambassador and as Soviet representative on the Far Eastern Commission.

Mr. Novikov's seven-year-old son Yuri, attends a Russian school in Washington maintained for children of members of the embassy staff and the Soviet Purchasing Commission. The Ambassador hopes to send his other son, five-year-old Nikolai, to an American school this fall, however.

"I want him to be with American comrades and to learn English better," he said. "I had hoped to send him this year, but he was too young."

At forty-three, the stocky, bespectacled Ambassador, with thinning blond hair, enjoys a week-end session of tennis, even in Washington's torrid summer. He also plays chess occasionally and collects choice editions of books which interest him.

Asked what was needed most to build greater understanding between Russia and the United States, Mr. Novikov, in his written answers, listed "a careful handling of that which has already been achieved by both countries as the result of their mutual co-operation during the war and of the victory over the common enemy."

When asked to amplify that answer, Mr. Novikov said current difficulties should never be permitted to destroy the unity, understanding and confidence built up between the two nations through their war-time bonds and especially through the conferences at Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam.

He added the belief that if the big nations approached current problems in the spirit of Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam, the solutions would come more quickly. Agreements at these meetings were not only military, but political and economic as well, he pointed out.

Mr. Novikov scoffed at the idea that serious clashes of interest between Russia and the United States were "inevitable" or "necessary"—two words used in one of the written questions. Good faith on both sides, he said, was the best way to avoid serious economic or political clashes.

This faith could best be built by "practical actions and deeds" to carry out mutual obligations agreed on, Mr. Novikov declared.

"If such conditions are lived up to, good faith will always be a permanent companion of such friends as the inevitable result of their practical actions and relations," he said.

The Ambassador said he believed "properly understood national interests" of Russia and the United States created more of a sound basis for "fruitful co-operation to mutual benefit of both parties" than they did for "clashes on an economic political or any other ground."

"One hardly need mention that the government and peoples of the Soviet Union do not wish nor are they seeking any clashes with any one including the U. S. A., our ally of yesterday in the struggle against the common enemy," he declared.

got the iron curtain rolled up for a free interchange of visitors, ideas and broadcasts, our troubles would, for all practical purposes, disappear in very short order."

Believes Report Helped

"I firmly believe that our report has helped along those lines," Congressman Ryter said.

Both Senator McMahon and Congressman Ryter asserted that world conditions today necessitated travelling by members of Congress.

"The requirments of 20 or 30 years ago, where the necessity for having first-hand information was not so great, have changed tremendously," Senator McMahon observed. "Today, if you are going to deal with the world, as we must, you have to know the world. It seems to me you did a fine thing as a mem-

M'Mahon Favors Interchange Of Ideas Between Russia, U. S.

JUL 3 1946

WASHINGTON, July 2 (Special)—A free interchange of "visitors, ideas and broadcasts" between Russia and the United States was advocated by U. S. Senator Brien McMahon (D-Conn) in a radio discussion with Congressman Joseph F. Ryter, of Hartford, broadcast over the Connecticut State Network tonight.

Senator McMahon questioned Congressman Ryter about the report made public last week by a subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, of which the latter was a member, regarding conditions in Russia and eastern Europe.

Would End Appeasement

Indicating that he was speaking of Russia, Congressman Ryter said his subcommittee was convinced it was "high time the appeasement policy of our government be terminated, since there are certain countries today who have respect for the United States solely because of our military might."

"It is interesting to note," Congressman Ryter continued, "that the Russian people as a whole are extremely friendly to the United States. It is only a small clique of individuals there who are constantly prodding the people along and portraying our stand in the wrong light."

Senator McMahon replied: "If we ber of the Foreign Committee to go to Eur[illegible] see what you could."

Voicing his assent with the need for first-hand information, Congressman Ryter said: "You are faced with the alternative of relying upon the handouts of various government bureaus and, if you have no other information to the contrary, you must take them at face value. These trips give adequate opportunity to test the statements and handouts of the various bureaus."

Acheson Favors Discharging of Red Employees

But He Calls Communism in the State Department 'More Alarm Than Fact'

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of State, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee today that if a charge of Communistic views is established against a State Department employee, "I favor his discharge."

However, he said he had found charges of Communism in the department "more a matter of alarm than of fact."

He denied that 300 of the State Department personnel had been fired because of Communistic leanings, as intimated by Representative E. E. Cox, Democrat, of Georgia, on the House floor. They were let go for economy reasons, he said.

Of all the lists submitted by members of Congress and other persons, raising the Communist issue against various permanent department personnel, he said, accusations against but one employee have been substantiated, and this person has been discharged. The employee was not identified.

Mr. Acheson told the foreign affairs group that many persons were included on lists of suspects merely because they were affiliated with "progressive organizations" or were "New Dealers."

As for the "New Dealer" charge, Mr. Acheson added, with a smile, "I have not considered that to be a crime."

The discussion arose when Mr. Acheson appeared in support of proposed legislation for broad reorganization of the State Department's foreign service.

House Atomic Control Bill Widens Powers of Military

JUL 3 1946

Committee Approves Measure Differing from McMahon Plan.

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP) The House Military committee placed it final approval today on a bill admitting the military to domestic atomic energy control and sent it to the floor. The vote in closed session was reported as 24 to 3.

NIGHT

Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas (D-Calif) immediately told reporters she will move to substitute for it the original McMahon bill passed by the Senate which provides for an all-civilian control commission, as approved by the President and the armed services. She claimed the support of a large group of colleagues.

Widens Military Control

The committee's bill would require the President to select one member of the control commission from the military, and would authorize him to appoint a second military representative if he thinks fit. It also specifies that the President may direct the commission to permit the Army and Navy to operate freely in the field of atomic weapons.

In other provisions, the House committee followed generally the action of the Senate.

It made no change in the salary provisions—$17,500 for the commission chairman, $15,000 for the commission members, $15,000 for the commission's general manager, and $14,000 for the heads of the divisions of research, production, engineering and military application.

Dealing only with domestic phases of the control problem, the legislation was drawn to tie in with future international agreements.

Controls Production

It provides for rigid government control over the production of fissionable material, with provision for private management of government productive facilities.

Private mining and production of the source ores from which the fissionable material is obtained would be permitted under licenses issued by the commission. Licenses also would be issued, under tight regulations, for the development and use of atomic power for non-war purposes.

Penalties for violations of provisions of the proposed law—with enforcement vested in the Federal Bureau of Investigation—would range downward from 20 years imprisonment and a fine of $20,000.

Congressmen Retain Faith In A-Bomb

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Capitol Hill refused to sell the atomic bomb short today on the basis of less-than-spectacular results in the Bikini test.

Several lawmakers conceded that Sunday's experiment had a "somewhat disappointing" outcome in their opinion, but it failed to shake their belief in the formidable power of the A-bomb.

Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.) of the Senate's Special Atomic Committee, said the world can't breathe much easier even if the bomb did not disintegrate the battleship Nevada and other major units in the target fleet.

McMahon's Reaction

"We must remember," he said, "that we have 40,000,000 people living in cities not much more strongly built than Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Even if battleships survive all of the tests. I don't believe that 40,000,000 people can live on battleships."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Col.), a committee member, felt it too early yet to appraise the effect of the bomb on naval operations.

"No one expected the bomb to blow those ships out of the water, he said, "but we won't know the full results until the effect of the deadly gamma rays it released is determined. If personnel would be killed or disabled, no fleet would be effective."

Thinks Animals Will Die

Johnson predicted that many of the animals which remained alive on the ships would die within a short time from the effects of radio activity.

Senator George (D., Ga.) was one who thought results thus far reported "somewhat disappointing," but he observed that the buildup given the experiment may have led many persons to expect too much.

Senator Hufman (D., Ohio), who had urged that the test be called off, considered the results in line with what most scientists had expected, adding:

"We had better judge the power of the atomic bomb by what it did to Hiroshima and Nagasaki, rather than by what happened in this Roman holiday in the Pacific."

Revercomb Cites Difficulty

Few legislators lent any credence to speculation that the Bikini bomb may not have been as powerful as those exploded over land areas in Japan.

Senator Revercomb (R., W.Va.) noted that scientists had said it was difficult to control the force of the explosion. Hence two bombs of apparently identical construction might prove to have widely different destructive effects.

SENATE ATOMIC BILL AMENDED

House Group Provides for Military Man on Board.

Washington, July 2 (A. P.).—The House Military Committee today approved legislation for quasi-military control of atomic energy development. By a 24 to 3 vote after weeks of consideration, the committee amended in several major respects the bill drafted by a special committee headed by Senator McMahon (D.-Conn.) and passed by the Senate.

The Senate bill, backed by President Truman, provided for control by a five-member commission of civilians. The House committee wrote in a requirement that at least one member of the commission, and not more than two, must be representative of the military services.

The House group also changed a Senate provision that the Director of the Division of Military Application should be a civilian. Under the House proposal, the Director will be a military man.

A third major change would authorize the President to permit the armed services to produce their own atomic weapons. This was not in the Senate measure.

Votes Investigation.

The House committee also voted to empower the Federal Bureau of Investigation to investigate alleged violations of the proposed law.

Under the bill the Government would carry out the production of fissionable, or explosive, material. Private ownership of this material or the facilities to produce it would be barred, but the Government could make contracts for private management of its plants.

Private mining and production of the source ores would be permitted under licenses issued by the commission. The Government would have first right to purchase the source ores.

Before the commision issued a license for the use of atomic devices for peaceful purposes, it would be required to report to Congress its estimate of the likely effects of such devices on social, political, economic and international conditions.

Filipinos In U.S. Services Are Released

JUL 3 1946

Washington, July 2 (AP)—President Truman today signed an order releasing the organized military forces of the Philippine Government from the service of the armed forces of the United States.

At the same time the President signed into law legislation permitting the immigration into the United States for citizenship purposes of 100 Filipinos and 100 East Indians annually.

Neither country had an immigration quota previously, and the 100 granted them by the new law is the same that Congress approved last year for Chinese.

Already Effective

The legislation permits the naturalization of Filipinos and East Indians already in this country.

The military order, one of a series of steps looking to the inauguration of Philippine independence July 4, became effective last midnight.

It revokes a previous military order of July 26, 1941, under which the organized military forces of the Philippine Commonwealth were brought into the United States military forces.

$78,000,000 worth of war contracts.

The committee was told today that concerns paid large salaries to company officials and their relatives. Four men alone, it was testified, voted themselves $1,580,120 in salaries over a three and one-half year period. The salary figures caused Chairman Mead of the Senate committee to charge "war profiteering."

May had no immediate comment on today's developments. Before leaving for Kentucky by train to keep a Fourth of July engagement, he told reporters he would comment "at the appropriate time."

In his telephone conversation concerning the Illinois companies, May was quoted as saying:

"I'm not asking any favors for them. I just want them to get equal chances."

But he made plain he desired speed.

Gen. Campbell said in the conversation that he was planning to see Major General Thomas S. Hammond, then chief of the Chicago ordnance district, the following week, but added: "Of course I can call him up if you wish."

"I wish you would," said May.

"Uh-huh," replied Campbell.

Sought More Orders

May's conversation centered around a request that Henry Garsson, an official of one of the interlocking corporations, be given additional government orders for the manufacture of shell fuse caps.

"Yes," broke in Campbell, I'll see him next week as a matter of fact."

"Well," said May, "will you jump on him for me?"

"I certainly will," agreed Campbell, adding that Garsson was "one of the best manufacturers in the whole business, incidentally."

May was quoted as remarking that "these people have got some holdup some way about some advancement on some of their work. Some money they need, what about that?"

Campbell replied that all Garsson had to do was to see Gen. Hammond and if he is entitled to it, it will take him about five minutes to get it."

Comments on Friendship

"As I told you," May was quoted as saying near the end of the conversation, "these fellows are good friends of mine and have been very kind to me in the past about some things and I want to help them if I could. I'm not asking any favors for them. I just want them to get equal chances."

"They'll have every opportunity, Mr. May, you may be sure," replied Campbell.

"Well, that's fine," said May.

"I'll see to that personally," Campbell responded.

The transcript was read into the record by Frank W. Renwick, former chief of the legal division in the Chicago ordnance office to which it was relayed after the talk occurred.

It came after Senator Ferguson (R-Mich), a committee member, inquired whether any "political pressure" had been exercised by members of Congress on behalf of the Illinois concerns.

Renwick replied that there had been "two or three instances" in which phone calls from May to the Washington ordnance office had been relayed to Chicago.

Earlier, he testified that officers in the Chicago office had been "thoroughly burned up" because Garsson "obviously had enough pressure in Chicago" to force the head of ordnance to make a trip out there to investigate one of Garsson's complaints.

Edward Schaefer, chief accountant of the government's general accounting office in Chicago, read into the record the figures on the salaries—A. B. Gellman, $505,709; Joseph T. Weiss, $484,705; Henry M. Garsson, $228,000, and Murray M. Garsson, $161,666.

In addition, Rae Weiss, mother of Joseph Weiss and Gellman's mother in-law, was listed for $142,671; Mrs.

Rep. May Linked to Illinois Companies Now Accused by Senator of Profiteering

JUL 3 1946

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP) The Senate War Investigating committee today unearthed three-year-old evidence that Rep. May (D-Ky) pressed the Army to give more war work to his "good friends"—a group of Illinois munitions manufacturers whom Senator Mead (D-NY) accuses of "war profiteering."

NIGHT

"These fellows are good friends of mine and have been very kind to me in the past about some things and I want to help them if I could," May was quoted as saying in a transcript of a telephone conversation with Major General J. H. Campbell, then chief of army ordnance. May is chairman of the House Military committee.

Probe of Financial Structure

The transcript was read into the records of the Senate committee which is inquiring into the tangled financial structure, complicated operations and wartime profits of 19 closely linked Illinois concerns which were awarded more than

May was quoted as telling Campbell that the Batavia Metal Products, Inc., of Batavia, Ill., and the Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., of Elgin, Ill.,—two of the companies under inquiry—"have done an awful good job."

"I was out there one day," the transcript quoted him as saying, "and saw the Elgin plant and they had a lot of women working. That attracted my attention. I've been studying about that, you know. It looked to me like they had an awfully pretty setup and are doing an awful pretty job and I wish when you communicate with your man General Hammond x x x.

Gellman for $184,738, and Joseph Freeman, Washington representative of the companies, at $113,625 for the 42-month period ending June 30, 1945.

The inquiry thus far has centered chiefly around the war contracting activities of three corporations, the Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., of Elgin, Ill., the Batavia Metal Products, Inc., of Batavia, Ill., and the Interstate Machinery company, Inc., of Chicago.

"This is war profiteering at its worst," Mead asserted after the salary figures were read. "For one man to make so much when so many were making sacrifices is despicable. Why, this is more than the leader of the United States, the commander in chief of the Army and Navy, is paid. This committee is determined to find ways of preventing such a sordid story from ever again being written."

The committee sought from S. D. Sanson, a former lieutenant colonel in the Washington office of the Chemical Warfare Service and now president of the Artcraft Hosiery company, an explanation of the financial structure of the firms.

Weiss and Gellman appear among the chief stockholders in all three, and the Garsson brothers in all but Interstate. All four have a hand in several subsidiary corporations and partnerships involved in what Mead termed "a sprawling paper empire."

War-Contract Profiteering Laid To 4

JUL 3 1946

Washington, July 2 (AP)—A Government accountant told the Senate War Investigating Committee today that four men voted themselves salaries totaling $1,380,120 in a 42-month period as officers of a maze of firms handling war contracts.

"This is war profiteering at its worst," exclaimed Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) after hearing the testimony of Edward Schaefer, chief of the Government's general accounting office in Chicago. The committee is investigating the war profits of nineteen Illinois concerns forming what Mead has described as a "sprawling paper empire."

Culled From Records

Schaefer testified the salary figures were culled from the records of the nineteen firms in which the four had an interest. He said they showed these totals:

A. B. Gellman, $505,709; Joseph T. Weiss, $484,705; Henry M. Garsson, $228,080; Murray W. Garsson, $161,666.

In addition, Rae Weiss, mother of Joseph Weiss and Gellman's mother-in-law, was reported to have received salaries totaling $142,671, while Bertha Gellman, wife of A. B. Gellman, was listed for $148,738. The figure for Joseph F. Freeman, Washington representative of the companies, was set at $113,625 for the period from the beginning of 1942 through June, 1945.

Schaefer did not have the figures after payment of taxes.

"Evil Procedure"

Angrily, Mead declared that the figures disclosed "an evil procedure that must not be tolerated, and should not have been tolerated. For one man to make so much while so many were making sacrifices is despicable.

"This is more than the leader of the United States, the commander in chief of the Army and Navy, is paid. This committee is determined to find ways of preventing such a sordid story from ever again being written."

The figures were put into the record as the committee pried into the development of the Batavia Metal Products, Inc., one of the nineteen firms which handled a total of $78,094,101 in war contracts.

Schaefer told the committee that the financial structure of the firms, with their interlocking boards of directors and different fiscal year, was so complex that it would be difficult to renegotiate government contracts.

No Cash Investment

He said the Batavia Corporation was organized, with "no actual cash" investment May 23, 1942. He cited figures purporting to show that the book value of its fixed assets increased from $150,000 to more than a half million dollars in a period when the corporation book-listed net loss was approximately $92,000.

To a puzzled committee, he unfolded a series of financial transactions which began with the purchase of the 85-year-old United States Wind Engine and Pump Company, by three "liquidating partnerships" among them one owned by Gellman & Weiss, for $222,000.

Included in the transaction was the purchase later by Batavia of the United States Wind Engine and Pump Company for $400,000, and the organization of a new company, the United Sates Engine and Pump Company, two days later. Schaefer said that the stock of the new company was turned over to the old company as collateral. The Weiss and Gellman families were officers in Batavia as well as both the old and new engine and pump companies.

The inquiry turned to Washington when the committee called Sam Beard, who, upon being asked his business, blandly testified he was a "gambler." He said he has twice served prison sentences—once for gambling, and once on an income-tax charge.

Checks For Levin

He acknowledged cashing more than $46,000 in checks for the late Albert Levin, whom he described as a friend. Schaefer testified the checks were originally issued to Freeman, but how they got into Levin's hands remained at least temporarily unexplained. Beard said he didn't know where Levin got them.

Chemical Warfare

Brig. Gen. Paul C. English, retired, former chief of the indstrial division of the Chemical Warfare Service, told the committee that he never "would have done business" with Henry and Murray Garsson if he had known about their backgrounds.

Committee Counsel George Meader yesterday introduced records purporting to show that Murray Garsson twice went through bankruptcy proceedings and that his brother was discharged as a Federal revenue agent in connection with a case in which he was acquitted of extortion.

The nineteen firms received a total of $78,041,101 in war contracts.

MERGER PLAN OF TRUMAN IS UNDER FIRE

JUL 3 1946

Walsh And Robertson See No Chance For Favorable Action Soon

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Two Senate opponents of President Truman's plan for merging the War and Navy departments, Senators Walsh (D., Mass.) and Robertson (R., Wyo.), today said there was no chance for favorable congressional action at this session.

Walsh, chairman of the Senate Navy Committee, and Robertson, a ranking Republican member, offered this opinion in separate interviews after two key Navy Department officials were questioned at a closed committee session today.

"Navy Not In Agreement"

Although President Truman has told the Navy and War department leaders he is counting upon them to support his latest merger proposal, both senators said the "Navy Department is not in agreement."

W. John Kenney, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Admiral William F. Halsey, Pacific task force hero in the recent war, provided navy backers with new ammunition at the closed session, at which the President's proposal was discussed.

Chairman Walsh said it would be "impossible" to get favorable action before Congress adjourns.

Senator Robertson said that even if James V. Forrestal, Secretary of Navy, concurs in the single department plan "I don't go along with Forrestal and I don't think the Congress will."

"Kenney In Difficult Position"

"If we are to keep our Navy, it requires that the Navy have cabinet representation and a voice in its appropriations," Robertson said.

He added that committee members generally agreed that the presidential proposal for a single Secretary of Common Defense, with Army, Air and Navy branches "would take this away from the Navy."

Senators reported that Admiral Halsey told them at the closed-door discussion, the Navy must retain its present land-based combat planes.

Walsh said Halsey, now assigned to special duty with the Navy department, was appearing as an individual in opposing the presidential request.

Senator Robertson said Assistant Secretary Kenney was in a "difficult position" because he "can't go against his boss" (President Truman) but still faced critical questions of senators.

VOTES FOR SNYDER AS WORLD BANK AIDE

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee today approved the nomination of John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, to be United States Governor of the International Bank and Monetary Fund.

The group delayed action, however, on two second-flight appointments to those organizations after a discussion of tax-free salaries. These were the nominations of George F. Lutheringer to be alternate Executive Director for the United States on the Monetary Fund and John Stam Hooker to be alternate United States Executive Director of the International Bank.

Senator Taft of Ohio brought out that Mr. Hooker's present salary as a State Department economist is $9,950 before the payment of taxes, compared with the tax-free $11,500 that he would draw in his new position. Mr. Lutheringer, now drawing $9,000 a year from the State Department, would get $11,200 tax-free with the fund.

Mr. Taft said he had no objection to high salaries for qualified personnel, but he thought they were set high to attract experienced men rather than to double the income of Government officials.

House Passes Boost In Veteran Pensions

Washington, July 2 (AP)—The House today passed a bill boosting by twenty per cent all monthly rates of compensation and pension now payable to veterans of the last two World Wars.

The measure, which now goes to the Senate, stipulates that there shall be no reduction of compensation to veterans while they are in hospitals. This eliminates an existing regulation which limits the payments to as little as $8 a month for hospitalized veterans without dependents, regardless of what they received prior to hospitalization.

House Votes Fascist Ban

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—Former Axis soldiers, former members of Nazi or Fascist political organizations and war criminals would be barred permanently from the United States under a bill passed today by the House. It goes now to the Senate.

Senate Body Backs UNESCO

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP) — Legislation for United States membership in the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organizations was approved today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Two amendments were proposed to the measure already passed by the House.

War Trophy Bill Is Passed

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—The House passed and sent to President Truman today legislation directing the War Department to distribute captured war trophies among the states. The items to be distributed, generally for memorial purposes, consist of guns, tanks, airplanes and other military equipment. Transportation costs will be paid by the states.

Ask Truman to Aid Farm Bill

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP).—Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, and a delegation from the House Agriculture Committee urged President Truman today to support the Flannagan-Hope agricultural marketing research bill.

Naval Academy Airfield Bill Offered In House

Washington, July 2 (AP)—Legislation to authorize construction of an airfield at the Naval Academy has been introduced in the House.

Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Naval Committee, offered the bill, which would empower the Secretary of the Navy to proceed with development of an airport costing up to $12,000,000.

The Navy had sought that amount in its appropriation for the 1947 fiscal year, but the amount was deleted by the Bureau of the Budget.

The Secretary, under Vinson's bill, would be "authorized and directed to provide by contract or otherwise" the aviation facilities "including the necessary buildings, quarters, collateral public works, facilities and equipment and the acquisition of the necessary land." The money would be made available out of unappropriated Treasury funds.

Naval officials have testified at congressional hearings that they would be unable to carry out their projected postwar educational program without an airfield at the academy.

MARINE CORPS BAND WILL RESUME ITS HOURS

WASHINGTON, July 2. — (AP) The Marine corps band, which claims to be the oldest in the country, will resume its concert tours this fall.

Created in 1798, the band has been in continuous existence for 148 years.

The Marine corps said the band will start a two-months tour in Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 23. It will visit cities in Massachusetts and Connecticut. The final concert will be in Atlantic City, Nov. 28. Proceeds of the tour go to charity.

FAR EAST COMMISSION DRAFTS CONSTITUTION

WASHINGTON, July 2. — (AP) The Far Eastern commission today approved unanimously a set of "basic principles" for a new Japanese constitution.

The document has been sent to General Douglas MacArthur, presumably for comparison with a constitution presented to the Japanese legislature by Emperor Hirohito early this year and endorsed by MacArthur.

Members of the commission—11-nation Allied policy-making body for Japan—declined to disclose details of the policy documents. One official said it had been agreed to keep the principles confidential until MacArthur has been consulted.

Longer Dress Banned

JUL 3 1946

Washington, July 2 (AP)—The Civilian Production Administration said a firm "no" today to stylists who want to see women's dresses longer and more voluminous.

Morris S. Verner, Jr., CPA compliance division director, warned 1,000 dress manufacturers of dresses that his division "intends to enforce the restrictive provisions of Order L-85."

This means that the skirt sweep must not blossom further, but must stay at 65 to 80 inches, depending upon size of garment; dress lengths must remain 43½ to 47 inches, and sleeve lengths and circumference must stay at 30 to 31 inches and 14 to 16 inches, respectively.

CPA will make checks at the manufacturing plants and retail stores, Verner said, to determine whether the order is being followed. Directing manufacturers not to heed the demand for more fullness and length, Verner warned that any violations will be construed as willful and violators will be subjected to penalties.

Emergency Lead Pool Set Up By Order

Washington, July 2 (AP)—The Civilian Production Administration today ordered lead producers to set aside 25 per cent of their output, effective August 1, as a pool from which emergency and hardship orders may be filled.

Allocations of lead to industry for the July-August-September quarter were cut to 217,000 tons, compared with 232,000 tons last quarter.

The agency also reduced quoti of lead for automobile storage batteries. Third-quarter quotas will be nineteen per cent of the amount used for civilian batteries in 1944. In the [illegible]arter just closed, the quota [illegible]22 per cent.

FBI IN REDIN TRIAL

Seattle, July 2 (A. P.).—The Government planned to put Federal Bureau of Investigation agents on the stand today in the espionage and conspiracy trial of Russian Navy Lieut. Nicola G. Redin.

They were expected to corroborate testimony of Herbert Kennedy, 69-year-old Marine engineer, that the 30-year-old Soviet officer induced and attempted to induce him to reveal confidential data about the United States Navy's new-design destroyer tender, the Yellowstone, launched here this spring.

Redin has denied the Government charges categorically and his attorneys said he and his attractive Russian wife will testify after the Government completes its case.

Army Prisoners Burn Huts, Balk Firemen

Watsonville, Cal., July 2 (AP)—Unruly prisoners in Camp Mcquaide disciplinary barrack set fire ot huts in one compound last night and then atempted to keep out firemen summoned to fight the blaze, the 6th Army provost marshal's office reported.

Thirty-six barracks were destroyed, but Col. E. A. Everitt, camp commander, said no prisoners escaped and no one was injured.

About 600 prisoners were confined in the compound. Colonel Everitt said the 1,100 prisoners in adjoining compounds behaved well and helped prevent the flames' spreading.

WAR BRIDE IN RENO

Reno, July 2 (A. P.).—Former Army Lieut. Harold Carbone of Rochester, N. Y., arrived here yesterday to contest a divorce action brought by his English war bride, Mrs. Jean Pauline Carbone. The trial begins tomorrow before Judge A. J. Maestretti, who has informed both sides that he will grant no further postponement.

Mrs. Carbone, who in her mental cruelty complaint said, among other things, that Carbone was "penurious and stingy," arrived in this country last December and went to the home of Capt. Carrell Beschen in Dubuque, Iowa. A son was born to her shortly after her arrival.

In answer to her complaint, Carbone charged her with adultery, naming Capt. Beschen as corespondent. The Carbones were married in London on November 8, 1944. Two months later he was transferred to the United States for discharge.

NEW YORK, JULY 2-(AP)-ADMIRAL RICHMOND KELLY TURNER, U.S. NAVAL REPRESENTATIVE ON THE UNITED NATIONS MILITARY STAFF COMMITTEE, CALLED TODAY FOR THE ENFORCEMENT OF "A JUST PEACE THROUGH THE COLLECTIVE USE, OR THREAT OF USE, OF MILITARY POWER."

URGING EARLY ESTABLISHMENT OF MACHINERY TO IMPLEMENT THE DECISIONS OF THE UNITED NATIONS, THE ADMIRAL DECLARED IN AN INTERVIEW:

"THE ENFORCEMENT OF UNITED NATIONS DECISIONS BY MEANS NOT INVOLVING ARMED FORCE PROBABLY WILL USUALLY BE INEFFECTIVE UNLESS IT IS KNOWN THAT MILITARY POWER IS AVAILABLE FOR PROMPT USE."

ADMIRAL TURNER, WHO PLAYED AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN THE AMPHIBIOUS WAR IN THE PACIFIC, ASSERTED THERE WAS A LACK OF UNDERSTANDING IN THE UNITED STATES OF THE NATION'S OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE U.N. CHARTER AND SAID THE COUNTRY WAS TOO WEAK NOW TO HANDLE ITS COMMITMENTS.

"TOO RAPID DEMOBILIZATION OF THE MILITARY FORCES OF THE UNITED STATES, AND DELAYS IN THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A SATISFACTORY MILITARY POLICY, HAVE RENDERED THE UNITED STATES INCAPABLE OF ADEQUATELY DISCHARGING ITS INTERNATIONAL MILITARY OBLIGATIONS," HE SAID. "SO FAR AS CAN BE FORESEEN, THE LACK OF UNDERSTANDING BY ITS CITIZENS OF UNITED STATES OBLIGATIONS WILL CONTRIBUTE TO FURTHER DELAYS IN ESTABLISHING A SOUND MILITARY POLICY.

JUL 3 1946

"THIS FACT WEAKENS THE INFLUENCES WHICH THE UNITED STATES SHOULD HAVE IN PROMOTING THE PURPOSES OF THE UNITED NATIONS."

ADMIRAL TURNER DEFINED THE OBLIGATIONS AS SELF-DEFENSE AGAINST ARMED ATTACK, NECESSARY ACTION AGAINST AXIS STATES, THE PROVISIONS FOR SUPPLYING ARMED FORCES TO THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL FOR A WORLD ARMY, NAVAL AND AIR FORCE; AND PROVISIONS FOR THE BIG FIVE TO GUARD THE PEACE UNTIL THE U.N. MILITARY BODY COMES INTO BEING.

MILITARY STAFF COMMITTEE, AN ARM OF THE COUNCIL WHICH INCLUDES TOP MILITARY REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BIG FIVE, IS NOW AT WORK ON PLANS FOR AN INTERNATIONAL FORCE DRAWN FROM THE 51 MEMBER NATIONS.

ADMIRAL TURNER LAID DOWN SEVEN OBJECTIVES AS FOLLOWS:

1. AN EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM OF REALISTIC INFORMATION, DEVOID OF PROPAGANDA, EXPLAINING THE TERMS OF THE CHARTER AND THE SCOPE OF INTEREST OF THE VARIOUS ORGANS.

2. THE ENFORCEMENT OF A JUST PEACE THROUGH THE COLLECTIVE USE, OR THREAT OF USE, OF MILITARY POWER.

3. THE CONSUMMATION OF AGREEMENTS FOR PROVIDING THE UNITED NATIONS WITH MILITARY POWER.

JUL 3 1946

4. THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A MILITARY POLICY BY THE UNITED STATES THAT WILL PERMIT IT TO DISCHARGE ITS OBLIGATIONS TO PEACE AND THE UNITED NATIONS.

5. EARLY IMPLEMENTATION OF THE CHARTER PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE FUNCTIONS OF THE MILITARY STAFF COMMITTEE.

6. EARLY IMPLEMENTATION OF THE ACT OF CHAPULTEPEC (INTER-AMERICAN SECURITY AGREEMENT).

7. EMPHASIS ON THE REMOVAL OF CAUSES OF WAR THROUGH POLITICAL MEANS, RATHER THAN THROUGH THE GENERAL REGULATION OF ARMAMENTS.

IN COMMENTING ON THE LAST POINT, ADMIRAL TURNER SAID:

"AGREED RENUNCIATION OF WEAPONS HAS NOT BEEN EFFECTIVE UNLESS ACCOMPANIED BY EFFECTIVE SANCTIONS.

"WAR CANNOT BE OUTLAWED MERELY BY RESOLVING TO OUTLAW IT, OR BY DISARMING. THE PREVENTION OF WAR RESTS ON THE REMOVAL OF THE CAUSES OF WAR, AND NOT ON THE REMOVAL OF THE MILITARY MEANS OF MAKING WAR.

"IN THE PRESENT STAGE OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS, IT IS PREMATURE TO ADVOCATE GENERAL REGULATION OF ARMAMENTS OR DISARMAMENT."

New York, July 2--(ap)--An important movement is under way to elect Argentina to a place on the United Nations Security Council during the September meeting of the General Assembly, authoritative United Nations sources declared today.

JUL 3 1946

In September the Assembly will be asked to fill three Council posts which will be vacated in 1947 by Mexico, Egypt and the Netherlands. Several Latin American countries are reported making strong bids for the membership to be yielded by Mexico.

Chile and Colombia also were said to be making strong efforts to obtain the coveted post.

Argentina's candidacy for the council, these sources said, is supported by Brazil, which will continue on the Council until 1948.

It was said the Brazilians would like to sit in the Council with an Argentine representative because the two countries' interests are similar and the friendship between them has grown considerably.

However, the United States State Department [redacted] is said to look with disfavor on this idea. [redacted] State department officials were represneted by these sources as being willing to support Argentina's entrance into the Council but only after Brazil's term of office has expired. JUL 3 1946

The United States, these sources added, apparently would be more willing to support Chile or Colombia in the September contest.

Argentina's chances were described as "good", particularly since Russia is not expected to oppose Argentina's candidacy in view of the Soviet diplomatic moves in the western hemisphere.

NEW YORK--FIRST ADD SECOND NIGHT LEAD U.N. X X X UNITED NATIONS."

THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION HAS INSISTED THAT ANY ATOMIC CONTROL PLAN SHOULD NOT BE SUBJECT TO THE VETO POWER GRANTED TO THE FIVE PERMANENT MEMBERS OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL--RUSSIA, GREAT BRITAIN, FRANCE, CHINA AND THE UNITED STATES.

WHEN THE AMERICAN PLAN FIRST WAS OUTLINED, IT WAS SAID AUTHORITATIVELY THAT A STUDY WAS BEING MADE AS TO HOW VIOLATIONS WOULD BE PUNISHED -- BUT THAT UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES SHOULD ANY VETO APPLY IN ANY CONTROL SCHEME. THE AMERICANS ALSO HAVE MAINTAINED THAT ANY INTERNATIONAL CONTROL MUST HAVE "TEETH IN IT."

THERE WAS NO ANNOUNCEMENT AFTER THE SECRET SESSION ELABORATING ON THE BRIEF PARAGRAPH IN THE LONG MEMORANDUM.

THE EBERSTADT MEMORANDUM SAID THE AMERICAN DELEGATION CONCLUDED THAT A SIX-POINT PROPOSITION SUBMITTED YESTERDAY BY THE SUB-COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN FOR DISCUSSION AND RECOMMENDATION OFFERED A "SOUND AND EXPEDITIOUS APPROACH TO THE SOLUTION OF OUR PROBLEMS."

THE UNITED STATES MEMORANDUM SAID THE TREATY SHOULD CONTAIN PROVISIONS:

DEFINING THE RELATIONS BETWEEN THE (ATOMIC DEVELOPMENT) AUTHORITY AND THE SECURITY COUNCIL, THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY, THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE, AND THE OTHER ORGANS OF THE UNITED NATIONS;

"DEFINING THE MUTUAL RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS OF THE SEVERAL SIGNATORY STATES AND THE AUTHORITY, INCLUDING THE RELATIONS BETWEEN THE AUTHORITY AND ANY ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL AGENCIES OF THE SIGNATORY STATES;

"GOVERNING THE SEQUENCE AND TIMING OF THE STEPS IN THE TRANSITION FROM THE PRESENT CONDITIONS TO THE CONDITIONS WHICH WILL PREVAIL ONCE THE AUTHORITY IS IN EFFECTIVE CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY;

A38 JUL 3 1946

"SPECIFYING THE TIME WHEN AND THE CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH THE NATIONAL AND PRIVATE POSSESSION, MANUFACTURE, AND USE OF ATOMIC WEAPONS SHALL BE OUTLAWED;

"DEFINING THE VIOLATIONS WHICH SHALL CONSTITUTE INTERNATIONAL CRIMES AND SPECIFYING THE SANCTIONS TO BE EMPLOYED FOR SUCH VIOLATIONS;

"RELATING TO SIGNATURE, RATIFICATION, ENTRY INTO FORCE AND AMENDMENT OF THE TREATY, AND

"CONCERNING ANY NECESSARY AMENDMENT OF THE CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS."

THE LAST PARAGRAPH OF THE PROPOSED PROVISIONS OFFERED A LOOP-HOLE BY WHICH AN AMENDMENT MIGHT BE SOUGHT TO ABOLISH THE VETO POWER ON ATOMIC MATTERS, OBSERVERS POINTED OUT. BUT THERE WAS ALSO NO ELABORATION ON THAT POINT.

THE BRIEF FRENCH MEMORANDUM FAVORED A SPECIAL INTERNATIONAL CONTROLLING AUTHORITY BUT PROVIDED THAT IT SHOULD BE ESTABLISHED BY THE U.N. GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

THE FRENCH WOULD HAVE THE AUTHORITY REPORTING TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL ON BREACHES OF RULES WHICH IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ABLE TO DETECT.

MEMBERS OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE WERE REPRESENTED AUTHORITATIVELY AS FEELING THAT THE TIME HAD COME FOR AGREEMENT AND NOT FOR ARGUMENT. IT WAS SAID THAT THE ARGUMENTS HAD BEEN ADVANCED IN MEETINGS OF THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION, THAT ALL POSITIONS WERE KNOWN, AND THAT THE TASK OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE WAS TO FIND AN AREA OF AGREEMENT.

THE UNITED STATES AND RUSSIA HAVE PRESENTED THE PRINCIPAL PLANS FOR CONTROLLING ATOMIC ENERGY. IN ADDITION, THE SUB-COMMITTEE HAS BEFORE IT A SIX-POINT PROPOSITION ADVANCED YESTERDAY BY DR. HERBERT V.EVATT, OF AUSTRALIA, CHAIRMAN, FOR DISCUSSION AND RECOMMENDATION.

THE NATIONS ON THE SUB-COMMITTEE ARE THE UNITED STATES, RUSSIA, GREAT BRITAIN, FRANCE, MEXICO, AND AUSTRALIA. AUSTRALIA IS INCLUDED BY VIRTUE OF ITS CHAIRMANSHIP OF THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION.

THE COMMISSION IS SCHEDULED TO MEET TOMORROW AT 3 P.M., E.D.T., AT THE HENRY HUDSON HOTEL BALL ROOM, WHICH IS SERVING AS A TEMPORARY MEETING PLACE FOR THE COMMISSION AND THE U.N.SECURITY COUNCIL UNTIL WORK IS COMPLETED NEXT MONTH ON THE COUNCIL CHAMBER IN THE SPERRY PLANT AT LAKE SUCCESS, LONG ISLAND.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE RUSSIAN PLANS DISAGREE OVER THE VETO POWER, THE PUNISHMENT OF INDIVIDUALS, AND THE MATTER OF GOING BEYOND A TRATY. ON THAT LAST POINT, THE UNITED STATES INSISTS THAT A TREATY. ON THAT LAST POINT, THE UNITED STATES INSISTS THAT ALL SAFEGUARDS BE WORKING BEFORE ATOMIC BOMBS ARE DISPOSED OF, WHILE RUSSIA FEELS THAT ALL BOMBS SHOULD BE DESTROYED WITHIN THREE MONTHS AFTER A CONVENTION BECOMES EFFECTIVE.

EVATT PUT BEFORE THE SUB-COMMITTEE A SIX-POINT PROPOSITION AS A BASE FOR DISCUSSION AND RECOMMENDATION. THE SIX POINTS WERE:

"1. THERE SHOULD BE A SINGLE INTERNATIONAL INSTRUMENT EMBODYING: (A) A COMPREHENSIVE PLAN FOR INTERNATIONAL CONTROL AND DEVELOPMENT OF ATOMIC ENERGY, (B) AN INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC ENERGY AUTHORITY TO ADMINISTER AND CARRY OUT THE PLAN AND TO BE VESTED WITH WIDE DISCRETIONARY POWERS, (C) AS PART OF THE PLAN THERE SHOULD BE UNDERTAKINGS BY MEMBER NATIONS NOT TO USE ATOMIC ENERGY FOR PURPOSES OF WAR, (D) SEVERAL PARTS OF THE PLAN SHOULD COME INTO EFFECTIVE OPERATION UNDER TERMS AND CONDITIONS WHICH ARE JUST AND EQUITABLE, HAVING REGARD TO THE OVERRIDING PURPOSE OF THE PLAN.

"2. FOR PURPOSES OF CARRYING OUT THE PLAN AN INTERNATIONAL AUTHORITY SHOULD BE VESTED WITH ALL NECESSARY RIGHTS RELEVANT TO RAW MATERIALS, PROCESSES, PLANS AND PRODUCTS OF PLANS.

"3. THAT EFFECTIVE SYSTEMS SHOULD BE ESTABLISHED FOR PREVENTING BREACHES OF THE AGREED RESTRICTIONS AND CONTROLS.

"4. THE INTERNATIONAL AUTHORITY SHALL BE REQUIRED TO PROMOTE AND CARRY OUT PLANS FOR DEVELOPMENT OF ATOMIC ENERGY FOR PEACEFUL PURPOSES.

"5. THAT SCIENTIFIC INFORMATION ON NUCLEAR PROCESSES AND THEIR APPLICATION TO PEACEFUL PURPOSES SHOULD BE EXCHANGED, CARE BEING TAKEN AT EACH STAGE NOT TO PREJUDICE THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE AGREED SAFEGUARDS AGAINST MISUSE. SUCH EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION SHOULD TAKE PLACE BY AN INTERCHANGE OF PERSONNEL AND THROUGH OPEN PUBLICATION.

"6. THAT THE GENERAL PLAN SHOULD PROVIDE THAT AT TIMES AND UNDER CONDITIONS TO BE FIXED BY THE INTERNATIONAL AUTHORITY, THE MANUFACTURE OF ATOMIC BOMBS SHOULD CEASE AND ALL EXISTING BOMBS SHOULD BE DISMANTLED.

THE FULL ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION WILL MEET AT 3 P.M. (EDT) TOMORROW TO CONSIDER RULES OF PROCEDURE.

WARSAW, JULY 2-(AP)-VICE PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK CHARGED TODAY THAT IRREGULARITIES OCCURRED DURING THE POLISH REFERENDUM SUNDAY AND DECLARED THAT THE SECRET POLICE HAD MADE TERRORISTIC MASS ARRESTS OF MANY MEMBERS OF HIS OPPOSITION POLISH PEASANT PARTY.

THE GOVERNMENT SAID ARRESTS OF MIKOLAJCZYK'S SUPPORTERS AND MEMBERS OF OTHER PARTIES WERE MADE ONLY WHERE THERE WAS EVIDENCE OF OVERT ACTS OF TERRORISTIC ACTIVITIES.

MIKOLAJCZYK MADE HIS CHARGES AS THE COUNTING OF BALLOTS--ALTHOUGH STILL NOT FAR ENOUGH ADVANCED TO GIVE A CLEAR CUT PICTURE--INDICATED THAT WHILE THE COMMUNIST-BACKED PARTY BLOC WAS WINNING A MAJORITY A POWERFUL PROTEST VOTE ALSO WAS BEING ROLLED UP BY MIKOLAJCZYK'S FORCES.

THE REFERENDUM WAS ON THREE QUESTIONS--DO YOU WANT A ONE-HOUSE PARLIAMENT, DO YOU APPROVE THE PROVISIONAL REGIME'S ACTS NATIONALIZING BASIC INDUSTRIES AND PROVIDING AGRARIAN CHANGES AND DO YOU APPROVE THE ESTABLISHMENT OF POLAND'S WESTERN FRONTIER ON THE ODER AND NEISSE RIVERS? (insert)

MIKOLAJCZYK ASKED HIS FOLLOWERS TO VOTE IN THE NEGATIVE ON THAT QUESTION AND AFFIRMATIVELY ON THE OTHER TWO. THE BLOC CAMPAIGNED FOR A "YES" VOTE ON ALL THREE QUESTIONS.

MIKOLAJCZYK DECLARED VOTING COMMISSIONS FAILED TO COUNT BALLOTS WHERE THE POLLING TOOK PLACE. IN 17 DISTRICTS, THE VICE PREMIER CLAIMED THE ONE-HOUSE LEGISLTURE QAESTION WAS DEFEATED 57,337 TO 12,549.

THE GOVERNMENT, HOWEVER, CLAIMED THAT IN 164 PRECINCTS THE FIRST QUESTION WAS APPROVED 195,355 TO 80,509.

MIKOLAJCZYK SAID HE WAS INFORMED THAT THE COMMUNIST-BACKED PARTIES HAD STARTED SETTLERS IN THE WESTERN TERRITORIES VOTING LAST THURSDAY, THREE DAYS BEFORE THE REFERENDUM.

THE COUNTING IN NEARLY ALL PRECINCTS IN WARSAW AND IN THE GREAT TEXTILE CENTER OF LODZ DISCLOSED AN OVERWHELMING AFFIRMATIVE VOTE ON ALL THREE QUESTIONS. BUT IN THE HEAVY PEASANT-POPULATED DISTRICTS OF EASTERN POLAND AN OVERWHELMING NEGATIVE VOTE ON ALL THREE QUESTIONS WAS RECORDED.

SHANGHAI, JULY 2-(AP)-REPORTS THAT U.S. LT.GEN.A.C.WEDEMEYER IS RETURNING TO CHINA WERE REGARDED BY MANY OBSERVERS HERE TODAY AS POSSIBLY A PRELUDE TO THE RETURN HOME OF GENERAL MARSHALL, AMERICAN ENVOY WHO HAS LABORED FOR MONTHS TO ACHIEVE PEACE IN THIS DIVIDED LAND.

OBSERVERS BASED THEIR UNCONFIRMED CONCLUSION UPON THE SUPPOSITION THAT WEDEMEYER WOULD NOT HAVE BEEN RETURNED TO CHINA MERELY TO COMMAND U.S.ARMY FORCES--SINCE THESE ARE NOW A MERE HANDFUL OF MEN.

AND BY VIRTUE OF HIS EXPERIENCE IN CHINA AND HIS GOOD STANDING WITH GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK AND OTHER CHINESE LEADERS, WEDEMEYER IS CONSIDERED PERHAPS BETTER QUALIFIED THAN ANYONE ELSE TO ASSUME MARSHALL'S DELICATE TASK--OR, IF MARSHALL REMAINS, TO ASSIST THE SPECIAL ENVOY.

REPORTS THAT WEDEMEYER IS RETURNING TO HIS ARMY COMMAND ALSO DISPOSE OF LONGSTANDING RUMORS THAT HE WOULD RETURN AS AMBASSADOR TO CHINA, A POST VACANT SINCE AMBASSADOR PATRICK HURLEY'S RESIGNATION NOV.27, 1945. PRESUMABLY NO AMBASSADOR HAS BEEN NAMED IN ORDER NOT TO DETRACT FROM MARSHALL'S IMPORTANCE IN CHINESE EYES.

IT IS BELIEVED HERE, HOWEVER, THAT IF MARSHALL SHOULD RETURN HOME AND WEDEMEYER SHOULD ASSUME HIS PEACEMAKING ROLE, AN AMBASSADOR MIGHT BE APPOINTED. WEDEMEYER, EVEN THOUGH HE SHOULD ASSUME MARSHALL'S TASK, WOULD NOT NECESSARILY DO SO AS A SPECIAL AMERICAN ENVOY.

WEDEMEYER IS CONSIDERED PARTICULARLY WELL QUALIFIED TO AID IN THE TASK OF HELPING CHINA BUILD A UNIFIED NATIONAL ARMY, AS PROPOSED IN THE GOVERNMENT-COMMUNIST AGREEMENT OF LAST FEB.25.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 2-(AP)-The court trying Gen. Draja Mihailovic on charges of treachery adjourned today without ruling on defense proposals that rescued American fliers be allowed to testify.

The court also held in abeyance a motion to introduce a statement from Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, former German chief of staff now on trial in Nuernberg, that the Chetnik leader was an enemy of Germany.

The defense proposed that a joint statement of 200 American fliers, rescued by Mihailovic's underground army, be permitted in evidence but the prosecution countered that a certain number of fliers were saved by the people and handed over to the Chetniks so Mihailovic might gain some favor in the United States.

MESHEQ YAGUR SETTLEMENT, PALESTINE, JULY 2-(AP)-FAT SLEEPING BABES OF THIS PEACEFUL APPEARING JEWISH FARM COMMUNITY GUARDED ARMS AND AMMUNITION UNTIL BRITISH SOLDIERS, WHO HAD BEEN SEARCHING HERE SINCE SATURDAY, FOUND THE SECRET HIDING PLACES IN NURSERIES.

THE PEOPLE OF THE COMMUNITY BEGGED THE HUNDREDS OF ARMED AND HEAVY-BOOTED SOLDIERS: "PLEASE DON'T DISTURB THE BABIES. THEY'RE SLEEPING NOW."

THE BABIES WERE SLEEPING OVER PART OF THE GREATEST CACHE OF ILLEGAL JEWISH ARMS EVER FOUND IN PALESTINE.

NEITHER THE BABIES NOR THE OLD PEOPLE WERE SLEEPING TODAY AS PNEUMATIC DRILLS AND SOLDIERS WITH PICKS, HAMMERS AND SHOVELS RIPPED INTO TILE FLOORINGS AND THE CONCRETE BASES OF BUILDINGS WHERE MORE THAN 1,000 MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN RAN A MODERN COMMUNAL FARMING SETTLEMENT.

THE SOLDIERS FOUND SECRET PANELINGS, FALSE BOTTOMS IN CUPBOARDS AND A FANTASTIC CONCRETE UNDERGROUND ROOM IN WHICH TENS OF THOUSANDS OF ROUNDS OF AMMUNITION, NEW MORTARS AND HUNDREDS OF MACHINEGUNS, RIFLES AND PISTOLS WERE STORED.

LONG AFTER THE SOLDIERS HAD TORN A HOLE THROUGH THE HEAVY CONCRETE SHELL TO GAIN ENTRY TO THE ARMS CACHE, MECHANICAL EXPERTS DISCOVERED THAT AN INGENIOUS METHOD HAD BEEN PROVIDED FOR LOWERING PART OF A CONCRETE GARAGE FLOOR INTO THE UNDERGROUND ROOM. HIDDEN IN THE MECHANISM OF AN AIR COMPRESSOR WAS A HEAVY CRANK WHICH SLOWLY LOWERED A DOOR ONTO STEEL TRACKS WHICH WERE USED TO HAUL ARMS IN AND OUT.

THERE WERE 10 SHELVES LOADED WITH ARMS, ONLY TWO OF WHICH HAD BEEN BROUGHT TO THE SURFACE THUS FAR. THOSE TWO SHELVES HAVE YIELDED 85 MORTARS, HAND GRENADES SEALED IN BEER CANS, RIFLES OF ALL MAKES AND NATIONALITIES, AMERICAN RIFLE GRENADES, SIGNAL FLARES, SACKS OF PISTOLS AND SUITCASES FILLED WITH DETONATORS.

WITH ONLY HALF OF THE SETTLEMENT AREA SEARCHED THE SOLDIERS HAVE UNCOVERED MORE THAN 10 LARGE CACHES AND STILL ARE WORKING WITH MINE DETECTORS AND DIGGING IN NEW PLACES.

MANY OF THE MEN HAVE BEEN ARRESTED AND TAKEN TO PRISON CAMPS BY PALESTINE POLICE AFTER A STRUGGLE EARLY SATURDAY IN WHICH THE SETTLERS ALL OFFERED "PASSIVE RESISTANCE." BRITISH ARMY OFFICERS SAID SOME OF THE PEOPLE GAVE "NOT SO PASSIVE RESISTANCE."

THE REMAINDER OF THE POPULATION OF THE SETTLEMENT, INCLUDING APPROXIMATELY 20 MEN, 300 WOMEN AND 500 CHILDREN NOW ARE LIVING IN A CORDONED OFF AREA WHILE BRITISH SOLDIERS OCCUPY THE REST OF THE HOUSES.

THE PEOPLE ARE ALLOWED TO GO ABOUT FREELY INSIDE THE AREA. LT.COL. [illegible].S.E. WEST, ARMY OFFICER IN CHARGE, SAID EVERYTHING WAS BEING DONE TO M[illegible]

THE NORMAL OPERATION OF LAUNDRIES AND DAIRY KITCHENS AND THE FEEDING OF FARM STOCK.

AFTER REFUSING ENTRANCE TO THE SOLDIERS ON THE FIRST DAY AND DECLINING TO ASSIST IN IDENTIFICATION PROCEEDINGS, THE PEOPLE GATHERED IN A HUGE MODERN DINING HALL AND DID NOT COME OUT UNTIL THE TROOPS USED TEAR GAS.

WEST SAID THE PEOPLE THEN TRIED TO BREAK [illegible]OUGH THE SURROUNDING SOLDIERS BUT WERE SUBDUED BY SPRAYS OF VER[illegible]IL FROM FLAME THROWERS.

THE PEOPLE APPEARED TODAY TO BE WANDER[illegible]IMLESSLY AND SULLENLY WATCHING THE SOLDIERS WORK AT O[illegible]E CACHES. THEY HAVE COMPLAINED THAT THE SOLDIERS HAVE [illegible]BLE LOOTING.

AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT ISSUED AT JERU[illegible]S LIST OF ARMS FOUND IN MESHEQ YAGUR: 314 RIFLES, [illegible]13 LIGHT MACHINEGUNS, ONE HEAVY MACHINEGUN, ONE [illegible]GUN, 85 TWO-INCH MORTARS, ONE 80-MILLIMETER MO[illegible]METER MORTARS, FIVE TOMMYGUNS, 200,000 ROUND[illegible]MMUNITION, 3,000 MORTAR BOMBS, 2,000 GRENADES AND [illegible]OUNDS OF EXPLOSIVES.

THIRD MIGHT LEAD WAR CRIMES

TOKYO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 3-(AP)-THE ATTORNEY FOR HIDEKI TOJO, JAPAN'S PEARL HARBOR PREMIER, TODAY TOLD THE INTERNATIONAL MILITARY TRIBUNAL TRYING TOJO AND 26 OTHER WAR CRIMES SUSPECTS THAT BANNING OF JAPANESE IMMIGRANTS TO THE UNITED STATES WAS ONE CAUSE OF THE PACIFIC WAR.

DR.ICHIRO KIYOSE, THE ATTORNEY, MADE THE COMMENT WHEN CALLED TO TASK FOR LEADING A WITNESS THROUGH THE ARGUMENT THAT JAPANESE SETTLED IN MANCHURIA AND KOREA AFTER THE WAR.

"WE ARE NOT CONCERNED HERE WITH IMMIGRATION--IT'S WAR WE WANT TO KNOW ABOUT," SHARPLY INTERRUPTED THE TRIBUNAL PRESIDENT, SIR WILLIAM WEBB.

"THE FACT MANY JAPANESE SETTLERS WENT TO MANCHURIA AND KOREA WAS ONE OF THE CAUSES OF WAR," KYOSE SHOT BACK.

FROM THE WITNESS, ADM.KEISUKE OKADA, KIYOSE HAD DRAWN THE STATEMENT THAT PREMIER TANAKA UNDERSTOOD THE UNITED STATES "SILENTLY AGREED" TO JAPANESE IMMIGRATION TO MANCHURIA AND KOREA AFTER THE UNITED STATES ENACTED THE ORIENTAL EXCLUSION ACT OF 1924.

OVER STRENUOUS DEFENSE PROTESTS, THE TRIBUNAL RULED TODAY THAT THE PROSECUTION MAY INTRODUCE 650 WAR PRISONER ATROCITY AFFIDAVITS WITHOUT THE APPEARANCE OF THOSE WHO SIGNED THE STATEMENTS. THE APPROVAL WAS GRANTED ON CONDITION THAT FULL COPIES BE SUPPLIED TO THE DEFENSE SECTION AT LEAST ONE MONTH BEFORE THEY ARE ENTERED OFFICIALLY IN EVIDENCE.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS EARLIER TODAY ASKED THE COURT WHY NO AMERICAN ATTORNEYS HAVE BEEN NAMED TO DEFEND TOJO AND TWO OTHERS OF THE DEFENDANTS.

"WE HAVE BEEN ASKING FOR MORE COUNSEL BUT WE JUST HAVEN'T BEEN ABLE TO GET THEM," COMMENTED GEORGE YAMAMOTO, NEW YORK NISEI ATTORNEY; BUT ICHIRO KIYOSE, JAPANESE REPRESENTING TOJO, SAID THEY DIDN'T WANT MORE AMERICAN COUNSEL.

"TOJO AND KINGORO HASHIMOTO (WHO COMMANDED JAPANESE ARTILLERY NT THE RAPE OF NANKING) FEEL THAT THEY ARE SUFFICIENTLY REPRESENTED AT THE RAPE OF NANKING) FEEL THAT THEY ARE SUFFICIENTLY REPRESENTED BY JAPANESE," KYOSE TOLD THE COURT. "I UNDERSTAND THAT AN AMERICAN HAS BEEN SELECTED FOR OKINORI KAYA" (THE THIRD DEFENDANT WITHOUT AMERICAN LEGAL AID.)

TOJO HAD BEEN REPRESENTED BRIEFLY BY JOHN GUIDER, WHO WAS ONE OF SIX AMERICAN DEFENSE ATTORNEYS WHO RESIGNED FOR REASONS STILL UNDISCLOSED.

THE TRIBUNAL PRESIDENT, AUSTRALIA'S SIR WILLIAM WEBB, SAID THE COMMENTS WOULD BE FORWARDED TO GENERAL MACARTHUR FOR WHATEVER ACTION HE MIGHT CHOOSE TO TAKE. THE GENERAL IS IN MANILA.

WEBB EARLIER EXPRESSED "SHOCK" AT TESTIMONY THAT THE UNITED STATES HAD TACTICTLY APPROVED JAPANESE AGGRESSION IN MANCHURIA.

A QUICK TOUR OF THE BIKINI LAGOON TODAY SHOWED THAT THE INDEPENDENCE--REDUCED TO A GUTTED SHELL BUT STILL AFLOAT--HAD BORNE THE BRUNT OF THE BLAST, ALONG WITH THE BULLSEYE SHIP NEVADA, THE PENSACOLA AND THE SAKAWA. THE BOMB EVIDENTLY BURST BETWEEN THE NEVADA AND PENSACOLA. THE SUBMARINE SKATE, A MILE FROM THE NEVADA, HAD YAWNING GASHES IN HER CONNING TOWER AND SUPERSTRUCTURE.

WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED TO PERSONNEL ABOARD THE TARGET SHIPS IS STILL NOT KNOWN. ANIMALS SURVIVED ON ALL SHIPS VISITED BY THE PRESS BOAT, BUT NO VESSEL AS YET HAD TIME FOR A COMPLETE ANIMAL CENSUS.

THE NEVADA'S GOATS WERE SAID TO BE ALIVE. ONE OF THE HALF DOZEN ABOARD WAS REPORTED SICK. HE WAS DIRECTLY IN THE PATH OF ATOMIC RAYS.

HERE AND THERE ANIMALS WERE REPORTED DEAD, BUT APPARENTLY MORE ANIMALS SURVIVED THAN PERISHED. THIS WAS ABOUT AS THE NAVY AND SCIENTISTS HAD FIGURED IT.

ABOARD THE MT.MCKINLEY TASK FORCE SCIENTISTS RATED THE BOMB USED AGAINST THE FLEET AS SOMEWHAT LESS POWERFUL THAN THAT WHICH BLASTED NAGASAKI, BUT MORE POTENT THAN THOSE USED AT THE NEW MEXICO TEST AND AT HIROSHIMA.

ADMIRAL BLANDY ISSUED THIS STATEMENT:

"EARLY ESTIMATES BY SCIENTISTS OF JOINT TASK FORCE ONE HAVE DETERMINED THAT THE 'TEST ABLE' BOMB WAS A PERFECTLY NORMAL NAGASAKI-TYPE BOMB.

"WHILE SOMEWHAT LESS POWERFUL THAN THE BOMB EXPLODED OVER NAGASAKI, IT WAS MORE POWERFUL THAN THE BOMB OF THAT TYPE EXPLODED OVER NEW MEXICO AND MORE POWERFUL THAN THE HIROSHIMA BOMB WHICH KILLED 80,000 PERSONS."

ATOMIC SEPARATE (240)

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

ABOARD USS MCKINLEY AT BIKINI, JULY 2-(AP)-ON ONE SIDE OF THE USS NEVADA'S FORWARD 14-INCH GUN TURRETS A GROTESQUE HAND AND FINGER, ETCHED IN THE BATTLESHIP'S REDPAINT, POINTS TO THE EXACT PLACE IN THE SKY WHERE THE ATOMIC BOMB EXPLODED.

IT WAS ETCHED BY THE HEAT OF THE BOMB. THE HEAT SEARED THE SHIP BLACK BUT ON THE ONE SIDE OF THE TURRET, WHERE A SHADOW FELL AT AN ANGLE, THE RED PAINT RETAINED ITS COLOR. AND A RED FINGER WAS LEFT POINTING ALOFT PAST THE NEVADA'S STERN.

THIS AND OTHER SIGNS SEEN TODAY BY CORRESPONDENTS INDICATED ALMOST EXACTLY WHERE THE BOMB EXPLODED -- ASTERN AND A LITTLE TO PORT OF THE NEVADA. IN THAT AREA WERE ALL FIVE OF THE SHIPS THAT SANK.

THE SIGNIFICANCE IS THAT APPARENTLY THE BOMB DID NOT EXPLODE DIRECTLY ABOVE ANY BATTLESHIP OF THE TARGET FORMATION, ALTHOUGH IT MAY HAVE EXPLODED CLOSER TO ONE OF THE SHIPS NOW AT THE BOTTOM OF THE LAGOON THAN IT DID TO THE NEVADA.

THE TEST DID NOT PROVE CONCLUSIVELY WHETHER THE ATOMIC BOMB CAN SINK A BATTLESHIP FROM ABOVE. IT DID SHOW THAT ONE-INCH STEEL IS SO MUCH TIN IN THE PATH OF THE ATOMIC FORCE, UP TO SEVERAL HUNDRED YARDS, CERTAINLY.

JUL 3 1946

IT SHOWED THAT MAST STRUCTURES OF THE STRONGEST BASKET BUILD NOW IN USE CRUMPLE AS EASILY AS IF THEY WERE TWIGS. IT SHOWED THAT STEEL CANOPIES BREAK DOWN LIKE A TIN CAN STRUCK WITH A SLEDGE HAMMER.

BUT THE NEVADA'S THICK ARMOR, HER GREAT GUNS, EVEN HER SMALL GUNS, HELD THEMSELVES AT THE SAME PRECISE ANGLES AS BEFORE THE BLAST.

FROM STERN POST ALL DOWN THE PORT SIDE ALMOST TO THE BOW AND CLEAR TO HER TOP STRUCTURE SHE WAS INKY BLACK -- SEARED BY THE ATOMIC HEAT.

ABOARD AN OBSERVATION PLANE OVER BIKINI, JULY 2-(AP)-BELOW, WHERE THE ATOMIC BOMB BURST AMONG SHIPS OF THE PIG FLEET, ARE TO BE SEEN TWO HEAVY CRUISERS, BOTH AMERICAN VETERANS OF THE PACIFIC WAR. THEIR FATE, SO FAR AS AERIAL OBSERVATION PERMITS, IS INTERESTING.

ONE, THE SALT LAKE CITY, PROBABLY WILL REQUIRE CONSIDERABLY MORE REPAIRS AS A RESULT OF THE ATOMIC BOMB THAN WAS NECESSITATED BY JAPANESE SHELLS IN ONE BATTLE OF THE SOLOMONS OR THE BATTLE OFF THE KOMANDORSKIS.

BUT THE PENSACOLA, ALTHOUGH LISTED AS BADLY DAMAGED, SEEMS LESS CRIPPLED BY THE ATOM BOMB THAN BY THE SINGLE JAPANESE TORPEDO WHICH INACTIVATED HER FOR 11 MONTHS IN THE NIGHT BATTLE OF GUADALCANAL NOV. 31, 1942.

THE VETERAN OLD AIRCRAFT CARRIER, SARATOGA, APPEARS COMPLETELY UNDAMAGED. SHE WAS NEAR THE FRINGE OF THE TARGET AREA. PRESUMABLY SHE IS BEING SAVED FOR UNDERWATER TESTS. PLANES, ARMY TRUCKS AND OTHER EQUIPMENT ON THE FLIGHT DECK APPEARED UNTOUCHED AND WHITE PAINTED LETTERS ARE CLEARLY VISIBLE.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT PAUL LEE REPORTED JUNE 30 THAT BEFORE LEAVING THE NEW YORK, CAPT. LOVE M. BIRBY CAREFULLY LETTERED THE FOUR WORDS ON A GUN TURRET WITH A PIECE OF BLUE CHALK WHILE HIS EYES GLISTENED).

BUT IT STILL WAS TEST B, THE SHALLOW UNDERWATER ATOMIC BURST THREE TO FOUR MILES AWAY, TO GO THROUGH.

ONE PHENOMENON WAS OBSERVED ABOARD THE NEW YORK WHICH PROVED THE ATOMIC BOMB A TERRIFIC ANTI-PERSONNEL WEAPON EVEN IF IT DID NOT DAMAGE THE OLD BATTLESHIP FURTHER.

THE SHADOW OF A POLISHED METAL CHAIR LEANING AGAINST THE AFTER GUN TURRET HAD BEEN PHOTOGRAPHED ON THE TURRET BY THE BOMB'S SUPER-SOLAR FLASH.

DAY

OTTAWA, JULY 2-(AP)-THE END OF PRICE CONTROL IN THE UNITED STATES THREATENS CANADA WITH A BLOW WHICH MIGHT CRIPPLE HER OWN CAREFULLY NURTURED AND GENERALLY EFFECTIVE ECONOMIC STABILIZATION PROGRAM.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS ARE HANGING ON EVERY WORD FROM WASHINGTON, HOPING SOME SORT OF CONTROL WILL BE MAINTAINED IN THE UNITED STATES AND FEARING THAT INFLATION MAY COME HERE DESPITE ANYTHING THAT CAN BE DONE DOMESTICALLY TO FORESTALL IT.

JUL 3 1946

THE SHOCK WOULD BE ESPECIALLY GRIEVOUS TO THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT BECAUSE OF ITS SUCCESS TO DATE IN KEEPING PRICES DOWN. ITS FIGURES SHOW THAT THE COST OF LIVING HAS RISEN ONLY 19 PERCENT SINCE AUGUST, 1939, COMPARED TO 32 PERCENT IN BOTH THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN.

CANADA'S ECONOMY IS CLOSELY GEARED TO THE AMERICAN, AND SINCE MORE THAN THREE-FOURTHS OF HER IMPORTS COME FROM THE UNITED STATES IT WOULD REQUIRE A HERCULEAN EFFORT TO STAVE OFF INFLATION IN THE DOMINION IF PRICES JUMP IN THE STATES.

THE CANADIAN CONSUMER IS BOUND TO BE HIT FIRST IN TWO MAJOR ITEMS, FUEL AND FOOD, HECTOR B. MACKINNON, CHAIRMAN OF THE CANADIAN TARIFF BOARD, SAID IN AN INTERVIEW. IN OTHER ITEMS, HE SAID, THERE WOULD BE A DELAYED EFFECT, "LIKE A RIPPLE ON A POND," EVENTUALLY GOING ALMOST THROUGHOUT THE ECONOMY.

JUL 3 1946

THE FIRST EFFECT WILL BE ON GOODS ON WHICH THE GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN PAYING A SUBSIDY TO KEEP CANADIAN PRICES DOWN DESPITE RISES IN THE UNITED STATES. THE MAIN ONES ARE COAL, BOTH FOR DOMESTIC AND INDUSTRIAL USE, FUEL OIL, COTTON FABRICS AND DRIED FRUITS SUCH AS RAISINS AND PRUNES. THE LATTER ARE ESPECIALLY IMPORTANT IN CANADIANS' WINTER DIET.

"THE IMPACT OF END OF PRICE CONTROL IN THE UNITED STATES WILL COME FIRST ON THESE SUBSIDIZED GOODS," MACKINNON SAID. "THE GOVERNMENT WILL HAVE TO DECIDE WHETHER TO SUBSIDIZE TO THE LIMIT OR LET PRICES GO."

"WE ARE ALL HOPING THERE WILL BE SOME SORT OF MODUS VIVENDI WORKED OUT IN WASHINGTON. WE ARE WORKING HARD ON THE PROBLEM BUT CANNOT DECIDE ON A DEFINITE COURSE OF ACTION UNTIL WE KNOW WHAT THE FINAL RESULT IS TO BE IN THE STATES."

IN ADDITION TO GOODS IMPORTED FROM THE STATES, CANADA WOULD SUFFER ON GOODS WHICH SHE BUYS IN COMPETITION WITH THE UNITED STATES, SUCH AS COFFEE.

"THERE HAS BEEN A SORT OF GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT IN THESE ITEMS," MACKINNON SAID, "BUT WITH PRICE CEILINGS OFF IN THE STATES THE SOURCES WOULD PRESUMABLY SELL TO AMERICANS AND SHUT US OUT. WE WOULD HAVE TO DECIDE WHETHER TO SUBSIDIZE, LET PRICES SOAR HERE, OR GO WITHOUT."

INDICATING WHAT THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT WILL BE UP AGAINST IF IT DECIDES TO INCREASE SUBSIDIES ARE THE FOLLOWING FIGURES:

IN THE FOUR YEARS ENDING LAST DECEMBER 31, THE GOVERNMENT PAID $32,000,000 IN SUBSIDIES ON PETROLEUM AND ITS PRODUCTS; $41,500,000 ON AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS AND ARTICLES FOR THEIR MANUFACTURE; $22,700,000 ON RAW COTTON AND $12,500,000 ON COAL BOTH SOFT AND HARD, ALL OF THESE ITEMS BEING CHIEFLY FROM THE UNITED STATES.

"MAY THE NEW REPUBLIC," HE ADDED, "ENJOY THE WELL DESERVED BLESSINGS OF PEACE AND PROSPERITY AND EMBRACE THE OPPORTUNITY TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE HAPPINESS AND WELL-BEING OF HUMANITY."

WASHINGTON, JULY 2-(AP)-W.A.HIGINBOTHAM, CHAIRMAN OF THE FEDERATION OF AMERICAN SCIENTISTS, SAID TODAY THAT LAST SUNDAY'S ATOM BOMB EXPERIMENT CONTRIBUTED NOTHING TO SCIENTIFIC KNOWLEDGE AND THAT THE "ONLY TRULY SIGNIFICANT TEST" WILL BE THE DEEP UNDERWATER EXPLOSION SCHEDULED FOR NEXT YEAR.

RESULTS OF SUNDAY'S EXPERIMENT AT BIKINI ATOLL ONLY BORE OUT THE PREDICTIONS MADE BY SCIENTISTS WEEKS AGO, HIGINBOTHAM SAID IN A STATEMENT, ADDING:

"BESIDES THE MILITARY REASONS FOR HOLDING THE TEST, THERE WILL NO DOUBT BE SOME TECHNICAL ITEMS GATHERED BUT THERE WILL BE NOTHING LEARNED OF VALUE TO PEACETIME USES WHICH COULD NOT HAVE BEEN LEARN-ED MUCH MORE CHEAPLY AND MORE ACCURATELY IN LABORATORY TESTS WITH LESS OF A CIRCUS ATMOSPHERE."

MINISTERS AGREE ON TRIESTE ISSUE, ITALIAN COLONIES

Plan Approved for Internationalizing Adriatic Seaport.

JUL 4 1946

PARLEY DEBATED

Byrnes, Molotov in Sharp Exchange on Plea for Conference.

PARIS, July 3—(AP) The four-power foreign ministers council achieved complete accord today on internationalization of Trieste and solved the Italian colonies dispute but clashed on American demands for convoking the 21-nation European peace conference.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg said the demand by U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that the ministers call the peace conference this month touched off an "awful row." Byrnes engaged in a sharp exchange on the subject with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov during the four-hour session held on one of the hottest afternoons of the year.

Opposed By Molotov

Molotov fiercely opposed any move to fix a date for the peace conference until the four foreign ministers agreed on the Italian reparations question.

Standing by his repeatedly voiced demand, Byrnes insisted that the ministers convoke the other Allied nations for July 22 or July 25, American informants said. Molotov instead suggested Sept. 1 or 15 but still blocked any action on setting a date.

Subsequently Vandenberg expressed the opinion that the peace conference would be called sometime during the latter part of July.

Byrnes, Vandenberg and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin produced formulas which cut the long-standing knots on Trieste and on Italy's African empire.

In advancing a six-point statement of basic principles for Trieste, Byrnes said he had drafted this document last night with the aid of Vandenberg. With one French and two Russian amendments the statement was adopted as a foundation for creating an international zone at the head of the Adriatic.

Bevin's Plan Adopted

Later Bevin proposed a three-point formula for the Italian colonies which would keep them temporarily under British military administration but permit four-power commissions of inquiry to investigate conditions in the areas. The council adopted Bevin's plan along with a general declaration of principles to be incorporated into the Italian peace treaty draft.

Byrnes' proposal on Trieste, American informants said, was as follows:

1—Trieste and its environs would be established as a free state. As proposed by Georges Bidault, French president and foreign minister, the internationalized area would extend from Duino to Cittanova and would be 20 miles long and 10 miles wide. It would have a population of approximately 400,000.

2—The United Nations Security council would assure the area's independence and integrity.

3—The United States, Britain, Russia and France immediately would appoint a special four-power commission to consult with Italy and Yugoslavia. This commission would report to the forthcoming peace conference on preliminary proposals for the area's statute.

Would Go to U. N.

4—This statute when finally drawn would be submitted to the United Nations General assembly for approval.

5—The peace conference would make recommendations for the area's provisional government and on the formation of its permanent statute.

6—Both the provisional and permanent governments of Trieste would be based on these general principles: The governor would be appointed by the United Nations Security council after consultation with Italy and Yugoslavia. The area's legislature would be chosen in a democratic manner with secret universal suffrage. Basic human rights such as freedom of religion, press and language; choice of schools, and access to public office would be respected and maintained. The governor would be required to make an annual report to the U. N. Security council.

Molotov sought to amend the first article in the plan to change the area's title from "free state" to "autonomous district." Finally the ministers adopted a French amendment labelling the region "free territory."

JUL 4 1946

After the general peace conference has discussed the proposed Trieste statute and drafted its conclusions the statute will be sent to the four-power foreign minsters for final drafting before being transmitted to the Security council.

Proposal on Colonies

The three-point British proposal on the Italian colonies issue to be incorporated in the projected Italian peace treaty provides that:

Italy will renounce all claim to sovereignty over the colonies.

The present administration will remain unchanged for a year.

During the year the four powers will try to work out a final solution on the disposition of the colonies and will send commissions of inquiry from time to time to consult with the natives.

The minsiter adopted these points along with a British-sponsored declaration under which the four-powers bind themselves to decide within the year which of three solutions will be applied to the Italian colonies. These solutions were listed as independeence; incorporation into neighboring states, or trusteeship under the United Nations, any one member of the U. S. or Italy. The declaration was referred to the special committee on colonies for drafting.

Molotov sought unsuccessfully for greater powers for the four-power commissions of inquiry, British sources said. The Russians, who several days ago wanted advisory bodies named with power to supervise the British military administration of the colonies, modified this today to provide that the inquiry commissions be allowed to make recommendations to the four powers at the request of local commanders.

This modified Russian plan was withdrawn after Bevin strongly opposed it, insisting that the other nations place confidence in the British military administration.

(ii) Legislative and executive authority shall be established on democratic lines, including universal suffrage.

(iii) The rights of citizens shall be protected in respect to human rights and fundamental freedoms, particularly including religion, language, press, schools and access to public services.

(iv) Annual reports shall be submitted by the governor to the Security Council.

Big 4 Pact on Trieste, Italy

Statute on Trieste

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 3 — Following is the unofficial stenographic version of the statute to internationalize Trieste adopted by the Council of Foreign Ministers today. The italicized words represent amendments agreed on; the rest is the original United States proposal. In the title the American proposal called it the "Free State of Trieste."

FREE TERRITORY OF TRIESTE

The Council of Foreign Ministers agrees:

(1) That all territory east of the line known as the French line shall be ceded by Italy to Yugoslavia and that the Free Territory of Trieste shall be constituted within the French line, bounded on the north by a line drawn from Duino to the French line.

(2) The integrity and independence of this Free Territory shall be assured by the Security Council of the United Nations.

(3) A special commission representing the four powers of the Council [this refers to the Council of Foreign Ministers and not to the Security Council] shall be immediately appointed to consult with representatives of Yugoslavia and Italy and to examine the whole subject and present preliminary suggestions to the peace conference.

(4) The permanent statute shall be subject to the approval of the Security Council of the United Nations, which shall report to the Assembly under Article 15 of the United Nations Charter.

(5) Recommendations for a provisional government and for the foundation of a permanent statute shall be made by the peace conference of the twenty-one nations in accordance with the procedure of the Moscow decisions.

(6) The provisional government and the permanent statute shall preserve the following principles:

(i) The governor shall be appointed by the Security Council after consultation with Yugoslavia and Italy.

Article on Italian Colonies

Following is the text of British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's draft treaty article relating to the Italian colonies:

(1) Italy renounces all right and title to her territorial possessions in Africa.

(2) Pending their final disposal, said possessions shall continue under their present administration.

(3) Final disposal of these possessions shall be determined jointly by the four principal Allied Powers within one year of the coming into force of the present treaty, in the manner laid down in the joint declaration of today's date issued by the four principal Allied Powers.

Accompanying Declaration

Following is the text of the draft of the joint declaration by the four powers accompanying the article on the Italian colonies to be signed by the Ministers:

(1) The Council of Foreign Ministers of the Governments of the United States, the United Kingdom, the U.S.S.R. and France agree that they will, within one year from the coming into force of the peace treaty with Italy bearing this day's date, jointly determine the final disposal of Italy's territorial possessions in Africa, to which by said treaty Italy renounces all right and title.

(2) Final disposal of territories concerned shall be made by the four powers in accordance with one or any combination of the following solutions, whether applicable to the whole or to any part of the territories concerned, as may appear in the light of the views of the inhabitants or in the view of other interested Governments:

(i) Independence.

(ii) Incorporation in neighboring territory.

(iii) Trusteeship, to be exercised either by the United Nations as a whole or by any one of the United Nations individually.

(3) In the event of the four powers being unable to agree to a solution, one or a combination of the above bases of the matter shall be referred to the General Assembly of the United Nations for a recommendation, and the four powers hereby agree to accept that recommendation and to take appropriate measures for giving effect to it, bearing in mind the pledges given to the Senussi by His Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom during the war.

(4) The deputies of the Foreign Ministers shall continue to consider the question of the disposal of former Italian colonies in Africa and are empowered to dispatch a commission of inquiry to all or any of the former Italian colonies with a view to ascertaining the views of the local inhabitants and to supplying the deputies with the necessary material on which to base a recommendation to the Council of Foreign Ministers regarding the ultimate solution of the question.

RED CENTER SEIZED BY ALLIED TROOPS GUARDING TRIESTE

TRIESTE, July 3—(AP) British troops occupied Communist party headquarters in the strongly leftist San Giacomo workers' district today as armed Allied forces sought to maintain order in this strike bound city where two persons were killed and 60 injured in riots earlier this week.

The Communist headquarters was seized by American and British troops and Venezia Giulia police in a raid for hidden weapons, but only stones were found. After the initial search the American troops and police withdrew, leaving the British to stand guard.

In both the San Giacomo district and Garibaldi Square—centers of violence earlier this week—Allied troops with armored cars and Bren gun carriers continued vigilant patrols.

The situation in Trieste and surrounding area continued tense, partly aggravated by reports from Paris that Venezia Giulia would be served from Italy.

Transportation in general was still frozen and most stores and businesses were shut by the general strike of 200,000 workers, called Monday following riots.

Although the entire dock area was still tied up by the strike, two UNRRA ships carrying cargoes of livestock were unloaded yesterday by agreement of the workers.

Col. Alfred C. Bowman, of Los Angeles, head of the Allied military government here, denied reports abroad that Yugoslav trucks were running recklessly through the streets. He said that almost all attacks which have occurred thus far were by Italians against Yugoslavs or their property.

[The Italian Embassy in Paris asserted that Yugoslavs riding through Trieste in trucks had thrown bombs at Italian citizens and had attacked homes. It said the Italian population of Pola, south of Trieste at the tip of the Istrian Peninsula, was preparing to evacuate that city because of Yugoslav attacks.]

Yanks, British In Trieste Raid Communist Center

Trieste, July 3 (AP)—American and British troops and Venezia Giulia police took possession of Communist party headquarters in the strongly Leftist San Giacomo workers' district of Trieste today.

The building was thoroughly searched for weapons, but only stones were found. Allied troops mounted on armored cars and Bren gun carriers maintained a ring of steel around both the San Giacomo district and Garibaldi Square, centers of mob violence earlier this week.

Col. J. C. Smuts, Trieste area commander, announced the occupation of Communist headquarters. After the initial search, only British troops were stationed there.

Situation Remains Tense

The situation in Trieste and surrounding area continued tense, partly aggravated by reports from Paris that Venezia Giulia would be severed from Italy. The general strike of 200,000 workers, called at noon Monday because of rioting, had eased somewhat today. A few street cars were in use, but port operations remained at a standstill. Two persons were killed and 60 injured in the riots.

Col. Alfred C. Bowman, of Los Angeles, head of the Allied military government here, denied reports abroad that Yugoslav trucks were running recklessly through the streets. He said that almost all attacks which have occurred thus far were by Italians against Yugoslavs or their property.

UNRRA Ships Unload

Meanwhile, transportation in general was still frozen and most stores and businesses were shut down by the general strike of 200,000 workers, called Monday following riots in which two persons were killed and 60 injured.

Although the entire dock area was still tied up by the strike, two UNRRA ships carrying cargoes of livestock were unloaded by agreement of the workers. A crowd of 10,000 workers followed the funeral procession of Attilio Giorgiutto, prominent trades unionist who was fatally shot Sunday. There were scattered fist fights.

RUSSIANS ACCEPT VOTE BY MAJORITY ON ATOMIC BOARD

NEW YORK, July 3 — (AP) Soviet Russia suddenly abandoned today her fight for a two-thirds majority rule in the United Nations Atomic Energy commission and the commission unanimously decided that a simple majority of seven members would govern all its decisions.

Meeting for 39 minutes in a hotel ballroom, the commission adopted all rules of procedure presented by a committee of experts and then adjourned without a date for its next meeting.

Shows Conciliatory Spirit

Andrei A. Gromyko of Russia showed a conciliatory spirit at the outset when he called for the commission to adopt a rule providing for a two-thirds vote—eight members of the commission of 12 nations — on matters of substance and a majority of seven on matters of procedure.

Previously his representative on the committee of experts had held out for a two-thirds vote on all questions.

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia chairman, quickly opposed Gromkyo. He referred to the involved debate in the Security council last week in which Gromyko three times invoked the veto and said it had demonstrated there sometimes was difficulty in making a distinction between procedural and substantive matters.

Gromyko Ends Fight

At this point Gromyko gave up the fight.

"I am no more interested in this proposal than any other member of the commission and if the other members do not favor it I will not insist," he said.

He did not explain his reason for desiring a two-thirds vote on substantive matters others than to say that "all decisions will not be of equal importance."

After the commission adopted the rules, Evatt said that they were provisional and still would have to be approved by the Security council However, every nation on the Security council — plus Canada — is represented on the commission.

The commission approved a rule providing that the commission should meet in public unless otherwise decided and that a communique should be issued on private meetings. This rule followed the line laid down by the Security council in its rules.

Could Reverse Verdict

Thus, under the present rules, if Russia should lose a decision in the Atomic Commission she could still reverse the verdict by invoking the veto in the Council.

The United States, however, in offering to share atomic know-how with the rest of the world in exchange for an inviolable international control barring atomic weapons, insists that the Council renounce the veto in relation to atomic matters.

Russ Back Down On 2-3 Vote Demand

New York, July 3 (AP)—The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission today adopted unanimously a rule providing a majority vote on all its decisions after Soviet Russia backed down from her previous insistence on a two-thirds majority.

The commission then adjourned without setting a date for its next meeting.

The commission by its action decided that seven of the twelve members could decide questions instead of eight members as Russia had demanded in deliberations of a committee of experts.

Gromyko's Demands

Andrie A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate, had demanded that the commisison adopt a two thirds majority rule on "substantive" questions and said he would be content for a simple majority vote on matters of procedure.

When Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, chairman, expressed opposition, Gromyko said "I am no more interested in this proposal than any other member of the commission and if the other members do not favor it I will not insist."

Before today's public meeting some members were puzzled over the persistence of the Russian effort to increase the minimum majority requirement by a single vote.

Since all recommendations of the commission will be passed on to the parent Security Council, commission action is in no case final, and under the present United Nations setup each of the Big Five permanent members of the Council holds veto power.

MRP OFFERS PROPOSAL

Paris, July 3 (A. P.).—The Popular Republican Movement (MRP), the party of President Georges Bidault, proposed today a Four-Chamber Legislature for the fourth French republic.

This placed the MRP squarely in opposition to the Communist party, which has advocated a Legislature of but one House.

The MRP proposals, presented to the Constituent Assembly's constitutional commission, followed in general lines the charter recommended several weeks ago by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, former President.

French Editor Gets 4 Years

PARIS, July 3 (AP)—Alcide de Gueydon, pre-war editor of the Figaro, was sentenced to four years in prison tonight for anti-Allied writing and radio programs during the German occupation.

British Food Chief Refuses To Rescind Bread Rationing

LONDON, July 3—(AP) Food Minister John Strachey today laid much of the responsibility for British bread rationing to the danger of American strikes and called on the United States to send 360,000 tons of wheat to the British zone of Germany or face "incalculable political and social consequences."

Britain, he told the House of Commons amid cheers from Government supporters and heckling from the opposition, "has made a contribution second to none to relieve world famine" and can do no more.

The food chief gave a flat "no" to bakers, housewives and others who asked reconsideration of the government's decision to ration bread beginning July 21 but promised rationing would end "the very day it becomes possible."

After the hottest parliamentary debate since the Labor government took office a year ago, a Conservative motion criticizing the government's decision to ration bread was defeated 343 to 178.

Speaking for the Conservatives, Anthony Eden said Strachey's speech would have had a great effect in the United States if it had been made months ago.

"The U. S. is a democracy," the former foreign secretary said, "and subject to the play of popular opinion, and who could doubt if the American nation had known what straits we were being reduced to they would have been influenced by that knowledge."

Strachey declared Britain could not afford to "gamble on American labor relations and on the course of things in Congress in the next few weeks."

Reports on Food Stocks

Breaking years of secrecy on food stocks, Strachey said Britain would have 800,000 tons of wheat and flour—eight weeks supply—in its "pipeline" at the end of August if all went well.

But he recalled the threatened maritime strike just before his recent visit to the United States and asked: "Can we have a guarantee that such a thing will not happen again?"

Congress' action on "new price controls or other measures," he added, also will determine whether there would be any interruption of U. S. grain exports. Bread rationing, he said, was "a measure of safety and assurance of the basic food of the British people."

Strachey said he found American officials hesitant about supplying 120,000 tons of wheat a month for the three months to Britain's zone in Germany, but said he had "every hope and expectation" that it would be forthcoming.

Strachey said that since 1945, Britain had sent 60,000 tons of cereals to India, 60,000 tons to Italy, Greece, and Yugoslavia, 60,000 to Germany, and 10,000 tons to South Africa and to Belgium.

The U. S. government will replace these shipments, he said, but in addition Britain has sent to the British zone in Germany 192,000 tons of wheat, 109,000 tons of flour, 105,000 tons of barley, and 132,000 tons of potatoes.

The debate turned stormy when Conservative R. A. Hudson, former minister of agriculture, charged the government with lack of foresight and declared that "with the exception of Germany and Austria, we shall probably be about the worst fed white nation in the world."

Strachey Defends Rationing Plan

London, July 3 (AP)—Food Minister John Strachey asserted today that Great Britain decided to ration bread rather than "gamble on American labor relations and on the course of things in Congress."

He called on the United States to help feed the British occupation zone of Germany or "face the incalculable political and social consequences to western Europe." He asserted that Congress' action in the price-control dispute also would determine whether there would be any interruption in United States exports.

Cites Maritime Strike

Mentioning the recent United States maritime strike, Strachey told the House of Commons there was no guarantee against a recurrence.

He said he believed the United States Government was determined to do its utmost to meet foreign grain commitments, but that he did not know whether it would be able to do so.

The Food Minister opened a House debate in which he was expected to defend, almost singlehanded, the Government's plan to ration bread and flour beginning July 21.

Risk "Unjustifiable"

"We are rationing bread because we cannot depend on maybes and ifs in our forecast," he said. "If everything went right, we might be able to squeeze through without rationing, but it would be a wholly unjustifiable risk. We just won't risk it."

He said delay in wheat shipments to the United Kingdom in the next three months "might be disastrous in this country if we did not take the great precautionary measure we are taking."

He asserted that British reserves in wheat and flour will be about 300,000 tons, or an eight-week supply, by the end of July.

Says Russ Won't

Asked by a Conservative member of Parliament why the Russians could not send grain into the British zone of Germany, Strachey replied:

"If the member thinks he can get any grain out of Russia, then I wish him luck."

He said Britain was doing her utmost, but could not maintain the 1,000-calory daily ration in Germany unless the United States delivered 360,000 tons of wheat during the next three months.

"If there is any breakdown in these supplies to the British zone," he asserted, "there will be incalculable political and social consequences throughout western Europe."

"We have done our utmost, even by rationing our own bread," he declared, "and we feel it necessary to say to our American friends, so that they have notice of it, that we cannot do any more."

Touring Editors To Visit London

London, July 3 (A. P.).—Twelve American publishers and editors who have been touring occupied Germany as guests of the War Department are expected in London July 13, the American embassy announced today.

They will remain five days, going then to Paris, from where they will depart for the United States July 20.

Churchill to Speak at Metz

METZ, France, July 3 (AP)—The Mayor of Metz announced today that Winston Churchill had accepted an invitation to speak at the Bastille Day celebration here on July 14.

Set Hitler's Body on Fire.

The court room was quiet as Kempa continued: "I can say he died April 30, between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon. I didn't see him die, but I carried his body out of the bunker and set it on fire. I carried Adolf Hitler's wife out."

Kempa reported he said farewell to Bormann in the Reich's Chancellery and struck out across Berlin to the Friedrichstrasse Station. He said the city was in chaos. About 2 A. M. on May 1 he saw Bormann and the Chancellery Secretary of State, Dr. Naumann, near the station, and together they discussed how to get away from the Russians.

Others joined them behind a large German tank and some armored vehicle. The column, preceded by men on foot, made its way through a tank trap and had got fifty yards or so past it when the tank was struck by a bazooka shell, Kempa said, explaining that he was three or four yards behind the tank and that Bormann was directly beside it. He said he [illegible] Naumann collapsed. [illegible] bodies were hit. "Martin Bormann died in that explosion," he said. "I never saw him again."

Driver Says He Saw Hitler Dead And Helped Cremate His Body

JUL 4 1946

Fuehrer's Chauffeur Testifies at Nuernberg —Tells of Burning Eva Braun's Remains and Seeing Bormann Hit by Shell.

Nuernberg, July 3 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler's former chauffeur, Erich Kempka, testified before the International Tribunal today that he saw Der Fuehrer lying dead in the Reichschancellery the afternoon of April 30, 1945, and that he also helped carry the body outside for cremation, and Eva Braun's body as well.

Kempa also declared that he saw Martin Bormann, Hitler's missing aid, who is now on trial in absentia, blasted by a bazooka shell with such force that it was impossible that he could have survived.

The chauffeur referred to Eva Braun, a bride of a few hours, as "Adolf Hitler's wife."

As he told how he saw the body of Der Fuehrer rolled in a blanket, with only the booted legs hanging out, he said: "It wasn't the same Adolf Hitler." He was impressed that the blanket used was too short.

HITLER CHAUFFEUR TESTIFIES HE SAW BORMANN DEATH

NUERNBERG, Germany, July 3 —(AP) Adolf Hitler's chauffeur told the International Tribunal today that he saw the dead bodies of Hitler and Eva Braun in the Reichschancellory and watched Martin Bormann collapse, apparently dead, from a bazooka blast in the streets of Berlin.

The testimony was given by Erich Kempka, who escaped from besieged Berlin and was captured by American forces at Berchtesgaden.

He was described by American Prosecutor Thomas Dodd as the only man able to say that both Hitler and Bormann, the Fuehrer's missing aide who is on trial in absentia, are dead.

Felled by Bazooka Shell

Bormann, Kempka said, was blasted by a bazooka shell with such force that it was impossible for him to be alive.

Unemotionally Kempka related how the chancellory seethed with about 500 persons, all seeking rescue on the day Berlin fell to the pounding Russian armies—April 30, 1945.

He declared flatly that Hitler died between 2 and 3 p. m. that day and that Bormann was struck down 12 hours later.

Kempka appeared as a witness in the defense of Bormann, whose body never has been found. Conflicting reports that he is still alive keep cropping up.

Kempka testified:

"I can say Hitler died between two and three o'clock in the afternoon of April 30th. I did not see him die. I saw him rolled up in a blanket. His legs were hanging out. I carried his body out of the bunker and it was set on fire. I carried Adolf Hitler's wife out".

Dressed in General's Uniform

He said he saw Bormann, dressed in the uniform of an SS general, about 2 o'clock the next morning near a railroad station, a quarter of an hour's walk from the bunker, and they tried to break through behind an armored column.

Kempka said a bazooka shel hit a tank and Bormann's body was hurled away. Kempka, stunned, revived later and said he never saw Bormann again.

Bormann was so meticulously dressed to fit his rank he could not have escaped without detection, the witness asserted. "Judging from the force of the blast, Bormann is dead beyond a doubt," he added.

Kempka's testimony concluded presentation of all defense evidence.

The tribunal consumed most of the day admitting additional defense documents. Defense summations, to last 14 days, will start tomorrow with a discussion of international law angles.

Hitler Directed the Bulge

NUERNBERG, July 3 (AP).—Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt wishes people would stop calling the 1944 Battle of the Bulge the "Rundstedt Offensive." He has told American intelligence officers that responsibility for the attack was Hitler's, not his.

The marshal said he was against that type of offensive because the Wehrmacht no longer was mobile enough to maintain its supply lines under constant bombardment by the Allied air forces.

He said he wanted to strike the British-American spearhead at Aachen, and if successful then straighten his lines and dig in. Hitler vetoed that, he said, and planned the entire campaign.

The marshal dispelled a long-held belief that the offensive bogged down for lack of oil. He asserted there was plenty of fuel, but rail and road travel was under such a terrific air lashing he could not keep it moving.

REVEALS HITLER'S SECRETARY FLED

JUL 4 1946

Frankfurt, July 3 (A. P.).—Agents combed the American Zone of Germany tonight for the last secretary of Adolf Hitler who, it was revealed, disappeared recently after being summoned to testify before the War Crime Tribunal at Nuernberg. The secretary is Gerda Christian, a statuesque brunette, 31 years old, who has said she stood by Hitler in his final days at the Berlin Reichschancellery.

The army said she vanished about June 8, the day she was ordered to leave Berchtesgaden for Nuernberg. "We are looking for her, but at the moment we just do not know where she is," an intelligence officer at headquarters declared, adding that her disappearance had been kept secret for security reasons.

SOVIET MYSTERY PLANE LANDS IN U. S. DISTRICT

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 3 —(AP)—The U. S. Army constabulary maintained a general alert tonight for two mysterious airmen who fled from a Soviet plane which landed Sunday in the American zone of Germany 37 miles southeast of Frankfurt.

The constabulary [illegible] the small observation-type craft had been "positively identified as Russian." In describing the landing American officers said the two occupants of the plane went into a nearby woods.

G. I. IN REICH FACES CHARGE OF MURDER

JUL 4 1946

Frankfurt, July 3 (A. P.).—The Army announced the arrest today of an American soldier and a Polish displaced person in connection with the slaying of a German girl, who was reported to have been spurned by the private. Col. Redmond J. Connolly, Frankfurt provost marshal, said murder charges had been filed against Pfc. Daniel P. Walczak of Detroit, and Bodgan Wasiak, the Pole. Walczak is 22 years old.

The body of the girl, Marlis Herxheimer, was found in the Nedda river March 28 by German policemen. Investigations said that she had been killed some time in February.

The killing came to light only recently when the United States Army civilian censorship division monitored a telephone conversation between two German women doctors discussing the case. One of the women said "the killers are still at large."

Connolly said Walczak had confessed and implicated Wasiak, a report from the Criminal Investigation Division said. The statement said the American turned the girl out of a house where he allegedly had been living with her after "he found another girl."

When the girl returned and threatened to report Walczak to his commanding officer, the report said, she was taken for a walk, beaten on the head with a beer mug, robbed and thrown into the river.

Lichfield Court Finds Guard Not Guilty

Bad Nauheim, Germany, July 3 (AP)—A court-martial today acquitted Pfc. Austin D. Gheens, of Newport, Texas, of charges that he struck and kicked three American guardhouse prisoners at Lichfield, England.

In an adjoining room where the former Lichfield commander, Col. James A. Kilian, of Highland Park, Ill., was on trial, a Negro prosecution witness was excused when he refused to testify with the explanation that "I fear the things that may happen to me."

Denies He Struck Men

Gheens denied he struck and kicked the prisoners. Three previously convicted guards testified that Gheens was not with them when the prisoners were struck. Several prosecution witnesses had sworn they saw Gheens hit the men.

Kilian, former commander of the United States Army's 10th Replacement Depot at Lichfield, is accused of authorizing cruel treatment there.

The witness who refused to testify was Simon Blocker, 25-year-old Negro, of Chicago, a former Lichfield prisoner who is serving a ten-year court-martial sentence for being absent without leave during combat.

"I'm not testifying any more," Blocker told the military court. "I feel I have jeopardized myself enough. You see when this trial's over I've got to go to a detention training center. I fear the things that may happen to me when I reach the DTC over here."

Chetnik Trial Still Rejects U.S. Flyers

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 3 (AP). A military court trying Gen. Draja Mihailovic and 23 others on charges of treason rejected again today a defense motion to allow rescued American flyers to testify for the Chetnik commander.

The court held that such testimony would not be necessary because it would relate to only a limited period of Chetnik activities in the war. The Americans had been shot down during air attacks on the Balkans and rescued by men of Mihailovic, who was former King Peter's War Minister.

Agrees They Were Saved

A leader of the flyers was Sergt. David J. O'Connell, of Chicago, secretary of the National Committee of American Airmen to Aid Mihailovic. He and three other Americans parachuted into Yugoslavia June 6, 1944, and were saved by the Chetniks.

The defense contended that the testimony of O'Connell and his fellows was necessary to prove the Chetniks had saved them.

The court president replied that the prosecution never said the flyers had been killed and added: "Thank heaven, they are alive."

U. S. Army Officer Badgered

WARSAW, July 3 (AP)—Col. Frank Jeggs of Beaumont, Texas, assistant United States Military Attaché, was arrested three times by secret police while on a tour investigating activity connected with the referendum.

He was questioned for three hours in Michalowa after he had photographed a Russian column of 1,000 troops moving 3,692 horses and 700 wagons eastward over the frontier at Kuzuki.

Colonel Jeggs, accompanied by his wife, was forced by a guard of fifteen tommygunners to drive his automobile to Michalowa, where border police forced him to hand over his film. At Zambrowo, near Bialystok, militiamen told him to get out of town after he had distributed candy to a crowd of children.

RED TROOPS STAKE NEW POLISH BORDER

Bialystok, Poland, July 2 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Russian soldiers drove stakes along the eastern Polish frontier today, indicating the Russian and Polish commissioners have made minor rectifications of the line within a five-kilometer area.

A tally of ballots in Sunday's referendum indicated that some voters of Bialystok province expressed resentment over the cession of Lwow and Wilno to Russia. An authoritative informant said that 90 per cent of those who voted in Bialystok balloted against the Government-sponsored proposal for a one-house Parliament and that 73 to 80 per cent voted non-approval of the provisional regime's acts nationalizing basic industries and establishing agrarian changes.

There appeared to have been a straight 20 per cent negative vote on maintenance of the present frontiers, but that 80 per cent of the negative vote might have been annulled because the voters invalidated ballots by writing in such phrases as "We want back Lwow and Wilno," the informant added.

Peasants May Ask New Polish Poll

Warsaw, July 3 (AP)—Charges by Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajcyk of voting irregularities and mass arrests of members of his opposition Polish Peasant party during Sunday's referendum were interpreted by some observers today as a possible prelude to demands for a new plebiscite.

These quarters pointed out that before the polling Mikolajczyk had said that if the referendum were not conducted in a spirit of honesty and freedom "steps would be taken" to obtain a new vote.

Meanwhile an early tally of the returns indicated the Communist-backed party bloc to be in the lead.

The referendum was on three questions: (1) Do you want a one-house parliament? (2) Do you approve the provisional regime's acts nationalizing basic industries and providing agrarian changes? and, (3) Do you approve the establishment of Poland's western frontier on the Oder and Neisse rivers?

Mikolajczyk had asked his followers to vote negatively on the first question and affirmatively on the latter two. The party bloc sought a "yes" ballot on all three.

gained at Germany's expense, but made no reference to the eastern boundary where Poland lost territory to Russia.)

In Warsaw today, government reports declared outlaw bands had terrorized large areas of Poland before and during the voting Sunday, burning villages and wounding and killing election officials.

Charges Irregularities

Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, head of the Polish Peasant party and former premier of the exiled Polish government in London, again charged election irregularities and asserted that thousands of his party members had been arrested. Mikolajczyk had urged a negative vote on the first referendum question: "Do you want a one-house parliament."

Mikolajczyk had gone along with the provisional government, however, in urging an affirmative vote on the western boundary question, approval of the government's na- and on the second question asking tionalization of basic industries and agrarian reform.

Voting commissions still were pouring results into Warsaw, but it appeared unlikely that there would be enough even by Friday to announce the verdict. Districts which have reported showed a surprisingly large vote against the provisional regime, with rural areas

Polish Border on Curzon Line Is Marked Off by Russians

WARSAW, July 3 — (AP) Soviet troops have driven stakes along Poland's eastern border, indicating permanent establishment of the Curzon line as the Polish-Russian frontier, even while the counting of Polish referendum ballots showed sharp disapproval of a proposed western border.

In a visit to Bialystok yesterday, I saw the soldiers staking out the line where Russian and Polish commissioners have made minor rectifications along a three-mile stretch.

Vote Against Parliament

In the Bialystok area, an authoritative informant said, Poles voted heavily against the referendum questions on parliament and nationalization, and a straight 20 per cent voted against the question "Do you approve establishment of Poland's western frontier on the Oder and Neisse rivers?"

The informant said 80 per cent of the ballots might be annulled because voters invalidated them by writing in such phrases as "We want back Lwow and Wilno."

(The referendum question asked approval of a western boundary showing particular disapproval on the first question of abolishing the Senate.)

New Cabinet Forms In Italy

Rome, July 3 (AP)—Alcide de Gasperi, leader of Italy's powerful Christian Democrats, today began consultations for the formation of a new Cabinet—a task intrusted to him late last night by Provisional President Enrico de Nicola.

De Gasperi's appointment as Premier was unanimously approved by all party leaders.

De Gasperi told newspaper men that his first task would be to contact representatives of the three big parties—Communists, Socialists and his own Christian Democrats—and present a program to them which he said was not yet concrete because "programs are not full born from the head of Jove."

Urges Speedy Formation

Meanwhile, Socialist Leader Pietro Nenni said the international situation imposed upon government leaders the responsibility to form the new cabinet as soon as possible.

He expressed hope that this might be accomplished "within a week," adding that there were no essential differences on foreign policy among leaders of the three strongest parties.

There were reports that could not be confirmed that de Gasperi might interrupt his Cabinet-forming talks to go to Paris in an effort to intercede at the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference, which he said, had placed "Italy on the operating table."

Gottwald Now Czech Premier

Prague, July 3 (AP)—Communist Klement Gottwald became Premier of Czechoslovakia today when President Eduard Benes approved his Cabinet list containing six members of the party. Jan Masaryk, son of the founder of the republic, remained as Foreign Minister, however.

The Cabinet was a careful balance of right and left parties, with the left holding a slight edge. The Communists won the last election by a narrow margin.

Early Foe Of Fascism

Gottwald, who is 49, has been vice premier and Communist party chairman. He has been a leader in the Czech Communist movement since the party was organized in 1921. He served in the Austrian Army in the first World War.

He was an early opponent of Fascism and wrote a series of articles on its dangers prior to Hitler's rise to power in 1933. After Munich, Gottwald fled to Moscow. From there he helped organize underground activity against the Nazis.

Gottwald was one of the authors of the Kosice program which started Czechoslovakia's present experiments in nationalization of industries.

Hungary was approaching complete chaos. Ten quadrillion-pengo notes were in general circulation.

In June, 1939, the pengo was worth 29.12 cents. By last October, its value had sunk to 1/100th of a penny.

2 PALESTINE JEWS SAVED FROM DEATH

Sentences Changed to Life Imprisonment by British Commissioner.

JERUSALEM, July 3—(AP) Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine high commissioner, today commuted to life imprisonment the [illegible] sentences passed on two Jewish youths for firing at British soldiers, and the underground organization Irgun Zvai Leumi promised that three British officers held as hostages for the pair would be "released as soon as possible."

A broadcast by the underground group expressed "gratification" at the clemency.

More Munitions Found

Meanwhile, the British army announced discovery of nine new caches of munitions in a fantastic underground arsenal at the Jewish village of Mesheq Yagur.

By noon today, the British said, it had unearthed more than 4,000 grenades, 2,200 mortar bombs, 385 rifles, 46 pistols, thousands of rounds of ammunition of all types, and 800 pounds of explosives at Mesheq Yagur in secret ammunition chambers.

With only half the area of the settlement explored, 19 caches of arms have been discovered so far, the army said. Troops were exploring the area with mine detectors, bulldozers, and pneumatic drills.

Captured at Tel Aviv

The youths receiving the communications were Yousef Simkhon and Itzahak Abel. They were arrested six weeks ago after a gunfight between the military and police with Jewish armed groups on a beach north of Tel Aviv.

When the youths were condemned to death by a military court two weeks ago, five British officers were kidnaped from the Tel Aviv officers club and were held as hostages by the underground organization. Two of the officers have since been released.

At the Latrun prison camp, five of the six executive members of the Jewish agency who have been held incommunicado five days behind a maze of barbed wire were seen today by foreign correspondents but were not permitted to be interviewed.

They are detained in a special section apart from 400 other Jewish men.

tions in their hunt for more hidden arms.

Bulldozers Attack Fertilizer

Bulldozers were assigned to remove a huge fertilizer pile in the possibility that munitions might be buried under the compost.

An official British statement issued here last night gave this list of arms uncovered at Mesheq Yagur to date: 314 rifles, 46 revolvers, 15 machine guns, 85 2-inch mortars, 1 80-millimeter mortar, 2 60-millimeter mortars, 5 submachine guns, 200,000 rounds of small-arms munition, 3,000 mortar bombs, 2,000 grenades and more than 500 pounds of explosives.

Much of this contraband was found in an elaborate underground chamber of concrete construction. Part was found in a secret room between the first and second floors of a building used as a nursery.

Many Arrests Made

Many of the men in the village were arrested Saturday morning, British authorities said. The remainder of the population is living in a cordoned-off area while the search continues.

In Jerusalem, meanwhile, British troops continued to occupy the headquarters of the Jewish Agency, which the British have charged with connivance in recent violence in Palestine. Seven officials of the agency who were arrested Saturday remain in custody.

The only two officials of the agency to retain their freedom opened an emergency office yesterday.

"There is no foundation whatsoever for the allegation that third degree treatment, beating or torture has been inflicted on any detainees."

To the agency's charges that buildings and settlements in Palestine were wantonly damaged and that a rabbi had been assaulted, the Colonial office replied:

"As regards damage to buildings the facts are that by the exercise of great restraint this was reduced to the minimum necessary to effect entry and to expose the numerous arms caches.

"At Mesheq Yagur, one of the settlements specifically mentioned in the allegation, damage was superficial in spite of the fierce resistance of the settlers, which had to be overcome by the use of tear smoke.

"Owing to the resistance and the refusal of the settlers to identify themselves it was necessary to detain the entire male population.

"As regards Rabbi (Yehuda) Fishman, the facts are that when he was arrested by a British officer and a party of British soldiers he refused to rise from his chair.

"The greatest restraint was exercised by those carrying out the arrests and the minimum of force was used in lifting him from the chair and carrying him to the military vehicle. He was not assaulted or maltreated in any way and sustained no bruises or injuries."

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—A rejection is in the making here for Britain's proposal that American troops be sent to Palestine to help maintain order during the projected immigration to the Holy Land of 100,000 European Jews. Authorities familiar with the long negotiations between Washington and London on the Palestine problem said that this Government has no intention of sending military forces—not even the single division some British officials have suggested.

The latest clew to American policy came in yesterday's White House statement on President Truman's conference with a group of officials of the Jewish Agency for Palestine. The significant words of that statement were: "The President indicated that the Government of the United States was prepared to assume technical and financial responsibility for the transportation of these immigrants from Europe to Palestine."

[The Palestine Arab Higher Committee is holding an urgent meeting today to consider a reply to President Truman's statement approving the admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine, the British radio declared in a broadcast picked up at New York by NBC. An Arab spokesman was quoted as saying that "100,000 Jews will not come to Palestine, the Arabs will see to that."]

Ships, Food and Cash.

Officials left no doubt today that this means that the United States is committed only to supply ships, several million dollars and food and housing assistance for the huge migration. The Jews are expected to be taken by rail from Germany to various Mediterranean ports and thence to Palestine by boat. How many ships will be required, it was stated, will depend on the time-table still to be worked out.

Washington's opposition to committing any American troops to the area appears to be based chiefly on (1) the political and military difficulties in the way of sending our forces to any more foreign areas, (2) the belief that, since Palestine is British-controlled under League of Nations mandate, the responsibility for maintaining order rests upon Great Britain, and (3) the belief on the part of many officials here that the British have considerably over-estimated the possibility of conflict.

Henry F. Grady, former Assistant Secretary of State, will head a special American mission to London early this month to lay final plans for the migration, assuming the British Government goes along with the project. The Grady group will pick up where a committee of experts left off last week.

2 Young Jews' Death Sentences Commuted

JUL 4 1946

Jerusalem, July 3 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Sir Alan Gordon Cunningham, Palestine high commissioner, today commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences imposed on two Jewish youths for firing on British soldiers.

The sentences had resulted in the kidnapping of five British officers as hostages by Irgun Zvai Leumi, a Jewish resistance group which has retained custody of three.

Village Search Continues

Meanwhile, British soldiers equipped with mine detectors, bulldozers and pneumatic drills continued a foot-by-foot search of the Jewish village of Mesheq Yagur, where they have uncovered ten large caches of contraband munitions.

The death sentences against the two Jewish youths had been confirmed earlier today by Major General Sir Evelyn Barker, commanding officer in Palestine.

Gunfight On Beach

The youths were Yousef Simkhon and Itzahak Abel, who were arrested six weeks ago after a gunfight between the military and police with Jewish armed groups on the sandy beach north of Tel Aviv.

The youths were convicted by a military court in Jerusalem on June 19.

Little more than half the village, which has a population of about 1,000, has been searched thus far by the soldiers, who ripped into tile floors and concrete building founda-

BRITAIN REFUTES CHARGE THAT JEWS WERE MISTREATED

LONDON, July 3 — (AP) The British Colonial office categorically denied tonight that any Jews arrested in Palestine had been mistreated.

Answering charges by the London office of the Jewish Agency for Palestine that "medieval tortures" were used by Palestine police against Jews in the Athlit detention camp near Haifa, the Colonial office said in a statement:

Arabs Threaten to Fight Against Truman Demand

Will Go to Palestine to Resist Entry of 100,000 Jews

CAIRO, July 3 (AP).—An official Arab spokesman said today "the Arabs have planned organized resistance against President Truman's demand for immigration of 100,00 Jews into Palestine." Arabs from near-by states will receive permission to enter Palestine to join the Arab resistance movement if the immigration plan is implemented, he said.

Secretary-General Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha of the Arab League declared "Iraq is very anxious to fight to protect Palestine."

Another Arab source said Great Britain is expected to propose that the United States accept 30,000 and Britain the same number of the 100,000 European Jews, the remainder being divided among other nations, including Palestine.

CANADIAN JEWS' PLEA

Ottawa, July 3 (A. P.).—Prompt Government action to open the way to the admission to Canada of Jewish refugees and displaced persons was proposed before the Senate Immigration Committee today by Saul Hayes, executive director of the Canadian Jewish Congress. In a brief prepared for the committee Hayes said that Canada's immigration regulations discriminate against Jews.

The Jewish Congress proposed a broadening of the regulations governing the admission of relatives of Canadian citizens, and the removal from the immigration act of such requirements as specific cash resources and continuous passage and of the ban on assisted passages. The Congress also urged action to facilitate the entry of 1,000 orphaned Jewish children.

Execution Record Cited

LONDON, July 3 (AP)—Colonial Secretary George Hall disclosed today that 149 Arabs and one Jew had been put to death for carrying arms in Palestine since Nov. 11, 1937. Death sentences on forty-two other Arabs and five Jews were not carried out, he added.

Dutch Soldiers, Malays Clash; 3 Casualties

Singapore, July 3 (AP)—Singapore police reported today that one Dutch soldier was found dead and two others wounded following an early morning street clash between Netherlands soldiers and Malays.

The Malay newspaper Utusan Melayu said the clash was believed to have been a Malay reprisal for an earlier skirmish Monday night. The paper said that in the first disorder several dozen Dutch soldiers entered the Geyland district and attacked Malay pedestrians.

SIAM'S POPULACE RECEIVES WARNING

Bangkok, July 2 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Siamese people were warned tonight in a special communique from the office of Premier Pridi Phanomyong that "a state of emergency still exists within the country." The communique, which emphasized that the wartime state of emergency had never been officially relaxed, appealed for public co-operation. It also charged that a section of the Siamese public was obstructing the efforts of the present regime.

The notice followed a new wave of public feeling resulting from the announcement that twelve of twenty doctors on a medical commission investigating the late King Ananda Mahidol's death, believed that he had been assassinated.

Jap Absolves 27 Of Blame For Manchuria

JUL 4 1946

Tokyo, July 3 (AP)—While former Premier Hideki Tojo and 26 others accused as warmongers listened attentively, Admiral Keisuke Okada told the International War Crime Court today that a group of young army officers and "not these defendants" plotted the occupation of Manchuria in 1931.

The aged 1934-1936 Premier, a prosecution witness for the second day, said his cabinet had no policy regarding Manchuria, but added that by 1934 Manchuria was already overrun by the Kwantung Army and "I could do nothing to stop it."

"Happiness" For Manchuria

Anyway, he said, he considered the Japanese puppet setup in Manchuria a benevolent move for that part of China. Back in 1932, as a member of the Privy Council, he had voted for formal recognition of Manchukuo, the puppet state, in the hope of "bringing happiness to the people of Japan and Manchuria."

Okada was crossexamined closely on his statement yesterday that he had heard that Japan and the United States had a "gentlemen's agreement" which sanctioned Japanese expansion into Manchuria.

No other nations participated in the purported agreement, he said. He never actually saw the document and didn't know any details, but heard about it, he said, from Premier Iichi Tanaka.

U.S. Interpretation

Meanwhile, United States circles declared Okada was telling of a fallacious argument which appealed even to the Japanese anti-militarists in his testimony that American immigration restrictions turned "overpopulated" Japan toward Manchuria.

Okada touched only the peaks of a complex situation in saying he understood a "gentleman's agreement" between the United States and Japan permitted this continental expansion.

He referred evidently to the Lansing-Ishii agreement of November, 1917. An official letter of the then Secretary of State Robert Lansing said in part: "The governments of the United States and Japan recognize that territorial propinquity creates special relations between countries, and consequently the Government of the United States recognizes that Japan has special interests in China, particularly in that part to which her possessions are contiguous."

A "Go-Ahead" Signal

This, Okada indicated, meant a go-head signal in Manchuria to the Japanese, although the agreement bound them to respect China's sovereignty and the "open door" principle of unrestricted international trade.

Okada placed great emphasis upon the American Exclusion Act of 1924, which limited Japanese immigration and stirred enmity.

Tokyo Toilers' Techniques

Semi-Hunger Strike

Tokyo, July 3 (AP)—Japanese workers, who initiated the management lockout technique in labor disputes, came up with a new one today—the "semi-hunger strike."

The employes of the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry declared today that if their wage and allowance demands were not met and a collective bargaining contract were refused, they would adopt the practice of coming to work without their lunch pails and going home as soon as they became hungry.

Taxi-Dancer Union

Tokyo, July 3 (AP)—And now 3,000 Tokyo taxi-dancers have formed a union. Its avowed aim is to improve working conditions and "cultural standing" of its members.

The newspaper Asahi said one of the principal projects would be to set up a foreign-style dress sewing shop; the jitterbugging dancers wear out a dress and a pair of shoes every month, it added.

No. 2 Project: "To have everyone read the magazine Social Times, issued by the Federation of Cabarets, which will "enable dancers to carry on a conversation with their partners."

G. I.'s to Get Chance To Visit Tokyo

Tokyo, July 3 (A. P.).—G. I's stationed outside the Tokyo areas will get a chance to visit this city starting September 1, when selected companies will take turns at honor guard duty a month at a time. Only ten days actual duty is required, giving each soldied about three weeks of free time here.

GI's OPA Billet Doux

Tokyo, July 3 (AP)—When GI's in Tokyo wanted the draft bill extended they messaged their congressmen the code phrase: "Love and kisses." Now those who are pressing for extension of the OPA are radioing: "You are more than ever in my thoughts at this time."

Stock phrases like that cost only a fraction of the tolls of a longer explanatory message.

The recipients, having received a preparatory explanation of what the messages really signify, know this latest billet doux means:

"Emasculation of OPA by Congress was inconsistent with public interest and against the will of a majority of the people, and a breach of faith. We demand extension of OPA for at least one year . . . it is the only guarantee of successful transition to full, uninterrupted peacetime economy."

ANCIENT TRADITION TO TUMBLE SUNDAY

Hara, Japan, July 3 (A. P.).—For 1,300 years the sacred Mt. Omine near here—about fifty miles from Kyoto—has been untouched by women's feet. But democracy has come to Japan and Sunday, despite objections of priests in Buddhist temples there, a mountain-climbing society, including 100 women, will scale the mountain.

Yokohama, July 3 (AP)—The liner Monterey will make two trips to Japan with United States 8th Army dependents, it was announced today. The first trip, from San Francisco, was tentatively set for late this month.

China National Assembly Will Convene at Last

Delegates Will Meet Nov. 12 After Delay of 9 Years During Japanese Invasion

NANKING, July 3 (AP).—The National Assembly was ordered today to convene on Nov. 12—exactly nine years after it was originally scheduled to meet. Its first business will be toward adopting a new constitution.

National Assemblymen were first elected in 1936 for a scheduled constitutional convention on Nov. 12 of the following year. The Japanese invasion forced a postponement, and the government never has been able to convene the members during the war years.

A Communist spokesman said Red leaders were not consulted about the new date. The Communists forced a postponement from last May 5, charging that action on the draft constitution agreed to in January at the People's Consultative Conference was not on the agenda.

Seek to Arrange Parley

PEIPING, July 3 (AP).—Two American generals were striving today to arrange unprecedented conferences between commanders of government and Communist armies in China's two turbulent theaters of war—Manchuria and the Shantung Peninsula.

Brigadier General Thomas S. Timberman, acting director of operations for executive (truce) headquarters here, proposed a meeting between General Tu Yuming, commander of Nationalist forces in Manchuria, and General Lin Piao, chief of the Communist Democratic Joint Army in the northeast.

General Timberman proposed peace talks to General Tu during their recent meeting at Mukden, and now plans to fly to Harbin to interview the Communist commander with a view to a meeting, probably at Changchun.

At Tsingtao, Marine Brigadier General William T. Clement was attempting to arrange a conference between General Chen Yi, commander of the Communist new 4th Army at Shantung, and General Wang Yao-wu, government commander in the area.

Meanwhile Chinese government dispatches charged the Communists launched larged-scale continuous attacks on Nationalist lines north of Yencheng, fifteen miles north of Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province.

Cholera Serum Sent to China

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3 (AP).—An eight-ton shipment of cholera serum has left San Francisco for Shanghai aboard an American Airlines four-engine flagships. The serum was ordered by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. Captain Charles A. Lippincott, pilot, said the ship will stop at Kwajalein, where newspapers carrying accounts of the atom-bomb test will be dropped.

SHIP ARMOR FAILS TO BAR RADIATION

Atomic Bomb Rays Penetrated Thick Steel, Safety Officer Reports.

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, Thursday, July 4—(AP) Ships cannot be built with steel thick enough to protect their crews from the terrific lethal radiation of a close atomic explosion, Col. Stafford Warren, Bikini safety officer, asserted today.

Some of the 73 target vessels remain dangerously radioactive even now, he declared—the fourth day after the ball-of-fire blast which sank five, heavily damaged nine and affected, in all, 59 warships.

He predicted it will be five or six days more before all the ships of the guinea pig fleet become "entirely safe."

Great Radiation

Radiation released by the bomb was "terrific," he told newsmen.

"Steel is not too good a protection for personnel," he added, since if armor sufficiently thick to stop the lethal rays were used, "there would be no room in the ships for personnel."

Indications are that if the target fleet had been manned, the blast would have rendered it helpless—since "many not killed by the blast wave would have been unable to carry on their duties because of illness from radiation," Capt. George Lyon of the safety staff pointed out.

Animals Show Effect

Many of the test animals—90 per cent of which survived—have begun to show a falling blood count which may lead to death, he observed.

Only one animal survived from the sunken Japanese cruiser Sakawa. Pig No. 249 was found swimming in the lagoon a half mile from the Sakawa's anchorage.

Radioactivity in the lagoon just after the blast was so great it was recorded by planes flying at 2,000 feet, Col. Warren reported.

The physical damage from the blast itself was growing, too.

Warships which seemed, from a distance, to have been only blackened and scarred, were hard hit—even though the bomb was a "near miss."

After inspecting the battleships Nevada and Arkansas and the heavy cruiser Pensacola, Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay and Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey agreed that damage was far greater than had been suspected after observation from the air.

Typical of the mounting story is the case of the 10,000-ton German cruiser Prinz Eugen. Outwardly her bow was blackened. Fire-etched shadows of her turrets were conclusive proof that the bomb was a miss.

Damage Below Decks

Yet—an American sailor failed to close a hatch, 12 inches in diameter three decks below; in a matter of seconds, the atom bomb found that one weakness, exploited it, and bowed the bulkheads in a semi-circle.

Associated Press Correspondent Paul K. Lee, aboard the Prinz Eugen for the inspection, reported the cruiser sustained more damage through that one open vent than she did in some of the toughest naval actions of the war. He said had there been personnel aboard it would have suffered more than in any wartime actions.

Best estimates are that the five ships sunk and nine critically damaged among the 59 target ships hurt by the bomb were within an 800 yard radius of the explosion The area of greatest devastation was elliptical in shape, extending northwest.

Aboard the heavily damaged 29-year-old American heavy cruiser Pensacola, Associated Press Correspondent Charles H. McMurtry was told by inspecting officials that she would be in drydock for repairs from four to six months, whereas during the war a torpedo put her out of action for 11 months. McMurtry's report added:

"The fact stands out, however, that a torpedo can damage only a single ship. The atom bomb wrought similar damage to several ships, including battlewagons."

Damage Exceeds LeMay Estimates

Aboard U.S.S. Pensacola, July 3 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, after inspecting the heavy cruiser Pensacola and battleships Nevada and Arkansas, agreed today that the atomic bomb had wrought far more damage than he estimated from the air following the bomb drop Monday.

All would require drydock repairs taking several months, LeMay said.

This damage resulted despite the fact that "the bomb fell short, probably outside the 500-foot circle we promised the Navy, but we won't know definitely until we examine the photographs," LeMay said.

Blast Believed To Her Aft

There was every indication that the bomb detonated aft of the Nevada, instead of over her. Yet the Nevada's main deck buckled as deeply as three feet, the inspection party discovered.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, asked if he thought any personnel could have survived the bomb drop, said: "I would not like to have been having breakfast aboard any of those ships at 9 A.M. Monday," the time of detonation.

The inspection party found the Pensacola's stacks crumbled and twisted, bent against sturdier portions of her superstructure. All hatches, secured tightly above decks, were so badly warped the edges were crimped neatly into the bulkheads and had to be forced open.

Indicated Useless As Fighter

Her main deck had buckled in three places. Other damage made it evident she was of no further use as a fighting ship.

Astern of the Nevada and Pensacola, with her bow more or less between their sterns, lay the Japanese cruiser Sakawa. The whole ship quietly slid under water 25 hours after the bombing.

The aircraft carrier Independence, south of the Nevada, apparently had had her forward end partly shielded by the Nevada, but an explosion caved in a quarter and set fires which appeared to have gutted her. It seemed as if a giant hand had shoved the Independence upward and sidewise, buckling her flight deck and crushing some plates.

Sign Of Shock-Wave Blast

The Japanese battleship Nagato, moored off the Nevada's starboard quarter, was smashed mostly forward. This indicated a strong shock-wave blast from astern, the inspection party agreed.

Skis and snowshoes, lashed on the forward deck of the Pensacola, came through without even a scorching.

No Nation Could Win Over Bomb, General Thinks

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, July 3 (AP)—Fifty-nine of Bikini's 73 target warships felt Monday's white-hot atomic blast, the Navy reported today, with damage ranging from total to negligible.

Six remained dangerously radioactive today.

Five, including one modern cruiser, were sunk; nine others, including two battleships, two cruisers and a carrier, were "heavily damaged." Damage to small craft was not reported.

The Army's official ground forces observer, Maj. Gen. Anthony McAuliffe, concluded the new weapon could force any nation, even the United States, to quit a war—although he believed it would be more effective against cities and industries than military targets.

Sees Only Two Defenses

"I hope I never see another one like that thing," he said. He said he knew of no defense except to shoot it down, or to send airborne troops to its source of production in an enemy country.

He said he did not believe any man could have survived on the decks of the target vessels in the innermost, hardest-hit group.

Test animals left aboard the fleet survived the first blast, however; even those aboard the centrally anchored Nevada still lived. But whether their exposure to atomic rays would prove fatal within the next few days was to be determined. Sailors said one goat on the Nevada's quarterdeck was "mighty sick."

Rats Survived White Cloud

Similarly, eight white rats survived a ride directly through the atomic cloud itself, but they may die within three or four days, Col. R. E. Jarmon, chief of the Army's Wright Field Evaluation Board, reported. The rats were the sole passengers in a B-17 drone.

Centrally anchored target ships still were emitting deadly rays today, said reports from Vice Admiral. W. H. P. Blandy's flagship, the Mount McKinley. Included in this "hot" group were the Nevada, Arkansas, submarine Skate, transport Crittenden, a yard oil tender and a floating drydock. The Skate was beached at Enyo Island, more than 4 miles from Bikini, because navy officers feared its radioactivity might contaminate Bikini's swimming beach.

All Expected Safe Tomorrow

All vessels are expected to be ruled "safe" by tomorrow. The waters of the lagoon itself were termed safe today, except in the immediate vicinity of the radiating ships.

The gutted carrier Independence, built on a cruiser hull, was towed several miles from the test anchorage, presumably to be beached for easier observation of her heavy damage. The most that could be said for her was that she still floated. There were gaping holes in her sides; still plates and girders were buckled and twisted. Her superstructure was missing.

Salt Lake City Damaged Badly

Also heavily damaged were the heavy cruisers Salt Lake City (newly added to the list) and Pensacola, battleship Arkansas, Japanese battleship Nagato, submarine Skate, destroyers Stack and Rhind and a tank-landing ship. Sunk were the modern Japanese cruiser Sakawa, transports Gilliam and Carlisle and destroyers Anderson and Lamson.

The extent of heat damage to some of the more distant parts of the target fleet showed human survival would have been doubtful. Ships a mile from the center of the blast were burned and blackened, as though by a tremendous blast furnace. Anyone on their decks would have burned to death in an instant. Oddly, aboard the much nearer Nevada, only parts of the ship were thus affected, and goats lived through it.

Compton's Statement

Studies of animals' injuries will probably show whether enough crewmen would have remained to operate the stricken ships, concluded Dr. Carl Compton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He heads President Truman's evaluation board and is a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Evaluation Committee.

Emphasizing that "there is no need to apologize for results of this test," Dr. Compton observed that the single bomb would certainly have had serious effects upon personnel within a half mile of the bull's-eye.

He also pointed out that "most of the damaged ships would have been quite 'blinded' by destruction of their radio and radar."

New Superstructure Need

Superstructures of ships of tomorrow, he observed, probably will be redesigned.

All in all, "the experiment was thorough enough to bring out, when studies are completed, all the data we now think we need."

Human beings, had they been aboard the Prinz Eugen at the time of the atomic blast, would have been pelted with small metal balls about the size of birdshot. Thousands of these pellets fell onto the Eugen's decks. Still radioactive, they were washed overboard today with hoses.

Scientists are puzzled about the source of the pellets, an entirely new hazard for personnel in atomic bombs. Some suggested they are pieces of the bomb itself, but if that is true it is surprising because it is believed that all bomb metal vaporized.

The Eugen was nearly two miles from the bomb blast. It was only slightly damaged.

Among scientists commenting today on Monday's test was Prof. Simyon Alevandrov, of the Soviet Union, who suggested another experiment in the air be conducted before the underwater test is held.

"The test was conducted brilliantly and the explosion was obviously terrific," he said, "but the air blast was rather weak. Observers have little data upon which to draw conclusions."

Alexandrov said that engineers "should be put to work to get a higher degree of efficiency from the bomb."

Varying Effects Noted

Senator Guy Cordon (R., Ore.) said he would have a far better idea of the test "if only I could talk to one of those goats I saw calmly munching hay on the decks of the bombed ships. I was impressed that much wood on the target ships was scarcely charred, while near-by metals were burned and twisted."

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) said he was warned before coming out not to expect too much structural damage. "The heat seemed probably the worst effect."

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Evaluation Board, reserved judgment until he can assemble all the facts. "I'm trying to keep a completely open mind," he said. "When I know at what height the bomb burst above the fleet and the efficiency of the bomb, then I'll be able to begin forming an opinion."

REDS ARE STIRRED BY TEST AT BIKINI

Commentator Charges U. S. Is Improving A-Bomb, Not Outlawing It.

MOSCOW, July 3 — (AP) The atom bomb test at Bikini "basically undermined confidence in the seriousness of American talks about atomic disarmament," bearing witness to work for improving rather than distroying the weapon, Pravda commentator Boris Izakov declared today.

He said the test "did not bring about the end of the world, but it blew up something more essential than a pair of old ships. Why, really, did the expensive and troublesome experiments at Bikini atoll have to be conducted if the United States seriously is going to turn away from the atomic weapon?

"The tests bore witness not about preparation for destroying this weapon, but on the contrary about work for its improvement."

Cites Secrecy of Test

Izakov said that "in appraising the tests, one should not forget the secrecy surrounding it. It might be that American naval authorities who conducted the tests could publish interesting additional information.

"The hurry with which United States naval circles used reports from Bikini for deductions on the necessity for preserving a big navy draws attention to itself."

Izakov's commentary also criticized "atomic diplomacy," and said that the American Federation of Scientists had called the tests of no scientific importance and "based on the horrible idea that humanity may enter an atomic war."

"That is precisely how the whole world understood the meaning of the Bikini experiment," he added.

A-Bomb is Powerful Force

"As could have been experted," Izakov continued, "the tests confirmed that the atomic weapon has enormous destructive force, although the results of the tests appeared more modest than the American press had predicted."

Discussing the Baruch plan for atomic energy control in connection with the test, Izakov said the Barouch proposal shakes the principles of unanimity of the great powers on the U. N. Security council.

"The majority of American papers react rather painfully to criticism of the American plan," Izakov said, and certain American circles regard atomic monopoly as quite natural.

He declared that "The New York Herald Tribune observer (George Fielding) Eliot exposes the substance of atomic diplomacy. With incomparable cynicism, he proposes that the United States use the atomic bomb as a diplomatic weapon in order to reach political concession.

"His list of concessions from the Soviet Union embraces all the important problems of the international situation from the Adriatic to Korea. Eliat's program looks very much like a most vulgar extortion."

Tass, meanwhile, said that the bomb test "disappointed millions of Americans who had been reading fantastic suppositions for months."

The government newspaper Ivestia on its foreign news page carried the one-column headline 'Tests atomic bomb in district of Bikini atoll," but made no editorial comment.

Eliot Denies Statement.

In New York, Eliot denied he had suggested the atomic bomb be used by the United States as a threat.

"What I said was that I thought military concessions should be made by both Russia and the United States to clear the air and make the atmosphere less tense," he said in commenting on the Pravda article. "I said we (the United States) might agree to stop manufacturing atomic bombs if these concessions were made—mutual concessions that would make everybody feel less tense around the council tables."

More Damage Seen From Next One

Aboard U.S.S. Mount McKinley, at Bikini, July 3 (AP)—The underwater test of the atomic bomb will do more damage to the guinea-pig fleet than the air burst did, Dr. Karl Compton predicted today.

Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and members of both the Presidential and Joint Chiefs of Staff Evaluation commissions, was not surprised that more ships were not sunk in the July 1 test.

His guess in advance had been that no ships would be sent to the bottom by the overhead bomb. Actually, five were.

The second test, expected in three or four weeks, will produce quite a high spout and some sizable waves, he said.

"Could Have Been Closer"

The evaluation board and correspondents could safely have been closer to the bomb explosion, Compton said. He estimated 12 miles would have been a safe distance. [The observers were from 15 to 18 miles away.]

For the coming underwater test Compton believes observers can be closer because the water will have some shielding effect. He made a guess that force of the underwater explosion will be expended mostly upward, rather than spherically. Nevertheless, he said the spherical blow that hits ships' bottoms will be powerful.

Cloud's Action Discussed

Compton and Bradley Dewey, president of the American Chemical Society and a fellow member of the President's Evaluation Board revealed that they accepted with reservations an opinion expressed by weather authorities on failure of the atomic mushroom cloud to soar to a greater height.

BURST HIGH IN AIR

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3—(AP)—A radio broadcast today from Kwajalein, recorded in San Francisco by NBC, said that "through some human or mechanical error, the (atomic) bomb detonated three seconds ahead of schedule" at Bikini Monday.

"This means it blew roughly a mile and a half higher than planned and so the greatest force blew skywards, not down," the broadcast continued.

"This bomb burst approximately four times higher than the one at Nagasaki."

'A' Bomb Test Side Lights

Fish Tale

Aboard U.S.S. McKinley, July 3 (AP)—Chief Electrician's Mate W. E. Phipps, of Redondo Beach, Cal., came up today with one of the weirdest stories of the atomic bomb test. He reported he saw a school of foot-long fish with their backs blistered swimming near the surface.

They appeared healthy, he said, except their backs looked raw as if sun burned.

Benefit

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, July 3 (AP) — Weather reconnaissance techniques developed for the atomic-bomb test will be of great value to American farmers when applied at home, Aerologist Ben Holzman, of Washington, predicted today.

Long-distance flights by reconnaissance planes enabled meteorologists to predict weather conditions 24 hours in advance.

Holzman said farmers could use such methods to great advantage. In coastal areas, they could use weather planes, for instance, to spot oncoming storms.

Scare

Kwajalein, July 3 (AP)—Dr. Royal M. Frye, Boston University physicist who photographed the atomic spectrum, innocently startled his observation plane passengers out of their seats at the approximate instant of the detonation.

As fellow observers subconsciously tensed for the flash and shock of the wave, he accidentally touched a screwdriver to an electric outlet plug. The resultant sparks aroused a momentary fear that the plane was radioactivated.

More Powerful Ones Expected

Washington, July 3 (AP)—New atomic bombs, far more deadly than any existing type, were predicted today by Dr. J. H. Rush, treasurer of the Federation of American Scientists.

Envisioning the shape of things to come, Rush declared: "It's sound to expect atomic bombs a lot more powerful than the present ones."

A member of the original A-bomb development staff at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Rush made his forecast when a reporter directed his attention to a statement by Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.) of the Senate's Special Atomic Committee that the Bikini bomb, like those used against Japan, was merely a "Model T," heralding immense more destructive types.

No One Sure, He Says

"Some of the top scientists," said Rush, "have commented that there are theoretical means of making the present type atomic bomb more destructive — and estimates of bombs 10 to 100 times more powerful than those which have been used have been kicked around as possibilit

"Nobody is free to say, of course, whether such bombs can be produced at present or in the immediate future, but with any new development there are inevitably refinements. And I believe that it's sound to expect atomic bombs a lot more powerful than the present ones."

Two Theories

Rush said theories on the production of more powerful bombs involve the solution of one or both of these factors:

1. Getting more fissionable material into a bomb than is now used—that is, producing physically larger bombs.

2. Increasing the efficiency of the explosion itself—that is, getting more of the component material to disintegrate.

Senator McMahon's "Model-T" tag for present-type bombs is in line with the opinions of [illegible] University of Chicago who already have told Mahon committee that "the bombs dropped on Japan are firecrackers compared to what will be developed in ten or twenty years."

Prospects "Promising"

Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, the atom-bomb chief, also has testified before this committee that he considers "the prospects of developing bombs of considerably greater destructive power . . . are promising."

But Groves added at that time: "When you go beyond this (original) size bomb you start to wonder where you are going to get a target that will require the full effect of this bomb.

"At Hiroshima we had such a target. In other words, it landed and there was space enough so that all its destructive energy could be used. At Nagasaki we did not have that opportunity. We had a long, narrow target, and the bomb was bigger than it had to be. There was a lot of wasted energy that went off to the sides. . . ."

Forrestal Leaves Marshalls.

Aboard U. S. S. Mt. McKinley, July 3 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, having witnessed the atomic bomb test, departed today from the Marshalls by plane on a round-the-world return trip to Washington.

'WHISPERING WIRES' UP AT REDIN TRIAL

Seattle, July 3 (A. P.).—The defense and jury in the espionage-conspiracy trial of Russian Navy Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin were expected today to learn whether the FBI obtained any "whispering wires" transcriptions of conversations between Redin and the Government's star witness, Herbert Kennedy, shipyard engineer.

Also to be answered was the oft-asked question whether the FBI obtained any incriminating fingerprints of the Russian in connection with two indictments charging that Redin obtained confidential data on the new destroyer tender U. S. S. Yellowstone and induced and attempted to induce Kennedy to obtain the information endangering the United States and benefitting the Soviet Union.

Seattle FBI agents were to be called to corroborate the 69-year-old engineer's testimony today. Allan Pomeroy, assistant United States Attorney, said he hoped to rest the Government's case tonight.

The defense so far has listed but three witnesses—an FBI agent to testify whether electrical recordings were made of the alleged conversations—and Lieut. Redin, and his 24-year-old wife, Calina.

The defense last night lost in the latest of several motions to strike from the case all the carbon-copies of the confidential information Kennedy testified he sold Redin for $250 after contacting the FBI last fall.

The motion was based on testimony of 34-year-old Mrs. Kennedy's testimony that Redin was not present when her husband copied the information; there was no evidence that the defendant ever saw or approved it, and that the carbon copies, without originals, was hearsay evidence. The Government countered that Kennedy testified he delivered the originals to Redin at Redin's request.

U. S. Rests Case Against Redin On Spy Charge

No Fingerprint Evidence or Recorded Conversations Are Produced in Court

SEATTLE, July 3 (AP).—The government rested its espionage-conspiracy case against Russian Naval Lieutenant Nicolai G. Redin this afternoon without introducing any direct evidence on whether fingerprints or "whispering wires" played a part in the investigation of charges that Redin obtained secret data on a new-type Navy ship.

The defense, in cross-examination of Joseph Walters, agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, attempted to suggest that the F. B. I. migh' have "manufactured" evidence against Redin.

Defense Attorney Tracy Griffin asked Mr. Walters if it was possible to have taken Redin's fingerprints at the time of his arrest and impressed them later on an envelope or other document. Mr. Walters said he didn't know.

The F. B. I. agent produced an envelope which the government contends contained $200 which Herbert Kennedy, shipyard engineer, testified Redin gave him for plans of the destroyer tender Yellowstone. Mr. Walters told the jury the envelope had been sent to Washington headquarters for examination, but he was not asked whether fingerprints had been found.

As the envelope, torn into three pieces, was being passed up to the court clerk, two pieces fell to the floor and Redin picked them up and examined them. Judge Lloyd Black, at request of the defense, then advised the jury to take notice that Redin had handled the envelope in court and that fingerprints could have been made then.

There was no evidence of recorded conversations, although Mr. Kennedy had testified previously his house was wired by the F. B. I.

Half a dozen F. B. I. agents testified today, tying up loose ends of the case.

The agents, stationed here and at Portland during the government's investigation of Redin's activities as liaison officer with the Soviet Purchasing Commission, gave circumstantial evidence, corroborating that Redin and Mr. Kennedy met on the dates Mr. Kennedy said they met for exchanges of information and cash.

They disclaimed all knowledge of any "wiring" of Redin's apartment, and Mr. Griffin was unable to draw from them why Redin was not immediately arrested and searched on the occasions when Mr. Kennedy says he delivered documents to him.

ENIES 4 JUSTICES RE ASKED TO QUIT

Washington, July 3 (A. P.).—Charles G. Ross, presidential ress secretary, described as fantastic and untrue in every articular" a story appearing today under the by-line of John O'Donnell of the New York Daily News that President Truman has asked four Supreme Court Justices to resign. Ross added to reporters that the report "was made up out of whole cloth."

O'Donnell said the four are Associate Justices Black, Jackson, Frankfurter and Murphy.

He wrote:

"The request that the resignations of the quarreling quartet would be most welcome at the White House has been conveyed to each in turn by word of mouth.

"The President has written no letter.

"Frank often got the bad news quietly across the White House desk from Truman."

Ross commented that Justice Frankfurter has not been in the White House since Mr. Truman became President.

Ross noted also that the President has no authority to require resignations from the high court, a point which O'Donnell conceded in his story.

Jackson expressed surprise and told a reporter: "I have no such information" when told of the report in Nuernberg, where he is chief American prosecutor in the war crimes trials.

SENATORS TO PUSH WORK ON MEASURE IN HOLIDAY SESSION

Majority Leader Proposes Elimination of Pricing Amendments.

OFFERS SUBSTITUTE

Would Use Average as Ceiling Price with 1940 as Base Year.

WASHINGTON, July 3. — (AP) The Senate Banking committee failed to agree on a new OPA bill tonight but Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) announced he expects to have one ready for the Senate floor by Friday.

The committee recessed after a four-hour session behind closed doors but will resume work tomorrow despite the July Fourth holiday.

Barkley proposed eliminating two Republican-sponsored pricing amendments from the OPA extension bill vetoed by President Truman, then sending it back to the White House.

Offers Substitute

When that plan met resistance Barkley countered with a proposed substitute for manufacturers' pricing amendments sponsored by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and singled out for bitter criticism by Mr. Truman in his veto message.

The Barkley substitute still was under consideration when the committee recessed until tomorrow.

Barkley said that after a decision is reached on that proposal, he probably will offer a substitute for the other amendment criticized particularly by Mr. Truman—one by Senator Wherry (R-Neb) setting out a price policy for wholesalers and retailers.

The Taft provision declared in substance that maximum prices applicable to producers, processors and manufacturers must reflect their prices during the first half of October, 1941, plus the weighted average increase in unit cost among typical members of the industry in question.

1940 as Base Period

The Barkley substitute differs in two major particulars: It makes the base period the calendar year 1940, and provides that the ceilings must provide "not less than the average dollar price of such commodity during the base period, plus the increase cost of producing, manufacturing or processing the same accruing since the base period."

Thus, under Barkley's plan, the average price of the commodity among the producers, etc., would govern, instead of each man's base period price.

Barkley announced his expectations of having a bill Friday on the Senate floor after Senator Pepper (D-Fla) called for action on the 20-day extension bill passed by the House.

At the outset of the Banking committee session, Senator Capehart (R-Ind), tried once again to gain committee approval of a resolution extending rent control alone for another year. He reported his motion was beaten on a straight party division with Republicans for it and Democrats against.

Involved parliamentary maneuvering preceded consideration of Barkley's substitute amendment. First he moved that instead of considering a House-approved bill giving OPA a temporary extension to July 20, the committee take up the vetoed bill, minus the Taft and Wherry amendments. Taft offered both amendments again. Then Barkley countered with his substitute.

Taft Asks Delay

Taft told reporters he thought the latter furnished "a reasonable basis for discussion," although he said he wants to study it more before making up his mind. He said it is immaterial to him whether the base period is 1940 or 1941.

Barkley said he had proceeded on the theory that "no simple bill continuing OPA can be adopted, and that the two houses would give favorable consideration to those provisions least objectionable to the President."

"The core of his objections seemed to be that the Taft and Wherry amendments," he commented.

He said he is very hopeful of getting a bill out of committee tomorrow. He obtained permission earlier from the Senate to report it tomorrow—if possible—while the Senate is in recess. That would enable it to be taken up in the Senate Friday.

Barkley agreed that OPA officials probably would prefer a bill without any amendments at all.

"But we can't deal with theories here," he remarked.

Hopes to Curb Increases

Asked whether price increases under his substitute would be less than those under the Taft amendment, Barkley replied:

"That's my opinion. I certainly hope so."

Meanwhile the nation's wholesale markets steadied in a growing belief that Congress might revive the OPA with a price roll-back to the June 30 ceilings. And Secretary of Agriculture Anderson asked the dairy industry to maintain former prices until Congress acts, notwithstanding the present lapse of subsidies.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) issued a statement declaring that "Chester Bowles and others of the Truman Administration are issuing hysterical statements to force a buying rush as propaganda for their OPA position." He urged the public not to be "stamped while the Congress is attempting to straighten out the confusion into which President Truman's veto of the OPA bill has thrown the country."

Before the Banking committee met, Senator Murdock (D-Utah) reported indications that some Democrats who supported restrictions in the original bill which President Truman vetoed now have changed their attitude.

"I think the President has solidified his party behind his position on the price control question as it never was solidified before," he told a reporter, pointing to the House vote on a 20-day extension which only one Democrat opposed.

Price Climb On Food Continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Meat, milk and butter prices crept upward in the nation's retail stores yesterday despite a temporary halt in the rising livestock market and a plea from Secretary of Agriculture Anderson to defer increases in dairy products until the question of future price control and subsidies is settled.

The House-approved resolution for a 20-day extension of OPA finally reached the Senate Banking committee amid growing convictions that price control would be restored, at least temporarily.

This trend was evident in Wall street, where traders poked through the slowest session since last August, and also in the grain and livestock markets.

Cattle Prices at Peak

In Chicago, cattle prices reached the record $22.50 top established Tuesday and hog prices stopped $1 short of the $18.50 peak recorded Monday, their best price since 1919.

Although stockyards throughout the country generally were jammed with unusually large shipments, major packers stuck to the sidelines, content to wait for a final decision on disposition of OPA.

Butter reappeared on the New York City and Boston wholesale markets for the first time since OPA expired but loss of the 15-cent-a-pound subsidy was reflected in price hikes hovering between 13 and 15 cents a pound.

Milk Prices Climb

Milk went up two and three cents a quart in Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and in some parts of New York state.

Anderson told dairymen he hoped "congressional action, if taken, will include subsidy provisions designed to permit orderly liquidation of subsidies without shock to producers and consumers."

Reports of higher meat prices came from many areas with the increase ranging from six or seven cents a pound to 20 cents a pound, the latter instance in shortage-ridden New York city.

The rent picture remained confusing with landlords commencing to rebel in some states where emergency controls had been applied.

In Massachusetts, Gov. Maurice Tobin ordered prosecution of landlords who challenged the legality of his order freezing rents at the OPA level.

New Jersey authorities decided that state's emergency order must be modified before it can become effective since no punishment was prescribed for violators.

M'MAHON EXPLAINS STAND ON BOWLES

WASHINGTON, July 3—(AP) Senator McMahon (D-Conn.) declared today that "any reports that I have advised Chester Bowles to 'abandon hopes' for the Democratic nomination for governor of Connecticut are in error."

"I know of no individual who has the authority to do such a thing," he added.

Replying to a reporter's question concerning published stories that he has told the recently resigned stabilization director to step aside in the gubernatorial nomination race in favor of Lieut. Gov. Wilbert T. Snow, McMahon replied:

"I have issued no ultimatums to Bowles, nor to anyone else, regarding any office, and to my knowledge he has issued none. I don't think either of us is built that way."

McMahon told reporters yesterday that he had discussed with Bowles purported statements by Bowles that he was interested in the governorship and no other office. The Senator said Bowles told him he had neither issued nor authorized such a statement and that he would make no decisions on his future until he had taken a vacation and talked the matter over with party leaders.

The senator said he had not been in contact with Bowles since that talk.

Inflation Prospect Told By FRB

Washington, July 3 (AP)—"Collective bargaining with strong unions, price stability and full employment" were declared "incompatible" today in a study published by the Federal Reserve Board.

"We can have any two of these, but not all three," said the author, Charles O. Hardy, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, in an analysis of prospects of inflation during the transition from war to peace.

"So long as union power is not dampened down by unemployment, there is no apparent power in the State strong enough to check a parallel upward sweep of wages and prices," he commented.

General Rise Forecast

The analysis forecast a general price rise of twenty per cent by the end of 1947 even with controls, which ended this week with OPA's death, and said the increase would go even higher if "the present national policy" on wages is continued.

Hardy defined that policy as "encouraging and supporting demands for higher wages even though such increases may necessitate higher prices."

The study declared there could be "no escape" from continuance of price controls over houses, automobiles, grains and other critically scarce articles into 1947, "unless we are willing to pay very high prices."

New Techniques Aid Doubted

Hardy challenged contentions that large gains in labor productivity will result soon from peacetime application of new production techniques learned during the war.

"In most lines," he said, "the genuine gains from the research done in wartime will accrue in the more distant future. They will count for little in 1946-47 because their application to nonwar industry will require added research, new investment and added experience."

Zinc Price Raised Above OPA Level

New York, July 3 (AP)—Zinc joined lead today in a price upswing.

The American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Company announced an advance of 1¼ cents a pound over the ceiling price to 9½ cents a pound f.o.b. East St. Louis, Ill., for prime Western slab zinc, with other grades at the customary premium.

Two leading lead companies increased the price of the heavy metal yesterday by a similar 1¼ cents hike to 9½ cents a pound.

In both instances, the increases reflected the lapse of governmental subsidies and brought prices in line with London quotations.

Copper Price Holds

The copper industry, on the other hand, reported it was holding at the old ceiling price of 14⅜ cents a pound, but with no sales recorded.

Trade circles said the price will probably continue to be tied to the one set by the Government's metal reserve, which has most of the currently available supply of copper, and has indicated it will hold to the old prices at present on copper, lead and zinc.

Coffee Trade Ups Prices

Rio de Janeiro, July 3 (AP)—The financial morning newspaper Informacao said today that deals had already been made for Santos coffee at prices higher than the former OPA ceiling.

Coffee circles generally were hesitant in making predictions in view of the confusion surrounding the death of the OPA.

Informacao, however, forecast continued high prices with European markets opening and the United States freed from price controls.

Clayton Urges Rejection Of U.N.R.R.A. Condition

Sees Rider on News Injuring Relations With Russia

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP).—Assistant Secretary of State William L. Clayton tonight urged the Senate to strike from a pending United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration appropriation bill a provision which would deny aid to any country which censors news about U. N. R. R. A. operations.

In a 1,500-word letter to Senate President Kenneth McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, Mr. Clayton declared that this provision, already passed by the House, "would seriously complicate all our relations with the Soviet Union and would, without achieving any tangible benefit for us, make far more difficult negotiations on many other issues."

Mr. Clayton said that while Russia maintains its general censorship rules, "no attempt has in fact been made to restrain the free flow of information regarding the distribution of U. N. R. R. A. supplies."

JUL 4 1946

3 Confirmed for World Posts

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—The Senate approved today the nomination of Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder to be United States Governor of the International Bank and Monetary Fund for a five-year term.

It also approved after a protest by Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, the nominations of John S. Hooker of Maryland to be alternate executive director of the International Bank and of George F. Lutheringer of New Jersey to be alternate executive director of the Monetary Fund.

FIGHT CONTINUES ON MERGER PLAN

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—Navy-minded lawmakers outlined a two-pronged attack today upon the latest plan for unification of the land, sea and air forces into a single cabinet department.

First they directed acting Secretary of the Navy W. John Kennedy to prepare a written brief on Navy objections and carry this to the President's desk.

Second they opened a fight upon pending legislation, approved by the Senate Military committee with backing of the War department, as not following President Truman's explicit recommendations for a compromise.

Senator Walsh (D-Mass), chairman of the Senate Naval committee, outlined this strategy to reporters after a second consecutive day of closed-door testimony.

Witnesses today included acting Secretary Kenney and Ferdinand Eberstadt, New York city consultant who has devised a compromise that calls for a separate Army, Navy, and air departments, each with cabinet representation.

President Truman has asked for speedy congressional action on the single department plan several times and recently announced a White House compromise which he expected naval as well as army leaders to support.

HOUSE OPPONENTS OF BRITISH LOAN UNITE FOR BATTLE

JUL 4 1946

WASHINGTON, July 3 — (AP) Opposition to the proposed $3,750,000,000 loan to Britain took organized form in the House today.

Seventy-five of the 433 House members issued a statement calling on Congress to look after America's war veterans and aged, before making any huge foreign loans.

The 75 said they would "dedicate" the day debate begins on the loan bill as "veterans's" and old age pension day."

Nearly all the group—which included 74 Republicans and one Progressive from 22 states—have previously voiced opposition to the proposed grant.

Form Opposition Block

But this was the first time they had registered their views jointly and indicated the strength of their bloc.

This development occurred as some key legislators began modifying earlier predictions of approval for the loan.

Several of these law-makers, who earlier had flatly predicted passage, now told newsmen privately that the outlook is uncertain.

They said that all indications point to an extremely close vote on the bill, which the Senate approved 46 to 34.

Two developments have tended to swing support away from the legislation, they said. These were:

1. The British handling of the Palestine question in recent weeks.
2. The successful race for renomination by Senator Butler (R-Neb), an avowed loan opponent.

Spence Confident

Many supporters of the proposal remain confident, however. Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the Banking committee told newsmen he still holds to his view that the bill will pass by a "safe margin."

Today's statement was made public by Rep. Landis (R-Ind). It asserted:

"We the undersigned dedicate the day, if and when, the British loan comes on the floor of the House as veteran's and old age pension day. We believe our veterans and old folks should be adequately taken care of before we make any gigantic loans or gifts to foreign countries."

Across the bottom of the statement was printed the slogan "There will always be a U.S.A. If we don't give it away."

Debate on the loan bill now is scheduled to begin Monday, with a vote expected by next weekend.

REP. MAY'S PLEA AIDED WAR PLANT

JUL 4 1946

WASHINGTON, July 3 — (AP) The Senate War Investigating committee heard today that a wartime munitions combine, obtained a contract as a result of an appeal by Rep. May (D-Ky) to Secretary of War Patterson, then undersecretary.

It also was told that Patterson supported the promoters in an argument with War department officials over more manpower, and in obtaining an Army-Navy "E" award for excellence.

Aided Illinois Firms

The testimony came after new disclosures of activity on the part of May, chairman of the House Military committee, in behalf of the Batavia and Erie Basin Metal Products corporations, two of the 19 closely-linked corporations under investigation.

"Let the chips fall where they may," ordered Chairman Mead (D-NY) as the story unfolded of the Garsson brothers—Henry and Murray—in obtaining influential Washington support.

May said in Pikeville, Ky., that it was "a lot of hooey" to link him with the companies. He declared that what he did "was only a matter of expediting the war effort" and that "every congressman did the same thing."

Patterson's name was brought into the inquiry by introduction of an inked-out passage in a 20-month-old War department memorandum on a conference between Brig. Gen. F. R. Denton, now in the banking business in Pittsburgh, and Col. William F. Brennan, now an attorney in Newark, N. J.

Secretary Reads Memo

Denton had the memorandum prepared for War department files at the time. It actually was written by blonde and comely Dorothea Molander, War department secretary, who read the scratched-out but still legible passage into the committee records. It said:

"The reason the eight-inch shell contract was given to Batavia was because the Garssons put pressure on Congressman May, who in turn asked Judge Patterson for the contract. General Campbell was contacted on the matter and he ordered General Hardy to place the contract."

It was dated Nov. 15, 1944. Patterson then was undersecretary of war.

Denton said the passage was based upon a remark made by Brennan. He explained that he ordered it struck out because he was under the impression that Brennan was repeating "rumor or gossip."

But Brennan testified that it was based upon conversation with ordnance officers with whom he was closely associated. He said that he could not remember exactly who had furnished him the information.

Testified on Patterson

He testified later, however, that Patterson had twice intervened personally in affairs concerning firms with which the Garssons are associated—once in connection with a request for an increased manpower quota and again about an Army-Navy "E" award.

Brennan, former chief of the labor branch in the War department's industrial services division, reviewed a long series of arguments between the Garssons and War department officials and said there was considerable "resentment" because Henry Garsson "frequently went over their heads."

He said that Patterson, at one point, had promised the Garssons "any ceiling, almost" for their manpower requirements despite recommendations of officers in the field.

Brennan read from a memorandum which Patterson had sent him in which the undersecretary purportedly wrote that it "seems silly for the War Manpower commission to split hairs" on the Garssons' request for a manpower increase from 739 to 1,000 for their Batavia factory.

He did not develop Patterson's connection with the "E" award.

He was still testifying when the committee adjourned until Friday.

Henry Garsson meanwhile hired two Washington public relations experts.

The committee received testimony that May took steps to:

1. Prevent cancellation of a contract; and
2. "Unfreeze $200,000 in blocked payments to two of the 19 corporations under investigation.

Testimony yesterday was that May also interceded in the interest of obtaining contracts for the companies.

Maj. Gen. William N. Porter acknowledged that he considered it "peculiar" that May, chairman of the influential House Military committee, had gone to bat for companies located outside of his own legislative district.

Once again, the committee dusted off an old War department transcript of a telephone conversation to bring out a remark by Porter that "Mr. May is on my neck and yours. Of course he gets strange ideas and sometimes he makes trouble."

JUL 4 1946

Two Transcripts Reported

That transcript was one of two read into the record today. The other was a telephone conversation containing May's protest to Porter, then chief of the chemical warfare service, that cancellation of a contract for the Batavia Metal Products Company, Inc., was "crazy stuff."

In that conversation in December of 1944, May mentioned a plan by Col. H. A. Tetlow, chief of the facilities and inspection branch, to halt production of powder drums at Batavia and turn the work over to "new producers."

Committee members evidenced considerable interest in whether the War department made a general practice of recording telephone conversations from Capitol Hill.

Porter said that he made it a practice—"when a member of Congress called up, I pushed a button." That turned on a recording device, although, he said, "it takes a few minutes for the bulbs to get warmed up."

In the case of May's conversation about the Batavia contract, he said he "pushed the button" when May's remarks "got to a point where I thought they should be recorded.

"When they began to get hot," observed Ferguson.

Porter told the committee that Batavia attempted unsuccessfully to collect from the government the cost of a $16,000 banquet in Chicago to celebrate an Army-Navy "E" award for production.

9,800 Army Officers Confirmed

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—The Senate confirmed today the commissioning in the Regular Army of 9,800 World War II veterans chosen as among "the best leaders in the world today." These men were selected by the War Department from 108,000 applicants who held temporary commissions in the wartime citizen army. In the group are 600 majors, 2,000 captains, 6,100 first lieutenants and 1,100 second lieutenants.

RED CROSS HEAD FEARS OUTBREAK OF NEW WAR

NEW YORK, July 3—(AP) Basil O'Connor, chairman of the American Red Cross, said today he "frankly" expected another war.

O'Connor, who left LaGuardia field by plane for London to attend a meeting of the League of Red Cross Societies at Oxford, said in answer to a question about whether he expected another war:

"Frankly, yes. Everyone must plan on that basis. We can't be Utopian. We must sit down and plan as though there will be another war."

He said that one of the prime purposes of the Red Cross for the future would be to "keep down human damage in war." Another problem to be discussed at the meeting, he said, is "getting relief to prisoners of war, especially civilian prisoners and internees."

NEW YORK, JULY 3-(AP)-TRYGVE LIE, SECRETARY-GENERAL OF THE UNITED NATIONS, INDICATED TONIGHT THAT PLANS FOR THE SEPT. 3 MEETING OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY MIGHT HAVE TO BE CHANGED IF THE WORLD PEACE CONFERENCE IS IN SESSION IN SEPTEMBER.

LIE DECLINED TO SAY SPECIFICALLY WHETHER THE ASSEMBLY MEETING MIGHT BE POSTPONED, BUT WHEN ASKED WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF THE PEACE CONFERENCE WAS IN SESSION AT THAT TIME HE SAID IT WOULD POSE A VERY DIFFICULT PROBLEM.

MANY HIGH-RANKING DIPLOMATS WOULD BE ABSENT FROM NEW YORK DURING DISCUSSION OF SUCH CONTROVERSIAL ISSUES AS THE USE OF THE VETO IN THE SECURITY COUNCIL AND POSSIBLE ACTION AGAINST FRANCO SPAIN.

LIE MADE HIS REMARKS AT A PRESS CONFERENCE ON THE EVE OF A MONTH'S TRIP TO EUROPE TO WIND UP HIS PERSONAL AFFAIRS IN OSLO AND TO VISIT U.N. ESTABLISHMENTS IN LONDON, GENEVA AND THE HAGUE.

HE SAID HE HAD NOT HAD ANY OFFICIAL WORD ON THE REPORTED AGREEMENT TODAY AMONG THE BIG FOUR FOREIGN MINISTERS IN PARIS TO PLACE TRIESTE UNDER SECURITY COUNCIL CONTROL. HE SAID THE QUESTION AS TO WHICH ORGAN OF THE U.N. WOULD CONTROL THE PROPOSED FREE CITY DEPENDED UPON THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE FOUR POWERS.

HE POINTED OUT THAT UNDER THE CHARTER THE SECURITY COUNCIL HAD AUTHORITY TO CREATE SPECIAL ORGANS SUBORDINATE TO IT AND SAID THAT SUCH ACTION WAS ONE POSSIBILITY. HE EXPRESSED THE OPINION THAT TRIESTE WOULD NOT FALL UNDER THE JURISDICTION OF THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL SINCE THAT WAS INTENDED ONLY TO GOVERN FORMER COLONIES AND MANDATES. #

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, JULY 4-(AP)-THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE SAID TODAY THAT ANDREI A. GROMYKO, SOVIET REPRESENTATIVE ON THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL, HAS REBUTTED CRITCISMS THAT THE SOVIET UNION HAS USED ITS COUNCIL VETO POWERS TOO OFTEN.

IN AN INTERVIEW YESTERDAY WITH PETER KIHSS, HERALD TRIBUNE REPORTER, THE SOVIET REPRESENTATIVE TOOK SPECIAL ISSUE WITH ACCOUNTS OF A RADIO BROADCAST LAST SATURDAY NIGHT BY HERSCHEL V. JOHNSON AND DR. QUO TAI-CHI, AMERICAN AND CHINESE DELEGATES RESPECTIVELY, WHICH DEPICTED THEM AS HOLDING THAT THE SOVIET UNION HAD USED THE VETO TOO OFTEN. ALTHOUGH RUSSIA WAS NOT NAMED BY JOHNSON AND QUO, BOTH SAID THE VETO SHOULD BE EMPLOYED WITH RESTRAINT AND NOT TO PREVENT PEACEFUL SETTLEMENTS AGREED TO BY A MAJORITY.

REFERRING TO LAST WEEK'S COUNCIL MEETING WHICH DEALT WITH THE ISSUE OF HANDLING GENERALISSIMO FRANCO'S SPAIN, GROMYKO DECLARED THAT THERE HAD BEEN IN EFFECT NO NEW VETO AT ALL IN THAT SESSION BUT "A REPETITION OF THE SAME QUESTION AND THE SAME VETO," THE HERALD TRIBUNE SAID.

THE MATTERS RAISED THEN HAD BEN CONEIDERED AND VETOED IN PREVIOUS MEETINGS, GROMYKO SAID. THE QUESTION MIGHT EVEN BE BROUGHT UP IN THE FUTURE, GROMYKO SAID, OBLIGING HIM TO VETO IT IN THE SAME WAY.

DECLARING THAT HE CONSIDERED THE NEED FOR PRESERVING PEACE TO BE THE HIGHEST AND MOST SOLEMN PRINCIPLE, GROMYKO SAID THAT SOME SECTIONS OF THE AMERICAN PRESS WERE DISTORTING REPORTS ABOUT THE U.S.S.R. AND ITS POLICY.

MOST HARMFUL, HE SAID, WAS WHAT HE CALLED THE ACTION OF SOME PARTS OF THE PRESS IN DISCUSSING AND EVEN PREDICTING WAR. "SUCH ACTION," THE HERALD TRIBUNE QUOTED HIM AS SAYING, "CAN BE CONSIDERED AS TREACHERY TOWARD OUR COMMON CAUSE IN REGARD TO THE PEOPLE OF ALL THE UNITED NATIIONS, INCLUDING THE AMERICAN PEOPLE."

THEY VOTED ON A PLAN TO EXPROPRIATE AND NATIONALIZE INDUSTRIES IN THE STATE OF SAXONY WHICH FORMERLY BELONGED TO PERSONS CLASSIFIED AS WAR CRIMINALS AND ACTIVE NAZIS.

(BASED ON FINAL RESULTS AS ANNOUNCED BY SOVIET AUTHORITIES JULY 1, THE PROPOSAL WAS APPROVED BY 77.7 PERCENT OF MORE THAN 3,000,000 VOTERS. IT MAKES STATE PROPERTY OF ABOUT 500 PLANTS, AND THE PLAN IS GENERALLY REGARDED AS ONE WHICH WILL BE ADOPTED LATER IN OTHER STATES AND PROVINCES IN THE RUSSIAN ZONE.)

SEVEN AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS CAME HERE TODAY ON A CONDUCTED TOUR TO OBSERVE THE VOTING WHICH WAS CONSPICUOUS FOR THE ABSENCE OF ANY OPPOSITION PROPAGANDA. THE PROPOSAL WAS ENDORSED BY CENTRIST AS WELL AS BY LEFTIST POLITICAL PARTIES.

A RUSSIAN OFFICER TOLD NEWSMEN: "THERE CAN BE NO QUESTION OF THE OUTCOME. WE ARE JUST GIVING THE GERMANS SOMETHING TO VOTE ON TO GET THEM USED TO THE IDEA OF VOTING AGAIN."

THE FAT, JOVIAL COMMUNIST MAYOR OF PLAUEN, ALFRED DITTEL, TOLD CORRESPONDENTS THAT NOT ONLY WERE THE THREE POLITICAL PARTIES 100 PERCENT FOR THE PROPOSITION, BUT THAT THE CATHOLIC AND PROTESTANT CHURCHES HAD FORMALLY ENDORSED IT. JUL 4 1946

LATRUN PRISON CAMP, PALESTINE, JULY 3-(AP)-EXECUTIVE MEMBERS OF THE JEWISH AGENCY WHO HAVE BEEN HELD INCOMMUNICADO FOR FIVE DAYS BEHIND BARBED WIRE IN THIS SUNBAKED PRISON CAMP WERE SEEN TODAY BY FOREIGN NEWSMEN, BUT WERE NOT PERMITTED TO BE INTERVIEWED.

THEY ARE BEING HELD IN A SPECIAL SECTION APART FROM 400 OTHER JEWISH MEN. THEIR UNPAINTED WOODEN BARRACKS WITH TIN ROOFS ARE THE SAME TYPE STRUCTURES WHICH HOUSE THE OTHER PRISONERS.

Bangkok, Siam, July 3-(AP)-The Siamese government placed all BANGKOK newspapers under censorship today, asserting it was necessary because (U) THE of "disregard for truth [redacted] shown by the press over King Ananda MAHIDOL'S death."

A medical commission reported earlier this week that the youthful monarch was assassinated.

The government said yesterday that a national state of emergency still existed. Lt. Gen. Phra Ram Indra, commander of Siamese police, issued a communique saying all publishers, editors, printers and newspaper owners would be held responsible for submitting all news before publication to a six man censorship board of the information ministry. Army officers, police and civil servants are on the [redacted] board.

A week ago, Gen. Adun Detcharat, considered Siam's military strong man, was appointed army commander. The appointment and the censorship were interpreted as precautions against possible revolution.

ABOARD PRINZ EUGEN, JULY 3-(AP)-ONE OPEN VENTILATOR DID MORE DAMAGE TO THIS GERMAN CRUISER AT BIKINI ATOLL DURING THE ATOMIC BOMB TEST THAN DID THE TOUGHEST NAVAL ACTIONS OF THE WAR.

THE 10,000-TON PRINZ EUGEN, WHICH PARTICIPATED IN THE SINKING OF THE BRITISH BATTLE CRUISER HOOD, STILL IS READY TO PUT TO SEA, BUT SHE TOOK MORE OF A BEATING JULY 1 THAN AT ANY OTHER TIME IN HER CAREER.

THE ONLY WAR SCAR VISIBLE ON THE SHIP IS A SMALL NICK ON THE BARREL OF ONE OF HER 33-CENTIMETER GUNS.

THE PRINZ EUGEN WAS PLACED 2,100 YARDS FROM THE BATTLESHIP NEVADA, THE ATOM BOMB TARGET. THE BOMB FELL 300 YARDS SHORT, IN THE PRINZ EUGEN'S DIRECTION. THUS AT A DISTANCE OF APPROXIMATELY ONE MILE SHE WAS ONE OF THE BEST EXAMPLES OF ATOMIC BOMB ACTION IN THE ENTIRE TARGET ARRAY.

HER BOW WAS BLACKED BY THE BLAST AND HER TURRETS CAST SHADOWS ON THE SUPERSTRUCTURE WHICH GAVE THE CLEAREST OF ALL INDICATIONS THAT THE ATOM BOMB WAS A MISS. THOSE SHADOWS,ETCHED WITH FIRE AGAINST THE UPPER WORKS, SHOWED THE EXACT ANGLE OF THE BURST.

YET NONE OF THIS PUT THE PRINZ EUGEN OUT OF ACTION. HOWEVER, THREE DECKS BELOW, A SAILOR HAD FAILED TO SECURE A VENTILATOR HATCH. IT WAS ONLY TWELVE INCHES IN DIAMETER, YET SO TERRIFIC WAS THE ATOM BOMB PRESSURE THAT THE BLAST WHICH CAME DOWN THROUGH THAT VENTILATOR BOWED BULKHEADS ALMOST INTO A SEMI-CIRCLE.

THE PRINZ EUGEN IS A "LIVABLE" SHIP, WITH FULL WOODEN DECKS, YET THE ATOM BLAST BARELY SEARED HER PAINT TOPSIDE. THAT SINGLE OPEN VENTILATOR DID DAMAGE INSIDE WHICH WOULD HAVE KILLED MANY MEN. HER LIVING SPACES WOULD HAVE BEEN DEATH TRAPS.

THIS TYPIFIES THE WORK OF THE ATOM BOMB. THE BLAST AND UNBELIEVABLE HEAT APPARENTLY LASTED ONLY A FEW SECONDS, YET IN THOSE FEW SECONDS THE PRINZ EUGEN WAS HURT WORSE THAN THROUGH HER ENTIRE WAR CAREER.

(ADVANCE)...SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 3-(AP)-ATOM BOMB CASUALTIES AT HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI AGGREGATED ABOUT 320,000 INCLUDING THE LESS SERIOUSLY INJURED, DR.GEORGE V.LEROY (CAP'R) OF CHICAGO, AN OFFICIAL U.S.INVESTIGATOR, REPORTED TODAY TO THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

HIS REPORT WAS THE FIRST AUTHORITATIVE DETAILED ACCOUNT OF THE EFFECTS OF THE ATOM BOMB ON HUMANS, AND CAME AT A TIME WHEN INTEREST IS FOCUSED ON THE BIKINI RESULTS.

THE DEAD TOTALLED ABOUT 120,000--AT HIROSHIMA 80,000 AND AT NAGASAKI 40,000.

THERE WERE 40,000 INJURED AT HIROSHIMA AND 25,000 AT NAGASAKI. THE HIROSHIMA BLAST ALSO LEFT 85,000 OTHERS IN NEED OF IMMEDIATE MEDICAL CARE, AND AT NAGASAKI THE CORRESPONDING FIGURE WAS 50,000.

THESE OFFICIAL FIGURES--DR.LEROY WAS A MEMBER OF THE JOINT COMMISSION INVESTIGATING THE BOMB'S EFFECTS--WERE SOMEWHAT HIGHER THAN PREVIOUSLY REPORTED BY U.S.SOURCES, BUT LOWER THAN SOME WHICH CAME FROM THE JAPANESE.

ALTHOUGH THE TOTAL DEATHS FAILED TO EQUAL THE 143,000 CAUSED IN THE TOKYO AREA EARTHQUAKE OF 1923, THE TWO ATOM BLASTS PROBABLY INITIATED A FAR GREATER HOSPITAL AND FIRST AID EMERGENCY.

IN EACH CITY, DR.LEROY SAID, ABOUT ONE-SIXTH THE TOTAL CASUALTIES WERE KILLED INSTANTLY OR DIED UNDER CIRCUMSTANCES WHERE NO HELP WAS POSSIBLE. THEY WERE BURNED TO DEATH BY THE DIRECT HEAT OF THE BOMB, CRUSHED UNDER DEMOLISHED BUILDINGS, OR TRAPPED IN BURNING DEBRIS.

"A SOMEWHAT SMALLER GROUP, PERHAPS ONE-SEVENTH OF THE NUMBER OF FATALITIES, ESCAPED BOTH MECHANICAL INJURIES AND BURNS BUT RECEIVED SUFFICIENT DOES OF GAMMA RAYS (X-RAYS) SO THAT THEY BECAME SICK ONE TO FIVE WEEKS LATER."

DR.LEROY ADDED THAT IF THE EXPLOSIONS HAD OCCURRED IN MODERN CITIES OF THE WESTERN WORLD, PLASMA, WHOLE BLOOD AND PENICILLIN WOULD HAVE REDUCED THE FATALITIES.

FOUR DIFFERENT KINDS OF ENERGY--BLAST, HEAT, LIGHT, AND RADIATION--DID THE DAMAGE.

THE DURATION OF THE ENERGY RELEASE, DR.LEROY SAID, WAS ABOUT ONE SECOND. HE SAID THE BLAST WRECKED STEEL-FRAME BUILDINGS 4,700 FEET FROM ITS CENTER AND WOODEN HOUSES 8,000 FEET AWAY.

THE HEAT SCORCHED OBJECTS AS FAR AWAY AS 11,000 FEET, OR MORE THAN TWO MILES. PEOPLE RECEIVED SERIOUS FLASH BURNS AS FAR DISTANT AS 2 1/2 MILES. THOSE WEARING DARK CLOTHING WERE MORE SEVERELY BURNED THAN THOSE IN WHITE.

SEVENTY PERCENT OF THE CASUALTIES SUSTAINED WOUNDS, 65 TO 85 PER CENT HAD BURNS, AND MORE THAN 30 PER CENT WERE CAUGHT IN THE RADIATION. THE FIGURES INDICATE THAT SOME HAD WOUNDS AND BURNS--OR AT LEAST MORE THAN ONE OF THE THREE TYPES OF INJURY.

NINETY-FIVE PER CENT OF THE BURNS WERE CAUSED BY THE BOMB FLASH. THE OTHER 5 PERCENT WERE RECEIVED IN FIRES.

DR.LEROY SAID IT WAS DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN EXACT INFORMATION ABOUT RADIATION INJURY.

HOWEVER, HE REPORTED THE MAJORITY OF THESE HAD NAUSEA SEVERAL HOURS AFTER THE BLASTS. THOSE WHO RECEIVED THE LARGEST RADIATION DOSES HAD FEVER AND DIARRHEA THE NEXT DAY. SOME DEVELOPED PURPLE PATCHES UNDER THE SKIN, CAUSED BY BROKEN BLOOD VESSELS. IN FOUR TO

SEVEN DAYS. THESE VICTIMS USUALLY FAILED RAPIDLY AND DIED SUDDENLY.
IN ONE GROUP OF DEAD, BRAIN HEMORRHAGE WAS FOUND IN 60 PERCENT OF THE CASES.
OTHER RADIATION EFFECTS, APPEARING SEVEN TO 28 DAYS AFTERWARD, INCLUDED STOMACH AND INTESTINAL DISTURBANCES, FEVER AND SHARP REDUCTION OF THE RED AND WHITE CELLS IN THE BLOOD.
MANY PEOPLE LOST THEIR HAIR. THE BONE MARROW, WHICH PRODUCES THE BLOOD CELLS, WAS DAMAGED IN SOME CASES, AS WERE THE LYMPH GLANDS.
THE SEX GLANDS OF MEN WHO RECEIVED APPRECIABLE AMOUNTS OF RADIATION WERE AFFECTED, BUT THE FEMALE REPRODUCTIVE ORGANS WERE AFFECTED TO A MUCH LESSER EXTENT.

SEATTLE, JULY 3 (AP)-RUSSIAN NAVY LT. NICOLAI G. REDIN WAS UNDER FBI SURVEILLANCE HERE AS EARLY AS DECEMBER 1944, FBI SPECIAL AGENT GEORGE L. KROLL OF HOUSTON, TEX., TESTIFIED IN REDIN'S ESPIONAGE-CONSPIRACY TRIAL IN U.S. DISTRICT COURT TODAY.

THAT DEVELOPED DURING CROSS EXAMINATION IN WHICH DEFENSE ATTORNEY TRACY GRIFFIN WAS STOPPED BY GOVERNMENT OBJECTIONS FROM QUESTIONING KROLL AS TO WHETHER THE FBI WIRED THE LIEUTENANT'S APARTMENT TO OVERHEAR CONVERSATIONS.

KROLL, ONE OF A SERIES OF FBI AGENTS TESTIFYING AS THE GOVERNMENT'S CASE NEARED AN END, SAID HE HAD KNOWN WHO REDIN IS SINCE DECEMBER 1944 AND HAD KNOWN THE IDENTITY OF HERBERT KENNEDY, 69, SEATTLE SHIPYARD ENGINEER AND GOVERNMENT KEY WITNESS, SINCE EARLY IN 1945. HE ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT THE FBI NEVER TALKED TO KENNEDY UNTIL KENNEDY MADE AN APPOINTMENT IN THE LOCAL OFFICES LAST OCTOBER.

GRIFFIN ASKED IF "DURING THE FIGHTING WAR ON TWO FRONTS YOU MADE IT YOUR BUSINESS--THE FBI'S BUSINESS--TO LEARN THE ACTIVITIES OF ALL RUSSIAN NATIONALS IN SEATTLE."

"WE HAD REASONS TO LEARN THE ACTIVITIES OF CERTAIN RUSSIANS," SAID KROLL, WHO WAS TRANSFERRED FROM SEATTLE TO HOUSTON ONLY TWO MONTHS AGO.

GRIFFIN ASKED IF THE FBI HADN'T ENTERED REDIN'S APARTMENT LONG PRIOR TO LAST OCTOBER. KROLL SAID HE DIDN'T KNOW.

QUESTIONS ALSO WERE EXPECTED ON WHETHER THE FBI OBTAINED ANY FINGERPRINTS OF REDIN IN CONNECTION WITH CHARGES THAT HE OBTAINED CONFIDENTIAL DATA FROM KENNEDY ON THE NEW DESTROYER TENDER USS YELLOWSTONE.

WASHINGTON, JULY 3-(AP)-NIKOLAI V. NOVIKOV, NEW RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR TO THIS COUNTRY, PROMISED TODAY THAT THE SOVIET UNION "WILL NEVER START A WAR AGAINST THE UNITED STATES OR ANYONE ELSE."

AND BY THE SAME TOKEN, HE SAID HE KNEW THAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY DO NOT WANT TO FIGHT ANYONE.

BUT WHILE HE INSISTED THAT ALL DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE TWO MAJOR POWERS CAN BE "IRONED OUT," NOVIKOV CAUTIONED THAT SOLUTIONS FOR MANY WORLD PROBLEMS WILL REQUIRE TIME AND PATIENCE.

THE DIPLOMAT'S VIEWS WERE MADE KNOWN IN HIS FIRST INTERVIEW WITH AN AMERICAN REPORTER SINCE HE PRESENTED HIS AMBASSADORIAL LETTERS TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN JUNE 3.

"THERE IS NO BASIS WHATEVER FOR WAR BETWEEN THE SOVIET UNION AND THE UNITED STATES," DECLARED THE STOCKY, 43-YEAR-OLD RUSSIAN.

"I KNOW THIS--THAT THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES DO NOT WANT TO WAGE A WAR AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION OR ANY OTHER COUNTRY. I KNOW THE SOVIET UNION WILL NEVER START A WAR AGAINST THE UNITED STATES OR ANYONE ELSE.

"THUS, THE DIFFERENCES BETWEEN US MUST BE IRONED OUT. I BELIEVE THEY WILL BE IRONED OUT."

IN EMPHASIZING THAT SOLUTIONS TO ALL WORLD PROBLEMS CAN NOT BE EXPECTED OVERNIGHT, NOVIKOV SAID:

"EUROPE IS NOW IN ITS MOST DIFFICULT PERIOD--THE TRANSITION FROM WAR TO PEACE. PROBLEMS INEVITABLY WILL BE DIFFICULT."

NOVIKOV EMPHATICALLY REJECTED ANY IDEA THAT SERIOUS CLASHES OF INTEREST BETWEEN RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES ARE "INEVITABLE" OR "NECESSARY." THE REPORTER HAD USED THOSE WORDS IN FRAMING ONE OF SIX WRITTEN QUESTIONS SUBMITTED IN ADVANCE OF YESTERDAY'S INTERVIEW.

THE AMBASSADOR SAID GOOD FAITH BY BOTH NATIONS, BUILT BY "PRACTICAL ACTIONS AND DEEDS" IN CARRYING OUT MUTUAL OBLIGATIONS, WILL PREVENT SUCH CLASHES.

WHEN "PROPERLY UNDERSTOOD," THE NATIONAL INTERESTS OF THE TWO COUNTRIES CREATE MORE OF A SOUND BASIS FOR COOPERATION THAN FOR "CLASHES ON AN ECONOMIC, POLITICAL OR ANY OTHER GROUND," HE ADDED.

"ONE HARDLY NEED MENTION THAT THE GOVERNMENT AND PEOPLES OF THE SOVIET UNION DO NOT WISH, NOR ARE THEY SEEKING, ANY CLASHES WITH ANYONE, INCLUDING THE U.S.A., OUR ALLY OF YESTERDAY IN THE STRUGGLE AGAINST THE COMMON ENEMY," HE ASSERTED.

NOVIKOV VOICED ONE CRITICISM OF THE UNITED STATES: HIS CONTENTION THAT THIS COUNTRY, ALONG WITH BRITAIN AND FRANCE, IS NOT CARRYING OUT THE POTSDAM BIG THREE AGREEMENT ON GERMAN REPARATIONS. IN RESPONSE TO A WRITTEN QUESTION AS TO HOW THE UNITED STATES COULD BEST HELP RUSSIA REBUILD ITS AREAS DEVASTATED BY THE WAR, HE WROTE:

"FIRST OF ALL, WE WISH THE ALLIES, INCLUDING THE UNITED STATES, WOULD CARRY OUT THE AGREEMENTS ON REPARATIONS FROM GERMANY, ESPECIALLY IN RESPECT TO DELIVERIES FROM THE WESTERN AREAS OF GERMANY TO THE U.S.S.R.

"IT WOULD FACILITATE OUR RECONSTRUCTION OF THE DEVASTATED TERRITORIES OF THE U.S.S.R."

EXPANDING THIS ANSWER VERBALLY, NOVIKOV SAID SOME PARTS OF RUSSIA, PARTICULARLY THE UKRAINE, BADLY NEED EQUIPMENT WHICH WESTERN GERMAN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS COULD FURNISH--ESPECIALLY EQUIPMENT FOR IRON AND STEEL MANUFACTURE.

REPARATIONS DELIVERIES FROM THE WESTERN ZONES TO RUSSIA, NOW STOPPED COMPLETELY, NEVER WERE SUFFICIENT TO AID SOVIET REHABILITATION SUBSTANTIALLY, NOVIKOV SAID.

"A MORE INTENSIVE TRADE BETWEEN OUR TWO COUNTRIES COULD ALSO BE OF GREAT IMPORTANCE, AND THIS WOULD BE OF NO LESS ADVANTAGE FOR THE U.S.A. ITSELF," NOVIKOV ADDED. HE DID NOT MENTION THE MUCH-DISCUSSED PROPOSAL FOR A BILLION-DOLLAR AMERICAN LOAN TO RUSSIA.

NOVIKOV, FIFTH RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR TO WASHINGTON SINCE THE UNITED STATES RECOGNIZED THE SOVIET UNION IN 1933, APPEARED TO HAVE NONE OF THE RETICENCE DURING THE INTERVIEW THAT HE OFTEN SHOWS WHEN APPROACHED BY REPORTERS DURING HIS STATE DEPARTMENT VISITS.

SITTING BEHIND HIS DESK IN THE LARGE EMBASSY STUDY, HE CHATTED IN FRIENDLY FASHION ON A VARIETY OF TOPICS FOR MORE THAN HALF AN HOUR. HE DODGED NO QUESTIONS AND TRIED TO MAKE HIS ANSWERS ENTIRELY CLEAR.

HE HOPES TO TRAVEL WIDELY IN THE UNITED STATES DURING HIS TENURE AS AMBASSADOR, NOVIKOV SAID, BUT THIS WILL DEPEND ON CIRCUMSTANCES OF HIS OFFICIAL DUTIES.

HE ALSO SAID HE PRESUMED AMERICANS WOULD BE ABLE TO TRAVEL IN ALL PARTS OF RUSSIA ONCE "FACILITIES ESSENTIAL FOR NORMAL SERVICE OF TOURISTS HAVE BEEN REHABILITATED."

MINISTERS SELECT JULY 29 AS DATE FOR PEACE PARLEY

Agreement Reached on 21-Nation Conference to Be Held in Paris.

REPARATIONS DEBATED

Russia to Be Awarded 100 Millions from Italy, Source in Dispute.

PARIS, Friday, July 5—(AP) The four-power foreign ministers reached agreement to convoke the 21-nation European peace conference in Paris on July 29 and to award Russia $100,000,000 in reparations from Italy, American and British informants said.

A session lasting past midnight, longest of any held by the ministers during their April, May, June and July meetings, was marked by repeated clashes over the sources from which to obtain the reparations payments. The ministers met at 4 p.m. (11 a.m. EST) and remained in session until 12:40 a.m. (7:40 p.m.EST). Two recesses were taken.

Date Proposed by French

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault proposed the July 29 date following a recess of an hour and a half in which the four ministers conferred in Bidault's office. Only interpreters were with the ministers, British sources said.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, Soviet Foreign Ministers V. M. Molotov and U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes approved the motion in that order.

The council then instructed the deputy ministers to draft the text of the invitations which are to be sent out to the other Allied nations as soon as possible.

Taking up the Italian reparations issue, Byrnes made one concession to Soviet claims in agreeing to allow the Russians to draw some of their reparations from Italy's current production. But during the long session the ministers found it difficult to agree on the proportion to be taken from this source.

Opposes Moratorium

Molotov also stood opposed to an American demand for a three-year moratorium for Italian industry before these levies on current production should begin. Other sources for reparations, the council agreed would be war material, surplus war plant machinery, one merchant ship and Italian assets in the Balkans and in the Russian zone in Germany.

On the question of calling the general peace conference, Byrnes had repeatedly insisted that the 21 nations meet in Paris before the end of this month. With equal insistence, Molotov time and again declared he could not agree to the fixing of a date until the main points of Balkan peace treaties had been settled. He had indicated he was in favor of postponing the peace conference until Sept. 1 or 15.

After the four foreign ministers achieved complete accord Wednesday on the internationalization of Trieste and problem of Italy's colonies, Byrnes pressed for an immediate decision on the peace conference date. As the session began yesterday three dates were suggested. Andrei I. Vishinsky, Soviet deputy foreign minister, reporting on behalf of the other deputies, said they were divided on how long it would take them to complete treaty drafts for submission to the general conference.

The United States and Britain he said, estimated July 13 as the date the drafts would be ready. France said July 20 and Russia July 25.

Other Questions Unsettled

Vishinsky added that there were 21 questions still unsettled but that the deputies assumed some of these would be referred to the peace conference.

Bidault, who was presiding, then suggested a recess and the ministers went to his office. The French representative suggested that France would be willing to agree on any time not too distant. He then asked the other ministers if they would accept July 29 to avoid prolonged discussion, British sources said, and in turn, each said he had no objection.

The 21 nations which will participate in the conference are: Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Byelo-Russia, Canada, China, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, France, Britain, Greece, India, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, the Ukraine, the Union of South Africa, the Soviet Union, the United States and Yugoslavia.

China was included since she is one of the permanent members of the United Nations Security council.

Fears Effect on Balkans

British sources said that on the Italian reparations question, Molotov opposed the granting of a three-year moratorium to Italy, before levies would be made from current production, because of the adverse effect this might have on Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania, which have already paid some reparations to Russia.

Both Byrnes and Bevin suggested that four Allied ambassadors at Rome be empowered to designate experts to evaluate Italian assets abroad in time for review by the peace conference.

Molotov, said American informants, urged the council to agree on flat figures of $30,000,000 for Italy's foreign assets and $70,000,000 for levies to come from her current production.

Molotov questioned the existence of Italian assets in Russia. Bevin replied that Italy owned some timber in the Southern Ukraine.

American informants said that in the private meeting in Bidault's office Byrnes told Molotov he had no objection to discussing Italian reparations immediately, if a peace conference date were fixed first. He told the Russian foreign minister that if no date were set he could not say what the American attitude on reparations would be. Byrnes said he would be charged with making a deal with Russia if he said anything else and that he could not lay himself open to such a charge, the informants added.

Italian Reparations Pact

By Wireless to The New York Times.

PARIS, Friday, July 5—Following is the text of the agreement between the Foreign Ministers of the Big Four on Italian reparations. There may be some slight changes in the final wording by the drafting experts:

(1) Italy shall pay reparations to the Soviet Union in the amount of $100,000,000 over a period of seven years, payment from current production not to apply for the first two years.

(2) These repaartions shall be covered from the following sources:

(A) A share of the Italian factory and tool equipment designed for the manufacture of war implements which are not required by the permitted military establishment and is not readily susceptible of conversion to civilian purposes and which is removed from Italy pursuant to Article —— of this treaty.

(B) Property rights and interests of the Italian Government and Italian nationals in Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary, subject to the exceptions specified in Paragraph 5 of Article 71.

(C) Current industrial production.

(i) Quantities and types of goods to be delivered shall be the subject of agreement between the Italian Government and the Government of the U. S. S. R. and shall be selected and deliveries scheduled in such a way as to avoid interference with the economic reconstruction of Italy or to cause any additional liabilities to the other Allies. Agreements made under this Article shall be reported to the four Ambassadors in Rome.

The U. S. S. R. shall furnish to Italy on commercial terms the materials needed for the production of these goods normally imported into Italy, payment for which materials shall be made by reducting the value of the materials furnished from the value of the goods delivered to the U. S. S. R.

The four Ambassadors shall determine the value of Italian assets to be transferred to the U. S. S. R.

The sum in dollars set forth in this Article shall be understood to refer to United States dollars at a gold parity of $35 to the ounce of gold.

At the request of Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Great Britain, another paragraph will be inserted in the text reading as follows:

The claims of Greece, Yugoslavia, Albania and Ethiopia and those put forward by any other Allied or associated power will be considered at the peace conference. They will be met in part by the value of state and parastatal assets in the ceded territories and subject to the provisions of Article 71 from the assets of Italy and Italian nationals in those countries. The value of these assets will be determined by the reparations commission [this phrase will be altered] which will also determine the credits under which the balance, if any, of outstanding reparations shall be settled.

Says Strike In Trieste Is Outlawed By Allies

Trieste, July 4 (AP)—Allied Military Government authorities declared illegal today the three-day-old general strike called by pro-Yugoslav labor unions in Trieste to protest anti-Slav rioting.

The authorities ordered the men to return to work tomorrow. They said the motive of the strike was political and that it was out of order because "no labor or economic considerations are involved."

Emilio Semilli, Italian head of the strike committee of the leftist Sindicati Unici, prime mover in the general walkout, threatened to "take the movement underground" in view of the decision. He said the committee would meet tonight to decide whether to continue the strike.

Bicameral Parliament Favored

PARIS, July 4 (AP).—The National Assembly's constitution committee agreed unanimously today to recommend a two-chamber Parliament for the Fourth Republic.

The Parliament would be composed of a Chamber of Deputies and a second house with limited powers. The government would not be responsible to the second house, which would have power only to "read" legislation approved by the chamber and send it back for a second vote.

The committee, made up largely of representatives of France's three major parties—the Popular Republican Movement, Communist and Socialist—also agreed to give future Presidents power to name the Premier.

U.S. Aid Groups To Buy Army Surplus Materials

Paris, July 4 (AP) — Thirty-one voluntary American relief organizations working in Europe formed the joint procurement mission tonight to buy millions of dollars worth of United States Army surplus materials for food, clothing and housing in war-devastated countries.

Arthur D. Greenleigh, of the American Joint Distribution Committee, was named chairman of the board of management. He said the mission was prepared to purchase $15,000,000 worth of army supplies this year.

Member organizations include the American Baptist Relief Society, the Friends Service Committee, the Salvation Army, the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., the United Palestine Appeal, the Unitarian Service Committee and the War Relief Service National Catholic Committee, among others.

PARLIAMENT IN FRANCE TO HAVE TWO CHAMBERS

PARIS, July 4—(AP) The National Assembly's constitution committee agreed unanimously today on a two-chamber parliament for the Fourth Republic.

The parliament would be made up of a chamber of deputies and a second house with limited powers. The government would not be responsible before the second house, which would have the power only of "reading" the chamber's legislation and sending it back for a second vote.

The committee, made up largely of representatives of France's three major parties—the Popular Republican Movement, Communist and Socialist—also agreed to give future presidents the power of naming the premier.

The Communist party was repulsed in the constituent assembly when that body voted 341 to 130 to seat rightist Deputy Frederic Dupont, whom the Communists had accused of "economic collaboration with the Germans."

London 'Times' Finds An Item for Page One

LONDON, July 4 (AP).—"The Times," of London, which still devotes its first page to advertisements, gave one of its rare first-page news headlines today to the Big Four Foreign Ministers' Conference in Paris.

At the upper right-hand corner of the first page was the announcement, in type about three times the size of ordinary newspaper type: "Agreement on Trieste."

BRITISH FACE CALORIE CUT

Bread Will Be Main Course In Cafes Under New Rules

London, July 4 (AP)—Bread will be a main course in cafes under new rationing regulations which the Ministry of Food estimates will cut the calorie content of Britain's daily diet from 2,850 to 2,800 per person.

Calorie consumption in France, Belgium, Holland and Norway is estimated to be between 2,300 and 2,500, and in Greece, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Italy between 1,800 and 2,200.

British restaurant meals are limited to three courses—usually soup, meat and dessert—and one of them must be sacrificed if bread is ordered under the new regulations, John Strachey, Minister of Food, announced in the House of Commons last night. He did not say when the order would be effective.

Strachey Blames U.S. Strikes

Other proposals by the Food Minister would exempt herring from a main-course classification and permit a maximum charge of 2 shillings six pence (50 cents) for meals served in private dining rooms.

Strachey laid much of the responsibility for British bread rationing to the danger of American strikes and called on the United States to send 360,000 tons of wheat to the British zone of Germany or face "incalculable political and social consequences."

Britain, he told the House of Commons amid cheers from Government supporters and heckling from the opposition, "has made a contribution second to none to relieve world famine" and can do no more.

Firm On Bread Rationing

The food chief gave a flat "no" to bakers, housewives and others who asked reconsideration of the Government's decision to ration bread beginning July 21 but promised rationing would end "the very day it becomes possible."

Strachey declared Britain could not afford to "gamble on American labor relations and on the course of things in Congress in the next few weeks."

Breaking years of secrecy on food stocks, Strachey said Britain would have 800,000 tons of wheat and flour—eight weeks' supply—in its "pipeline" at the end of August if all went well.

Maritime Trouble Recalled

But he recalled the threatened maritime strike just before his recent visit to the United States and asked: "Can we have a guarantee that such a thing will not happen again?"

Congress's action on "new price controls or other measures," he added, also will determine whether there would be any interruption of United States grain exports. Bread rationing, he said, was "a measure of safety and assurance of the basic food of the British people."

Strachey said he found American officials hesitant about supplying 120,000 tons of wheat a month for the next three months to Britain's zone in Germany, but said he had "every hope and expectation" that it would be forthcoming.

Ruhr Held Important

Denouncing "travelers' tales" that the Germans had plenty to eat, Strachey said that American wheat was vtial to keep rations at the 1,000-calorie subsistence level in the British zone and warned that European recovery depends upon the people of the Ruhr.

"If the worst happens in the British zone of Germany and the 1,000-calorie ration breaks down, then it must be for the United States Government to decide whether they will face the incalculable political and social consequences not only to Germany but to the whole of western Europe."

Strachey said that since 1945

Britain had sent 60,000 [illegible] of cereals to India, 60,000 to Italy, Greece and Yugoslavia, 60,000 to Germany and 10,000 tons to South Africa and to Belgium.

The United States Government will replace these shipments, he said, but in addition Britain has sent to the British zone in Germany 192,000 tons of wheat, 109,000 tons of flour, 105,000 tons of barley and 132,000 tons of potatoes.

NORAH, CHILDREN START TRIP TO U.S.

LONDON, July 4—(AP) Norah Carpenter with her three surviving quadruplets emplaned for New York today for a reunion and marriage with the babies' father, former Sgt. William (Red) Thompson of Pittsburgh, whom they last saw 15 months ago.

The Pan-American Clipper on which they are en route to the United States is due to reach New York at 6 a.m. E.S.T. Friday.

Thompson, formerly a staff sergeant on duty in England, plans to marry Norah shortly after her arrival—a marriage that Norah has had her heart set on for months. Thompson was divorced by his first wife after the children were born in March, 1944.

Relatives came to the airport to see Norah and the children. Norah was tired and nervous, but she was happy over the prospects of seeing her husband-to-be.

"It'll be wonderful to see Red again, but I'm worried about the children," she said. "They don't like the lifts (elevators) and I hope that doesn't mean they won't like the airplane."

The children, Maureen, Madeline and red-haired Michael, however, appeared unconcerned as they ate sandwiches. One of the quadruplets died soon after birth to the unwed mother.

"If we could only get there quickly, so that Red can look out for us," Norah sighed, as she gathered the three children and boarded the clipper.

In Pittsburgh, Thompson's relatives said he had departed for New York to meet his family.

Nazis' Defense Asks Acquittal, Blaming Hitler

Nuernberg Court Is Told Defendants Were Forced to Obey Fuehrer in All

NUERNBERG, July 4 (AP).—The twenty-one former German leaders on trial here for war crimes opened today their final plea for acquittal, and assigned to Adolf Hitler the entire guilt in their country's aggression.

Professor Hermann Jahreiss, associate counsel for Colonel General Alfred Jodl, presented the first of the defense summaries, a treatise on international law which amounted to a challenge of the legality of such international trials. He spoke on behalf of all the defendants.

Jahreiss contended: A breach of international peace is a matter between states—individuals cannot be tried or sentenced for it under existing law; Germans were simply obeying their own law when they followed Hitler, "arbiter of war and peace between the Reich and other nations, he alone."

Jahreiss derided the idea of a conspiracy among the Nazi leaders to conquer the world. He asserted: "If a conspiracy existed, as the indictment assumes, the conspirators were remarkably incompetent organizers. . . . The history of jealousy and mistrust between powerful persons under Hitler has still to be written.

"An order by der Fuehrer was binding, and was, indeed, legally binding even if the directive was contrary to international law or other traditional values."

Next, Hermann Goering was pictured by his defense counsel as a victim of his loyalty to Hitler and to Germany, a man aware of mistakes but refusing to flee the sinking ship he had helped to fashion. Goering's "loyalty became his disaster, and the world for him sank into ruins," Dr. Otto Stahmer told the tribunal in a summary of the defense of Goering, who was second man to Hitler in Germany from the start of Nazi rule.

"He certainly recognized many mistakes of the past, but he never showed regret, which many would like to see in him," Stahmer said. "He thereby remains true to himself as well. In this period, which is still threatened by chaos and again searching for firm foundations for life, the positive value of such loyalty should not be ignored."

Stahmer called it "tragic" to style Goering's association with Hitler a conspiracy. It was instead, Stahmer said, "a fight to free Germany" by means other than paper protests to the League of Nations.

Referring to the conspiracy charge against all twenty-two of the defendants, including the missing Martin Bormann, Stahmer commented: "If such a conspiracy had existed, then Hitler would have been—nobody doubts it—the leader of the conspirators. It has already been emphasized that a conspiracy headed by a dictator is a contradiction in itself."

GOERING PUT ON PEDESTAL

Defense Says Loyalty To Hitler Was His Undoing

Nuernberg, July 4 (AP)—Hermann Goering was pictured by his defense counsel today as a "victim" of his own loyalty to Hitler and to Germany, aware of mistakes but refusing to flee the sinking ship he helped fashion.

In this vein, the defense of 22 Nazi leaders opened a final plea for acquittal before the international military tribunal, laying the entire guilt for German aggression on Adolf Hitler.

Goering's "loyalty" became his disaster and the world for him sank into ruins," Dr. Otto Stahmer told the tribunal in summary defense of the reichsmarshal, who was second man to Hitler in Germany from the start of Nazi rule.

"He Himself Was Nothing"

"He certainly recognized many mistakes of the past but he never showed regret, which many would like to see with him," Stahmer said. "He thereby remains true to himself as well. In this period which is still threatened by chaos and again searching for firm foundations for life, the positive value of such loyalty should not be ignored."

Stahmer said it was fallacious to assume Goering had a great deal to say in Hitler's rule. He quoted Sir Neville Henderson, British Foreign Minister, as once saying that Goering "was a perfect servant of his master and I have never seen greater loyalty and devotion than he maintains toward Hitler. Every decision was Hitler's and he himself was nothing."

Replies To Accusations

Stahmer followed the line Goering took on the witness stand—that he acted in good faith and wasn't now seeking to apologize for his actions. He listed some of the charges made against Goering and presented these replies:

1. He created the dreaded Gestapo—"A sovereign state has the right under the recognized rules of international law to regulate its internal affairs as it deems fit."

2. He looted Europe of art treasures—"Not one of these art treasures did he take for his own collection. Objects were confiscated by order of the Führer for the benefit of the German Reich."

Says Goering Aided Jews

3. Goering wanted war—"He did not agree with the occupation of the Rhineland and he advised Hitler in vain against war with Russia."

4. He was a race fanatic—"The defendant was not a race fanatic, which became generally known by his expression, 'I decide who is a Jew.' It has been established he aided many Jews."

Counsel called it "tragic" to style Goering's association with Hitler conspiracy. It was instead, Stahmer said, "a fight to free Germany" by other than "paper protests" to the League of Nations.

First Of Defense Summaries

Referring to the conspiracy charge against all 22 defendants, including the missing Martin Bormann, Stahmer commented:

"If such conspiracy had existed then Hitler would have been—nobody doubts it—the leader of these conspirators. It has already been emphasized that conspiracy headed by a dictator is a contradiction in itself."

Prof. Hermann Jahreiss, co-counsel for Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, presented the first of the defense summaries, a treatise on international law which amounted to a challenge of the charter setting up international trials. He appeared on behalf of all defendants.

Idea Of Conspiracy Derided

Jahreiss contended:

1. A breach of peace is a matter between states; individuals cannot be tried and sentenced for it under existing law.

2. All Germans were simply obeying their own law when they followed Hitler, "arbiter of war and peace between the Reich and other nations, he alone."

Jahreiss derided the idea of a conspiracy among all Nazi leaders to conquer the world.

"If a conspiracy existed, as the indictment assumes, the conspirators were remarkably incompetent organizers," he asserted. ". . . The history of jealousy and mistrust between powerful persons under Hitler has still to be written.

"An order of the Führer's was binding and was indeed legally binding, even if the directive was contrary to international law or other traditional values."

Factory Output Near Top Level In Soviet Zone

Greater Portion of German Goods Reported Going to Russia as Reparations

BERLIN, July 4 (AP).—Industry in the Russian-occupied zone of Germany is booming—with no unemployment in the provinces of Saxony and Thuringia and an actual acute labor shortage in some sections—German officials told a group of American correspondents who have just returned from a conducted tour of the Saxony-Thuringia industrial area.

They said the greater portion of the finished products of German factories is going to Russia for reparations.

Dr. Erhardt Huebner, president of Saxony, said in an interview at Halle that industry in Saxony is approaching the pre-war production rate of 1939. He said the largely self-sufficient Soviet zone is far ahead of the western zones in industrial recovery.

At the Buna synthetic rubber works near Halle and the Zeiss optical works in Jena the correspondents found production humming, and were told by factory managers that after Russian reparations orders are filled only a small part of production remains to go to German consumers.

In Jena, Dr. Rudolf Paul, President of Thuringia, said 91 per cent of Thuringian industry is back in production. He also said most of the output is going to Russia.

In Halle, Huebner gave a rosy report of industry. He said all workers in the population of 4,000,000 have employment, and he is endeavoring to recruit more workers from the surrounding provinces, especially coal miners.

Huebner said Saxony's brown-coal production soon will approach peace-time levels. He said the sugar industry, by virtue of working overtime, is already back to pre-war production levels, despite the fact that fourteen of sixty-four refineries have been removed for reparations. Huebner said Saxony's industry is being fed partly with raw materials from Poland and Russia and that the textile mills are receiving cotton from Siberia and some wool from Poland.

Speaking of Russian dismantling of plants for reparations removals, Huebner said: "These removals are very painful, though we recognize them as inevitable. However, we hope to survive this bloodletting."

Both Huebner and Paul said they had been informed that dismantling of industrial capital equipment for reparations in their provinces ended May 25.

During the early part of 1942, while he was on leave with the Office of Price Administration, Dr. Bullock was appointed an associate professor in the Hopkins department of political economy. He is still on leave.

Hopkins Professor Will Seek U.S. Marts For German Goods

Berlin, July 4 (AP)—The first traveling salesman from postwar Germany to the United States is scheduled to leave by plane today on a two-weeks mission to show samples of German products available for export.

He is Roy J. Bullock, chief of the export-import section of the American Military Government.

A former director of the school of business at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Bullock is on a dollar hunt. He wants to get orders in American dollars to pay for the mounting American food imports into the United States zone of Germany, which during June hit a record of 164,000 long tons.

Conferences With Potential Buyers

Bullock has scheduled conferences with Government agencies and personal contacts with potential buyers of German-made products.

He will carry with him three cases of sample products manufactured in the United States Zone—leather goods, toys, porcelains and costume jewelry.

His aim is to get these products with their "Made in Germany" label onto United States store counters in time for the next Christmas shopping season.

Dr. Bullock said he had another plan:

Because German manufacturers have for years been out of contact with America, they are ignorant of fashions and demands prevailing there. He said he would propose that representatives of handicraft, porcelain and jewelry distributing trades come to Germany to survey these fields and advise manufacturers here what designs and types of goods were in best demand.

Mr. Bullock's wife and three children live at 203 Woodreeve road, Washington, D.C.

Business Economics School

Dr. Bullock became associated with the Johns Hopkins University school of political economy in 1928.

In 1941 he was appointed director of the university's school of business economics.

GI NIGHT LIFE SAMPLED

Touring U. S. Newspaper Executives Stop Over in Heidelberg

HEIDELBERG, Germany, July 4 (AP)—Six touring American newspaper publishers and editors sampled GI night life last night.

After dining with 130 Wacs and enlisted men at Wac headquarters here, the newspaper executives went to the Stardust Club, biggest GI night spot in Europe.

Today the publishers and editors visited Heidelberg University, then had an interview with Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, Third Army commander. Later they participated in soldier celebrations of the Fourth of July.

Twelve are in the group on a German-Austrian tour, but six went from Munich to Switzerland two days ago for a side trip.

The six visiting Heidelberg are Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES; Lyle Wilson, assistant general manager of The United Press; Walter E. Christenson, editor of The Omaha World-Herald; W. S. Gilmore, editor of The Detroit News; Herbert F. Corn, managing editor of The Washington Star, and Hugh Robertson, editor-in-chief of the Macy Westchester papers.

"Boston Morals" As Guide For GI's

Berlin, July 4 (AP)—A United States Army lieutenant advocated today that the "morals of Boston" be adopted by American occupation forces to "show the Germans that we are not a wine, women and song outfit."

The suggestion was made in a letter to the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes. The lieutenant was not named.

The letter was in reply to another soldier who had written to the paper criticizing Boston as stuffy.

1948

A debate on Boston when a chaplain wrote in complaining that a production of the play "The Doughgirls," shown to soldier audiences, had not been censored sufficiently to avoid giving offense.

A soldier promptly wrote in saying he liked the show and wanted more like it, adding: "I suggest the chaplain be redeployed to Boston. They even censor sermons there."

Today came the lieutenant's turn. He wrote:

"In defense of Boston, I say that if people in the occupation forces—enlisted men, officers and civilians—would seriously adhere to Boston's principles of staidness and conservatism then the emphasis would not be on sex. Then the venereal disease rate would not be so high. 'Wine, women and song,' is not the theme of the American way of life."

PARLIAMENT PLAN HOLDS EARLY LEAD IN POLISH VOTING

WARSAW, July 4—(AP) The government announced today that a compilation of nearly one-quarter of the votes cast in Sunday's referendum showed a heavy majority in favor of all three questions, with a three-to-one count favoring a one-house parliament, the most controversial issue.

Returns from rural districts which might change the count have not yet been reported. The results announced were mainly from large cities. No claims of victory have been advanced yet by either of the parties supporting the provisional government, or by the Polish Peasant party of Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, which urged a negative vote on the parliamentary question.

The government said that of 2,321,610 ballots counted, 1,784,274 approved the proposed ucicameral parliament, and 537,336 opposed. It is estimated that 10,000,000 votes were cast.

In Krakow, however, which often is called a reactionary stronghold, the vote was five-to-one against the one-house parliament proposal.

Foreign observers who watched the voting in an unofficial capacity said it appeared to have been conducted legally and properly in all sections of Poland.

Mikolajczyk yesterday [illegible] district-by-district votes, and asserted that the Communist-backed government bloc had forced many voters to cast their ballots in advance, and then had failed to count them.

The other questions in the referendum asked whether voters approved Poland's new western boundaries, and the government's nationalization acts. (The referendum question did not mention the eastern frontier, where Poland lost territory to Russia. The western boundary was expanded at Germany's expense.)

Pogrom Reported In Kielce, Poland

Warsaw, July 4 (AP)—A Foreign Ministry spokesman said today that a "small pogrom" had broken out in Kielce, south of Warsaw, with Fascist elements attacking Jewish homes because a Polish baby had been reported slain.

First reports said more than ten Jews were wounded and that some probably had been killed. The Government dispatched reinforced militia units to Kielce, a city of more than 500,000, and the spokesman said the situation was now in hand.

U. S. Envoy Protests Arrests

WARSAW, July 4 (AP).—American Embassy sources said tonight that Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane would lodge a formal protest with the Polish Foreign Ministry tomorrow over the arrest and detention during the Polish referendum last Sunday of two Embassy employees, Stephen Zagorski of Forest Hills, N. Y., and Edwin Raymond, American agricultural attache, of Newark, Ohio.

The Embassy sources noted that the Foreign Ministry had given Embassy employees permission to circulate freely throughout Poland during the referendum.

Mikolajczyk asks Recount

WARSAW, July 3 (Delayed) (AP)—Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Polish Peasant party, demanded today a district-by-district recount of votes in the Sunday referendum.

He complained that the Communist-backed government bloc had forced many voters to ballot in advance and then had failed to count their votes.

GRAIN RECEIPTS EASE POLAND'S FOOD CRISIS

WARSAW, July 4—(AP) The UNRRA mission here announced today that the Polish food crisis had eased and widespread hunger had been averted with arrival in June of 77,000 tons of grain from the United States, Canada and Argentina.

Brig. Charles M. Drury, mission chief, said the increased import rate must be continued, however, until new harvests are available. At the start of June, Polish grain stores "had almost reached the vanishing point," he added.

Train Robberies Decline in Poland

WARSAW (AP)—The newspaper Rzeczpospolita says 30,000 persons are being employed as guards on the Polish State Railways.

Railway officials said the blue-uniformed armed watchmen had contributed greatly to curbing train robberies, frequent during early months of the provisional government.

Polish railways now cover 13,000 miles, compared with 11,000 miles in 1939. Acquisition of former German territories in the west largely accounted for the increase.

REDS ACCUSE U.S. OF IMPERIALISM IN LATIN AMERICA

MOSCOW, July 4—(AP) The government newspaper Izvestia today charged that the United States was using pan-Americanism as a cloak for a policy of expansion, and another article criticized American proposals on disarmament of Japan as a "step backwards."

Meanwhile a commentator in the army newspaper Red Star declared the atom bomb test at Bikini was regarded as "an aggressive gesture against all peoples of the world" by the world democratic press, and accused the United States of attempting a policy of dictation.

Izvestia said that "judging from everything at present, the pan-American policy of the United States has entered a new stage marked by rupture of the good neighbor policy principles."

Sees Peril in U. S. Policy

It declared many Latin-Americans were alarmed about President Truman's sponsorship of a move for inter-American military cooperation and were "protesting the plan for creation of military blocs opposing each other no matter what good-looking pretexts they covered."

It added that "anti-Soviet intentions" published in the United States in connection with the establishment of Soviet-Argentine diplomatic relations might be explained as an effort to distract public attention from "these really expansionist tendencies" in the United States.

First Comment on Jap Plan

In the first Soviet press comment on U. S. proposals for a four-power pact to keep Japan disarmed for 25 years, Izvestia said this was a step backward and that the first goal should be the democratization of Japan and destruction of the imperial system and of reactionary economic controls.

"There is no dispute that disarmament and the halting of war production are substantial tasks of the Allies in regard to Japan," the article said. "However, the roots of Japanese aggression lie much deeper. The same reactionary circles that prepared and conducted aggresssion remain in power in Japan."

Red Star commentator Vladimir Ochersky said the atomic bomb test had been appraised as an "aggressive gesture" by the world democratic press, and that such an appraisal "shows convincingly that this so-called test of the atomic bomb designed to achieve a policy of dictation by the United States is obviously doomed to failure."

The United States, he said, puts itself in the position of a hypocrite talking about using atomic energy only for peaceful purposes and actually holding "military maneuvers with the atomic bomb."

ATOMIC TEST CALLED SPUR TO ARMS RACE

Russian Paper Swings Attack On U.S. To Bikini Bomb

London, July 4 (AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that the atomic bomb tests at Bikini were "a stimulus to an armaments race—in all kinds of armaments."

"The fog of mistrust and suspicion created by atomic diplomacy is still darkening the political skies," I. Lemin, the commentator, said, adding that the Bikini test demonstrated that "the United States is striving to preserve the secret of atomic energy for use as a political weapon.

"From that point of view, it is safe to say that the Bikini tests were a step backward in scientific development as far as the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes is concerned.

Notes Report On Ships

"American naval circles . . . say that the number of ships sunk was considerably less than was expected, which means that the fleet remains and the United States of America should preserve and strengthen its powerful Navy.

"Military history shows that new and more effective weapons do not take the place of old ones, but are used in combination with them. The Pacific tests are a stimulus to an armaments race, in all kinds of armaments.

"The political significance of the tests can be summed up in two words—atomic diplomacy."

Vatican Denies Chetnik Tie

VATICAN CITY, July 4 (AP).—"L'Osservatore Romano" said today it was "authorized to declare that the Holy See had no contact with the Chetniks of General Mihailovitch, as testimony at Mihailovitch's collaboration trial in Belgrade indicated." Citing reports of documents indicating the Chetniks received money from London through the Vatican, the official Vatican newspaper said: "Such affirmations lack any foundation whatsoever."

ViennaG.I.sKill APistol-Waving Russian Soldier

He Was in American Zone; Clark Protests to Reds, Cites TheirRecentPledge

VIENNA, July 4 (AP).—American military policemen today shot and killed a Russian soldier who had threatened Austrian civilians and American troops with his pistol in the American occupation zone of Vienna.

Official American sources gave this account of the incident:

The Russian was first sighted in a jeep before an American enlisted men's club, waving his pistol. He then entered a street car, and a jeepload of American M. P.s followed.

The police finally stopped the streetcar and another jeep filled with American military police drove up. The Russian alighted and was reported to have fired one shot at Private First Class Paul T. Sullivan.

Other American police opened fire, and the Russian was killed almost instantly by eight bullets.

General Mark W. Clark, commander of American forces in Austria, immediately protested to the Russian command, because the Russians had promised after a shooting incident ten days ago that no armed Russian soldiers would be allowed to enter the American zone.

American military policemen involved in the shooting included Corporal Clarence Hay, of Jennerstown, Pa.; Arnold J. Karkin, of Spring Green, Wis., and Burton Jones, of Portsmouth, Ohio.

LABOR SHORTAGE BRINGS NEW CRISIS TO CZECH NATION

PRAGUE, July 4—(AP) Czechoslovakia's new Communist regime is faced at the outset with the task of convincing the people they must do more manual work to offset a shortage of more than 500,000 laborers, caused by the expulsion of German civilians.

Officials have announced that the nation is confronted with a coal shortage for lack of miners and that there is a great deficiency of workers on farms, in textile mills and in industry generally.

Will End Class Distinctions

An attempt to break down class distinctions between white collar workers and laborers will be one means of attempting to recruit productive employes.

"Manual work and brain work must be equally appreciated," Dr. Josef Soltes, minister of social welfare, told a meeting of trade union organizations.

"We must do away with disrespect toward manual work."

Hinting that an excessive number of citizens was seeking government posts with attractive old age pensions, Dr. Soltes suggested they give more attention to the physical labor of rebuilding Czechoslovakia's economy as "not only a national duty but an honorable task."

Other ways in which the government hopes to meet the labor shortage include:

1. Importation of foreign workers, particularly Italian.
2. Reparation of Czechoslovaks who have emigrated to foreign lands.
3. Voluntary work brigades in the mines.
4. Assistance of boy scouts and other youth on farms.

Expulsion of Germans Continues

There have been suggestions that the expulsion of Germans may be modified to prevent a further lessening of industrial manpower, but official sources insist the deportation will be carried out to the end. They declare they prefer a labor shortage now to a new "Sudeten problem" later.

Mining experts told a press conference that the coal crisis had been overcome temporarily through the efforts of miners who had worked overtime and on Sundays and by voluntary mining brigades organized in factories, offices and universities, but that their outlook for next winter was not encouraging.

With deportations continuing, and overworked miners needing rest and recreation, they said the possibility of maintaining production rested upon voluntary workers.

Dr. Soltes said Czech industry, exclusive of the building trades, employed 1,080,000 workers in 1937, compared with 890,000 now and 780,000 when all Germans have been deported.

The building trades are short by 50,000 workers and agriculture by 200,000. The textile industry needs 50,000 new employes.

"Altogether we require 550,000 men and women," he declared.

INFLATION IN BUDAPEST

BUDAPEST, July 3—(Delayed)—(AP) The United States dollar was worth 800 quadrillion pengoes today and probably will command one quintillion or more by the time this is read. Yesterday the dollar was quoted at 100 quadrillion pengoes.

People caught in the fantastic inflation were running out of numbers with which to count money. New words wormed their way into the Hungarian vocublary: "Milpengo" to signify 1,000,000 pengoes, and "Bilpengoe" for a billion pengoes. The pengo before the war was quoted at 29.12 cents.

WARSHIPS [illegible]COPE [illegible]GEN

COPENHAGEN, July 4—(AP) Six U. S. warships—the cruisers Houston and Little Rock and four destroyers—arrived in Danish waters today under command of Admiral H. Kent Hewitt, commander of U. S. naval forces in Europe. Hewitt was received by Harald Petersen, Danish minister of defense.

Swiss Troop Trains For British Cease

BERN, Switzerland,—(AP)—The transport of British servicemen from Italy through Switzerland and France to England has ceased. The Territorial Service of the Swiss Army said that since the end of July, 1945, 700,000 British troops stationed in Italy traveled through Switzerland on more than one thousand special trains. The Territorial Service praised the "exemplary" discipline of the British.

NAZI U-BOAT PENS DEFY DESTRUCTION IN BERGEN HARBOR

BERGEN, Norway — (AP) The Nazis built a "monument" to Nazism in Bergen harbor that probably will remain intact to vex Norwegians for some time to come.

It's the massive U-boat shelter which neither allied bombing nor sabotage could more than shake.

Erected strategically near the entrance to one of the two hill-bordered harbors, the massive pens were devised to provide maximum protection to submarines and crews.

Six pens extending out into deep water of the channel are covered with more than 20 feet of reinforced concrete. The heaviest bombs dropped directly on the top did little more than scuff the surface.

JEWS RELEASE THREE BRITISH HELD HOSTAGE

Officers Dumped Off In Cages Unharmed; English Free Many

Jerusalem, July 4 (AP) — Three British officers, caged in wooden crates, were dumped unharmed from a truck in Tel Aviv today by their Jewish underground kidnappers, and a Government communiqué declared the men had been chained by the wrists during sixteen days of captivity.

The underground organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi, had been holding them as hostages until after the commutation of death sentences passed on two young Irgun members.

The British officers — Captains G. C. Warburton, A. E. Taylor and A. H. Spencer—had been chained hand and foot until the second day after their kidnapping from the Tel Aviv officers' club on June 18, the communiqué said in giving details of the fantastic method of releasing the blindfolded officers.

Search For Arms Nearly Ended

The trio was freed as the British Army announced it was releasing many Jews arrested during a drive against terroristic activities, and that its search for hdden arms was virtually ended.

Their release came 24 hours after Lieutenant General Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine High Commissioner, had commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences of two Jewish youths convicted of firing on British soldiers—a prerequisite demanded by the underground for the officers' freedom.

One of the officers managed to break out of the crate, removed his blindfold and tried to chase the disappearing truck. He then helped the others in getting out of their crates. All were said to be "in good shape." Two other officers kidnapped at the same time already had been freed.

Board Of Claims Formed

An official Government statement said the three officers were driven in a truck for only fifteen minutes afer being placed in the crates, indicating that they had been held in Tel Aviv since their kidnapping.

A board of claims, meanwhile, was formed under the deptuy district commissioner for Jerusalem to assess damages done to the Jewish agency during British Army searches for hidden arms.

The British Army also announced it was attempting to release as fast as possible all innocent Jews caught up in the widespread arrests of suspected terrorists.

50 Given Clean Bill Of Goods

The first releases began today with 50 Jews being given a clean bill of goods from the Rafa prison camp in southern Palestine. They were mostly residents of Tel Aviv.

As yet none was expected to be released from Latrun camp where six executive members of the Jewish agency are being held.

The Jewish agency refused an invitation to participate in the claims survey to assess damages done to the agency during British searches. The invitation was rejected on the grounds that the agency "was not represented when the building was entered and searched," said Schlomo Eisenberg, general secretary.

Arabs Demand Action

The survey was expected to take a week after which, the Government announcement said, the subject o returning property to the agency will be considered.

Military authorities disclosed that virtually all searches for hidden arms were completed now except in Mesheq Jewish settlement, where a hunt still was progressing. Nineteen separate caches, comprising altogether a huge munitions dump, already have been reported found at Mesheq.

The newly formed Higher Arab Executive, meanwhile, demanded that the British take action to halt illegal immigration of Jews into Palestine.

Emil Khouri, a member of the executive, said the demand was made in a letter to Sir Alan yesterday, declaring that "we cannot be responsible for any Arab action if illegal immigrants still continue to flood Palestine."

"Step In Right Direction"

The executive member said the British occupation and search of the Jewish agency and other institutions "is a step in the right direction to preserve the prestige of the mandatory power in Palestine."

"All we are waiting for, however, the British apology to the Jewish agency," Khouri added.

Dr. Hussein Khalidi, head of the minority party in Palestine, whose fight against the majority Arab party of Jamal Husseini led to dissolution of the former Arab higher committee, has been elected secretary of the new group. Jamal Husseini is chairman.

The communique said:

"Three British officers were released at approximately 1800 hours (6 p.m.) tonight at the corner of Shedal street and Rothschild boulevard where they had been brought in large packing cases.

"The officers had been in the custody of their captors for the past 16 days during which time they were kept chained by the wrists and guarded by four Jews armed with pistols and a kosk (rubber truncheon).

Started Hunger Strike

"After their capture, they were chained hand and foot, upon which Captain Warburton declared a hunger strike in protest. The ankle chains were removed on the second day of their detention, but the wrist chains were left on.

"During their period of capture they were visited five times by a masked man who told them they would be shot if they should try to escape.

"On his last visit at 1300 hours (1 p.m.) today, he ordered their release, whereupon they were placed in large cases and conveyed by truck to the place where they were dumped.

"All three oficers had been on a hunger strike for 48 hours prior to their release as a protest against the continuation of their detention."

British Return Historic Citadel To Egyptians

Cairo, July 4 (AP)—In another step toward the evacuation of British troops from Egypt, Britain returned to the Egyptian Government today the historic citadel here which she had held since 1882.

Lieutenant General Sir Charles Allfrey, commanding British troops in Egypt, handed an especially made silver key to Ferik Ibrahim Attallah Pasha, chief of staff of the Egyptian Army. Then, as a band played "God Save the King," the British flag was slowly lowered.

Construction of the citadel was begun in 172 A.D.

Dalmia Expands in India

NEW DELHI, July 4 (AP).—The huge Dalmia interests announced today they have acquired controlling stock interest in eight large Indian industrial and transport concerns, including the Indian National Airways, oldest in India, and the Dhrangadhra Chemical Works in Rampur state. Dalmia recently purchased the Bombay daily "Times of India." The Dalmia interests are headed by India's leading industrialist, Seth Ramakrishna Dalmia. His son-in-law, R. K. INDIA NATIONALIST MAY BE IN HIDING, FORMER AIDE HINTS

SINGAPORE, July 4 — (AP) Scouting reports that Subhas Chandra Bose, Indian nationalist leader and collaborator with the Japanese in the war, had been killed in an airplane crash, Karim Ghandi, Burmese Indian leader and a former associate of Bose, says Bose was en route to a hideout the last time he saw him in the closing day of the war.

(The Tokyo radio reported that Bose had died in a hospital Aug. 19, 1945, from injuries suffered in an airplane crash in Formosa. Many Indians, to whom he was a national hero, refused to accept the Japanese account of his death and Mohandas K. Ghandi said in January this year that he believed Bose was alive and biding his time for a new appearance).

Ghandi told the Associated Press: "I was able to understand from my talks that Bose was heading not towards Japan, as the Domei report led one to believe, but towards a hideout where he could lie low for a time and come back when he thought the moment opportune."

Recalling the disappearance of Bose from India in 1940 and his reappearance in Berlin later, Ghandi said, "To a master-mind like that of Bose, such an escapade is only child's play, especially in the present instance when he had absolute co-operation of the Japanese, themselves past masters in the art of staging make believe.

"It will, therefore, be no surprise one day if Bose again is seen in India, probably marshaling his men once again for another war—World War III—which he always predicted would decide the final destiny of India's independence."

Ghandi, just released from a local hospital and awaiting transport to Rangoon, was one of the few persons who talked with Bose when he halted at Bangkok on his last flight.

Ghandi held an important cabinet portfolio in Bose's provisional government of free India. He was arrested in Bangkok immediately after the surrender, brought to Singapore early this year and released from custody in March.

SIAMESE QUEEN TO TESTIFY

Will Be Questioned on Death of Her Son June 10

BANGKOK, Siam, July 4 (AP)—A special inquiry commission studying the death of the late King Ananda Mahidol received royal permission today to question 19-year-old King Phumiphon Aduldet and the Queen Mother tomorrow at Boromphiman Palace.

Previous testimony showed that Queen Mother Sgi Wagwan had been called immediately after the fatal shot. The young king was found shot in his palace suite June 10.

A page boy testified the Queen Mother had seen the body and then told the present king, "Let us take our lives, too."

The page hid the death gun and guarded other firearms in the king's collection in order to protect her from suicide, he testified.

It was impossible for the commission to question her earlier, because she was prostrated by grief. The late king was a favorite son and his mother played a dominant role in guiding him.

Chinese Red Predicts Nationalist Offensive

Says Chiang's Troops Probe Lines Near Nanking

NANKING, July 4 (AP).—Communist General Tung Lu-sheng charged today that two government columns were "probing" Communist defense lines within thirty miles of this Chinese capital "in preparation for a major offensive northward in north Kiangsu province."

Tung asserted that the Communist lines, which he said paralleled the Yangtze River on the north bank, did not threaten Nanking despite the proximity, "because our purpose is entirely defensive."

A reliable source said that American civilian pilots, trained in flying the "hump" between India and China, were dropping food to Chinese government troops and civilians in northern Shantung province towns besieged by Chinese Communists.

This source said the pilots were employed by the China National Aviation Corporation, and were ordered to fly food drops where they frequently were under Communist gunfire.

Philippine Skirmish Reported

MANILA, July 4 (AP)—A belated report from Cabanatuan, north of Manila, said that twenty-five United States Army-approved guerrillas had battled 100 Hukbalahaps (armed peasants) at the village of Chico for two hours yesterday. One Huk was reported slain and two wounded.

JAPAN HOPES TO JOIN U. N.

Premier Cites Aspiration in House of Representatives

TOKYO, July 4 (AP)—The Government is looking to the day when it may become a member of the United Nations, Premier Shigeru Yoshida told the Constitution committee of the House of Representatives today.

Asked what concrete measures were involved in Japan's renunciation of war in the new Constitution he explained:

"The other day I said that it was not only useless but harmful to differentiate war of self-defense from war of aggression. In many cases in the past war has been caused under the pretense of self-defense.

"I believe the world will set up an international peace organization and a war of aggression will be mutiny against this organization. Article 43 of the United Nations' Charter provides for the maintenance of armed forces to maintain international peace.

"The Japanese Government would like to exert efforts to be allowed to participate in the United Nations in the future."

HIROHITO REDUCES HIS PALACE PAYROLL

TOKYO, Friday, July 5—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito's household has dropped 3,946 employes from its payroll and now is standing along with only 4,785, Lt. Col. O. H. Jennings of Allied headquarters finance division reported today.

There still are 808 palace police on the roster, but most of them will be transferred, he said, leaving only a personal bodyguard for the Emperor. Not counted in the total lopped from the payroll is the entire Imperial Guards division, which was demobilized along with the rest of the Japanese army.

Jennings today announced retirement of 36 employes, from caretakers to ladies-in-waiting, and said the household employes now total: Main office, 1,616; police, 808; museums, 135; forestry bureau (the emperor is Japan's largest landholder), 2,017; peers' school, 131; peeress' school, 78.

2 Catholic Bishops In Japan

Tokyo, Friday, July 5 (AP)—Bishops John F. O'Hara, Buffalo, NN.Y., and Michael J. Brady, Columbus, Ohio, arrived today by air to survey Catholic church reconstruction and activities in Japan. Their trip was made at the request of Pope Pius XII, with approval of the United States War and Navy Departments.

Hodge in Korea Cites Duties

SEOUL, Korea, July 4 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of American forces in Korea, told his troops in a Fourth of July address that our occupation armies have an obligation to "clear up the remnants of oppression" to assure they never become active again.

"We are here to perform duties sacred to those who have died for democracy and its way of life," he said, after reviewing a United States Seventh Division parade here.

Mystery Pellets Studied

ABOARD U. S. S. APPALACHIAN, July 4 (AP)—Those metallic drops that pelted onto the decks of the German cruiser Prinz Eugen and into the sea after the Bikini bomb went off may have been drops formed in the air from metallic vapors created by atomic heat.

Much the same thing happens on the sun, except that on the sun's surface the drops fall as liquid metal. The rain of iron droplets has been reported by astronomers.

The composition of the drops is not yet known. They were the size of small shot and each had a tiny hole passing exactly through the center.

The first of the drops were found on the wooden decks of the Prinz Eugen, more than a mile from the target center. Two of them placed on a six-inch square of X-ray film entirely blackened the film, showing they probably were emitting X-rays and other rays.

Scientists will analyze the pellets. They may be found to contain some of the new atoms formed by fission of plutonium.

ALL WARSHIPS HIT BY RAYS OF A-BOMB

ABOARD THE U.S.S. APALACHIAN, Friday, July 5 (AP)—The unseen forces of the atomic bomb—blast and lethal rays—portrayed it today as a fleet killer even though ships came through its unearthly fire.

Capt. George Lyon, a radiological safety officer, declared that the entire fleet of 73 ships would have been left helpless by Monday's atomic explosion had it been fully manned.

"Many not killed by the blast would have been unable to carry on their duties because of illness from the radiation," he told news conference.

JUL 4 1946

Animals Show Effects

What might have happened to men at battle stations above or below decks was unfolding in the story of the test animals still alive after the bomb let go in a blinding flash off the Nevada's stern.

Although 90 per cent of the animals came through alive, many were beginning to show a falling blood count, the deadly after-effect of exposure to radiation.

Associated Press Science Writer Howard Blakeslee reported another crippling effect of the blast. He said the explosion's enormus pressure had split the Nevada's boilers.

Visits Damaged Nevada

Blakeslee visited the Nevada, the target battleship, and found its boilers split so badly it was doubtful "whether she could have continued to navigat,, although the bomb went off possibly 500 yards away.

More than 100 feet of the old battlewagon's after-deck were emitting man-killing X-rays.

On the deck of the German cruiser Prinz Eugen, nearly two miles from the target center, Blakeslee found evidence that the bomb showered at least part of the fleet with a rain of molten, radioactive metal.

Pellets spattered the Prinz Eugen's deck. Apparently they were vaporized metal which had condensed, possibly from the bomb itself.

Sea Life Uninjured

Scientists reported the bomb had no appreciable effect on small life in the lagoon, nor did its blast blow down a single palm on Bikini.

From the radiation," he told a news

Meanwhile, Vice Admiral William H.P. Blandy went ahead with preparations for the second test, which he said would be held within three or four weeks. The second atomic bomb will be exploded beneath the surface of Bikini lagoon, but no ship would be placed directly over it, he said.

The admiral said he thought the first experiment was a true test of an atomic bomb, even though he informed a news conference the bomb was not so efficent as the one which devestated Nagasaki.

Every ship damaged, including the hard-hit carrier Independence, could be repaired in two to nine months, Blandy added.

Shrimp At Bikini Still 'Ock Ocking'

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, July 4 (AP)—The atomic blast had no appreciable effect on small life in Bikini lagoon.

Shrimp for instance still make noises like "ock ock" for love calls, just as they did before the big explosion.

Scientists reporting on atomic bomb effects said today Bikini's fish seemed to have a premonition of the coming bomb about a month ago. At that time fishing became bad, and fish have remained scarce ever since.

Scientists in Plane Risk Lives To Save Bikini Records in Storm

PHILADELPHIA, July 4—(AP)—The Philadelphia Record in a copyrighted story by its staff correspondent, Alfred M. Klein, said tonight a group of famous scientists, flying to the United States from Bikini, deliberately gambled their lives today in a thunderstorm over Nebraska by refusing to bail out to save top secret photographic and instrument records of the atomic blast.

"I was with them," Klein said in his story. "I saw them, some already injured by the storm's buffeting, disregarded the pilot's orders to take to their parachutes. They threw themselves on the heavy cases and instruments which had torn loose from their lashings. By holding down the boxes and steel cases with their bodies, they prevented them from crashing into the tail of the plane and ripping out the sides of our C-54."

The scientists won their battle with the storm.

Klein said the pilot was Capt. Walter Ketron of Kingsport, Tenn., and the navigator Lt. James A. Creighton of Kitanning, Pa.

Passengers included Col. George D. Goddard, chief of the Army's photographic laboratory at Wright field, Dayton, O.; Dr. Duncan E. MacDonald, professor of physics at Boston university who was returning with the spectographs used to analyze the light of the bomb's flash; Amron H. Katz, Dayton civilian physicist attached to the Army air force, who was carrying photometric records which measure the intensity and characteristics of the bomb; Dr. Elmer Haskins of Boston, noted mathematician who brought back scientific data which must be analyzed before the second phase of the atomic test can be held; William Hagen of Wellesley, Mass., associate professor of physics at Boston university; Lt. Walter S. Hood of Ashland, O., and Capt. Ralph Gardiner of Cambridge, Mass.

After passing the Sierra Nevadas and the Rocky Mountains, Klein gave this account of the flight:

"Suddenly it became dark. Capt. Gardiner saw a flash outside.

"'What was that?' he asked me.

"'It looked like that No. 2 motor was backfiring,' I said.

"There was another flash and we knew then that it was lightning.

"But the lightning got worse. Outside, its flashes showed us terrific thunderclouds.

"It began to rain.

"'This is terrible!' exclaimed Hagen. 'I wonder if the pilot knows where we are?'

"As a mater of fact, the pilot didn't know—as I learned later. For the storm had put his radio and compass out of commission."

Klein said the air was bumpy and Lt. Hood injured his leg standing astride a photometric camera which was lashed down.

"Just then a sergeant named Montana came aft from the pilot's compartment.

"'Everybody grab a parachute!'"

Montana and Creighton went to the rear of the plane and opened the escape hatches, the story said.

"But as they did so the boxes of instruments and records became loose. They started tumbling about the cabin. MacDonald, a husky man, threw himself on the first box to come loose. Haskins did the same; then Katz, then Gardiner and myself.

"'Don't let 'em get away,' MacDonald said. 'They'll rip out the sides of the plane and we won't have a chance.'

"We braced ourselves against the bucket seats, against each other—and that's how we rode out the storm."

Ohio Republican Finds Too Much Left to Discretion of OPA.

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP) A compromise bill to restore price and rent controls until next June 30 was approved tonight by the Senate Banking committee, 12 to 5, but a bitter fight was in prospect on the Senate floor.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.), announcing that the bill had been pronounced "workable" by OPA Administrator Paul Porter, predicted that it would be enacted.

But Senator Taft (R-Ohio), told reporters it left so much discretion to OPA that "you had just as well not have any amendment at all" of the old law which expired June 30.

Will Demand Revisions

"This is as good as nothing so far as I am concerned," he said, adding that he would fight for revisions on the floor.

Taft said Barkley's original so-called "compromise" was very reasonable, but that during the afternoon Barkley had allowed Porter to make changes.

JUL 4 1946

Senate Group Votes One-Year Extension Of Compromise OPA

MEASURE REVISES ITEMS CRITICIZED IN TRUMAN'S VETO

Porter Approves Proposed Bill, Terms It Workable.

TAFT IN OPPOSITION

"This is how Porter's bill," he declared.

The bill contains all the provisions except two that were in the measures which President Truman assailed and vetoed Saturday. These two, the so-called Taft and Wherry amendments, are changed.

Tomorrow the bill comes up in the Senate on the first lap of a road which must take it through both houses of Congress before it can reach the President.

Would Return to Ceilings

The bill would roll back present prices and rents to where they were June 30—until such time as the OPA might have to raise them because of other provisions of the measure.

Then it follows the terms of the original extension bill, except for the two revisions of the Taft and Wherry amendments. These, in their revised form, provide:

1. That ceiling prices for producers, manufacturers and processors must reflect the average industry-wide price during 1940, plus the average increase in cost since then. The revised section, however, contains a number of restrictions which Senator Taft declared would render it largely ineffective.

2. That in establishing price ceilings for wholesalers and retailers, the price administrator "shall make due allowance for the current cost of acquisition of any commodity, plus such percentage discount or mark-up as was in effect on June 29, 1946."

The "hedges" on the provision which would give manufacturers and processors prices to cover cost increases, about which Taft complained, included these three:

1. The ceilings need not necessarily reflect the 1940 price, plus cost increases on each individual item, but only the average profit for the industry as a whole on 1940 sales, plus costs.

2. On products where no increase of present production is practicable, present prices need not be increased if they cover the average current costs.

3. In order to get increases under the section in question, industry advisory committees would have to present with their applications comprehensive cost and price data. The price administrator then would have 60 days to grant or deny the adjustments. If he denied them, the committee could petition the emergency court of appeals, which already handles such applications.

Criticizes Loose Wording

Taft particularly criticized the provision which would not require adjustment of ceilings if greater production would not be practical. He asserted that would give the administrator so much discretion that he need make no adjustments at all.

Summing up, Taft said:

"These changes were all put in by Porter so he won't have to do what the amendment says he has to do."

Taft also called Barkley's substitute for the Wherry amendment "unsatisfactory."

The Wherry amendment in the bill Mr. Truman vetoed required that retailers and other distributers be allowed the same percentage mark-up or discount that they had in October 1941.

Barley's substitute says that when fixing prices the administrator must make "due allowance for the current cost of acquisition plus such percentage discount or mark-up as was in effect on June 29, 1946."

Urged End of Controls

Taft told reporters that at one time during the afternoon the committee voted 10 to 8 to leave price controls off meat and dairy products.

But, he said, Barkley "wept" and said he doubted he could sponsor the bill with that provision. Finally, Senator Burch (D-Va), said he would change his vote, Taft related, adding:

"Barkley wept some more then and Radcliffe said he would change too and so it was lost."

Taft said both Burch and Senator Radcliffe (D-Md), retained freedom to vote against meat price controls on the Senate floor.

And Taft said, for himself, that he would fight on the floor to restore his original amendment on manufacturers' and processors' prices. It provided that price ceilings must show late 1941 prices plus subsequent cost increases.

The following members voted to report the bill favorably to the Senate:

Vote for Bill

Chairman Wagner (D-NY), and Senators Barkley (D-Ky), Radcliffe (D-Md), Downey (D-Calif), Murdock (D-Utah), Taylor (D-Idaho), Fulbright (D-Ark), Mitchell (D-Wash), Carville (D-Nev), Burch (D-Va), Buck (R-Del), and Capehart (R-Ind.).

Against the bill were:

Senators Taft (R-Ohio), Butler (R-Neb), Capper (R-Kas), Millikin (R-Colo), and Hickenlooper (R-Iowa).

Senators McFarland (D-Ariz), and Tobey (R-NH), were absent. The votes of Fulbright and Butler were cast by proxy.

On the revised manufacturers' price amendment, the 9 to 7 vote was divided as follows:

For—Wagner, Barkley, Radcliffe, Murdock, Taylor, Fulbright, Mitchell, Carville and Burch.

Against—Taft, Butler, Capper, Buck, Millikin, Hickenlooper and Capehart.

The pricing amendment affecting wholesalers and retailers was adopted by a 10 to 7 vote, with the positions the same as on the manufacturers amendment, except that Downey joined the affirmative.

Barkley reported that Price Administrator Paul Porter, who sat with the committee most of its long holiday session, said the committee's revision of the pricing provisions would be "workable and he could administer them."

"He (Porter) stated he would not recommend a veto based on those amendments," Barkley said. "I have every reason to believe the bill will be approved."

Barkley expressed the view that the new measure is "a better bill" than the one the President rejected.

"I have every reason to believe this be will not be disapproved by the President," he told newsmen, "and I say that without having talked with him about it."

PORTUGAL BLOCKS U. S. AZORES BASE

Lisbon Demands Military Alliance in Return for Island Lease.

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP)—The Philippine islands gained their independence today without upsetting basic American military strategy in the Far East, but at some other key points over the world American base plans are not going so well.

Officials conceded today that in at least one case—that of a base in the Azores—the United States had run headon into the question what it was willing to "pay." The Portugese government wanted in substance some kind of military alliance or guarantee that if it ever got into trouble it would have United States support.

Won't Make Commitments

American unwillingness to make a military alliance with any nation beyond its commitments under the United Nations was one of the primary reasons why the Azores negotiations at Lisbon earlier this year broke down into an 18-months agreement for transit rights for United States military planes. American military and diplomatic authorities privately say they were keenly disappointed though not particularly surprised at the outcome.

As far apart as they are, the Philippines and the Azores are key points in the nation's proposed defense system for the atomic age. Major bases in the far-flung system are the Azores, Ascension island and Iceland in the Atlantic; and the Philippines, Manus, Hawaii and the Aleutians in the Pacific.

The total defense picture is filled out by adding to these the defense installations going into Alaska, training and arms standardization agreements to be worked out with Canada and the Latin American nations, indefinite continuation of top military cooperation with Britain and development of a small but powerful army in China.

Behind the scenes there is some talk of the desirability of an American base in the Mediterranean to give the United States the authority of physical force in an area in which it is seeking—as at the Paris conference—to exercise political power. The Navy once recommended to Congress an effort to retain the wartime base at Port Lyautey in French North Africa, but evidently nothing has come of this.

At few places have defense arrangements moved as smoothly as in the Philippines. Arrangements have been made for the United States to operate from its long-standing land, sea and air bases in the islands as may be necessary. Beyond this and separate from the bases agreement is a plan for the United States to train and equip the Philippines army.

Australia Holds Manus

The United States controls Hawaii and the Aleutians and may thus develop them militarily as the president directs, but Manus, southern anchor of the Pacific defense plan, is an Australian mandate. The maximum desire of the American military evidently is to gain complete control over Manus, where a great base was built during the war, but this has not been formally proposed to the Australians. Instead the question of base rights has been raised.

Australia and New Zealand came forward with a counter-proposal that the United States should join in a conference of Pacific powers to work out a joint defense strategy. This was indirectly posed the same question as the Azores —what commitments is the United States willing to make?

Here again the answer is "none" and it is understood that this has been made clear to Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia who has conferred here with President Truman, acting Secretary of State Acheson and other officials. These officials have argued to Evatt that if what Australia really wants most is security it could have no better guarantee than an American base system, keyed on Manus, between it and the north.

In the Atlantic the broad strategic problem for the United States is to control bases to Europe. Authorities familiar with policy on this issue say the government genuinely wants this control within the framework of the United Nations but wants the United States to have the actual running of the bases.

Ascension Island Available

Ascension island, a British pinpoint between the hump of Brazil and Africa, presumably presents no special problem because of tight Anglo-American cooperation. It is needed to be kept in a stand-by condition rather than as an active base. But the Azores are Portugese and Iceland is independent. The Azores control the direct route to western Europe and Iceland the northern approaches.

American troops in both places have been slashed to a few hundred service forces, handling military planes in and out of the great airbases. They are in Iceland temporarily until the formal end of the war, but the United States is to sponsor Iceland's membership in the United Nations and that may open the way for a U.N. base there under American operation.

The Azores problem is much more complicated, according to persons familiar with the negotiations. Portugal is reported willing to en-

'Unknown Serviceman' Selection Outlined

American Will Be Chosen From 21,008 Unidentified Now Buried In Overseas Graves

Washington, July 4 (AP) — In graves all over the world, 21,008 unidentified Americans who gave their lives in World War II lie buried today.

Every day, some of them are identified.

But at some indefinite time in the future, when their number has been reduced as far as ever seems likely and no further identification clues remain to be explored, a selection will be made among hose nameless dead—the selection of the "Unknown Service Man" of World War II, to lie in honor beside the Unknown Soldier of World War I.

Bill Passed June 14

Brig. Gen. George A. Horkan, director of the memorial division of the Quartermaster General's Office, outlined the plans today, so far as they have been made, to carry out the bill passed by Congress June 14 and signed by President Truman.

It directs the Secretary of War to provide for the burial of an unknown American, who lost his life overseas in World War II, in the Memorial Amphitheater of Arlington.

Horkan said the body will lie beside that of the World War I hero but the inscription on the tomb may not be the same—"An American soldier known but to God."

May Not Be Soldier

The unknown hero of World War II will not necessarily be a soldier. He may be a sailor, a Marine or a member of the Coast Guard. So the inscription probably will call him "service man."

A proposal has been made to create a committee, representing each of the armed services, to suggest details of a plan to the Secretary of War.

Horkan said it was suggested that one body be chosen from among the dead of each branch of the service. Likewise, that each theater of war would be represented: Europe, the Pacific, China-Burma-India, Alaska, Africa-Middle East and the Caribbean.

Records Were Destroyed

In 1921, one body was chosen from each of four cemeteries in France where American dead were buried. To select the bodies, numbers were chosen at random from the grave numbers of unidentified dead soldiers. After the bodies were disinterred all records concerning them were destroyed, to reduce the chances for identification.

The four bodies, in plain caskets, were placed in the City Hall at Chalons-Sur-Marne, France. Sergt. Edward F. Younger, a wounded and decorated veteran, was chosen to designate the dead soldier to be returned to America. He did this by placing a wreath of French flowers on a casket.

Now it has been proposed to bring back one body from each of the World War II theaters and, at a ceremony in Washington, to choose the one to receive the nation's supreme tribute.

NEW NAVY TACTICS SEEN BY HALSEY

SEATTLE, July 4—(AP) The Navy of the future must adopt tactics similar to those of a roving center in football, Fleet Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey, Jr., said today, so it can "quickly shift its weight and concentrate its might wherever an enemy might choose to attack."

Widespread bases will be needed in both oceans, Admiral Halsey said in a prepared address which highlighted Seattle's July 4 observance, but he added:

"Just as the people of this coast could not entrust their safety 25 years ago to shore defenses alone, so now they cannot entrust their security exclusively to a system of island defenses.

"Probably the best defense against guided atomic missiles lies in our ability to keep the would-be attacker at the greatest possible distance from our shores."

Asserting "we can no longer get away with ducking our international responsibilities," he said the Navy plans to maintain an active force "whose size will be commensusate with our mission in world peace."

"All the while, of course, the Navy is intensively at work on several classes of guided missiles and rockets. It is making an intensive study of the potentialities of nuclear physics, and is continuing its vast explorations in the field of electronics."

JONES RAPS CRITIC ON RFC OPERATIONS

Former Chairman Charges Attempt to 'Damage' Lending Agency.

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP) Jesse Jones accused the General Accounting office tonight of a calculated attempt to "damage" the Reconstruction Finance corporation, huge government financial agency.

Jones, former chairman of the RFC, said in a statement that the accounting office's recent criticism of RFC's accounting methods "are not suported by the facts nor, justified by the circumstances."

Moreover, he added, they were made "at a time calculated purposely in my opinion, to damage the RFC."

Gave Report to Senators

Controller General Lindsay C. Warren sent his criticism to the Senate Banking committee June 21, a few days after it unanimously had approved a bill extending the life of the RFC as requested by President Truman. The measure now is pending.

The accounting office, making a scrutiny of accounts of the RFC and its affiliates, reported that the corporation lacked accounting "control" of $7,000,000,000 invested in its properties and of $800,000,000 of inventories of affiliated wartime corporations.

"The RFC and its affiliated companies have not developed an adequate concept of the control of financial and operating responsibilities through accounting," it added.

The report was based on data from T. Coleman Andrews, director of the corporation audits division of the accounting office.

Jones asserted that from February, 1932, to December, 1941, the RFC was audited annually by certified public accountants as well as its own auditors and that the outside accountants never "found any thing material to criticize."

"During the period," he continued, "more than $15,000,000,000 was authorized by the RFC and no semblance of irregularities was disclosed by auditors and no criticism has been made other than the fact that the corporation did a good job. However, some left-wingers did criticize the corporation for not making losses. In all of these vast and varied operations it remains for Mr. T. Coleman Andrews to attempt to play the part of David slaying Goliath."

TRYGVE LIE LEAVES ON TRIP TO EUROPE

NEW YORK, July 4—(AP) Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, left New York by air today to tour European U. N. offices.

Lie said that after visiting Oslo on personal business, he would go to Copenhagen, Geneva, the Hague and London on U. N. business. He will return to the United States in August.

Messersmith Says U. S. Seeks Argentine Amity

Urges Co-operation in Cause of World Peace

BUENOS AIRES, July 4 (AP).—American Ambassador George Messersmith told the American Society of the River Platte today that Argentina and the United States should strive together for world peace, thus achieving that inter-American collaboration which "is one of the cornerstones of the United Nations."

"It is the sincere desire of my government," . . . said Mr. Messersmith, "to work together with the Argentine government and people in an inter-American system for mutual advantage on an equitable basis of each and all the countries in this hemisphere."

In his first public address since his arrival here Mr. Messersmith told the society's annual luncheon meeting that co-operation of the two governments should be directed to "the end that we may all be able to make our full contribution to an effective world order of peace and equity."

Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Atilio Bramuglia and members of the diplomatic colony were among those attending the luncheon.

To Equip Hospital for Greece

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4 (AP)—Equipment for an 1,800-bed hospital will leave for Athens, Greece, tomorrow aboard the Liberty ship Frederick E. Ives. Greek priests blessed the consignment today as it was taken aboard. The equipment, originally intended to be sent into the Pacific during the war, was purchased by UNRRA from the Government and sold to the Greek War Relief Association for about a quarter of its $1,000,000 value.

FBI STUDYING BIG CONTRACTS

$78,000,000 War Awards Involved In Illinois Paper Plan

Washington, July 4 (AP) — FBI agents are investigating the award of more than $78,000,000 in war contracts to an Illinois industrial combination, Attorney General Clark said today.

30.24-3965

Clark said the FBI stepped into the case of the Erie Basin Metal Products Company and eighteen affiliates which transformed a paper plan into big money.

Following a call at the White House, Clark said, the Senate War Investigating Committee gave the Justice Department all the information it had dug up about the combine.

Army officers testified before this committee that Representative May (D., Ky.), chairman of the House Military Committee, interceded with the Army to get work for the combine. May said he was only "expediting the war effort" and that "every congressman did the same thing."

The committee, in recess until Tuesday, plans to ask Secretary of War Patterson whether May turned on pressure on behalf of the companies.

Patterson Is Willing To Answer Questions

Vicksburg, Miss., July 4 (AP)—Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today he would be glad to appear before the Senate War Investigating Committee "and answer any questions they might wish to ask me."

The committee is investigating award of war contracts to an Illinois industrial combination.

Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) said in Washington today that Patterson would be asked whether Representative May (D., Ky.) applied pressure to obtain war contracts for the Illinois concern.

Patterson, who delivered an Independence Day address here today, planned to fly back to Washington tonight.

FBI ENTERS PROBE OF MISSING GOODS AT MARINE STATION

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4—(AP) Channels through which $1,000,000 worth of government property, including 200,000 cases of beer, disappeared were checked by the FBI tonight in an investigation which already has resulted in the detention of a Marine corps officer at Camp Pendleton, near Oceanside, Calif.

The Navy, in confirming the broad outlines of the case, said inquiry is being made into the activities of several San Francisco and Los Angeles firms as possible outlets for the suspected diversion. The government goods also included 2,000 wrist watches, textiles and leather goods.

Two San Francisco men, subpoenaed as witnesses at a Federal grand jury session unexpectedly cancelled yesterday, were reported to have made statements to the FBI that they turned down an offer for the sale of beer to civilian outlets in return for $31,000 cash. The FBI's only comment was that the investigation is continuing.

The officer held at Camp Pendleton formerly was connected with the post exchange of that mammoth Marine installation, the Navy said.

Suggesting the case may involve others, 11th Naval district headquarters in San Diego said in a formal statement it was cooperating with the FBI, naval intelligence, and the OPA "in a concerted effort to bring to justice all the persons involved."

Headquarters said information at hand indicated "certain individuals of this command might be involved with civilian concerns."

The Federal grand jury inquiry was understood to have been cancelled on orders from Washington.

HOUSING REPORT SHOWS INCREASE IN PRIVATE WORK

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP) New housing construction, measured in dollars, reached $344,000,000 during June, up $31,000,000 from May, the Census bureau reported tonight.

Privately-financed housing accounted for $324,000,000 in June, up $25,000,000 over the previous month, while publicly-financed residential construction totaled $20,000,000, up $6,000,000 from May.

Total new construction, with a June volume of $921,000,000, has about doubled since January, the bureau said, but the monthly rate of increase has tapered off.

The Commerce department declared at the same time that the cost of construction has gone so high that it is "a serious threat to the reconversion program, full production and employment."

It blamed "building codes that are archaic, that prohibit the use of new methods and materials, and that contain restrictive provisions unrelated to their prime function of providing for health and safety."

The department announced launching of a survey of municipal codes to "identify the nature and extent" of provisions "which tend to or do actually increase building costs." It hopes to encourage revision of the codes.

SENATE TO RECEIVE HARBOR BILL TODAY

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP) A billion dollar rivers and harbors authorization bill will reach the Senate floor tomorrow for final debate, acting Chairman Overton (D-La.) of the Senate Commerce committee, said today.

The rivers and harbors bill is the next unfinished business on the calendar and will come up first tomorrow," Overton told a reporter. "I hope to have it followed by the flood control bill."

The flood control legislation authorizes expenditure of more than $950,000,000.

Neither bill provides money. They authorize construction to be financed under subsequent legislation.

The projects involve flood control, navigation, hydroelectric power, irrigation and related works throughout the country.

ARMY FLIER KILLED IN JET PLANE CRASH

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 4—(AP) Lt. Col. John C. Herbst, leading Army ace of the China theater, was fatally injured late today when his P-80 Shooting Star failed to come out of a loop and crashed near the jam-packed San Diego county fair grounds during an Army air show.

Herbst, who was putting his jet fighter through tight turns and dives before a crowd of more than 30,000, failed to come out of a loop and crashed a mile east of the fair grounds at the Del Mar race track. He was taken from the wreckage and rushed to a hospital.

Shortly before the P-80 crashed two civilian training planes collided about 500 feet above the fair grounds. One of the pilots, Ray Dinsen, 31, parachuted to safety when a wing fell from his plane. The other flier, James Campbell, 33, landed his plane. Dinsen's craft cleared the fair grounds before it crashed.

NEW YORK, JULY 4-(AP)-THE PROSPECT THAT A PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE MAY BE CONVENED BEFORE THE END OF THIS MONTH RAISED THE POSSIBILITY TODAY THAT PLANS FOR THE SEPT.3 MEETING OF THE UNITED NATIONS GENERAL ASSEMBLY IN NEW YORK MAY HAVE TO BE CHANGED.

TRYGVE LIE, SECRETARY-GENERAL OF THE UNITED NATIONS, SAID THAT IT WOULD RESULT IN AN AWKWARD SITUATION SHOULD THE PROPOSED PEACE CONFERENCE CONTINUE IN SESSION THROUGH SEPTEMBER AND DECLARED THAT U.N. OFFICIALS HAD BEEN GIVING THE MATTER SOME THOUGHT.

HE INDICATED THEY ALREADY HAD DECIDED ON A PLAN OF ACTION, BUT SAID NO ANNOUNCEMENT WOULD BE MADE PENDING DEVELOPMENTS AT THE FOREIGN MINISTERS COUNCIL IN PARIS.

LIE IS SCHEDULED TO LEAVE NEW YORK SHORTLY ON A MONTH'S TRIP TO EUROPE TO ATTEND TO PERSONAL BUSINESS IN OLSO AND VISIT U.N. ESTABLISHMENTS IN LONDON, GENEVA AND THE HAGUE.

TODAY WAS OBSERVED AS A HOLIDAY BY UNITED NATIONS OFFICIALS AND DELEGATES.

FOREIGN MINISTERS
BY LOUIS NEVIN

PARIS, JULY 4-(AP)-U.S.SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES F.BYRNES INDICATED HE WOULD RENEW HIS DEMANDS TODAY THAT THE FOREIGN MINISTERS COUNCIL GIVE ITS APPROVAL TO THE CONVOKING OF A 21-NATION PEACE CONFERENCE IN PARIS BEFORE THE END OF THE MONTH.

BYRNES' ATTEMPTS TO WIN AN IMMEDIATE DECISION ON THE CONFERENCE WERE FRUSTRATED YESTERDAY WHEN SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER V.M.MOLOTOV DECLARED THAT HE COULD NOT AGREE TO FIXING A DATE UNTIL AFTER THE ITALIAN REPARATIONS QUESTION HAD BEEN SETTLED.

THE SESSION BROKE UP AFTER A HEATED DEBATE, WITH THE FOREIGN MINISTERS APPARENTLY DEADLOCKED AND UNABLE EVEN TO AGREE ON AN AGENDA FOR THEIR MEETING AT 5 P.M. (11 A.M. EST) TODAY. ONLY FIXED ITEM ON THEIR PROGRAM WAS A REPORT FROM THE DEPUTY FOREIGN MINISTERS ESTIMATING THE TIME THAT WOULD BE REQUIRED TO DRAW UP A DRAFT OF THE TREATIES TO BE PRESENTED TO THE PEACE CONFERENCE WHEN IT IS CONVOKED.

U.S.SENATOR ARTHUR VANDENBURG SAID THE DISAGREEMENT YESTERDAY HAD RESULTED IN "AN AWFUL ROW", BUT EXPRESSED BELIEF THAT IT SHOULD STILL BE POSSIBLE TO CONVENE A PEACE CONFERENCE HERE BEFORE JULY 31. OTHER COUNCIL SOURCES AGREED WITH HIM.

THE DISPUTE OVER THE CONFERENCE QUESTION CAME AFTER THE FOREIGN MINISTERS HAD ACHIEVED COMPLETE ACCORD ON THE INTERNATIONALIZATION OF TRIESTE AND THE PROBLEM OF ITALY'S COLONIES.

BYRNES TOOK THE POSITION THAT IT HAD BEEN AGREED LAST SATURDAY THAT THE MINISTERS SHOULD DECIDE ON A DATE FOR THE PEACE CONFERENCE AFTER SETTLING THESE TWO ISSUES AND PRESSED FOR AN IMMEDIATE DECISION.

WHEN MOLOTOV INSISTED THAT THE REPARATIONS ISSUE SHOULD BE DISPOSED OF FIRST, BYRNES DECLARED THAT HE COULD NOT AGREE TO DISCUSS REPARATIONS WITH THE THREAT OF A SOVIET VETO -- IN THE FORM OF REFUSAL TO CALL A PEACE CONFERENCE -- HANDING OVER THE COUNCIL'S HEAD.

MOLOTOV HAS INDICATED THROUGHOUT THAT HE IS IN FAVOR OF POSTPONING THE PEACE CONFERENCE UNTIL SEPT. 1 OR 15.

THE TRIESTE QUESTION WAS SETTLED ON THE BASIS OF A SIX-POINT PLAN DRAFTED BY BYRNES AND VANDENBURG. AS ADOPTED THE PLAN PROVIDED THAT:

(1) TRIESTE AND ITS ENVIRONS, EMBRACING AN AREA WITH A POPULATION OF ABOUT 400,000, BE ESTABLISHED AS A "FREE TERRITORY;" (2)--THE UNITED NATIONS WILL ASSURE THE AREA'S INDEPENDENCE AND INTEGRITY; (3)- THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN, RUSSIA AND FRANCE WILL APPOINT A COMMISSION TO CONFER WITH ITALY AND YUGOSLAVIA ON A STATUTE FOR THE ADMINISTRATION OF TRIESTE WHICH WILL BE SUBMITTED TO THE PEACE CONFERENCE; (4)- THIS STATUTE ALSO WILL BE SUBMITTED TO THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL FOR APPROVAL; (5)- THE PEACE CONFERENCE WILL MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE AREA'S PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT AND THE FORMATION OF THE PERMANENT STATUTE; (6) -- THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL WILL APPOINT A GOVERNOR FOR THE AREA, WHICH WILL HAVE A LEGISLATURE ELECTED IN A DEMOCRATIC MANNER BY UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE.

THE QUESTION OF THE ITALIAN COLONIES WAS SETTLED ON THE BASIS OF A THREE-POINT BRITISH PROPOSAL PROVIDING THAT:

JUL 5 1946

(1)- ITALY WILL RENOUNCE ALL CLAIM TO SOVEREIGNTY OVER THE COLONIES; (2) THE PRESENT ADMINISTRATION WILL REMAIN UNCHANGED FOR A YEAR; (3)- DURING THE YEAR THE FOUR POWERS WILL TRY TO WORK OUT A FINAL SOLUTION ON THE DISPOSITION OF THE COLONIES AND WILL SEND COMMISSIONS TO CONSULT WITH THE NATIVES.

ON OUR VISIT TO THE CENTURY-OLD ZEISS PLANT WE WERE ESCORTED BY DR.HUGO SCHRAEDE, ONE OF THREE GERMAN DIRECTORS. WORKMEN WERE TURNING OUT AN ENDLESS LIST OF TECHNICAL PRODUCTS INCLUDING MICROSCOPES, BINOCULARS, MEDICAL INSTRUMENTS AND LENSES.

SCHRAEDE SAID THAT PRODUCTION WAS BACK TO THE 1939 RATE, DESPITE APPROXIMATELY 30 PERCENT BOMB DAMAGE TO THE SPRAWLING PLANT AND THAT FURTHER GAINSMWERE ANTICIPATED. THERE ARE NOW 11,000 WORKERS ON THE PAYROLL.

SCHRAEDE SAID THAT AT PRESENT ONLY SIX PERCENT OF ZEISS PRODUCTION WAS DEVOTED TO INTERZONAL TRADE WITH THE WESTERN OCCUPATION ZONES. OF THE 90 PERCENT OF PRODUCTION DELIVERED TO THE RUSSIANS, HE SAID, THE RUSSIAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT "PAYS FOR ONE-QUARTER FOR OPERATIONAL EXPENSES OF THE PLANT AND THE REMAINING THREE-QUARTERS IS CHARGED TO REPARATIONS."

MOST ZEISS RAW MATERIALS COME FROM THE ZONE ITSELF.

AT THE GIANT BUNA WORKS THE GERMAN DIRECTOR, DR.JOHANNES NELLES, DECLARED PRODUCTION WAS AT THE RATE OF 1,500 TONS OF SYNTHETIC RUBBER MONTHLY, OR ABOUT 60 PERCENT OF THE WARTIME RATE. HE SAID THAT BOMB DAMAGE TO THE $200,000,000 PLANT WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR ABOUT 10 PERCENT OF PRODUCTION DEFICIENCY.

NELLES SAID THAT TO DATE 2,200 TONS OF RUBBER HAD BEEN DELIVERED TO THE RUSSIANS FOR REPARATIONS.

JUL 5 1946

ONE OF THE LARGEST INDUSTRIAL UNITS IN ALL GERMANY, THE BUNA PLANT WAS BUILT BY I.G.FARBENINDUSTRIES IN 1936. IT MANUFACTURES, BESIDES BUNA, VARIOUS PLASTICS, ELECTRICAL INSULATORS, CHLORINE AND OTHER BY-PRODUCTS. RAW MATERIALS COME FROM THE ZONE, POLAND AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA. #

HAMBURG, JULY 4-(AP)-TEN GERMANS, INCLUDING THREE FORMER SOLDIERS, WERE SENTENCED BY A BRITISH MILITARY COURT YESTERDAY TO PRISON TERMS RANGING UP TO FIVE YEARS FOR TAKING PART IN AN ANTI-BRITISH DEMONSTRATION IN HAMBURG'S CITY HALL SQUARE JUNE 27.

THE DEMONSTRATION, IN WHICH APPROXIMATELY 4,000 PERSONS PARTICIPATED, WAS IN PROTEST AGAINST AN ORDER DIRECTING APPROXIMATELY 30,000 PERSONS TO EVACUATE THEIR HOMES TO MAKE ROOM FOR THE FAMILIES OF BRITISH MILITARY PERSONNEL.

WARSAW, JULY 3 (DELAYED) A COMPILATION OF APPROXIMATELY ONE FOURTH OF THE BALLOTS IN LAST SUNDAY'S REFERENDUM ANNOUNCED TODAY BY THE GOVERNMENT SHOWED BIG LEADS FOR THE AFFIRMATIVE ON ALL THREE OF THE REFERENDUM QUESTIONS. HOWEVER, MANY PEASANT DISTRICTS, WHICH COULD CHANGE THE COMPLEXION, WERE NOT YET REPORTED.

THE GOVERNMENT COMPILATION SHOWED THAT 1,784,274 APPROVED A PROPOSED UNICAMERAL LEGISLATURE AND 537,336 WERE OPPOSED. THIS FIRST QUESTION WAS THE MOST HOTLY CONTESTED, WITH VICE PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLACZJYK SUBJECTING HIS POLISH PEASANT PARTY TO A TEST OF STRENGTH IN AN APPEAL TO POLES TO VOTE NEGATIVELY.

AN ESTIMATED 10,000,000 VOTES WERE CAST. BALLOTS COUNTED WERE MAINLY FROM THE CITIES AND INDUSTRIAL CENTERS SUCH AS THE DABROWSKI

30.24-3967

COAL FIELDS, THE KATOWICE TEXTILE CENTER, GYDNIA GDANSK, KIELCE, LUBLIN AND POZNAN.

MUCH INTEREST WAS CENTERED IN VOTING ON THE OTHER TWO QUESTIONS: APPROVAL OF THE GOVERNMENT'S PROGRAM OF NATIONALIZATION OF INDUSTRIES AND LAND REFORM AND OF POLAND'S NEW WESTERN BOUNDARY ALONG THE ODER AND NIESSE RIVERS.

A MAJORITY AFFIRMATIVE VOTE FOR BOTH PROPOSALS WAS RECORDED IN THE CITIES COUNTED, BUT THERE WAS A SURPRISINGLY LARGE NUMBER OF NEGATIVE VOTES, WHICH GENERALLY WERE CONSTRUED AS IN PROTEST AGAINST ACTS OF THE PROVISIONAL REGIME.

KRAKOW, A UNIVERSITY CITY, REGISTERED STRONG OPPOSITION.

THE TABULATION THERE SHOWED THE GOVERNMENT PROPOSAL TO ABOLISH THE SENATE WAS DEFEATED 120,840 TO 23,162.

ON THE QUESTION OF APPROVAL OF THE GOVERNMENT POLICY OF NATIONALIZATION AND AGRARIAN REFORM, KRAKOW VOTED 99,276 AGAINST TO 43,997 FOR.

ON THE QUESTION OF THE WESTERN FRONTIER, KRAKOW VOTED 43,982 NEGATIVE TO 102,627 AFFIRMATIVE.

COMMUNIST-BACKED NEWSPAPERS TERMED POLES WHO VOTED AGAINST PRESENT FRONTIERS "TRAITORS."

NEITHER THE COMMUNIST-BACKED PARTIES, WHICH URGED APPROVAL ON ALL REFERENDUM QUESTIONS, NOR MIKOLAJCZYK (CORRECT) CLAIMED VICTORY.

MOSCOW, JULY 4-(AP)-ROBERT LIVINGSTON, ACTING CHIEF OF THE UNRRA MISSION IN WHITE RUSSIA, SAID TODAY HE HAD PROTESTED AN ORDER WHICH HE REPORTED HALTED THE SHIPMENT OF UNRRA TRACTORS TO WHITE RUSSIA AND THE UKRAINE ON THE GROUND THAT THE SOVIET UNION WAS EXPORTING TRACTORS TO ARGENTINA.

HE SAID HE SENT THE PROTEST TO DIRECTOR GENERAL F.H.LA GUARDIA.

(LA GUARDIA SAID IN WASHINGTON YESTERDAY THAT THE SHIPMENT OF 322 TRACTORS HAD BEEN CERTIFIED FOR RUSSIA A FEW DAYS AGO. HE SAID THERE WAS "NO JUSTIFICATION FOR THE STATEMENT" THAT EXPORTS HAD BEEN HALTED. HE SAID UNRRA HAD NO INFORMATION ON THE SHIPMENT OF SOVIET TRACTORS TO ARGENTINA AND THAT "OUR MISSION INFORMS US TO THE CONTRARY.")

LIVINGSTON SAID IN AN INTERVIEW "I DON'T THINK THERE IS ANY EXCUSE FOR CUTTING OFF THE SUPPLIES."

"WHITE RUSSIA IS NOT EXPORTING TRACTORS TO ANYBODY," HE SAID. "AND, AFTER ALL, THERE ARE THE UNRRA AGREEMENT TERMS TO BE OBSERVED. IT ISN'T RIGHT JUST TO TURN OFF THE TAP WITHOUT WARNING."

SOME 900 TRACTORS WERE PROMISED IN THE WHITE RUSSIA PROGRAM AND 1,60 WERE SCHEDULED FOR THE UKRAINE. NO TRACTORS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE ARRIVED YET.

LIVINGSTON, A NEW ZEALANDER, TOOK TEMPORARY CHARGE OF THE WHITE RUSS UNRRA MISSION DURING THE BRIEF ABSENCE OF HIS CHIEF, RICHARD SCANDRETT, WHO IS IN POLAND.

(WHITE RUSSIA AND THE UKRAINE WERE ELIGIBLE FOR UNRRA SUPPLIES BECAUSE BOTH SECTIONS WERE OVERRUN BY GERMANY. IN RECENT CONGRESSIONA DEBATE OVER ANOTHER LARGER U.S. CONTRIBUTION TO UNRRA, THE PROPOSAL WAS MADE THAT SUPPLIES BE ALLOWED ONLY IN COUNTRIES WHICH PERMITTED FOREIGN NEWSPAPER REPORTERS TO RELATE HOW THE SUPPLIES WERE USED. REPORTERS HAVE NOT BEEN ALLOWED TO OPERATE FREELY IN EITHER OF THE RUSSIAN REPUBLICS.)

JERUSALEM, JULY 4-(AP)-THE BRITISH ARMY DISCLOSED TODAY THAT 50 OF THE 2,718 JEWS ARRESTED DURING THE WEEK HAD BEEN RELEASED FROM THE RAFA PRISON CAMP IN SOUTHERN PALESTINE AND SAID OTHERS WOULD BE FREED LATER.

THOSE RELEASED TODAY WERE MOSTLY RESIDENTS OF TELAVIV WHO WERE SWEPT ALONG WITH THOUSANDS SUSPECTED OF CONNECTION WITH UNDERGROUND RESISTANCE AND HELD FOR INVESTIGATION.

THE ARMY SAID IT WAS TRYING TO RELEASE THE INNOCENT AS FAST AS POSSIBLE. NONE HAS YET BEEN RELEASED FROM LATRUN CAMP, WHERE SIX MEMBERS OF THE JEWISH AGENCY EXECUTIVE ARE BEING HELD.

IRGUN ZVAI LEUMI, UNDERGROUND JEWISH RESISTANCE ORGANIZATION, PROMISED TODAY TO RELEASE THREE KIDNAPED BRITISH OFFICERS AS "SOON AS POSSIBLE" IN RETURN FOR THE COMMUTATION OF DEATH SENTENCES IMPOSED ON TWO JEWISH YOUTHS FOR FIRING AT BRITISH SOLDIERS.

THE PROMISE TO RELEASE THE OFFICERS WAS BROADCAST BY THE UNDERGROUND JEWISH RADIO, WHICH EXPRESSED "GRATIFICATION" AT THE COMMUTATION ORDER ISSUED YESTERDAY BY LT.GEN.SIR ALAN CUNNINGHAM, PALESTINE HIGH COMMISSIONER. THE DEATH SENTENCES HAD BEEN CONFIRMED ONLY THE DAY BEFORE BY MAJ.GEN.SIR EVELYN BARKER, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF BRITISH MILITARY FORCES IN PALESTINE.

IRGUN ZVAI LEUMI HAD BEEN HOLDING THE BRITISH OFFICERS AS HOSTAGES WHILE DEMANDING THAT THE DEATH SENTENCES BE COMMUTED. THE OFFICERS HAD BEEN KIDNAPED JUNE 18.

BRITISH MILITARY AUTHORITIES MEANWHILE ANNOUNCED THE DISCOVERY OF NINE ADDITIONAL CACHES OF MUNITIONS IN AN UNDERGROUND ARSENAL IN THE JEWISH VILLAGE OF MESHEQ YAGUR, WHERE THEY HAVE BEEN CONDUCTING AN INTENSIVE SEARCH FOR CONTRABAND ARMS SINCE LAST SATURDAY.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID THE FINDS INCLUDED 4,000 GRENADES, 2,200 MORTAR BOMBS, 385 RIFLES, 46 PISTOLS, THOUSANDS OF ROUNDS OF SMALL ARMS AMMUNITION AND 800 POUNDS OF EXPLOSIVES.

(IN LONDON THE BRITISH COLONIAL OFFICE ISSUED A CATEGORICAL DENIAL OF ZIONIST CHARGES THAT JEWISH PRISONERS HAD BEEN MISTREATED AND SUBJECTED TO "MEDIEVAL TORTURES" IN THE ATHLIT DETENTION CAMP OR ELSEWHERE IN PALESTINE. "THERE IS NO FOUNDATION WHATSOEVER FOR ALLEGATIONS THAT THIRD DEGREE TREATMENT, BEATING OR TORTURE HAS BEEN INFLICTED ON ANY DETAINEES," THE STATEMENT SAID.)

EMIL KHOURI, A MEMBER OF THE NEWLY FORMED HIGHER ARAB EXECUTIVE, SAID THE GROUP SENT A STATEMENT YESTERDAY TO GEN.CUNNINGHAM DEMANDING THAT THE BRITISH TAKE FURTHER ACTION TO HALT ILLEGAL JEWISH IMMIGRATION.

"WE CANNOT BE RESPONSIBLE FOR ANY ARAB REACTION IF ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS STILL CONTINUE TO FLOOD PALESTINE," KHOURI QUOTED THE STATEMENT.

HE SAID THE BRITISH OCCUPATION AND SEARCH OF THE JEWISH AGENCY AND OTHER INSTITUTIONS "IS A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION TO PRESERVE THE PRESTIGE OF THE MANDATORY POWER IN PALESTINE."

JUL 5 1946

"ALL WE ARE WAITING FOR, HOWEVER," HE ADDED, "IS THE BRITISH APOLOGY TO THE JEWISH AGENCY."

LONDON, JULY 4-(AP)-IZVESTIA ASSERTED IN AN ARTICLE BROADCAST FROM MOSCOW TODAY THAT BRITISH POLICY IN PALESTINE "CONSTANTLY POURS OIL ON THE FLAMES OF NATIONAL STRIFE."

CRITICIZING MANY PHASES OF BRITISH FOREIGN AFFAIRS, THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER REPORTED THAT "IN OTHER COUNTRIES OF THE NEAR AND MIDDLE EAST BRITISH POLICY ALSO HAS THE CLEARLY DEFINED CHARACTERISTICS OF EFFORTS TO DOMINATE OTHER PEOPLES."

"THE PEOPLES IN HABITING THE VAST AREAS BETWEEN MALTA AND INDIA COME INTO THE CONSIDERATION OF BRITISH POLICY FROM THE NARROW POINT OF VIEW OF DEFENSE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE'S COMMUNICATIONS," THE ARTICLE COMPLAINED.

IZVESTIA ALSO TOOK EXCEPTION TO THE RECENT DECLARATION OF FOREIGN SECRETARY ERNEST BEVIN IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS IN WHICH, IT SAID, HE STATED THE OPINION THAT "THERE WERE MANY MATTERS CONNECTED WITH THE SOVIET ATTITUDE TOWARDS THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH AND EMPIRE WHICH AT LEAST SHOWED A SENSE OF REALISM."

"HE SAID THAT HE THOUGHT, FOR INSTANCE," IT ADDED, "THAT THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT AS WELL AS THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES DID REALLY RECOGNIZE THE TREMENDOUS IMPORTANCE TO THE PEACE OF THE WORLD OF THE MAINTENANCE OF THE BRITISH POSITION IN THE MIDDLE EAST, PROVIDED THAT, ULTIMATELY, THERE WAS DEVELOPED A REGIONAL ORGANIZATION FITTING INTO THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY SYSTEM.

"LEAVING ASIDE THE ATTITUDE OF THE UNITED STATES TO BRITISH POLICY IN THE MIDDLE EAST, IT IS NECESSARY TO POINT OUT THAT THE ABOVE DECLARATION ON THE ATTITUDE OF THE SOVIET UNION TO THIS POLICY IN NO WAY CORRESPONDS TO REALITY AND CONSTITUTES A FRIVOLOUS ATTEMPT TO HIDE BEHIND THE SOVIET UNION'S BACK.

"IT IS INDEED A WELL KNOWN FACT THAT SOVIET FOREIGN POLICY RESTS ON THE PRINCIPLE OF RESPECT FOR THE NATIONAL RIGHTS OF BOTH LARGE AND SMALL NATIONS AND COMPLETE SUPPORT OF THE LOFTY AIM OF NATIONAL SELF-DETERMINATION OF INDEPENDENT PEOPLES, WHICH HAS ALSO BEEN ACKNOWLEDGED BY THE CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS.

"UNFORTUNATELY, IT CAN BY NO MEANS BE SAID THAT BRITISH POLICY IN THE NEAR AND MIDDLE EAST IS BEING DEVELOPED ON THIS FOUNDATION. IT IS BEING DEVELOPED ON AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT PRINCIPLE AND, WHILE THE MATTER REMAINS AS IT IS, THE SOVIET UNION'S ATTITUDE TO THIS POLICY IS COMPLETELY CLEAR."

ABOARD U.S.S. NEVADA,JULY 4-(AP)-"WOULD YOU LIKE ANOTHER CRACK AT THE NEVADA?" NEWSMEN ASKED ATOM-BOMBARDIER MAJ.HAROLD H.WOOD TODAY AFTER HE INSPECTED FOR THE FIRST TIME THE DAMAGE HIS JULY 1 DROP HAD WROUGHT.

"I'D ALWAYS LIKE ANOTHER SHOT AT ANYTHING THAT'S STILL STANDING!" HE GRINNED.

BUT HE ADDED THAT HE WAS TREMENDOUSLY CHEERED BY THIS FIRST GLIMPSE OF THE WRECKAGE. THE BOMBING CREW HAD HEARD ERRONEOUS REPORTS THAT THE DAMAGE WAS NOT HEAVY, HE EXPLAINED.

"I'M GLAD WE DIDN'T GO HOME RIGHT AFTER THE DROP, AS WE WERE SUPPOSED TO. THIS VISIT TO THE SHIPS WAS WORTH THE WAIT."

HE AND THE B-29 PILOT, MAJ.WOODROW P.SWANCUTT, WERE GUESTS OF BRIG. GEN.ROGER M.RAMEY, 20TH BOMBER COMMAND CHIEF, ON TODAY'S TOUR.

SWANCUTT'S ENTIRE AIR AND GROUND CREWS, TOTALLING 16 MEN, ARE SCHEDULED TO LEAVE SATURDAY FOR HONOLULU, SAN FRANCISCO, LOS ANGELES AND WASHINGTON.

SWANCUTT SAID HE WAS PARTICULARLY ANXIOUS TO GET HOME; HIS WIFE, IN TAMPA,FLA., IS EXPECTING A BABY ANY DAY NOW.

DURING THE AIRMEN'S TOUR OF THE STRICKEN SHIPS, THEY RECEIVED FORMAL CONGRATULATIONS FROM THE TASK FORCE COMMANDER, VICE ADM.W.H.P. BLANDY, FOR THE EXCELLENCE OF THEIR DROP.

WITH CAPT.A.A.CUMBERLEDGE, WASHINGTON,D.C., THE AIRMEN EXCHANGED MUTUAL CONGRATULATIONS. CUMBERLEDGE IS THE METEOROLOGIST AT WHOSE SIGNAL THE DROP WAS SCHEDULED.

INSPECTION OF THE FLEET SHOWED THAT BLAST DAMAGE, CARRIED DOWN WRECKED FUNNELS, SEEMED TO HAVE WROUGHT THE GREATEST WOUNDS TO THE BATTLESHIPS NEVADA AND ARKANSAS, THE HEAVY CRUISER PENSACOLA, AND OTHERS IN THE INNER GROUP. BOILERS OF BOTH BATTLESHIPS AND THE CRUISER WERE BURST, RENDERING THEM POWERLESS ALTHOUGH THEIR GUN TURRETS COULD HAVE BEEN OPERATED MANUALLY IF IN COMBAT.

HULLS, HOWEVER, WERE INTACT, AND THEIR SKIPPERS PROCLAIMED PROUDLY: "WE HAVEN'T A LEAK ANYWHERE."

ATOMIC (480) JUL 5 1946

BY DON WHITEHEAD

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN,JULY 4-(AP)-THE SINGLE ATOMIC BOMB LOOSED ON BIKINI WOULD HAVE LEFT THE ENTIRE TEST FLEET HELPLESS HAD THE 73 SHIPS BEEN FULLY MANNED, ONE RADIOLOGICAL SAFETY OFFICER SAID TODAY.

THE BOMB WOULD HAVE HAD TWO SHOTS AT THE CREWMEN, POINTED OUT CAPT. GEORGE LYON -- FIRST, THE BLAST; AND SECOND, LINGERING, DEADLY RAYS. "MANY NOT KILLED BY THE BLAST WOULD HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO CARRY ON THEIR DUTIES BECAUSE OF ILLNESS FROM THE RADIATION," HE OBSERVED.

ALTHOUGH 90 PERCENT OF THE TEST ANIMALS SURVIVED, MANY OF THEM TODAY HAD BEGUN TO SHOW A FALLING BLOOD COUNT -- WHICH MAY LEAD TO DEATH.

ASSOCIATED PRESS SCIENCE WRITER HOWARD W.BLAKESLEE REPORTED A NEW SOURCE OF CRIPPLING, PHYSICAL DAMAGE TO SHIPS TODAY AFTER TOURING THE BULLSEYE BATTLESHIP NEVADA. THE PRESSURE OF THE BLAST, HE OBSERVED, HAD SPLIT HER BOILERS OPEN, "LEAVING DOUBT WHETHER SHE COULD HAVE CONTINUED TO NAVIGATE."

THE ARKANSAS AND PENSACOLA WERE SIMILARLY DAMAGED.

THE CROSSROADS TASK FORCE COMMANDER, VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY, DECLINED TO DRAW ANY CONCLUSIONS FROM THE TEST OR TO MAKE ANY PREDICTION OF ITS EFFECT ON FUTURE SHIP CONSTRUCTION. HE DID REMARK AT HIS PRESS CONFERENCE, HOWEVER, THAT EVERY SHIP DAMAGED COULD BE REPAIRED IN TWO TO NINE MONTHS, SINCE NONE HAD SUFFERED SEVERE UNDERWATER DAMAGE.

THE SECOND TEST BOMB WILL BE DETONATED UNDER WATER, WITHIN THREE OR FOUR WEEKS.

BLANDY DECLINED TO SAY WHAT THE POSITION OF THE FLEET WOULD BE FOR THIS SECOND TEST, BUT ADDED THAT NO SHIP WILL BE PLACED DIRECTLY ABOVE THE SUBMERGED BOMB.

HE TERMED THE AERIAL BURST OF LAST MONDAY "A TRUE TEST" OF ATOMIC POWER, EVEN THOUGH IT WAS NOT, HE SAID, AS EFFICIENT AS THE NAGASAKI BOMB.

WOULD IT HAVE WIPED OUT PEARL HARBOR?

WELL, SAID BLANDY, THE BEST ANSWER WOULD BE TO TAKE THE AREA OF DEVASTATION AT HIROSHIMA AND IMPOSE IT ON A MAP OF PEARL HARBOR--TAKING INTO CONSIDERATION THE TYPE OF BUILDINGS AND INSTALLATIONS DESTROYED AT HIROSHIMA AS COMPARED WITH U.S. NAVY BASE CONSTRUCTION.

REGARDING SHIP DESIGN OF THE FUTURE, "MY CRYSTAL BALL HAS ONLY A 24-HOUR RANGE," HE LAUGHED.

COL.STAFFORD WARREN, CROSSROADS RADIOLOGICAL SAFETY OFFICER, COMMENTED EARLIER THAT "STEEL IS NOT TOO GOOD A PROTECTION FOR PERSONNEL," SINCE IF THE ARMOR WERE MADE THICK ENOUGH TO STOP LETHAL RAYS, THERE'D BE NO ROOM LEFT IN THE SHIP FOR CREWMEN.

HE TERMED RADIATION RESULTING FROM MONDAY'S BLAST "TERRIFIC."

BLAKESLEE, VISITING THE NEVADA FOR THE FIRST TIME THIS AFTERNOON, FOUND SHE STILL WAS EMITTING LETHAL X-RAYS FROM HER AFTER DECK--ON WHICH A STRETCH OF MORE THAN 100 FEET WAS ROPED OFF FOR SAFETY.

"AMIDSHIPS," HE ADDED, "SOME BOXES OF SOAP AND OF BROMIDES WERE EMITTING SUCH STRONG X-RAYS THAT IT WAS UNSAFE TO BE NEAR THEM LONGER THAN TWO HOURS."

THE BIG SHIP'S BOILERS WERE SPLIT DESPITE THE FACT THE SHOCK CAME FROM FAR BEYOND HER STERN, POSSIBLY 500 YARDS AWAY. THE ONLY UNDAMAGED THINGS ON DECK, HE FOUND, WERE TWO GREAT PERSHING TANKS, GUNS DOWN TO THE SIZE OF 20-MILLIMETER, AND RUBBER TIRES. HUGE TRACTOR TIRES HAD SCARCELY BEEN BLACKENED, AND SEEMED GOOD AS NEW. THE WOODEN DECKS, HOWEVER, "WERE A SERIES OF HUMPS AND SHALLOWS. ONE HOLE 15-FEET SQUARE WAS STOVE IN THE DECK AMIDSHIPS."

THERE WERE MANY FREAK RESULTS. DELICATE MACHINERY ON THE FORWARD DECK STOOD UNDAMAGED IN A HOLLOW--WHERE THE INDIRECT, REFLECTED SHOCK WAVES HAD FORCED THE DECK DOWN 18 INCHES.

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, THURSDAY, JULY 4-(AP)-DR.RALPH A. SAWYER, CROSSROADS TECHNICAL CHIEF, TODAY CALLED "IRRESPONSIBLE" AND "CHEAP CHARGES BY DR.ERNEST POLLARD OF OREGON THAT THE NAVY HAD EXPLODED THE BIKINI ATOM BOMB IN SUCH A MANNER AS TO EXPLOIT ITS RADIATION RATHER THAN ITS CONCUSSION.

POLLARD, UNIVERSITY OF OREGON NUCLEAR PHYSICIST, WAS QUOTED AS SAYING, "THAT'S AN IDIOTIC WAY TO SINK A BATTLESHIP."

SAID SAWYER: "THAT IS AN IRRESPONSIBLE STATEMENT. IT IS FROM A MAN WHO DOES NOT KNOW THE CONDITIONS NOR HEIGHT OF THE EXPLOSION, NOR WHY. IT WAS A CHEAP THING TO SAY AND A HARD ONE TO ANSWER. IT IS AN EXAMPLE OF WHAT WE HAVE HAD TO COPE WITH ALL ALONG."

STONE MOUNTAIN,GA., JULY 4-(AP)-VICE ADMIRAL DANIEL E.BARBEY, COMMANDER OF THE ATLANTIC AMPHIBIOUS FORCES, SAID TODAY THE BIKINI ATOM BOMB DROP SHOWED THAT "WELL-DISPERSED NAVAL FORCES MAY STILL TRANSPORT TROOPS AND EXERCISE THEIR NORMAL WARTIME FUNCTIONS."

THE ADMIRAL, SPEAKING BEFORE A "WELCOME HOME" RALLY FOR VETERANS OF WORLD WAR TWO SPONSORED BY THE AMERICAN LEGION, SAID: "THE MEAGER INFORMATION THAT WE HAVE OBTAINED FROM THE TESTS OF LAST SUNDAY MERELY CONFIRMS THE FACT THAT, WITH THE ATOMIC BOMB, MANKIND HAS ACQUIRED A NEW WEAPON OF FRIGHTFUL DEADLINESS."

AS A VETERAN OF BOTH WORLD WARS, ADMIRAL BARBEY POINTED OUT THAT IN BOTH WARS "AMERICAN INDUSTRIAL AND MILITARY POWER HAS BEEN THE DECIDING FACTOR. IN EACH WE WERE UNPREPARED. IN EACH WE HAD ALLIES TO HOLD OFF THE ENEMY WHILE WE DEVELOPED OUR STRENGTH."

HE WARNED THAT "WE MAY EXPECT ANY FUTURE ENEMY TO WAGE SUDDEN AND TOTAL WAR. IN TIME OF PEACE WE MUST PREPARE FOR WAR. PREPAREDNESS IS THE PREVENTATIVE OF WAR."

BARBEY TOLD THE VETERANS THAT THE NAVY IS PLANNING "AN ORGANIZED RESERVE OF 4,000 OFFICERS AND MEN WITH DIVISIONS MAINTAINED IN ATLANTA, AUGUSTA, MACON AND SAVANNAH. IN ADDITION," HE SAID, "A NAVAL AIR RESERVE UNIT OF 210 OFFICERS AND 425 MEN WILL BE TRAINED TO OPERATE FROM SHIPS."

ASSOCIATED PRESS AVIATION REPORTER

WASHINGTON, JULY 4-(AP)-INITIAL SPECULATION ABOUT THE EFFECT OF THE ATOM BOMB ON NAVAL AVIATION TENDS TO THE VIEW THAT CHANGES WILL BE MORE IN TACTICS THAN IN SHIPS.

SOME DESIGN CHANGES ARE PROBABLE, IN VIEW OF THE EXTENSIVE DAMAGE TO THE LIGHT CARRIER INDEPENDENCE. BUT NUMEROUS DESIGN ALTERATIONS ALREADY ARE UNDER CONSIDERATION AS A RESULT OF EXPERIENCE WITH THE NEW BATTLE CARRIER CLASS, THE MIDWAY AND THE ROOSEVELT, AND MANY OF THEM WILL APPEAR IN THE CORAL SEA, NOW NEARING COMPLETION AT NORFOLK, VA.

NAVY OFFICERS ARE NOT YET READY FOR SERIOUS DISCUSSION OF THE BIKINI TEST BECAUSE OFFICIAL REPORTS HAVE NOT YET BEEN RECEIVED AND THEIR FEELING IS REAL EVALUATION OF THE ATOM BOMB ON THE FLOATING NAVY IS IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL AFTER THE UNDERWATER BLAST, EXPERIMENT SCHEDULED FOR APPROXIMATELY THREE WEEKS HENCE.

INFORMAL DISCUSSION SHOWS NO GREAT CONCERN OVER THE FATE OF THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER, HOWEVER.

JUL 5 1946

THE BIKINI BOMB SWEPT THE INDEPENDENCE FLIGHT DECK CLEAN, INCLUDING THE ISLAND AND ANTENNAS. THAT IS LIKELY TO ACCELERATE THE MOVE TOWARD A RETURN TO STRICT FLATTOP DESIGN BY HAVING THE ISLAND BELOW THE FLIGHT DECK LEVEL, AS IT WAS IN THE OLD LANGLEY AND IN THE LONG ISLAND CLASS OF ESCORT CARRIERS. THE JAPANESE BUILT SOME CARRIERS IN THAT STYLE.

OTHER POSSIBLE CHANGES LIKELY TO GET INCREASED CONSIDERATION ARE:

1. REDESIGN OF RADAR AND RADIO ANTENNAS FOR A TELESCOPIC EFFECT SO THAT THEY CAN BE PROTECTED FROM BLAST, AND PERHAPS ENTIRELY NEW TYPES OF ANTENNAS THAT CAN BE USED IN A PROTECTED LOCATION.

2. INSTALLATION OF A SECOND HANGAR DECK FOR STORING AIRCRAFT. PRESENT HANGAR DECK SPACE ACCOMMODATES LESS THAN HALF OF THE AIRCRAFT COMPLEMENT ON A MODERN CARRIER. THE OTHERS ARE EXPOSED ON THE FLIGHT DECK.

3. REDESIGN OF HANGAR DECK CURTAINS FOR GREATER BLAST PROTECTION. THESE CURTAINS ARE METAL SLATS WHICH COVER VAST OPENINGS IN THE SIDES OF CARRIERS.

4. REDESIGN OF THE HULL STRUCTURE FOR MORE BLAST PROTECTION, AND PERHAPS HEAVIER DECKS. THE MIDWAY CLASS ALREADY HAVE ARMORED FLIGHT DECKS.

TACTICAL CHANGES ARE CERTAIN TO INCLUDE GREATER SPACING BETWEEN CAPITAL SHIPS OPERATING AT SEA. IN FACT, SPACING ALREADY HAS BEEN INCREASED IN TRAINING CRUISES, SUCH AS THE EIGHTH FLEET'S RECENT MANEUVER.

THE AIM WILL BE TO HAVE SHIPS SO FAR APART THAT A SINGLE ATTACK CANNOT AFFECT MORE THAN ONE CARRIER.

SUCH PLANNING IS LIMITED TO THE FORESEEABLE FUTURE, AND DOES NOT REACH TO THE ERA OF ROBOT AIRCRAFT AND TARGET SEEKING MISSILES, ALL OF WHICH MAY CALL FOR EVEN MORE RADICAL CHANGES IN SHIPS AND TACTICS.

RUSSIANS UPSET ACCORD ON PLANS FOR PEACE PARLEY

Foreign Ministers Clash Sharply During 4 Hours of Bitter Debate.

TRY AGAIN TODAY

Soviets Seek to Impose Ready-Made Rules on Conference.

JOS. DYNAN

PARIS, July 5—(AP) The four-power foreign ministers' council clashed sharply tonight on Russia's determination to impose a ready-made set of rules on the general European peace conference, and invitations to the 21-nation parley remained undrafted and unsent.

The foreign ministers of Russia, Great Britain, France and the United States adjourned after four hours of bitter debate without reaching a real accord on how to call the conference which, they agreed last night, should be convened on July 29.

Try Again Today

American and British sources said the ministers would again discuss the conference tomorrow afternoon.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, American and British informants said, attempted to enforce a set of rules of procedure upon the peace conference, evoking staunch opposition from Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Great Britain and U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

Senator Vanderberg (R-Mich) said Molotov argued that China should not be one of the inviting powers along with the Big Four and insisted that the ministers should draft and improve the rules of procedure before the invitations are issued.

Molotov argued that China had not participated in the council meeting here and insisted that the inviting nations be restricted to the four powers represented at the present council table, American sources said.

Stand Behind China

Byrnes and Bevin contended that China, while not taking part in the current talks, is a member of the foreign ministers' council. Byrnes said that the Potsdam and Moscow declarations provided that the council, and not some members of it, should issue the invitations.

Molotov agreed finally to accept the Russian amendment erasing China's name from the list of inviting powers if the invitations were sent out today.

However, the second Russian amendment requiring that invitations be accompanied by rules of procedure was then introduced and Byrnes flatly rejected it.

Declaring that every conference has the right to draft its own rules of procedure, Byrnes argued he could not agree to rules drafted by the council because such action would commit the United States and other council members to an attempt to influence the other 17 nations.

Compromise Is Offered

President Georges Bidault of France then proposed a compromise by which France merely would "inform" the other nations that a peace conference was scheduled to begin July 29 and that invitations would be sent later.

British informants said Molotov objected on the ground that such advance notice would only "confuse" the 17 smaller nations.

When Bevin urged postponing the decision until tomorrow, Molotov demanded the council proceed to the German question, saying he had some declarations to make. He suggested that the deputies take over the job of drafting the invitations and formulating rules.

One American source said that this would have blocked any further move by Byrnes to bring up the peace conference question, since Germany then would be considered the first order of business. The informant said it appeared that the Russians were attempting to block the peace conference for some unexplained reason.

Byrnes Stands Pat

Byrnes refused to yield in his stand, Molotov was firm in his arguments, and the session broke up, he added.

The council had met today presumably to agree on the invitations and to iron out details of the Italian, Balkan, and Finnish treaty drafts. The meeting lasted three hours and 45 minutes.

Agreements on the peace conference date, and settlement last night of the Italian reparations issue, were achieved after a session lasting more than seven hours.

Meanwhile, informed officials predicted that the ministers would end their sessions next week after they appoint special deputies to study eventual settlements with Germany and Austria.

French informants who had anticipated earlier that a detailed discussion of German issues was in the offing, conceded now that the interval between the July 29 opening of the European peace conference was too short to permit a full-scale survey of the German question.

30.24-397

The French said the ministers probably would discuss Germany and Austria for only a few days, and then appoint special commissioners to continue the studies pending another foreign ministers council after the European peace conference adjourns.

'Big Four' Keep Last Word, Inviting 21 Nations

JUL 6 1946

Paris, July 5 (AP)—The foreign ministers of the Big Four drafted invitations today for a general European peace conference to be held in Paris July 29 for debate on treaties intended to end World War II for Italy and the Axis satellites.

In a seven-hour-and-40-minute session which lasted into the early hours this morning, the diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, France, Soviet Russia and the United States reached agreement on Italian reparations—the final major point blocking preparation of treaty drafts—and fixed the date for the peace conference.

Composing Invitations

The deputy foreign ministers assembled today to draw up a suggested invitation for submission to their chiefs.

An American source said that, after approving the wording and before tackling the German treaty, the ministers probably would clean up odds and ends in the five treaty drafts—for Italy, Finland, Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria—they will submit to the conference.

The 21-nation general conference—composed of Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Byelo-Russia, Canada, China, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, France, Great Britain, Greece, India, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, the Ukraine, the Union of South Africa, the Soviet Union, the United States and Yugoslavia—will not have the final say on the treaties.

They Can Only Advise

Russia has insisted on strict adherence to the terms of the Moscow agreement of last December, under which the Big Four are to draw up the final treaties after studying the advice of the peace conference.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault all have indicated that they intend to press for serious consideration of the advice of the conferees when the Council meets again after the peace conference to complete the final treaties.

Must Pay Russia 100 Million

The Ministers settled their last major conflict—Italian reparations—by an agreement providing that Italy must pay Russia $100,000,000.

The only item now on the agenda which still might cause trouble was the issue of freedom of navigation on the Danube. The last time they discussed this question the Ministers apparently were settled on a proposal that the Council declare that freedom of navigation on the river should be observed.

Before winding up their current session the Ministers also have to discuss the Austrian question and the problems of peace for Germany—which were expected to occupy the Ministers virtually until the eve of the peace conference.

H. G. WELLS SCORES BRITISH MONARCHY

JUL 6 1946

Suggests "Royal Reserve" In U.S. For Exiled Royalty

London, July 5 (AP)—H. G. Wells, in an almost unprecedented attack upon a British King's family, asked publicly today whether the royal family was involved in the "huge" sums which, the House of Commons was told recently, the Italian Government of Benito Mussolini had paid to Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, before the war.

The 79-year-old novelist and historian declared in an article in the magazine Socialist Leader that if the royal family were involved, "then there is every reason why the House of Hanover should follow the House of Savoy into the shadows of exile and leave England free to return to its old and persistent republican tradition."

Buckingham Palace authorities could not be reached for comment on Wells's blast—one of the very few attacks on the royal family to appear in a British publication in many years.

Weekly Publication

The Socialist Leader is published weekly by the Independent Labor party, Left-wing offshoot of the Labor party.

Wells said of the British royal family:

"Even this German-ruled . . . monarchy which links the English with the crumbling monarchist system of the world is menaced by a gathering accumulation of revelations. Things are coming out, and they are bound to come out.

"Why cannot these tainted people do the sane and patriotic thing while they may still be treated with consideration?

"Now they can be bought out and set apart with the sort of dignity and honors they value. Later on, their dismissal may have to be ruder."

Suggests "Royal Reserve"

Suggesting that a "royal reserve" for exiled kings and queens be created "in America or elsewhere, where people appear to be hungry for uniforms and titles," Wells said:

"The genuine democratic communities throughout the world need to know what is going on in this hushed-up business of the huge Mosley funds and how far our own royal family is involved in this affair."

Monarchy, Wells said, is "the antithesis of democracy" and "a repudiation of human equality."

"An artificial and insulting inferiority of the ordinary man is assumed," he continued. "He must look up while his betters look down upon him. He cannot look life and his fellow men square in the face. For that reason alone I have always been a republican."

Home Secretary Chuter Ede on June 6 read in the House of Commons two letters from Count Dino Grandi, former Italian Ambassador to Great Britain, to Mussolini, mentioning "considerable" payments by the Italian Government to Mosley in the 1930's.

Denied By Mosley

One letter said the British blackshirt leader was getting about $241,612 a year form Italy. Mosley, jailed by the British during the war, denied receiving funds from Italy.

There was no suggestion in Ede's speech in the House that the Royal Family was in any way connected with the reported payments, and Wells did not say how it might be "involved."

Although Wells is a Socialist, he has not been identified with the Labor party, whose leaders many times have affirmed their loyalty to the institution of the monarchy and to the present royal family.

In referring to the "House of Hanover," Wells used the name which the royal family dropped at the time of World War I in favor of "House of Windsor." The thrones of England and Hanover, one-time German kingdom, were united until 1837.

Because the magazine will not be delivered to its 20,000 subscribers until tomorrow and because only a comparatively few copies reached the newsstands today, most citizens went to bed unaware that Wells had attacked their sovereign family.

Those few who read the article were plainly shocked.

"This is the most serious thing since the abdication of Edward VIII," the London Journalist, a newspaper, said.

The publication of such an article is directly contrary to long-established journalistic custom in Great Britain of never attacking the King and Queen. The custom is looked upon as fair play since the King and Queen, as constitutional monarchs of limited authority, may not answer such attacks or take other action without Government sanction.

BLITZED COVENTRY TO GO MODERN

London, July 5 (A. P.).—The restored city of Coventry will have a shopping district for pedestrians only, planning engineers said today.

All commercial buildings will face paved courts and gardens with service roads and parking spaces provided behind the buildings. Theaters, and dance halls will be grouped into a brightly lighted center. Another center is planned for banks and financial houses.

Coventry, with a pre-war population of 167,000, was one of Britain's worst blitzed cities.

Communists In Britain Hit Holy Land Policy

London, July 5 (AP)—Declaring British action in Palestine constitutes a threat to world peace, the Communist party of Britain demanded today that the problem be submitted to the United Nations.

A party statement also called upon Britain and the United States to "open their gates to these distressed people" while the ground is prepared for a free and independent Palestine of Jews and Arabs.

"The situation today, unless it is satisfactorily cleared, threatens the peace of the Middle East and is, therefore, a threat to the peace of the world," the statement added.

"Deep bitterness" was felt "that a Labor Government should be the first in the world, following defeat of Hitler, to strike a blow against the Jewish people."

Attack on Buchman Plan Reopened in Commons

Laborite Says Officials Were Friendly to Nazi Leaders

LONDON, July 5 (AP).—Tom Driberg, Labor M. P., reopened an attack on Dr. Frank Buchman's Moral Rearmament program in the House of Commons today, charging that some of its leaders "associated in a close and friendly way with the leaders of Nazi Germany."

"It is provable," Driberg declared, "that this group has been heavily encouraged and backed financially in America by Henry Ford and others whose record is known to members on this side (the Labor side of the House)."

Driberg, a newspaper man, was protesting the recent admission of Dr. Buchman and 105 followers, including thirty-eight American citizens, into England to give a play and lectures.

Dr. Buchman did not comment immediately on Driberg's charges. He has denied that "M. R." leaders were friendly with Nazis and has described his teachings as "the full message of Christ" and "the answer to the atomic bomb."

Alert Set For New Palestine Trouble

London, July 5 (AP)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Jerusalem today said British soldiers had been alerted and were standing by in anticipation of Jewish retaliatory measures protesting the arrest of many Jews last week end.

The dispatch quoted British army officers as saying three Jewish underground armies will reach their "operational deadline" at one minute to midnight tonight. The paper recalled that previous Jewish underground actions had occurred on Friday nights so that participants might escape on Saturday, the Jewish sabbath.

Chief Rabbi, Attlee Confer On Palestine

London, July 5 (AP)—Dr. Isaac Herzog, chief rabbi of Palestine, conferred today with Prime Minister Attlee and said he got the impression that the Palestine situation "critical as it is, is not beyond remedy."

"I appeal again to the Government and the British nation," Rabbi Herzog said, "to visualize now, at once, the tragic plight of the agonizing remnants snatched from the Nazi fire."

FRENCH ASSEMBLY ACCEPTS REYNAUD

JUL 6 1946

PARIS, July 5 (AP)—The constituent assembly, over Communist opposition, voted 298 to 132 today to seat pre-war Premier Paul Reynaud.

A Communist-dominated election committee recommended that Reynaud's seat in the assembly be invalidated, not because of any irregularities in connection with his election, but because of the "moral aspect" in view of his wartime record.

"Doesn't he who selected (Marshal) Petain in 1940 as vice-president x x x deserve a penalty? At least he shouldn't sit in the national constituent assembly," the committee's report said.

Reynaud defended himself before a largely sympathetic chamber, accusing the Communists of "wishing to make us turn away from our natural inclination toward the Anglo-Saxon democracies toward totalitarianism."

The assembly's constitutional committee, also over Communist objections, decided that presidents of France in the fourth republic would be elected by at least two chambers.

A proposition to give the president of the republic the right to dissolve the chamber of deputies failed of passage in a 21-21 tie vote.

Hostel Unit Pedals Off To Holland

JUL 6 1946

Paris, July 5 (AP)—More than 100 American youth hostel workers pedalled away from Paris in two bicycle groups today, bound for Luxembourg and Bergen-op-Zoom, Holland, to repair youth hostels damaged and neglected during the war.

The Americans, led by Monroe Smith, of Northfield, Mass., arrived in Paris late Wednesday night, slept on apartment balconies or on mattresses laid on office floors in this crowded city and spent the Fourth of July sightseeing.

Materials Brought

They wound up Independence Day as guests at a reception given by Elsa Schiaparelli, the fashion designer.

The group came over equipped with tools, building materials and food to help Danish, Dutch and British hostel enthusiasts restore bombed or otherwise damaged buildings. They brought three trucks to transport the material.

They plan to return to Paris after two weeks and split up into three groups that will repair hostels in the Alps, the Pyrenees and the Jura mountains.

Strike In Trieste Now 4 Days Old

Trieste, July 5 (AP)—The general strike of 200,000 workers continued today for the fourth day despite the decision of Allied military authorities that it was "illegal."

Allied authorities ruled yesterday that the strike, which has virtually paralyzed this hotly disputed city, had political motives and therefore was out of order.

The strike was called Monday following riots between partisans of the Left and Right in which two persons were killed and 60 injured.

Some workers had returned to their jobs today, but port operations were still deadlocked, and out of ten ships in the port only one—and that a military cargo vessel—was being unloaded.

Posters appeared during the night throughout Trieste demanding that the four-power Foreign Ministers' decision to internationalize the area not be put into effect.

Bel Air Man Hurt In Trieste Riot

Trieste, July 5 (AP)—The names of seven American soldiers injured in rioting while patrolling this city Monday night—withheld from civilian correspondents—were published today in the Blue Devil, weekly division newspaper of the American 88th Division.

They are: Major Gerald H. Munn,

1946

Second Lieutenant Douglas A. Armstrong, Dobbs Ferry, N.Y.; Second Lieutenant Duryea Cameron, Bel Air, Md.; Pfc. Alan J. Perry, Alton, Ill.; Pfc. Ashton T. Bruton, Morehead City, N.C.; Pfc. Hufford Blankenship, Jolo, W.Va.

Bruton was reported seriously injured, but expected to recover.

Attended Gilman

Lieutenant Cameron is the 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Brodnax Cameron, of Bel Air. He attended Gilman Country School for Boys and the Bel Air High School. Just prior to joining the Army, he spent a year at Princeton University.

He received his early training with the 10th Mountain Division at Camp Hale, Col., and at Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga., when that division went overseas. He left for the European theater in October, 1945, with the 88th Division.

Danes Deplore Conduct At Dance for U. S. Navy

Paper Protests 'Indecency' at Copenhagen Affair

COPENHAGEN, July 5 (AP).—Under a front page headline reading "Indecency in Front of Spectators," the conservative "Nationaltidende" protested today against "shocking episodes" at a pier dance arranged in connection with an American naval visit here.

"Several of Copenhagen's fastest girls were among the guests on the pier last night," the paper said. "They behave like hussies from harbor joints. Equipped with beer bottles, they allowed themselves to be pawed by American sailors in front of thousands of spectators who felt ashamed to see Danish girls behave like that."

The paper said it obviously was the "dregs of former Wehrmacht girls" who seized American sailors for the night.

Axel Dessau, chairman of the Danish-Allied committee which arranged the dance, said more stringent measures would be taken at future dances, but he added with a sigh: "Sailors are sailors."

Indies Interim Plan Set

The Hague, July 5 (AP)—Premier Louis J. M. Beel said today a special administrative body would be formed for the Netherlands East Indies to bridge the transition period until the establishment of a new legal order for which the kingdom could bear responsibility.

"Though conscious of the serious character of the Indonesian problem," the chief of the new Cabinet declared before the lower house, "the Government is confident that a peaceful solution can be realized as soon as possible."

Authoritative sources said Beel planned to appoint his predecessor as premier, Willem Schermerhorn, as commissioner general for the troubled islands.

Discussion Of Relations

Revision of the relations between the ocverseas territories and the Netherlands are to be discussed at a round-table conference in September.

Domestically, Beel said, the emphasis would be on increased production, a national welfare plan and stimulation of private enterprise.

He said all possible help would be given to the development of the organization of the United Nations.

NAZI COUNSEL IN CHALLENGE

JUL 6 1946

Claims Germany Should Conduct War Criminal Trials

Nuernberg, July 5 (AP)—Counsel for Joachim von Ribbentrop today challenged the right of the Allies to try Germans as war criminals, contending the Potsdam agreement recognized that Germany would continue as a nation and therefore that only Germany should be conducting such prosecutions.

On this basis, Dr. Martin Horn sought to establish the innocence of the former foreign minister as far as the international military tribunal was concerned.

Defense Speech Stopped

Horn spoke after the tribunal abruptly shut off a defense speech by Attorney Alfred Seidl for Rudolf Hess when Seidl ignored warnings and continued a violent attack on the Versailles Treaty as both illegal and unjust.

Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence told Seidl to rewrite his defense speech, deleting his opinions about the Versailles Treaty, and present it another day. Hess listened without change of expression. Hermann Goering, who prison authorities reported had instigated the speech, chuckled.

Horn declared if German law was applied, Ribbentrop would be innocent of any acts he performed by decree of Adolf Hitler because such decrees were law.

More Blame For Hitler

Horn blamed international violations upon Hitler—as the other defendants have been trying to do since the war crimes trials started. He gave these explanations of Ribbentrop's role in German aggressions:

1. Austrian Anschluss — Ribbentrop had been foreign minister only ten days and "had no influence whatsoever" in that action.

2. Absorption of Czechoslovakia —This "came as a surprise" to Ribbentrop and he warned Hitler that the western powers would react adversely.

3. Yugoslavia — "This situation was caused by a forcible change in the Government in Belgrade," but Hitler alone decided that a threat existed and took action without Ribbentrop's knowledge.

Diplomatic Move Claimed

4. Denmark and Norway—"Von Ribbentrop was informed of this operation for the first time only 36 hours in advance. His share in the extension of the conflict into Scandinavia was so small that it hardly can be put to his charge as a separate action."

5. The Low Countries—All had detailed plans for the reception of Allied forces; German conduct was a defensive move.

6. Poland—Ribbentrop sought a diplomatic solution of the Memel and corridor problems. He blamed a British guarantee to help Poland for stiffening the Poles' refusal to bargain.

Action To Avoid War Claimed

Horn said Ribbentrop tried unsuccessfully to prevent war with Russia. In the Spring of 1941, he had sought to arrange a meeting of Russian and German diplomats with Hitler, but this failed, Horn said.

"This ended Ribbentrop's possibilities in his position under the regime," Horn added. "He afterward believed he could no longer shut his eyes to information which was brought to his knowledge."

Until then, said Horn, the defendant had been a blindly loyal follower of Hitler.

Horn said Ribbentrop tried to avoid war with the United States, but that the occupation of Iceland and Greenland "left no doubt that the United States had sided" with the Allies.

Fire in Nuremberg Courthouse

NUREMBERG, Germany, July 5 (AP)—A fire in the cafeteria kitchen at the Nuremberg courthouse was extinguished today by workmen using sand. The flames swept out a window into cables feeding the Radio Corporation of America offices in the courthouse. Police said a stove explosion started the blaze.

PROMOTIONS LINKED TO LICHFIELD ABUSE

Court Hears Kilian Rewarded 2 Guards for Shooting at Prisoners Breaking Rules

P. DOANE

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 5 (AP)—A prosecution witness testified today that Col. James A. Kilian, former commandant of the Lichfield, England, detention camp, personally had ordered the beating of a soldier prisoner there, and had promoted two guards for shooting at prisoners.

The witness, Lieut. Granville Cubage of Oklahoma City, said he once asked relief from duty at the Lichfield guardhouse because "the place was too rough and tough and I didn't want to get hung out on a limb."

Lieutenant Cubage, who recently was fined $250 after conviction on a charge of authorizing use of clubs at Lichfield, frequently refused to answer possible self-incriminating questions today because his own sentence still is subject to review.

Colonel Kilian, a cavalry veteran from Highland Park, Ill., alternately reddened, fidgeted, smiled and shook his head in denial as he listened to Lieutenant Cubage's testimony at the court-martial in support of the prosecution's charges that he instituted the guardhouse's alleged "be rough" policy.

Lieutenant Cubage quoted another Lichfield officer as saying that Colonel Kilian "told me we could be as tough as we want to."

Under questioning by prosecutor Major Joseph S. Robinson of New York, Lieutenant Cubage said two guards had been promoted by Colonel Kilian—one for shooting a prisoner in one leg during a reported attempted escape and another for shooting through a window near the head of a soldier who was looking out in violation of guardhouse rules.

"That's the kind of man I want —he's carrying out instructions," Lieutenant Cubage quoted Colonel Kilian as saying.

After that, he testified, he heard a captain "more or less joking with the guards about shooting prisoners so they'd be promoted.

He said Colonel Kilian once told him to take an incorrigible prisoner "down to the rifle range and work him over — just don't break too many bones." Lieutenant Cubage said he told another officer about this, and that the officer replied, "That's not so good. We must be careful. He's likely to leave us out on a limb."

Then, he continued, they submitted the prisoner to a medical examination and found he was insane.

The defendant in a concurrent trial, Lieut. Leonard Ennis of Peekskill, N. Y., denied that he "ever instituted any system of treatment of prisoners contrary to law or any system of unauthorized cruel or unusual punishment of soldiers" at Lichfield.

The Army announced tonight that charges had been served on three other officers awaiting courts-martial in connection with the treatment of prisoners at Lichfield.

Capt. Joseph A. Robertson of Toledo, Ohio; Major Richard E. Lubuono of Pittsburgh and Major Herbert W. Bluhm of Chicago are scheduled to go on trial on July 9, 10 and 11, respectively.

1,700,000 Enter, 500,000 Leave

HAMBURG, Germany, July 5 (AP)—The British and Russian zones in Germany have completed the exchange of nearly 2,225,000 Germans, British occupation authorities announced today.

The Russians sent approximately 1,700,000 into the British zone and the British approximately 500,000 into the Russian zone in moves to return Germans to their former homes.

Jews Stage Hunger Strike

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, Germany, July 5 (AP)—Many of the 70,000 eastern European Jews living in UNRRA camps in the United States zone staged a one-day hunger strike Wednesday a a protest against British military raids in Palestine.

Ex-Gauleiter Acquitted

Hannover, Germany, July 5 (AP)—A British military court today acquitted Hartmann Lauterbacher, former Gauleiter (district chief) of Hannover, accused of ordering the killing of inmates at the Hamelin prison. The court held evidence against him was insufficient.

Food Plight In Greater Hesse

JUL 6 1946

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 5 (AP). A United States health officer told twelve visiting American newspaper chiefs today there would be "serious starvation" within a few months in industrial Greater Hesse unless the Germans got more food immediately.

Visiting Greater Hesse military government headquarters, the executives were told by Major B. H. Kean, of New York city, that 50 per cent of the children in Frankfurt suffered rickets, people in industrial cities were 30 to 40 per cent underweight, and the area faced a probable influenza epidemic this winter.

Equivalent Of German Meal

"If this trend continues serious starvation will develop," Kean said. "We have no starvation of the gaunt, emaciated type but instead subtle malnutrition which is growing steadily worse."

The warning was given the editors after they had eaten the equivalent of a German meal of 443 calories. The meal consisted of potato soup, a slice of bitter black bread (which most editors did not finish), half a normal-sized pat of butter, one-sixteenth of an egg and a tiny piece of cheese.

Dr. Karl Geiler, German minister president of Greater Hesse, told the editors in a round-table discussion that the critical food situation was further affected by shortages of coal, iron and steel from other zones of Germany.

"Approaching Catastrophe"

"We cannot reconstruct German economy and we cannot make farm tools to increase agricultural production until a central, uniform German economy is established," Geiler declared.

"The whole existence of the German population is threatened by the failure to establish an interzonal economy. We already are approaching catastrophe. The problem cannot be solved by American military government alone."

The American agricultural expert of Greater Hesse, Saul Katz, of Belle Mead, N.J., predicted that German crops this fall would be 80 per cent of normal. By September, he said, Greater Hesse would be short 28,000 tons of bread grain.

Katz told Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, that every German farmer was registered and had to turn in most of his products to local pools.

"Even a man who raises more potatoes in his garden than he needs has to turn them in," he said.

"Is the German rationing system susceptible to graft?" asked Roy Howard, president of the Scripps-Howard papers.

"That is difficult to answer," Katz repled.

Party Organ Growth Urged

Asked by Sulzberger whether the Germans "believe they have a free press at the moment and believe what they read," Geiler declared:

"I have the impression the population looks critically at the press at the present time. The difficulties of living cause the population to lose interest."

Geiler and several of his ministers spoke strongly against nonpartisan newspapers and urged the growth of party organs.

Their statements prompted Herbert F. Corn, managing editor of the Washington Star, to comment: "These people all want only party newspapers. They just don't understand an objective newspaper."

Asked by Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES, whether the Germans "believe they have a free press at the moment and believe what they read," Dr. Geiler declared: "I have the impression the population looks critically at the press at the present time. The difficulties of living cause the population to lose interest."

He and several of his Ministers spoke strongly against nonpartisan newspapers and urged the growth of party organs. Their statements prompted Herbert F. Corn, managing editor of the Washington Star, to comment: "These people all want only party newspapers. They just don't understand an objective newspaper."

AMG Cuts Term Of German Girl

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 5 (A. P.).—A life sentence imposed on Ingeborg Fischer, plump, blond German girl for slaying her former sweetheart, Sgt. John Chinar of Tuscarora, Pa., was reduced to fifteen years imprisonment by the American Military Government today because premeditation was not proved.

The 22-year-old girl was convicted on May 1. She had been found standing over Chinar's body with a pistol in her hand on March 15. The sergeant had been shot through the heart in

RED LANDLUBBER GIVES AMERICAN ADMIRAL A TACK

JUL 6 1946

BERLIN, (AP)—American officialdom is chuckling over the experience of Vice Adm. W. A. Glassford, head of the American naval mission in Berlin, an old seadog who had his course abruptly altered by a landlubber Russian sentry.

Adm. Glassford loves to go boating on the Wannsee, a lake in the southwestern suburbs of Berlin. This lake, though hardly more than a speck on any but a large-scale map, is international water because with its connecting channels it extends into three occupation sectors of the city—American, British and Russian.

Without giving sector boundaries a thought, the admiral has often sailed or motorboated northward from his lakeside home into the British sector. But one sunny Sunday he turned southward.

Imagine his surprise to be hailed from shore by a Russian sentry, shouting and pointing a gun. The admiral thought at first to ignore him, for wasn't he in the American sector and what was the Russian shouting about?

"But on second thought," the admiral said later, "I recalled previous experiences with sentries and that blunderbuss looked about ready to fire a shot across my bow, so I swung back toward home."

Next day he reported his encounter to American Army authorities. Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, American commandant, calmed the admiral's indignation when he explained that the Red sentry was on American occupation ground by permission—there to keep a sharper guard on a channel that leads up to Potsdam, scene of Russian headquarters and popularly known here as "the forbidden city."

BOY'S TALE SETS MOBS RAMPAGING

JUL 6 1946

False Kidnap Story Results In 38 Deaths In Polish City

ALLEN

Warsaw, July 5 (AP)—A boy's tale that Jews had kidnapped him set mobs rampaging through the streets of Kielce in Poland's worst postwar pogrom that killed at least 38 and injured 50 others—mostly Jews—before Government armored cars restored order today to that city of 60,000.

Nine women and one security policeman were among the dead from the anti-Jewish rioting which began yesterday with the invasion of Jewish shops, homes and apartments.

Violence Spreads Rapidly

As a special commission broadened its investigation today, an inquiry disclosed that 8-year-old Heinrik Blaszczycyk said "someone" told him to start a story that Jews held him several days in a cellar and threatened to kill him and that he had seen at least a dozen bodies of Christian children in his prison.

The boy was said to have told his story to militiamen who, angered, went to Jewish homes to investigate. Violence then developed rapidly and crowds began forming in the streets.

Situation Reported "In Hand"

Jews, under attack both by militiamen and roving mobs, fought back in self-defense, firing pistols and rifles from windows of their houses and hurling hand grenades. A Jewish woman was reported to have killed the security officer with a pistol shot.

After several hours of fighting, order was restored when the militia reserve arrived in the city.

The anti-Jewish outbreaks extended to some rural districts of Kielce. Near the city a Jewish officer of the Polish Army was dragged from a train and killed.

One source here advanced the theory that the outbreak was provoked deliberately in an effort to focus attention of the populace on the Jews and divert it from the counting of votes cast in last Sunday's referendum.

Reinforced military units and security police patrolled the streets today, and a Government report said the situation was "in hand."

Arrests Of 62 Reported

Government authorities said that 62 perpetrators were arrested last night, and that additional arrests were under way today. They will face military tribunals.

A curfew was enforced at 7 P.M. yesterday, and all persons cleared from the streets of the city, an industrial and farm center 107 miles south-southwest of Warsaw and 64 miles north-northeast of Krakow. The Jewish population is approximately 800.

Rioting started at 11 A.M. Thursday. It continued well into the afternoon as a call went out for militia reinforcements. Mobs attempted to attack the headquarters of the Central Jewish Committee in Kielce and Jews were taken from railway cars and streetcars.

Many of the Jewish residents of the city were repatriated recently from Russia. Kielce was captured by the Russians on the fourth day of the great Red Army winter offensive of January, 1945.

Some Government officials have described the Kielce area as a "hotbed of fascism," and Warsaw newspapers charged "Fascist" elements with deliberate provocation in setting off the pogrom.

Meanwhile, a Foreign Ministry spokesman announced that 67 "bandits" were killed and 308 wounded or arrested in clashes between security police, militia and outlawed bands before and during last Sunday's referendum. He said 65 members of the militia and police were also slain.

Early returns have given the Government a substantial lead in the referendum. Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Polish Peasant party and core of the opposition, has demanded a district-by-district recount of the votes.

Mikolaczyk's Charge Denied

Unofficial returns showed a count of 2,527,471 affirmative and 601,584 negative votes on the question of a unicameral parliament for Poland. The opposition differed with the Government on only one of the three referendum questions, advocating a bicameral parliament.

The unofficial returns showed also the voters approved of the Government's nationalization of industry and distribution of farm land by a vote of 2,690,694 to 438,361. The count on Poland's present western frontier was 2,925,905 votes of approval and 203,150 negative votes.

A Government spokesman denied categorically Mikolajczyk's charge that 3,000 of his partisans were arrested in the Poznan district just before the voting took place.

34 Are Killed In Pogrom In Polish City

JUL 6 1946

Warsaw, July 5 (AP)—At least 34 persons were reported today to have been killed and 42 wounded at the city of Kielce in Poland's bloodiest postwar pogrom, which was finally suppressed by Government forces in armored cars.

Reinforced military units and security police patrolled Kielce's streets.

Anti-Jewish rumors apparently touched off the outbreak yesterday. One rumor was that a Polish baby had been killed by Jews. Another was that a Polish boy had been kidnapped and held in a cellar two days by a Jew.

Jewish Places Attacked

The Government blamed "Fascist reactionary elements" for the attacks, in which Jewish homes were raided and Jewish shops were smashed.

The pogrom started about 11 A.M. yesterday and continued well into the afternoon as a call went out for militia reinforcements. Then the armored cars were brought into play against the mobs.

Authorities reported 62 suspected of participating in the pogrom were rounded up last night and said further arrests were underway. The streets were cleared. It was officially announced that all responsible for the outbreak would face military tribunals.

Other Casualties Possible

A checkup of dead and wounded, the vast majority of whom were Jews, may show higher casualties. It was reported that some security police and militiamen were killed or wounded battling the mobs.

Reports from Kielce said it was the bloodiest pogrom in Poland in years. About 800 of the city's population are Jews.

Snatched From Trolleys

Jews were snatched from streetcars and railway coaches. Mobs struck and the headquarters of the Central Jewish Committee of Kielce, but were repulsed.

The Government clamped down a curfew effective at 7 P.M.

Many Killed in Clashes.

The disorder came as the Government announced that early returns from the Polish referendum last Sunday gave the Government a substantial lead on all three questions it presented.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman announced that sixty-seven "bandits" had been killed and 308 wounded or arrested in clashes between the security police, militia and outlawed bands preceding and during the referendum.

Sixty-five members of the militia and the police also were slain in the clashes, the spokesman said. Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Polish Peasant party—core of the opposition, already has demanded a district by district recount of the votes.

No Claims of Victory Yet.

The Government announced yesterday that with approximately a quarter of the votes counted the three questions presented to the electorate had a heavy "yes" majority, with the count for the one-House Legislature running about three to one. This question was the only one on which the opposition made a fight, urging a "no" vote.

The complete total of votes is not expected to be completed before July 12 and no claims of victory have been advanced as yet by any party or bloc. The voters were polled on Poland's new western boundaries and upon the Government's nationalization acts, as well as on the question of a unicameral Legislature.

A Government spokesman categorically denied last night Mikolajczyk's charge that 3,000 of his partisans had been arrested in the Poznan district just before the referendum.

Approximately 10,000,000 votes were cast in the election and foreign observers who watched the voting in unofficial capacities said it appeared to have been conducted properly and legally.

Last night American embassy informants said that United States Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane would lodge a formal protest with the Polish Foreign Ministry over the arrest and detention during the Polish referendum of two embassy employees—Stephen Zagorski of Forest Hills, L. I., and Edwin Raymond, American Agricultural attache of Newark, Ohio.

The informants pointed out that the Foreign Ministry had given embassy employees permission to circulate freely throughout Poland during the referendum.

Poland Signs Nine Trade Agreements

Warsaw, July 5 (A. P.).—Poland, steadily expanding her foreign trade, has concluded commercial agreements with nine countries.

They are Soviet Russia, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Romania, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Switzerland. In addition, an agreement exists for shipping 100,000 tons of coal monthly to France, and another agreement with the Soviet zone of occupation in Germany.

Commercial negotiations now are underway with France and Finland, and for the expansion of the agreement with Hungary.

American Activity In China Attacked

JUL 6 1946

Moscow, July 5 (AP)—Three Russian newspapers assailed American actions in China today, declaring that United States capital was helping to push China backward into the position of a semi-colonial country and that Americans were politically supporting reactionary forces.

A Pravda dispatch, meanwhile, accused George Allen, United States Ambasador to Iran, with making false charges against Russia. It said Allen had declared Russia had evacuated Iran only upon American insistence, and that Russia was trying to obtain a Persian Gulf port.

An Izvestia article by V. Yarolvoi charged that American capitalists were flooding China with "cheap American goods" and wrecking efforts of Chinese textile manufacturers to resume business.

U.S. Banks Reopening

"It becomes clear that some circles in the financial capitals of America and England are trying to return China to the position of a semi-colonial country," Yarovoi said. "Such a policy is being accomplished despite the fact that it is in contradiction to the high aims of the United Nations."

American banks have reopened branches in China financing United States activities. American engineers are swarming into the Yangtze Valley and oil men are prospecting in the Gobi Desert, he added.

An article in Trud gave a similar picture, and said the Chinese Association of Labor was mobilizing the working class for democratization of the country.

A Pravda commentator, V. Avarin, said that "without the support of Americans the reactionary forces of China would have been routed long ago." "As many times reported already in the American press, the Americans are transferring on their ships troops for strife against the people's armies, and they give these troops armaments and give political support to reactionary forces," he said.

Dispatch From Baku

Pravda printed a special dispatch from Baku, dated July 4, saying that Ambassador Allen had made false charges against the Soviet Union in a recent talk with members of the central committee of the People's party of Iran. It did not say where the talk was held.

Allen, it said, "indulged in a number of attacks against the Soviet Union, trying to convince his listeners that the Soviet Union's policy was directed against the independence of Iran. "Distorting facts known by everybody," the paper commented, "Allen asserted Soviet troops had evacuated Iran as the result of the effort and persistence of the United States and that the Soviet Union was trying to obtain a Persian Gulf port."

Pravda Assails U.S. Envoy To Iran

Moscow, July 5 (AP)—The Communist organ Pravda declared today in a dispatch from Baku that George V. Allen, United States Ambassador to Iran, had made false charges against the Soviet Union recently in a talk with members of the central committee of the People's party in Iran.

BRITISH LOCATE CACHE OF ARMS IN JEWISH TOWN

Hidden Equipment Included Large Quantity of Battle Dress.

JUL 6 1946

PALESTINE TENSION IS HIGH

Three Officers Released After 16 Days as Hostages of Underground Group.

O. CARUTHERS

Jerusalem, July 5 (A. P.).—The British Army announced today that another large cache of munitions and "a large quantity of British battle dress" had been uncovered in the Jewish settlement of Mesheq Yagur.

British troops have been searching the settlement, which is located in the Haifa bay area, since last Saturday, and previously had reported unearthing large quantities of contraband munitions in an elaborate underground storage depot.

A British Army officer, replying to Zionist charges that the Jews were being denuded of their defenses, declared:

"The presence of British Army battle dress in the cache could never be considered defensive equipment."

The officer added:

"I don't believe any of us like to see the Jews stripped of those things they have been so prodigiously gathering at such great cost, but the thing we all object to is the presence of demolition materials."

He said the confiscations at Mesheq Yagur, where a total of twenty large caches had been found up to last night, were a great loss to the Jews, but asserted: "It is only common sense that we must take everything at the present time if we are going to suppress violence."

The latest cache at Yagur was found in a bull's stall and contained a portable radio transmitter and 667 German mortar bombs as well as rifle ammunition and explosives.

The Army said the search at Yagur was still going on and it was not yet known how much longer it woud take.

Tension Still High.

Tension continued high in Palestine despite the release of three British officers by their Jewish kidnapers and a British announcement that many of the Jews arrested last week end in a drive to curb armed violence were being freed.

The three British officers, caged in wooden crates, were dumped unharmed from a truck in Tel Aviv last evening. They had been kidnaped June 18, by members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground resistance organization, and held as hostages to enforce Irgun demands for the commutation of death sentences imposed on two young Jews for shooting at British troops. Commutation of the death sentences was announced Wednesday by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, British high commissioner for Palestine.

During the sixteen days the officers were held they were kept chained by the wrists and were guarded by four Jews armed with pistols and a rubber truncheon, a British communique said.

British military authorities announced yesterday that fifty of the 2,718 Jews rounded up last week end had been released from the Rafa prison camp in southern Palestine and said that all innocent persons caught in the drive would be freed as soon as possible. None of the six executives of the Jewish Agency, which the British have accused of complicity in recent violence, have been freed, however.

Arms Cache Seizure

JUL 6 1946

O. CARUTHERS

Jerusalem, July 5 (AP)—British military authorities pressing their hunt through the tense Holy Land for illegal arms said today they had seized 667 German mortar bombs and a large amount of British battle dress hidden in a bull's stall at Mesheq Yagur, Jewish settlement near Haifa.

In London, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Jerusalem said British soldiers had been alerted for possible retaliatory measures by three Jewish underground organizations. One high British officer was quoted as saying the Jewish groups would reach "operational deadline" at one minute before midnight tonight.

20 Large Caches Discovered

[Dr. Isaac Herzog, chief rabbi of Palestine, told newsmen after an hour's conference with Prime Minister Attlee that he received the impression that the Palestine situation, "critical as it is, is not beyond remedy." It was understood Rabbi Herzog and Attlee discussed the position of the Jewish agency, accused by the British of being involved in recent Holy Land violence.]

The British said that a week of searching at Mesheq Yagur had produced the greatest dump of hidden arms ever found in Palestine. Twenty large caches had been discovered up to last night. A portable radio transmitter, rifle ammunition and explosives also were found in the latest haul.

Cunningham Statement

Meanwhile, a high Britsh officer, commenting on charges that the Jews were being denuded of their defenses, said "the presence of Britsh army battle dress in the cache could never be considered defensive equipmen ."

The officer quoted from a statement by Lieutenant General Sir Allan Cunningham, the Palestine high commissioner, asserting the need for "proper control" of defenses of either the Arabs or Jews, then added:

"I don't believe any of us like to see the Jews stripped of those things they have so prodigiously been gathering at such great cost . . . but the thing we object to is the presence of demolition materials."

He said the confiscation at Yagur amounted to a great loss to the Jews but that "it is common sense that we must take everything at the present time if we are going to suppress violence."

PREDICTS CRASH IN U. S. A.

Australian Official Raps Selfish Pressures in Washington

MELBOURNE, July 5 (AP)—The Melbourne Herald today quoted H. F. Richardson, deputy chairman of the Australian War Surplus Disposal Commission, as saying that the United States, after finishing the war as the mightiest nation, "is now rushing toward economic disaster of the first magnitude."

The Herald said that Mr. Richardson, who had just returned from a five-month business tour of North, Central and South America, declared, in an interview, that members of Congress were lolling back in their seats on Capitol Hill "while the United States is rushing headlong toward inflation."

He further was quoted as saying that Australians were sometimes critical of their own politicians but that the latter "are comparatively well informed and diligent compared to the swarm of racketeers, gnoramuses and stooges of the big pressure groups" operating in Washington.

Australia Reports Butler Picked As U.S. Envoy

Sydney, Australia, July 5 (AP)—It was authoritatively reported today that Robert Butler, president of the Walter Butler Company, of Minnesota, has been appointed United States Ambassador to Australia.

[There was no confirmation of the appointment in Washington, although the possibility that Butler might get the post has drawn speculation in recent weeks.]

It was learned that Norman Makin, newly appointed Ambassador to the United States and former Australian Naval Minister, would leave in August to take over his new post. Makin served as chairman of the United Nations Security Council during the London conference.

JAVA RED ACCUSED IN KIDNAPPING PLOT

Indonesian Official Asserts Tan Malaka Planned to Set Up Communist Regime

BATAVIA, Java, July 5 (AP)—Mohammed Natsir, Information Minister for the unrecognized Indonesian Republic, charged tonight that Tan Malaka, Communist leader, and two others were the ringleaders in the recent kidnapping of Premier Sutan Sjahrir.

Natsir, in a broadcast from Jogjakarta, the republic's headquarters, said the two others were Soebardjo, former Foreign Minister, and Abikoesno, former Communications Minister in the Indonesian Cabinet.

Sjahrir, released last week, had charged that his kidnapping was engineered by "foolish lads, instigated perhaps by political elements."

Natsir asserted that forces opposing President Soekarno had planned a coup last February at a Cabinet meeting but that this was prevented by extensive military precautions by Soekarno. Soebardjo was charged with trying to overthrow Soekarno in an attempt to have the Indonesian question submitted to the United Nations.

Yesterday Soekarno told a meeting of Indonesian political and military leaders that he intended to retain his recently assumed dictatorial powers "until the Cabinet can function again." He said the present Cabinet had "lost its real character" and that he assumed a position of "dictatorship for the benefit of democracy."

Natsir read documents which, he said, proved the opposition planned to remove Soekarno and proclaim Tan Malaka as President. An intensive whispering campaign was started, Natsir said, which accused Sjahrir of "selling" Indonesia to the Netherlanders.

Siam Will Accept U.N. Ruling On Dispute

Bangkok, July 5 (AP)—Foreign Minister Nai Direk Chainam said today that Siam would "accept any decision" made by the United Nations on the dispute between this country and France over the fate of Indo-China border areas ceded to Siam in 1941.

"We have been authorized by both the National Assembly's upper and lower houses to accept whatever decision the United Nations makes," Direk said.

The Foreign Minister declared that Siam would formally request the United Nations to settle the dispute under a charter provision which permits a non-member to ask the United Nations for assistance.

Efforts to reach a direct settlement with France have been unsuccessful, said Direk, asserting that "the United Nations is the best solution."

30.24-3975

The Minister said that a "slight tension" continues to exist on the Siamese-Indo-China border, but added that there have been no major incidents since American and British military observers visited the area recently.

POLICE ROUND UP 40 MANILA YOUTHS

JUL 6 1946

Manila, July 5 (A. P.).—Plain clothesmen guarding President Manuel Roxas showed visible anxiety today after some forty youths—each with his left thumbnail painted red—were rounded up in yesterday's Independence Day crowd.

Detectives spotted several moving "covertly through the crowd." An extra police detail trailed them, and ultimately forty were taken into custody.

Still undergoing questioning today, the youths all gave the same answers, police said—that the red nail polish had been put on by a sister or sweetheart for no known reason. All denied any connection with radical or lawless organizations.

Police did not say whether they considered it a prank or a plot against Roxas. There was no report that any of the youths had been armed.

Whatever the Filipinos' explanation of their red thumbs, such adornment apparently was the sign of an undercover organization in Germany recently.

Early this year, acting on a tip of possession of weapons, men of the provost marshal's office in Nuernberg rounded up five youths around the age of 18, who were said to be members of a Nazified gang called the Eidelweiss Pirates, an outgrowth of the Hitler Youth Organization. All five had one thumb-nail brightly scarlet.

On the other hand, lacquering one nail is a current fad of early teen-age girls in some Connecticut towns just now.

Cabanatuan, P. I., July 5 (A. P.).—The Government's pacification drive in troubled central Luzon bore its first post-independence fruit today with the surprising surrender of about 400 Japanese-made guns by the head-hunting mountain tribesmen, the Abilacs. The tribe had learned of the firearms registration program from dialect leaflets dropped from planes.

Approximately 25 more correspondents are en route to Pearl Harbor aboard the official press ship, Appalachian, due the fourteenth. The ship, in need of repairs, will remain two to five days, then return to Bikini.

pecial Envoy' Failed To Stop Mukden Plot

JUL 6 1946

Tokyo, July 5 (AP)—A prosecution witness at Tokyo's war-crime trial testified today that a Japanese general was dispatched to Mukden on September 18, 1931, to call off the Kwantung Army's Manchurian plot but failed to deliver the explicit orders of the War Minister.

Spectators laughed as Ryukichi Tanaka, a former major general, related that the messenger, Lieut. Gen. Yoshusugu Tatekawa was locked in a restaurant by the plotters, who thought he wanted to stop the attack.

Assuaging The Girls

Tatekawa, who wanted the army to go ahead with its plans for the attack anyway, whiled away the hours with geisha girls, Tanaka went on. At midnight the army guns roared attack on Chinese barracks.

"The gunfire so frightened the geishas that they trembled, but Takekawa told them not to worry while they were with him," Tanaka testified.

"He slept soundly until morning, and then it was too late to stop the incident."

The orders to call off the plot, Tanaka said, were from the then War Minister, Jiro Minami, one of the defendants.

Assassinations Threatened

Tanaka, in his four-and-one-half-hour testimony on the Manchurian episode, said the internal situation in Japan caused the expansionists to decide to develop Manchuria as a new state on a high economic level. A powerful army clique, he said, forced the Government to accept its program by threatening to assassinate dissenters.

Tanaka named Col. Kingoro Hashimoto, former chief of staff of the Kwangtung army, as the chief instigator of the program of Japanese domination without openly admitted army control, "to avoid international incident."

Others in the plot, which, it was earlier testified, was pushed through against the expressed opposition of Emperor Hirohito, were named as Gen. Seishiro Itagaki and Shumei Okawa, propaganda agent. All three are defendants at the trial.

Excerpts from the previously secret diary of Marquis Koichi Kido, wartime keeper of the privy seal and the Emperor's closest adviser, were read to the tribunal.

Four days after the Mukden Railway explosion in September, 1931, Kido wrote:

"The Army is so strongly determined in its positive policy toward Manchuria that orders given by central authorities may not be carried out.

"Army Is Indignant"

"The Emperor has expressed satisfaction and approval to the Prime Minister and Minister of War for a governmental policy striving not to extend further the Manchurian incident. However, the Army is reported to be indignant . . . The Emperor had better not say anything further about Manchurian policy."

Tanaka testified Hashimoto had told him that if the Government disapproved the Manchurian expansion leaders of the Cabinet of Premier Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki would be assassinated and a new government formed which would rally the people behind the army policy.

A Bit Of Drama

Tanaka credited Propagandist Okawa with originating the complaint that all Asia outside Japan was being oppressed by the white race and with developing the program for driving them out. However, Okawa was unable to convince China's young marshal, Chang Hsueh-liang, that he should follow the Japanese program, Tanaka added.

Tanaka avoided looking at the defendants against whom he testified until required by the prosecution to point them out.

Then he turned and pointed to Hashimoto, saying he knew him well, "he is my friend."

Tribunal President Sir William Webb snapped: "That's dramatic, but not necessary."

The military tribunal heard excerpts from a diary of one defendant, Marquis Koichi Kido, onetime close advisor of the emperor. He wrote that "the army is so strongly determined on a positive policy toward Manchuria that orders given by authorities (to the contrary) may not be carried out."

Japs Intent on Taking Manchuria Locked up General with Geishas

JUL 6 1946

TOKYO, July 5.— (AP) Japan's empire dreamers were so intent on grabbing Manchuria in 1931 that they even locked up a general with pretty geishas when they mistakenly thought he might snarl the plot, a Nipponese witness testified today at Tokyo's war crimes trial.

The general, although favorable to the plot, actually had been sent as an unwilling messenger by Japan's war minister to prevent the attack at Mukden, the witness related. But he was with the girls when the guns opened fire at midnight Sept. 18, 1931, assuring his trembling companions "not to worry while they were with him."

The witness, former Maj. Gen. Ryukicki Tanaka, named three of the 27 defendants as actively involved in the plot to overrun Manchuria—Col. Kingoro Hashimoto, Gen. and former War Minister Seishiro Itagaki, and Propagandist Shumei Okawa.

Tanaka said one unsuccessful attempt was made to convince Manchuria's war lord, the young Chinese Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang, that China and Japan should combine to throw [illegible] (white man out of Asia.

That failing, the plotters fell back on a plan which included ruthless extermination of all Japanese government officials disapproving an armed advance into Manchuria. Tanaka said the Japanese cabinet, however, offered no strenuous objection and personal attendants kept Emperor Hirohito silent to avoid the wrath of the militarists.

The witness said both civilian and military plotters used the pretext of oppressed living space for the exploitation but that in actuality the aim was to "make Manchuria a base from which to bring about revival of Asia (for the Asiatics)"

GENERAL PARADES AFTER SON'S DEATH

JUL 6 1946

Tokyo, July 5 (A. P.).—Second Lieut. Ward H. Maris Jr. was asphyxiated Wednesday in an officers' club fire at Ota despite heroic efforts of his father, a brigadier-general, to rescue him from the smoke, the Army disclosed today.

Despite his grief and burns about the legs, the father, Brig.-Gen. Ward H. Maris, artillery commander of the First Cavalry Division, marched with his troops through Tokyo streets in yesterday's Independence Day parade.

News of the 27-year-old lieutenant's death was withheld pending the notification of his wife, the former Bernice Davis of 1757 Poppung avenue, New York city.

The fire, believed to have started in defective wiring, quickly swept the First Cavalry Division Artillery Officers' Club, occupied by thirty men. Gen. Maris and his aid, Lieut. Howard Ammerman of Akron, Ohio, arrived within a few minutes after the blaze was discovered but were forced back by dense smoke from the second-story room occupied by Lieut. Maris.

Catholic Bishops Touring Japan

Tokyo, July 5 (A. P.).—Bishops John F. O'Hara of Buffalo and Michael J. Ready of Columbus, Ohio, arrived today by air to survey Catholic church reconstruction and activities in Japan. Their trip was made at the request of Pope Pius XII, with the approval of Gen. MacArthur and the United States War and Navy departments.

Japs Get Specie Order

Tokyo, July 5 (AP)—Allied headquarters today instructed the Japanese Government to clear its legal title to 1,609,972 Swedish kroner, now on deposit in the Skandinaviska Bank of Stockholm in the name of the Yokohoma Specie Bank, to facilitate disposition of the funds.

TRAINED TO FIGHT REDS NOT YANKS, JAP SAY

JUL 6 1946

TOKYO, (Saturday) July 6—(AP) Japan trained 2,500,000 troops in Manchuria for "future operations against the Soviet Union," only to find, when war finally came, that its enemy was the United States, a former high ranking Japanese officer testified today.

"Until the outbreak of the Pacific war, our armies trained in Manchuria with the best equipment and the best planes," former Maj. Gen. Ryukichi Tanaka told the war tribunal trying 27 of Japan's top men as war criminals. "Japan supposed her enemy was the Soviet Union."

ss-Jap Repatriation Issue Pushed By U.S.

Tokyo, July 5 (AP)—The question of repatriation of Japanese, particularly those taken prisoner by the Russians in Manchuria, is on the agenda of next Wednesday's session of the Allied Council for Japan.

The question was raised by the American delegate, Chairman George Atcheson, Jr., at the last Council session. Atcheson intimated that Russia might not be living up to the Potsdam Agreement regarding their prisoners.

The Russian delegate, Lieut. Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko, asserted he did not believe the question within the scope of the Council.

Nevertheless, the issue was on the agenda announced for discussion, indicating the Americans intend to push the issue.

HIROHITO'S STAFF IS CUT TO 4785

Tokyo, Friday, July 5 (A. P.)—Emperor Hirohito's household has dropped 3,946 employees from its pay roll and now is struggling along with only 4,785, Lieut.-Col. D. H. Jennings of Allied Headquarters Finance Division reported today.

There still are 808 palace police on the roster, but most of them will be transferred, he said, leaving only a personal bodyguard for the Emperor. Not counted in the total lopped from the pay roll is the entire Imperial guards division which was demobilized along with the rest of the Japanese Army.

Soldier Electrocuted

Nagoya, Japan, July 5 (AP)—Sergt. Kenneth W. Brandl, of White Bear, Minn., was electrocuted when he accidentally plugged a 110-volt hand drill into a 250-volt power line, the 5th Air Force reported today. The accident occurred June 28.

Nationalists Hit China Inaction

JUL 6 1946

Nanking, July 5 (AP)—The predominantly Government party delegation to China's National Assembly today demanded stronger action to settle strife with Chinese Communists, warning the Government that "a truce has time limits; negotiation of a peace must have a time limit, too."

The Government's present limitless "nonaggression" policy, the group asserted, paralleled its stand before the Sino-Japanese war "when we said 'Do not take the offensive unless the enemy does.'"

The delegation also criticized the Government failure to take over Communist-occupied areas, declaring this implies recognition of Communist rights to such areas.

Manchuria HQ. Revamped

Peiping, July 5 (AP)—Reorganization of the Chinese Nationalist field headquarters in Manchuria was reported today by the independent newspaper Shih Shieh Jih Pao.

The headquarters, hitherto on a directorship basis with Hsiung Shihui at its head, will henceforth operate under three committees of equal power.

JUL 6 1946

Director Hsiung will head the political committee in the new setup, the paper said, with Chang Chiao, special commissioner to Manchuria for the Ministry of Economics, heading the economic committee, and Gen. Hut Sung-nan, army commander of Shensi province, the military committee.

Gen. Tu Li-ming will continue as commander of the Nationalist Peace Preservation Army in Manchuria.

Peiping observers considered the readjustment as decreasing the authority of Hsiung and increasing that of Tu.

Workers Are Paid with Rice As Equivalent of Cash in Shanghai

SHANGHAI.—(AP) Perhaps gold built Shanghai, but today the city's commercial life today revolves around rice.

Thousands of employes are demanding—and getting—rice allowances instead of money. Practically every payroll of importance in Shanghai is a double one, a section for payments in cash, another for payments in rice.

Swollen living costs, particularly the cost of rice, is the reason for this strange system. Rice prices rose so alarmingly that the first act of the new Shanghai mayor, American-educated K. C. Wu, was to open a fierce campaign against food speculators.

When Wu took office in May rice was selling for $68,000 Chinese national currency per picul (approximately 133 pounds)— more than 15 times its cost last November. He has driven the price down to around $50,000 CNC and promises to continue his campaign.

Speculation rather than shortages was responsible for the soaring Shanghai markets which left thousands of people without sufficient food and stirred up a wave of industrial uprest.

14 U.S. Flyers' Slaying On Formosa Told

Shanghai, July 5 (AP)—Fourteen American flyers captured at Taihoku, Formosa, in 1945, were lined up in a trench and shot down by a Japanese firing squad, Yashushi Marushima, Formosan medical officer, told an American military court today.

His was the first eyewitness account of the execution.

Marushima testified at the war-crime trial of Lieut. Gen. Haruki Isayama and seven officer subordinates accused of condemning the Americans after a mock trial in which no defense counsel was provided. The prosecution charged that the court records were subsequently falsified with alleged "confessions."

Congressional Party Arrives In Shanghai

Shanghai, July 5 (AP)—Three United States senators and six representatives arrived here today on an undisclosed mission.

They were Senators Ellender (D., La.), Brewster (R., Maine) and Butler (R., Neb.) and Representatives Bell (D., Mo.), Robertson (D., Va.), Miller (D., Cal.), Worley (D., Texas), LeCompte (R., Iowa) and Crawford (R., Michigan).

3,560,000 War Dead in China

NANKING, July 5 (AP).—Lieutenant General Deng Wen-yi, heading the information bureau of China's new National Defense Ministry, today estimated the nation's military war dead at 3,500,000.

July 25 Chosen For Submerged A-Bomb Test

JUL 6 1946

Aboard U.S.S. Mt. McKinley, July 5 (AP)—Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy today set July 25 as the tentative date for the detonation of Bikini's second atomic bomb, this one "an attack against hulls." It will be exploded slightly under the suface of the lagoon.

A full-dress rehearsal was scheduled for July 19.

The chief of Task Force 1 said he had scaled down his original estimates of a 100-foot tidal wave resulting from the subsurface blast. The wave, he said, probably would be not more than 70 feet. This would be enough to send water over Bikini Island.

Blandy expects some form of radioactive cloud to result from the spray blown up from the underwater explosion. Contamination of ships by the spray and by solid water tossed onto their decks are expected to be a factor in delaying their return for inspection.

Miss Of "Appreciable" Size

The admiral, in a reappraisal of the airborne drop, termed it a "miss of appreciable dimensions" because of wind and other uncontrollable factors but asserted, however, that "nothing went wrong with this test to prevent it from being a complete success."

As greater refinements in calculations are made, he said, the airborne bomb will be shown to be stronger than first estimated and closer to the Nagaski bomb in potency.

"It was not just a firecracker," Blandy declared.

Miss Provided For

The admiral said the test was a success because the target fleet was arrayed to take care of the possibility of a miss. He cited ships heavily damaged as an example of how a good cross-section of a modern fleet can be affected: the battleship Arkansas, the heavy cruiser Pensacola, the light cruiser Sakawa, a submarine and transports.

In addition, the carrier Independence was damaged beyond repair and five other ships were sunk.

10 P.C. Of Animals Died

Capt. Shields Warren, radiological specialist, reported in the meantime that about 10 per cent of the 3,600 animals aboard the traget fleet died from the atomic blast, radiation or drowning.

Explaining that laboratory examinations are only beginning, Warren said: "As far as we can tell, some died of the air blast and others, we think, of radiation."

Some Presumed Drowned

Salvage parties who entered the lagoon a few hours after the explosion saw live animals aboard the Japanese cruiser Sawada, which went down the next day. Presumably the animals aboard drowned.

Scientists are pleased that no more animals were killed, because live subjects are wanted.

Warren, referring to delayed effects of exposure to radiation, said he expected "a considerable number" of deaths later.

Some animals will be returned to the United States to determine whether atomic exposure influences offspring. Others will be killed at various stages of the development of radiation illness, for autopsy study. Some exposed animals will be given treatments and others will be left untreated for purposes of comparison.

UNDERWATER TEST OF BOMB IS SET

JUL 6 1946

ABOARD THE USS MT. MCKINLEY, July 5—(AP) The first underwater explosion of the atomic bomb, testing its power against ships' hulls, is planned tentatively for July 25 at Bikini, the Navy announced today.

It will be the second test of the bomb against the target fleet in the lagoon.

The first, an air burst, was acknowledged today by Vice Admiral W. M. P. Blandy, to have exploded far short of the intended spot due to wind and other factors beyond the control of "even the most skilled people in the world."

But Blandy said the bomb, which sank five ships and caused varying damage to more than two score others, proved a "complete success" even so. It also caused the death of about 10 per cent of 3,600 animals aboard the fleet, the radiological specialist, Capt. Shields Warren, reported.

However, Blandy scaled down his previous estimate of what the underwater blast would do in the way of causing a tidal wave. Earlier he said a 100-foot wave could be expected. Today he estimated it would not exceed 70 feet.

For the second test, the bomb will be suspended in a bathy-sphere like container beneath a barge and will be detonated by radio impulse from a ship 20 miles away.

The bomb will be at least 18 fee below the surface.

PIRATES ROVE BAY OF BENGAL DEFYING COPS

JUL 6 1946

SINGAPORE, (AP) — Marauding pirate bands continue to raid tonkangs (junks) and fishing craft along Malaya's northern coast despite unrelenting efforts of Malayan police and the British military to end these reminders of the era when Malayan waters were a pirates' paradise.

Armed with Sten guns, Tommy guns and, police believe, even machine guns, the pirates strike in the Bay of Bengal off Penang, Kedah and Perlis.

They swoop down upon small coastal vessels, robbing them of their entire cargo. They raid fishermen, seizing fish, net and boats and leaving their victims beside their fishing pens at the mercy of the elements.

Pirate headquarters is known to be Siamese "Devil Island" of Pulau Terutau, north of the Langkawi Islands, to which several hundred desperados were exiled in years past.

Several months ago a special British task force struck there in co-operation with Siamese authorities. The pirate gangs were smashed and their leader, an important Siamese political prisoner, was arrested. Now remnants of the old gang apparently have reorganized.

Americas' Parley Put Off; Conflict With Paris Cited

By The Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 5—Brazil has postponed tentative plans to call the Inter-American Security Conference here in September, since July 29 has been set as the date for the twenty-one-nation peace conference in Paris.

Informed sources said, however, that the conference would be called probably about Nov. 15—anniversary of the founding of the Brazilian Republic in 1889.

Canada Dollar Put At U.S. Par To Strengthen Price Control

JUL 6 1946

Ottawa, July 5 (AP)—The Canadian Government, citing the abandonment of price control in the United States, strengthened its own price-control structure tonight and pegged its dollar at par with the American dollar to ease "the inflationary pressures which now are so strong."

Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley told the House of Commons that effective at 7 P.M. the Canadian dollar had been adjusted to parity with the United States dollar.

Four Steps By Government

Henceforth, banks and other authorized agents of the Exchange Control Board will purchase United States dollars at $1 in Canadian funds and sell at $1.00½. Similarly, the buying rate of pound sterling now will be $4.02 and the selling rate $4.04.

Previously, American dollars were bought at $1.10 in Canadian funds and sold at $1.10½. The buying rate for pound sterling was $4.43 and the selling rate $4.45.

The return of the Canadian dollar to par with the American dollar was one of four steps taken by the Canadian Government, Ilsley told the House in a surprise announcement, to "implement this country's determination to maintain order, stability and independence of its economic and financial affairs."

Subsidy Payments Retained

The other three steps were the establishment of a long list of goods and services which will remain subject to price control, including virtually al household articles; retention of the principles of price control on domestic products and more stringent price control on imported products, and the retention of subsidy payments.

Ilsley referred to the recent abandonment of price control in the United States and said Canada's new measures would "go a long way toward insulating Canada against unfavorable external conditions and easing the inflationary pressures which now are so strong."

The new program, he said, was aimed at preventing undue increases in the cost of living and production costs, improving the effectiveness of price control, encouraging importations of scarce goods and facilitating an orderly postwar adjustment of the Canadian economy, while protecting it from the major effects of "adverse developments outside our borders."

Action on OPA Bill Delayed by Senate; Porter Hits Measure

Brickbats Descend on Compromise from Several Different Directions.

BARKLEY ANGERED

JUL 6 1946

Congress Urged to Drop 'Undesirable' Features by Price Chief.

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) Brickbats hit the new OPA compromise bill from several directions tonight, and senate action was put off until Monday, meaning that the nation will be without price control for another week-end, at least.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) announced the delay in the face of unexpected criticism of the measure by OPA Administrator Paul Porter and a new assault on price controls by opponents.

Barkley is Angered

Barkley angrily criticized Senator Wherry (R-Neb) for inviting other senators to join him offering a series of amendments to eliminate permanently controls over meat, poultry, milk, butter and other dairy products.

When Wherry expressed the opinion that many senators might want to become coauthors, the Kentuckian arose to assert that the senate ought not be "converted into a Billy Sunday revival with senators hitting the sawdust trail."

Fifteen other senators, including one Democrat, Senator Carville of Nevada, immediately joined Wherry in sponsoring one of the proposals. It would outlaw controls on meat and poultry.

Porter's criticism of the bill reviving OPA in modified form for one year obviously puzzled administration leaders in the senate.

Porter called on congress to remove its "undesirable" features, a statement which aroused speculation whether he might not urge President Truman to veto it if it passes in its present form.

Foes Rally for Fight

On the other hand, critics of OPA rallied for a strenuous fight. Senator W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel prepared for a new filibuster against any price controls.

Porter's statement came as somewhat of a surprise since he endorsed last night profits provisions which the Senate Banking committee wrote into the new measure as a substitute for the Taft amendment condemned by President Truman.

Porter emphasized today that this endorsement did not hold for the rest of the bill. Stating that it still had undesirable features, he expressed hope that congress would pass a bill conforming to the recommendations President Truman made in vetoing a previous OPA extension bill. Following that veto OPA went off the statute books last Sunday.

Barkley who sponsored the new compromise and who predicted last night that it would be enacted, met Porter's statement with a grim "no comment." There was no doubt, however, that he was chagrined.

With Barkley awaiting an opportunity to bring the revival measure officially before the Senate, there were these other developments:

1. Senator Bridges (R-NH), avowed foe of continuing any price controls, objected to consideration by the Senate Appropriations committee of a house-approved $106,000,000 fund to finance OPA operations to July 1, 1947. Bridges said OPA was legally dead and that the committee could not even hear Porter's recital of its need.

2. Senator Taft (R-Ohio) forecast solid Republican and "sufficient" Democratic backing to keep meat, poultry and dairy products free of controls, even if an extension bill is passed.

O'Daniel Set To Talk

3. Senator O'Daniel, whose eight-hour talk delayed passage of the original extension measure, announced he is ready to speak again—and at length—in an effort to prevent any revival of OPA.

There was some thought among Republicans that Porter's adverse comment on the bill constituted a neat bit of political strategy.

In fact, Senator Millikin (R-Colo), a member of the Banking committee which approved it yesterday, charged the OPA chieftain was laying a "smoke screen" in the hope that he would get the measure now in hand and not something more unsatisfactory.

Taft echoed this view, with the assertion that he thought Mr. Truman would be "glad to get" a bill that largely parallels the measure he vetoed except for the profits amendment.

The original Taft proposal, against which the President directed most of his criticism, would have required OPA to make manufacturers' price ceilings high enough to include the price each manufacturer received on every item in the Oct. 1-15, 1941, base period, plus the weighted average unit cost increase in the industry since then.

Another amendment by Senator Wherry (R-Neb) specified that ceilings from distributors, wholesalers and retailers must allow them their Jan. 1, 1946 markups or discounts based on current costs.

Amendment is Changed

Yesterday, the Banking committee changed the Taft amendment to provide that the base period shall be the full year 1940, and that added costs be computed on an industry-wide, rather than a specific unit, average basis. Various exemptions were written in giving considerable discretion to OPA.

The Wherry amendment was altered to provide that OPA shall make "due allowance" for current costs, plus the percentage discount or markup in effect June 29, 1946.

Taft said there was so many loopholes in the Banking committee draft that the administrator could deny almost any price increase. He said he would offer a revision.

While Bridges' move to delay OPA appropriations obviously hinged upon the fate of the revival bill, Taft's maneuver to keep controls off meat, poultry and dairy products shaped up for a finish fight.

Wherry called the Senate's attention to increased receipts on the country's livestock markets, contending that prices soon will reach a competitive level in butcher shops if OPA isn't revived.

Say Public for OPA

Chairman Wagner (D-NY) of the Banking committee countered with the assertion that public opinion polls show an "overwhelming sentiment" for continuation of price and rent controls.

For his meat exempting amendment, reportedly rejected by the Banking committee after twice being accepted, Taft had what he described as almost solid Republican support, plus the aid of some Democrats.

Senator Radcliffe (D-MD) said he had voted to kill off the amendment in committee on the personal plea of Barkley that the leader couldn't take the revival bill to the Senate floor with those controls left off. He said Barkley was considerably "wrought up" about the committee's previous action in voting to lift the controls.

Radcliffe told a reporter that he and Senator Burch (D-Va) had announced in committee that they would support the control lifting amendment on the floor when Taft offers it again there, unless conditions change materially in the meantime.

The Barkley bill's provisions for a roll back of prices that have risen since OPA went out of existence came in for criticism in the Senate.

Losses Are Forecast

Senator Gurney (R-SD) said elevators and grain dealers might suffer "great losses" if the prices of their products were rolled back in the face of the increases they have paid for grain this week. He mentioned cereal manufacturers in particular.

Barkley said it was possible something could be done about that.

O'Daniel's threat of a filibuster seemed likely to delay, not prevent, passage of a revival bill in some form. He had little support for a move to keep OPA in its grave this way, although both Wherry and Bridges have indicated that if they can find any stumbling blocks against an early return to price controls they are in a mood to roll them out.

Meanwhile representatives of eight national women's organizations asked the Senate to extend the price control act on a temporary basis "until adequate anti-inflation legislation could be worked out in the House and Senate."

"Every day's delay," the group said in a statement, "exposes American families to new inflationary price rises on the necessities of life."

The eight organizations included the General Federation of Women's clubs, the National Women's Trade Union League, the American Home Economics association, the Executive committee of the United Council of Church Women, National Council of Jewish Women, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, the National Board of the Young Women's Christian association and the American Association of University Women.

Gen. Campbell Blasts May on War Contracts

JUL 6 1946

Military Committee Head Put 'Pressure' on Him, Ordnance Chief Says.

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell, Jr., wartime chief of army ordnance, complained today that Representative May (D-Ky) put "special pressure" on him to help an Illinois munitions manufacturer.

The general supplemented previous testimony that May, chairman of the House Military committee, had been active in behalf of an industrial combine that reaped big profits from war contracts.

He told the Senate War Investigating committee that he "got red under the collar" over May's insistence.

Unfair Says Campbell

"It was unfair to me," said Campbell, now a vice president of the International Harvester company. He said that at the time he was "up to the neck" in the gigantic job of arming the U. S. forces and didn't have time for that sort of thing.

His testimony came as the committee pried deeper into the affairs of 19 closely linked concerns and their officials whom Chairman Mead (D-NY) has accused of the "worst kind of war profiteering." It produced these developments:

1. An assertion by Brig. Gen. T. S. Hammond that the Erie Basin Metal Products company had been given the Army-Navy "E" award for production over the objections of the Chicago ordnance office that it "didn't meet half the requirements." Hammond, former ordnance chief of that district, said the award "didn't amount to much after that."

2. Testimony by Campbell that May had introduced Henry Garsson to him over the telephone and asked him to see Garsson. The latter has been described by Army officials as "the brains" behind the Illinois combine.

Get Transcript of Talk

3. Introduction of a War department transcript of a telephone conversation which quoted Col. John Slezak as saying Garsson "uses Congressman May and Congressman May goes beyond the limits of propriety in getting things done."

4. Signs of resentment among members of Congress over the practice of recording congressional calls. Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) expressed displeasure and Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts termed it a "mean practice."

5 Disclosure that Murray Garsson, brother of Henry Garsson and a principal stockholder in the wa[r]

swollen corporations, is now in Cuba suffering from ill health. Committee attaches said a deposition of his story had been taken.

6. A denial from Campbell that Secretary of War Patterson, as under secretary, had discussd with him a war contract for the Garssons.

Sent Out Investigator

Meanwhile, Campbell said that he had sent a subordinate to Illinois to investigate complaints by Henry Garsson which had been relayed to him by May over cancellation of a contract held by one of the corporations.

At the committee's request, he read the transcript of a telephone conversation between a General Hayes in his office and John Slezak, former colonel and executive officer of the Chicago Ordnance district.

In it, Hayes was quoted as saying a special investigator was going out to "get the whole story" so that Campbell's office could pass them on to May "and tell him right to his face that this is a high cost producer."

Campbell told the committee that he never objected to calls from members of Congress or cabinet officials—"and I got plenty of them"—calling his attention to possible war material producers.

"But when it becomes insistent, that's something else again," he added.

At one point he said that he got the impression from May's conversations with him that "I was to go out of bounds possibly to help Mr. Garsson."

Hammond acknowledged that he "never liked" Garsson.

Asked why, he replied:

"Well, how do you judge a good steer?"

Colonel Slezak, now retired, was called as an afternoon witness and linked May's name with what he described as a "highly unusual" award of the Army-Navy "E" to the Batavia Metal Products company, another part of the munitions combine. He said the award was made only after Secretary of War Patterson, then under secretary, asked for speedy consideration of it.

Conversation Quoted

Slezak quoted a recorded telephone conversation with Washington headquarters March 27, 1945, in reference to May and the "E" award.

In that conversation, Milton H. Pettit, in charge of "E" awards for ordnance, was quoted as saying that Col. Herb Clark didn't want the military committee chairman to blame ordnance in event the aw[ard] was held up. Clark was identified as a member of the awards b[oard].

The telephone transcript included a memorandum from Patterson, then under secretary, to Clark which said in part:

"There is attached a memo from the chief of ordnance recommending that the Batavia Metal Products company be favorably considered for the army and navy 'E' award.

"My sole desire is to have this nomination considered on its merits, the decisive factor to be the achievement of the company in the production of munitions. The matter is not to be considered on account of any pressure to get an award for this concern. Nor is the company to be prejudiced by reason of any friction between it and other agencies. I trust that the case can be considered at an early date."

Slezak was quoted in that conversation as saying that Patterson had "covered himself," and as adding "he put the rest of us in the soup."

He said that he filled in the recommendation for the award, but omitted reasons which he might have set down for withholding it.

The award was granted two days later.

William J. Brennan, former colonel and chief of the labor branch of the War department, acknowledged another recorded telephone conversation in which he was quoted as saying that "May is trying to hold Judge (Patterson) to an alleged promise which I am sure he never made."

He told the committee that he got his information from Clark.

Source of Trouble

Brennan, now Newark, N. J., attorney, had a hand in attempting to straighten out Batavia's manpower difficulties. He said that the manpower situation at Batavia—a factor which, under the regulations, is taken under consideration in the "E" award—was "a constant source of trouble."

At the conclusion of Slezak's testimony, Chairman Mead (D-NY), thumping his fist on the committee table, said that "this story x x x is an illustration of the evil effects of meddling in the War department activities. I can see where a few men, eager for favors, can disrupt and demoralize activities all over the country, and bring chaos instead of production."

"The higher and the more powerful the meddler may be, the more widespread is the confusion."

Slezak said that Batavia had presented two of his subordinate officers with cases of Scotch. He said that "perhaps it was a coincidence" that the presents came with "best wishes" at a time when Batavia's application for an "E" award was under consideration.

He reported that he had refused to attend a banquet which Batavia threw to celebrate winning the award. He said that at a previous banquet given by Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., presents ranging from watches to pen and pencil sets and costing from $25 to $200 were given the guests.

Slezak said that May was the guest of honor at both banquets.

FBI Looks at Garsson's Record

JUL 6 1946

His Attorney Says He Is Ill and Cannot Appear Before Senate Committee.

Washington, July 5 (A. P.).—Attorney Wayne Johnson, counsel for Murray Garsson, said today that the munitions maker whose wartime earnings are under scrutiny won't be able to appear before the Senate War Investigating Committee because he is ill in Cuba.

Johnson made this report to newspaper men at committee hearings where the 58-year-old industrialist has been identified as one of the promoters of 19 closely linked Illinois firms that handled $78,000,000 in war contracts.

The committee has received from the FBI a report on Garsson, native of England, which shows that he engaged in many businesses before he tried his hand at munitions making with his brother, Henry, and other associates. A biography from "Who's Who in American Jewry," included in the FBI report, says that at various times he has been a film producer, an assistant to the Secretary of Labor, a New York police official, a congressional committee investigator.

Once Held in Murder Case.

The FBI's report also says that he was arrested and later discharged in 1918 as a material witness in a murder case; given a suspended sentence in 1915 on a charge of disorderly conduct, discharged on a grand larceny charge in 1923, and accused of violation of a corporation ordinance in 1926. There was no disposition of that charge shown in the FBI report.

The report also said that Garsson reportedly conducted certain investigations in connection with the Lindbergh kidnapping case while employed by the Labor Department, at one point calling at the Lindbergh home in the early morning hours and questioning the Lindberghs.

While in the Labor Department, the FBI said that Garsson looked into the immigration laws and allegedly attempted to have alien actors and directors deported.

A Link to Dutch Schultz.

The report said at another point:

Information was received that Garsson was connected with Dutch Schultz and, in the purchase of a brewery in New York city, utilized money advanced by Schultz. It was also reported that Garsson had acted as an emissary to Washington in behalf of Schultz in an endeavor to obtain for him immunity from prosecution on charges pending at that time."

The report said that "information was received in 1922 that Garsson had been involved in prohibition matters" and that "it has been alleged" that he made a loan of $100,000 to Ralph A. Day, then prohibition director in New York city.

The biography of Garsson, as carried by "Who's Who in American Jewry" describes him as having held these jobs.

Former captain in the special service division of the New York city police.

President of a film producing company.

Builder of theaters.

Member of the Georgia State Canal Commission.

Special assistant to the Secretary of Labor in the Hoover administration.

Director of the select Committee of the United States House of Representatives to Investigate Bondholders Reorganization, 1934.

Lecturer on agricultural and patriotic subjects.

BRITAIN LIFTS BAN ON SOME U. S. GOODS

JUL 6 1946

Washington, July 5 (A. P.).—The British Board of Trade opened the gates today to renewed imports of thirty-four miscellaneous types of United States merchandise which had been barred under wartime controls.

High in interest to women in England were ladies' felt hats, artificial silk clothing, lipstick and rouge, face powder and other cosmetics, all difficult to obtain when the accent was on austerity.

United States producers, under an agreement announced by the Board of Trade and the Department of Commerce, may ship to Britain annually 20 per cent of their average during 1936-37-38. They may ship two-thirds of an annual quota for the remaining months of 1946.

U. S. ACTS ALONE TO REBUILD KOREA INTO DEMOCRACY

JUL 6 1946

WASHINGTON, July 5—(AP) The United States government has decided to try to make democracy work in as much of Korea as possible, with or without the cooperation of Russia, diplomatic officials said today.

The Soviet Union was reported by these informants to have ignored two appeals for cooperation in political preparations designed to restore Korean independence. So the American military government in the country, to which the Allied powers long ago promised independence, is going ahead on its own.

Russia occupies the northern section of Korea and the United States chinery for political activities in Korea. The main cog in this machinery is an advisory legislative council. The members of this are to be elected by the people in the American zone and the council, once constituted, may enact laws which can become effective provided the military government accepts them.

Meanwhile, the United States was represented as standing ready at any time to resume cooperation with the Russians in trying to work out the destiny of Korea as a whole. Washington is committed to the principle of a unified as well as independent Korea and the present state of affairs is greatly disliked by top officials here.

Some are hopeful that the improved U. S.-Soviet relations which may result from the foreign ministers conference at Paris may accidentally ease problems of the two powers in the Far East, including Korea.

AMG PROMOTING KOREAN FREEDOM

Washington, July 5 (A.P.)—Russia has ignored American appeals for co-operation in rebuilding a Korean government, officials reported today, and the United States is going ahead on its own.

In the American occupation zone, Major-Gen. Archer Lerch, Military Government Chief, is setting up machinery by which it is hoped the Koreans will be able to prepare themselves to resume full freedom. This includes an advisory legislative council. The Korean political parties will contest for seats and once it is convened it will go through all the motions of handling national problems and enacting national laws. Such enactments as are approved by the American Military Government will actually go into effect in the American zone.

In the original plan of occupation with United States forces in southern Korea and the Russians in the north, the two occupying Powers were supposed to promote Korean independence jointly

BYRNES' SUCCESS AT PARIS PARLEY PLEASES TRUMAN

JUL 6 1946

THURMONT, Md., July 5 (AP)—President Truman, taking a holiday at his Catoctin mountain Shangri-La, had a transatlantic telephone chat today with Secretary of State Byrnes, attending the four-power conference in Paris.

Lieut. Cmdr. William Rigdon told reporters that Mr. Truman was pleased at the agreement of the foreign ministers to hold a general peace conference in Paris July 29. Rigdon, officer in charge of the mountain retreat, came down to tell newsmen of the President's reaction.

Pleased with Barkley

Rigdon said the President also was pleased with published reports indicating that Majority Leader Barkley had worked out a satisfactory compromise on OPA.

(In Washington, however, the compromise was bombarded with criticism from several directions. OPA Administrator Paul Porter called for elimination of "undesirable" features, while foes of OPA demanded extensive revision, or outright defeat of any extension bill. Barkley put off Senate action until Monday.)

The President's conversation with Byrnes took place at 9 a.m., EST., an hour and a half after the President arose to begin another day of his long Fourth of July weekend rest with Mrs. Truman.

Later the two drove through Hagerstown, Waynesboro and other towns. They plan a visit tomorrow morning to the Gettysburgh battlefield in nearby Pennsylvania.

Rigdon said the President would meet Washington reporters on the battleground near where Pickett made his famous charge. The time for the rendezvous was not set.

The officer met reporters in Camp Cozy at Thurmont, where they are quartered four miles from the presidential hideway first taken over by the late President Franklyn D. Roosevelt.

There was no indication whether the President knew about a statement in Washington by OPA Administrator Paul Porter saying that the compromise Senate Banking committee measure still contained some of the "undesirable features"

MacArthur Quoted On Jap Food Crisis

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Congress was told that the food situation in occupied Japan is such that on one occasion Gen. Douglas MacArthur telegraphed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower:

"Send me food or send me soldiers and if you do not hurry up you will have to send both."

This message from the supreme commander in Japan was quoted by Eisenhower, army chief of staff, in testimony on the regular military money bill, made public by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Heeding Eisenhower's plea, the Senate committee restored to the bill $150,000,000 the House had trimmed off a budget-approved fund of $500,000,000 for Government and relief costs in the occupied Axis countries.

Eisenhower did not say when MacArthur sent the message.

Murray Is Mentioned For World Union Post

Washington, July 5 (AP)—Philip Murray, president of the CIO, is under consideration as the next president of the World Federation of Trade Unions to succeed Sir Walter Citrine, of Great Britain.

It was learned today that the names of Murray and Sidney Hillman, a W.F.T.U. vice president, also high in the CIO, both had figured in discussions at a recent W.F.T.U. meeting in Moscow as leading candidates to succeed Citrine.

Sir Walter is resigning to take a British Government post in connection with the nationalization of the British coal industry.

Wants U.N. to Guard Jews

Bloom Gives Anti-Semite Riots in Poland as Reason

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—Chairman Sol Bloom, Democrat, of New York, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said today he will demand United Nations action on the world Jewish problem as a result of the anti-Semitic riots in Poland.

"I am going to insist that the United Nations take up the Jewish question," he told newsmen. "It must stop the pogroms, this killing and starving of Jews, and settle the Jewish question once and for all."

Calling attention to the guaranty of equal rights in the U. N. charter, Representative Bloom declared that the treatment of Jews in central Europe is threatening world peace. He added that the Jews of the world must be given a chance to work and live on terms of equality.

Rubber footwear, sports equipment, zip fasteners, photographers' films, spark plugs, imitation jewelry, vacuum cleaners, cutlery, bee-hives and plastic buttons were among the items listed.

the southern part. The situation is not unlikely that in Germany in that each occupying power is exclusively responsible for what happens in its zone.

Months ago a joint Soviet-American commission was set up to begin working on the political reconstruction of Korea which after 40 years of Japanese rule may require considerable assistance before it is again ready to govern itself.

Russians Protest

The United States proposed that the commission hear Koreans critical of occupation policies, including Russian policies, as well as those who were not critical. The Russians were reported to have objected. Officials said it was the old Soviet-American fight over free speech which has come up in the United Nations in other forms. It split the commission and finally resulted in discontinuing its work.

Still insisting on the free speech right for Korean nationals before the commission, the United States has sent two appeals to Russia suggesting that the commission resume work. Informants here said these have both been ignored.

As a result Maj. Gen. Archer Lerch, military government chief, has been authorized to go ahead with the creation of "practice" ma-of the OPA bill the President vetoed as "inflationary." Porter called for a bill more in line with Presidential recimmendations.

Hikes Along Trail

After his talk with Byrnes, the chief executive left Mrs. Truman took a mile walk along montain trails to a point near a so-called "Haunted House." The story goes, Rigdon said, that a murder occurred there many years ago and the natives gave it that name.

After his walk, Mr. and Mrs. Truman took their brief automobile ride. Their car was accompanied by another containing secret service men. The few people who recognized them as they drove through the towns waved their hand in greeting. The Presidential machine, however, made no stops.

After lunch and a nap, the President took another walk and a dip in the mountain pool 200 yards from the main lodge. He arranged to attend a showing tonight of "Night in Casablanca," featuring the Marx Brothers. He and Mrs. Truman viewed "Anna and the King of Siam" last night, retiring at 11 o'clock.

The decision to visit Gettysburg was reached today after discussing such a trip since the President's arrival. Mr. Truman is a great reader of history and likes accounts of famous battles.

"All organization must derive its power from the consent of the governed. x x x No matter how cleverly men seek to masquerate autocracy, no seamstress of tyranny can cut a brown shirt, a black shirt, a red shirt, or a silver shirt, and so dress an autocrat that he looks like a democrat."

Truman Hikes, Swims And Dozes

Thurmont, Md., July 5 (AP)—President Truman kept to a schedule of walking, swimming, reading and dozing today in his Shangri-La hideout nearby in the Catoctin Mountains.

There was some talk of a drive to Gettysburg, eighteen miles away, some time during the day. The President will probably return to Washington Sunday afternoon.

WAR ON COMMUNISM ASSAILED BY BISHOP

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5—(AP) G. Bromely Oxnam, bishop of the Methodist church, New York city, declared tonight that "energy expended in fighting Communism if devoted to preserving democracy would make totalirianism undesirable and democracy impregnable."

In an address prepared for delivery at the National Education association's annual convention, Bishop Oxnam said.

"Men who summon us to a holy war against Communism are not only declaring war on Russia, but are diverting our attention from the primary obligation to democratize our own economic, political, ecclesiastical and social life.

Russian Asserts Redin Got Only General Data

JUL 6 1946

Says Gear On Yellowstone Was Like That on Ships Lend-Leased to Soviets

SEATTLE, July 5 (AP).—A Russian marine chief engineer, in this country to arm and equip Russian ships in World War II, testified in the Redin espionage-conspiracy trial today through an interpreter who came to this country in connection with armament for Russia in the first world war.

The witness was Ivan Zabello. He testified, as an expert with the Soviet Purchasing Commission, that the confidential naval data on the new destroyer tender Yellowstone, which the government says Russian Navy Lieutenant Nicolai G. Redin asked for and paid for, concerned equipment similar to that on sixteen ships lend-leased to Russia and similar to equipment placed on Russian merchant ships by the United States during the hostilities.

He testified that the technical information as exhibited was generalized in character.

Under cross-examination, however, Mr. Zahello refused to give information on an unidentified Russian destroyer tender, as it existed three or four years ago.

Mr. Zabello inspected the government exhibits—data on the Yellowstone which Herbert Kennedy, shipyard trial engineer, tesified he furnished at Redin's request after first contacting the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Mr. Zabello said the information was of no value and concerned equipment and specifications readily obtainable in the Soviet Union in textbooks and periodicals.

Under cross-examination, he answered "I cannot say, because I am not authorized to tell," to questions dealing with the same details of a Russian destroyer tender he said he had inspected in 1942 or 1943.

The interpreter was Paul A. Umoff, of Seattle, Russian-born and now an American citizen. He said he was with the United States Treasury Department procurement division during the war.

Mr. Umoff was sworn as a disinterested interpreter after Judge Lloyd L. Black rejected a defense attempt to have Redin's wife, Galina, interpret for Mr. Zabello's examination.

Early defense efforts failed to disclose whether the Federal Bureau of Investigation has electrical recordings of conversations between Redin and Mr. Kennedy, government's star witness. Mr. Kennedy, a shipyard trial engineer here and a British subject, testified his house was "wired" after he contacted the F. B. I. about Redin.

Harry G. Maynor, in charge of the Seattle F. B. I. office, declined to produce any such recordings and declined to state whether any were obtained and whether Mr. Kennedy's home was "wired," on the ground that F. B. I. general orders prohibit revealing confidential information or investigative methods.

SPY TRIAL DENIED SOVIET SHIP DATA

JUL 6 1946

Russian Expert Refuses To Reveal Details On Tender

Seattle, Wash., July 5 (AP)—A Russian shipping expert today refused under intensive crossexamination in the Redin espionage-conspiracy trial to reveal items of information on an unidentified Russian destroyer tender, as it existed three or four years ago.

The witness, Ivan Zabello, marine chief engineer, had just completed testifying at length that the same details, as regarded the United States Navy's newest destroyer tender, was of no value to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

With Redin When Arrested

Zabello was with Russian Navy Lieut. Nicolai Gregorovich Redin when the latter was arrested at Portland last March 26 and later indicted on espionage-conspiracy charges.

Redin went to trial June 25 in connection with confidential data he is alleged to have asked for and paid for in connection with the U.S.S. Yellowstone, commissioned here this spring.

Zabello inspected the Government exhibits—data on the Yellowstone which Herbert Kennedy, shipyard trial engineer, testified he furnished at Redin's request after first getting in touch with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Zabello, through an interpreter, said the information was of no value and concerned equipment and specifications, readily obtainable in the Soviet Union in textbooks and periodicals.

"Not Authorized To Tell"

Under crossexamination, he answered "I cannot say, because I am not authorized to tell," to questions dealing with the same details of a Russian destroyer tender he said he had inspected in 1942 or 1943.

Intensive and detailed questioning did develop that the Russian tender was a single-screw vessel and had armament ranging from an indefinite number of 5-inch guns to an equally indefinite number of 20-millimeter anti-aircraft guns. Zabello said it had centrally directed fire control but declined to answer the same questions in regard to it, as the Government exhibits indicated Kennedy gave Redin.

Mater when FBI agents arrested him at Portland, but merely was taking Zabello, who also was attached to the Soviet Purchasing Commission, to visit the survivors of the broken Russian tanker Donbass. He said Redin was to have returned at an indefinite later date on another vessel.

The interpreter was Paul A. Umoff, of Seattle, Russian-born and now an American citizen. He said he was with the United States Treasury Department procurement division during the late war.

Umoff was sworn as a disinterested interpreter after Judge Lloyd L. Black rejected a defense attempt to have Redin's wife, Galina, interpret for Zabello's examination.

Says House Was Wired

Early defense efforts failed to disclose whether the Federal Bureau of Investigation has electrical recordings of conversations between Redin and Herbert Kennedy, Government's star witness. Kennedy, a shipyard trial engineer here and a British subject, testified his house was "wired" after he got in touch with the FBI about Redin.

Harry G. Maynor, in charge of the Seattle FBI office, declined to produce any such recordings and declined to state whether any were obtained and whether Kennedy's home was "wired," on the ground FBI general orders prohibit revealing confidential information or investigative methods.

LONDON BRIDE OF YANK GETS RENO DIVORCE

JUL 6 1946

She Charges Stinginess, He Alleges Misconduct With Army Captain

Reno, Nev., July 5 (AP)—Pretty Mrs. Jean Carbone, 19-year-old Londoner, was granted a divorce today from Harold Carbone, former army lieutenant of Rochester, N.Y., on grounds of mental cruelty.

The divorce was granted by District Judge A. J. Maestretti after a bitter, two-day closed hearing.

In her complaint, Mrs. Carbone, among other things, charged Carbone was "penurious and stingy." In his answer he charged her with adultery and named Capt. Darrell Beschen, of Dubuque, Iowa, as corespondent.

Religious Objections Raised

Carbone contested the divorce for religious reasons and hinted at the possibility of further legal action when he said that no further action would be taken until he and his father, Floyd Carbone, had returned to Rochester and conferred with their attorneys.

After receiving the decree, Mrs. Carbone told interviewers she intended to remain in Reno. She declined to discuss her plans and said, "I'm sorry, I don't know," when asked of Beschen's present whereabouts. Carbone, in answer to the same question, said he understood Beschen now is at an army camp at San Angelo, Texas.

Baby Enters The Case

Attorneys for the principals disclosed that Beschen's sister, Miss Darline Beschen, a surprise witness, testified at the hearing that Mrs. Carbone's baby was born in Dubuque on February 9, 1946, more than thirteen months after Carbone was separated from his wife in London. Previously, the court had held that the subject of the baby was inadmissible because the child was not mentioned in the pleading of the case.

Carbone testified he sent his wife $2,400 from the time he left London until she arrived in this country. Then, he contended, she went to Iowa to visit Beschen instead of joining him at Rochester.

In a post-trial interview, Mrs. Carbone declared she had "every intention" of joining her husband when she arrived in this country. She said that on her arrival she phoned him and said, "I'll come to you now," but he replied, "No, I don't want you."

"At Least I'm Free," Says He

Attorneys said the case turned on the point of Mrs. Carbone's entry into the United States and her residence in Nevada. The attorney for Mrs. Carbone said it was proven that she entered on a nonquota visa as the wife of Carbone.

"My husband, still wanting to stay married to me, tried to prove that I was in this country illegally," Mrs. Carbone asserted.

Carbone, who is 26, commented: "I'm not bitter about it—at least I'm free."

Wisconsin Senator Repudiates America First Party Indorsement

Madison, Wis., July 5 (AP)—Gerald L. K. Smith, national director of the America First party, gave his indorsement today to Senator Robert M. La Follette (Prog., Wis.), and La Follette, candidate for the Republican nomination for the Senate, immediately repudiated Smith's support.

Midshipmen Start Their First Postwar Summer Cruise Today

JUL 6 1946

Annapolis, July 5 (AP)—The first postwar cruise of the Naval Academy midshipmen will begin tomorrow when first and third class men board the battleships Washington and North Carolina, and second-class men the aircraft carrier Randolph.

Hundreds of middies will swarm aboard the ships before 7 A.M. tomorrow for cruises which will take them as far north as Quonset, R.I., and south to the Navy's drill grounds in the Culebra-Guantanamo area.

Meanwhile, other classmates will pursue their studies at the academy, where second-class men will begin instruction in flight lore under the supervision of the new aviation department.

Second Cruise In August

The cruises beginning tomorrow will be followed by a second group to begin August 17.

Aboard the battleships and the carrier, the midshipmen will stand parallel watches and be assigned special duties.

The battleship group will touch Newport, R.I., the Guantanamo area, and have liberty at New York, Newport and Norfolk, while the carrier group will include the same stops, but also will visit the naval air testing station at Patuxent.

Manual To Be Supplied

Each midshipman will receive a manual to supplement other navy regulations and orders. The manual sets forth information on organization, administration, instruction, aptitude, conduct, cruise offenses, how to air a bed, and a suggestion to attend divine services.

The middies will find themselves surrounded by hundreds of prohibitions for which they will get demerits or "fraps." The list runs from "absence, unauthorized, from scheduled exercise," to "working suits—not properly marked."

Among things forbidden are: Chewing gum, ashore or afloat; using unseamanlike language in official conversation, sleeping on mess tables, having hair not properly cut, not being properly shaved, or asking silly questions.

LA FOLLETTE SPURNS AID OF GERALD SMITH

JUL 6 1946

Speaking at a conference, Smith said "the nationalists have decided to go along with Senator Taft (R., Ohio) in his support of La Follette. We cannot forget that the entire La Follette family has always put America first, regardless of differences of opinion."

Smith urged Wisconsin voters to "prevent the enigmatic Harold Stassen from increasing his influence here . . . because he is the voice of internationalism, a stooge of Wall Street and the nearest thing to a Roosevelt within the Republican camp."

Repudiated By La Follette

La Follette, in a statement issued through his Madison office, said:

"I want to make it emphatically clear as I can that I absolutely, and without reservation of any kind whatsoever, repudiate the support of Gerald L. K. Smith and any others who preach a gospel of hate and intolerance.

"During all my career, both in and out of the Senate, I have fought racial bigotry and religious intolerance. I made it clear when I announced my candidacy for re-election that I am running on my record."

In addition to La Follette, Smith also indorsed Wisconsin Representatives Keefe, O'Konski, Murray and Smith, all Republicans.

Bilbo Primary Probe Urged

Cleveland, July 5 (AP)—Calling for a Federal investigation of the recent Democratic primary in Mississippi, the National Lawyers Guild asserted tonight that Senator Bilbo (D., Miss.) "created an atmosphere of terror which induced the vast majority of qualified Negro voters to refrain from registering and voting."

In a resolution adopted at the group's annual convention the Guild said Bilbo's "revolting exhibition stamps him as unfit to hold the high office of senator of the United States."

O'DANIEL UPS RENT, 25 EX-GI'S PICKET

JUL 6 1946

Senator's Son's Eviction Order To Veteran Draws Protest

Dallas, Texas, July 5 (AP)—Twenty-five ex-GI's, mostly Southern Methodist University students, today picketed the apartment house owned by Mike O'Daniel, son of Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, foe of the OPA, as a protest for an eviction notice sent a Pacific theater veteran.

The hour-long picketing was witnessed only by a few neighbors and apartment house tenants.

Wesley Brient, Dallas veteran, recently discharged, said he had first been told his rent would be boosted from $70 to $100 and later had been asked to move.

Pickets Carried Placards

Members of the American Veterans Committee had rallied to Brient, who was a switchboard operator with the 8th Army headquarters in Tokyo. Only a few days returned from ten months' overseas service, Brient was notified to vacate August 2, following an argument on increased rents with young O'Daniel, also recently discharged from the Army.

The ex-GI pickets carried placards reading: "O'Daniel filibustering in Washington, evicting in Dallas," "A.V.C. believes in the OPA," "'Evict veterans, that's my policy,' O'Daniel," "'We are in the driver's seat,' O'Daniel."

Raised From $67.50 To $100

Brient walked at the head of the line although not a member of the A.V.C.

He explained to newspaper men that O'Daniel had told him the rents were being raised only ten per cent, which Brient challenged, declaring that his $67.50 apartment had been raised to $100 monthly.

"After I told him what I thought of him and his father, we received the notice," Brient said. He added that he did not know whether the same increase in rents for the same type apartment had been applied to other tenants.

Oldest Tenants In Building

Lewis P. MacAdams, local chairman of the A.V.C., said Morris I. Jeffe, Dallas attorney, had been retained to fight the eviction.

Brient said his family was the oldest tenants in the building.

MacAdams and Bill McGehee, a State legislative candidate living in the same block, said the purpose of the picket line was an attempt to embarrass landlords who made what was considered unreasonable increases in rents.

Mrs. O'Daniel said Brient had been asked to move. Her husband was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

COSTS OF MANY FOOD PRODUCTS INCH UPWARD

JUL 6 1946

Meat, Butter, Eggs Increase Slightly—Livestock Tapers Off

New York, July 5 (AP)—The cost of many essential food items continued to inch upward today as the nation neared the end of its first postwar week free of Government price controls.

Wholesale prices of meat, butter and eggs increased slightly in New York city while in Chicago the livestock market tapered off.

The New York Stock Exchange had one of its slowest days in months, with stocks quiet.

General Mills, Inc., said in Chicago it was selling flour and cereal products "for immediate shipment only." The firm said it was not committing itself to any set price until a new OPA bill "is either passed or not passed." Several other companies are doing likewise, a spokesman said.

Butter Up ½ Cent A Pound

The New York Mercantile Exchange said butter was up a ½ cent a pound in the wholesale market in line with Chicago and other Western markets.

Grade A butter prices hit 71½ cents, indicating a retail price in independent stores of about 85 or 86 cents a pound. The OPA ceiling price was 68 cents.

Joseph J. Rosen, secretary of the Butter and Egg Merchants Association of New York, said best grade eggs cost retailers about 55 or 56 cents a dozen and sold to consumers at from 63 to 65 cents. He added:

"This isn't much of a rise above OPA ceilings, which would be about 60 cents right now."

Meat Situation Described

Describing the meat situation, C. F. House, market news analyst for the United States Department of Agriculture in New York, said some dealers had advanced prices $5 to $10 per hundred pounds because of the elimination of subsidies.

He said those prices still were about 25 cents a pound below former black market prices.

Meanwhile, in Chicago the American Meat Institute said "better meat supplies for consumers are building up," pointing to large cattle and hog receipts at leading livestock markets.

Refuse To Bid Up Hog Prices

Hog buyers throughout the nation refused to bid up prices on an unexpectedly heavy outpouring of pork animals from country feedlots.

Values consequently skidded an average of a dollar a hundred pounds on hogs. Sheep maintained virtually steady prices throughout the day and cattle stayed almost up to the high levels of Wednesday.

Chicago stockyards led all markets, the heaviest receipts in six months, 30,000 hogs arriving, where 15,000 were expected. Indianapolis was next with 16,000; Sioux City, Iowa, followed with 12,000, and Omaha, Neb., had 7,500.

Under such pressure the top prices in the four principal markets dropped off $1 to $1.25, with Indianapolis having the highest level of $17 on weights averaging 160 to 180 pounds, Chicago's practical top was $16.

The best price for cattle continued at Chicago, where the top of $22.25 was only 25 cents off the record high mark set earlier this week on steers. The market's 9,700 head were the best for a Friday in years.

Small Flurry In Flour Ends

Millers in New York reported that the small flurry of business which took place earlier in the week had ended, due in part to fears of a roll back in prices.

A substantial reduction in buying interest in the Chicago grain market resulted in oats futures being off more than 2 cents at times today.

In New York, cotton futures moved over a fairly wide range in quiet dealings, curtailed by holiday influences.

Fifty-two Phoenix members of the Arizona Restaurant Association agreed to raise prices on meat items 20 to 33 1-3 per cent and milk from 5 to 10 cents a glass in Phoenix restaurants.

Residents in the Salt Lake City-Ogden-Provo areas, comprising the major portion of Utah's population, paid 15 cents a quart for milk, a 2-cent boost to offset loss of Government subsidies.

Bowles Says New Bill Is Little Different

Portland, Maine, July 5 (AP)—Chester Bowles said tonight that he could not see much difference between the first compromise OPA bill extending price control and the second measure now before Congress.

Bowles, who resigned effective July 10 as economic stablization director, would make only one comment on the bill now proposed:

"I can't see much difference from the old one."

Bowles arrived today with his wife and four of their five children to begin a month's cruise along Maine's coast.

NEW PROPOSAL MADE ON ATOM

JUL 6 1946

International Ownership Of Uranium Held Essential

New York, July 5 (AP)—International ownership of all atomic raw materials was put forward by the United States today as one of the essentials of an effective atomic control plan.

A lengthy memorandum submitted to the Atomic Energy Commission by Ferdinand Eberhardt, a member of the United States delegation, recommended that the proposed atomic control authority have power to control the mining and processing of uranium and thorium as well as the actual production of atomic energy.

"The authority, in short, must have such control of mining and concentrating operations as will assure its complete and absolute ownership of all uranium and thorium actually produced," the document said.

The memorandum set forth in detail the United States' views on atomic control previously outlined by Bernard M. Baruch at the opening meeting of the commission.

Research Control Wanted

In addition to control of atomic raw materials at their source, the United States advocated an airtight system of controls over research and production, including elaborate safeguards to permit inspection of all facilities.

The memorandum said it might even be advisable for the authority to manufacture atomic power and sell it to individual nations, rather than to permit the nations to produce their own power, when the production of such power becomes practical.

It also proposed that any international move to outlaw the production of atomic weapons be included in the control system and not be considered as a separate measure as Russia has demanded.

Closed Session Held

The new American document was discussed for almost two hours by a six-nation subcommittee of the Atomic Commission in a closed session. It was understood that Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko was particularly interested in the proposals for an inspection system.

These proposals provided that the authority be given broad rights for unhindered use of communications and travel facilities without regard to international boundaries and that it even be permitted to set up its own system of radio communication.

Gromyko, who previously had proposed that each nation be responsible for the supervision of atomic production within its boundaries, was reported to have asked numerous questions about the United States plan. There was no idication, however, that he had changed his position.

Subcommittee Tackles Atom Problems

JUL 6 1946

New York, July 5 (AP)—The United Nations atomic subcommittee No. 1 set out today on a course aimed at correlating the operations of a proposed world atomic development authority with the peace enforcement functions of the Security Council.

On the agenda for the committee's session were two subjects:

1. "Measures, systems and organization of control over atomic energy in order to make specific proposals to secure the use of such energy for peaceful purposes only, and

2. "The relationship between any or all of such measures and the functions assigned to the Security Council by the Charter of the United Nations."

U.S. Report Expected

The subcommittee was expected soon to receive a new supplementary memorandum from the United States delegation elaborating on the original American proposals for atomic control. The delegation was reported to have worked through the July 4 holiday.

The conferees already had before them the suggestions of the United States and France urging close relationship between the atomic authority and the Security Council.

In recapitulating their statements of policy earlier this week, both nations recognized the Council as the ultimate authority with power to order punitive measures against threats and acts to breach the peace.

International Force

Such power would be implemented by the international force that is still on the blueprints of the Council's Military Staff Committee.

While Russia had no immediate comment on this specific phase of the early negotiations, there was a growing belief that Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet member of the Atomic Energy Commission, would submit a restatement of Russian policy in relation to the Security Council's powers on atomic matters.

The functioning of the Council in atomic matters is expected to be more acceptable to Russia than is the proposed scope of the Atomic Development Authority.

Paris Favored As Site for U. N. Health Agency

JUL 6 1946

Geneva, Copenhagen, U. S. Location Also Considered, No Decision Is Reached

The United Nations International Health Conference, meeting at Hunter College Bronx Center as the committee on administration and finance, devoted itself yesterday to a discussion of a permanent site for the world health organization. Paris, Geneva, Copenhagen and the United States were proposed, but no decision was made.

Paris received the strongest support. Nations favoring a headquarters in the French city were Belgium, Byelorussia, the Ukraine, Paraguay and France. A site in the United States near United Nations permanent headquarters was backed by Great Britain, Australia, Chile and Syria. Egypt came out for establishing headquarters in Geneva.

Dr. Jeppe Oerskov, delegate from Denmark, invited the world health organization, which is now being formed, to set up headquarters in Copenhagen. The Danish city, he asserted, meets the highest of sanitary requirements and during the summer offers fine working conditions "because the whole country is well air-conditioned."

Dr. Frank G. Boudreau, delegate from the United States, recommended that choice of a site be left to the next general assembly of the world health organization. He reminded the meeting that the technical committee which made preparations for the present International Health Conference recommended a headquarters at or near a center recognized for the excellence of its health and medical facilities.

Dr. Andrew Cavaillon, of France, emphasized the technical links between the world health organization and specialized agencies such as the International Labor Office, the Food and Agriculture Organization and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. The I. L. O. will be situated in Geneva, the F. A. O. probably also in Geneva, and U. N. E. S. C. O. in Paris.

Dr. Leo Medved, of the Ukraine, strongly recommended Paris because, he said, Paris is a cultural center on a high international level and its facilities and strong cultural links with London and Moscow would guarantee the accomplishment of the tasks of the world health organization.

The health conference will continue today at 10 a. m. at Hunter College, the Bronx.

Norah Carpenter With Children Arrives To Marry Thompson

JUL 6 1946

New York, July 5 (AP)—Norah Rose Carpenter brought her three surviving quadruplet children from England today and secluded herself in a midtown hotel, withholding any information as to when and where she would meet the children's father, former Staff Sergeant William Thompson, of Pittsburgh.

Thompson was not at the airport when the big Pan American plane landed at LaGuardia Airport in the early morning, nor had he put in an appearance when the group left in a taxicab more than two hours later after being cleared by customs.

Met By Thompson's Lawyer

The 25-year-old English mother was met at the field by Sam Keller, of Pittsburgh, Thompson's lawyer, who said his client and Miss Carpenter would be married as soon as it was possible to comply with Pennsylvania laws. Another on hand to meet her was Jack Warner, a cousin of Thompson.

The mother was pale and visibly nervous when she left the plane ten minutes after it arrived. In the lengthy customs ordeal Maureen, one of the children, began to cry, and stomped her foot on a customs counter. She asked for water and became quiet after it was given to her. Norah held Maureen in her arms.

Children 28 Months Old

Meanwhile, Madeline, toying with a pencil, sat with her brother, Michael, on a bench and watched the proceedings. The children, now 28 months old, wore red knit hats, rompers, white sox and red shoes.

At the airport Michael was changed to a blue suit, brown jacket and brown shoes, and his sisters to rust coats, blue-and-white gingham dresses and white sox and shoes.

The travelers met Keller and Warner in a passenger service room, and the mother declined an interview.

Mother Is Reticent

"I'm sorry, I can't stand any more," she said. She still carried Maureen in her arms, and the other children were carried by an airline attendant. Asked when she planned to marry she replied, "I don't know, don't ask me any more questions."

She forgot two bags which were left on the pavement as the cab pulled away and the taxi was stopped to pick up the luggage.

Asked where Miss Carpenter was going, Keller replied, "I am going to the Hotel Madison."

Warner paid Miss Carpenter's head tax of $8. She brought with her only personal effects for herself and the children and a small amount of cash.

Marriage May Be Delayed

Keller said there may be a delay in the wedding because of a three-day waiting period required in Pennsylvania. He said early application for blood tests would be made so that a request for a waiver can be made before an Orphans' Court judge. He refused to say how or when they would go to Pittsburgh.

Thompson, a pressman who met Miss Carpenter in England, was in New York, but in seclusion. His first wife divorced him.

JUL 6 1946

NEW YORK, July 5—(AP) He saw the taxi coming and raced to meet it—and then, with a smothered sob, weary, joyful Norah Carpenter was reunited today with the red-haired American she loves. The New York Mirror described their meeting in a copyright story.

Tears welling in their eyes, 25-year-old Norah went into the arms of William (Red) Thompson of Pittsburgh. Around their feet clustered their three surviving quadruplets, Michael, Maureen and Madeline, now two years and four months old.

"My darling, I'm so happy to see you again!" Norah said.

Red just said, "Hello." Then he kneeled and greeted his three energetic youngsters.

Maureen looked at him squarely. "Daddy," she said.

The reunion occurred in a little house in Elmhurst, Queens, near La Guardia airfield where Norah and the babies landed today after a flight from England.

Red said they would be married Tuesday in Pittsburgh, where his mother has set aside two rooms in her house for the young family, according to the Mirror. Thompson's former wife divorced him April 24.

of England. They cannot marry in his church because of the divorce, so the ceremony will be conducted by a court officer.

Avoids Public View

The former sergeant came to New York to be on hand when Norah arrived. At the last moment, he decided to avoid the stares of the curious at the airport and the meeting was arranged for a more private spot.

They hadn't seen each other for 15 months. The quadruplet birth, which created something of an international sensation, occurred in February, 1944, when Norah was 23, in the little mining town of Heanor, Derbyshire, England.

Thompson quickly said he was the father of the babies, but that he and Norah were not married. "We hope to be," he said, then. "We will always stick together." A few days later, MacDonald, smallest of the quads succumbed.

Today the three children, bursting with health, seemed very much at home in America. Red swung Maureen and Madeline high in the air, but Michael stood back.

"I don't think Mickey likes me," his father said, worried.

The family was driven to the Mayflower hotel where a large suite overlooking Central Park was reserved for them.

"We've never been up as high as this before," Norah said. "We're on top of the world."

Thin and Tired

She was thin and tired after a sick, sleepless 20 hours crossing the Atlantic, holding Maureen on her lap all the way.

Norah said shyly that the wedding would be "very simple—the ceremony and the dress. Naturally, you can understand that."

"The children were so good," she told the Mirror. "We were always careful not to single one out for special attention. They've learned to feed themselves and wash themselves."

"Many people have wondered whether it's a big job for me to take care of the three little ones at one time. It is—but it's the happiest job I've ever had."

She moved toward Red and took his hand in hers.

"This is the realization of a dream to which I have been looking forward a long time."

Mickey walked across the floor.

"Here, darling," Norah said. "Your shoes are untied. Ask daddy to fix them."

Michael looked slowly from one parent to the other. He took his time, and Red and Norah waited anxiously.

Then he stuck his foot on a knee.

"Daddy fix them," he said.

LONDON, JULY 5-(AP)-THE POSSIBILITY OF AN ARAB REBELLION IN PALSTINE, AIDED AND ABETTED BY ARABS FROM NEIGHBORING STATES, WAS ADVANCED AUTHORITATIVELY TODAY IN THE WAKE OF GROWING CONCERN OVER BRITAIN'S POLICY IN THE HOLY LAND.

SOURCES CLOSE TO THE POLICY MAKERS IN THE ATTLEE GOVERNMENT WHO MUST REMAIN UNIDENTIFIED EXPRESSED THE VIEW THAT BRITAIN--WHILE CONCERNED ABOUT THE EFFECT OF HER ACTIONS IN PALESTINE ON ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONS--STILL WAS UNWILLING TO ALIENATE THE ARAB NATIONS AND RISK THE BRITISH POSITION IN THE MIDDLE EAST.

THIS WAS THE BRITISH VIEW WAS GIVEN AUTHORITATIVELY:

THE ARABS IN PALESTINE SEEM "IN THE MOOD" TO OPPOSE WITH VIOLENCE BRITISH POLICY UNSATISFACTORY TO THEM, AND THE POSSIBILITY OF AN ARAB REBELLION, TAKING IN ARABS FROM ADJOINING STATES, IS BEING CONSIDERED BY THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

BRITAIN HAS FOUND NOTHING OBJECTIONABLE IN HER DEALINGS WITH THE UNITED STATES ON THE PALESTINE QUESTION. THE ONLY THING, PERHAPS, BRITAIN COULD OBJECT TO WOULD BE ATTEMPTS OF PRESSURE GROUPS TO FORCE THE PURSUANCE OF A POLICY "BEYOND BRITISH MEANS."

AT THE SAME TIME, IT WAS SAID THAT BRITAIN COULD NOT HOLD DOWN THE ARABS BY FORCE AND DID NOT EVEN WANT TO ATTEMPT IT.

ANOTHER REASON FOR THE BRITISH HANDLING OF THE ANGLO-AMERICAN COMMITTEE'S REPORT--WHICH RECOMMENDED IMMIGRATION OF 100,000 EUROPEAN JEWS INTO PALESTINE--WAS UNDERSTOOD TO BE THAT FAILURE TO CONSIDER ARAB WISHES WOULD BE UNDEMOCRATIC. INASMUCH AS ARABS MAKE UP TWO-THIRDS OF PALESTINE'S POPULATION.

IT WAS SAID THERE WAS NO GREAT EVIDENCE OF INTENSE RUSSIAN ACTIVITY IN PALESTINE, AND IT WAS GENERALLY BELIEVED IN WHITEHALL THAT SOVIET ACTION IN THE MATTER, IF ANY, PROBABLY WOULD BE TAKEN THROUGH THE UNITED NATIONS.

THE BRITISH, HOWEVER, WERE NOT OVERLOOKING THE FACT THAT CURRENT AGITATION OVER THE HOLY LAND PROVIDED A POSSIBLE OPPORTUNITY FOR RUSSIA TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF DIFFERENCES BETWEEN BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

A137

THUS FAR, BRITAIN HAS HESITATED TO MAKE A FORTHRIGHT DECLARATION ON PALESTINE. THE EXPLANATION WAS GIVEN AUTHORITATIVELY THAT THE GOVERNMENT DOES NOT KNOW WHAT IT WILL DO UNTIL IT HAS THE REPORT

OF AN ANGLO-AMERICAN GROUP WHICH SHORTLY WILL BEGIN A STUDY OF THE POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS OF THE ANGLO-AMERICAN COMMITTEE'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

EFFECT ON PASSAGE OF THE PROPOSED AMERICAN LOAN TO BRITAIN, IT WAS SAID, WAS NOT TAKEN INTO CONSIDERATION WHEN THE RECENT MILITARY-POLICE OPERATIONS WERE PLANNED IN PALESTINE.

THE BRITISH HAVE SAID THE PURPOSE OF THE RAIDS WAS TO NEUTRALIZE ILLEGAL ORGANIZATIONS BY ARRESTING THEIR LEADERS.

BECAUSE OF THE HEAVY MILITARY OBLIGATIONS WHICH COULD RESULT, IT WAS STATED AUTHORITATIVELY THAT IT WAS CONCEIVABLE BRITAIN MIGHT TURN DOWN THE RECOMMENDATION TO OPEN THE GATES OF PALESTINE TO 100,000 JEWS UNLESS ASSURED UNITED STATES AID IN DEFENSE AND SECURITY MEASURES.

LONDON, JULY 5-(AP)-BASIL O'CONNOR, CHAIRMAN OF THE LEAGUE OF RED CROSS SOCIETIES, SAID TODAY THAT "PROBABLY THE ONLY THING GOVERNMENTS WILL RESPECT IN THE NEXT WAR WILL BE THE RED CROSS."

HERE TO PRESIDE AT THE SOCIETIES' BIENNIAL CONVENTION AT OXFORD--THE FIRST SINCE 1938--HE SAID THE ORGANIZATION WAS CONVINCED THAT GOVERNMENTS OF THE WORLD "MUST LEAN" ON THE RED CROSS AS A MEANS NOT ONLY OF ALLEVIATING HUMAN SUFFERING BUT OF PROMOTING FRIENDLY RELATIONS BETWEEN NATIONS TO PREVENT WARS.

J.H.NICHOLSON, RED CROSS VICE CHAIRMAN, IN CHARGE OF INSULAR AND FOREIGN OPERATIONS, SAID THE ORGANIZATION WAS IN TOUCH WITH THE U.S. WAR DEPARTMENT ON SCIENTIFIC DEVELOPMENTS AND WAS "GIVING CONSIDERATION" TO THE POSSIBLE EFFECTS OF ATOMIC WARFARE ON HUMAN BEINGS.

HE EXPLAINED THAT THIS DID NOT MEAN THE RED CROSS WAS ANTICIPATING ANOTHER WAR, BUT RATHER THAT IT WAS KEEPING ABREAST OF ALL SCIENTIFIC DEVELOPMENTS AS THEY MIGHT CONCERN THE WELFARE OF HUMANITY.

BD NAUHEIM, GERMANY, JULY 5-(AP)-A FORMER PRISON OFFICER TESTIFIED TODAY THAT COL.JAMES KILIAN ONCE TOLD HIM TO TAKE A LICHFIELD GUARDHOUSE PRISONER "DOWN TO THE RIFLE RANGE AND WORK HIM OVER--JUST DON'T BREAK TOO MANY BONES."

THIS STATEMENT WAS MADE BY LT.GRANVILLE CUBAGE OF OKLAHOMA CITY, WHO RECENTLY WAS FINED $250 FOR AUTHORIZING GUARDS TO CLUB PRISONERS.

CUBAGE WAS THE FIRST WITNESS IN THE THREE-WEEK-OLD TRIAL TO LINK KILIAN DIRECTLY WITH AN ALLEGED "BE TOUGH" POLICY AT LICHFIELD, ENGLAND. SEVEN FORMER GUARDS HAVE SAID THEY BEAT PRISONERS ON ORDERS FROM OFFICERS.

KILIAN, 54-YEAR-OLD CAVALRY VETERAN FROM HIGHLAND PARK, ILL. IS ACCUSED OF AIDING AND AUTHORIZING CRUEL AND UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT AT LICHFIELD, WHERE HE WAS A COMMANDER OF THE U.S. ARMY'S 10TH REINFORCEMENT DEPOT.

CUBAGE RELATED THAT HE WENT TO SEE KILIAN ONE DAY IN 1944 ABOUT AN INCORRIGIBLE PRISONER.

"I CAN SEE YOU DON'T KNOW MUCH ABOUT AN ARMY GUARDHOUSE, FOR IF I WERE RUNNING THAT GUARDHOUSE I WOULD TAKE THAT PRISONER OUT SOME PLACE AND WORK HIM OVER," HE QUOTED KILIAN AS ADVISING.

THEN AFTER KILIAN TALKED ABOUT HOW HE HAD SEEN FORCE USED TO CONTROL SOLDIERS DURING HIS LONG ARMY CAREER, CUBAGE SAID THE COMMANDANT GAVE HIM THIS INSTRUCTION:

"TAKE THAT PRISONER DOWN TO THE RIFLE RANGE AND WORK HIM OVER--JUST DON'T BREAK TOO MANY BONES. I DON'T MEAN FOR YOU YOURSELF TO TAKE HIM OUT, BUT YOU'VE GOT SOME GOOD MEN DOWN THERE. THEY CAN DO IT."

THE COUNSEL, ALFRED SEIDL, WAS TOLD BY THE COURT TO REWRITE HIS SUMMARY AND DELETE PERSONAL OPINIONS ABOUT THE TREATY.

HESS SAT STONE-FACED AS THE TRIBUNAL REBUFFED SEIDL SEVERAL TIMES AND FINALLY SHUT HIM OFF.

JUL 6 1946

SEIDL HAS BEEN DISBARRED FROM PRACTICING LAW IN GERMANY AFTER THESE TRIALS ON THE GROUND THAT HE WAS AN ARDENT NAZI.

HE HAD DISTRIBUTED ONLY GERMAN COPIES OF HIS SPEECH.

SLIGHTLY INCENSED ABOUT THIS, LORD JUSTICE GEOFFREY LAWRENCE SAID: "THIS IS WHY WE WANTED TRANSLATIONS AHEAD OF TIME; WE DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU ARE GOING TO SAY."

TWICE LAWRENCE INTERRUPTED SEIDL WHILE HE WAS READING. THE SECOND TIME, THE ENTIRE COURT GLOWERED AT SEIDL AND WENT INTO A HUDDLE FOR WHISPERED CONSULTATION. LAWRENCE THEN ANNOUNCED:

"YOU DON'T APPEAR CAPABLE OF RECASTING YOUR SPEECH AS YOU GO ALONG AND THE TRIBUNAL WILL NOT HEAR YOU FURTHER AT THIS STAGE. YOU WILL HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO RECAST YOUR SPEECH AND SUBMIT IT FOR TRANSLATION. THE JUSTICE OF THE VERSAILLES TREATY HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH WHETHER WAR BY GERMANY WAS A WAR OF AGGRESSION OR WITH WAR CRIMES."

SEIDL SHUFFLED BACK TO HIS SEAT AND COUNSEL FOR JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP PRESENTED THE NAZI FOREIGN MINISTER'S DEFENSE SUMMATION. HE CHALLENGED THE ALLIES' RIGHT TO TRY GERMANS AS WAR CRIMINALS, CONTENDING THE POTSDAM DECLARATION RECOGNIZES GERMANY'S RIGHT TO CONTINUE AS A NATION. HE SAID THE REICH ITSELF SHOULD CONDUCT ANY PROSECUTIONS.

SECOND NIGHT LEAD WAR CRIMES (350)

TOKYO, JULY 6-(SATURDAY)-(AP)-MANCHURIA MADE EPOCHAL ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL STRIDES WHEN HIDEKI TOJO WAS ONE OF ITS TWO MIGHTY OVERLORDS AS CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE KWANTUNG ARMY, A PROSECUTION WITNESS TESTIFIED TODAY.

MURMURS SPRAD THROUGH THE COURTROOM, WHERE JAPAN'S TOP FLIGHT WAR CRIMES DEFENDANTS ARE ON TRIAL, AS MAJ.GEN. OF AGGRESSION WAS BROUGHT INTO TESTIMONY FOR THE FIRST TIME.

ANOTHER HIGH RANKING FORMER KWANTUNG OFFICER, MAJ.GEN. RYUKICHI TANAKA TESTIFIED THAT THE MILITARY LEADER WHO LATER BECAME JAPAN'S WARTIME PREMIER DECREASED THE NUMBER OF BANDITS IN MANCHURIA TO LESS THAN 10,000 AND RESTORED LAW AND ORDER. HE SAID THAT TOJO AS SECOND IN COMMAND EXERCISED GREAT INFLUENCE OVER ALL PERSONNEL MATTERS THROUGHOUT THE SATELLITE COUNTRY. NO ONE WAS NAMED TO ANY OFFICER WITHOUT HIS APPROVAL.

POLAND'S EXPORTS.

TOJO BUSILY TOOK NOTES THROUGHOUT ALL THIS BRIEF MENTION OF HIM BY TANAKA WHO SAID, "I KNOW TOJO WELL." THE WITNESS SAID THAT HE HAD SERVED THE WAR LEADER AS CHIEF OF STAFF OF TOJO'S ARMY CORPS AND LATER IN THE MILITARY SERVICE BUREAU--AN ASSOCIATION THAT LASTED ALL TOLD MORE THAN 15 YEARS.

THE PROSECUTION THEN SUDDENLY DROPPED ITS INQUIRY INTO THE PREWAR ACTIVITIES OF THE MAN WHO ATTEMPTED TO KILL HIMSELF WHEN IT WAS CERTAIN HE WAS TO BE ARRESTED AS A WAR CRIMINAL.

QUESTIONING SWITCHED INTO JAPAN'S PLANS FOR AUTONOMOUS MOVEMENTS IN NORTH CHINA AND INNER MONGOLIA IN AN EFFORT TO SHOW THE POLITICAL POWER OF THE KWANTUNG ARMY.

TANAKA SAID JAPAN WANTED TO CONTROL INNER MONGOLIA AS A BUFFER TO BLOCK AN INPOURING OF "SOVIET INFLUENCE" FROM OUTER MONGOLIA. HE SAID THAT IN NORTH CHINA IT WAS PLANNED TO SEPARATE FIVE PROVINCES FROM THE MOTHER COUNTRY AND "REDUCE THE POWER AND INFLUENCE OF THE NANKING REGIME WHICH STUBBORNLY OPPOSED JAPAN."

TANAKA TOLD OF A BITTER BREAK BETWEEN ONE DEFENDANT, GENERAL JIRO MINAMI, FORMER COMMANDER OF THE KWANTUNG ARMY AND ONETIME WAR MINISTER, AND FORMER FOREIGN MINISTER BARON KIJURO SHIDEHARA.

"IN THE FALL OF 1935, MINAMI TOLD ME THAT ABOUT THE TIME OF THE MANCHURIAN INCIDENT, AS KWANTUNG ARMY HEAD, HE EXPRESSED THE POSITIVE ATTITUDE OF THE ENTIRE ARMY SUPPORTING EXPANSION," KANAKA TESTIFIED. "AS A RESULT MINAMI BECAME AT LOGGERHEADS WITH SHIDEHARA WHO MAINTAINED A PLACID ATTITUDE ON MANCHURIA. AS A RESULT, BITTERNESS EXTENDED TO THEIR PERSONAL RELATIONS WITH MINAMI ADVOCATING A DEFINITE SETTLEMENT OF THE MANCHURIAN SITUATION."

SHANGHAI,JULY 5-(AP)-ONE OF THE BUSIEST SPOTS IN SHANGHAI TODAY WAS THE GERMAN INTERNMENT CAMP WHERE NAZIS SLATED FOR DEPORTATION ABOARD AN AMERICAN TRANSPORT, THE MARINE ROBBIN, WERE BEING PROCESSED FOR DEPARTURE ON SUNDAY.

CHINESE CAMP AUTHORITIES SAID ALTOGETHER 753 GERMANS -- 330 MEN, 250 WOMEN AND 173 CHILDREN -- WERE SCHEDULED TO LEAVE.

THEY ATTRIBUTED THIS SUBSTANTIAL DECREASE FROM THE PREVIOUS ESTIMATE OF 1,500 TO "VARIOUS EXEMPTIONS FOR DIFFERENT REASONS, SUCH AS SICKNESS."

VARIOUS GERMANS IN THE CAMP PROFESSED IGNORANCE WHEN ASKED ABOUT THE AUTHENTICITY OF PUBLISHED ALLEGATIONS THAT CHINESE OFFICIALS HAD ACCEPTED BRIBES TO REMOVE CERTAIN PERSONS FROM THE DEPORTATION LIST. IT WAS CLEAR THAT IF THEY HAD ANY KNOWLEDGE OF SUCH PRACTICES, THEY WEREN'T GOING TO DISCLOSE WHAT THEY KNEW.

VERY FEW OF THE GERMANS WANT TO RETURN TO THE FATHERLAND. BUT THEY FEEL THERE IS LITTLE FUTURE FOR THEM IN CHINA.

warsaw, poland,——(AP)-The question of independence for Lusatia may be raised before the united nations, Dr. Paul Cyz, Lusatian representative in Poland, declared in a recent interview.

Cyz said he was trying to interest all Slavonic nations in the fate of Lusatia and pointed out that she now has permanent representatives in Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

He asserted under the Atlantic Charter and the United Nations organization that Lusatia has the right to decide ~~himself~~ her own fate.

Since Lusatia is a small country of only 970,000 inhabitants, Cyz said it could be attached to a neighboring nation - Poland or Czechoslovakia, possibly in some kind of federative union.

Lusatian authority is centered in a commission of five, operating at Budziszyn. There is a national council of 25 members.

NIGHT LEAD KOREAN

BY JOHN M.HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON,JULY 5-(AP)-THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HAS DECIDED TO TRY TO MAKE DEMOCRACY WORK IN AS MUCH OF KOREA AS POSSIBLE, WITH OR WITHOUT THE COOPERATION OF RUSSIA, DIPLOMATIC OFFICIALS SAID TODAY.

THE SOVIET UNION WAS REPORTED BY THESE INFORMANTS TO HAVE IGNORED TWO APPEALS FOR COOPERATION IN POLITICAL PREPARATIONS DESIGNED TO RESTORE KOREAN INDEPENDENCE. SO THE AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT IN THE COUNTRY, TO WHICH THE ALLIED POWERS LONG AGO PROMISED INDEPENDENCE, IS GOING AHEAD ON ITS OWN.

RUSSIA OCCUPIES THE NORTHERN SECTION OF KOREA AND THE UNITED STATES THE SOUTHERN PART. THE SITUATION IS NOT UNLIKE THAT IN GERMANY IN THAT EACH OCCUPYING POWER IS EXCLUSIVELY RESPONSIBLE FOR WHAT HAPPENS IN ITS ZONE.

MONTHS AGO A JOINT SOVIET-AMERICAN COMMISSION WAS SET UP TO BEGIN WORKING ON THE POLITICAL RECONSTRUCTION OF KOREA WHICH AFTER 40 YEARS OF JAPANESE RULE MAY REQUIRE CONSIDERABLE ASSISTANCE BEFORE IT IS AGAIN READY TO GOVERN ITSELF.

THE UNITED STATES PROPOSED THAT THE COMMISSION HEAR KOREANS CRITICAL OF OCCUPATION POLICIES, INCLUDING RUSSIAN POLICIES, AS WELL AS THOSE WHO WERE NOT CRITICAL. THE RUSSIANS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE OBJECTED. OFFICIALS SAID IT WAS THE OLD SOVIET-AMERICAN FIGHT OVER FREE SPEECH WHICH HAS COME UP IN THE UNITED NATIONS IN OTHER FORMS. IT SPLIT THE COMMISSION AND FINALLY RESULTED IN DISCONTINUING ITS WORK.

STILL INSISTING ON THE FREE SPEECH RIGHT FOR KOREAN NATIONALS BEFORE THE COMMISSION, THE UNITED STATES HAS SENT TWO APPEALS TO RUSSIA SUGGESTING THAT THE COMMISSION RESUME WORK. INFORMANTS HERE SAID THESE HAVE BOTH BEEN IGNORED.

AS A RESULT MAJ.GEN.ARCHER LERCH, MILITARY GOVERNMENT CHIEF, HAS BEEN AUTHORIZED TO GO AHEAD WITH THE CREATION OF "PRACTICE" MACHINERY FOR POLITICAL ACTIVITIES IN KOREA. THE MAIN COG IN THIS MACHINERY IS AN ADVISORY LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL. THE MEMBERS OF THIS ARE TO BE ELECTED BY THE PEOPLE IN THE AMERICAN ZONE AND THE COUNCIL, ONCE CONSTITUTED, MAY ENACT LAWS WHICH CAN BECOME EFFECTIVE PROVIDED THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT ACCEPTS THEM.

MEANWHILE, THE UNITED STATES WAS REPRESENTED AS STANDING READY AT ANY TIME TO RESUME COOPERATION WITH THE RUSSIANS IN TRYING TO WORK OUT THE DESTINY OF KOREA AS A WHOLE. WASHINGTON IS COMMITTED TO THE PRINCIPLE OF A UNIFIED AS WELL AS INDEPENDENT KOREA AND THE PRESENT STATE OF AFFAIRS IS GREATLY DISLIKED AND THE IMPROVED BY TOP OFFICIALS HERE.

SOME ARE HOPEFUL THAT THE IMPROVED U.S.-SOVIET RELATIONS WHICH MAY RESULT FROM THE FOREIGN MINISTERS CONFERENCE AT PARIS MAY INCIDENTALLY EASE PROBLEMS OF THE TWO POWERS IN THE FAR EAST, INCLUDING KOREA.

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 5-(AP)-POLAR DEFENSE WILL BE THE NO.1 PROBLEM IN "THE WAR WE HOPE WILL NEVER COME," GENERAL H.H. ARNOLD, RETIRED WARTIME COMMANDER OF THE ARMY AIR FORCES, TOLD THE COMMONWEALTH CLUB TODAY.

"WAR-MAKING NATIONS ARE ALL NORTH OF 30 DEGREES NORTH LATITUDE," ARNOLD SAID. "STUDY YOUR GLOBE AND YOU WILL SEE THE MOST DIRECT ROUTES ARE NOT ACROSS THE ATLANTIC OR PACIFIC, BUT THROUGH THE ARCTIC.

"THE UNITED STATES IS THE MOST VULNERABLE OF THE NATIONS WITH NEW WEAPONS EMPLOYED ALONG THIS ROUTE. FOUR HUNDRED TO 600 ATOMIC BOMBS COULD ABOUT PARALYZE THE UNITED STATES," HE DECLARED.

JUL 6 1946

"ADD THE ADVANCES IN WEAPONS--BOMBS, ELECTRONICS, SONICS, MANLESS AIRCRAFT AND WINGED WARHEADS, AND THE ATOMIC BOMB EQUAL TO THE BOMB LOAD OF 400 B29S, AND IT MAKES WAR A SERIOUS AFFAIR--TOO SERIOUS FOR MANKIND TO FOOL WITH." ARNOLD STATED.

"WE OF THE UNITED STATES MUST BUILD UP OUR ORGANIZATION FOR THE FUTURE SO THAT THERE WILL BE NO MORE WAR.

"OUR ARMED FORCES MUST BUILD THEIR OWN SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL BRANCHES. DOLLARS DON'T MEAN ANYTHING NOW. BUT THE TIME WILL COME WHEN OUR ARMED FORCES WILL HAVE TO FIGHT FOR EVERY DOLLAR THEY GET," CONCLUDED THE RETIRED GENERAL.

NEW YORK, JULY 5-(AP)-THE UNITED STATES SUBMITTED A MEMORANDUM TODAY TO THE UNITED NATIONS ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION CALLING FOR INTERNATIONAL OWNERSHIP OF ALL URANIUM AND THORIUM PRODUCED ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

THE DOCUMENT, AMPLIFYING THE ATOMIC CONTROL PLAN PREVIOUSLY PRESENTED BY U.S. REPRESENTATIVE BERNARD M.BARUCH, LAID DOWN IN DETAIL THE CONTROL MEASURES WHICH THE UNITED STATES DEMANDED AS A PRICE FOR DESTRUCTION OF HER STOCKPILE OF ATOMIC BOMBS.

IT WAS SUBMITTED TO A SUB-COMMITTEE BY FERDINAND EBERSTADT, ONE OF BARUCH'S AIDES, AND WAS THE BASIS FOR A TWO-HOUR DISCUSSION AT A CLOSED MEETING OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE. EBERSTADT SAID HE WOULD PRESENT A SIMILAR DOCUMENT LATER DETAILING THE UNITED STATES VIEWS ON ENFORCEMENT MEASURES AND RELATIONS BETWEEN THE UNITED NATIONS AND THE CONTEMPLATED ATOMIC CONTROL AUTHORITY.

JUL 6 1946

TODAY'S MEMORANDUM RECOMMENDED:

1. "SUCH MEASURES OF CONTROL OVER THE MINING AND PROCESSING OF BOTH URANIUM AND THORIUM AS TO INSURE (INTERNATIONAL) OWNERSHIP OF ALL STOCKS OF BOTH THESE MATERIALS."

2. AUTHORITY TO SEARCH OUT NEW DEPOSITS OF THESE MATERIALS ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD.

3. INTERNATIONAL OWNERSHIP OF "ALL PRIMARY PRODUCTION FACILITIES" FOR ALL ATOMIC MATERIALS.

4. UNHINDERED ACCESS TO ALL INSTALLATIONS ENGAGED IN THE PRODUCTION OF ATOMIC ENERGY--INCLUDING THOSE LEASED TO INDIVIDUALS OR NATIONS--FOR PURPOSES OF INSPECTION.

5. A TREATY FORBIDDING ANY NATION OR INDIVIDUAL FROM ENGAGING IN RESEARCH IN THE FIELD OF ATOMIC EXPLOVIES.

A COMMUNIQUE AT THE END OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE MEETING MERELY SAID THAT THIS MEMORANDUM WAS SUBMITTED AND DISCUSSED AND THAT THE DELEGATES ALSO DISCUSSED THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE PROPOSED ATOMIC AUTHORITY AND THE SECURITY COUNCIL.

THE SUB-COMMITTEE WILL MEET AGAIN MONDAY AT 2:30 P.M. (EDT).

THE CONFEREES ALREADY HAD BEFORE THEM THE SUGGESTIONS OF THE UNITED STATES AND FRANCE THAT A CLOSE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE ATOMIC AUTHORITY AND THE SECURITY COUNCIL WOULD BE CONSISTENT WITH THE INTENTIONS OF THE U.N.

IN RECAPITULATING THEIR STATEMENTS OF POLICY EARLIER THIS WEEK, BOTH NATIONS RECOGNIZED THE COUNCIL AS THE ULTIMATE AUTHORITY WITH POWER TO ORDER PUNITIVE MEASURES AGAINST THREATS AND ACTS TO BREACH THE PEACE.

SUCH POWER WOULD BE IMPLEMENTED BY THE ENVISIONED INTERNATIONAL FORCE WHICH IS STILL ON THE BLUEPRINTS OF THE COUNCIL'S MILITARY STAFF COMMITTEE.

WHILE RUSSIA HAD NO IMMEDIATE COMMENT ON THIS SPECIFIC PHASE OF THE EARLY NEGOTIATIONS, THERE WAS A GROWING BELIEF THAT ANDREI A. GROMYKO, SOVIET MEMBER OF THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION, WOULD SUBMIT A RESTATEMENT OF RUSSIAN POLICY IN RELATION TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL'S POWERS ON ATOMIC MATTERS.

30.29-3991

THE FUNCTIONING OF THE COUNCIL IN ATOMIC MATTERS IS EXPECTED TO BE MORE ACCEPTABLE TO RUSSIA THAN IS THE PROPOSED SCOPE OF THE ATOMIC DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY. AS ENVISIONED BY THE UNITED STATES THE LATTER WOULD HAVE UNLIMITED POWERS OF ACCESS AND SEARCH. RUSSIA THUS FAR HAS OPPOSED INTERNATIONALIZATION OF SUCH POWERS AND PROPOSES INSTEAD INDIVIDUAL NATION RESPONSIBILITY FOR VIOLATIONS AND FOR PUNISHMENT OF OFFENDERS.

new york city out

new york, july 5 - (ap) - the new york times will say tomorrow in a dispatch from paris that the united states delegation to the paris peace conference, scheduled to convene july 29, will arrive at the meeting with "an open mind" on the problem of making provision in the treaty structure for eventual revision of the pacts, if deemed advisable.

c. l. sulzberger, the writer, said he received a letter from secretary of state james f. byrnes which emphasized the difficulty of providing in advance methods for peaceful changes in frontiers and in the other specifications laid down in the treaties which the peace conference will draft in final form and then submit to the four power foreign ministers' council for final approval.

diplomatists in paris, including members of the foreign ministers' council delegations, the times says, believe the treaty draft recommendations being made by the council are not perfect and might admit of some changes at future dates.

JUL 6 1946

partial
the text of byrnes' letter as quoted by sulzberger:
"the problem of providing the means for a peaceful change is a difficult one. we all know that the world does move and that, if the use of force is to be provided, ways must be found fm of facilitating changes by peaceful means. on the other hand, it would be difficult to secure the acceptance of almost any settlement of a controversial character if the means of upsetting it are too readily available

"article 12 was inserted into the charter of the united nations to provide a way of facilitating needed changes by peaceful means. there may be a question whether the way there provided is wholly adequate. it is difficult at this time to find other and more effective ways which would meet with general acceptance."

JUL 6 1946

"the american delegation, however, has not a closed mind on this subject and would examine on their merits any proposals which might be laid before the peace conference."

article 12 of the united nations charter provides that while the security council is examining any "dispute or situation," the general assembly shall not make any recommendation regarding such dispute or recommendation unless the security council so requests.

further, article 12 provides that the secretary-general, with the consent of the security council, shall notify the general assembly at each session of any matters relative to the maintenance of international peace and security which the security council is handling, or immediately the security council ceases to deal with such matters.

new york, july 5--(ap)--international ownership of all atomic raw materials was put forward by the united states today as one of the essentials of an effective atomic control plan.

a lengthy memorandum submitted to the atomic energy commission by ferdinand eberhardt, a member of the u. s. delegation, recommended that the proposed atomic control authority have power to control the mining and processing of uranium and thorium as well as the actual production of atomic energy.

"the authority, in short, must have such control of mining and concentrating operations as will assure its complete and absolute ownership of all uranium and thorium actually produced," the document said.

the memorandum [redacted] set forth in detail the united states views on atomic control previously outlined by [redacted] bernard m. baruch at the opening meeting of the commission.

JUL 6 1946

in addition to control of atomic raw materials at their source, the united states [redacted] advocated an air tight system of controls over research and production, including [redacted] elaborate safeguards to permit inspection of all facilities.

the memorandum said it might even be advisable for the authority to manufacture [redacted] atomic power and sell it to individual nations, rather than to permit the nations to produce their own power, when the production [redacted] of such power becomes practica it also proposed that any international move to outlaw the production of atomic weapons be included in the control system and not be considered as a separate measure as russia has demanded.

gromyko, who previously had proposed that each nation be responsible for the supervision of atomic production without its boundaries, was reported to have asked numerous questions about the u. s. plan. there was no indication, however, that he had changed his position.

the sub-committee also opened its discussions of another major point: the relationship between the proposed authority and the security council. russia was understood to favor making the authority a subsidiary of the security council, while the united states, australia and some others want to make it independent, at least on matters except those which involve threats to peace.

the u. s. memorandum said that the authority's decisions should be final in some matters, but subject to review in others. it said another document would be submitted later dealing more fully with this subject and with the question of sanctions for violations of regulations.

IT ALSO PROPOSED THAT ANY INTERNATIONAL MOVE TO OUTLAW THE PRODUCTION OF ATOMIC WEAPONS BE INCLUDED IN THE CONTROL SYSTEM AND NOT BE CONSIDERED AS A SEPARATE MEASURE AS RUSSIA HAS DEMANDED.

THE NEW AMERICAN DOCUMENT WAS DISCUSSED FOR ALMOST TWO HOURS BY A SIX-NATION SUB-COMMITTEE OF THE ATOMIC COMMISSION IN A CLOSED SESSION. IT WAS UNDERSTOOD THAT SOVIET DELEGATE ANDREI A.GROMYKO WAS PARTICULARLY INTERESTED IN THE PROPOSALS FOR AN INSPECTION SYSTEM.

THE SUB-COMMITTEE ALSO OPENED ITS DISCUSSIONS OF ANOTHER MAJOR POINT: THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE PROPOSED AUTHORITY AND THE SECURITY COUNCIL. RUSSIA WAS UNDERSTOOD TO FAVOR MAKING THE AUTHORITY A SUBSIDIARY OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL, WHILE THE UNITED STATES, AUSTRALIA AND SOME OTHERS WANT TO MAKE IT INDEPENDENT, AT LEAST ON MATTERS EXCEPT THOSE WHICH INVOLVE THREATS TO PEACE.

THE U.S. MEMORANDUM SAID THAT THE AUTHORITY'S DECISIONS SHOULD BE FINAL IN SOME MATTERS, BUT SUBJECT TO REVIEW IN OTHERS. IT SAID ANOTHER DOCUMENT WOULD BE SUBMITTED LATER DEALING MORE FULLY WITH THIS SUBJECT AND WITH THE QUESTION OF SANCTIONS FOR VIOLATIONS OF REGULATIONS.

THE SUB-COMMITTEE WILL CONTINUE ITS DISCUSSIONS MONDAY AND WILL MAKE A REPORT TO THE ATOMIC COMMISSION AT A MEETING LATER IN THE WEEK.

Bevin Charges Russia Trying To Back Out Of Calling Peace Meeting

Demands That Soviet Fulfill Its Part of Reparations Bargain

Molotov Insists On Dictating Rules

JUL 7 1946

Ministers Adjourn to Monday After Failing To Reach Agreement

Paris, July 6.—(AP.)—British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin in a bitter debate tonight charged that Russia was trying to back out of her agreement to call a European peace conference July 29, American informants reported, and the Big Four remained deadlocked for a second day.

The ministers adjourned their deadlocked session until Monday afternoon without having reached an agreement on how to convoke the conference and without authorizing the issuing of invitations.

Bevin and United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes both told Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov that they could not agree to his proposal that rules of procedure be imposed upon the peace parley by the four-power foreign ministers, they said.

Bevin Charge.

In a 4½ hour session, Bevin asserted that Molotov appeared to be stipulating new conditions to summoning the 21-nation conference after Britain, France and the United States had accepted all the other Soviet conditions.

The British minister declared he already had assured his own government and the dominions that he would not agree to anything which might limit their freedom at the peace conference.

Looking squarely at Molotov, Bevin demanded that the Soviet minister fulfill his part of the ministers' bargain on Italian reparations, British informants said. They quoted Bevin as saying:

"Two days ago you agreed on the date of the peace conference. Now you are devising a plan to veto it unless we first agree with you on the rules of procedure. In effect, you are going back on your agreement that the conference should meet on July 29."

Agreed On Reparations.

"On our part, we agreed on the same day on reparations from Italy. We kept our part of the bargain," he said, referring to British-American consent that Russia receive some of her $100,000,000 in reparations from Italy's current industrial production.

"Now you are going back on your bargains.

"The world should better know this. At that time not one word was said about rules of procedure."

Both Byrnes and Bevin maintained that the foreign ministers might draft "suggestions" on rules of procedure for the peace conference, but that the ministers had no right to lay down hard and fast rules.

American informants quoted Byrnes as telling Molotov that no "self-respecting" representatives to the conference would accept such dictatorship.

Byrnes insisted that he would not even discuss any projected rules of procedure unless it was understood definitely they were only suggestions which were not binding on the United States or any other delegation.

Rubber Stamp Argument.

Molotov, American sources said, argued that to permit the conference to adopt its own rules would result in a "rubber stamp" conclave.

Byrnes and Bevin argued that letting the conference adopt its own rules would result in anything but a rubber stamp conference, to which Molotov replied that the conference, if left alone, would turn itself into one.

American quarters speculated that Molotov had received ironclad instructions from Moscow on the rules of procedure.

JUL 7 1946

Big Four Seek Way Out Of New Split

Paris, July 6 (AP)—British-American opposition to a Russian demand that the Big Four prescribe rules of procedure for a general European peace conference this summer blocked efforts of the Foreign Ministers Council today to convoke the 21-nation conclave on July 29, the date already fixed.

Both Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin contended throughout a stormy four-hour session last night that adoption of the Soviet proposal would reduce the peace parley to "rubber stamp" status, but Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov adamantly maintained his position.

Efforts Resumed

With the shadow of the big-power veto clouding their efforts, the Ministers convened again today for renewed discussion of the problem in another effort to prepare and transmit the necessary invitations for the peace conference to the seventeen other nations.

Conversations with members of the American delegation convinced observers that the basic motivation for United States policy was a desire to throw international problems into an arena where the big-power veto could not be exercised.

These sources said that without the veto the Western powers have the votes to beat Russia on a conflict and that Molotov realizes this, which is the reason for his insistence that the Council—where he has veto power—dictate the rules for the peace conference—where he does not.

French Proposal Rejected

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault sought to break last night's deadlock by suggesting that France merely "inform" the other nations that a peace conference was scheduled to begin July 29, but Molotov said this would only serve to confuse.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said Molotov also objected to making China one of the inviting powers along with Great Britain, France, Russia and the United States on the ground that China had not participated in the Paris Council session. Byrnes and Bevin argued that China, as a member of the Foreign Ministers Council of the Big Five, should be one of the inviting powers.

One American source said Molotov apparently was seeking to block further consideration of invitations for the peace conference, which for some unexplained reason he appeared to be trying to prevent.

Tass Sees Problem Solved

MOSCOW, July 6 (AP).—A Tass dispatch from Paris today said the major problems at the Foreign Ministers' conference were solved when agreements were reached July 4 on questions centering around the peace-treaty drafts.

"The friends of peace will view with satisfaction the results already achieved at the Paris Ministers' conference," the Soviet official news agency's correspondent wrote. "The question yet to be solved, concerning particularly the Balkan treaties, should not offer special hardships, according to the general opinion."

Reviewing the results obtained so far, the writer said Foreign Minister Molotov and the Soviet delegation took a firm stand from the start against moves that would have placed what he termed conflicting and half-digested proposals before the peace conference.

"To submit various drafts and decisions on the most important problems to the peace conference would have meant the likelihood of a split at the conference, would have provoked new hardships and created new sources of international complications," said the dispatch.

"The soundness of the Soviet viewpoint has now been confirmed entirely in practice."

The Tass writer said the United States and Britain "insisted stubbornly on convening the peace conference before completing their main job of preparing peace treaties," but showed what he described as even greater intractibility on Italian reparations and the Italian peace treaty until agreements were finally reached.

Yuri Zhukov, commentator for the government newspaper, "Izvestia," also writing from Paris today, said the British were trying to build up a Mediterranean monopoly in communications by retaining control of Italian cables which they seized during the war.

"It can be considered established that there is absolutely no legal base or justification for the strange, unfounded pretension of the British, who with all their strength are trying to secure a monopolistic position for the British telegraph and telephone concern, Cables and Wireless, Ltd.," Zhukov said.

Zhukov declared that the American delegation to the Paris conference felt that Italy was entitled to the return of its cables.

BULK OF SURPLUSES IN EUROPE ALREADY SOLD OR AGREED ON

JUL 7 1946

$1,860,000,000 Worth Is Disposed Of Out of $3,111,507,000 Pile.

Paris, July 6 (A. P.).—Nearly $2,000,000,000 worth of American surplus war stocks in Europe have been sold or committed, the office of the Foreign Liquidation Commissioner announced today, leaving less than half of the original stockpile the United States massed on the Continent.

Of the $3,111,507,000 worth of supplies thus far declared surplus, sales contracts and bulk transfers to both France and Great Britain have accounted for the disposal of $1,860,000,000 worth, the announcement said, adding: "All surplus in the United Kingdom and France, except some aircraft vessels, now has been sold or committed, and actual physical transfer of stocks in the United Kingdom to British custody is 98 per cent complete."

Buyer interest has now shifted to surplus stockpiles in Belgium, Germany and Italy, "where equipment, machinery and supplies of all types totaling more than $1,500,000,000 at original cost are expected to be declared surplus to meet the demands of European governments and other buyers," the announcement continued. An office is being established in the American zone of Germany to care for stocks in twenty-nine depots there.

To speed up sales long-term credits have been set up giving Czecho-Slovakia and Poland $50,000,000 each, Finland $15,000,000 and Austria, Hungary and Greece $10,000,000 each. The Netherlands has been granted authority to pay for supplies in local currency up to $10,000,000 and Norway, $5,000,000. Italy is buying against an "open credit" which, it is believed, will reach $140,000,000. Belgium and Luxembourg are receiving Army excess property against their combined $45,000,000 reciprocal aid credit balance.

Special facilities have been set up to care for the needs of the UNRRA, veterans, service men and charitable organizations. About $100,000,000 in surplus of all types was authorized to aid the UNRRA in the rehabiliation of Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia and Greece.

Sir Oswald Replies To Wells

London, July 6 (AP)—Sir Oswald Mosley, former leader of the British Fascist Union, declared tonight that H. G. Wells's questioning whether the British Royal Family was "involved" in any payment of Italian funds to Mosley's group was "the most fantastic sort of nonsense."

He said "the Royal Family had no connection with the Fascist movement or, so far as I know, with politics of any kind.

'Got His Hatreds Muddled'

"Wells has always disliked the Royal Family, he has always disliked me. Now he has got his hatreds muddled.

"I have not seen any member of the Royal Family since 1930, when as a Minister in the second Labor Government I made the required official visits to the King," Mosley said.

Mosley, who long since has quit the Labor party, was Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, a minor ministerial post, in 1929-30 under Ramsay MacDonald. He was jailed by the British during World War II because of his Fascist activities.

Last month in the House of Commons, Chuter Ede, Home Secretary, read a letter to Mussolini from Count Dino Grandi, former Italian Ambassador to Britain, which said Mosley had received funds from Mussolini. Wells asked whether the British Royal Family was "involved" in such payments. Mosley has denied receiving funds from Italy.

Topic Of Lively Conversation

Wells's unprecedented blast at the Royal Family—he described the family as "tainted" and suggested it go into exile—continued to provide a lively conversational topic as news of it spread through the kingdom, largely by word of mouth.

The press and radio have not picked up the article by the aged author which appeared in the little-known magazine Socialist Leader.

Asked whether the Royal Family had aided Mosley, Sir Ulick Alexander, Keeper of the Privy Purse, exclaimed, "My God, no!"

Mosley's New Book

Mosley said in a book published by himself today that if the Fascist union ever came to power it would be "entirely loyal" to the King and would restore his "full historic prerogative" of choosing ministers.

Since the early Nineteenth Century, Britain's unwritten constitution has required that the King's Minister be chosen by the leader of the dominant political party, who is always invited to become Prime Minister.

Ede's 'Rigamarole Of Nonsense'

Mosley's new book, "My Answer," described as a "rigamarole of nonsense" Ede's statement to Parliament that British Fascists were subsidized by the Italian Government.

"I have before me a chartered accountant's certificate concerning the origin of our funds for a considerable period before the war, which shows each subscriber to be British," Mosley wrote.

He added that his personal contribution has been some £24,000 ($96,000).

Official Britain Ignores Wells

JUL 7 1946

Author Asked if Royal Family Was Involved in Mussolini Payments to Mosley.

London, July 6 (A. P.).—Britain's newspapers and radio broadcasts ignored today an attack by H. G. Wells, author-historian, on the royal family. Wells asked whether the monarchy was involved in payments which a governmental minister has declared were made by Benito Mussolini to Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, before the war.

Wells's article was published in the Socialist Leader, a comparatively obscure weekly paper of the extreme left-wing Independent Labor party. Buckingham Palace declined to comment.

Editor Gives Views.

However, Sir Ulick Alexander, Keeper of the Privy Purse, when asked whether the royal family had aided Mosley, exclaimed, "My God, no!" Wells's secretary said that he had no further comment.

Douglas Rogers, editor of the Socialist Leader, said that Wells was an occasional contributor to the periodical, with articles appearing twice or thrice yearly. Rogers said that he discussed Wells's criticism of the royal family before the author composed the article, and that he was confident that "Wells would not have asked the question he did (concerning Mosley) without some good basis."

Rogers added that he regarded the 79-year-old Wells as a writer of international reputation, and believed that he had given the matter serious thought before writing the article. He emphasized that Wells's republican views were well known, and said that he was not surprised at the tone of the criticism.

No Proof Is Offered.

However, he suggested that the wording did not constitute a charge, but, rather, "asked a question" as to any connection of the royal family with aid to Mosley. The Wells article, printed at the back of the small-size eight page periodical, began:

"The genuine democratic communities throughout the world need to know what is going on in this hushed-up business of the huge Mosley funds, and how far our own royal family is involved in this affair. If it is, then there is every reason why the House of Hanover should follow the House of Savoy (former Italian ruling family) into the shadows of exile and leave England to return to its old and persistent republican tradition."

The article offered no proof as a basis for the questions raised on the activities of the royal family.

Royal Family Criticized.

The newspaper, London Journalist, described the article as "the most serious thing since the abdication of Edward VIII." The article, which was published yesterday, did not reach the bulk of the magazine's subscribers until today. The Socialist Leader has a circulation of 20,000.

Wells said of the British royal family:

"Even this German-ruled monarchy which links the English with the crumbling monarchist system of the world is menaced by a gathering accumulation of revelations. Things are coming out and they are bound to come out.

"Why cannot these tainted people do the sane and patriotic thing while they may still be treated with consideration?

"Now they can be bought out and set apart with the sort of dignity and honors they value. Later on, their dismissal may have to be ruder."

The Labor Government, whose leaders have affirmed their loyalty to the monarchy, is considered likely to take a serious view of the attack by Wells, who never made a secret of his view that Britain should be a republic.

In referring to the "House of Hanover" Wells used the name which the royal family discarded during world war I in favor of "House of Windsor." The thrones of Britain and Hanover, later a Prussian conquest, were united until 1837.

Compass Failure Caused Crash

BRISTOL, England, July 6 (AP).—A spokesman for the Bristol Aeroplane Company, Ltd., said today that compass failure caused the big British plane Gambaie to fall into the sea off the Brazilian coast, when it ran out of gas last night. The crew of five was rescued by the American freighter Tulane Victory, he said. The two-engined Bristol Wayfarer model—first British civilian transport to be produced since the war—was en route from Bristol to Rio de Janeiro.

Reynaud Seated By Assembly.

Paris, July 6.—(AP.)—The Constituent Assembly voted 298 to 132 yesterday to seat Paul Reynaud, over-riding the recommendation of a Communist-dominated election committee which had urged that the prewar premier's seat be invalidated in view of his wartime record.

Reynaud defended himself before the Chamber, accusing the Communists of "wishing to make us turn away from our natural inclination toward the Anglo-Saxon democracies toward totalitarianism."

Russians Seize Four Americans In Berlin Zone

JUL 7 1946

Officers and Woman Held for Entering Soviet Area Without Authorization

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 6—Four Americans—three officers and the wife of one of them—are being held under arrest by the Russians for entering the Russian occupation zone without authorization, Major General Frank A. Keating, American commandant in Berlin, said tonight.

Keating said he had requested their release personally from Major General Alexander Georgevich Kotikov, Russian commandant in Berlin. He added that the office of Lieutenant General Lucius D. Clay, deputy American military governor, had also made representations to the Russian military government for Germany.

20.24-3997

Keating said he would not disclose the names of those being held, "because I expect that they will be released and I don't want to cause their relatives in the United States any uneasiness."

Two of those held were a warrant officer, in uniform, and his wife. They and their two German maids went into the Soviet zone a week ago to buy a dog.

The other officers, a captain and a lieutenant also in uniform, "disappeared" July 4. They had started for Oranienburg, which is twenty miles northwest of Berlin.

Frankfurt, July 6 (A. P.).—Tamara von Bock, 25-year-old daughter of the late Field Marshal Fedor von Bock, has been arrested in the American zone after escaping from a Russian internment camp, the American-sponsored Dana news agency said today. She was seized on Wednesday in Starnberg and will be tried by a military court on a charge of forging a passport, Dana said.

3 More Lichfield Trials To Begin

Bad Nauheim, Germany, July 6 (AP)—Army officials announced today that three more officers would go on trial next week on charges of aiding and authorizing cruel and unusual punishment of American soldiers imprisoned during the war at the Army's Lichfield (England) guardhouse.

Capt. Joseph A. Robertson, of Toledo, Ohio, former commanding officer of the 316th Reinforcement Company, which administered the guardhouse, will go before a court-martial Tuesday, officials said.

2 Majors To Face Court

The trial of Major Richard E. Lobuono, of East Pittsburgh, former Lichfield provost marshal, will begin Wednesday, and Major Herbert W. Bluhm, of Chicago, former inspection officer, will go to trial Thursday, they added.

The trial of Lieut. Leonard Ennis, of Peekskill, N.Y., was completed last night and the court recessed until Tuesday, when closing arguments will send the case to a verdict.

Promoted For Shooting

Meanwhile, Lieut. Granville Cubage, of Oklahoma City, testifying for the prosecution in still another trial, said that Col. James S. Kilian, former commandant of the detention camp, had personally ordered the beating of a soldier prisoner there and had promoted two guards for shooting at prisoners.

ARMY BARS PETTING IN MUNICH STREETS

JUL 7 1946

Frankfurt, July 6 (A. P.)—United States Third Army has forbidden Americans to walk arm-in arm with women—even their own wives—on the streets of Munich, it was disclosed today.

The soldier newspaper Stars and Stripes said that all public displays of affection—even between Americans—had been barred by the order, aimed primarily at public petting of G. I.'s and frauleins.

But, said the paper, "Munich military police have no intention of living up to the letter of the directive." The police were quoted as saying arm-in-arm walking would be O. K. if dependents wore United States civilian arm bands.

At the same time, Stars and Stripes said that two former G. I.'s had married German girls in two additional weddings. The paper identified the bridegrooms as Herman R. Kaplan, 24, of New York city, and James J. Powell, 30, of Lake Worth, Fla., both staff workers for UNRRA at Arolsen.

Both were married before UNRRA directed that its international character did not excuse United States zone workers from obeying the ban on American-German weddings. Both men said they would seek official permission to take their wives to the United States.

14 More Yanks Flee Wuerzburg Stockade

Frankfurt, Germany, July 6 (AP): Military police searched the American zone of Germany tonight for fourteen escaped American soldier-prisoners following the fifth jail break within a few weeks from the United States Army's stockade at Wuerzburg.

Three soldiers, the provost marshal's office reported, broke out of the camp July 3 by slashing a gap in a barbed wire fence. In four previous breaks, 22 soldiers escaped. Seventeen of these have been recaptured and eleven still are at large.

Long Occupation Vital, General McNarney Says

Frankfurt, Germany, July 6 (AP)—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, American military governor, told twelve touring newspaper executives today that long occupation of Germany was necessary to avoid a regrowth of nazism.

McNarney informed the American newspeper men at the conclusion of their inspection of Germany that if all controls were lifted, the German people probably would revert to a Nazi form of government.

McNarney and his deputy military governor, Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, also were outspoken against what they called French delaying tactics that have held up plans to treat Germany as an economic unit.

URANIUM FOUND IN ESSEN

British Ship Krupp Store of Ore, ¾ Ton, to England

ESSEN, Germany, July 7 (AP)—British Military Government authorities disclosed today that three quarters of a ton of uranium ore—an ingredient of the atomic bomb—had been discovered in the devastated Krupp munitions works here.

The British officials expressed the opinion that Krupp used uranium oxide experimentally to produce a special hard steel for warheads on projectiles.

The ore, found in a shed that was blasted by heavy bombs, has been shipped to England. Its retention in Germany is forbidden under the Potsdam agreement.

MOSCOW GETS PLAN FOR TRADE WITH U.S.

JUL 7 1946

MOSCOW, July 6 (AP) — Two United States Commerce Department officials arrived here today to present to the Russian Government Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace's proposals for a stabilized import-export trade between the two countries, which may total $500,000,000 annually by 1950.

E. C. Ropes, chief of the Soviet Union division of the Department of Commerce, and Lewis Lorwin, departmental economist, who will remain here for sixty days, said a healthy trade could be carried on between the two nations regardless of the fate of the American-Soviet loan proposal.

The two Americans will meet Monday with the Russian Ministry of Trade.

Mr. Ropes said that the Commerce Department believed that, because of the post-war needs of the two countries, contracts could be drawn providing for American exports to Russia totaling up to $400,000,000, while Russian exports to the United States should amount to $100,000,000 annually.

"We can offer them machinery and industrial 'know-how,'" Mr. Ropes said. They can offer us all kinds of raw materials.

"Right now," he added, "the United States is getting furs and such things as horse manes and tails and Arctic hare hair. We could use more of such things as timber, pulpwood, chromite and manganese."

The two officials said their brief cases were bulging with inquiries and proposals by American firms wishing to do business with the Soviet Union.

They said that the Commerce Department was hopeful of setting up a large number of permanently located American buyers in Moscow, where only two American fur buyers are permanently located now.

Moscow, July 6 (AP)—The government has set aside a 30-day period beginning July 10 for the selection of 425,000 Soviet boys for a two-year training course in the industrial railroad schools of the labor reserves.

The annual call for youths is designed to furnish skilled labor to carry out the aims of the new five-year plan.

RUSSIA SEIZES LARGE FIRMS FROM AUSTRIA

JUL 7 1946

Industries Classified As Reparations Valued At $22,000,000

Vienna, July 6 (AP)—The Russians announced today they had taken ownership of a major part of Austria's industrial capacity and other property as German reparations, and the Austrian Cabinet summoned a special meeting of Parliament.

The Russians acted without informing their allies. Austrian officials declared Russia was claiming 75 per cent of the republic's industrial capacity.

The Soviet order took over $22,000,000 worth of industry in eastern Austria along with other "German external assets." The Russians insist property taken by the Germans after annexing Austria in 1938 is subject to seizure as German reparations under the Potsdam agreement—a view protested by the United States and by Austria.

Clark Sends Message

Gen. Mark Clark, American commander in Austria, immediately sent a message to Col. Gen. L. V. Kurrasov, Soviet commander, urging great care in the carrying out of his order, and one to the Austrian Government declaring it was not necessary to turn over property which was not a German asset.

Chancellor Leopold Figl's Cabinet after a special meeting called an extraordinary session of Parliament for next Wednesday. A communiqué declared Socialist and Communist members of the Government joined with other members in the view that properties which were Austrian before the annexation should still be regarded as Austrian and not as German assets.

For months the Russians have been taking control of properties in eastern Austria which they classify as German assets. The United States has objected that properties taken forcibly by the Germans should not be classified as German owned.

Discussion Refused

The Russians have refused to discuss the question in the Allied Council for Austria but last May 15 agreed they would not seize any more properties without informing the Council.

The Government communiqué said the Cabinet did not have the right to comply with the Soviet order without authorization by the Allied Council. It said the Russian-claimed properties had decisive significance for Austrian reconstruction and economy and that the Potsdam agreement under which the Russians acted never had been disclosed officially to the Austrian Government.

Need For Law Noted

"It is likewise known that the extent of the concept of 'German property' even by these Potsdam decisions is not completely clear. The Austrian Parliament as well as the Federal Government has always asserted that it is of vital importance to interpret this concept so that it does not include property which belonged to Austria before 1938," the communiqué said.

"The Austrian Government must reject every act which seeks to solve this question in any way other than from a legal standpoint. It expressed a deep conviction that only a decision in law can guarantee a peaceful development among the nations."

The Russian order, published by the Red Army newspaper today, was signed by Kurrasov as "commander in chief of Soviet occupation troops in Austria." It was dated June 27 and provided that the transfer of ownership was to be completed in ten days—by today.

Among the properties seized are a large proportion of the chemical industry, including Austria's entire sulfuric acid and plastics production, most of the electrical industry, all of the artificial silk, paper and glass factories. This includes all window-glass production and all railroad signal equipment.

Locomotive Works Seized

The Russians took over the Vienna locomotive works, which was 100 per cent non-German before the annexation of Austria in 1938. Austrians held 50 per cent of it, Americans 20 per cent and Britons, Belgians and other nationals the other 30 per cent. The Germans took 86 per cent of the shares in the country.

The order marked the first time that Kurrasov had been identified publicly as Soviet commander in Austria, apparently confirming that Marshal Ivan Konev had left that post.

Soviet Command Announces Unilateral Move to Take Over 'External Assets.'

JUL 7 1946

GEN. CLARK GOES INTO ACTION

Industrial Properties Valued at 22 Millions Are Seized as Reparations Payment.

Vienna, July 6 (A. P.).—The Soviet command in Austria, in a sudden unilateral move today, announced that $22,000,000 worth of industrial property in eastern Austria had passed into Soviet ownership along with all other "German external assets" in the Soviet zone.

Chancellor Leopold Figl called his Cabinet into a special meeting and Gen. Mark Clark, commander of American forces in Austria, immediately moved into action with messages to both the Austrian Government and the Soviet authorities.

The Russians for several months have been taking over control of properties in eastern Austria, which they classified as German assets subject to seizure for reparations under the Potsdam agreement.

The order published today and signed by Col.-Gen. Kurrasov as "Commander in Chief of Soviet occupation troops in Austria," apparently was intended to legalize all these previous seizures and pave the way for complete confiscation of properties which they claim under their interpretation of Potsdam.

The U. S. Contention.

The United States has disputed this interpretation in the Allied Council, asserting that property taken forcibly by the Germans after the 1938 annexation of Austria could not be classified as German. The Russians have refused to discuss the question in the council.

The industrial properties which the Russians claim include sixty-four plants with annual production valued at $33,000,000 and represent about 75 per cent of Austria's industrial capacity. Their loss, officials said, would be a blow to the struggling Austrian Government which only a week ago was given a new control agreement granting extensive new powers.

Kurrasov's order, although published first today, was dated June 27, the day before the Allied Council signed the new control agreement. It provided that the transfer of ownership was to be completed in ten days. The ten days after the date of the order expired today.

Kurrasov's order said that German property in eastern Austria, which belonged to the German Reich, German firms, corporations, organizations and in fact to all physical or juridical persons, has been transferred to ownership of the Soviet Republic as German reparations.

'Legal Form' Preserved.

The Russian commander ordered that the property transfers be registered legally and that any shares, stocks or deeds, which were not surrendered to the Russians were to be regarded as annulled.

It was the first time that Kurrasov had been introduced publicly as "Commander in Chief of Austria," apparently confirming that Marshal Ivan Konev had been withdrawn from this post.

The Red Army newspaper here published the order prominently. The industrial properties seized include a large proportion of the chemical industry (the entire sulfuric acid and plastic production of the country), most of the electrical industry, all of the artificial silk, paper and glass factories, including all of the window glass production and all the railroad signal equipment production.

MORE JEWS FLEE POLAND

JUL 7 1946

Kielce Pogrom Increases Fear Of Further Violence

Warsaw, July 6 (AP)—The flight of Jews from Poland was reported today to have increased in the wake of the bloody pogrom at Kielce, and many were said to be trying to cross the frontier into Czechoslovakia or stow away on ships in Baltic ports bound for Scandinavian countries.

In Warsaw frightened Jews crowded the corridors of the Hotel Polonia seeking military permits from the American military attaché for transit through Germany en route to France. Others sought visas from Czech authorities which would permit them to leave Poland bound for France, America or Palestine via Czechoslovakia.

Despite the Government's efforts to afford protection to the Jews, their fears of additional anti-Jewish violence seemed to have been crystallized by the Kiecle pogrom.

The newspaper Rezecpolita charged that agents of Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, who commanded the Polish troops fighting in Italy, took advantage of weariness of the police after Sunday's referendum to start the Kielce pogrom.

Justice Will Be Merciless

"The aim of the whole affair was to cover Poland with shame in the eyes of the conquerors of Hitlerism," said the newspaper. "Justice will be merciless to its reaction."

Reports of apparently systematic attacks on Jews attributed by the Government to fascist elements and NSZ bands are received every day in the Polish capital.

They tell of bandits who board trains and trolley cars in suburban districts, strip and rob Jews and drag them away to be murdered. The situation has become so serious in some sectors that Jews fear to journey into cities.

The Government is encouraging legal exodus of Jews, who say that no matter what the authorities do they are in constant fear of death. Poland's prewar Jewish population of 3,500,000 has dwindled to 70,000 after six years of Nazi killings, deportations and forced labor.

6,000,000 Votes Counted

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said last night that with 6,000,000 votes counted—approximately two thirds of the total ballots—steadily increasing affirmative majorities were being piled up on all three questions in the referendum.

He reported majorities of more than 600,000 in the Wroclaw district, in territory gained from Germany. In the Kielce district, however, more than 250,000 voted against a unicameral legislature—the one question contested by the Polish Peasant party, main opposition to the Government.

The voters were asked also whether they approved western boundaries of Poland and nationalization policies of the present regime.

The newspaper Express Wieczorny said that the Polish general elections would be held "in November." The Government has promised they would be held in the fall but has set no definite date.

Romans Throw Stones, Timbers At Allies' Autos

JUL 7 1946

Rome, July 6 (AP)—A screaming mob of several hundred Italian youths, inspired to hostile demonstrations against the Allies by a mass meeting protesting decisions of the four-power Foreign Ministers in Paris, tonight attacked several automobiles bearing Allied military personnel and civilians.

Although the mob hurled large timbers and stones at passing jeeps and other cars, only a few minor casualties were reported.

The youths — constituting the overflow from a mass demonstration in People's Square against decisions by the Foreign Ministers which they considered against Italy's interests — swarmed into Venezia Square and assembled in front of Allied command headquarters for the Rome area.

Italian police and Carabinieri, swinging clubs and rifles, broke up the demonstration a hour after it started.

Signs Torn Down

The mob, unarmed as it tumbled into Venezia Square, quickly tore down all Allied highways signs in the area and razed a fence surrounding a military car parking lot.

The timbers and stones culled from the gutters were thrown at passing automobiles whose occupants were easily identified as Allied foreigners.

Allied military personnel and foreign newspapermen, as well as Italian policemen, were hooted and jeered.

Allies Don't Intervene

The Allied military personnel in the area made no move to intervene in the fracas. The Allies now have only administrative, supply and maintenance units in Rome.

The demonstration was one of many recent signs of Italian dissatisfaction over the loss of territroy to France and Yugoslavia by accord of the Foreign Ministers.

The targets included an open car in which three British officers and two women were riding, an American jeep containing several officers and women, an American military police patrol car and a jeep marked "New York Herald Tribune," in which that newspaper's Rome correspondent, Barrett McGurn, was riding.

Trieste Riots Over Big 4 Decision; Pro-Italians Battle Allied M. P.'s

JUL 7 1946

Allied Troops Battle New Rioting In Trieste

Trieste, July 6 (AP)—Anti-Allied demonstrations flared in Trieste tonight in the wake of the four-power Foreign Ministers' decision to internationalize the city, and British troops used clubs and tear gas to break up crowds.

Rocks and stones were thrown as hundreds of Italian youths surged back and forth before Unita Plaza, where most of the Allied Military Government offices are located.

In one pitched battle between demonstrators and British soldiers promenading singly and in groups, hundreds of rocks were thrown by each side—without, so far as could be seen, any casualties. In another setto a British military policeman clubbed to the ground and took to a hospital an Italian who had led an assault on an American MP.

Rescuing Newspaper Men

Private Donald Balmer, Limitz, Pa., was the American who found himself hard pressed after coming to the rescue of American newspaper men attacked by the mob.

Aside from Balmer, the only Americans known to have intervened in the melees were ten MP's in a weapons carrier, led by Sergt. Earl Hubbert, of Philadelphia, who broke up one group. Hubbert personally picked up and tossed several demonstrators into the vehicle.

One of the two correspondents' jeeps stoned was that in which Walter Green, Associated Press photographer, was riding. He was not injured.

Strike Leaders Summoned

At the height of the trouble it was disclosed that AMG officials had issued a summons ordering the appearance before a military court of leaders of a general strike in protest against anti-Yugoslav disorders last week end. The strike was declared "illegal" Thursday because of its political motive.

Strike leaders, meeting secretly, decided to go on with the stoppage despite any orders that men return to work.

Tonight's violence caught hundreds of American sailors from the United States cruiser Fargo here on shore leave. Their leaves were immediately canceled.

Between 30 and 40 persons were being held by police today after a brief demonstration last night at the important shipyard city of Monfalcone, near Trieste.

Those arrested included nearly all of the leaders of the syndicate union, which had called a strike in Monfalcone. The demonstration was broken up by British troops and police. Persons held for questioning were taken in British trucks to a Trieste prison.

General Strike Still On

A general strike called last Monday to protest riots in Trieste was still in progress, but about 10 per cent of the industrial workers involved have returned to their jobs.

A spokesman for the committee in charge of the strike here said his organization was "going underground," in view of the fact that the walkout had been declared illegal by Allied military authorities.

'Going Underground.'

Trieste, July 6 (A. P.). — A spokesman for the committee directing the general strike in Trieste, declared illegal by Allied military authorities, said today that his organization was "going underground" and that the strike would continue.

At the same time he set forth the movement's objectives as being:

Replacement of the Venezia Giulia civil police by Allied military police.

Arrest and punishment of those responsible for the attack on the committee headquarters last Sunday.

Repression of the bands which, he said, have committed acts of vandalism recently.

Expulsion from the Trieste area of "Fascist refugees" from other parts of Italy.

Punishment of the civil policemen who supported vandalism last Sunday by refusing to intervene.

The strike leader said the movement was supported by "Italian and Slav anti-Fascists and directed against a return of Fascism to Trieste." It was not he said, in favor of Yugoslavia against Italy, nor against the Paris decision to make Trieste an international city nor against the Allied Military Government.

The city was quiet today with some trolleys moving in the central area and some shops open. The port, however, still was paralyzed and the strike generally effective in outlying sections.

30 Held At Trieste.

Trieste, Italy, July 6. —(AP.)—Between 30 and 40 persons were being held by poilce today after a brief demonstration last night at the important shipyard city of Monfalcone, near Trieste.

Those arrested included nearly all of the leaders of the Syndicate Union, which had called a strike in Monfalcone. The demonstration was broken up by British troops and police. Persons held for questioning were taken in British trucks to a Trieste prison.

Both Italian and Yugoslav flags are flying in Trieste streets. Some Italian flags with a red star in a white center field also were seen.

"It would be foolish to believe and expect the people of the Giulia region to give up their rights of union with Yugoslavia. Also, to everybody, it must be clear that Yugoslavia cannot be satisfied with such injustice. We cannot and will not desert our brothers in the Giulia region. Their fight for liberty was and will remain the concern of all the people of Yugoslavia."

[Similar dissatisfaction with the decision of the Foreign Ministers to internationalize Trieste has been expressed by the Rome press.]

Italy Reparation Figure Set by Greece Premier

Paris, July 6.—(AP.)—Premier Constantin Tsalderis of Greece says that Italy should be made to pay $2,800,000,000 in reparations for the devastation she caused in Greece during the war.

En route to London, Tsalderis said at a press conference yesterday that more than 200 Greek towns and villages were destroyed during the war, three-quarters of the Greek fleet was sunk and virtually all Greek ports, bridges and roads were razed.

Belgrade Communist Newspaper Declares Trieste Question Is Not Settled.

Belgrade, July 6 (A. P.).—Borba, official Communist party organ and leading daily newspaper of Belgrade, declared in a front-page editorial today: "The solution that the Foreign Ministers made (at Paris) is no permanent solution for the question of Trieste and the (Venezia) Giulia region.

"This is only a huge injustice with which the people of Yugoslavia and the Giulia region cannot be satisfied. This kind of solution can only undermine even more the bases for peace in this world.

ARABS DRAFT TRUMAN REPLY

JUL 7 1946

Executive Group To Define Policy On Immigration

Jerusalem, July 6 (AP)—The new Arab Higher Executive met in secret session today to consider what one member said was an answer to President Truman's "insistence" that 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine, as recommended in the British-American inquiry committee report.

Quiet continued to prevail in the Holy Land. The British announced that a ban on entry into Jewish premises by British troops had been lifted, but the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv remained out of bounds for all troops not on duty.

Policy Statement Expected

The Arab committee was slated to meet all day and most of tomorrow and no statement was expected until the session ends. One member said the meeting would probably result in a "clear answer and statement of policy of the Arabs in answer to President Truman's insistence on 100,000 new immigrants."

It was the first full session since an organizational meeting was held nearly a month ago shortly after the Palestine executive was formed by the Arab League at Bludan, Syria.

Meanwhile Palestine police said they had received "reliable information" that two Jews kidnapped by a band of other Jews in Haifa on July 3 had been executed after their conviction by a "Jewish people's higher court" on suspicion of being traitors.

Police Deny Connection

Their names were given as Otto Freund and Benjamin Papnek, described as being discharged recently from the Czechoslovak Army. The police statement said the pair "never had any connection whatever with either police or military authorities."

The military and police were also alerted to pick up two top Jewish leaders in Palestine who were reported to have "gone underground." They were Aba Hushi, labor leader in Haifa, and Moshe Sneh, of the Jewish Executive, whose portfolio includes supervision over volunteer Jewish police in settlements.

PALESTINE ARABS IN SECRET SESSION

JUL 7 1946

Jerusalem, July 6 (A. P.)—Palestine's new Arab higher executive went into secret session today, and a member said that the meeting probably would result in a "clear answer and statement of policy of the Arabs in answer to President Truman's insistence on 100,000 new (Jewish) immigrants." The meeting is the first full session since an organizational meeting was held nearly a month ago, soon after the Palestine executive was formed by the Arab League at Bludan, Syria.

Ahmed Helmi Pasha, national fund chairman and executive member, has just returned from Cairo, where he has been attempting to negotiate financial support for the Palestine Arab cause. Other members are Jamal Bey Husseini, Emil Khouri and Dr. Hussein F. Khalidi, the secretary.

An executive member said that this morning's meeting probably would continue all day and most of tomorrow, and added that no statement could be expected until tomorrow.

Meanwhile, British Army headquarters announced that its ban on the entry of Jewish premises by British troops had been lifted, in view of the release of all five kidnaped British officers, but that the Jewish city of Tel Aviv remained out of bounds for all troops not on duty.

Moslems And Wafdists In Fatal Clash In Egypt

Port Said, Egypt, July 6 (AP)—Hand grenades killed one person and injured about 40 today in a clash here between supporters of the Moslem Brotherhood Association and demonstrators of the Wafdist opposition party.

The trouble started when brotherhood supporters, following the association's head, Shiek Hassan el Banna, through the streets encountered the Wafdists.

When the Wafdists began shouting their party slogans and crying epithets at the brotherhood, two hand grenades were thrown into the crowd.

Sailors on Hunger Strike.

Jerusalem, July 6. — (AP.) — Palestine police disclosed today that 20 Romanian sailors who brought the Jewish refugee ship "Smyrni" to Haifa from Constanta last month have been on a hunger strike since July 4 in Acre prison.

The police said the sailors were awaiting deportation and "will be on the very first ship headed toward their country." They added that 12 took up their fast to protest their imprisonment and denied that it concerned conditions and food in the prison.

TENSION IS INCREASED WITH ARRESTS IN SIAM

BANGKOK, Siam, July 6 (AP)—Tension increased in troubled Siam today as police arrested a National Assemblyman and searched the homes of two other Assemblymen and four journalists.

The actions continued an effort to halt Opposition charges that the Government had suppressed information concerning the death on June 9 of King Ananda Mahidol, or was directly implicated in it.

Premier Pridi Phanomyong has prorogued the National Assembly, revived the wartime state of national emergency, imposed internal press censorship and appointed a former police general as Commander in Chief of the Siamese Army.

Authorities were holding Liang Chaiyakaran, outspoken opponent of the Premier in the Assembly. Among residences searched were those of Kukrit Pramoj, whose brother, former Premier Seni Pramoj, headed the wartime "Free Thai" movement in Washington.

Police offered $200 to $1,000 rewards for information leading to the conviction of persons spreading anti-Government rumors.

Censorship was evident in all of Bangkok's twenty-four newspapers. Issaradharma, popular vernacular paper, appeared with blanks where the main headline and the lead article normally appear. Kiartsakdi, Opposition paper, announced voluntary suspension until censorship was lifted.

A commission inquiring into King Ananda's death announced that private questioning of the Queen Mother and the new King had been postponed until Monday.

11 Members of Crew Burned by Mustard Gas

Port Elizabeth, South Africa, July 6.—(AP.)—Fishermen's nets today brought up six canisters of mustard gas, one of them leaking, and tonight eleven crew members of the trawler Algoabay were suffering from severe burns. Skipper H. Goosen said the gas containers were netted about 30 miles off Port Elizabeth.

NEHRU IS INDUCTED AS CHIEF OF PARTY

JUL 7 1946

Dr. Azad Offers Congress Group the Resolution Accepting Britain's India Plan

BOMBAY, India, July 6 (AP)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru formally assumed leadership of the Congress party today, and urged his followers to maintain intact "the weapon with which the nation has fought the Britishers all these years—the Congress party machinery."

Pandit Nehru was inducted into office by his predecessor, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, at the opening of an emergency two-day session of the party's Delegate Assembly. Despite Left-Wing opposition, the delegates were expected to approve a resolution drafted by the Working Committee calling for establishment of an Assembly to frame a new Constitution for India.

The expected Socialist opposition to acceptance of the long-term proposal, in view of the Working Committee's rejection of the British plan for an interim government, came from Jai Prakash Narain, who urged that forces be "marshaled for the final struggle."

Doubts Following of Ideal

"I cannot think that a Constituent Assembly which meets under British auspices can think of self-rule for the poverty-striken people of this country, which is the ideal of the Congress party," he said.

However, there was little possibility that the Leftists could muster sufficient strength to block acceptance of the plan, in view of the determination of Pandit Nehru, Dr. Azad and other party leaders.

Pandit Nehru, in his first address as Congress party president, appealed for solidarity within the party.

"The weapon with which the nation has fought the Britishers all these years—the Congress party machinery—must be maintained intact," he said.

"We now stand on the doorstep of freedom," Pandit Nehru continued. "Only one push and we shall reach our cherished goal. The British regime in India is beginning to end. This is the most delicate moment in India's history and we must be prepared to face new problems."

Manchu Aim Of Japs Told

JUL 7 1946

Tokyo, July 6 (AP)—Japan's military took over Manchuria as a theater in which to develop a powerful war-making machine for an expected war against the Soviet Union and then fought the United States instead, a top-ranking Japanese officer testified today.

Maj. Gen. Ryukichi Tanaka, who soldiered for fifteen years with Hideki Tojo, Japan's wartime Premier, told the tribunal trying the latter and 26 others that the Kwantung Army trained 2,500,000 crack troops in Manchuria and started autonomous movements in adjoining Inner Mongolia and North China.

He said this was in part a countermove against Russia to prevent Soviet influence from seeping in from Outer Mongolia; and partly to punish the Nanking Government in China for stubbornly resisting the Japanese advance.

Tojo's Name Enters

Tanaka injected Tojo's name into the warcrime trial proceedings for the first time. He testified that, when his former army boss was chief of staff of the Kwantung Army, Manchuria made epochal economic and political strides. He said law and order was established and bandits were reduced to about 10,000.

The witness then turned to another defendant, Gen. Jiro Minami, onetime commander of the Kwantung Army and War Minister. He said that Minami quarreled bitterly in 1935 with former Foreign Minister Baron Kijuro Shidehara and insisted the entire army supported a positive attitude toward Manchuria.

Siamese In Tokyo To Be Sent Home

Tokyo, July 6 (AP)—The Siamese Minister to Japan and 46 of his countrymen will be returned to Bangkok shortly, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The Minister, Sanga Nilkanhameng, and party, including a number of Siamese students, will go home aboard the Japanese hospital ship Arimasan Maru. Siam has made its property in Japan available for Allied use.

MacArthur Back In Tokyo

Tokyo, July 6 (AP)—General MacArthur returned today from the Philippines, where he atended inaugural ceremonies.

Symington Presents Medal To Whitehead

Tokyo, July 6 (AP)—W. Stuart Symington, Assistant Secretary of War for Air, who is on a world tour, presented the Air Medal with an Oakleaf Cluster to Lieut. Gen. Ennie C. Whitehead, commander of the Pacific Air Command today.

Postmaster General Hannegan and Senator Tydings attended the ceremony.

'Anti-GI' Attitude In China Hit By Congressman

JUL 7 1946

Shanghai, July 6 (AP)—Rrepresentative Eugene Worley (D., Texas) today deplored Chinese violence against American soldiers and sailors.

Worley, who came to China with a group of congressmen after witnessing the Bikini atomic-bomb test and attending the Independence Day celebartion in Manila, told Chinese and American newspaper men that before coming to China he had heard of numerous anti-GI "uprisings," and had "confirmed" this since his arrival.

"What the causes are I don't know," he said, "but such conditions should not exist."

Brewster Disagrees

Senator Brewster (R., Maine) said he did not assume that any isolated instances were typical of the general Chinese attitude.

Others in the group were Senators Butler (R., Neb.) and Ellender (D., La.) and Representatives Robinson (D., Utah), Miller (D., Cal.), Lecompte (R., Iowa) and Crawford (R., Mich.).

The congressmen said they had come to China to study conditions first hand. They will go to Nanking tomorrow to lunch with United States Envoy General Marshall and then spend a day in Peiping before going on to Tokyo.

Troops Not To Be Feared

To a Chinese correspondent's question as to when United States forces would leave China, Ellender said.

"I can't see why anyone in China should fear the presence of United States forces in view of the past, present and hoped-for future friendship between the two countries."

There was a wide divergence of opinion as to the destructiveness of the atomic bomb.

Ellender said the Nevada's paint was not even burned off and shanties on Bikini were not burned down. Worley observed, however, it was still too early to assess the bomb's effectiveness.

Forrestal in Shanghai.

Shanghai, July 6 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal arrived at Shanghai today en route to Nanking to confer with United States Envoy Gen. Marshall and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. In Shanghai Forrestal conferred with Admiral Charles M. Cooke Jr., commander of the United States Seventh Fleet, and then attended a reception given by Cooke in his honor.

Germans Fight China Ouster

Three Get Habeas Corpus Writ to Stay in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, July 6 (AP).—Applications for writs of habeas corpus for three Germans and their dependents, who are on the list of German deportees scheduled to sail from here tomorrow on the ship Marine Robin, were filed in Shanghai districut court today by an American attorney, N. F. Allman, and a Chinese associate. The applications were made on the ground that the persons concerned can prove their anti-Nazi sentiments.

Meanwhile a search was being conducted for twelve persons scheduled to be deported who had failed to report at the processing center. It was believed they were being hidden by friends or had fled to interior China.

Nationalist and Red Generals to Meet

Peiping, July 6 (A. P.).—Chinese Communist and Nationalist commanding generals in Manchuria may meet soon, probably at Changchun, according to Harbin dispatches to Chinese newspapers today.

The Harbin dispatches said that Communist Gen. Lin Piao announced he had consented to meet Nationalist Lieut.-Gen. Tu Li Ming. The announcement came after Gen. Lin, regarded as one of China's best military strategists, had conferred with American Brig.-Gen. Thomas S. Timberman of executive (truce) headquarters. Gen. Timberman flew to Harbin Friday to interview Communist leaders.

China Recognizes Austria

Nanking, July 6 (AP)—The Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs announced formal recognition today of the Austrian Government and directed China's Ambassador in London to so inform Vienna.

ATOMIC GROUP SCANS PENALTY

JUL 7 1946

Committee Agreed Security Council Has Right To Act

New York, July 6 (AP)—Delegates to the United Nations Atomic-Energy Commission were reliably reported today to be agreed that the Security Council must be the agency to punish serious violations of atomic-control regulations.

A member of the commission said this was one of the major points clarified so far in private discussions of a six-nation subcommittee which has had the atomic-control question under study the past week.

Right To Act Undisputed

This informant said none of the delegates disputed the Security Council's right to act on all matters which threaten international peace even if these matters involve the misuse of atomic energy.

He said, however, that no agreement had been reached regarding the punishment of lesser violations of atomic regulations.

The United States disclosed yesterday in a memorandum to the subcommittee that the United States delegation wanted the atomic-development authority to have the power to make final decisions in some matters.

These were understood to include punishment of violations which did not constitute actual threats to peace. Under the United States plan, the authority would be able to impose such penalties as fines and revocation or denial of licenses for atomic production.

Russia Would Limit Power

Russia, on the other hand, is understood to favor limiting the authority's power to the right to make recommendations to the Security Council.

This will be discussed in more detail when the subcommittee meets again Monday afternoon to go into the whole question of the authority's relationship with the Security Council. At that time, or later in the week, the United States delegation is expected to submit another memorandum outlining its views in more detail.

The atomic subcommittee expects to be able to make its first report to the full twelve-nation commission by the latter part of next week. A meeting of the commission probably will be called for Friday, one delegate said.

Reconstruction Parley Set

The United Nations announced that the recently created subcommission on the reconstruction of devastated areas would hold its first meeting in London July 29.

The twenty-nation agency, which was set up by the United Nations Economic and Social Council, will start work immediately on data being gathered by United Nations experts on conditions in devastated areas. It will receive reports from each country on its own plane for reconstruction and development.

After the London meeting, the subcommission will divide into two groups, one to tackle the problem of reconstructing damaged areas in Europe and the other to take up similar problems in Asia.

Slow Atom-Plan Work Seen

JUL 7 1946

New York, July 6 (AP)—The United Nations atomic conferees hope to complete the first phase of their deliberations by next week end, but it was apparent today that world atomic control could be established only after long, painstaking preliminaries.

One authoritative source said that "only a very optimistic view" would support the idea that any concrete atomic program may be ready for submission to the Security Council in time for action at the month-or-longer meeting of the General Assembly scheduled to begin here September 3.

The United States delegation said that even after the adoption of atomic controls "the process of putting them into effect will necessarily extend over a considerable period of time."

Done By Stages

"It will have to be done by stages and according to prearranged schedules based on sound and logical sequence leading to full and effective establishment of all controls," a memorandum from the Americans said.

However much preliminary work has been done thus far under the leadership of Australian Minister Herbert V. Evatt. On Monday Evatt begins his last week as chairman of the twelve-nation atomic energy commission, its full membership working committee and its six-member subcommittee No. 1.

In one of his last acts as chairman of all the atomic groups, Evatt kept the United States delegation working through the July 4 holiday on a detailed elaboration of the American plan calling for a world monopoly over the sources and disposal of atomic energy.

This would provide for an all-nation control of the rare uranium-bearing minerals and thorium deposits over the world and "complete and absolute ownership of all uranium and thorium actually produced."

Bikini Test Film Reported Stolen

JUL 7 1946

Kwajalein, July 6 (AP)—Reliable but unconfirmed reports circulated here today that top-secret film taken of the July 1 atom-bomb test at Bikini was stolen in New York city while an officer-courier was using a telephone and that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is engaged in an extensive manhunt. All mail packages for foreign countries were reported being examined.

There was no official comment at this headquarters for Operation Crossroads. In New York, C.E. Conroy, special agent in charge of the New York FBI said no investigation is being made in this case by the FBI. New York police said no such theft had been reported to them by Federal authorities.

The July 1 test, an air burst which sank five ships, damaged more than two score others and caused other effects still being checked by scientists, was an extensively photographed event. In man-operated planes, in drones, on ship and on land at Bikini, still and motion pictures were recorded.

All the color and most of the motion and still film have been sent to the United States for study.

More than 400 cameras were set up in the lagoon just to measure the upheaval of water.

The reports heard here were that the officer-courier relaxed his vigilance over the important package, weighing between 30 and 40 pounds, to make a telephone call either from a New York air terminal or railroad station. A man grabbed the package and fled, these reports stated. The courier was on his way to Rochester, N.Y., where the film was to be developed.

Missing Film "Investigation"

Washington, July 6 (AP)—The Navy Department said tonight that disappearance of 1,275 feet of "unimportant film exposed three weeks" before the atom bomb test in the Pacific is "under investigation."

Disappearance of the film was reported on June 30. While the statement gave no further details, a navy spokesman said the film involved was the same film mentioned in news dispatches today from Kwajalein.

THEFT OF ATOMIC FILM IS REPORTED

JUL 7 1946

Kwajalein, July 6 (A. P.).—Theft of a large package of top-secret atomic bomb film after it reached the United States was unofficially but reliably reported today.

A courier reportedly relaxed his vigilance over the thirty to forty-pound package at New York city to make a telephone call either at the air terminal or rail station while on his way to Rochester, N. Y., where the film was to be developed. A man, the reports said, grabbed the package and fled.

The FBI is understood to be investigating the case.

All color and most motion picture and still film made of the July 1 test at Bikini have been sent by officer-couriers to several United States cities for processing and study.

E. E. Conroy, special agent in charge of the local office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced this afternoon that no investigation was being made by his office of the reported theft of top-secret atomic bomb films from a courier.

"No investigation is being made in this case by the FBI," Conroy said.

Target Fleet Is Shifted in Preparation for Second Atom Test.

JUL 7 1946

Aboard U. S. S. Mount McKinley at Bikini Atoll, Saturday, July 6 (A. P.).—The Navy began today respotting the atomic target fleet for the second test of the powerful explosive.

The battleship Nevada, bullseye for the first test (which Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy said would not be a target for the second time) was towed to a temporary anchorage several miles away from its position in the first bomb test.

While not yet ready to discuss in detail the target for the underwater "A"-bomb test against ships' hulls, Blandy said certain elements of the formation would be more dense than in the midair experiment, and less dense in other portions. The outer units will be much the same as the first test, he said.

The Admiral thinks the zone of serious damage probably will be larger than in the first test because hulls are vulnerable to shock transmitted through water.

Blandy boarded the fire-swept carrier Independence today. Referring to the ship's bulged flight deck, he told reporters, "She certainly can't be called a flat top any more. She is a roof top, now."

He said that practically all the heavy damage to the craft was done by the atom bomb creating pressure between the flight and hangar decks.

Big Four Seek Way Out Of New Split

Paris, July 6 (AP)—British-American opposition to a Russian demand that the Big Four prescribe rules of procedure for a general European peace conference this summer blocked efforts of the Foreign Ministers Council today to convoke the 21-nation conclave on July 29, the date already fixed.

Both Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin contended throughout a stormy four-hour session last night that adoption of the Soviet proposal would reduce the peace parley to "rubber stamp" status, but Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov adamantly maintained his position.

Efforts Resumed

With the shadow of the big-power veto clouding their efforts, the Ministers convened again today for renewed discussion of the problem in another effort to prepare and transmit the necessary invitations for the peace conference to the seventeen other nations.

No Tidal Wave Expected By Dr. Compton

JUL 7 19

Kwajalein, July 6 (AP)—Dr. Karl Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said today that he expected waves from the Bikini underwater atomic-bomb test would not exceed 50 feet and certainly would not reach tidal-wave proportions.

The Navy yesterday set July 25 for the tentative date of the second test explosion, but Compton told a press conference the test might be performed a day earlier.

He predicted that "much more damage will be done to the ships' hulls and machinery. The blast may pancake the superstructure from below, as it did from above, on the aerial drop. It may even lift some of the ships out of the water."

Predicts Two Water Spouts

He said the first effect of the underwater blast should be a huge geyser-like waterspout, followed by a rush of water back into the void and then another huge waterspout. The resulting wave probably will wash entirely over Bikini Island, but should not destroy it, he added.

Oceanographers predict, he explained that it will be a much longer time—probably a minimum of a week—before it will be safe to enter Bikini lagoon after the explosion.

Aerial A-Bomb's Value As Fleet Threat Cited

Kwajalein, July 6 (AP)—The aerial atom bomb's greatest value against a fleet appears to be as a threat.

The Bikini bomb sank five ships and immobilized seven warships. However, the 70-odd vessels were moored closely to test the bomb against all types of ships.

Never again, except in tests, is such a fleet target likely.

30.29-4001

The Bikini ships were anchored as close as 200 and 300 yards apart. Toward the end of the war the Pacific battle formation spaced ships a mile apart and for recent Atlantic maneuvers, Admiral Marc A. Mitcher deployed his forces at two-mile intervals.

More Damage Expected Next Time

The underwater atomic-bomb tests scheduled for later this month is expected by many high naval officers to create far more damage than the aerial drop. The underwater test will attack ships at their most vulnerable spot—below the waterline.

It has not been announced what caused the five Bikini ships to sink, but the fact remains that the hulls of even the heaviest damaged ships were intact and the engine rooms were described as in good to perfect condition. It seems probable that the ships that went down might have been victims of their own ammunition stowed below decks.

Blast Short Of Target

A study of the fleet damage indicates that the detonation was between 700 and 800 yards short of the target, the battleship Nevada. The five ships that sank were all in this immediate vicinity. And the damage radiated from there about 1,500 yards.

That range would have damaged perhaps five ships in the Pacific war-time formation and probably fewer under Admiral Mitcher's Atlantic formation. This summary ignores the highly important effect on personnel, which is yet to be determined.

This fact stands out: The aerial bomb is designed for use against land targets, not ships which are built to ride with the punch.

Naval Officer's Opinion

A navy officer, who was captain of a carrier torpedo squadron in the Pacific, foresees this as the effective use of aerial bombs in the future:

"I'd hold the aerial bomb over the enemy's head as a threat, force him to spread his force thinly to prevent a heavy loss, then I'd pick off his ships with torpedo attacks."

Atom Blast Broke Coral Under Water

JUL 7 1946

Seared Everything Within Mile Circle In Blaze of Fire

Howerd W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Pulitzer prize-winning science writer, reviews some of the unexpected results of the Bikini atomic test. Mr. Blakeslee wrote and compiled the "Atomic Future," a 24-page booklet distributed by The Courant with its issue of May 5 last.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

Aboard USS Appalachian, (Sunday), July 7.—(AP.)—The atomic bomb smashed the coral on the bottom of Bikini lagoon 100 feet below the surface of the water.

This was one of the many unexpected blows struck by the air bomb released on July 1. These blows make it appear certain that navies and ships of the future must be redesigned even to meet the threat of this least formidable type of atomic bomb.

Close up pictures taken from the photographic tower show that the bomb seared everything in a circle of more than a mile in a direct blaze of fire.

Tornado Followed.

A moment after the bomb was detonated a terrific tornado roared over the entire guinea pig fleet. This was an atomic tornado with a blow torch like center. Its apparent diameter on the water's surface was more than half a mile.

Photographs show that directly under the bomb the water was momentarily depressed. The water was pushed down in a shallow saucer. Under the tremendous force of the atomic slap the water reacted like an anvil.

The smashing of the coral on the bottom occurred about under this depression. This under water smash revealed its presence by a great patch of water of light turquoise color. The normal color of the lagoon's water is dark emerald to almost slate. Wherever coral is stirred up in small places the color changes to turquoise.

How much damage was done to the lagoon bottom is not known. But this blow, through 100 feet of water protection, shows how completely "out of this world" atom bombs are no matter whether they are less powerful than the Nagasaki bomb or even that one that laid waste to Hiroshima.

Less Powerful Than Others.

The photos are a complete visual record showing that the first Bikini bomb probably was less powerful than the Nagasaki bomb. They show not only that the Bikini cloud was just half as high as that at Nagasaki, but the base of that cloud, standing like a pillar of fire and smoke on the water, was not more than half the diameter of the base of the pillar at Nagasaki.

The first close up photo shows only streamers of bright light, formless and too fast for the camera eye to catch. The second photo shows the start of a ball of fire. This fire ball is in the exact shape of the sun rising just half way over the horizon. This atomic sun, made entirely of blazing air, is more than a mile wide. It covers the battleship Nevada at the center of the target but only with one edge of the ball of fire. The main bulk of this atomic sun was to the rear and left of the Nevada.

The next photo is a surprise. The fire ball has momentarily disappeared. In its place are what looks like fog banks, perhaps nearly 1000 feet high. Ships that were not covered by the original fire ball have waving plumes wreathing more than mast high. These plumes probably are steam vapor.

Water Turned to Steam.

An explanation of the steam and fog banks is that the lagoon surface under and near the ball of fire was converted instantly into steam without boiling water. At temperatures above 3100 degrees water does not boil but turns into instant steam. At the center of this fog and steam bank is rising what looks like a July Fourth fireworks display. The position of the fireworks is apparently astern of the Nevada and in the direction of the carrier independence which carried torpedoes, ammunition and aviation gasoline.

At this point in the sequence of pictures, the carrier Saratoga's deck fire has not started. That fire begins in the next picture, with a plain smoke plume from the deck.

In this Saratoga fire picture also begins the atomic tornado. This tornado is the start of an upshooting column of fire and cloud. In its initial shape it is a high pointed dome more than 1000 feet tall. The edges of this dome appear dark and like smoke but the center is incandescent.

The tornado is narrower than the fire ball it replaces and does not cover the Nevada. The top of the tornado shoots upward, quickly forming one mushroom and then a smaller mushroom below the umbrella-like topside.

Base Moving.

The base of this tornado remains on the water. But airplane views show it moving rapidly. The tornado moves off the face of the target fleet in about the same direction as the northeast trade winds. The atomic column appears to lift as it leaves the fleet just as storm tornadoes rise from the ground.

Just about where the tornado appeared above the steam and smoke is the area where five ships sank. That tornado base is also the area where the carrier Independence was wrecked and from where she was towed to prevent the risk of her sinking.

Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, boss of the Crossroads operation, said if this particular air bomb had been close over the battleship Nevada he believes even that mighty ship would have sunk.

But more important for the future of navies is the fact that transports and destroyers 1000 feet and more distant from the bomb crater were sunk.

Since the crew was exposed to an unknown amount of radiation, members were evacuated to the mainland for observation. Exposures such as this adventure do not necessarily mean serious injury to the men. Although such rays can be fatal, they are not usually very harmful unless persons are continuously exposed for some time.

This invisible menace was encountered above 10,000 feet altitude. It might have been a rain of particles from higher up, spilled out and carried by the wind. It might conceivably have been X-rays from the atomic cloud. This latter appears improbable because X-rays usually do not go so far in such great strength.

Mice that were flown into the cloud are changing color. White mice have become brown. This color change is a surprise. Hair usually turns white or gray when exposed to radioactive rays. These mice were in drones that either passed through the atomic cloud or skimmed into and around its edges.

the wing, but never so much as on the oil spots. The metal of the planes repelled these unseen particles harmlessly.

The drones showed no evidence of scorching heat and it is not believed the atomic cloud was blazing hot after rising above 10,000 feet. The cloud radioactivity itself is not supposed to raise the temperature more than three or four degrees. No thermometers were carried on the drones.

Dangerous to Approach.

One of the Navy drones was unsafe to approach for more than three days after flying through the heart of the cloud. Another was too hot to approach for more than twenty-four hours.

When these planes cooled it was possible to compute from the rays still present about how much there had been in the cockpits many hours earlier. While this computation was only approximate it indicated the probability that pilots in the planes in the cloud would have been killed. Pilots close to the cloud would have been risking their lives.

Bikini Atom Blast Sent Out Invisible Death

JUL 7 1946

Pilot Reports His Counter Recorded Dangerous Amount of Radiation.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

Aboard U. S. S. Appalachian, July 6 (A. P.).—An invisible form of death filled the air for many miles around and far outside the great mushroom cloud which arose from the Bikini atomic bomb.

What happened is still a mystery. One of the planes circling the cloud at long distance got the first warning of the invisible death when its Geiger counter, which registers the presence of X-rays and other rays, unexpectedly began to record a dangerous amount of radiation.

The pilot, thinking he had run into a current of invisible radioactive particles that had eddied far outside the mushroom, turned the plane in an escape direction. But the warning counter continued to show rays whichever way he turned and whether he went up or down.

At times the Geiger counter dial sprung way over into the danger range. It was many minutes before the plane ran out of and away from the unseen menace.

All the drones brought back evidences of terrible radioactivity in or near the cloud. This invisible ray attack was the worst at about 15,000 feet altitude.

Caught Radioactive Material.

Wherever there was oil on the plane surfaces, radioactive particles stuck and piled up. Their rays penetrated the metal, driving into the plane, especially those interior positions close to oil spots. Some of theses opts caught enough radioactivity material to be highly dangerous.

Even inside the drone engines, oil became very highly radioactive and dangerous to life. But this radioactivity had no apparent effect on the perfect operation of the radiating engines.

A small amount of death rays piled upon the leading edges of Radar shot at the atomic explosion and afterward at the atomic cloud behaved unexpectedly. Radar beams bounced back off the explosion. This amazed scientists. No such thing had been expected. The probable explanation is that radar bounced back off the edge of the bubble of compressed air that formed the source of the shock wave of the explosion. This bubble is plainly visible in the photographs exhibited on the press ship.

Radar failed completely to bounce back off the atomic cloud. It had been confidently expected that radar would be able to track the atomic cloud. The explanation of this failure is that this cloud contained much less vaporized metal than had been expected. Metallic vapors in the cloud had been counted on to give good radar response.

Imported Drink, It's Just Water

Kwajalein, July 6 (A. P.).—When Assistant Postmaster-General Gael Sullivan flew overseas to Kwajalein he brought along twenty cases of bottled water. He is never without it.

When he went by seaplane to Bikini, which has no airport, to see the damage to ships hit by the atomic bomb, a pilot, Major Douglas Macodrum, lugged along a bottle of water for Sullivan.

Bitter Protest to Blandy

KWAJALEIN, July 6 (AP).—The treasurer-secretary of the Canadian Defense League for Animals, a woman, radioed Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy through Navy communications: "Hoping you share the same fate as the animals aboard your target ships," was learned today.

An assortment of animals, ranging from mice to goats, were aboard the pig fleet in Bikini Lagoon for the July 1 tests.

Atomic Energy Parley Planned

JUL 7 1946

Washington, July 7 (AP)—On the anniversary of the explosion of the first atomic bomb in New Mexico, scientists, statesmen and other leaders will meet here to examine plans so far proposed for the world control of atomic energy.

Announcing arrangements for an "institute on world control of atomic energy" to be held July 15-16, the National Committee on Atomic Information, the sponsoring organization, declared in a statement:

"On the sixteenth of July, 1945, the atomic age was opened by an explosion in New Mexico.

"A year of fateful indecision has passed—a year in which the governments of the world have failed to act on the question of the survival of humanity."

The announcement said representatives of Government, labor, industry, religious and civil groups would participate in the institute. Formal addresses by invited speakers will be followed by open discussion from the floor.

Institute sessions will be devoted, the announcement said, "to study of scientific facts about atomic energy and its industrial, political and social implications; the United States and Russian proposals for atomic control; world views on the United States' handling of atomic discoveries; the development of atomic policy and the peoples' rule in world control."

Ammunition Piles Shrink

Kure, Japan, July 6 (AP)—British Commonwealth occupation forces have destroyed 10,000 tons of Japanese ammunition and high explosives since May, BCOF headquarters reported today. It was estimated 250,000 tons still remain in dumps and magazines in the British area.

DOLLAR PARITY MAY AID TRADE

JUL 7 1946

But Rising U.S. Prices May Offset New Canadian Move

Montgomery

Ottawa, July 6 (AP)—Among the first results of the new parity between Canadian and American dollars is likely to be increased imports to Canada of American goods, financial authorities observed today, but in the long run the American gain will depend on how much prices climb in the United States.

By ending last night the seven-year-old differential under which the American dollar was worth $1.10 in Canada, the Canadian Government made it automatically easier for American exporters to sell in the Dominion. In the past an American product had cost ten per cent more in Canada, in addition to duties and other costs.

The Canadian Government, after building up more than $1,000,000,000 reserve in gold and American exchange during the war, decided that it needed goods more than the exchange.

Limits Indicated

The American advance will be limited by the shortage of goods as well as by the possibility that American prices might continue to rise and more than offset the ten per cent change now effective.

Similarly, Britain will be able to sell more easily to Canada, but the net immediate effect will be disadvantageous to Britain because Britain buys much more in Canada than she sells here, and henceforth Canadian dollars will cost 10 per cent more. After a time, however, Britain may gain through greater sales here, shifting the trade balance more in her favor and giving her the foreign balances she needs.

American goods which have been shut out of the Canadian market are expected to appear on the shelves shortly. How long they will continue to come in will depend on how effectively prices are kept down in the United States.

Will Stabilize Prices

The Canadian move, in which a strong trade-bargaining weapon was abandoned in the interests of an overall battle against rising prices, is calculated to stabilize prices in the Domininon. Other steps toward this goal, including a decision to maintain price ceilings on all essential cost-of-living items, were taken at the same time.

Despite these steps, prices are expected to rise in Canada even though the rate of increase may be arrested. Government leaders continue to watch Washington developments apprehensively, feeling that a runaway in American prices will hit Canada eventually no matter what can be done here.

Canadian leaders privately express strong hopes that some sort of controls will be reimposed in the United States.

Adverse Affect Likely On Gold-Mine Investors

New York, July 6 (AP)—Investors in Canadian gold mines may be adversely affected by the rise in the price of the Canadian dollar to par with the United States dollar, a survey of financial opinion disclosed today.

Before revaluation of the Dominion currency, it was pointed out, gold in Canada was worth $38.50 an ounce. Owners of gold mines will now receive $35 an ounce for the precious metal.

The decrease of $3.50 an ounce, according to a spokesman for a Canadian mining association, may mean the difference between operating a mine and shutting it down as an unprofitable operation.

More Seriously Affected

Producers of ores with a low gold content would be more seriously affected than others, this source said.

More than 80 per cent of Canada's gold is derived from straight gold-mining operations. In the United States the reverse is true, with most of our gold produced as a byproduct of mining for copper and other base metals.

Another section of the investing public may garner an unexpected profit from the same circumstances.

Difference In Bonds

When the Canadian dollar could be bought for roughly 91 United States cents, Canadian bonds were worth about $91 United States dollars per $100 bond. Interest rates have been a little above those being paid in the United States for high-grade securities. If a Dominion bond is redeemed under present dollar valuations, the United States owner will receive $100 rather than the $91 he paid, or an unearned extra of $9.

At the same time, immediate repercussions were expected in the newsprint field. A large proportion of newsprint used by United States newspapers is produced in Canada.

Cranston Williams, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, said the higher cost of Canadian dollars would be one more item to be considered in a higher price for newsprint.

Foresees Higher Prices

"I don't expect a runaway market in newsprint," Williams explained, "but I expect the price to be raised at any time. The industry has been calculating the effects of the recent increase in freight rates, plus higher wood and labor costs. They all add up to higher prices."

A spokesman for an international travel agency said the higher cost of the Canadian dollar would have little if any effect on travel plans of United States citizens.

"Demand for travel facilities is so heavy, both from United States citizens going to Canada and Canadians visiting this country, that a change in prices of ten cents on the dollar will have little effect," he said.

"Possibly next year, if money should be a little scarcer than at present, tourist travel to Canada may be curtailed."

Henceforward, banks and other authorized agents of the Exchange Control Board will buy United States dollars at $1 in Canadian funds, instead of at $1.10, and will sell at $1.00½, instead of $1.10½. Similarly, the buying price for pounds sterling is fixed at $4.02 instead of $4.43, and the selling price at $4.04 instead of $4.45. The new rates became effective at 7 o'clock last night.

This means that Canadian firms holding United States dollars—such as hotels, cafes and the tourist trade—will suffer a loss of 10 cents on every dollar they are holding and American tourists will get only a dollar's worth for their dollar, instead of $1.10 worth.

The other three steps in the program were:

1. Establishment of a long list of goods and services which will remain subject to price control, including virtually all household articles.

2. Retention of the principles of price control on domestic products, coupled with more stringent price control on imported products.

3. Retention of subsidy payments.

Ilsley acknowledged that recent developments in the United States were the major factor in adoption of Canada's new program.

"Perhaps the greatest threat to the stability of prices in Canada comes from the rise in prices in the United States, and, to a lesser extent, in other countries.

Canada Pegs $1 at U.S. Value

JUL 7 1946

Government Acts to Combat Threat of Rising Prices and Inflation.

Ottawa, July 6 (A. P.).—The Canadian Government, in a four-point program designed to combat the threat of rising prices in the United States and to ease the pressures of inflation, has pegged the Canadian dollar at par with the United States dollar and strengthened Canada's price control structure.

Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley, who outlined the program to the House of Commons last night in a surprise announcement, in which he referred to the recent abandonment of price control in the United States, said that he hoped the new measures would "go a long way toward insulating Canada against unfavorable external conditions and easing the inflationary pressures which now are so strong."

The present position with respect to the future of price control in the United States is confused and uncertain," the Finance Minister asserted.

"In view of the strong commercial ties between this country and the United States, this trend has naturally exercised strong upward pressure upon Canadian costs and prices, which we have sought to resist or neutralize as best we could."

REDIN DENIES GIVING MONEY

JUL 7 1946

Soviet Navy Officer Contradicts Kennedy Testimony

Seattle, July 6 (AP)—Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin, of the Russian Navy, flatly denied from the witness stand in his espionage conspiracy trial today that he had ever paid any money to a Seattle shipyard engineer to buy naval secrets.

Before a hushed courtroom, he answered queries by Irvin Goodman, defense attorney, as to a series of conversations which Herbert Kennedy, Scottish-born engineer, had testified he had with Redin.

Point by point, he denied that any such conversations had ever occurred. Kennedy told last week of selling Redin information on the destroyer tender Yellowstone, built in a Seattle shipyard.

Denies Giving Money

Goodman, picking up a Government exhibit from the desk, which consisted of five $10 bills, showed it to the 30-year-old Russian lieutenant.

"Did you ever give Herbert Kennedy that one?"

"I did not."

"Did you ever at any time give Herbert Kennedy any money?"

"I did not."

Earlier, Redin had described his first meeting with Kennedy when he gave the engineer a ride from a downtown shipyard. He described a series of subsequent meetings as "social visits" in which the families became acquainted.

Kennedy Contradicted

Goodman then read to the witness testimony Kennedy gave last week in which the engineer said Redin told him, "If you will give me certain information my people will pay you."

"Did you or did you not have such a conversation?" Goodman asked.

Redin replied, "I didn't have any such conversation and, by the way, that phrase he said I told him would take me time to prepare and I would have to take it to my English teacher to prepare it."

Lieutenant Redin started his testimony with a recital of his background and his arrival at San Francisco July 26, 1942, as a representative of the Soviet Purchasing Commission.

Over Government objections, Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black permitted character testimony although he said he was not convinced it was "of much moment" in this case.

Two Testify To Truthfulness

John C. Buckingham, steamship-company loading superintendent who met Redin in business relations, and Mrs. Helen Donnell, owner of an apartment where the Redins lived, both described the lieutenant as honest and truthful.

Redin said that he went to Washington under orders of the Soviet Purchasing Commission after arriving at San Francisco, remaining there 20 or 25 days. He then went to New York, with the duties of a convoy officer, and later went twice to Halifax, N.S.

His work there was in connection with the transfer of Russian submarines to the North Atlantic when the convoy route to Murmansk was battered by German warships.

Soviet Policy At Halifax

"Were American officers and interpreters stationed on Soviet submarines at Halifax?" his attorney asked.

"Yes," he replied.

His parents, a brother and six sisters live in Russia and he was born March 27, 1916, he testified.

Ivan Zabello, a marine chief engineer attached to the Soviet Purchasing Commission, recalled to the stand today, said under cross examination by Allan Pomeroy, chief assistant United States district attorney, that he knew of one Russian ship, the tanker Taganrog, which had the same type of machinery as that on the destroyer tender Yellowstone.

Russian Spy Suspect Takes Stand in Seattle

Seattle, July 6.—(AP.)—Russian Naval Lieutenant Nicolai G. Redin took the stand to defend himself against espionage and conspiracy charges today after two character witnesses described Redin, accused by the United States Government of buying secret naval information, as "honest and trustworthy."

Lieutenant Redin, handsome in his naval uniform, started his testimony with a recital of his background and his arrival at San Francisco July 26, 1942, as a representative of the Soviet purchasing commission.

Defense attorneys have said he would enter a flat denial to government charges that he purchased restricted information on the new type United States destroyer Tender Yellowstone from Herbert Kennedy, Seattle Marine engineer.

May Defends Accounts Of Lumber Firm

Company Was Paid by Munitions Concerns, Senate Probers Told

JUL 7 1946

Checks Brought Into Testimony

Both Endorsed by 'A. J. May;' Subpoena Asked by Mitchell

Washington, July 6.—(AP.)—Evidence before the Senate War Investigating Committee today that A. J. May endorsed $18,634.07 in checks and drafts paid by two munitions firms to the Cumberland Lumber Company brought an assertion from Representative Andrew J. May, Democrat, Kentucky, that "there was nothing out of line" with the lumber firm's accounts.

The committee's investigation into the war contracts of the Erie Basin Metal Products Company and Batavia Metal Products Company, two units of a 19-firm Illinois munitions combine, brought these developments:

1. Edward Schaffer of the General Accounting Office testified that the Batavia and Erie Basin firms paid $48,634 in advances to the Cumberland Lumber Company, whose agent was an Andrew J. May of Prestonburg, Ky.

2. Schaffer testified that one of the checks paid by Erie Basin to the Cumberland concern, for $3156.47, bore the individual endorsement of A. J. May in addition to the signature on behalf of the Cumberland Lumber Company.

No Lumber Delivered.

3. Schaffer said that no lumber ever was delivered, as far as he could determine, by the Cumberland company and that he was unsuccessful in learning names of the owners of the company.

30.24-4003

4. Schaffer said one of the checks was endorsed "A. J. May, President," and added that the check for $3156.47 was cashed at the First National Bank of Prestonburg, Ky.

(The A. J. May and Andrew J. May referred to by Schaffer were not identified other than by Prestonburg, Ky., which is the home town of Representative May, chairman of the House Military Committee).

5. Senator Mitchell, Democrat, Washington, a member of the investigating committee, demanded that Representative May be summoned for questioning; and since, as a member of Congress Representative May would be immune to subpoena, Mitchell recommended that the Senate and House authorize a resolution for subpoena if necessary to bring May before the group.

6—In his first of two statements May said he had never profited from his relations with the Illinois group, declared that he had appeared before the committee in executive session June 4, and called on Senator Mead, the investigating committee chairman, to make public what he said then; he said that testimony covered the ground of this week's public testimony in which witnesses have described him as "insistent" in behalf of war contracts for the Illinois combine; the committee said May's request in regard to publishing his testimony will be considered Monday.

7—In his second statement, Representative May declared "there was nothing out of line" with the accounts of the Cumberland Lumber Company, that his June 4 testimony "included the Cumberland Lumber Company thoroughly," and that all documents, financial accounts and statements relating to that firm were in the hands of the committee.

Closed Session.

8—The investigating committee met in closed session during the afternoon with these three Justice Department officials in attendance: James M. McInerney, first assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division; Isaiah Matlack, chief of the war frauds section; and Tom Pace, assistant to Matlack; the meeting ended without a decision on Mitchell's proposal with lack of a quorum given as the reason for failure to act.

9—In Prestonburg, Ky., it was recalled that Representative May confirmed to a reporter December 28, 1943, that he had become the principal owner of a tract of some 2000 acres of timberland near Partridge, Ky., and that it would be operated as the Cumberland Lumber Company.

May further said then that he planned to install a mill to process heavy stands of timber, but that the Cumberland Company had "no particular market" in prospect for the lumber. On June 10, 1945, A. C. Brown, identified as a Whitesburg, Ky., businessman, confirmed that he had bought the Cumberland Company from May at a price said to have been $32,000.

U.S. And Britain To End Blacklist

JUL 7 1946

Washington, July 6 (AP)—The United States and Britain have agreed to discontinue their blacklists of thousands of foreign firms accused of collaborating with the Axis during the war, it was learned today. An official announcement is due Monday.

The British and American lists, covering almost exactly the same names, total approximately 5,880 foreign firms and individuals in Latin America and in the former European neutral countries. Countries which will be most directly affected by discontinuance outside this hemisphere are Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey.

Negotiations have been under way between the State Department and British Foreign Office for about two months to work out a method of ending the list. It had been carried on long after the war's end, both to keep some economic controls on questionable firms and to give a competitive break to those firms which had collaborated with the Allies.

Truman Tells Gettysburg Story

JUL 7 1946

Says Knowledge of U.S. History Helps Today —Expresses Hope for Peace Conference.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 6 (A. P.)—President Truman on a pilgrimage to the battlefield, expressed high hope today for the success of the coming treaty conference in dedicating the nation anew to the search for eternal peace in a united world.

He gave the reporters who met him here an account of the battle of Gettysburg and of Pickett's charge and said the nation could thank God that Pickett did not succeed or it would have been the end of the Union. Then he declared that if you know the history of this country, it is a tremendous help in a situation such as now confronts the world.

He talked at length of the Battle of Gettysburg, rattling off the names of generals. But he always referred to a park guide to verify his statements.

Standing on ground famous in the history of a country that came to strength and unity after four years of war, the President said he saw hope for similar unity among nations today. Reading the inscription, "Peace Eternal in a Nation United" at the base of the Gettysburg Peace Monument, Mr. Truman told reporters that if it were changed to substitute "World" for "Nation" it would be ideal.

It seems very likely that we are going to get a peace treaty, he said in commenting on his trans-Atlantic telephone conversation yesterday with Secretary of State Byrnes in Paris. They talked a few hours after the Foreign Ministers Conference had agreed to a general European peace conference to open in Paris on July 29.

Mrs. Truman accompanied the President to the famous battle grounds but remained in their automobile. They returned to their Catoctin Mountain hideaway, Shangri-la, near Thurmont, Md., in time for luncheon.

TRUMAN BLASTS 'O'DONNELL'S LIES'

JUL 7 1946

Gettysburg, Pa., July 6 (A. P.)—President Truman took occasion today to describe a recent Supreme Court story by John O'Donnell of the New York Daily News as just another one of O'Donnell's damned lies.

The story said that the President had asked for the resignation of Justices Black, Jackson, Murphy and Frankfurter as the outgrowth of dissension in the Court. The story was promptly denied by the White House, but a reporter today pressed Mr. Truman for his reaction to it.

It was, the President said, just another one of O'Donnell's damned lies, made up out of whole cloth. It was beneath notice.

Mr. Truman made his comment during questioning by Washington reporters who had met him here for a view of the historic battle sites.

Steelman Seen For Bowles Position

JUL 7 1946

Washington, July 6 (AP)—If Congress revivies price controls, John R. Steelman, already reconversion director and Presidential labor adviser, may become economic stabilizer as well.

Chester Bowles, who quit a week ago as chief of the Office of Economic Stabilization, has suggested to President Truman that he consider merging the agency with the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, with Steelman assuming active jurisdiction over prices and wages.

Bowles also suggested possible successors in the event Mr. Truman decides to continue OES, but the former boss of the agency has declined to make these recommendations public.

Considering Merger

The President gave Bowles no indication what his decision on OES may be, but he reportedly promised to consider merging the agency with OWMR under Steelman.

If Mr. Truman does decide on this, it will be the second time OES has operated as a part of the Reconversion Office.

Shortly after the war ended, Mr. Truman discontinued the independent status of OES and placed it under the direction of John W. Snyder, then OWMR chief. The President named John C. Collet, a Missouri Federal judge, as administrator of the stripped-down stabilization unit.

Bowles himself precipitated the situation which caused OES to be reconstituted as a separate agency last February. A row over steel prices brought Bowles to the verge of resigning as OPA administrator, but Mr. Truman persuaded him to stay in Government service as economic stabilizer.

Full Authority

Part of the arrangement was that Bowles was to have full and actual authority over wages and prices, although Snyder continued nominally as the Administration's economic policy maker.

Steelman, as Snyder's successor, inherited this role, but like the latter he left wage-price matters strictly to Bowles as head of the revitalized OES.

In suggesting merger of the agency with OWMR, Bowles is understood to have qualified this with the recommendation that the stabilization job be handled by Steelman, and not by a subordinate.

If Congress does not restore price controls, OES probably will be abolished promptly.

UNRRA Conference Shifted To Geneva

Washington, July 6 (AP)—The fifth session of the Council of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration will be held in Geneva, Switzerland, beginning August 5, it was announced today.

F. H. LaGuardia, director general of UNRRA, in a statement said originally the meeting was slated for Paris but was transferred to Geneva so it would not conflict with the conference of twenty-one nations at Paris.

The French Government felt it might prove difficult to provide suitable accommodations for both meetings, LaGuardia said.

LaGuardia Says UNRRA Aid In China Is Better

Washington, July 6 (AP)—Faster distribution of supplies in China has brightened the relief situation for that nation, F. H. LaGuardia, UNRRA director, reported today.

LaGuardia said a substantial rise in the level of inland rivers, which dropped alarmingly during spring droughts, contributed most to the speed-up. For centuries the rivers have been the arteries of inland transportation.

Another factor was improved relations with regional Chinese officials.

"Distribution has been accelerated to such an extent that of a total of 365,000 tons discharged at port cities, 326,000 tons have been transferred to the nation's fifteen regional areas," the report said.

PEARL HARBOR REPORT LAGS

JUL 7 1946

Investigators Ask More Time To Fix Blame

Washington, July 6 (AP)—Pearl Harbor investigators, still sparring over fixing the blame for the success of Japan's 1941 punch at Hawaii, bid today for more time to finish the job.

Chances appeared slim that the Senate-House inquiry committee could agree completely on picking a culprit or a group of them.

But to give it time to try, Senator Barkley (D., Ky.), chairman, said the Senate and House would be asked to shift the deadline for a report from July 10 to July 16. Originally the report was supposed to have been in six months ago.

At the conclusion of a lengthy committee meeting today, Barkley [illegible] "my hope [illegible] that we can make a unanimous report." He even bristled mildly at the idea that there might be a disagreement along Democratic-Republican lines.

But Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) said he knew "damm well" there would be more than one report.

Other members said privately it appeared almost certain the committee would produce at least two versions of who was responsible for the way Japan pulled off the surprise smash at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941.

Interpret Facts Differently

One member said the committee might agree on facts about the diplomatic maneuvering preceding the attack and on the facts of what actually happened at the Pacific base.

But beyond that, he said, Democrats and Republicans evidently will interpret the facts differently.

A subcommittee assigned to draft a report still has not reached a complete accord on what should be included as facts. It was to hear what progress the drafters were making that the full committee met today.

It set another meeting for Tuesday, when, Barkley said, it is hoped a final draft will be ready for inspection.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) has been writing a proposed draft on his own. It might form the basis for a separate Republican report.

HOUSE-SENATE NAME CALLING IRKS RAYBURN

JUL 7 1946

Speaker Ready To Rap Knuckles Of Next Offender

Washington, July 6 (AP)—Speaker Rayburn thinks name-calling between the House and Senate has gone far enough, and as far as the House is concerned he's determined to do something about it.

The Texas Democrat has served notice that he is ready to rap the knuckles of any House member disposed to breach the rules of comity between the two branches of Congress.

These rules prohibit the members of one body from making remarks or statements that may be considered derogatory to the other body or its members.

Editorials Inserted In Record

But, in the heat engendered by controversies over such measures as draft-law extension, OPA and atomic-energy controls in recent months, the rules have gone by the wayside. Senators have said some pretty harsh things about House members, and vice versa.

Rayburn didn't cite any particular cases but in a House speech this week, which he permitted to remain in the record for future guidance, he noted "in the last few days some extensions of remarks that the Chair thinks are a reflection on a member or members of the Senate."

A favorite method has been to insert into the Congressional Record appendix newspaper stories or editorials critical of other legislators.

Hopes They'll Be Submitted

Rayburn said he "trusts that does not happen any more. If there is any question as to whether or not an extension of remarks refers to a member of the Senate in any way that might be offensive to him, the Chair hopes the matter will be submitted to the Chair before the remarks go to the printer."

Only recently Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) took to the radio to criticize the House Military Affairs Committee and its chairman, Representative May (D., Ky.), for the way it was handling Senate-passed atomic-energy-control legislation.

Thus McMahon didn't violate Congressional rules. But when May sought to reply in a statement in the House, that was barred because it did transgress the regulations. Now May is considering taking to the air, too.

Express Desire To Co-Operate

House members generally expressed desire to co-operate with Rayburn in preserving friendly relations with the Senate.

"We are willing to abide by the rules if the Senate will do so," one influential House member said. "But if the Senate persists in tossing bricks, we're going to toss them back, a little harder."

"And," he added, "if we can't do it in the Congressional Record, there's always the radio or newspaper columns."

There was no word from the Senate about brick-tossing.

OPA Foes Would Free Meat

JUL 7 1946

Taft and Wherry Lead Senate Fight to Break Bill to Revive Controls.

Washington, July 6 (A. P.).—The OPA's senatorial critics counted today on a powerful off-with-meat-ceilings drive to crack open the compromise bill to revive price and rent controls.

Spearheaded by Republican Senators Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska, this fresh attempt to tie down the OPA, even if it wins new life, gained the influential support of Democratic Senator George of Georgia.

George told reporters that he favors leaving meat off of the lists because he thinks most of it would go back into the black market the minute the controls were restored.

"We are going to have a meat shortage," he declared, "but it is better to get rid of the controls and the black market that goes with them than to attempt to set prices."

With the Senate in recess until Monday, when it will take up the disputed revival bill which Senator Barkley (Ky.), the Democratic leader, forced out of the Banking Committee, OPA opponents maneuvered to force the first test vote on the meat issue.

Hopes for Meat Exemption.

Taft said that he felt confident that enough Democrats would go along with Republicans to write the meat exemption into the bill despite contentions by administration leaders that such a move might precipitate another presidential veto.

Wherry told a reporter that it is his judgment that if the Senate refuses to kill meat controls, it won't accept any other amendments to the bill on which Barkley is standing firm despite criticism of some of its terms by Paul Porter, the OPA administrator.

Barkley and Senator Wagner (D.-N. Y.), chairman of the Banking Committee, expressed hope that the Senate will stick by the committee-approved measure. But they obviously had doubts about their ability to beat off the meat amendment, offered in different forms by Wherry and Senator McCarran (D.-Nev.).

Wagner and Barkley apparently were laying plans to get rid of it in a Senate-House conference committee. That strategy worked before, but the resulting bill was so distasteful to President Truman that he vetoed it.

The drive against meat controls took precedence over an effort by Taft to restore a modified version of his manufacturers' profits amendment which Mr. Truman made the major basis for his veto.

Taft Offers New Version.

Taft offered this identical amendment again with a change in the date. He proposed that individual manufacturers be granted price increases on major items to cover cost rises since the period of July 1 to 15, 1940. Originally he had proposed October 1 to 15, 1941, and Mr. Truman complained this was a period of unusually high percentage earnings for industry.

The Ohio Senator's new version represented a backing away from his earlier compromise position when he agreed to accept a formula under which price increases would be figured on the industry-wide—rather than item by item—average, plus the industry wide rise in costs.

Barkley put such a formula into the committee substitute for the Taft proposal, but Taft said that additional exemption provisions were such that the price administrator wouldn't have to grant any increases if he chose to refuse them.

Democrats thought they had Taft's new proposal licked and hence were spending more time trying to line up votes against the Wherry and McCarran meat proposals.

Barkley Backs New Bill.

Barkley told reporters that he is standing by the new bill, regardless of Porter's assertion yesterday that he hopes Congress will follow more closely the recommendations laid down by Mr. Truman in his veto message. Porter emphasized he approved the Barkley substitute for the Taft amendment, but said that approval doesn't extend to the full bill.

Chester Bowles, retiring Stabilization Director, also indicated his displeasure at the committee compromise. He told reporters at Portland, Me., last night that he couldn't see much difference from the vetoed bill.

However, Wagner told a reporter that he feels certain that the President will sign the measure if it can be carried through Congress in approximately its present form.

OPA-LESS EGGS TAKE A DROP

Honolulu, July 6 (A. P.).—The inflation spiral backtracked in Honolulu. Before the demise of the OPA, the Surplus Property office placed excess eggs on sale at 45 to 49 cents per dozen wholesale and 49 to 52 cents retail. There were no buyers. In a few days the asking price had dropped to 30 cents wholesale and 35 cents retail.

BATTLE LINES DRAWN ON LOAN

JUL 7 1946

House To Open 4-Day Debate Monday On British Credit

Washington, July 6 (AP) — Battle lines were drawn sharply today, with the outcome in doubt, for opening of House debate Monday on the Senate-approved $3,750,000,000 British loan.

Speaker Rayburn (D., Texas) predicted victory for the Administration, but Representative Buffett (R., Neb.), one of the leaders of the organized opposition, said: "We think we can beat it." Some Administrationists conceded privately they are not sure how the vote will go.

Bases Of Committee Support

The House Banking Committee, which approved the loan ratification bill, 20 to 5, put forward these claims:

1. It will end the wartime currency and trade discrimination in England and in many other countries that prevent restoration of world trade on a peacetime basis.

2. It will make possible the prompt and effective implementation of the Bretton Woods agreements for a world bank and monetary stabilization fund.

3. It will "help in the establishment of the orderly international economic relations which are essential to our prosperity and to world peace."

The United States Chamber of Commerce said the loan would tend to maintain Britain as a bulwark against the spread of communism.

Opposition Contentions

On the other hand, the opposition called for Congress to look after America's war veterans and aged before making any large foreign loans. A group of 75 House members—74 Republicans and one Progressive—signed a statement in opposition. They said they would "dedicate" the first day of debate as "veterans and old-age-pension day."

The leadership assigned four days for general debate. The House does not often debate any bill for more than two days.

Some supporters of the loan conceded that it has lost ground in the last two weeks, under the vigorous efforts put forth by the opposition, aided by the British handling of the controversial Palestine question and the successful race for renomination by Senator Butler (R., Neb.), an avowed loan opponent.

Predictions Of Close Vote

There are many predictions of a close vote. The Senate approved the loan 46 to 34.

The 50-year loan, under the agreement, would be advanced to the British during the next five years, with no interest during that time. Interest at two per cent would begin in 1951.

In exchange, the British agree:

1. Within one year to wipe out the entire dollar-pool set up in wartime to give Britain absolute control over dollars flowing into the Middle East, India and other Empire regions whose currency was based on the pound sterling.

2. Great Britain will begin negotiations with Empire countries for a reduction in the $14,000,000,000 debt which Britain owes there.

3. Britain agrees further to support American proposals for removal or reduction of barriers to international trade. Britain says that without the loan it would in effect be forced into economic isolationism.

HOUSING LINK PLAN OPPOSED

JUL 7 1946

U.S. Chamber Objects To Federal Consolidation

Washington, July 6 (AP) — The United States Chamber of Commerce today objected to the proposed consolidation of the various Federal housing agencies, questioning especially the desirability of a single administrator for agencies of "diverse interests and objectives."

George W. West, chairman of the construction and civic development department of the chamber, in a letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee, suggested that the Senate be permitted to vote on the question of centralized control of the housing agencies.

Such a consolidation is scheduled to become effective July 16 under President Truman's reorganization plan, unless both the House and Senate disapprove. The House already has voted, 180 to 37, against the plan.

Three of the agencies which would be affected by the consolidation—the Federal Housing Administration, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, operate in the building credit field. They aid primarily, West said in his letter, to help the financing of new homes by private capital.

West said their operating expenses are met by payments for services they render, instead of by the Government.

But the Federal Public Housing Authority, he added, is a welfare agency providing for the erection and Federal subsidization of low rent Government housing projects.

"The national chamber," West noted in his letter, "does not believe that either the welfare activities of the Federal Government or those designed to strengthen private home financing will benefit from proposed consolidation.

"On the contrary, there is real danger that sound and reasonable principles of credit will be weakened by subjecting their administration to the control of those motivated primarily by social welfare."

Army Reveals Plans to Train National Guard

JUL 7 1946

Regular Army Instructors Will Supervise Six-Year Training of 571,195 Men

BALTIMORE, July 6 (AP).—Major General M. S. Eddy, commander of the 2d Army, announced today a six-year plan for the training of approximately 571,195 ground force troops of the National Guard in the United States.

General Eddy said actual training of the National Guard would continue to be a state function. The Army Ground Forces, however, will detail Regular Army instructors responsible for supervision of the training program.

These instructors will be assigned to units down to and including the battalion level, the general explained.

The six-year program is designed to standardize National Guard training. It will go into effect when individual organizations reach an established quota of 45 per cent of the required number of enlisted personnel and 80 per cent of the required number of officers.

During the first and second years, training of units and individuals will be on the company level; during the third and fourth years, on a battalion level; during the fifth year on a regimental combat team and combat command level, and during the last year on a division level, according to General Eddy.

Basic and general, technical and tactical training will all be integrated in the general program, with training schedules depending to some degree on local conditions.

Regular Army instructors who assist the National Guard in carrying out this plan intend to utilize every known type of training aid used effectively during the last war, General Eddy said.

Part of the program will be the establishment of various types of schools, some offering courses to parallel Regular Army instruction, others as officer candidate schools to which qualified National Guard personnel will be assigned.

Correspondence courses on all subjects will be available. Local schools, set up by the chief of the National Guard Bureau, will be held.

Three National Guard divisions which have been or will be activated in the 2d Army area are the 28th, 29th, and the 37th Infantry Divisions, located in Maryland, Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Indiana, and West Virginia.

He will be succeeded in St. Louis as manager of the Red Cross Midwestern area by John C. Wilson of Atlanta, Southeastern a manager, and W. W. Jefferson of the Red Cross Washington staff will become Southeastern manager.

Advice On Return Of U.S. War Dead

Washington, July 6 (AP)—The War Department today advised that relatives steer clear of organizations and individuals undertaking to act as go-betweens in arranging for the return of war dead.

Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks said a letter to the quartermaster general from relatives would produce full information on plans to bring back the bodies of most of the approximately 310,000 war dead, and on location of graves.

Parks, chief of the public relations division, said there had been "numerous instances" of appeals to relatives "to join one or more of a variety of organizations which plan to offer special assistance or information regarding graves or cemeteries overseas."

Many of the proposals for special attention to overseas graves which have been suggested for relatives to follow "have the tinge of commercialism and none has official sanction," he added.

Agency Offers To Sell Floating Power Plant

Washington, July 6 (AP) — The floating power plant Resistance, built during the war for emergency use, was offered for sale tonight by the War Assets Administration.

The steam generating plant is in an all-welded, seagoing hull and has a rated output of 30,000 kilowatts.

Pueblos Donate Grain Reserve To Ease Famine

Washington, July 6 (AP)—Pueblo Indians, of New Mexico have given for overseas famine relief the meager store of grain which tribal custom decrees they must save from each year's crop for "emergency" use.

Announcing this today, UNRRA headquarters said a tribal spokesman wrote:

"Pretty hard for peoples and children to forget the war and live the right way for peace with empty bellies.

"So we say we haven't got much saved for our emergency but they got emergency over there so maybe we can help them."

Red, Norah, 3 Babies Head For Pittsburgh And Parson

New York, July 6 (AP)—World War II's most publicized Anglo-American family—Norah Carpenter, William (Red) Thompson and their three red-headed babies—left here today for Pittsburgh by auto, the New York Mirror said in a copyrighted story.

Brick-topped Maureen, Madeleine and Michael, born out of wedlock in England more than two years ago as quadruplets with a brother who died later, bounced and played and slept on the back seat of the car. It was the last lap of their long journey to their new home.

The family was reunited yesterday after a 15-months' separation, when Norah and the children arrived by plane from England. Thompson's first wife divorced him last April, and he and Norah plan to be married as quickly as possible.

Red Helps Dress The Children

For Norah Carpenter, today began at dawn, the Mirror said, when the children roused themselves, giggling and happy.

Red came in from his room in the same hotel to assist with the dressing rites. Maureen and Madeleine were clad in twin white dresses and Michael in a white suit.

Before 8 o'clock they left for Pittsburgh, where Red is employed as a pressman in a commercial printing house. Norah was busy watching the new countryside, which she said was "prettier than England's," and so was Michael, who kept his snub nose plastered to the rear window.

Time Out For Soda Pop

First stop was near Newark, N.J., for breakfast. The children, unassisted, ate corn flakes with milk.

"They've been feeding themselves now for nine months," their mother said. "Nobody has to help them."

The young family hoped to get to Pittsburgh by dinnertime, so only necessary stops were planned. But in Clinton, N.J., they took time out for soda pop for the children, who drank with gusto and then wandered in a near-by field to pick flowers.

"I don't feel a bit nervous about meeting Red's family," Norah said. "I've often had mail from them and their letters have always been friendly and kind."

Red's mother has set aside two rooms in her Pittsburgh house for her son's bride and their children.

Norah, 'Red', Children Meet; Marriage Tuesday

JUL 7 1946

New York, July 6 (AP)—It was much the same as many another reunion after long separation—joyful but touching, tearful yet heart-warming. It was a climactic part of a two-year-old drama that touched heartstrings around the world.

A taxi sped up to a little terraced house in Elmhurst, Queens. A man raced from the house to the cab.

With a stifled sob, travel-worn, anxious Norah Rose Carpenter sprang from the taxi into the arms of William (Red) Thompson.

Around them gathered the three children whose birth, with a little brother who died shortly afterward, created a sensation in February, 1944.

From British Mining Town

Norah had come from the little mining town of Heanor, Derbyshire, England, to marry Thompson, of Pittsburgh, Pa., the father of her children, and to make a new home in this country.

For fifteen months, Thompson, a former GI who met Norah while he served in England and who, after the birth of the quads, acknowledged his paternity, had awaited the arrival of the mother and children, Maureen, Madeline and Michael. His first wife divorced him during that time.

Norah and the children arrived yesterday, aboard a plane from London. Thompson didn't go to the airport to meet them, but his attorney and a relative did.

He wanted the reunion to be a private one and so it was—save for a reporter for the New York Daily Mirror, which said it had made the arrangements to bring the father, mother and children together again. The newspaper described their meeting in copyrighted stories.

Tearfully Happy

As the 25-year-old Norah, her eyes filling with tears, embraced Thompson, 28, she exclaimed:

"My darling, I'm so happy to see you again."

Thompson, taut with emotion, could say only "hello." Then he kneeled to greet his three children. Maureen looked at him and said "Daddy."

Later they all went to the Mayflower Hotel, at which a suite had been reserved for Norah and the tots.

Tuesday the mother and her father will be married in Pittsburgh, where Thompson is employed as a pressman with a printing firm.

Divorced War Bride Weds Other Man In Five Hours

JUL 7 1946

Reno, Nev., July 6 (AP) — Mrs. Jean Pauline Carbone, 19-year-old British war bride, who won a bitterly contested divorce yesterday from former army Lieut. Harold Carbone, of Rochester, N.Y., was married late last night to Capt. Darrell A. Beschen, at whose Dubuque (Iowa) home her baby was born last February.

The quiet ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Harry Dunseath, little more than five hours after she received her divorce decree on grounds of mental cruelty.

Carbone had protested his wife's divorce action, accusing her of adultery. He named the 24-year-old Beschen as corespondent.

Flies In For Ceremony

Beschen flew here on a four-day leave from Shreveport, La., Thursday, but his presence was not publicly disclosed until last night. The couple left immediately for an undisclosed destination.

John Robb Clarke, attorney who won Mrs. Carbone the contested decree, and his daughter, movie starlet Reno Brown, served as witnesses at the wedding.

Mrs. Carbone's son was born last February 9, more than thirteen months after she and Carbone had parted in London. The Carbones were married there in 1944 while he was on duty in England.

Not Bitter, Says Carbone

Carbone, who had told interviewers that he contested the divorce for religious reasons, said after the decree was granted:

"I'm not bitter about it—at least, I'm free."

Attorneys for the principals said that Carbone testified he sent his wife $2,400 from the time he left England until she arrived in this country.

Instead of joining Carbone upon her arrival she went to Beschen's home in Iowa, and at the time of the child's birth Beschen said it was his son.

After the trial Mrs. Carbone said that when she came to this country she had "every intention" to join her husband but that upon her arrival she telephoned him and he told her: "No, I don't want you."

Wermuth Confirms Seeking Divorce

JUL 7 1946

Detroit, July 6 (AP) — Major Arthur J. Wermuth, the one-man army of Bataan, today confirmed reports he would seek a divorce from Mrs. Jean Wermuth, of Traverse City, Mich., in order to marry Miss Patricia Steele, 22-year-old Denver (Col.) parachutist.

"I'm going to marry Patty if it takes ten years," he said during a stopover here while en route to Traverse City where the Flying Tigers, with whom he is associated, will present their air show tomorrow.

Miss Steele accompanied the major and he said she would go to Montreal with him next week to visit his mother and sister.

The major said he would "talk things over with my wife" over the week end. He declared that she recently had declined to seek a divorce at his suggestion.

Mrs. Wermuth, reached by telephone, declined comment.

Bowles Off on Month's Cruise

PORTLAND, Me., July 6 (AP).—Chester Bowles, resigned stabilization director, departed from here today with plans to leave the battle for the Office of Price Administration's revival far in the wake of a thirty-nine-foot yacht on which he and his family will cruise Maine waters for a month. Mr. Bowles said after his arrival last night he could not "see much difference between the new compromise O. P. A. bill and the one whose passage prompted him to resign as stabilization director, effective July 10.

Entry Of Half-Jap GI Bride Is Issue

JUL 7 1946

Seattle, July 6 (AP)—An ex-soldier has appealed to Federal Court to force immigration officials to release, and not deport to Japan, the alien bride he married at sea while returning from army of occupation duty.

John A. Bouiss, of Portland, Ore., explained that his bride was born in Japan of a German father and Japanese mother. She previously had a Swedish husband. She is the former Helene Emilie Wilson.

Bouiss petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus for her release from the immigration department here, where she has been held for two months. The Board of Immigration Appeals ruled after her arrival with Bouiss that she was ineligible for citizenship. John P. Boyd, chief of the Immigration Adjudication Division here, said the ruling was based on the fact that she is half Japanese. He warned that Japanese wives of any other returning service men will face the same situation.

Bouiss contends she is entitled to free entry as the wife of a United States citizen. His attorneys, Leo Levenson, of Portland, and John Caughlan, of Seattle, obtained an order from Judge Lloyd L. Black citing the immigration director here to show cause Monday why she should not be freed.

3 Stowaways Arrive In U.S.

New York, July 6 (AP)—Three stowaways—one an American-born woman who spent five years in German and Italian concentration camps, the second an Italian merchant seaman and the third a Greek woman were aboard the S.S. Marine Carp which arrived today from Naples and Genoa.

The American-born woman was Virginia Paolucci, 27, daughter of Nicola Paolucci, formerly a glass manufacturer of Fairmont, W.Va. She was taken to Trieste in 1936 to attend school in her father's native city.

Miss Paolucci said she was arrested as a spy suspect in April, 1940, because her room-mate had a high-powered radio receiver and transmitter in her quarters.

The young woman, who was taken to Ellis Island, said she believed her parents, a brother and sister now were in Argentina, and another brother, Louis, lived in Buffalo, N.Y.

Another stowaway was Paolo Francesco Conte, 23, merchant seaman, who boarded the vessel at Palermo and was not discovered until the ship was off quarantine yesterday.

Mrs. Katty Pavlu, 26, a Greek, traveled without a passport and was identified only by a card issued by the Greek delegation to the Advisory Council for Italy.

The ship also carried Paul Cuni, 51, formerly of Los Angeles, who went to Italy in 1939, was married and returned to this country with his wife and five children. He said they would live in Los Angeles.

MAJOR AND FAMILY DISAPPEAR ON TRIP

JUL 7 1946

Kidnapped "Somewhere Near Chicago," Relatives Fear

Chicago, July 6 (AP)—The Chicago Missing Persons Bureau tonight said Major and Mrs. Thomas W. Jurika and daughter checked out of the Knickerbocker Hotel here at 11.30 A.M. today and presumably were "en route to Berkeley, California."

Oakland, Cal., July 6 (AP)—A mystery developed today over the whereabouts and safety of an army major, his wife and boy, who vanished after leaving Toronto 26 days ago. A telephone call last night informed relatives here they were "in trouble somewhere near Chicago," and led to the conjecture they may be held by kidnappers.

The three were Major Thomas Walker Jurika, 31; his wife, Virginia, and his stepson, Billie, 6.

Wired Bank For $2,000

He was known to have had several thousand dollars in cash when the left Toronto. His San Francisco bank said today he had wired for $2,000 to be sent to him in care of the main Western Union office, Detroit.

The bank, the American Trust Company, became suspicious at the request, and withheld sending the money until a further check could be made. It asked the Berkeley police for information concerning Major Jurika, but police referred the bank to the army inasmuch as the major is still on terminal leave. The bank said that the person requesting the money gave the number of the major's bank passbook.

The telephone call last night to Mrs. Jurika's mother, Mrs. L. F. Schroeder, led her to conjecture, she said today, the three may be held by kidnapers.

Evasive In His Replies

The major was evasive in his replies to questions, she said. Her daughter's voice was not normal, and she wouldn't answer questions.

Little Billie's conversation consisted mainly of queries about his puppy here. Mrs. Schroeder said her daughter and son-in-law talked as if they were under duress.

The Jurikas were to have flown to the Philippines on June 26.

Mrs. Schroeder quoted the major as saying they were in "terrible trouble" but could not discuss their situation over the telephone.

Mrs. Jurika, a divorcee, was married to the major on March 18. They left the next day on a long automobile tour of Mexico, the United States and Canada. They were to have been back in San Francisco for an important business appointment on June 15, but when they did not appear for several days after that date, the bride's parents notified the police and the FBI.

The Schroeders said the last direct word they had received from the Jurikas prior to the telephone call was a postcard mailed from Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, on June 10, saying they were en route to Chicago by way of Detroit and that all was well.

Major Jurika served with distinction with Philippine guerrillas during the war. His mother was beheaded by Japanese while in an interment camp there.

Marine Changes Name to Honor Hero

JUL 7 1946

He Takes Court Action So His Baby Can Bear Name of Buddy Who Was Killed on Guadalcanal.

Attleboro, Mass., July 6 (A. P.).—The former Searle A. Martin, 23-year-old Marine veteran, today was legally known as Stephen Albert Crandall so that his first born—if it's a boy—may bear the name of a hero buddy who died in the initial victory against the Japs on Guadalcanal.

Probate Judge Mayhew R. Hitch granted Martin's petition to change his name because he wants his first son to have the same designation as the Covington (Ky.) boy who never had a chance to marry or a family to carry on his name.

"I felt that it would be something that he might like if he knew some one would carry on his name," the veteran said in an interview. "He missed so much of what I've got now."

He nodded toward his shy young wife who was doing the housework in the kitchen of their comfortable home. "She doesn't like to publicize this any more than I do," the former Marine said. "It was just the thought that we were doing something for a man who died like Steve did."

O'DANIEL RENT PAID UP, SAYS EX-GI TENANT

JUL 7 1946

Veteran Means To Stay Until July 20 Despite Eviction Order

Dallas, July 6 (AP) — Wesley Brient, the ex-GI ordered evicted from his apartment by Landlord Mike O'Daniel, son of Texas's junior senator, will keep his apartment at least until July 20, his attorney said today.

Morris I. Jaffe, retained by the American Veterans Committee to fight Brient's case, said since the veteran's rent is paid until July 20 O'Daniel cannot file suit until that time.

Brient said today he felt picketing of the apartment by approximately 60 members of the A.V.C. yesterday "did the job" in giving widespread publicity to his cause.

Other Tenants Keep Out Of It

Meanwhile, other tenants of the O'Daniel apartment refused to be drawn into the controversy. Their rents, according to Mrs. O'Daniel, have been raised or will be raised an average of ten per cent or less.

This is below the "absolute maximum" in rent increases recommended by the Dallas Real Estate Board in a resolution this week. The board urged a fifteen per cent boost as the top.

Brient said he had received an eviction notice following a quarrel between himself and Mike O'Daniel, another war veteran, over what Brient said was a sharp increase in rent. He said O'Daniel told him his rent would be boosted from $67.50 to $100 a month.

The O'Daniels could not be reached today for further comment.

Mrs. O'Daniel Explains Boost

Earlier, Mrs. O'Daniel said the rent increases mainly were to equalize rents in similar-type apartments. She said the OPA had different ceilings on almost all of the sixteen apartments, although actually the apartments could be divided into just three classifications.

Small efficiency apartments rented for $52.50 to $57.50; middle-sized apartments from $62.50 to $70; and the large apartments, like Brient's, were from $67.50 to $80. All are furnished.

She said the efficiency apartments have been raised to $60, the middle-sized apartments to $75 and the large apartments to $80.

Mike O'Daniel's father, Senator O'Daniel, has been in headlines recently because of his filibuster and fight against the OPA.

LONDON, JULY 6--(AP)-A SOCIALIST MAGAZINE CONTAINING A SCATHING ATTACK ON BRITAIN'S ROYAL FAMILY BY H.G.WELLS, ASKING WHETHER THE MONARCHY WAS INVOLVED IN PAYMENTS TO BRITISH FASCIST LEADER SIR OSWALD MOSLEY BEFORE THE WAR, APPEARED ON NEWSSTANDS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED KINGDOM TODAY.

THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE WORD OF PROTEST OR DENIAL FROM THE ROYAL HOUSEHOLD REGARDING THE SENSATIONAL ARTICLE, WHICH INQUIRED "HOW FAR OUR OWN ROYAL FAMILY IS INVOLVED" IN REPORTED PAYMENTS BY THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT OF BENITO MUSSOLINI TO BRITISH FASCISTS BEFORE THE WAR, AS ANNOUNCED RECENTLY IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

IF THE "GERMAN-RULED" MONARCHY WAS INVOLVED, WELLS DECLARED IN THE SOCIALIST LEADER, "THEN THERE IS EVERY REASON WHY THE HOUSE OF HANOVER SHOULD FOLLOW THE HOUSE OF SAVOY (FORMER RULING FAMILY OF ITALY) INTO THE SHADOWS OF EXILE AND LEAVE ENGLAND FREE TO RETURN TO ITS OLD AND PERSISTENT REPUBLICAN TRADITION."

THE NEWSPAPER LONDON JOURNALIST DESCRIBED THE ARTICLE AS "THE MOST SERIOUS THING SINCE THE ABDICATION OF EDWARD VIII."

THE REST OF THE BRITISH PRESS HAS SO FAR IGNORED THE ARTICLE, WHICH WAS PUBLISHED YESTERDAY, BUT DID NOT REACH THE BULK OF THE MAGAZINE'S SUBSCRIBERS UNTIL TODAY. THE "SOCIALIST LEADER" IS AN ORGAN OF THE FAR LEFT INDEPENDENT LABOR PARTY, WHICH IS NOT CONNECTED WITH THE GOVERNMENT. IT HAS A CIRCULATION OF 20,000.

WELLS SAID OF THE BRITISH ROYAL FAMILY:

"EVEN THIS GERMAN-RULED X X MONARCHY WHICH LINKS THE ENGLISH WITH THE CRUMBLING MONARCHIST SYSTEM OF THE WORLD IS MENACED BY A GATHERING ACCUMULATION OF REVELATIONS. THINGS ARE COMING OUT AND THEY ARE BOUND TO COME OUT.

"NOW THEY CAN BE BOUGHT OUT AND SET APART WITH THE SORT OF DIGNITY AND HONORS THEY VALUE. LATER ON, THEIR DISMISSAL MAY HAVE TO BE RUDER.

"THE GENUINE DEMOCRATIC COMMUNITIES THROUGHOUT THE WORLD NEED TO KNOW WHAT IS GOING ON IN THIS HUSHED-UP BUSINESS OF THE HUGE MOSLEY FUNDS AND HOW FAR OUR OWN ROYAL FAMILY IS INVOLVED IN THIS AFFAIR,"

WELLS SAID.

HOME SECRETARY CHUTER EDE ON JUNE 6 READ IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TWO LETTERS TO MUSSOLINI FROM COUNT DINO GRANDI, FORMER ITALIAN AMBASSADOR TO GREAT BRITAIN, ONE OF WHICH SAID THAT MOSLEY WAS GETTING

30-24-4007

ABOUT $241,612 A YEAR FROM ITALY. THIS WAS DENIED BY THE BRITISH BLACKSHIRT LEADER.

EDE MADE NO SUGGESTION IN HIS SPEECH THAT THE ROYAL FAMILY WAS IN ANY WAY CONNECTED WITH THE REPORTED PAYMENTS.

ALL AVAILABLE OFFICIAL SOURCES DECLINED COMMENT, MOST OF THEM SAYING THAT THEY HAD NOT SEEN THE ARTICLE. PERSONS ACQUAINTED WITH COURT ROUTINE SAID THAT IT WAS UNLIKELY THAT THE MATTER HAD BEEN BROUGHT TO THE ATTENTION OF THE ROYAL FAMILY, WHO ARE PREVENTED BY THE CONSTITUTIONAL LIMITS OF THEIR POWERS FROM REPLYING WITHOUT GOVERNMENT SANCTION.

THE LABOR GOVERNMENT, WHOSE LEADERS HAVE AFFIRMED THEIR LOYALTY TO THE MONARCHY IS CONSIDERED LIKELY TO TAKE A SERIOUS VIEW OF THE ATTACK BY WELLS, WHO NEVER MADE A SECRET OF HIS VIEW THAT BRITAIN SHOULD BE A REPUBLIC.

IN REFERRING TO THE "HOUSE OF HANOVER" WELLS USED THE NAME WHICH THE ROYAL FAMILY DISCARDED DURING WORLD WAR 1 IN FAVOR OF "HOUSE OF WINDSOR." THE THRONES OF ENGLAND AND HANOVER, ONE-TIME PRUSSIAN KINGDOM, WERE UNITED UNTIL 1837.

BREMEN, GERMANY, JULY 6-(AP)-THE WORLD'S LARGEST SUBMARINE ASSEMBLY PLANT--A REINFORCED CONCRETE STRUCTURE RIVALING EGYPTIAN PYRAMIDS IN SIZE AND WEIGHT--STILL STANDS TODAY DESPITE PROLONGED HAMMERING WITH ALLIED BOMBS.

B-29 SUPERFORTRESSES FLYING FROM ENGLAND HAVE DROPPED ARMO-PIERCING BOMBS ON ITS ROOF--14 FAET THICK IN SOME PLACES AND 22 IN OTHERS--WITHOUT CAUSING ANY APPARENT SERIOUS DAMAGE. THE GERMANS BUILT IT AS A U-BOAT SPAWNING GROUND, HAVING ALMOST COMPLETED IT WHEN THE WAR ENDED.

IT IS REPORTED THAT BRITISH AND AMERICAN PLANES SOON WOULD START AN EVEN HEAVIER TEST BOMBING OF THE PLANT ON THE WESER RIVER BETWEEN BREMEN AND BREMERHAVEN.

THE STRUCTURE STANDS LIKE A HUGE WHITE BRICK 1,460 FEET LONG, 75 FEET HIGH, AND 340 FEET WIDE. WHEN I APPROACHED IT BY BOAT, IT LOOKED AT FIRST GLANCE AS IF IT NEVER HAD BEEN ATTACKED.

ITS WINDOWLESS, 12-FOOT-THICK WALLS APPEARED UNSCARRED. CLOSER INSPECTION SHOWED THAT THE ROOF WAS JAGGED IN SOME PLACES, PARTLY FROM BOMBS, PARTLY BECAUSE THE PLANT NEVER WAS FINISHED. THE ROOF IS STREWN WITH BOMB FRAGMENTS AND DUD BOMBS THAT BOUNCED UP FROM THE CONCRETE LIKE GOLFBALLS ON A SIDEWALK.

TWO 20,000-POUND BOMBS DROPPED IN MARCH, 1945, DURING THE WAR PIERCED THE ROOF, BUT SOME ENGINEERS SAID THE CONCRETE HAD NOT HARDENED COMPLETELY AT THE TIME, AND DOUBTED WHETHER THE GIANT BOMBS COULD DO IT AGAIN.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH FLIERS HAVE COOPERATED IN A DOUBLE PURPOSE PLAN OF ATTEMPTING TO RAZE THE STRUCTURE AND TO TEST NEW-TYPE AERIAL MISSILES.

IN A STATEMENT, FOREIGN MINISTER WANG SHIH-CHIEH DECLARED:

"IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE MOSCOW AGREEMENT OF DEC. 24, 1945, TO WHICH THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT ADHERRED, THE DRAFTING OF TREATIES OF PEACE WITH ITALY, RUMANIA, BULGARIA, HUNGARY AND FINLAND MUST BE UNDERTAKEN BY DEPUTIES AND FOREIGN MINISTERS OF FRANCE, BRITAIN, THE UNITED STATES AND RUSSIA, WHILE THE PEACE CONFERENCE WHICH WILL CONSIDER THE DRAFTS WILL BE CONVENED BY THE "COUNCIL OF FOREIGN MINISTERS.'

"IT IS THEREFORE CLEAR THAT THE FORTHCOMING PEACE CONFERENCE IN PARIS SHOULD BE CONVENED BY THE FULL COUNCIL OF FOREIGN MINISTERS AND NOT BY THE FOREIGN MINISTERS OF FRANCE, THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN AND SOVIET RUSSIA."

JUL 7 1946

IF THIS IS NOT DONE, ADDED WANG, THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT WILL DEEM IT A VIOLATION OF THE MOSCOW AGREEMENT.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JULY 6-(AP)-THE NEW YORK TIMES SAID TODAY IN A DISPATCH FROM PARIS THAT THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION TO THE PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE, SCHEDULED TO CONVENE JULY 29, WILL ARRIVE AT THE MEETING WITH "AN OPEN MIND" ON THE PROBLEM OF MAKING PROVISION IN THE TREATY STRUCTURE FOR EVENTUAL REVISION OF THE PACTS, IF DEEMED ADVISABLE.

C.L.SULZBERGER, THE WRITER, SAID HE RECEIVED A LETTER FROM SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES F.BYRNES WHICH EMPHASIZED THE DIFFICULTY OF PROVIDING IN ADVANCE METHODS FOR PEACEFUL CHANGES IN FRONTIERS AND IN THE OTHER SPECIFICATIONS LAID DOWN IN TREATIES WHICH THE CONFERENCE WILL CONSIDER AND THEN SUBMIT TO THE FOURPOWER FOREIGN MINISTERS' COUNCIL FOR FINAL APPROVAL.

DIPLOMATISTS IN PARIS, INCLUDING MEMBERS OF THE FOREIGN MINISTERS' COUNCIL DELEGATIONS, THE TIMES SAID, BELIEVE THE TREATY DRAFT RECOMMENDATIONS BEING MADE BY THE COUNCIL NOW ARE NOT PERFECT AND MIGHT ADMIT OF SOME CHANGES AT FUTURE DATES.

A PARTIAL TEXT OF BYRNES' LETTER AS QUOTED BY SULZBERGER:

"THE PROBLEM OF PROVIDING THE MEANS FOR A PEACEFUL CHANGE IS A DIFFICULT ONE. WE ALL KNOW THAT THE WORLD DOES MOVE AND THAT, IF THE [illegible] OF FORCE IS TO BE AVOIDED, WAYS MUST BE FOUND OF FACILITATING CHANGES BY PEACEFUL MEANS. ON THE OTHER HAND, IT WOULD BE DIFFICULT TO SECURE

THE ACCEPTANCE OF ALMOST ANY SETTLEMENT OF A CONTROVERSIAL CHARACTER IF THE MEANS OF UPSETTING IT ARE TOO READILY VAILABLE.

"ARTICLE 12 WAS INSERTED INTO THE CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS TO PROVIDE A WAY OF FACILITATING NEEDED CHANGES BY PEACEFUL MEANS. THERE MAY BE A QUESTION WHETHER THE WAY THERE PROVIDED IS WHOLLY ADEQUATE. IT IS DIFFICULT AT THIS TIME TO FIND OTHER AND MORE EFFECTIVE WAYS WHICH WOULD MEET WITH GENERAL ACCEPTANCE.

"THE AMERICAN DELEGATION, HOWEVER, HAS NOT A CLOSED MIND ON THIS SUBJECT AND WOULD EXAMINE ON THEIR MERITS ANY PROPOSALS WHICH MIGHT BE LAID BEFORE THE PEACE CONFERENCE."

ARTICLE 12 OF THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER, SULZBERGER SAID PROVIDES THAT WHILE THE SECURITY COUNCIL IS EXAMINING ANY "DISPUTE OR SITUATION," THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY SHALL NOT MAKE ANY RECOMMENDATION REGARDING SUCH DISPUTE OR RECOMMENDATION UNLESS THE SECURITY COUNCIL SO REQUESTS.

FURTHER, ARTICLE 12 PROVIDES THAT THE SECRETARY GENERAL, WITH THE CONSENT OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL, SHALL NOTIFY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY AT EACH SESSION OF ANY MATTERS RELATIVE TO THE MAINTENANCE OF INTERNATIONAL PEACE AND SECURITY WHICH THE SECURITY COUNCIL IS HANDLING, OR IMMEDIATELY THE SECURITY COUNCIL CEASES TO DEAL WITH SUCH MATTERS.

THE PROPONENT OF AIR POWER, EN ROUTE TO THE MAINLAND AFTER WITNESSING THE BIKINI TEST, ACKNOWLEDGED THAT THE BOMB WAS "UNQUESTIONABLY THE MOST EFFICIENT EXPLOSIVE SO FAR DEVISED," BUT ADDED THAT IT "SIMPLY MAKES WAR TECHNOLOGICALLY MORE COMPLICATED AND THEREFORE MORE COSTLY."

ABOARD THE U.S.S.APPALACHIAN, JULY 6-(AP VIA NAVY RADIO)-HAD THE FIRST ATOMIC BOMB TEST JULY 1 BEEN COMBAT ACTION, THE POWER OF THE FLEET STRUCK WOULD HAVE BEEN WIPED OUT, BRIGADIER GENERAL ROGER M.RAMEY, AAF COMMANDING OFFICER OF TASK GROUP 1, JOINT TASK FORCE 1, SAID TODAY AN EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW. THE TEST FLEET CONSISTED OF30 COMBAT SHIPS, 30 SUPPORTING SHIPS AND 13 OTHER FLOATING TARGETS.

THE GENERAL AMPLIFIED HIS STATEMENT BY POINTING OUT THAT 16 SHIPS REPRESENTING ALL TYPES IN THE TARGET ARRAY WERE COMPLETELY ELIMINATED FROM COMBAT AND 25 TO 30 OTHERS WERE DAMAGED TO A LESSER DEGREE. FIVE SHIPS SANK; ELEVEN OTHERS SUFFERED DEADLY DAMAGE TO THEIR BOILERS FROM THE FORCE OF THE BLAST RUSHING DOWN THE SHIP'S STACKS DURING THE FIRST HORRIBLE FEW SECONDS.

WITH BOILER CASINGS RIPPED AND USELESS, POWER TO MANEUVER WAS GONE. UNABLE TO FIGHT THEY WOULD BE MERE SITTING DUCKS WAITING TO BE SUNK WITHOUT DIFFICULTY IN WHATEVER MANNER ATTACKERS CHOSE. IT WOULD REQUIRE THREE WEEKS TO REPAIR BOILERS.

NEWSPAPERMEN WERE TAKEN ON A TOUR AMONG THE TARGET SHIPS THE DAY AFTER THE BOMB WAS DETONATED BUT WERE NOT PERMITTED BELOW DECKS ON ANY SHIPS. QUESTIONS ABOUT BOILER DAMAGE AND ABILITY TO FIGHT WERE IGNORED AND EVADED.

THE PERSONNEL TOPSIDE ON SHIPS WITHIN A HALF-MILE OF THE BLAST WOULD HAVE BEEN KILLED INSTANTLY; 50 PER CENT OF THE MEN INSIDE SHIPS WOULD HAVE BEEN INSTANTANEOUS CASUALTIES. RADIOACTIVITY, IT IS BELIEVED, WOULD SUBSEQUENTLY TAKE OUT OF COMBAT THROUGH DEATH OR ILLNESS VIRTUALLY EVERY MAN IN THE FLEET.

OFFICIALS EMPHASIZE THIS WAS PURELY A SCIENTIFIC TEST AND COMPLETE EVALUATION OF DAMAGE AND CONCLUSIONS DRAWN THEREFROM WILL NOT BE AVAILABLE FOR MANY MONTHS. NEVERTHELESS THE AMERICAN PEOPLE ARE ENTITLED TO KNOW THE DEVASTATION WROUGHT INDICATES GLARING IMPOTENCE OF NAVIES IN FUTURE WARS (WHICH EVERYONE PRAYS WILL NEVER OCCUR) WHETHER NAVIES ARE OFFERED FOR OFFENSIVE OR DEFENSIVE PURPOSES.

THE FIRST BIKINI TEST ENVISIONS PLANES OF THE FUTURE CARRYING ATOM BOMBS OVER AND BEYOND ANY NAVIES THAT MIGHT EXIST, TO THE ENEMY'S HOMELAND TO DESTROY PRODUCTION CENTERS, TRANSPORTATION, POWER PLANTS AND CITIES. THIS ACCOMPLISHED WITH JUST ONE WAVE OF PLANES CARRYING JUST A FEW ATOMIC BOMBS WOULD LEAVE NOTHING FOR NAVIES TO PROTECT AND NAVIES THEMSELVES, AS THIS FIRST TEST DEMONSTRATES, COULD BE WIPED OUT QUICKLY AND AT WILL.

TO THE SOUTH, THE RUSSIANS HAVE UPWARDS OF 150,000 SOLDIERS IN AUSTRIA AND ON THE CLAIM THAT SUPPLY LINES TO THESE HAVE TO BE MAINTAINED ACROSS INTERVENING BALKAN COUNTRIES THEY HAVE ABOUT 500,000 TROOPS IN EX-ENEMY AREAS IN THE BALKANS--POSSIBLY MANY MORE.

THEIR MILITARY ACTIVITIES IN YUGOSLAVIA AND ALBANIA, FRIENDLY NATIONS TIGHTLY HELD TO RUSSIA BY THEIR COMMUNIST GOVERNMENTS, ARE A SUBJECT OF MANY RUMORS AND REPORTS BUT PRACTICALLY NO OFFICIALLY AND PUBLICLY CONFIRMED INFORMATION.

THE VIEW OF TOP AMERICAN GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS IS THAT THE NUMBER OF TROOPS WHICH THE RUSSIANS ARE MAINTAINING IN POLAND IS FAR GREATER THAN THEY NEED TO SUPPLY THEIR GERMAN FORCES. THE SAME THING APPLIES TO THE TROOPS THEY HAVE THEORETICALLY ALONG THEIR COMMUNICATION LINES TO AUSTRIA.

IN ADDITION TO THE RUSSIAN TROOPS IN EUROPE THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN AND FRANCE HAVE OCCUPATION FORCES IN GERMANY AND AUSTRIA AND ANGLO-AMERICAN UNITS, THEORETICALLY AT LEAST, ARE DEPLOYED IN ITALY TO KEEP OPEN A SUPPLY LINE TO AUSTRIA. THEIR DEPLOYMENT PUTS THEM IN THE POSITION OF GUARDING THE ITALIAN BORDER IN THE TRIESTE AREA, BUT IT IS EXPECTED THAT ONE WAY OR ANOTHER PEACE AND QUIET WILL BE RESTORED TO THAT AREA SOON AND OFFICIALS HERE EXPRESS HOPE THAT SETTLEMENT OF OCCUPATION ISSUES WILL PERMIT WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS FROM BOTH AUSTRIA AND ITALY PERHAPS BY THE END OF THIS YEAR.

WASHINGTON, JULY 6-(AP)-A RUSSIAN MANEUVER TO KEEP SOVIET ARMIES SPREAD OVER EASTERN EUROPE AS LONG AS POSSIBLE IS BEING PREDICTED PRIVATELY BY DIPLOMATIC AUTHORITIES HERE DESPITE THE PROGRESS ON PEACE-MAKING AT PARIS.

FAILURE OF THE RUSSIANS TO FOLLOW SUCH A LINE, IT IS SAID, WOULD MARK A MAJOR CHANGE IN KREMLIN FOREIGN POLICY AND WOULD EASE TENSIONS AMONG THE GREAT POWERS FAR MORE THAN IS EXPECTED AS THINGS NOW STAND.

THE WITHDRAWAL OF OCCUPATION ARMIES AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE IS KNOWN TO BE ONE OF THE OBJECTIVES OF STATE BYRNES. ONE OF THE REASONS BYRNES HAS BEEN IN HASTE TO LAY DOWN PEACE TREATIES WITH ROMANIA, HUNGARY, BULGARIA AND FINLAND IS HIS EXPRESSED BELIEF THAT THIS WOULD BE THE FIRST STEP TOWARD GETTING RUSSIAN ARMIES OUT OF THOSE COUNTRIES.

THE LOGICAL NEXT STEPS IN THAT BYRNES PROGRAM WOULD BE CONCLUSION OF A PEACE TREATY WITH AUSTRIA AND REVIEW OF GERMAN OCCUPATION PROBLEMS WHICH HAVE A BEARING ON THE NUMBER OF RUSSIAN TROOPS IN POLAND.

SOME INFORMATION REACHING WASHINGTON IS THAT THE ISSUE OF OCCUPATION ARMIES ALREADY IS TAKING FORM. BYRNES IS REPORTED BY SOME INFORMANTS TO FAVOR AN AGREEMENT AMONG THE BIG POWERS THAT OCCUPATION TROOPS WOULD BE WITHDRAWN FROM A COUNTRY ABOUT THREE MONTHS AFTER THE PEACE TREATY HAD BEEN SIGNED.

FOREIGN COMMISSAR MOLOTOV, ON THE OTHER HAND, REPORTEDLY FAVORS MAKING RATIFICATION OF THE TREATY THE CRITICAL POINT BY WHICH TO FIX THE DEADLINE FOR TROOP REMOVALS. SINCE MONTHS OR EVEN YEARS MAY ELAPSE BETWEEN THE TIME THAT A TREATY IS SIGNED AND THE TIME THAT IT IS RATIFIED BY ALL THE SIGNATORIES (IN THE UNITED STATES IT WOULD HAVE TO BE FIRST APPROVED BY THE SENATE), MOLOTOV'S PROPOSAL WOULD GIVE RUSSIA MUCH GREATER LEEWAY IN MAINTAINING TROOPS IN OTHER COUNTRIES.

THE TOTAL OF THESE TROOPS IS NOW ESTIMATED BY SOME AUTHORITIES HERE AT AT LEAST 1,500,000 MEN, POSSIBLY CONSIDERABLY MORE.

THE RED ARMY FORCES IN GERMANY, ACCORDING TO THESE ESTIMATES, NUMBER ABOUT 600,000 AND TO MAINTAIN LINES OF COMMUNICATION TO THEM ACROSS POLAND, THE RUSSIANS HAVE 350,000 SOLDIERS IN POLAND. THESE FIGURES DO NOT INCLUDE SUCH TROOPS AS THEY MIGHT HAVE IN TRANSIT, SAY IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA WHERE RECENTLY THEY SHIFTED CONSIDERABLE FORCES.

(ADVANCE)...BUFFALO, N.Y., JULY 5-(AP)-WHILE THE UNITED STATES IS ALLOWING ITS EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM TO "DETERIORATE," GREAT BRITAIN AND RUSSIA ARE PUTTING "VAST RESOURCES INTO THE DEVELOPMENT OF THEIR SCHOOL SYSTEMS," THE NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION WAS TOLD TODAY.

DR. RALPH MC DONALD OF WASHINGTON, EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF THE NEA'S DEPARTMENT OF HIGHER EDUCATION, TOLD THE GROUP'S 84TH ANNUAL CONVENTION IN A PREPARED ADDRESS:

"IT IS REPORTED THAT RUSSIA IN HER ECONOMIC POVERTY SPENDS THE EQUIVALENT OF $13,000,000,000 OR 20 PERCENT OF HER NATIONAL INCOME, FOR EDUCATION. WE IN OUR ENORMOUS WEALTH SPEND LESS THAN $3,000,000,000 OR LESS THAN TWO PERCENT OF OUR INCOME ON EDUCATION.

"IN THE WORLDWIDE STRUGGLE BETWEEN DEMOCRACY AND COMMUNISM AS WAYS OF LIFE, THE OUTCOME WILL BE DETERMINED BY EDUCATION, NOT BY FORCE; THE VICTOR WILL BE THE TEACHER, NOT THE SOLDIER."

"DURING THE WAR YEARS," CONTINUED MC DONALD, "ENGLAND, RUSSIA AND OTHER NATIONS KEPT THEIR TEACHER EDUCATION STUDENTS IN COLLEGE, EXEMPTING THEM FROM THE DRAFT BECAUSE THOSE NATIONS CONSIDERED THE MAINTENANCE OF THEIR SCHOOLS TO BE VERY IMPORTANT.

"LOW SALARIES ARE HELPING TO DRIVE TEACHERS OUT OF THE PROFESSION," HE SAID, "BUT IT IS THE LACK OF RECOGNITION OF TEACHING AND LACK OF DEMAND FOR GOOD SCHOOLS WHICH CAUSE SALARIES TO BE LOW.

"THE ONLY WAY TO BRING ABOUT GOOD SALARIES FOR TEACHING, IN MY OPINION, IS TO BUILD PUBLIC RECOGNITION OF THE IMPORTANCE OF TEACHING AND THE NEED FOR GOOD SCHOOLS."

SECRET DECISIONS ON GERMAN PEACE CHARGED BY REDS

Soviets Accuse U. S., Britain, France of Joining in Negotiations.

DEADLOCK AT PARIS

JUL 8 1946

Big Four Ministers Far from Agreement on July 29 Session.

PARIS, July 7—(AP) The Soviet news agency Tass charged today that Russia was being excluded from "secret" British-American-French negotiations on Germany. The charge was made as the four-power foreign ministers remained deadlocked on the issuing of invitations to the 21-nation European peace conference.

Tass, in a dispatch originating in Paris, declared that negotiations "have opened between representatives of the three governments, the United States, Britain and France, concerning Germany" and that the "Soviet representative, has for some reason not been invited, which has puzzled many people."

Secret Talks Reported

The negotiations, Tass added, "are conducted in strict secrecy and local circles conjecture that they concern not only economic but also other questions."

With just three weeks remaining before the schedulued opening of the peace conference on July 29, there was no indication from sources close to the foreign ministers that they would resolve the deadlock which might delay the conference indefinitely.

No solution was in sight on Russia's insistent demands that the Big Four impose a set of procedure rules upon the conference and the equally adamant British-American opposition to such a step.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov wants mandatory rules of procedure to accompany the invitations to the 17 other Allied nations. U. S. Secretary of State Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin are willing to enclose a set of rules as "suggestions," but only with the understanding they will not be binding upon the conference delegates.

Resume Session Today

The ministers are scheduled to take up this point when they resume their discussions tomorrow afternoon.

Tass, in its Paris dispatch, said that a French proposal, supported by Britain and the U. S., for a steering committee composed of delegation chiefs at the conference woud provide "ample ground for all kinds of conspiracies and top combinations." insert

It could not be learned whether there have been secret meetings among the western powers concerning Germany. There have been private meetings outside the foreign ministers council, and government officials from Belgium and Czechoslovakia — countries that would have claims against Germany — have conferred privately with the ministers, including Molotov.

3024-4013

British sources said that Molotov appeared anxious Friday night to get the German question on the council table. Molotov said then that he had a declaration to make concerning Germany. Last night, however, he did not mention Germany.

JEWS IN LONDON PROTEST RAIDS

JUL 8 1946

Thousands March, Demand New Palestine Policy

London, July 7 (AP)—Thousands of Jews, including 200 European orphans with concentration camp numbers tattooed on their arms, marched from London's East End to Trafalgar Square today in a protest against the Palestine raids.

Led by Thomas Gould, Jewish holder of the Victoria Cross—Britain's highest military decoration—the marchers carried banners reading "Stop Destroying Communal Settlements" and "Thirty Thousand Palestine Jewish Volunteers Served With The Allies."

Mounted police guided the procession, in which the Union Jack and Star of David were carried side by side.

Petition Urges Release

In Trafalgar Square, where police estimated the crowd at 5,000, a number of speakers addressed impromptu protest meetings, and a seven-member delegation took to 10 Downing Street a petition adopted earlier. The petition urged release of arrested Jews and carrying out of the Anglo-American commission recommendation that 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine immediately.

Meanwhile, the Jewish Agency for Palestine said that despite last week's denial by the Colonial Office there had been instances of assault, wanton destruction and looting in connection with the Palestine raids.

The statement, issued here, mentioned "the special horror with which Jews, after the searches, saw the swastika emblems which were left behind, or witnessed Nazi salutes and slogans being used by British soldiers—in fun, perhaps."

Colonial Office Statement

The British Colonial Office issued the following statement tonight:

"Recent allegations by the Jewish Agency for Palestine in New York included charges that the tour of Latrun detention camp by 22 press correspondents was a diversionary tactic and that 'the scene of the real British inquisition was Athlit camp,' which, it was stated, no observers have yet been allowed to enter.

"The fact is that the press correspondents were accorded the opportunity of visiting both camps and that on July 5 ten journalists visited the Athlit detention camp. Facilities have also been given to two rabbis, Goldman and Goldfarb, to visit all detention camps."

Goering Planned Investment in U. S.

JUL 8 1946

Wanted to Put $50,000,000 in American Industry

FRANKFURT AM MAIN, July 7 (AP).—Investigators for the Department of Justice have uncovered a pre-war plan by Hermann Wilhelm Goering to invest $50,000,000 in American industry.

Goering has admitted the scheme, in his cell at Nuernberg, and supplied additional details of the arrangements, which were broken off by outbreak of war with Japan, it was learned today.

Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge, prosecutor at the sedition trial at Washington in 1944, has returned to Washington with this information in a report to Attorney General Tom C. Clark. Mr. Rogge got on the trail of Goering's plan when he was questioning high Nazis at an internment camp on the outskirts of Frankfurt Am Main.

His report is expected to say that Goering's agents carried on conversations about the intended investment with several Americans at Washington, including a prominent labor leader who is identified in the documents.

Goering had a two-fold purpose, it was reported: to spread German influence with dollar diplomacy and to guarantee a personal income for himself against the day when he would find himself out in the cold in Adolf Hitler's scheme of things—an eventuality he always foresaw. Most of the money was intended for investment in oil holdings.

WASHINGTON, July 7—(AP) A Nazi scheme to use a huge fund to try and defeat President Roosevelt in the 1940 election campaign was disclosed today by Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge.

Rogge said, however, that former Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering told him that the plan never was put into operation because the "opportunity never presented itself."

Commenting concerning a story from Frankfurt, Germany, that Goering tried to invest $50,000,000 in American industry, Rogge told a reporter:

Goering Revealed Details

"Goering was perfectly frank with us. This money didn't involve industrial investments but an American political campaign.

"He admitted it was to influence the American election. They wanted to make an effort to try and defeat President Roosevelt. But the opportunity never presented itself.

"However, the sum wasn't $50,000,000. More than that I cannot say at this time."

Rogge questioned high Nazis in Germany in an investigation that lasted many days and he said he believed all details of the Nazi plan had been uncovered. He is writing a 30,000 word report upon it, and other phases of the investigation, for Attorney General Tom Clark.

Although Rogge declined to disclose any details of his talks with Goering he hinted that the Nazis had decided to try and open a wedge of influence in the United States during the late depression years.

Originated By Hitler

The plan apparently originated with Hitler, or his closest lieutenants, after they had decided they could not hope to gain the friendship of President Roosevelt. This was before, or right after the war started in Europe.

Rogge confirmed reports there was a large amount of money in the German embassy when the ambassador, Hans Thomsen, left for Berlin in 1941, after the declaration of war.

At Frankfurt it was said Rogge got on the trail of Goering's plan when he was questioning high Nazis at an internment camp on the outskirts of Frankfurt. He pursued the leads to the scene of the international trials now nearing their conclusion in the old Nuernberg courthouse.

Rogge's report is expected to say that Goering's agents carried on conversations about the investment with several Americans in Washington, including a prominent labor leader. This leader is identified in the documents.

Goering had a two-fold purpose, it was reported: To spread German influence with dollar diplomacy and to guarantee a personal income for himself against the day he would find himself out in the cold in Hitler's "scheme of things"—an eventuality the reichsmarshal always foresaw. Most of the money was intended for investment in oil holdings.

German Courts' Ability To Try Nazis Questioned

Americans Concerned as Former Party Leader Is Freed

FRANKFURT AM MAIN, July 7 (AP).—The acquittal of a former high Nazi who is now a leading Bavarian Communist has caused the American military government to question the ability of German de-Nazification courts to try their own political cases, the Army newspaper "Stars and Stripes" reported today. American-appointed German courts try former Nazi party members under authority approved by the Allied Control Council.

In a Munich dispatch the Army newspaper said Dr. Alfred Kroth, now a leader of the Bavarian Communist party, had been freed after convincing a seven-man German court he was a member of the Nazi party from 1933 only because he joined the Nazis on orders of the Communist party to act as a spy.

Kroth's "I was a spy" defense, the Army newspaper quoted American officers as saying, has opened a legal loophole for every Nazi in Germany. Most Nazi party members have said they were forced into joining the party.

RUSSIANS STILL SILENT ON SEIZED AMERICANS

JUL 8 1946

BERLIN, July 7 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, American commandant of Berlin, said tonight that he had received no response to his request to the Russians to release four Americans held for unauthorized entry into the Russion zone.

The four included three officers and the wife of one of them. Their names were not disclosed.

A warrant officer and his wife have been missing for about a week, since they were reported to have left the American sector in a jeep with their two German maids to buy a dog at an outlying kennel. The other Americans, a captain and a lieutenant, have been missing since July 4.

Lieut. Col. K. C. Frank, acting American provost marshal, said that this was not the first case of Americans being held for entering Russian-occupied territory without authorization but that generally persons so detained were released soon after questioning. He said that, when Americans took Russians into custody under similar circumstances, they always sought to turn them over to Russian authorities at the earliest opportunity, usually in less than seventy-two hours. He said that generally cooperation on both sides had been good.

SOVIET-HELD ZONE LIFTS FOOD OUTPUT TO PREWAR LEVEL

JUL 8 1946

By HENRY BURROUGHS

BERLIN, July 7. — (AP) Germany's bread basket—the Soviet-occupied provinces of Thuringia and Saxony—is producing pre-war quantities of grain, potatoes and sugar, and is exporting great quantities to supply the entire Russian occupied zone.

American correspondents, as guests of the Russians, toured through the solidly-planted land, and talked with the two German land presidents, Dr. Ehrhardt Huebner of Saxony, and Dr. Rudolf Paul of Thuringia. It was evident that every bit of farm land was being utilized. Fields of grain were growing right up to factory walls and fences in numerous instances.

In Halle, Saxony's undamaged capital city, Huebner told us his province was "not quite as productive as it might be, but every possible means is being used to increase food production." He added that in spite of the Soviet reparations removal of 14 of the 64 sugar refineries in Saxony, sugar production from Saxony's large beet crop has reached its peacetime level.

Soviet land reform has little or no effect on the food production in this section because less than 10 per cent of the land is affected.

Just outside Weimar in Thuringia we were taken to a large farm to see the early results of the "boden reform."

The farm had belonged to a Pole who since has disappeared into one of the western zones and his 312-acre farm has been divided into small 12 to 17-acre tracts. The recipients of the land in this case were all men who had farmed for the former owner. Each had been allotted, besides the land, a house and barn, a horse, cow, ox, pig, heifer, farm wagon, plow and one harrow with the thrashing machines and tractors being used collectively.

Fifteen hundred new farm owners have been created in this manner in the district surrounding Weimer, according to the young German agriculture official who accompanied correspondents. He said at present an added incentive in the form of a 100 per cent state-paid subsidy was given the individual farmer for potato production. Potatoes, barley, wheat, rye and oats are the main crops.

tions by pro-Italian groups.

British military police replenished stocks of tear gas, which they used last night to break up a confused melee in Unita Square in which American and British soldiers were jeered and stoned. British troops have the responsibility of maintaining order in Trieste, since American military units have been given occupation duties elsewhere in Venezia Giulia.

Italian youths, many with heads and hands bandaged, apparently from last night's fighting, began gathering again shortly after noon today in Venti di Settembro Avenue. Several Allied vehicles were booed during the morning, but this practice ceased when British military police began directing those responsible to report twice daily for the next week to field security headquarters.

Eleven persons were injured last night, none seriously, during what a spokesman for the Italian Committee of National Liberation described as "spontaneous outbreaks" protesting the decision of the Council of Foreign Ministers in Paris to internationalize Trieste. Six Italian demonstrators were arrested on charges of individual assault.

Pro-Yugoslav leaders of a crippling harbor strike, now entering its second week, said their followers would not demonstrate against the Paris decision. They said some 200,000 workers would stay out, however, until the Allied Military Government, which has declared the stoppage illegal, meets de-

British field security officers, who have denied the presence of any Fascists among the police, said today they believed it was "outsiders," largely from Yugoslav-occupied Istria, who were causing trouble among Trieste Italians.

ITALIAN PREMIER SPEEDS SELECTION OF NEW CABINET

JUL 8 1946

ROME, July 7—(AP) Against a backdrop of turbulence and unrest over decisions affecting Italy at the Paris foreign ministers conference, Premier-designate Alcide de Gasperi expressed confidence today that he would complete formation of a new government by tomorrow.

Morning newspapers in Rome paid scant attention to last night's anti-Allied demonstrations in the Piazza Venezia when screaming mobs protesting the Paris decisions ripped down road signs and pelted passing Allied cars with sticks and stinging epithets. The newspapers here played up similar outbreaks in Trieste, where tear gas was used to disperse crowds.

De Gasperi was said to have decided to retain the foreign affairs portfolio in his new cabinet until after the European peace conference scheduled to be called in Paris July 29. Previously he had been reported disposed to yield to Communist and Socialist insistence that the premiership and foreign ministry be divorced.

Political informants were agreed that Pietro Nenni and Palmiro Togliatti, Socialist and Communist leaders, would be made vice presidents of the ministry in token of their party postions established in the June 2 elections as ranking second and third behind the Christian Democrats.

Public meetings of protest and demonstrations against the decision of the foreign ministers for internationalizing Trieste and awarding the Tenda-Briga regions to France were reported in Florence, Reggio Calabria, Cuneo, Modena and Padua. Allied authorities vetoed protest meetings in Milan.

In Padua the university bell tolled for nine hours in sign of mourning for "amputations" of Italian territory at Paris.

Can't Accept Decision Of Big 4, Yugoslav Says

Belgrade, July 7 (AP)—First Vice Premier Edward Kardelj said today the Foreign Ministers' Council had made decisions which the Yugoslav people could not accept, "because again, as at Versailles, the Slovenian and Croatian peoples have been divided between different countries."

Declaring that such decisions "bring about a heavy blow to the national rights of our people," Kardelj added that the "Paris decisions leave to Italy a strip of territory which is compactly inhabited by Slovene people."

"This is the kind of solution our Western allies call a 'rightful solution,'" Kardelj said in his statement, issued on his return from Paris.

Order To Non-Austrians Linked To Seizing Assets

Vienna, July 7 (AP)—Russian occupation authorities have ordered 54,000 native Germans and other foreigners in the Russian zone of occupation in Austria to leave the country by 6 A.M. Monday, it was learned tonight.

A reliable source said the new order was closely connected with the confiscation of "German assets" which the Russians announced yesterday. Austrian officials said the Soviets were claiming 75 per cent of the republic's industrial capacity.

Sent To French Zone

Red Army and Austrian Communist party trucks were posted outside the homes of the non-Austrians ordered to leave. The Russian order told them they would be permitted to take only 30 pounds of belongings. They were to be sent to the French zone in Germany.

The Austrian Government, it was learned, has advised foreigners in the Russian zones that only persons who came to Austria after the anschluss, March 13, 1938, and those who are not Austrian citizens, are obliged to comply with the order.

Yesterday's Soviet order took over $22,000,000 worth of industry in eastern Austria along with other "German external assets." The Russians insist property taken by the German after annexing Austria in 1938 is subject to seizure as German reparations under the Potsdam agreement—a view protested by the United States and Austria.

Austrian authorities said the new Soviet order contradicted both the London and Moscow declarations on Austria and declared that all three of the western Allies had expressed disagreement with this form of repatriation.

19 RUSSIANS ARE MURDERED IN POLAND

JUL 8 1946

Demobilized Soviet Army Troops Were Reported On Way Home

Warsaw, July 6 (AP) [Delayed]—The Polish Foreign Ministry said tonight that nineteen demobilized Russian soldiers, en route from German to Russia, had been slain by members of the outlawed National Armed Forces (NSZ) in a forest near Radom.

A Ministry spokesman said the Russians were killed "one by one" when the NSZ band attacked their camp on a highway near the Polish-Russian frontier. He added that slayings of Russian soldiers by the NSZ were becoming "rather numerous."

Simultaneously with the Foreign Ministry announcement, Vice Premier Wladyslaw Gomulka told a meeting of 3,000 Socialist party workers that his fellow Vice Premier, Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, and the NSZ were attempting to plunge Poland into civil war.

Mentions Kielce Pogrom

Citing the recent pogrom in Kielce in which at least 38 persons were killed, Gomulka declared that "Polish fascists" who supported Mikolajczyk "now surpassed their masters—the Nazis—in spreading anti-Semitism in Poland."

Earlier the Foreign Ministry announced it had dispatched militiamen and security police to Czestochowa to stem what appeared to be efforts to start a new pogrom there. A man there, the announcement said, attracted a crowd by displaying a camel. Then, anti-Jewish leaflets were distributed and anti-Jewish slogans chanted.

With police still investigating the Kielce pogrom, the Government said tonight that six persons accused of participating in the rioting there would go on trial Monday before a summary military court in Kielce. It was reported that hundreds of persons had been arrested in connection with the mass slayings.

Although Mikolajczyk's Polish Pesant party charged that secret police had created terrorism in the Poznan district during the national referendum June 30, the Foreign Ministry said tonight that no official protest had been made concerning any irregularities.

Returns from the referendum counted to date showed that the voters supported the present Government by a three-to-one ratio in voting affirmatively on all three referendum questions.

ALLEN DISPUTES PRAVDA

JUL 8 1946

Denies He Said U. S. Forced Soviet to Evacuate Iran

TEHERAN, Iran, July 7 (AP)—George V. Allen, United States Ambassador to Iran, denied today a story appearing in the Soviet Communist newspaper Pravda asserting that he had made false charges against the Soviet Union in a talk with members of the Tudeh (People's) party central committee.

Mr. Allen declared that the central committee had been invited to the United States Embassy on June 13 "to get acquainted." He said that an informal conference had lasted for two hours, but that he had made no statement relative to reasons for Russian evacuation of Iran or on Soviet policy against the independence of the country.

"Pravda," in a dispatch from Baku, said on Friday that Mr. Allen "indulged in a number of attacks against the Soviet Union, trying to convince his listeners that the Soviet Union's policy was directed against the independence of Iran." The Baku dispatch did not name the locale of the talks, but said their nature had been learned in that Soviet oil center on the Caspian Sea.

Mr. Allen said today that the embassy would release "any official reply to the Pravda charges."

Arabs Assail Truman Plan On Palestine

JUL 8 1946

Say President Is 'Begging for Jewish Votes in Presidential Elections'

Bid Him Let Jews Into U. S. Instead

British Report Raid on Office in Tel Aviv, With All Quiet in Jerusalem

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM, July 7.—The Arab Higher Executive Committee for Palestine drafted a letter to President Truman today accusing him of "irresponsible" statements and urging him to open America to Jews "if he really is in sympathy with the Jews and their plight in Christian Europe."

The committee will reiterate tomorrow its demand for dissolution of the Jewish Agency for Palestine and will threaten "civil disobedience if illegal immigration is allowed to continue," a spokesman said.

Meanwhile, tension eased slightly in Palestine, despite a raid on a government office at Tel Aviv and a broadcast by the "Voice of Israel," illegal Jewish radio, stating that recent British raids had not weakened the Jewish resistance movement. At Tel Aviv, an all-Jewish city, three unidentified men entered the government office, overpowered a guard and burned several documents and identity cards.

Ban Lifted for Soldiers

British soldiers at Jerusalem were patronizing Jewish-owned cafes and theaters again. A ban on such establishments, placed earlier by British Military Headquarters, had been lifted.

The Arab Executive Committee's note to President Truman sought to reply to the White House statement Tuesday that the United States was prepared to assume technical and financial responsibility for transportation of 100,000 Jews from Europe to Palestine.

"We protest strongly against such flagrant, empty and irresponsible statements issued now and then by the American President, irrespective of what their effects are going to be," the Executive Committee said.

It said it "would have wished to ignore this last statement and attach no importance to it—coming as it does at a time when President Truman is begging for Jewish votes in the forthcoming presidential elections.

Call It "Arab Country"

"We wish to remind the President, however," it said, "that if he is really genuine in sympathizing with the Jews and their plight in Christian Europe, we advise him to open his White House doors to them or the doors of his American continent, which can absorb not only 100,000 but millions of them.

"The Executive Committee wishes to remind President Truman that it is not within his power or jurisdiction or that of others to determine the future and destiny of this Arab country—as Palestine is not a parcel of merchandise which can be bought in the world financial market at Wall Street or bartered for Jewish votes, in spite of the fact that the American President controls the atomic bomb."

The statement portrayed Palestine Arabs as "determined to resist any further Jewish immigration with all the power, faith and determination at their disposal."

Dr. H. F. Khalidi, of the executive body, said its new note on illegal immigration would "warn the British that the Arabs will not continue to tolerate this flagrant violation of the British Government's laws."

Warning To British

He said this note would warn the British that further illegal entries would "result in a wave of nonco-operation by Arabs, followed possibly by civil disobedience. After that, the next step may be spontaneous mass demonstrations by Arabs, and this executive will refuse to accept responsibility for them."

Dr. Khalidi said in a statement that "the very fact that the British found it necessary to occupy the Jewish Agency for a week and arrest its leaders is evidence enough for dissolution of the agency under Article 4 of the mandate, which provides for recognition of the agency only so long as it is, 'in the opinion of the mandatory, appropriate.'"

"In addition," Dr. Khalidi continued, "we know of considerable other evidence found definitely linking the agency with violence and depredations of the underground group."

was "an unimportant historical background film of no value" to the thief.

The film was marked "top secret"—as is every atomic test film flown to the United States for development and study. Only a few pictures for release to newspapers are permitted to be developed at Bikini or Kwajalein. All other film is flown to the U. S., where the secret category may be changed.

In Washington, the Navy department announced Saturday night that the disappearance of 1,275 feet of "unimportant film exposed three weeks" before the atom test was "under investigation."

Stations to Detect Atom Blasts Tested

Tried Out on Bikini Bomb; May Be World Sentinels

KWAJALEIN, July 8 (Monday) (AP).—Instruments which may be able to detect atomic activity in distant countries were tested at twenty stations when the atomic bomb was dropped at Bikini. Results are not publicly available as yet.

The instrument stations were alerted before the first test bomb was dropped at Bikini July 1, and each will be alerted before impending underwater tests are made.

From data collected scientists hope to find a method of detecting and locating an atomic explosion anywhere in the world. Thus, if the instrument stations function as intended and any nation tests an atom bomb, as the United States did in New Mexico a year ago, the United States might be able to learn of it and prepare against a possible attack.

Most of the instruments are at established stations in the United States. Some were set up in the Marshalls area specifically for the ests.

Among the instruments are tidal gauges, seismographs and devices to record terrestrial magnetism and radioactivity. The equipment is located from Hudson's Bay to Peru and from the east coast of the United States to the west coast of Australia. In addition, seismographs are located at regular stations around the world.

MAY THREATEN BRITISH LOAN

JUL 8 1946

Policy In Palestine Likely To Affect House Stand

Washington, July 7 (AP)—Some Administration quarters privately voiced concern today that British policy on the Jewish question in Palestine may injure chances for House ratification of the $3,750,000,000 British loan.

But, taking account of the touchy situation, Sol Bloom (D., N.Y.), chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, announced he will support the loan.

Bloom said that Britain's Foreign Minister, Ernest Bevin, has made "foolish, ridiculous and asinine" statements on the Jewish issue, but the legislator declared this problem and the proposed loan are in no way related.

Bloom Makes Position Clear

He made his position clear as the House prepared to open tomorrow a four-day debate on the loan, with a vote expected Friday or Saturday. The Senate has approved the loan, 46 to 34.

Bloom said he is going to insist that the United Nations take up the Jewish question, "stop these pogroms" of killing and starving Jews in Central Europe "and settle this Jewish question once and for all."

Turning directly to reports around the Capitol that England's handling of the Jewish question may have alienated several House members from support of the loan, particularly some representatives from New York city, Bloom said:

"I don't like what Bevin is doing in Palestine. I don't like what Bevin is saying about the Jews in Palestine, Jews in New York and Jew in the United States. His remarks are just stupid and not according to facts.

"Nothing To Do With Merits"

"But they have nothing to do with the merits of the British loan.

"Some people are saying: 'We hate England; we're going to vote against the loan.' Now, I have no hate in me. And I know that this British loan is going to help my country. As an American I am going to vote for that which is of the best interest of my country.

"I know what I'm saying is going to displease a great many people who hate England. But their hate will not do England any harm or any good. If I should hate England so much that I should vote against the interest of my country, I would be hating my own country and doing my country harm."

U.S. TO BROADCAST PROGRAMS TO REDS

JUL 8 1946

State Dept. Plans News, Music for Russian Listeners.

WASHINGTON, July 7—(AP) The United States will begin broadcasting Russian language programs by short wave early next fall to the land behind the "iron curtain," according to plans now being perfected at the State department.

While officials are very reluctant to give out information pending final decisions, it is known that they estimate the Russians may have as many as 75,000 short wave receivers capable of picking up the programs.

News, Music Planned

The broadcasts will consist mostly of straight news reports with some commentary of a review and background nature, according to policy decisions thus far made, and there may be some broadcasting also of American music, mainly folk music.

Already Assistant Secretary of State William Benton, in charge of information, has his staff working on two critical problems in preparation for the broadcasting. One is how to boost the signals sent out from the United States so that they will be strong enough to be heard in Russia. This may be accomplished in part by using a wartime relay station at Algiers which helps send messages to the American embassy at Moscow.

Language is Problem

The other problem is the development of a Russian language staff with the ideas and idiom of the modern Russian. Evidently White Russian exiles and persons who have turned against the Soviet Union would not be qualified and the field of competent people is limited.

At present Britain alone among the great western powers is broadcasting to Russia. The French have announced a plan to start programs soon. The Russians have not objected in either case and American officials expect that they will raise no opposition to broadcast from the United States.

The program is being undertaken as part of the plans laid down by Benton for the $19,250,000 appropriation he received from Congress for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

PAULEY WILL RETURN TO U. S. THIS MONTH

NEW YORK, July 7. — (AP) Edwin W. Pauley, President Truman's representative on the Allied Reparations commission, probably will return within two weeks "and will have a good report to make to the President," Ernest L. Klein, Pauley's special assistant, said today.

Klein, who arrived at LaGuardia field after a 40,000-mile air tour of Europe and the Far East with the commission, declined to state total reparations claims but said "plenty of assets are available." Pauley, he said, now is in Berlin.

JUNE TESTIMONY IS DISCLOSED BY SENATE PROBERS

JUL 8 1946

Congressman Said Only Connection Was Timberland Deal.

REPORTS NO PROFIT

Senator Mitchell Renews Demand for Kentuckian to Appear.

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) Rep. May (D-Ky) told the Senate Mead committee last month that he never had any connection with an Illinois munitions combine, now under war profits investigation, except to help its principals make a timberland deal at no profit to himself.

The House Military chairman, in a transcript of his statement made public today by the war investigating committee at his request, said he "paid out every dollar" that he handled in the deal. He added that he had given the committee vouchers to show what was done with the money.

Testified on June 4

May told the committee on June 4 that none of the principals of the munitions concerns ever came to see him about war contracts until after the current inquiry got under way, and that visit was made to find out if there was an investigation going on.

"I do not know what contracts they had with the War department," May said. "I had nothing to do with procuring them or executing them, or anything connected with the management."

"You never aided them in their contracts with the War department or made contacts for them over there?" George Meader, committee counsel, pressed the point.

"I may have called somebody for them at some time for an engagement to see somebody with respect to some of their business after they had been manufacturing the goods," May replied. "I do not know. My recollection is that I did on one or two occasions."

With reference to how it came about that he was endorser on more than $18,000 in checks from the munitions concern to the Cumberland Lumber company which was organized for the timber deal, May told the committee:

"I felt responsible for getting strangers into a position where they might lose money, and in order to prevent that I assumed responsibility for the management of the lumber business and opened an account in the name of the Cumberland Lumber company, the owner, in my home town bank, in which I deposited all checks received to the credit of the lumber company, except my recollection is that I deposited to my personal account one of the checks for around $4,000. This I did for the reason that the bank required me to guarantee payment of the check by my personal endorsement on the check, which was immediately used for and every dollar paid out on obligations of the lumber company."

Appeared at Own Request

The statement, which Meader said was not made under oath, was given the committee June 4. It was brought out in the transcript that May appeared at his own request.

The congressman requested that it be made public in connection with open hearing testimony last week in which witnesses described him as "insistent" in assisting the munitions makers with contract making. Testimony about May-endorsed lumber deal checks also went into the record.

May told the Mead committee that he had had "a casual acquaintance with Joe Freeman and Murray Garsson for several years, and for a somewhat shorter time I have known Henry Garsson."

Henry Garsson has been described in testimony as the "brains" of the munitions combine which centers around Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., and Batavia Metal Products, Inc. Murray Garsson is another principal stockholder and Freeman is Washington agent for the group.

"I am not and never have been financially interested in the said lumber company," May testified, "or any other company owned by Freeman and Garsson, nor have I ever received any sum or amount from either of them for services or any other purposes."

May related that Freeman came to him—about three years ago, he believed—and wanted help to buy timber for war work. The congressman explained that he had been in the timber business for years and was a logical man to see about such a proposition.

He said he obtained an option on a Kentucky tract owned by the Mineral Development company of Philadelphia, and turned it over to "Freeman and Garsson." Presumably this was Henry Garsson who, May said he believed, was the real owner of the Cumberland company organized for the timber deal. May said he was named Kentucky agent for the company, on whom legal processes could be served, only on the principals' insistence that they must have somebody. Its manager began to sell the output on the open market, "only shipping small quantities to Garsson, and this resulted in a suit by the owners of the property and the sale of the property to Mr. Brown, the new operator." There was no further identification of Brown in the record.

Handled Later Payments

May said he did not handle the original down payment of more than $11,000 for the timberland, but four deferred payments of $2,500 each were transmitted through him, merely being relayed to the sellers.

May said he thought he handled about $31,000 of Garsson money for the lumber company, paying it all out on company business. Outside of the purchase of money payments, he said, the funds came from $48-634 in advances from the Erie and of course, I did not profit in any way or respect."

May accused Mead of "misleading reports and insinuations" to the effect that he had declined to appear before the Senate committee.

Asked for comment, Mead said: "The investigation will proceed."

George Meader, committee counsel, said the June 4 session was called at the request of May, that the Kentucky Congress member appeared at his own request and was not sworn.

Asked whether a Congress member could be brought unwillingly before a Senate committee as a witness, Mead said it was his understanding that the Senate would have to adopt a resolution requesting that the House produce the member and that the House then would vote on the question of whether to accede to the Senate's request.

Legal Questions Discussed

He said a "great variety of legal questions" were being discussed. Joining in these discussions with the committee members Saturday were James M. McInerney, first assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice department's criminal division; Isaiah Matlack, chief of the department's war frauds section, and Tom Pace, assistant to Matlack.

Attorney General Tom Clark said earlier in the week that the Federal Bureau of Investigation was looking into operations of the Illinois munitions combine.

Senator Mitchell also has asked the committee to subpoena a Ben Field who, he said, paid him a visit late last year and contended that the Senate investigating committee was "persecuting" the Erie Basin Metal Products company. Then, Mitchell said, the man wanted to contribute $5,000 to Mitchell's campaign fund.

Today, Henry Paynter, head of a Washington public relations firm who said he represented the Erie Basin company, told a reporter:

"I have discussed this testimony with officers and counsel of my client and they have informed me that the first they ever heard of Ben Field or of any visit that he made to Senator Mitchell was when they read about it in the newspapers."

With the question of May's appearance in abeyance, the committee will turn tomorrow to an examination of what was done about renegotiation of some $78,000,000 in war contracts which were awarded to Garsson's companies. During the war, when contracts were often of necessity let hurriedly, the War department followed a practice of renegotiating them later to scale down profits if it appeared the figures were too high.

Meader said Secretary of War Patterson and Undersecretary Kenneth Royall may be witnesses on Tuesday.

Assembly Majority Heeds Gandhi, Indorses British Project Despite Socialists

By The Associated Press

BOMBAY, July 7.—Overriding Socialist opposition and heeding the pleas of Mohandas K. Gandhi and other leaders, the delegate assembly of the All-India Congress (Nationalist party) approved today by a vote of 204 to 51 the British Cabinet mission's long-term plan for Indian independence.

The plan already had been indorsed by the Congress party's working committee, which submitted it to the Assembly at an emergency two-day meeting here. The Assembly approval came only after ten hours of debate, in which Gandhi and others supported the committee's recommendation.

The British Cabinet mission's proposals include creation of a federated union of India and election of a Constitution Assembly to draw up a charter for Indian independence. The Socialists demanded rejection of all the proposals.

One Socialist speaker, Mrs. Aruna Saf Ali, addressing Gandhi, said: "We have followed you for the last twenty-five years, and it is time now for you to follow us."

Gandhi worked at a spinning wheel before the crowded auditorium while the Socialists voiced their opposition.

Urging acceptance, Ganhi, who is the spiritual leader of the dominantly Hindu party, said:

"The British assure us of their sincerity, and I see no reason to doubt their sincerity. There may be defects and dangers in it (the British plan), but it is up to us to make it right through our efforts."

As a result of the action, the Indian people are scheduled to proceed now with formation of the Constituent Assembly. The Moslem League, chief rival of the Congress party, already has approved the British plan. The provincial legislatures will elect the assembly delegates.

The Congress last month rejected the Cabinet mission's proposal for a fourteen-member representative interim government, and the Viceroy on June 29 announced an eight-member caretaker council appointed by King George VI to administer the country.

'A-Bomb Incites Violence'—Gandhi

Bombay, July 7 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi says the atomic bomb will incite the world to "a return to violence with renewed zeal."

Gandhi, in his weekly magazine Harijan, published today, said that "it has been suggested by American friends that the atom bomb will bring in ahimsa (nonviolence) as nothing else can. It will if it is meant that its destructive power will so disgust the world that it will turn away from violence for the time being."

He declared that the bomb had "destroyed the soul of Japan," adding that "what has happened to the soul of the destroying nation is yet too early to see."

The question of abandonment of the bomb, he said, was "very like a man glutting himself with dainties to the point of nausea and turning away from them, only to return with redoubled zeal after the effect of the nausea is well over."

Precisely in the same manner the world return to violence wi renewed zeal after the effect disgust is worn out."

450 Prison Deaths Charged To Jap Officer

Tokyo, Monday, July 8 (AP)—Takao Saito, former Japanese Army warrant officer, was charged today with responsibility for deaths of 450 noncombatant Filipino and military prisoners in Fort Santiago prison in the Winter of 1944.

He will be tried in Manila, Allied headquarters said, with Lieut. James A. Wrighton, Ellicott City, Md., and Lieut. Rodolfo G. Tiquia, of the Philippine Army, a Bataan death march survivor, as prosecutors.

DISEASE KILLS 4 MARINES

Japanese Encephalitis Epidemic Reported in China

TIENTSIN, China, July 7 (AP)—Four Marines have died and twenty-eight have been hospitalized in an epidemic of Japanese encephalitis, a little-known type of sleeping sickness, at the United States marine base here, Navy doctors disclosed today.

All possible emergency precautions have been taken to combat the disease, which is caused by mosquito bites. All marines here have been ordered to remain indoors at night and to sleep under mosquito nets.

Physicians said "a high percentage" of those who suffer from the disease "fail to recover." It affects the brain.

This type of encephalitis first came to the attention of United States medical authorities at Okinawa, where invasion forces encountered a less serious outbreak.

Say They Shot Him After He Turned Gun on Them

SHANGHAI, July 7 (AP).—Staff Sergeant John R. Tarka, of Cleveland, was shot and killed today by Chinese police who asserted they acted in self defense.

The shooting occurred about 1:20 a. m., soon after Tarka had escorted a girl home from the Silk Hat, a night club operated by Vienese refugees.

American military police are investigating a Chinese police report that Tarka, who was mess sergeant for Lieutenant General Alvin C. Gillem, theater commander, fired two shots and turned his weapon against the Chinese before they shot.

SHANGHAI, China, July 7 (AP)—The resignation of Clarence E. Hall as managing director of the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration's highway transport has been accepted, the China office of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration announced today.

The announcement said an investigation had cleared Mr. Hall of misappropriation of funds, with which he had been charged, but showed laxity in administration.

JUL 8 1946

Marshall Lauded By GOP Senator

Nanking, July 7 (AP)—Senator Brewster (R., Maine) said today "I think the Republican party (in the United States) will go along with General Marshall on the China situation."

Brewster, who is one of the congressional committee which attended the inaugural of the Philippine Republic, continued that he personally had supported President Truman's policy toward China and believed his party would be content to leave the settlement of the Chinese situation in the "capable hands" (of Marshall) that President Truman had selected.

Untouched By Partisan Politics

"General Marshall never has been touched by partisan politics while he was directing the war effort and there is no reason why the Republican party should cease now to give him its entire trust and support," he said.

"If the difficulties in China reach an impasse, General Marshall's reports will carry great weight in fixing responsibility."

Acting as spokesman for the congressional unit, Brewster said the military-aid bill which the Chinese Communists have sharply attacked was a part of President Truman's program and if recommended by Marshall should receive congressional approval.

The committee, including Brewster and Senators Ellender, of Louisiana, and Butler, of Nebraska, and Representatives Robinson, of Utah; Crawford, of Michigan; Worley, of Texas; LeCompte, of Iowa, and Miller, of California, lunched with General Marshall and then visited with the Generalissimo before flying to Peiping.

Forrestal Lunches With Chiang

James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, also was in Nanking today and had luncheon with the Generalissimo. After paying a courtesy call to General Marshall, Forrestal flew to Peiping. He plans to continue to Shanghai tomorrow and from there to go to Japan.

The luncheons followed an embarrassing morning for the army and navy air services. Forrestal's navy transport plane developed motor trouble on the Shanghai-to-Nanking flight and was forced to return for repairs. The Secretary arrived at Nanking in a relief plane, an hour late for his appointment with Chiang.

The congressional group's transport crippled a wing when it landed on the rain-soaked Nanking airport.

CHINESE COMMUNISTS FOUNDING UNIVERSITY

JUL 8 1946

PEIPING, (AP)—The Chinese Communists are founding a university to which students preferring capitalism will be welcome—provided they unlimber their capital and pay their own way.

Students and professors who dote on Communism will practice it by living under a communal system, but the capitalists in their midst will have to live "on their own means."

That is the way Chancellor Fan Wan-lan put it in explaining the operations of North Fan Tah University, soon to be established at Shuntu, in southern Hupeh province of central China.

The party line will be hewn to in feeding the mouths of the students, but in feeding the intellects of the students the party line will be pitched out the window, says the chancellor.

Fan says that the university will not be interested in the political tinge of the professors, since absolute freedom of thought and action are the first requirement of progressive education.

Since 1939, Fan has been at Communist headquarters in Yenan doing research and organizing historical material for students at the new university, he said in an interview. The university already has more than 700 enrolled, he reported.

A 1917 graduate of the University of Peiping, Fan has taught at National University of Peiping, Sino-French University, Catholic University for Women and China College.

The last teaching job he had was up around the Honan province border in northern Hupeh from 1937 to 1939—his students young guerrillas, his curriculum the fine art of exterminating Japanese.

JAP GENERAL FEARED LOSS

JUL 8 1946

Tanaka Testifies He Told Tojo Defeat Was Sure

Tokyo, Monday, July 8 (AP)—Less than a year after Japan went to war with the United States, a high-ranking Japanese general told Premier Hideki Tojo the conflict was hopeless and resigned his important post, the general testified today before the international military tribunal.

The statement came at the start of cross- examination of Maj. Gen. Ryusuke Tanaka, who was chief of the Japanese Military Affairs Bureau until his resignation in September, 1942.

"I told Tojo that 'while your Excellency seems to have a feeling of certainty of Japanese victory, I think it is hopeless.'"

Predicted Fight To Finish

"Tojo said Japan would fight to the last man," Tanaka continued. He declared that while deeply indebted to Tojo, he was so sure the situation was hopeless that he asked Shigenori Togo (one of the 27 defendants on trial before the tribunal) to start a political movement to oust Tojo. He did not testify as to the outcome.

Tanaka, now in his third day on the witness stand, admitted that two months after his resignation he spent a month in a hospital because of "brain disease."

The general testified that his resignation was based on knowledge gained through inspections of Japanese strength before and after the outbreak of war.

Laid To State Of Defenses

"One reason for my action was the state of our defenses and equipment—air equipment in particular," he explained. He also reported quarreling between army and navy and said subordinates feared to report "the state of our preparations, particularly in shipping."

"Furthermore," Tanaka said, "our strength was not fully or truthfully reported on food, steel, coal and other vital necessities. Production did not go according to plan. It all meant the future of the war was hopeless."

Tanaka testified that as chief of the Military Service Bureau, he made inspections "to the single gun" at Kyushu, Hiroshima, Kobe, Tokyo and all vital places and knew the true situation.

Planes' Quality "Bad"

Prior to the war he asked an officer on maneuvers about the efficiency of Japanese airplanes. He said the officer told him he could not speak openly but that the quality of Japanese planes was bad.

"When I asked him why he did not speak frankly, he told me that if he did he would be fired.

"I was most seriously concerned that war with the United States might be protracted and that Japan might be bombed," Tanaka added. "I knew the character of modern war and felt if the Japanese homeland was bombed, that despite our fighting spirit it would end in our defeat."

JUL 8 1946

KWAJALEIN, July 7 — (AP) "Daves Dream," the B-29 which dropped the atomic bomb on the target fleet at Bikini last Monday, took off late today, en route to the United States with its famed crew.

The bomber, carying 20 men, will make a stopover at Hawaii. The entire crew, including groundmen, has been transferred to Roswell, N. M.

The have been pursued by autograph hunters since thy were chosen for the Bikini assignment and they wondered, as they departed, whether it would be the same at home.

The flight is a race with the stork for Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt, the pilot, and Lt. Robert Glenn, who are hoping to arrive home in time for the birth of children expected "any minute now."

STOLEN NAVY FILM SHOWED TEST DROP

KWAJALEIN, Monday, July 8—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey confirmed officially today the theft of a package of Crossroads film marked "top secret" from an officer courier in New York. He said the thief got an unimportant package being flown to Rochester, N. Y., to test the speed of delivery.

The commander of the 20th bombing command, with the permission of Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, commander of the army's atom-test operation, told this story:

On June 20, the dropping of a practice bomb at Bikini was filmed to test the photographic setup. The film included a picture of the detonation of the practice bomb. It Basin and Batavia companies for lumber to be delivered later.

Edward Schaffer, of the government's General Accounting office, testified yesterday that as of last April no lumber had been delivered on the advances. It was also testified tht $23,000 of the advances had been returned to the munitions makers since Schaffer examined the books in April.

May said the suit against the timberland operator was brought on his advice when lumber deliveries turned out to be small.

Wants May to Appear

Despite May's statement, Senator Mitchell (D-Wash) today renewed his insistence that the congressman be called for open testimony.

Before May's statement was made public Mitchell, a committee member with access to the June record, told a reporter his position had not been changed in May's statement yesterday that he had already told about the affairs under scrutiny.

The Washington senator's demand was first voiced after the committee received testimony that two munitions firms advanced $48,634 to the Cumberland Lumber company, Prestonburg, Ky., for lmuber and that $18,634.07 of checks to the company were endorsed by an A. J. May.

Prestonburg is the home of Rep. May, chairman of the House Military committee.

Four members of the committee, including Mitchell, considered late Saturday his motion to call May, but broke up their closed meeting without action. They explained they had done nothing for lack of a quorum. The committee has 10 members.

Asked whether he would renew his motion when a quorum could be assembled, Mitchell replied:

"That is not necessary. The motion is still pending."

During the hearings last week, Army ordnance officials testified that May "put on pressure" to get contracts for Garsson's companies who have been accused by Chairman Mead (D-NY) of the Senate committee of "war profiteering at its worst."

Issues Two Statements

May issued two statements through his office here disclosing that he had appeared before the Senate group June 4. He said his testimony at that time "included the Cumberland Lumber company thoroughly," and added that he explained to the committee that "there was nothing out of line" with the concern's accounts. May also said:

"Needless to say, everything I have done was for the benefit of my constituents and the war effort.

EXEMPTIONS CLOG OPA ROAD

JUL 8 1946

Friends And Foe Of Controls Want Items Kept Off List

Washington, July 7 (AP)—OPA's enemies and even some of its supporters piled up new proposals today to exempt particular commodities from the price controls Administration leaders hope to put back into operation before the week ends.

With debate opening in the Senate tomorrow on a belabored renewal bill, senators on both sides of the fight to restore controls made known their intention of seeking exemptions for products ranging from petroleum to cotton seed.

Senator Moore (R., Okla.), bitter OPA opponent, disclosed that he would offer an amendment to keep oil and its products off the list of items on which price ceilings may be revived. Moore said he hopes to enlist a majority of the senators as coauthors.

Cotton Seed And Southern Pine

Senator Eastland (D., Miss.), who said he wants OPA extended in modified form, announced he will propose that cotton seed also be struck from the control list.

At the same time, Senator Russell (D., Ga.), who said he wanted OPA continued "but not the way it is now," made known that he has drafted an amendment under which ceilings on Southern pine going into pulp products could not be placed lower than those for other sections of the country. He said such ceilings were $4 below the prices elsewhere when OPA died a week ago.

These proposals all added up to a new batch of trouble for Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) and others trying to push through a bill they think President Truman might accept as a substitute for the extended measure he vetoed June 29.

Vote By Midweek, Barkley's Aim

Barkley pointed his efforts toward a Senate vote around midweek, with the hope that a joint committee of senators and representatives then would agree quickly on a final version. All the House has passed is a temporary measure to revive OPA and keep it breathing until July 20 on the old basis.

Barkley said he had not decided whether to hold night sessions, but these seem likely if Senator O'Daniel (D., Texas) and others who don't want OPA revived engage in delaying tactics.

Some Republicans, like Senator Wherry, of Nebraska, obviously hope also that too much speed will not be displayed. Wherry said he thinks a few days more without controls will demonstrate that price ceilings aren't needed at all.

Poll Tax And The FEPC

A third group reported interested in lengthening the debate is made up of Southern Democrats who fear an effort will be made to bring the controversial anti-poll tax and Fair Employment Practices Commission bills as soon as the OPA measure is out of the way.

With adjournment of Congress possible some time between July 20 and 25, a member of this group said he and others want to put off as long as possible any filibuster on which they might embark.

First Test On Meat Amendment

Confident that they can defeat a proposal by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) to write in a manufacturers' profits amendment similar to that contained in the vetoed bill, Administration leaders scraped around for votes in opposition to a proposal by Wherry to keep controls off meat and poultry.

Taft and Wherry said the first test will come on the meat amendment and expressed confidence it will carry. Democratic leaders were obviously afraid it might and thus force them to take it to a Senate-House conference committee possibly less willing to throw it out than it was when it revised the bill later vetoed.

LAWYERS GUILD BLAMES CLARK

JUL 8 1946

Attorney General Denounced For 'Inviting Witch Hunt'

Cleveland, July 7 (AP)—The National Lawyers Guild today denounced Tom C. Clark, Attorney General, and promised to ask for his removal from office unless "he reverses the policies of the Department of Justice."

In a sharply worded resolution, adopted at the closing session of the Guild's tenth annual convention, the group took issue with a speech made by Clark before the Chicago Bar Association June 21, and criticized what it termed his "failure as Attorney General to protect the rights of minorities."

The resolution declared:

"The Attorney General's address is an insult to the legal profession. It seeks to intimidate lawyers into abandonment of the most precious function of their calling, namely the vitalization of democracy through a defense of democratic rights.

"Solicitation Of Violence"

"The charges of 'conspiracy' which the Attorney General has made are incitements to repression typically resorted to by demagogues. The assertion that the American people have exhausted their patience is a solicitation of violence and of lynchings made familiar by the rantings of Hitler.

"The speech is a plain incitement of disunity. It invites a witch hunt against labor unions and their members; it seeks to promote intolerance of democratic rights by suggesting that the efforts of certain groups to vindicate their rights are insincere and artifically stimulated by outsiders of ulterior purposes; it seeks to set in motion a purge of lawyers who serve minority groups. These charges are in the shameful traditions of Bilbo and Rankin.

For Protest To President

"The reasons for the Attorney General's assertion that the complaints of minority groups of violations of civil rights are a 'plot' conceived by outsider lie in his own failure as Attorney General to protect those rights."

The resolution recommended that a Guild committee present to President Truman the convention's views concerning Clark and urge the President to reverse the policies of the Department of Justice as reflected in the public utterances and conduct of the Attorney General; discuss with the President the continuing fitness of Clark, and inform the President that unless Clark reverses the policies of the Department of Justice above indicated, "the National Lawyers Guild will demand his removal."

On Jewish Questions

In a statement of Guild policy with respect to the Jewish people, the convention recommended that the United States liberalize its immigration laws to admit "a substantial number of displaced persons.

Regarding Jewry in Palestine, the statement proposed that the United States disassociate itself completely from the attitude of the British Government and seek:

Lifting of martial law in Palestine.

Immediate issuance of 100,000 entry visas to displaced persons in Europe.

Removal of the mandate of Palestine from Great Britain, and its transfer to the United Nations.

Allowance of unrestricted immigration and land acquisition in Palestine.

Determination of the "ultimate peaceful solution of Palestine problems by all the people of Palestine."

Mitchell Franklin, of New Orleans, was elected vice president.

EX-GI'S FIND JOBS OR GO TO SCHOOL, SURVEY INDICATES

JUL 8 1946

WASHINGTON, July 7 — (AP) The U. S. Employment Service reported today that 10 of every 12 veterans discharged by June were at work or in school, but two veterans' organizations voiced fears of looming joblessness.

"For the third straight month the backlog of World War II veterans not at work has been reduced, notwithstanding continued discharges of servicemen from the armed forces," said U.S.E.S. Director Robert C. Goodwin.

Terming the record "gratifying," Goodwin said: "Employers of the nation have done a surprisingly good job in absorbing returning veterans in civilian jobs."

AVC Sees Difficulty Ahead

In sharp contrast was the tone of the American Veterans committee. It announced formation of employment committees in its 550 chapters because "job opportunities are becoming tougher to find."

Estimating that 3,000,000 veterans will be unemployed by August, AVC Chairman Charles G. Bolte said well over 1,000,000 are out of work today. "Two thirds of all those now unemployed are veterans," he said.

AVC's committees will work with the U.S.E.S. and with local employers, Bolte said, and will encourage wider adoption of on-the-job training programs by industry.

V.F.W. Urges Action

The Veterans of Foreign Wars similarly voiced alarm at the outlook for veterans' employment and asked Congress to pass the so-called "veterans' RFC"—the veterans employment and national economic development corporation act of 1946, newly introduced in both houses.

The bill would set up a government corporation to provide loans and technical services to self-liquidating projects for veterans, and to new and established firms which can employ veterans.

Goodwin, on the other hand, reported that "employment prospects for returning veterans have been bright in recent months."

"About 3,000,000 have found jobs in the last four months. In June, for instance, 470,000 of the 490,000 male workers who entered non-agricultural employment were veterans.

"We hope and believe that this ratio will continue through what we are convinced will be a new nation-wide level of employment."

Goodwin, basing his figures on a current Census Bureau report, said that 9,940,000 of the 11,840,000 veterans covered by the census survey were at work while 600,000 more were in school or college.

Official Quits U. N. R. R. A. in Press Bill Row

JUL 8 1946

MacDuffie Out of Ukraine Post, Saying 'Barter of Relief' Violates Pledges

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—Marshall MacDuffie of New York resigned as chief of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration's Ukraine mission because, he said, he believes House approval of legislation withholding relief from nations censoring news of U. N. R. R. A. activities violates "a sound pledge by the United States government."

His letter of resignation, made public today by U. N. R. R. A. headquarters after it was accepted by Director General F. H. La Guardia, said the United States in December committed $1,350,000,000 for world-wide relief and cannot attach "strings" to present appropriation bills.

He asserted that "breach of faith and broken promises were greatly the cause of this last holocaust" and said he wanted "to be dissociated from any such broken covenant and bartering of relief for political concessions."

He said that in the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia, where correspondents say U. N. R. R. A. news is submitted to censorship, there is greater devastation than any place except possibly Warsaw or in bombed-out German cities. Citizens subsist on about 1,700 calories a day, he said, and this may be cut 150 to 200 calories if fats and meats from the United States are cut off.

Thus "our gallant allies will have subsistence equal to the starvation level in such ex-enemy countries as Germany, Austria and Italy," he said. "The only local products are bread and a few packages of Georgian tea. The rest is U. N. R. R. A."

He said the two Russian republics have permitted his mission, including ten Americans, Canadians and Englishmen, to pass four months "going up and down the Ukraine in every area."

"As far as we know, our personnel have seen more details of the Soviet Union than any foreigners since some years before the war," he said.

Air Travel Urged For All in the Navy

JUL 8 1946

Adm. Reeves Says Costs of Transport Would Drop

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP).—Rear Admiral John W. Reeves jr. wants to see all Navy personnel and all material valued at more than $5 a pound travel by air.

It would not only be faster, but would save money and man power, Admiral Reeves, who is head of the Naval Air Transport Service, has told the Chief of Naval Operations in a series of recommendations for future planning, backed by an extensive study called "The Case for Air Transport."

His recommendations and major findings include:

1. All personnel on business should travel by air, using both commercial and military planes, thereby making a substantial saving over surface transport when pay roll and per diem costs are considered. With a 500,000-man Navy, he estimated that at least 25,000 would be traveling all the time.

2. Military air transport should serve only those areas where commercial air lines cannot operate economically, thereby avoiding competition, providing a necessary service and maintaining a nucleus for emergency expansion of the Navy's organization.

3. Ship by air all items valued at more than $5 a pound to save time, lower the loss from damage in transit, reduce stockpiles at supply centers and in pipelines, and increase the availability of equipment which requires spare parts.

4. Operate, all-cargo flights on a when-and-where-needed basis rather than on schedules, thus reducing the number of planes required for the job.

CLEMENCY BOARD CUTS SENTENCES OF CONVICTED GI'S

JUL 8 1946

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) Former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts reported today that a special War department clemency advisory board which he heads has reduced the sentences of almost 20,000 soldiers convicted of serious offenses, mostly in wartime.

He also advised Under Secretary Kenneth C. Royall of the War department:

1. Almost a third of 22,500 prisoners whose cases were reviewed up to June 30 already have been freed.

2. Another third is scheduled to be released within the next year.

3. In addition more than 32,000 prisoners have been restored to duty before expiration of their sentences, and thus given the opportunity to earn honorable discharges.

Cautions Critics

Roberts said that judgment on the Army's system of justice, which has been criticized in Congress, should be based on sentences as finally fixed, rather than upon punishment imposed by courts martial, and added:

"Clemency is and always has been the capstone of the whole system of military justice."

The report was made public by Royall, who had acknowledged earlier that many court martial sentences were too severe, "if you leave out of account the army plans of restoration and clemency."

Royall termed the report an outstanding and "perhaps a unique accomplishment in the field of punitive justice" and said Roberts had agreed to direct reviews of clemency cases arising during the immediate postwar period, including cases of soldiers sentenced overseas and being returned to the United States.

22,500 Cases Reviewed

The approximately 22,500 cases thus far reviewed were of men convicted by general courts martial and returned to the United States prior to May 1. The advisory board, formerly headed by Federal Judge Sherman Minton, started work after V-J day to "correct injustices and inconsistencies" and was assisted by four special clemency boards. Each included a civilian penologist as chairman, a combat officer and an officer detailed from the judge advocate general's department.

"In about 85 percent of the cases reviewed, sentences have been shortened and in the remainder no clemency was indicated," Roberts said.

Up to June 30, he estimated that almost one third of the prisoners hab been released through termination or remission of sentences as fixed after clemency action, along with credit earned by good conduct durirg confinement.

"Within another twelve months, an additional third will have left confinement, leaving only one-third of the prisoners passed on by the boards in confinement on June 30," he continued. "One-third of this remainder will go out by December 1947, and another third in 1948.

"The relatively small number left will consist of prisoners convicted of the most serious civil and military offenses, such, for example, as murder, rape and desertion to avoid hazardous duty."

LEADERS WILL ACT TO FORCE ACTION ON HOUSING BILL

JUL 8 1946

WASHINGTON, July 7—(AP) Administration leaders today plotted ways to jar loose the controversial Federal public housing bill from the House Banking committee.

Chairman Spence (D-Ky.) told a reporter he would name a subcommittee to consider the bill if necessary to forestall Republican delaying tactics which broke up nearly every hearing session last week.

Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.) of the Rules committee, denouncing Republican strategy, said "every effort" will be made to wind up hearings soon and send the bill to the floor for a vote.

The measure, intended to spur construction of 15,000,000 dwellings in the next decade, passed the Senate April 15.

Known as the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill, it would centralize all government housing activities in one agency; call for broadened Federal insurance on home mortgages; provide Federal loans to rebuild "blighted" areas and long-term loans for farm homes.

Spence opened hearings a week ago. Rep. Buffett (R-Neb.) has led the opposition by moving several times successfully that the meeting end because of lack of a quorum. Rules require at least half the committee members to be present. Many are at home campaigning.

If Spence names a subcommittee it would permit hearings by a small group with more likelihood of a quorum.

Sabath signalled the start of the pressure to be applied by issuing a statement sharply criticizing the delay thus far.

"If the Republicans should persist in these unfair and dilatory tactics, I feel it should be brought to the attention of the whole country and the blame should be placed squarely where it belongs.

"We know of the savage fight against any adequate relief of the housing shortage through public action which has been made by the powerful and widely ramified housing lobby—we remember all too clearly the battle against the veterans' housing bill.

"The same forces are endeavoring to defeat the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill by any means which may come to their hands.

"I imagine that every member of the House is receiving the same propaganda barrage I am getting in opposition to this much needed bill.

"Meanwhile, rents are soaring, with OPA dead or dying. We have brought our servicemen out of the fox holes, but we offer them nothing but hell holes for homes."

Bishop Oxnam Hits 'Holy War' Against Reds

JUL 8 1946

Asks Why Those Who Now Fight Communism Did Not Equally Blast Fascism

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 7 (AP).—Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the New York Methodist Chuch today assailed religious leaders who, he said, "summon a 'holy war' on Communism but at the same time apparently believe in co-operation with Fascism."

"Had the religious leaders now supponing us to war on Communism attacked Fascism with equal vigor," he told an assemblage of Methodist war veterans in a prepared sermon at Ohio State University stadium, "the present 'holy war' could be understood as a continuance of the struggle against totalitarianism in all its forms.

Bishop Oxnam, who is also president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, delivered his sermon on the fourth and final day of a conference of returned veterans with Methodist bishops.

He continued:

"It is very difficult to understand co-operation with Fascist Italy, Nazi Germany and Fascist Spain and 'holy war' against Communist Russia.

"What is the basis of this attack? Is it the announced atheism of Communism that is condemned and the practiced atheism of Fascism that is condoned? It would appear that Christians must be consistent and condemn all forms of ttotalitarianism."

Some people, Dr. Oxnam asserted, see in the "holy war" an atempt "to win so-called big business to Roman Catholic support, since the attack on Communism is interpreted by some as an espousal of capitalism."

"It should be abundantly clear, however," he went on, "that Rome is not standing for capitalism. It is, in fact, supporting political movements in Europe that mean its overthrow."

Bishop Oxnam declared that he "trusted" that Protestantism was "pursuing a wiser course."

"We do not expect to discover a final stage in economic evolution which some insist is capitalism and others argue will be Communism," Bishop Oxnam said. "We look for cotinuing progress through history as the genius of man creates the tools which can be used to extend brotherhood."

Father Takes Them Indoors When Neighbors Pack Yard

PITTSBURGH, July 7 (AP)—William Thompson jr. had his hands full today shielding his English sweetheart and quadruplets from the curious as a warm July sun drew them into the back yard of his mother's home and brought a host of neighbors to the fence to watch the family take an airing.

When Nora Carpenter, who arrived in Pittsburgh late yesterday, took her three surviving children outdoors adjacent yards soon filled with neighbors. But after a few minutes Mr. Thompson appeared and shepherded Miss Carpenter and the children back into the house away from curious eyes.

Mr. Thompson, a pressman in a commercial printing house here, first met Miss Carpenter while stationed near Heanor, England, during his military service. The girl he had married before he went overseas divorced him last April, leaving him free to marry Miss Carpenter.

WHEN INVESTIGATORS FIRST HEARD OF THE PLOT, THEIR INFORMATION WAS THAT GOERING WANTED TO INVEST ABOUT $5,000,000 OR $6,000,000. THEY WENT TO NUERNBERG AND GOT THE HELP OF AN ATTORNEY WHO HOLDS GOERING'S CONFIDENCE. THIS ATTORNEY VISITED THE FORMER REICHSMARSHAL IN HIS CELL AND ASKED HIM ABOUT THE PLAN. WHEN THE ATTORNEY MENTIONED THE SUM, GOERING SCOFFED:

"YOU KNOW NOBODY EVER CAME INTO MY OFFICE FOR LESS THAN $50,000,000."

QUESTIONED FURTHER, GOERING SAID IT WAS TRUE THAT HE INITIATED CONVERSATIONS THROUGH THE GERMAN EMBASSY AT WASHINGTON BEFORE IT CLOSED IN 1941, IN AN EFFORT TO EFFECT THE INVESTMENTS SECRETLY. HE GAVE THE IMPRESSION THAT THE KNOWLEDGE WAS TO BE KEPT EVEN FROM HITLER.

AT THAT TIME GERMAN AMBASSADOR HANS THOMSEN HAD A BULGING TREASURY IN WASHINGTON. HE TOLD INVESTIGATORS THAT HE LEFT $5,000,000 IN A SAFE IN THE EMBASSY WHEN HE WAS RECALLED TO BERLIN IN 1941. MOST OF THAT MONEY WAS SUPPLIED BY GOERING, IT IS BELIEVED, TO GET HIS SCHEME UNDERWAY. INTERROGATORS SAID THEY COULD NOT IMAGINE ANY OTHER PURPOSE FOR AN EMBASSY'S HAVING SO MUCH MONEY.

GOERING APPARENTLY DID NOT LIMIT HIS PLAN TO $50,000,000, WHICH WAS MORE OF A MINIMUM THAN A MAXIMUM TO HIM. HE TOLD QUESTIONERS THAT AMOUNTS OF MONEY DID NOT MEAN A THING BY THIS TIME, WHEN HE HAD CONTROL OF ALL REICH INDUSTRY AND FINANCES AS PLENIPOTENTIARY FOR THE SO-CALLED "FOUR YEAR PLAN."

NEW YORK, JULY 7-(AP)-THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL, WHICH HAS BEEN ENJOYING A LULL FOR 10 DAYS, MAY SOON GET FOUR NEW CASES INCLUDING THE EXPLOSIVE PALESTINE QUESTION.

ALTHOUGH THE COUNCIL HAS NOT YET RECEIVED FORMAL REQUESTS FOR ACTION IN ANY OF THESE CASES, DEVELOPMENTS DURING THE PAST FEW DAYS HAVE INDICATED THAT COMPLAINTS WOULD BE FILED SHORTLY.

IN ADDITION TO THE PALESTINE QUESTION, THE OTHER THREE WERE:

1. A REQUEST FROM SIAM THAT THE COUNCIL SETTLE A FRENCH-SIAMESE DISPUTE OVER THE BOUNDARIES BETWEEN SIAM AND INDOCHINA.

2. A REQUEST FROM ARGENTINA FOR A RULING ON THE OWNERSHIP OF THE FALKLAND ISLANDS, DISPUTED BY ARGENTINA AND GREAT BRITAIN.

3. AN EGYPTIAN REQUEST FOR U.N. INTERVENTION IN THE EVENT THAT EGYPT AND GREAT BRITAIN FAIL TO AGREE ON THE WITHDRAWAL OF BRITISH TROOPS FROM EGYPT.

THE ARAB LEAGUE ALREADY HAD INDICATED IT WOULD MOVE TO BRING THE CASE BEFORE THE COUNCIL IF BRITAIN REFUSED ITS DEMANDS FOR PALESTINE INDEPENDENCE.

IN CAIRO RECENTLY, HAFEZ AFIFI PASHA, EGYPT'S DELEGATE TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL, SAID THE COUNCIL WOULD SOON DISCUSS MANDATES AND TRUSTEESHIPS, AT WHICH TIME "THE PALESTINE QUESTION MAY ALSO COME UP FOR DISCUSSION."

AFIFI PASHA ALSO SAID THAT IF CURRENT NEGOTIATIONS FOR REVISION OF THE BRITISH-EGYPTIAN TREATY OF 1936 FAILED "THEN EGYPT SHOULD TAKE HER CASE TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL."

IN BANGKOK SIAMESE FOREIGN MINISTER NAI DIREK CHAINAM SAID HE WOULD FILE A FORMAL REQUEST WITH THE U.N. IN THE NEAR FUTURE FOR INTERVENTION IN THE DISPUTE OVER THE BORDER ALONG THE MEKONG RIVER.

THE FALKLAND ISLANDS QUESTION WAS RAISED FRIDAY WHEN THE ARGENTINE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES UNANIMOUSLY VOTED TO ASK THE SECURITY COUNCIL TO ORDER BRITAIN TO RETURN THE ISLANDS TO ARGENTINE SOVEREIGNTY.

JUL 8 1946

A29

THE COUNCIL STILL HAS TWO HIGHLY CONTROVERSIAL CASES LYING DORMANT ON ITS AGENDA--SPAIN AND IRAN--BUT IT WAS REGARDED AS UNLIKELY THAT EITHER CASE WOULD BE CALLED UP FOR DISCUSSION IN THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE.

THE COUNCIL WILL MEET WEDNESDAY TO ACT ON RECOMMENDED RULES OF PROCEDURE FOR THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION, BUT IT APPEARED THAT THERE WOULD BE NO CONTROVERSY ON THESE UNLESS RUSSIA AGAIN RAISED HER OBJECTIONS TO A RULE PROVIDING THAT DECISIONS BE MADE BY A SIMPLE MAJORITY VOTE. RUSSIA WANTS THE RULES CHANGED TO REQUIRE A TWO-THIRDS VOTE.

30.24-4021

A SIX-NATION SUB-COMMITTEE OF THE ATOMIC COMMISSION WILL MEET TOMORROW TO CONTINUE ITS DISCUSSIONS OF ATOMIC CONTROL. THE SUB-COMMITTEE IS EXPECTED TO HAVE ITS FIRST REPORT READY FOR THE FULL COMMISSION BEFORE THE END OF THE WEEK.

Washington (Lighthouse) ---July

WHILE THE RUSSIANS HAVE MADE NO PROTEST TO THE BRITISH, THEIR REACTION TO THESE EFFORTS TO END THE RELATIVE ISOLATION OF THEIR PEOPLE IS A CONSTANT SOURCE OF SPECULATION ON THE PART OF WESTERN DIPLOMATS.

THE RUSSIANS LONG HAVE BEEN BROADCASTING TO THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN AND OTHER ENGLISH-SPEAKING LANDS. AT ONE RECENT INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE A RUSSIAN OFFICIAL WAS ASKED WHY RUSSIA CONSIDERED IT PROPER TO BROADCAST TO THE WEST WHILE PRESUMABLY SHE DID NOT FAVOR WESTERN BROADCASTS TO RUSSIA. HIS ANSWER, ACCORDING TO THE WIDELY-ACCEPTED STORY, WAS THIS:

A7WX

THE WESTERN DEMOCRACIES, HE SAID, HAVE A THEORY THAT THEIR PEOPLE SHOULD MAKE UP THEIR MINDS ON ALL ISSUES AND TO DO THIS SHOULD RECEIVE MAXIMUM INFORMATION. THE RUSSIANS BY BROADCASTING ARE MERELY ADDING TO THE SUM TOTAL OF INFORMATION AVAILABLE TO THESE PEOPLE.

ON THE OTHER HAND, HE SAID, THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE HAVE LONG SINCE MADE UP THEIR MINDS ON BASIC ISSUES AND DO NOT NEED ANY FURTHER INFORMATION TO HELP GUIDE THEM IN THEIR THINKING.

SOME EVIDENCE THAT THE RUSSIANS NOW MAY BE LESS SENSITIVE TO OUTSIDE IDEAS AND MORE READY TO ACCEPT INFORMATION FROM FOREIGN SOURCES IS SEEN BY OFFICIALS HERE IN TWO DEVELOPMENTS OF RECENT MONTHS. ONE IS THE INCREASE IN THE MOSCOW CIRCULATION OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S MAGAZINE "AMERICA" UP TO 50,000 COPIES. THE OTHER IS THE FACT THAT RUSSIAN PLANS FOR MANUFACTURING CONSUMER GOODS DURING THE NEXT FIVE YEARS PLACE CONSIDERABLE EMPHASIS ON RADIO RECEIVER SETS WITH AT LEAST TWO OF FIVE MAJOR TYPES BEING CAPABLE OF SHORT WAVE RECEPTION

FOUR NEW ISSUES AWAIT U. N. ACTION

Palestine Question May Be Introduced by Russia, Arab League

JUL 8 1946

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—The United Nations Security council, which has been enjoying a lull for 10 days, may soon get four new cases including the explosive Palestine question.

Although the council has not yet received formal requests for action in any of these cases, developments during the past few days have indicated that complaints would be filed shortly.

Three New Issues

In addition to the Palestine question, the other three were:

1. A request from Siam that the council settle a French-Siamese dispute over the boundaries between Siam and Indochina.

2. A request from Argentina for a ruling on the ownership of the Falkland islands, disputed by Argentina and Great Britain.

3. An Egyptian request for U.N. intervention in the event that Egypt and Great Britain fail to agree on the withdrawal of British troops from Egypt.

Latest demands that the Palestine question be taken up by the council came from the Communist party in Britain, which declared existing conditions in Palestine are "a threat to the peace of the world."

Reds May Offer Case

These demands were seen by some as a hint that Russia might take the lead in putting the case before the council, but Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko remained silent on whatever plans he may have.

The Arab league already had indicated it would move to bring the case before the council if Britain refused its demands for Palestine independence.

The council still has two highly controversial cases lying dormant on its agenda—Spain and Iran—but it was regarded as unlikely that either case would be called up for discussion in the immediate future.

The council will meet Wednesday to act on recommended rules of procedure for the atomic energy commission, but it appeared that there would be no controversy on these unless Russia again raised her objections to a rule providing that decisions be made by a simple vote. Russia wants the rules changed to require a two-thirds vote.

MINISTERS AGREE ON PEACE PARLEY SCHEDULED JULY 29

Adopt Rules of Procedure to Serve as Suggestions

JUL 9 1946

VICTORY FOR U. S.

Russia Yields on Demand for Mandatory Curbs on 21-Nation Session.

PARIS, July 8—(AP) The four-power foreign ministers broke their deadlock on peace conference procedural issues tonight and authorized France to send out invitations tomorrow for the 21-nation general European peace conference.

The ministers adopted a French compromise proposal providing that a few simple rules of procedure, to be considered as suggestions only would accompany the invitations to the conference, American informants said.

Victory for U. S., Britain

This action represented a victory for Britain and the United States which had held out against binding the peace conference with mandatory rules of procedure as the Russians originally had demanded.

Breaking of the log-jam came after almost eight hours of negotiations including a private session which lasted for more than five hours.

The agreement on the procedure issue apparently removed the last obstacle to formal convocation of the peace conference to examine proposed treaties with Italy, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Finland by the Allied nations which participated in the war against them.

July 29 Date Stands

Barring further unforseen difficulties, the peace conference will open July 29 in Luxembourg palace, pre-war seat of the French senate.

On a motion by U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes the foreign ministers agreed to accord France the same status on all peace conference committees she enjoyed in the current ministers' sessions. This means that French representative will sit on all commissions, but without the right to vote except in groups concerned with the Italian treaty.

Under tonight's agreements China will not be included as an inviting power but will attend the conference as an invited nation.

Under suggested rules of procedure as proposed by Georges Bidault, French president and foreign minister, the conference will designate a steering committee, composed of representatives of each delegation, whose decisions will be taken by a two-third majority vote.

May Change Rules

The right of the peace conference to amend or suspend its rules will be recognized. The conference will includ five political commissions one for each treaty, and two economic commissions, one for Italy and one for the Balkans as a group American informants said.

The political commissions will be comprised of representatives of nations which had been at war with the former enemy state involved.

The council accepted a proposal by British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin that a two-thirds majority rule would prevail on voting by the treaty commissions. If the minority wishes to protest any proposal voted within a commission, it has the right to lay its case before the full plenary session of the conference.

If, on the other hand, a proposal within a commission fails to muster the required two-thirds vote, the commission would present two or more alternate recommendations to the plenary session.

The two-thirds majority rule also will prevail in the plenary session voting.

The deputy foreign ministers were given the task of polishing up the suggested rules of procedure at their meeting tomorrow morning before final approval of the rules by the ministers tomorrow afternoon.

Tomorrow the ministers council is scheduled to give its final approval to the text on Italian reparations and also take up the German question.

Molotov's Stand Keeps 'Big 4' Deadlocked

JUL 9 1946

Paris, July 8 (AP)—The Foreign Ministers Council recessed after a morning meeting today, still deadlocked on the question of sending out invitations for a 21-nation peace conference July 29.

Arguments that have marked Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's opposition to sending invitations for the conference unless they were accompanied by a strict code of rules for its procedure were presented again today in the face of pleas by Secretary Byrnes and Secretary Bevin to have the invitations go out immediately.

The American and British secretaries said they were willing to discuss procedure rules as suggestions but would not attempt to foist them on the other nations.

Another Session Set

The Ministers were to resume their session late today.

An American source said Russia was demanding that a two-thirds-vote rule be extended to the peace conference plenary session.

At one point, V. M. Molotov, of Russia, was reported to have accused the United States of trying to dominate the peace conference. He also argued that if the ministers did not decide in advance on the rules they were running counter to the Trieste agreement.

Adherence Demanded

Byrnes retorted that the United States always stood by its agreements, and that at the peace conference the Trieste and all other agreements would be upheld. He also demanded that the agreement of last Thursday to call a peace conference be adhered to.

The Russians also proposed to limit the membership of commissions to handle peace treaties of Romania, Hungary, Italy and Finland in the plenary conference to nations which actually went to war against each of the countries.

Would Dominate Sessions

With a two-thirds vote, Russia and nations in her sphere of influence would obtain a dominating voice in the final treaties for the Balkans.

Sources close to the Council said that failure to reach an immediate solution of the procedural problem upon which the Foreign Ministers have been deadlocked since Friday might result in indefinite postponement of the proposed peace conference.

The Soviet news agency Tass, meanwhile, injected a new note of dissension into the proceedings by asserting that the British, American and French representatives had begun "secret" talks concerning Germany from which Russia was being excluded.

Tass said there was speculation in Paris that the reported talks "concern not only economic but also other questions."

Conferees Include Molotov

Whether there was any foundation for the Tass report could not immediately be ascertained. There have been private meetings here outside the Foreign Ministers Council and government officials from Belgium and Czechoslovakia—countries that might have claims against Germany—have conferred privately with the Ministers, including Molotov. There has been no official indication, however, of the nature of these talks.

The deadlock on the peace conference stemmed from Russia's insistent demands that the Big Four impose a set of rules of procedure on the conference—demands which both the British and American delegations vehemently opposed.

LATINS APPEAL FOR ITALY

All Except Brazil Ask Big 4 to Give Her a 'Just' Peace

BUENOS AIRES, July 8 (AP)—The Argentine Foreign Office said tonight that, as a result of an Argentine proposal, all Latin-American nations except Brazil had made a simultaneous plea to the four-power Foreign Ministers in Paris for "a just and equitable" peace for Italy.

Brazil did not join the action because she will be one of the twenty-one nations at the forthcoming peace conference. The representations were made late today to the diplomatic missions of Russia, Great Britain, France and the United States, as well as the general secretariat of the United Nations in New York, the Foreign Office said.

315 Members Committed

The Times commented that "no fewer than 315 of the 640 members of the House of Commons are committed by their election pledges to supporting the Friendly Societies. . . The House of Lords cannot be accused of flouting the Government's 'mandate' if it decides to reverse the decision of the Commons." Those who signed the pledges included 199 Laborites.

Lords Avoid Clash With Government

JUL 9 1946

London, July 8 (AP)—The House of Lords sidestepped a direct clash with the Labor Government today on an issue charged with political significance inside Britain—the case of the Friendly Societies, which are private nonprofit insurance groups.

Lords Poised For New Clash With Laborite Commons

London, July 8 (AP)—A long-expected clash between the Labor Government and the predominantly Conservative House of Lords appeared imminent today as an issue, little known outside of Britain, came before the peers—the case of the Friendly Societies.

Lord Beveridge—Sir William before his recent elevation to the peerage—has asked the lords to reverse the action of the House of Commons in excluding the private, nonprofit insurance groups from the Government's extensive new social insurance system.

Action Held "Probable"

The Times of London said recently it was "probable" that the peers would concur with Beveridge, Britain's famed wartime social security planner, in what many newspapers have described as a test whether private institutions can survive under Socialism.

The Friendly Societies, with more than 8,000,000 members, are demanding that they be made "Government agents" in the national insurance program, which will provide low-cost medical, unemployment, old age and other benefits for "duchess and door man alike."

The Labor Government excluded them, however, despite a pre-election pledge that they could come under the plan. James Griffiths, minister of national insurance, explained the change of policy by saying it had been decided that the problem of administration would be too great.

By voice vote the peers, mostly Conservatives, defeated a motion by Lord Beveridge to include the insurance groups in the Government's extensive new social-security system.

The House of Commons had voted to exclude them at Government insistence.

Lord Llewellin, who had offered a similar motion, said he hoped something could be done "by common consent to associate the Friendly Societies with scheme." He did not say what solution he had in mind.

Government Stand Declared

Before the vote, a Government spokesman, Lord Jowitt, declared the Government "can accept no such amendments."

The Peers had been expected to go along with Lord Beveridge, Britain's noted social-security planner during the war, in what many newspapers had described as a test whether private institutions could survive under socialism.

The Freindly Societies, with 8,000,000 members, are demanding that they be made "Government agents" in the national insurance program which will provide low-cost medical, unemployment, old-age and other benefits for "duchess and doorman alike."

The Labor Government, however, had excluded them, on the ground that the problem of administration would be too great.

London Drivers Strike; Meat Not Distributed

JUL 9 1946

London, July 8 (AP) — London's meat supply went undistributed today as 900 meat truck drivers and porters stuck to protest employment of non-union drivers.

Two thousand striking longshoremen at Southampton voted to stay out until Thursday while negotiations were being conducted on their demands for employment of more unloading gangs. Soldiers were ordered to unload tomatoes and oranges.

British Newsprint Use At 26% Of Prewar

JUL 9 1946

London, July 8 (AP) — Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, told Commons today that British newsprint consumption the first quarter of 1946 was 82,320 tons—approximately 26 per cent of prewar.

Brigadier Harry R. Mackeson, Conservative member, asked: "As four times more paper than ten years ago is being used by Government departments will you reduce consumption of paper by the Government, which is quite unnecessary, and increase it to the press?"

"No, sir," replied Sir Stafford.

U. N. DRIVE ASKED ON ILLITERACY

JUL 9 1946

London, July 8 (A. P.). — Dr. Alf Sommerfelt called on the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization today to begin its work with a worldwide assault on illiteracy. Addressing a meeting of the U. S. E. S. C. O. Preparatory Commission, the Norwegian delegate declared that the organization already had earned much good will but said it also was meeting with a certain amount of skepticism.

To be effective, he suggested, a world campaign must concentrate on one object "which can capture the imagination of the world," and added, "personally, I should be in favor of a campaign against illiteracy."

Support of the Norwegian's view came from Frederic Hudd of Canada, who said U. N. E. S. C. O. should not at the outset "permit desire to outrun performance."

Queue-Strain Suicides

JUL 9 1946

London, July 8 (AP)—Mrs. Irene Lovelock, founder of the League of British Housewives, said today that "22 women have already committed suicide because of the strain of rationing and standing in queues."

She spoke at a meeting seeking more liberal food allotments. Cries of "coward" greeted an announcement that John Strachey, Minister of Food, had declined to address the meeting because he could say no more than he had previously told the House of Commons about food supplies.

British Plan F.D.R. Memorial

London, July 8 (AP)—The Government is considering the building of a national memorial to President Roosevelt, the House of Commons was informed today. The Pilgrims Society, a British-American group, previously announced plans to erect a memorial in Grosvenor Square with private funds.

Deck Sunbathers Unfair to Troops!

JUL 9 1946

Colonel Asks Women on British Repatriation Ship Out of India to 'Please Wear More Clothes.'

Liverpool, July 8 (A. P.).—It's a mighty hot trip from India to England but for the staid British colonel discipline came before comfort.

Passengers of the Empress of Scotland disclosed after the big ship docked here today that some of the 250 women passengers aboard had been asked by Lieut.-Col. R. H. Cooper, commanding more than 2,000 repatriation troops, to "please wear more clothes."

The women, including thirty-two members of an army camp show unit, complied.

Col. Cooper explained that he "told them quite quietly that I had complaints that women were going around improperly dressed and that some had been sunbathing on the decks with practically nothing on at all, and reminded them that it was unfair to the 2,000-odd troops on board."

"The women laughed and clapped their hands, so they took it in good part and there were no further complaints," the officer added.

One of the women—married and with a small child—commented:

"Some of the girls wore snappy beach suits, but they had the figures to carry them and I thought they looked very smart. Some of the troops whistled after them as they walked the decks, but some men always whistle at a pretty figure."

British Bombers On Flight To U.S.

JUL 9 1946

Gravely, England, July 8 (AP)—Eight British Lancaster bombers took off today on the first leg of an 18,000-mile "good-will tour" of the United States which will culminate with their participation in Army Air Force Day festivities at Los Angeles August 1.

Eight more Lancasters, which with today's detachment comprised the wartime Pathfinder Unit Squadron 35, are scheduled to leave tomorrow.

The first trans-Atlantic flight of a full British bomber squadron in battle order was commanded by 23-year-old Wing Commander Allan Craig, the youngest officer in the Royal Air Force holding his rank (equivalent to a lieutenant colonel in the United States Army Air Forces).

K.lian Loses In Third Move For Shift Of Trial To U.S.

JUL 9 1946

Bad Neuheim, Germany, July 8 (AP)—Col. James A. Kilian failed today for the third time to obtain a transfer to the United States of his trial on charges of aiding and authorizing cruelty to soldiers imprisoned at the Lichfield (England) detention camp.

In other Lichfield trial developments, meanwhile, six witnesses drew prison sentences and fines for using forged army orders for a plane trip from Germany to London while the trial was in progress, and Pfc. William C. Loveless, 24-year-old combat veteran from Parama, Mo., was convicted of striking two soldiers and fined $100.

Slapping Ordered, GI's Defense

Loveless, who was wounded in the Normandy invasion, admitted slapping the soldier prisoners, but said he did it on a direct order from an officer. He identified the officer as Lieut. Leonard W. Ennis, of Peekskill, N.Y., whose trial is expected to end tomorrow. Loveless was acquitted of charges of striking three other prisoners.

The proceedings in the Kilian trial disclosed that the former commander of the Lichfield depot had tried two weeks ago to introduce a "secret" message from the War Department in Washington in support of his transfer plea.

Messages From War Department

The message informed officials here that many of the witnesses Kilian has demanded have been discharged from the Army and "object strenuously" to leaving their civilian jobs for the trip.

In another message, the War Department asked that Kilian show the nature of the testimony he expected to obtain from the witnesses to see if it is vital, and inquired whether he would not obtain their testimony by written depositions.

Kilian's attorney, Lieut. Col. Raymond E. Ford, protested that "it is unfair to require the defendant to depend upon that type of evidence. Ford demanded that the court move to the United States, where the witnesses could be questioned on the stand. The Court however, ordered Ford to produce the requested information about the witnesses.

80 Witnesses Now In U.S.

Kilian's attorney said he had asked for about 80 witnesses who are now in the United States. Only one had been brought here, he said. Many of the witnesses are former Lichfield officers.

Denying the request for a change venue, th court suggested that Kilian might take the matter up with Brig. Gen. T. F. Bresnahan, commander of the Continental Base Section which is conducting the Lichfield trials.

The six witnesses accused of making an unauthorized flight to London two months ago while waiting to testify against sixteen accused soldiers were sentenced to six months imprisonment and fined from $84 to $150 each. The verdict raised to eight the number of convictions against Lichfield trial witnesses. Two others previously were sentenced to six months each for refusing to obey orders and insulting officers.

Those convicted today were Private Louis Kardon, 29, Philadelphia; Private Charles McGinnis, 23, Atlanta; Private Theodore Taylor, 22-year-old Negro, the Bronx, N.Y.; Sergt. Saul L. Russ, 22, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Private Anthony R. Calogero, 23, Brooklyn, N.Y., and Private Peter H. Claim, 22, Uniontown, Pa.

Guard At Lichfield Guilty; Fined $100

JUL 9 1946

(Bad Nauheim, Germany, July 8 (AP)—Pfc. William C. Loveless, of Parma, Mo., was convicted today of striking two soldier prisoners at the Lichfield guardhouse and fined $100.

Loveless, 24-year-old combat veteran who was wounded in the Normandy invasion, admitted on the witness stand that he slapped the two prisoners, but said he did it on a direct order from an officer.

"Work these two men over," was the order which he said came from Lieut. Leonard W. Ennis, of Peekskill, N.Y., whose trial is expected to conclude tomorrow.

Freed On 3 Other Charges

Loveless was acquitted of charges that he struck three other prisoners, all three of which he denied. The military court deliberated an hour on its verdict after a four-hour trial.

Loveless entered the Army in 1941 and invaded Normandy with the 79th Infantry Division four days after D-day. He was seriously wounded June 25, 1944, at Cherbourg, hospitalized in England and became a jailer at Lichfield upon his release from the hospital.

KEITEL WAS FRONT FOR HITLER TALKS, HIS COUNSEL SAYS

JUL 9 1946

NUERBERG, July 8 (AP)—Hitler paraded Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel before European leaders as a front man to frighten them, but Keitel actually was innocent of wrong-doing under the Nazis, his counsel said today in a final summary before the International Military Tribunal.

The former chief of the German High command was pictured by his council, Dr. Otto Nelte, as "far too faithful a follower" of Hitler and "a believer in the fuehrer principle" but not as guilty of wrong either under German or international law.

Keitel's initials on war orders, the attorney said, meant nothing, since "it is known that Hitler did not accept any advice concerning military decisions."

Hitler's use of Keitel as a front man explained the marshal's presence at meetings of Nazi chieftains with European leaders before the war, Nelte said.

"He did not participate in the conversations," the attorney added. "Hitler liked to have Keitel in his entourage as representative of the Wehrmacht."

Nelte attacked the testimony of Hans Bernd Gisevious, former Gestapo man, that Keitel formed a ring around Hitler, keeping from the fuehrer information about atrocities, and that he had much influence with the high command and threatened subordinates with special treatment by secret police.

"Gisevius wasn't in a position to know all the things he testified about and moreover was quoting dead men all the time," Nelte added. "Actually Keitel had a tremendously thankless task in the permanent dilemma between his military point of view and the unbending will of Hitler."

Nelte, who will complete the Keitel defense tomorrow, agreed that the field marshal helped rearm Germany, but contended that "the generals, among them Keitel, thought no different from millions of Germans who were not party members or who were opponents but who regarded national aims as self-evident."

Nelte contended that all the generals, like millions of other Germans, regarded national aims as self-evident.

"The generals did not see the danger of war in the fact that Hitler wanted to realize those national aims by aggressive war," Nelte continued, "but they saw a danger rather in the fact that the assertion of these aims would bring about sanctions by former enemy Powers."

Nelte said that Germany was too weak to wage war before it acquired the Skoda munitions works with the occupation of Czechoslovakia.

Justice Lawrence, presiding, severely reprimanded Nelte when he accused the French prosecution of withholding some High Command documents.

KEITEL PLEADS AIM WAS DEFENSE

JUL 9 1946

Nuernberg, July 8 (A. P.).—A defense lawyer before the International Tribunal today represented the German generals as men who believed Adolf Hitler's regime to be legitimate and who favored rearming the Reich only for defense and not for aggressive war.

Dr. Otto Nelte, counsel for Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, presented a 195-page defense summary for Keitel in such general terms as to apply to all German military leaders. Conceding that Keitel helped rearm the Reich,

RUSSIANS REFUSE TO RELEASE YANKS

JUL 9 1946

BERLIN, Tuesday, July 9 (AP)—American officials said early today they felt they were "getting the run-around" from the Russians in their attempts to secure the release of four Americans who disappeared into the Soviet zone last week and apparently still are being held under arrest.

A warrant officer and his wife have been missing since July 1 and captain and a lieutenant since July 4. The Army has not yet released their names.

Lt. Col. K. C. Frank, American provost marshal, said that persistent American efforts failed to bring any satisfactory response from the Soviets.

"It looks like we are getting the run-around, being sent from one Russian officer to another and receiving no satisfaction," Frank said. "We've never run into anything quite like this before but in the morning we are going to start all over again with a new request."

A criminal investigation department officer said: "We are just not getting results. If the Russians are doing this in retaliation for something they feel we have done wrong, they should say so. Otherwise they should help return those people, as we always turn loose any of theirs we pick up as soon as possible."

1,200 GI's Stranded By Bavarian Floods

Frankfurt, July 8 (AP)—Floods inundated large areas of Southern Bavaria today, stranding more than 1,200 American soldiers and ruining crops vitally needed for feeding hungry Germans this winter.

The United States 3d Army reported that four days of torrential rains have isolated the famous sports center of Garmisch-Partenkirchen. Troops spending weekend leaves there are trapped by flooded roads and rail exits.

With floods extending from the Austrian border as far north as Augsburg, the United States Constabulary alerted troops to evacuate German flood victims.

Question And Answer

British military police rushed into the fray and drew some blood with their clubs.

An irate Tommy asked an M.P. who was pursuing him: "What did we fight this war for anyway?"

"Don't ask me," retorted the M.P. as he shoved the soldier in a military truck.

Earlier, American military police dispersed a milder demonstration by several hundred civilians who gathered in front of their headquarters singing Communist songs.

The civilians broke up in good humor shouting "Viva America!" and "Russia! Russia!" after some persons in the crowd were prodded firmly by the Americans.

Angered British Troops Attack Trieste Italians

JUL 9 1946

Soldiers, Retaliating For Saturday Riots, Smash Windows, Strike Civilians In One-Hour Melee

Trieste, July 8 (AP)—British occupation troops—smarting under the indignities their comrades suffered from Italian rioters last Saturday—turned on the Italians tonight in a violent counter-demonstration.

Show windows were smashed and heads were cracked during the one-hour fracas in downtown Trieste before club-swinging British military police drove the angry troops back to their barracks.

The disorder began when a group of British soldiers, accompanied by a handful of American soldiers, congregated in the Piazza Goldoni, which had been a concentration point for the Italian rioters.

Joined By Others

The soldiers then went to the Excelsior Theater, a motion-picture house for British service men, and awaited reinforcements.

Joined by troops leaving the cinema, the angry Britons marched down the broad thoroughfare rolling up their sleeves, swinging their belts and shouting insults to Italian bystanders. There were approximately 1,000 British demonstrators.

Once they charged en masse up a steep hill striking out at fleeing civilians in the path and shattering windows.

Eight Shots Fired

In another outbreak an Italian café was invaded, and its contents were destroyed. Eight shots were fired during this fracas but no one was hurt, and the source of the firing was not determined.

Pro-Yugoslav leaders of Trieste's crippling general strike failed during the day to heed summons of military authorities to present themselves before a military court. The strike, now in its second week, has been declared illegal by the Allied military authorities because of its political motive.

The disorders last Saturday night in which hundreds of Italian youths participated came in the wake of the decision of the four-power Foreign Ministers to internationalize Trieste. This strategic city at the head of the Adriatic had been claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

Italy Cabinet Plan Receives Setback

JUL 9 1946

Rome, July 8 (AP)—A renewed Communist demand for sizable pay increases in the lower-income brackets appeared today to have torpedoed Prémier-designate Alcide de Gasperi's hopes for early formation of the new Italian republic's first Cabinet.

When he left Rome Saturday night to spend the week end at near-by Castelgandolfo, the Christian Democrat leader said his party was in substantial agreement with the Socialists and Communists over the new government's economic and financial program.

There remained only the distribution of portfolios, he said, and he expected to have the Cabinet in shape to present to President Enrico de Nicola some time today.

Socialists Join Communists

However, the Communist demand popped up yesterday. With Socialists joining the Communists to the extent of advocating ten per cent wage increases, while the Christian Democrats stood out for the alternative solution of reducing prices through rigid controls, agreement seemed to be still far off.

De Gasperi, whose six-party coalition paved the way for the June 2 elections which brought the republic into being, resigned immediately after de Nicola's inauguration last Monday and was directed to form another government.

Mercy Invoked For Mihailovic

JUL 9 1946

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 8 (AP). Defense counsel appealed today for mercy for Gen. Draja Mihailovic, telling the court trying the Chetnik leader for treason that Mihailovic's "tragedy lies in the fact that he did not reach an agreement with Marshal Tito."

The defense summation supported its initial premise that Mihailovic could not be held responsible for the acts of all his commanders by describing the Chetniks as "a military disorganization."

Nikola Kosanovic, Mihailovic's counsel, contended that Mihailovic never intended to aid the German and Italian occupation forces. Defending the guerrilla leader against charges of political treachery, he added:

"No one in London complained about him. He was a little man—too small to have his own policy."

Mihailovic's attorney opened his summation after the chief prosecutor, Col. Melos Minich, in concluding a 4½-hour summation, described Mihailovic and his codefendants as "the most shameful traitors that our country can recall."

SUMMATION BEGUN IN CHETNIK'S TRIAL

JUL 9 1946

Belgrade, July 8 (A. P.).—Chief Prosecutor Col. Milos Minich began his summation in the treason trial of Gen. Draja Mikhailovich today by declaring that every charge contained in the prosecution indictment had been proved irrefutably. Minich also accused American and English representatives who were stationed at Mikhailovich's headquarters of instigating him to fight against Yugoslav Communists. Minich described the activities of these representatives as "an expression of certain reactionary circles abroad which were fighting for their own interests and not for the interests of the peoples of the Balkans."

Minich asserted that American officers had remained at Mikhailovich's headquarters as late as January, 1945, and that this gave the Chetnik leader an opportunity to maintain that he was not collaborating with the enemy.

Describing Mikhailovich's activities as "a four-year fight against the national liberation movement," Minich charged that the politicians of all the pre-war Yugoslav parties had collaborated closely with the Chetnik leader. He added that the "home traitors" who worked with Mikhailovich had "prevented the people of Yugoslavia from giving even more aid to the Allies during the war."

Clashes Feared As Jews Pour Into Poland

JUL 9 1946

Warsaw, July 7 [AP—Delayed]—The thousands of Jewish repatriates streaming into Poland from Russia are causing authorities to fear a recurrence of anti-Jewish outbreaks such as the Kielce pogrom, in which 41 persons died.

A Government spokesman said today that armored cars and militia reinforcements had been dispatched to the ancient cathedral city of Czestochowa, west of Kielce, to prevent what appeared to be an attempt to start rioting.

The appearance of a Pole with a camel which he said he acquired from the Russians caused intense excitement in the market place of Czestochowa.

Agitators In Crowd

The Government spokesman said anti-Semitic agitators circulated in the curious crowd around the camel rider, started shouting anti-Jewish cries and distributing provocatory literature. The spokesman said prompt intervention by Polish armed forces prevented a riot.

Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Polish Peasant party, in a statement condemned the Kielce pogrom and vigorously denied that his followers were to blame as Vice Premier Wladislaw Gomulka has intimated.

Violence Condemned

"I categorically condemn all such acts of violence," Mikolajczyk said. "The Polish Peasant party condemns the murder of innocent citizens and follows a policy of brotherhood and tolerance for all peoples, nothwithstanding their race or social position."

He said his party was deeply conscious of the ways the Jews felt because "for many months, members of the Polish Peasant party have been murdered."

Jews by the tens of thousands were being routed into Szczecin (Stettin) in Northern Poland and into Lower Silesia, reports reaching the capital said.

Palestine Refuge Demanded

The Central Committee of Polish Jews and other organizations renewed their demands for free emigration to Palestine. Jews in large numbers besieged the committee's offices and the American Embassy seeking transit permits to go across Germany toward Palestine or the United States.

The Government said hundreds were arrested in the Kielce pogrom investigation and the first six will go on trial Monday on charges of inciting the pogrom. One militiaman was among the defendants.

said he did not know how many were still imprisoned.

He maintained that publication of individual precinct returns would show that at least 85 per cent of the voters balloted against a one-house Legislature, on which the Government had sought an affirmative vote. The Government's count had showed that more than 6,000,000 out of roughly 10,000,000 votes favored the unicameral Legislature.

Reveals Stand On Pogrom

Warsaw, July 8 (AP)—Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski declared tonight at a press conference that top-ranking Catholic Church dignitaries in Poland had refused to voice condemnation of those responsible for the recent anti-Jewish pogrom in the city of Kielce which resulted in the death of 41 persons.

DEMANDS FIGURES ON VOTE IN POLAND

JUL 9 1946

Warsaw, July 7 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk announced today that he had submitted two formal protests to the Government charging irregularities in last Sunday's national referendum, and said that he was demanding that the returns from every polling place be published.

Mikolajczyk estimated that between 5,000 and 6,000 members of his opposition Polish Peasant party had been arrested before and during the referendum, but

RUSSIANS REMOVE GERMAN FAMILIES LIVING IN AUSTRIA

JUL 9 1946

VIENNA, July 8.— (AP) Hundreds of families were herded into trucks and loaded into boxcars today as the Red army began a systematic eviction from the Soviet zone of Austria of 54,000 Germans and other non-Austrians.

The program began shortly after 6 a. m., deadline set in the order suddenly announced by the Russians yesterday.

The Austraian Ministry of the Interior said it had ordered police not to assist the Russians in dispossessing any persons who had come to the country before March 13, 1938, or who had acquired Austrian citizenship. However, Austrian police in some areas were pressed into service by the Red army, the ministry said.

Mayors Under Arrest

Austrian government sources said their reports from the provinces of Burgenland and lower Austria were incomplete, because communications were out to some points and at others, the mayors were under arrest.

These sources said, however, that 900 persons were moved out of Horn in lower Austria and 700 out of Mistelbach.

According to these reports, these families were put in open trucks and moved to railroad yards. There they were loaded into the box cars. Each person was permitted to take 30 pounds of belongings.

Move Deportees to Camp

The Russians are expected to move the deportees through the repatriation camp at Melk in the Soviet zone. They must pass through the American zone in both Austria and Germany to reach the French zone of Germany, where they are scheduled to be resettled.

French authorities here, however, said they knew nothing about the plan to settle the dispossessed persons in their zone.

No preparations have been made for handling them in the American zone of Austria.

The eviction was said to be closely connected with the confiscation of "German assets" which the Russians announced earlier. Austrian officials have said that the Russians were claiming 75 per cent Austria's industrial capacity.

REDS ORDER 54,000 OUT OF AUSTRIA

JUL 9 1946

Vienna, July 8 (A. P.).—Some 54,000 native Germans and other foreigners were ordered by Soviet authorities to leave Russian occupation zone of Austria today. A reliable source said they are to be sent to the French zone in Germany. Russian Army trucks and vehicles of the Austrian Communist party were stationed outside the homes of foreigners affected by the order, which permitted them to take only thirty pounds of belongings.

The Austrian Government was reported to have advised foreigners in the zone that only persons who came to Austria after the anschluss of March 13, 1938, and those not Austrian citizens, were obliged to comply with the order. Austrian authorities claim the order contradicts both the London and Moscow declarations on Austria.

The order was said to be closely connected with the confiscation of "German assets," which the Russians announced Saturday. Austrian officials said the Russians were claiming 75 per cent of the republic's industrial capacity.

HUNGARIAN RULE MENACED BY REDS

JUL 4 1946

Budapest, July 3 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Hungarian informants said today that Soviet Lieut.-Gen. Sviridov had sent Prime Minister Ferenc Nagy a note which may cause the collapse of the predominantly Smallholder government, which is largely anti-Communist in its leanings.

They said Sviridov's note contained demands for disbanding of the Hungarian boy scout and Catholic youth organizations on the grounds they are "Fascist." They expressed the belief that Nagy and his party would not agree to such demands and would probably resign.

Sviridov, writing as chief of the occupation forces, also was said to have demanded that the Government abolish parliamentary immunity for two members of Parliament, both Smallholders, against whom the Communists and Social Democrats hold grievances. In addition he was reported to have demanded harsher treatment for certain "Fascists" and complained that the entire Catholic clergy was "anti-democratic" and that Hungarians had been ambushing a number of Russians.

The Russians have taken $5,000,000 worth of commodities out of the country as reparations since March, according to well-informed sources and are now in the process of removing 60,000 head of cattle and 20,000 horses.

Capitalism Faulty, Communist Asserts

Moscow, July 8 (AP)—Georgy F. Alexandrov, Communist party chief of propaganda, asserted today that social thinking in "bourgeois" countries were spending their time apologizing for capitalism.

Addressing the Academy of Science, he said capitalism had been able to give the world only 268 peace years of the last 4,000. He said the plight of natives in British, French and Dutch colonies alone was enough to prove something was wrong with the system.

Soviet Air Line in Iran Battles for Rich Route

MASHAD, Iran, July 8. — (AP) A small-scale economic war in this isolated corner of the Middle East, with the Russians and an Iranian-American outfit vying for airline rights, has brought a statement from American Ambasador George Allen that the Russian Intourist agency is commercially operating planes "which were delivered to the Red Army for fighting a war—and for no other purpose."

Nominally the fight is between Intourist, Soviet-owned and operated airline, and Iranian Airways, Persian-owned line employing American personnel and American-made aircraft.

Risk Passenger Trade

At stake is a rich passenger trade between Teheran and this holy shrine city (Mecca to the world's 50 million Shia Moslems) plus a potential entry to the Persian lamb and Karakul markets of Afghanistan.

Intourist, operating American Lend-Lease D-3s, started twice-weekly roundtrip commercial flights between Teheran and Mashad, Tabriz, Pahlevi and Resht before the war ended.

Iranian government officials say the line, set up only to serve points inside Iran, has no formal contract or license. Prime Minister Ahmed Qavam recently said that he was not aware that Intourist was making flights to Mashad. Government commissions traveled over the Tabriz leg to settle the Azerbaijan problem. Qavam flew to Moscow via Intourist last November to confer with Molotov and Stalin.

Recently a licensed Iranian syndicate organized Iranian Airways, bought American planes and contracted for demobilized American airmen to operate the line while Persian replacements are being trained.

The line started service to Kermanshah, Abadan, Mashad, Ziadahn and Baghdad, with outside connections to Cairo and Beirout.

Schedules Arranged

Mashad flights were scheduled so as not to conflict with Intourist arrivals and departures. Intourist, without notice, moved its schedule up a day and Iranian Airways officials claimed that Intourist "hijacked" passengers who had booked seats on the Iranian planes.

Crews of the two planes met at the airfield. The pilot of the Iranian plane reported that an English-speaking Soviet crewman said "we'll run you Americans out of business."

In Teheran Ambassador Allen told newsmen:

"From the viewpoint of maintaining American prestige we are vitally interested in the success of any American - manned business abroad. Although no official action has been taken we are watching this situation closely." Apparently Russian officials have overlooked the fact that planes being operated commercially by Intourist were delivered to the Red army for fighting a war—and for no other purpose."

On June 21, Intourist lowered the fare for the 750-mile flight from Mashad to Teheran. Wiring his Teheran office for permission to meet the cut, an Iranian Airways official declared bitterly: "It's rather a one-sided fight. We have planes to pay for out of our operating cost."

Arab League Warns U. S.

JUL 9 1946

Says Zionists Foment Clash of Interests—Calls on Britain for Palestine Freedom.

Cairo, July 8 (A. P.).—The Arab League declared in a note to the United States today that it feels that the "Zionist policy is on the point of succeeding in bringing about an intensive clash between the interests of the Arab East and the policy and interests of the United States." In a note to Great Britain, the league demanded negotiations with a view to constituting a new government for Palestine.

The note was in comment on the report of the Anglo-American committee which recommended the immediate immigration of 100,000 Jews to Palestine. Attached, was a memorandum declaring that some members of the Anglo-American committe had previously been extreme supporters of the Zionists, and that it was evident that "the committee (or at least some of its members) came to carry out the policy which had already been formulated such as the recommendation that 100,000 immigrants be accepted this year, no more and no less, the same figure that had been proposed by President Truman."

The note said that even though it co-operated with it, the league did not recognize the legality of the Anglo-American Committee.

It expressed fear lest the policy of the United States "be affected by the claims of clamorous and noisy bands of Jews in the United States who possess means unavailable to the Arabs by which they can direct American public opinion toward a goal that injures the Arabs and exposes to danger the feeling of confidence and friendliness between the United States and the Arab peoples." The league said that the Palestine question was "the direct result of a mistaken British policy."

Independence Demand.

The note to Great Britain said: "Disturbances that will occur in Palestine and the whole Arab East, consequently endangering peace and security, are the responsibilities of those who decide to support and fulfill the recommendations of the Anglo-American Committee." The league then asked Great Britain for negotiations with a view to replacing the Palestine Government with another constituted in conformity with the aims and principles of the United Nations. The league also asked that these negotiations begin at once, so that an agreement may be arrived at before the next session of the United Nations in September, and that pending that agreement all immigration to Palestine and all land sales be stopped.

Azzam Pasha, secretary-general of the Arab League, made public the two notes. He has said that the league would demand the independence of Palestine.

Arabs Protest U. S. Entry Into Palestine Case

JUL 9 1946

CAIRO, July 8—(AP) The Arab league, in notes to Britain and the United States today, challenged the right of the United States to intervene in Palestine before the case has been placed before the United Nations and assailed what it called the "claims of a clamorous and noisey band of Jews" in America.

The league, giving its views on the British-American inquiry committee report which recommended immediate immigration to Palestine of 100,000 Jews, declared that "the disturbances that will occur in Palestine and the whole Arab east, and the consequent endangering of peace and security, are the responsibility of those who decided to support and fulfill the recommendations of the Anglo-American committee."

In Jerusalem, meanwhile, where Arab leaders have raised the threat of a possible civil disobedience program, the Jewish press, said the situation with regard to the Jewish underground had reached the diplomatic stage.

1,000 Jews Released

Police officials said nearly 1,000 of the more than 2,000 Jews taken into custody in the wave of arrests June 29 by British authorities had been released.

However, no announcement was made concerning the members of the Jewish Agency now held at Latrun prison, and all sources questioned on the subject replied, in effect, that only London could supply the answer.

Gen. Miles C. Demsey, British commander-in-chief in the Middle East, arrived in Palestine apparently for a three-day inspection tour.

The Arab league note, made public here by Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, league secretary general, also asked for negotiations looking toward replacing the present government of Palestine, now under British mandate, with another "in conformity with the rules and in agreement with the aims and principles" of the United Nations. The league asked that negotiations take place "as soon as possible so that agreement may be reached before the next session of the U.N." Assembly in September.

The note to the United States said the league felt that "Zionist policy is on the point of succeeding in bringing about an intensive clash between the interest of the Arab East and the policy and interests of the United States."

Memorandum Attached

A memorandum was attached declaring that some members of the British-American inquiry were "actually extreme supporters of the Zionists before their appointment to the committee," and adding that "it is also evident that the committee (or at least some of its members) came to carry out a policy which already had been formulated, such as the recommendation that 100,000 immigrants be accepted this year—no more and no less—the same figure that had been proposed by President Truman.

This note said that when the committee was formed the league did not recognize its legality, but co-operated with the group lest the policy of the United States "be affected by the claims of a clamorous and noisy band of Jews in the United States who possess means unavailable to Arabs, by which they can direct American public opinion toward a goal that injures Arabs and exposes to danger the feeling of confidence and friendliness between the United States and Arab peoples."

Policy Called "Mistaken"

The note said the Palestine situation was "the direct result of mistaken British policy."

The league claimed that Zionist propaganda, which it said is "supported by certain citizens of the United States, already has begun to poison the thoughts of the people of the East against the Jews, thus teaching them an anti-Semitism which they have not known."

The note to Britain said "there exists no justification permitting the Government of the United States of America to intervene and to try to effect a change in the status quo of Palestine until the case of Palestine has been placed before the United Nations."

Arabs Warn 1946 On Of Civil Disobedience

Jerusalem, July 8 (AP)—Threats of a possible Arab civil-disobedience program in protest against Jewish immigration to Palestine were coupled today with an Arab slap at President Truman and a suggestion that he open America to Jewish immigrants "if he really is in sympathy" with them.

Dr. H. F. Khalidi, of the Arab Higher Executive Committee, said that group was drafting a new note to Britain warning that unless the British Government took immediate steps to halt the illegal entry of Jews into Palestine there would be "a wave of non-cooperation by Arabs, followed possibly by civil disobedience."

"After that," he said, "the next step may be mass demonstrations by Arabs, and this executive will refuse to accept responsibility for them."

Accuses Truman.

Khalidi's statement came as the Executive Committee disclosed it had already drafted a letter to President Truman, accusing him of "flagrant, empty and irresponsible statements" in connection with the problem of Jewish immigration to Palestine. This note was in reply to a White House statement last Tuesday to the effect that the United States was prepared to assume technical and financial responsibility for the transportation of 100,000 European Jewish refugees to Palestine in accordance with the recent recommendations of the Anglo-American commission of inquiry.

The Arab committee said it "would have liked to ignore this last statement and attach no importance to it—coming as it does at a time when President Truman is begging for Jewish votes in the forthcoming presidential election." The note continued:

"The executive wishes to remind President Truman that it is not within his power or jurisdiction, nor that of others, to determine the future destiny of this Arab country—as Palestine is not a parcel of merchandise which can be bought in the world financial market at Wall Street or bartered for Jewish votes, in spite of the fact that the American President controls the atomic bomb."

JUL 9 1946

White House is Silent.

Washington, July 8 (A. P.).—The White House had no comment today on a letter drafted by the Arab Higher Executive Committee asserting President Truman made "irresponsible statements" in connection with Jewish immigration to Palestine.

The President's press secretary, Charles G. Ross, said only that he did not know whether Mr. Truman had received such a communication.

Holy Land Tense

JERUSALEM, July 8 — (AP) Nearly 1,000 of the more than 2,000 Jews seized in the widespread arrests of June 29 have been released, police authorities said today, as an uneasy quiet pervaded the tense holy land.

In the lull following British army operations against the Jewish underground, the Jewish press said the situation had reached the diplomatic stage. Questions concerning British plans persistently were referred to higher levels.

British authorities continued their occupation of the Jewish Agency's building, and the agency established headquarters at the Eden hotel.

Most of the persons released since the June 29 arrests have been children under 16 or adults over 70, police authorities said.

(In London, delegations from towns throughout England flocked to the central lobby of Commons to protest the British raids and arrests in Palestine. Their arrival followed yesterday's mass meeting in which thousands of Jews demanded the release of the arrested leaders.

(Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, archbishop of Canterbury, told a London news conference he supported the British government's actions in Palestine and rejected a protest concerning them from Dr. J. Herzog, chief rabbi of Palestine. He said the future of Palestine was in no way prejudiced by the government's actions "except to make it clear that the future would not be settled by violence.")

JUL 9 1946

Committee Going To London

Washington, July 8 (AP) — The State Department announced today an eighteen-member delegation of President Truman's cabinet committee on Palestine will leave for London Wednesday for high level consultations with British authorities.

The committee will be headed by Henry F. Grady, president of the American Steamships Lines, as alternate for James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State. Mr. Truman created the committee several weeks ago to advise him on a Government policy for Palestine and related matters.

Britain's Palestine Plan Supported

JUL 9 1946

Canterbury, England, July 8 (AP). Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, archbishop of Canterbury, rejected today a protest by Dr. J. Herzog, chief rabbi of Palestine, and supported the British Government in its endeavor to restore order in the Holy Land.

The future of Palestine, the Archbishop asserted at his diocesan conference, was in no way prejudiced by the Government's action—widespread police and military operations in which more than 2,000 Jews were arrested—"except to make it clear the future would not be settled by violence."

Cites Communications

"Since the recent Government action in Palestine," he declared, "I have received from the chief rabbi of the Holy Land and others communications which seem to me not only to beg the question, but to beg the wrong questions.

"Most of us will agree that the Prime Minister has justified action in the interests of public order, and that if further justification is needed, it is found in the discovery of great stores of arms and munitions, hidden with thoroughness and ingenuity, the mere possession of which in the hands of private individuals or organizations is a lawless threat to public order and security."

Lists Alternatives

Calling for a decisive declaration of policy on Palestine, the Archbishop offered "only two alternatives":

JUL 9 1946

Implementation of the recommendations of the Anglo-American Commission, including immediate immigration of 100,000 Jews; or acceptance of the Peel plan, rejected in 1938, which recommended partition of Palestine, setting up Jewish and Arab states.

He said the admission of 100,000 Jews "would be easier under the proposals of the Peel Commission than under those of the Anglo-American Commission, just because the future of Palestine would be more clearly defined."

Dangerous, He Says

"But it is a dangerous mistake," he added, "to concentrate too much on what Palestine might do. The real problem which must not be shirked and for which Palestine certainly cannot be the solution, is that of the half million and more of Jews and all other displaced persons in Germany.

"Homes must be found not only for 100,000 but for all the Jews who cannot endure to live on in Germany. Homes must be found, too, for all those displaced persons who will not return willingly and must not be compelled to return to their country of origin.

"If every country was willing, according to its capacity, to give asylum for some, it would be solved."

New York, July 8 (AP) — Dr. Stephen S. Wise, member of the executive board of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, said today the British Embassy in Washington had refused him permission to visit Palestine.

He said the denial was "a confession of British guilt in relation to recent happenings" in Palestine and declared it could only mean "that the British Government will seek, though in vain, to conceal behind an iron curtain the truth of British misconduct in Palestine."

The British Information servic said that although no formal ap plication had been made, a perso who made a telephone inquiry o Dr. Wise's behalf was told that "o instructions from London" no visa are being issued for Palestine now

3 Naval Officers Accused Of Bribery

Manila, July 8 (AP)—Rear Admiral H. H. Good, commander of the Philippine Sea Frontier, announced today that three officers attached to the submarine supply center at Subic Bay had been ordered to face court-martial for alleged black-market activities, bribery and misappropriation of navy property.

The officers, all of whom have been relieved of duty, are Lieut. Com. C. B. Sprott, Oakland, Cal.; Lieut. H. C. Bates, San Francisco, and Lieut. H. L. Blakley, who gave his address as Brisbane, Australia.

All have had at least 25 years service with the Navy.

Sprott was charged with bribery and embezzlement of United States property, disposing of Government property, and neglect of duty. Bates and Blakley were accused of bribery and wrongfully disposing of United States property.

"The probable losses are in relatively small amounts," Admiral Good said, "and we are unable to show that large black-market activity was conducted." Local newspapers carried stories of a $2,000,000 embezzlement when the case first broke, but navy officials said today the figure would be closer to $100,000, and probably much lower.

BLAMES CHINESE FOR MANCHU WAR

Tokyo, July 8 (A. P.).—Chinese-Japanese friction in Manchuria—a "state of hostilities without a declaration of war"—prompted the decision by Japan's militarists to swarm over that area, a former Kwantung Army officer testified before the International Military Tribunal today.

The witness, former Major-Gen. Ryukichi Tanaka, asserted that Japanese schoolchildren in Manchurian schools had to have guards to protect them from Chinese treatment.

He attributed these alleged tactics to an anti-Japanese movement based on China's desire for the return of Port Arthur and Dairen and removal of the South Manchurian Railway.

Tanaka said there were more than 300 anti-Japanese incidents in Manchuria just prior to the 1931 fireworks. These caused Japanese militarists to "suppress and punish" perpetrators. Tanaka added:

"I felt these Manchurian warlords should be thrown out and a new order established."

"Labor-Boss" System

Tokyo, July 8 (AP)—The Japanese news agency Jiji today reported opposition in Government circles to the proposed abolition of the feudalistic "labor boss" system for supplying labor.

In several areas where Government labor offices were set up, Jiji said, the result was confusion because of an inadequate labor supply, the shortage of food and "other social conditions."

MANCHURIA CLASH REPORTED ON EVE OF PEACE PARLEY

JUL 9 1946

NANKING, July 8—(AP)—New fighting in Manchuria was reported today as rival Chinese government and Communist commander prepared to meet at Changchun Thursday for a peace parley.

A Government dispatch from Mukden alleged the Communists opened attacks on Government troops dug in along the Sungari river about 95 miles southwest of Harbin.

The dispatch asserted that while the Communists laid down an artillery bombardment on Government-held Tachentzu, other units struck by night at the nearby government position at Hsiaochengtzu. Both are about 95 miles southwest of Harbin.

Another Government dispatch claimed that 800 Communists attacked some salt fields six miles south of the southern Manchurian port of Yingkow.

It was to halt such sporadic outbreaks of armed conflict that Gen. Tu Li-ming, Government commander in Manchuria, scheduled his meeting with Gen. Lin Piao, the Communist commander in the territory.

A dispatch from Peiping said it was possible the generals might get together a day earlier. While there was scepticism in Peiping, hope was expressed that the rival generals could patch up some sort of a truce that would end the conflict threatening to torpedo the main peace discussions going on in Nanking.

Meanwhile, in Shanghai, Premier T. V. Soong and minister of Information Peng Hsueh-pei blamed the Communists for the anti-American demonstrations.

Soong declared at a press conference that the Chinese people were grateful for U. S. aid, which he said had helped to spare such cities as Shanghai, Peiping and Tientsin the fate of Manila.

The Government, Soong added, was trying its best to curb anti-American demonstrations "but unfortunately there's no curb against our Communist friends."

Peng said the demand from Communist headquarters at Yenan that American forces quit China showed where the anti-American movement came from.

Soong Condemns Chinese Reds

JUL 9 1946

Shanghai, July 8 (AP)—Premier T. V. Soong today blamed and condemned Chinese Communists for recent anti-American manifestations.

He told a press conference that the Chinese people were grateful for American aid. But for this, he said, Shanghai, Peiping, Tientsin and other cities to which the Americans flew Government troops after the surrender of Japan would have been "gutted like Manila."

The Government, he insisted, is doing its utmost to curb anti-American manifestations "but unfortunately there is no curb against our Communist friends."

Calls Them "Artificial"

Such manifestations, he asserted, are artificial and deliberately fostered for political gains. "I condemn them."

Soong repudiated the suggestion of a Soviet correspondent that the presence of American forces in China violated China's sovereignty, saying the Americans came to China at the Chinese Government's request, and anyway, no peace treaty with Japan has yet been signed.

He told the same correspondents that there was absolutely no truth to alleged rumors that America was seeking to establish naval bases in China.

An inquiry whether China was seeking the evacuation of Soviet troops from Dairen elicited the reply that "it was agreed Dairen should be a free port and not garrisoned." He did not elaborate on this.

"A Matter Of Regret"

The Premier asserted that the Soviet move to bar China from inviting powers to the peace conference "is a matter of regret to us."

Soong was asked to comment on charges by the Soviet newspaper Izvestia to the effect that American capitalists have flooded China with cheap American goods and wrecked efforts of Chinese textile manufacturers to get back into business. "China may fairly be given a chance to speak for herself," was his reply.

He said China could make no economic progress under the present abnormal condition of "neither war nor peace—or both war and peace."

CHINA PARLEY BAR CHARGED

Communists Tell of Deadlock As Fighting Spreads

Nanking, July 8 (AP)—A Chinese Communist spokesman declared tonight peace negotiations were in complete deadlock and that all over China fighting was breaking out "like a series of small fires."

"Unless something is done quickly to stamp them out," he added, "they will develop into a grave conflagration."

His view coincided with pessimism in Government quarters, and there were reports of new clashes in Manchuria, where rival Government and Communist commanders arranged a peace parley at Changchun Thursday.

Reports Efforts Abandoned

The spokesman asserted that Gen. Chou En-lai, chief Communist negotiator, had abandoned all efforts to reach a direct settlement after three inconclusive sessions with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and members of the Cabinet.

At these conferences, the spokesman said, the Government rejected without hope of compromise a Communist demand that local governments be allowed to keep office in areas given up by the Communists.

Some reliable sources said Communist headquarters at Yenan feared an attack from Government warplanes, which so far have left that northern Chinese city alone.

Says Communists Attacked

A Government dispatch from Mukden alleged the Communists opened attacks on Government troops dug in along the Sungari River about 95 miles southwest of Harbin.

The dispatch asserted that while the Communists laid down an artillery bombardment on government-held Tachentzu, other units struck by night at the near-by Government position at Hsiaochengtzu. Both are about 95 miles southwest of Harbin.

Another Government dispatch claimed that 800 Communists attacked some salt fields 6 miles south of the southern Manchurian port of Yingkow.

It was to halt such sporadic outbreaks of armed conflict that Gen. Tu Li-ming, Government commander in Manchuria, scheduled his meeting with Gen. Lin Piao, the Communist commander in the territory.

A dispatch from Peiping said it was possible the generals might get together a day earlier. While there was scepticism in Peiping, hope was expressed that the rival generals could patch up some sort of a truce that would end the conflict threatening to torpedo the main peace discussions going on in Nanking.

Meanwhile, in Shanghai, Premier T. V. Soong and Peng Hsueh-pei, Minister of Information, blamed the Communists for the anti-American demonstrations.

Grateful For U.S. Aid

Soong declared at a press conference that the Chinese people were grateful for United States aid, which he said had helped to spare such cities as Shanghai, Peiping and Tientsin the fiery fate of Manila.

The Government, Soong added, was trying its best to curb anti-American demonstrations, "but unfortunately there's no curb against our Communist friends."

2 Top Manchu Generals Slated To Talk Peace

JUL 9 1946

Nanking, July 8 (AP)—Gen. Tu Li-ming, commander of Chinese Government troops in Manchuria, announced at Mukden today that he would fly to Changchun for peace talks Thursday with Gen. Lin Piao, Communist leader, but informed quarters doubted whether such an unprecedented meeting would take place.

Peace negotiations in Nanking were practically at a standstill as both sides received fresh reports of fighting in various sectors. Each charged violations of truce agreements.

One Government dispatch charged that four Communist airplanes bombed the Yellow River crossing of Paihochen, in northern Honan, destroying several ferry boats.

Even should the two top Manchurian generals meet at Changchun there is little hope here that anything will be accomplished, as both have expressed determination to stick to their military missions.

The American Branch of Executive (truce) Headquarters at Peiping, which is credited with engineering the meeting, is striving to keep both sides in line pending completion of negotiations in Nanking. The Americans are hopeful the two commanders may provide some assurance that fighting will not be resumed to jeopardize the Nanking talks.

Peng said the demand from Communist headquarters at Yenan that American forces quit China showed where the anti-American movement came from.

Twelve More Marines Jap Epidemic Victims

JUL 9 1946

Tientsin, July 8 (AP) — Twelve more United States Marines have been stricken in a sudden epidemic of Japanese sleeping sickness, which already has taken the lives of four Marines in the Tientsin garrison, doctors reported today.

The total number of Marines hospitalized stands at 40. A vaccine developed on Okinawa during an epidemic there in 1945 was being rushed from the United States.

Marine fighter planes over Tientsin yesterday and today dusted the entire city with D.D.T. powder as a precaution.

Atom Board Autonomy

JUL 9 1946

Carpenter

New York, July 8 (AP)—Australia today called for an autonomous atomic energy control agency, declaring that such a curb on atomic matters could not properly be a subsidiary of the United Nations Security Council or the General Assembly itself.

The Australian views were contained in an analysis of the atomic energy control proposals as compared with existing United Nations organizations. It was submitted by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, to a United Nations subcommittee studying atomic energy curbs.

A statement issued after the subcommittee held its fourth meeting said the enforcement measures of any system of control were discussed at the meeting.

Virtually Complete Exchange

The discussions today virtually completed the exchange of views for which it was said the subcommittee was formed. It was announced that the subcommittee would meet again Thursday to make a summary of its discussions and consider a report by Dr. Evatt, the chairman, to be made to the twelve-nation working committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. This working committee likely will meet Friday or early next week.

Dr. Evatt in his analysis said that in general the "exercise of the powers and functions of any international atomic energy agency would not trench upon that of any organ of the United Nations."

He contended that his analysis "shows that the atomic energy agency must have autonomy in the performance of its functions and powers."

All Must Be Subject

"No doubt," Dr. Evatt continued, "the atomic energy treaty would contain provision for 'sanctions' or punishment for violation of any of its terms. In addition, proper safeguards would be included such as access to an impartial and internationally constituted court.

"It should be understood from the outset that every party to the treaty must be subject to the rules of conduct laid down in the treaty or by the agency. For that reason, no system of veto should be permitted in the procedure of the atomic-energy agency, for that would mean a right or privilege to claim a special immunity or exemption from the general rules of conduct."

It was explained authoritatively that the atomic-energy agency conceivably could handle all enforcement measures short of war or up to proved aggression. Those serious cases would in any event be referred to the Security Council for action under the United Nations Charter.

Seeks Membership

The kingdom of Trans-Jordan, which achieved its independence by treaty with Great Britain last March 21, applied tonight for membership in the United Nations.

The Security Council will make recommendations on applications to the 51-nation General Assembly meeting here in September.

New U.S. Memo Due On Atom Control

JUL 9 1946

Harrison

New York, July 8 (AP)—The United States prepared to submit a new memorandum to the Atomic Energy Commission today containing specific proposals for the enforcement of atomic control regulations and outlined possible penalties for violations.

The staff of United States Representative Bernard M. Baruch whipped the document into final form as the commission's six-nation subcommittee was called into session to resume discussions on this phase of the control problem.

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, chairman of both the Atomic Commission and the subcommittee, was understood to be driving for completion of the subcommittee's initial report before the end of the week.

Power On Penalties

The new United States memorandum, amplifying previous declarations on enforcement and penalties, was understood to propose that the contemplated atomic development authority be given power to impose all penalties except for violations actually threatening world peace.

One delegate said all members of the commission, including the United States, were agreed that serious violations were a matter for the Security Council to handle.

Under the United States proposals, the authority would be given the right to impose penalties for lesser violations without referring them to the Security Council. These penalties would include such measures as denial or revocation of licenses to produce atomic energy.

Opposition Expected

The suggestions were expected to meet opposition from some delegates, especially Russia, France and Poland, who are known to favor placing all enforcement measures in the hands of the Security Council.

France has already filed a memorandum with the commission recommending that the atomic authority merely act in an advisory capacity to the Security Council on atomic matters and refer to the Council all breaches of rules.

Russia and Poland were understood to hold similar views.

Fourth Meeting

Today's subcommittee meeting was the fourth since it started work behind closed doors a week ago to try to find out the major points of agreement and disagreement among the delegates on the whole question of atomic control.

Evatt was said by associates to hope to wind up this exploratory stage either today, or in one more subcommittee meeting. A report would then be submitted to the twelve nation working committee, which, in turn was expected to report to the full Atomic Commission by the end of the week.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, July 8—(AP) The blast of X-rays and invisible alpha, beta and neutron rays that hit ships from the atom bomb were more crippling than the blast that smashed down and the heat that wrecked some vessels.

It appears likely that some of the target fleet would have been unable to sail away, even if engines still were in commission.

It is probable that some of those ships that could sail might not have got more than a few days out before they became ghost ships for lack of sufficient personnel still able to work.

Effect of Rays Secret

The precise effect of these rays is, and will remain, the most closely guarded secret of the atom bomb. The fact that many of the 3,400 animals are likely to live does not tell the full story of what would have happened to men.

Parties specially trained were able to enter the lagoon three hours after the air burst. But they could not approach closely to the numerous target ships.

Around these ships, X-rays stood like walls many feet thick. The outer edges of these ray walls were sharply defined. Just a few feet lay between a safe zone and a deadly one.

Even planes at 2,000 feet above the target ships more than an hour afterward picked up what Col. Stafford Warren, radiation chief, said was a "goodly" amount of X-rays. That altitude was the X-ray roof.

Warren said that during this same time, the amount of X-rays from the water near the target center and from some ships was terrific.

Neutron rays appeared only during the atomic flash, but they were absorbed in solid matter and caused all the other kinds of rays.

Danger Within Mile

Warren estimated there was danger from the rays within a mile of the bomb. Irradiation within this distance was tremendous. At two miles, this irradiation still was dangerous.

Scientists and officers agreed that the rays would have made casualties of most or all of crews topside on some ships. Some would have been killed outright by rays. Others would have died within a week or month. Still others would have been ill within a week, and some for as long as six weeks. Many of these would have recovered, but some might have been left with permanent injuries.

The length of time a human is exposed to these rays is the important thing. A few minutes' exposure may be entirely safe. A few hours may cause disabling ray injuries and some fatalities.

But for the crews—had there been any on these ships—exposure would have been much longer than a few hours in many instances. Some ships were dangerous with rays for two days.

The rays, like other phases of the atom explosion, were freakish. Warren said some target ships were safe a day before he expected and others not until a day longer than he had predicted.

All this time, crewmen who survived would have been exposed. It may be possible that men remaining below could have escaped the persistent topside rays, but that would have meant a ship moving blindly.

The worst feature of these rays is not their peril to crews of armored warships, but what they most certainly would do to men on transports.

Where the steel of warships would have filtered out some of the rays those transports near the atomic explosion would have been hulled through from one side to the other by rays. All bulkheads and all compartments would have been pierced.

Would Disable Troops

What proportion of men aboard would have died quickly is difficult to forecast. But it is safe to say that with the present type transport, troops aboard would have become unfit for fighting and probably could not even make landings.

Two inches of steel will reduce the dose from a bomb to six per cent. This sounds much more hopeful than facts justify. For from these atom bombs, only six per cent of the rays can still be fatal or still put men out of action.

The nuclear explosion emits rays far more powerful and much more penetrating than those from radium. At the same time, the atom bomb also emits all the rays equal to radium. And finally, this nuclear bomb emits all the rays in vastly greater volume than radium —including some rays never given off by radium, but all of them deadly.

Crewmen who lived would face a new morale hazard. They would be afraid to eat anything containing salt, for the sodium in salt is one of the chemical elements that easily becomes radioactive. They would fear to use soap for the same reason.

Ship doctors would hesitate to give some common drugs and medicines until these could be proved not to contain dangerous radioactivity. In many medicines there are chemicals that would begin to emit dangerous rays after exposure to an atomic explosion.

Another peril on which no information at all is available is the amount of radioactive particles—the real dew of death—that ships ventilators will suck into compartments or that will seep inside fighting turrets. Elaborate preparations were made to measure this possible hazard.

Against many of these ray hazards it will be possible to set up protection by ship design and construction materials. But how to do that is not known now.

Even so, rays are more serious than has been generally realized. It was not safe, by official announcement, to spend much time on some of the target ships for several days. But even then, Colonel Warren said he was skating on the edge of safety.

DAMAGED SUB IN BIKINI CRUISE

JUL 9 1946

'A' Bomb Survivor, Skate Shows Toughness.

Aboard the U. S. S. Mount McKinley, July 8 (A. P.).—The submarine Skate, badly damaged in the first atomic bomb test, demonstrated the toughness of United States undersea craft today by cruising around Bikini lagoon under its own power.

The Skate's superstructure is only shredded steel now, but Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, who boarded the craft as it neared this flagship, told reporters that "if you were inside, you would never know there had been an atomic blast."

The Skate is believed to have been almost directly under the bomb blast. Rear Admiral W. S. Parsons of the test task force has estimated it was under pressure possibly as high as 500 pounds per square inch.

Blandy, chief of the Atomic tests, said there is a "dimple" on the Skate's pressure hull but that it probably was caused by flying wreckage from another ship rather than by the bomb.

Apparently there will be at least sixty-eight ships in the next target array. Blandy said all vessels surviving the first blast July 1 would be used for the underwater test scheduled tentatively for July 25 and that several others might be added.

B-29 May Photo Blast.

Kwajalein, July 8 (A. P.).—A B-29 photo-observation plane may fly directly over the submerged atomic bomb at the moment it is detonated on July 25—but at a safe altitiude of some 35,000 feet.

Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, head of the 20th Bomber Command, told newsmen today that he had proposed this to Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, the operation crossroads" task force commander. Blandy's reply is expected this week end.

Ramey wants to ride in the plane, should the flight be approved. The General was in the B-29 which dropped the first bomb at Bikini.

Ramey suggested that at 35,000 feet the plane could be seven or eight miles away by the time the atomic cloud reaches its peak.

Theft in New York of a package of atomic bomb test film labeled "top secret" was confirmed today by Ramey, but he said the thief obtained only an unimportant sequence of the preliminary drop of a practice bomb.

The film was being flown to Rochester, N. Y., to test the speed of delivery, the Twentieth Bombing Command chief said. Every film flown to the United States for processing is marked "top secret."

ACCUSES FBI OF INDIGNITIES

JUL 9 1946

Redin Says He Was Forcibly Undressed, Left In Shorts

Seattle, July 8 (AP) — Russian Naval Lieutenant Nicolai G. Redin, testifying in his espionage-conspiracy trial, accused Federal Bureau of Investigation agents today of indignities after his arrest at Portland, Ore., last March.

Redin, charged with conspiring to obtain secret navy information, testified he was forcibly undressed by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and stood in his shorts about an hour in the Portland courthouse shortly after being taken into custody March 26.

He said that after a short period he was brought slippers, a gray sweater and some pants. He was then taken to another room and a man, who said he was a doctor, examined him, the witness testified.

FBI Actions Described

Redin said his automobile had been stopped by two automobiles carrying six men, who, when he asked for their authority, told him they were FBI agents. They refused his request, he said, to telephone the Russian consul.

Asked by Irvin Goodman if he had known that FBI agents had been shadowing him, Redin said:

"Yes, we knew our apartment had been entered several times. Things were changed and they forgot to turn off the lights."

He added "other Soviet citizens had complained to the Soviet consul about such things."

Direct Examination

Goodman asked several direct questions of Redin.

"Did you at any time conspire with anyone to obtain information on the destroyer tender Yellowstone?" he asked.

"I did not," Redin replied.

"Did you ever obtain information?"

"I did not."

"Have you done everything under your power to strengthen the friendship between the United States and your country?"

"I did and I think there has been very good co-operation," Redin said.

Friendship Urged

Goodman asked, "Do you believe that friendship between the United States and your country must be preserved to preserve the peace of the world?"

"I do," his client said.

Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black today halted attempts of the defense counsel to introduce a mass of exhibits describing Redin's activities during the period he was charged with espionage and conspiracy.

Goodman was introducing office records of the Soviet Purchasing Commission, including copies of letters and similar exhibits when the Government objected that such exhibits were not material to the case.

"Everything He Did"

"We want the jury to know everything the defendant did during the period of the conspiracy charge covering more than two years," Goodman stated. "We feel the jury has the right to know."

Judge Black interjected that "we might have to admit every magazine you read in two years."

Goodman replied: "That's O.K. with us."

Redin, who was on the witness stand when the trial recessed over the week end, again took the stand to testify that American and Soviet officers frequently exchanged naval information during the war and in response to question by his attorney said the exchange was for the purpose of bringing about the quickest possible victory over Germany, Italy and Japan.

LOAN BILL CLEARS FIRST HOUSE TEST

JUL 9 1946

British Aid Measure Approved for Debate by Vote of 181-67.

Washington, July 8 (A. P.).—Urged by President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes to speed favorable action, the House beat down, 181 to 67, today efforts to block consideration of the $3,750,000,000 British loan.

The vote put the loan formally before the House for four days of debate.

However, it furnished no accurate measure of the strength of the opposition, as anti-loan forces split on an effort by some members to block consideration of the Senate-approved legislation ratifying the credit.

The start of House debate on the credit previously approved by the Senate by a 46 to 34 vote found Representative Sabath (D.-Ill.), chairman of the Rules Committee, among those opposing it.

"For the first time in thirteen years I am unable to support the administration," he remarked.

He told the House that Great Britain "never has done anything for our nation," while "we have saved her twice."

The loan, he said, would be against our best interests and would be used "to compete with our commerce."

"She is in as good a position to raise the money as we are, in fact better," he added. "She can dispose of her holdings in the United States."

Buffett Opposes Bill.

Representative Buffett (R.-Neb.), a leading opponent of a British loan, contended that it "moves us toward destruction by Communism."

Buffett asserted that the House "will serve America's future best by decisively defeating this gift-loan." He termed it a "$3,750,000,000 subsidy to American exporters levied against all taxpayers," and said the agreement states "the worthless lend-lease promises with some new language."

"The most enticing argument is the assertion that this gift is needed for our national defense," he declared. "The notion that our Government must or should try to buy military support of other countries is false. The Russian 'scare' is the same tactic Hitler used to divert attention from regimentation at home. As a military threat to us Russian might is largely a bogey which will frighten no one who knows what totalitarianism and bureaucracy do to production in Russia."

Buffett contended that "the loan scheme is a most insidious threat to our national defense," and added: "The fact that most left-wing groups in America are supporting it should warn patriots of what it portends."

In another opposition speech prepared for delivery, Representative Allen (R.-Ill.) said: "I am not convinced that a loan to Great Britain would be diplomatically wise unless we loan to other nations."

He argued that Congress could not be justified "in charging our veterans considerable more interest on borrowed money than foreign countries, especially in view of the fact that Great Britain would not pay interest for several years."

Truman Sends Letter.

President Truman, in a letter secnt to the capitol, declared that without the credit "it will be difficult, if not impossible, to proceed with the United Nations program for international economic co-operation."

Economic conflict between Great Britain and the United States, Mr. Truman said, would be "disastrous to the economic well-being of both countries."

The President and Secretary of State Byrnes personally made new appeals for the loan as some administrative leaders privately voiced concern regarding how the House will vote.

Mr. Truman appealed for consideration in the House by Democrats and Republicans, without reference to party affiliations.

Byrnes, in a cablegram from Paris, where he is participating in the Foreign Ministers' conference, declared that "the British loan is the first essential economic step toward peace and security."

JUL 9 1946

Text of Truman Letter.

Mr. Truman wrote this letter which Representative Spence (D.-Ky.), chairman of the Banking Committee, planned to read to the House:

"I want to express my appreciation to you and to the Committee on Banking and Currency for the fine spirit in which you have considered the British financial agreement which is now before the House.

"The British financial agreement is an integral part of the international economic policy of the United States.

"Without this agreement it will be difficult, if not impossible, to proceed with the United Nations' program for international economic co-operation.

"This program has had the wholehearted approval of Congress. It is the one way we can avoid the danger of a conflict in economic policy between the United States and the United Kingdom. Such a conflict would be disastrous to the economic well-being of both countries and to the peace and security of the entire world.

"On such matters of international policy there must be no partisan division between Americans. Your committee has shown the highest degree of statesmanship in its hearings and report on the British financial agreement. The splendid example you have set will be an inspiration to all of us."

Mr. Truman also discussed the loan legislation with democratic congressional leaders at the White House. House Speaker Rayburn (D.-Tex.) told reporters he had given Mr. Truman a prediction that the House would pass the bill.

Text of Byrnes Cable.

The Byrnes cable read:

"The foundations of peace can never be secure if they rest exclusively on a political base."

"If nations continue to wage economic warfare through discriminatory trade practices and through formation of economic blocks, international trade will languish, the standard of living will decline, irritations will develop, and there will be no peace.

"Here in Paris it is more apparent to me than ever that a prompt return to normal, healthy trade between nations is essential if we are to lay the foundations for permanent peace and prosperity.

"The British financial agreement should prove a powerful instrument to this end. It will dissolve a whole vast system of trade controls and discriminations arising out of the economic dislocations of the war.

"Without the agreement, this system, so destructive of free enterprise and our friendly relations between nations, is almost certain to continue for many years to come.

"We cannot solve all our problems at once.

"The British loan is the first essential economic step toward peace and security. If we permit ourselves to be sidetracked by other problems, if we attempt to hinge our assistance to Britain on other considerations, there is a good chance that our efforts to secure world trade expansion may fail.

"I do hope that the Congress will recognize the stakes that are involved and that it will promptly approve the financial agreement with the United Kingdom."

BARKLEY TO CALL NIGHT SESSIONS TO SPEED ACTION

JUL 9 1946

Senator Taft Urges That Vetoed Bill Be Returned to Truman.

O'DANIEL TO SPEAK

Texan Prepared for Second Filibuster Against OPA Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 8. — (AP) A showdown fight over price controls opened in the Senate today with Democratic Leader Barkley (D-Ky) appealing for a compromise OPA revival bill and Senator Taft (R-Ohio) urging the chamber to send back to President Truman the bill he vetoed.

Senator Wherry (R-Neb) maneuvered for a later test vote an amendment to leave controls off meat, poultry and dairy products.

O'Daniel Plans Long Speech

And Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex) who filibustered against the original bill which President Truman vetoed, walked in with a bulky armful of papers and announced he is prepared to speak at length "after the other senators get tired of talking."

As the Senate quit for the day, Barkley announced that he hopes a vote will be reached tomorrow on the Wherry amendment. Barkley said night sessions will be held in an effort to speed a final decision on the bill.

Barkley launched what may be more than a week's debate in a vigorous verbal clash with Taft over the veto, the new measure and price administration in general.

While long lines of spectators awaited their turn at crowded galleries, Taft contended hotly that Congress ought to stand by its guns, send back to the White House the same bill that was vetoed and let Mr. Truman decide "whether he wants it or no OPA at all."

Barkley replied this would be an "instransigent" attitude. He added that to obtain any legislation, it would be necessary for Congress and the President to come to some agreement.

People Demand Controls

"It is the overwhelming desire of the American people that we have price control in some form," Barkley declared. "We get nowhere by going into recriminations as to who is responsible for there being no law now."

Observing that he has every reason to believe that "we will secure a fairly workable bill," Barkley said he is fairly certain the President would sign the revival bill in its present form.

Barkley and other congressional leaders conferred with the chief executive on the bill before the Senate session opened. Barkley told reporters afterwards that the President "can't pass judgment on it until he gets it before him."

Questioned by Taft

Under a crossfire of questions by Taft, Barkley conceded he had made no attempt to meet all the Presidential objections to the provisions of the vetoed bill in drafting the revival measure now before the Senate. In fact, he said, it is the same bill, except for substute provisions for amendments by Taft and Wherry that Mr. Truman called the "most damaging" sections of the rejected legislation.

Taft chided Barkley about "disregarding" the President's recommendations that Congress provide more food subsidies and modify the decontrol provisions of the vetoed bill.

In view of the omissions, Taft said he wondered whether the President would "eat his words" and sign the bill, even if Congress passes it in its present form.

"There is a fair prospect that he will sign it—I think he will," the Democratic leader replied.

Taft said Barkley appeared to have left in the renewal bill, approved by the Senate Banking committee last week, some of the "booby trap" amendments against which Chester Bowles, retiring stabilization director, had complained. Taft said that perhaps Mr. Truman would rather have nothing than such a bill, adding:

"I want my own position clear. If the choice is between the kind of price control we have had and nothing, I'm for nothing."

The first of an expected series of amendments was offered during the day.

Senator Moore (R-Okla) filed a sweeping provision under which no ceilings could be placed on non-agricultural products unless the supply is short of the domestic demand.

Moore was joined by Senators Thomas (D-Okla), Reed (R-Kan), Capper (R-Kan), O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), Robertson (R-Wyo), Eastland (D-Miss), O'Daniel (D-Tex), Willis (R-Ind) and McClellan (D-Ark) in another amendment which would keep petroleum off the control list unless there is an insufficient supply to meet domestics demands.

Senators Russell (D-Ga) and Maybank (D-SC) offered an amendment requiring a uniform ceiling on pulpwood in all states.

Green in Warning on OPA.

Chicago, July 8 (A. P.).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said today that "rising unrest and strikes" will come soon unless the OPA is extended. Addressing the annual convention of the A. F. of L. International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, he stated, "We maintain the OPA should be extended because of the danger of inflation. When the worker finds his dollar is buying less he will do something about it. The worker is going to move and he will strike."

JUL 9 1946

Newsprint Price Rise Held Imminent

New York, July 8 (AP)—Newsprint sources here today said the revaluation of the Canadian dollar made more imminent a rise in newsprint prices generally anticipated at the time of OPA's lapse.

Uncertainty over price control legislation might act as a temporary brake on lifting of prices at this end, they said, but Canadian paper mills might act independently.

Through the raising of the Canadian dollar to par with the American dollar, Canadian mills would lose about $6.70 a ton which they had formerly enjoyed through the premium on exchange.

R. M. Fowler, president of the Newsprint Association of Canada, was quoted in Montreal as saying a price increase by OPA had been expected for July, and that if a raise of $6.70 or so a ton were made the Canadian mills could recoup the loss from revaluation.

PROBERS GET DATA ON MAY'S ROLE IN TIMBERLAND DEAL

JUL 9 1946

Kentucky Associate Testifies Proposal Was Based on War Contracts.

HOUSE HEARS SPEECH

Congressman Complains He Is Victim of Conspiracy, Falsehood.

JUL 9 1946

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP) L. W. Fields of Whitesburg, Ky., told Senate war profits investigators today that Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky) promoted a timberland deal in 1943 on representations that he had the proper contacts for war contracts and that "we'd both draw big salaries."

The testimony, before the Mead war investigating committee, came near the close of a day which saw May, chairman of the House Military committee, complain bitterly that he was the victim of a "conspiracy of falsehood and malice."

May told the House that "truth crushed to earth will rise again," and denied that he profited in any way from the operations of an Illinois munitions combine now under investigation before the Mead group.

Got no Compensation

"I neither asked for nor received compensation or fee for anything I did," May told his House colleagues in a speech delivered under personal privilege.

May contended that in making telephone calls to help principals of the munitions group make contacts for war contracts, he only did what any other member of Congress would do to help the war effort. He said army officers advised him that the concerns were producing the goods.

The timberland deal discussed before the Mead group today involving May has denied any financial connection.

In a closed session of the committee last June 4, May said the whole thing was financed by Dr. Henry Garss head man of the Illinois munitions group, and Joe Freeman, Garsson agent here. He said all he did was help them find Timberland to buy, serve as transmittal agent for some of the funds without compensation, and take over responsibility for management of the property on their behalf for a time after it began to appear that they may have gotten into a losing proposition on his advice.

Identifies Letter From May

Today Fields identified a letter to him from May, dated Oct. 25, 1943, which represented the congressman as putting up money for the timberland deal and being "in position to lose more money than anybody" if it should fail.

"I have already paid $10,000 on the purchase price," the letter said, "and expect to put up another ten for operating capital, including purchasing of machinery."

Senator Mitchell (D-Wash) handed the letter to Fields without saying where he got it.

Under questioning, Fields said he was supposed to have been a partner in the operation and get fifty percent of the stock, but was frozen out.

He said May proposed the deal to him with the declaration that the congressman "was in touch with the proper people" to get war contracts, and had "connections that would insure we'd get the top price" for lumber.

May, Fields said, was to get backing from "certain financial interests" in Washington for the proposition.

"When did you find out that May was only an agent and had no interest in the corporation?" Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) asked him.

"Not until I came up here," the witness answered. "I thought he actually was the owner of the timber."

After the timberland was bought Fields said, he worked on the project three or four months at $125 a month, but quit when he began to believe he never would get any stock. He thought of suing, he said, but finally decided that since he had let himself into the deal with only a verbal agreement "why, I'd just get out."

May in his statement to the committee in June had said nothing about any partnership deal. He said that he got in contact with the owners of the timberland through Fields, and understood Fields drew a commission on the sale. He said he recommended Fields to be manager on the ground after Garsson's company exercised the option which he said he obtained for the concern.

May's version of how Fields happened to leave the job was that manpower was so scarce the operation simply closed down for a long period.

Also introduced today were several packets of checks signed "A. J. May." One group dated from August, 1943 to April, 1944, were made out to A. J. May, Jr., identified as a son of the congressman, now dead. Fields said that so far as he knew no A. J. May, Jr., was on the Cumberland company's payroll.

That point also was discussed in Rep. May's statement to the committee last month, with May explaining that most of the checks so made out were for payrolls which A. J., Jr., distributed to woods crews. The congressman said his recollection was that his son, who died on that job, worked only a month or two at a salary he recalled as $125 a month. The A. J. May, Jr., checks introduced today totalled $2,441.50.

Copies of Checks Shown

Fields identified photostatic copies of another series of checks, issued between Nov. 5, 1943 and March 31, 1944, to Jack May, over the signature of the Cumberland Lumber company by A. J. May. Jack May was identified as a nephew of the congressman. The checks totalled $1,100 and indicated, the witness said, that Jack May was receiving a salary of more than the $125 per month which Fields had understood the salary was to be.

"Did Jack May actually work?" the witness was asked.

"Yes, Jack actually worked a portion of the time," was the answer. Fields added that there were "a good many days he'd be off part time—he might be drinking a little or something like that."

Another letter to Fields from Rep. May, dated March 13, 1944 declared that "I must have a full time manager in charge of the job, or it is going to break me up before it gets started."

"I have already put a little in excess of $25,000 into it, and it must be operated while the market is good."

The letter then notified Fields that he was to be relieved of his duties and asked that all bills outstanding be sent to Rep. May.

Fields testified that the total cost of the property owned by the Cumberland company was approximately $33,200.

Lumberman Testifies

The committee also heard testimony from A. C. Brown, Whitesburg, Ky., lumberman who said he had engaged in a series of negotiations with May for purchase of the Cumberland property which culminated in a suit against him by Henry M. Garsson for lumber which Brown had cut during the negotiations.

30-29-4031

Brown said he had first obtained May's oral agreement to sell the property for $32,500 but that May later upped this to $35,000 and he finally paid $40,000 for it as part of the settlement of the suit.

He denied allegations of "embezzelment" made against him by May in the congressman's earlier statement before the committee, and contended that all of his operations were carried on with May's full knowledge and consent until the suit was filed.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) told reporters after the close of today's session that there may be a constitutional bar against summoning May before the Senate committee for questioning.

He called attention to Article 1, Section 6 of the Constitution, dealing with congressional immunities. It declares that "for any speech or debate in either House, they (members of Congress) shall not be questioned in any other place."

Ferguson pointed out that May had delivered a lengthy speech in the House today concerning his association with the lumber company. If May appeared voluntarily, he added, that would be an entirely different thing.

Fields was called to the stand after the Mead committee had heard testimony that a $10,000 political job was offered the committee's key investigator to get him off the trail of the Illinois munitions combine.

Delving further into the financial affairs of the group of companies for which May repeatedly interceded at the War department, the committee also received testimony that one of the concerns spent more than $1,500,000 in three years for rent and maintenance expenses on a plant which originally cost $120,000.

May Invited to Appear

The Senate committee renewed its invitation to May to expand, in public testimony, his previous privately-given account of dealings with officials of the munitions group—an explanation which Chairman Mead (D-NY) of the Senate committee called "wholly inadequate."

JUL 9 1946

The account of the political job offer came from Thomas O'Connell, committee investigator, who said a participant in a conference about it was Benjamin F. Fields of Washington. Earlier in the hearings Senator Mitchell (D-Wash), a member of the committee, said Fields had tried to "bribe" him with a $5,000 campaign contribution to intercede for the munitions group.

O'Connell said it was proposed that he abandon his investigation of the affairs of the Erie Basin Metals company and go to New Mexico at a salary of $10,000 per year, approximately twice the amount he was receiving as an investigator.

1946

Acknowledging that "it looked good," O'Connell testified that he at first accepted $500 in cash from Joe Martinez, who had previously been employed by the Senate committee as an investigator, to pay for his transportation to New Mexico. When he thought it over the next day, he added, he concluded the whole arrangement was an effort to block the investigation and he returned the money, reporting the incident immediately to the committee.

Tell of High Salaries

George H. Knutson of the War department price adjustment board and Carol L. Moline of the department's purchase policy branch told the committee about high salaries, rentals and maintenance costs paid by the Erie Basin Metal Products firm at its plant in Elgin, Ill.

In three years 1942, 1943 and 1944, they declared, Erie Basin paid the Illinois Watch Case Co., a total of $577,000 in rent and spent $1,024,000 for maintenance of buildings and grounds. The plant, less machinery, was valued at $120,000 in 1941.

The "maintenance" costs included construction of an apartment inside the factory structure. Moline said he was told it was for A .B Geilman, one of the directors.

Knutson testified that the total of executive salaries paid by the 18 related companies under investigation was much higher than among the general run of war contractors.

May, taking the House floor under a special rule giving members the right to reply to attacks made against them, included in his declaration a flat assertion that "I did not secure, nor have anything to do with procuring war contracts for anyone."

Lashes His Critics

At the same time he lashed out against what he termed a "conspiracy of falsehood and malice" against him. He attributed to an investigator for the Senate committee an "unpardonable breach of the search and seizure clause of the Constitution" in obtaining access to the office and records of the Erie Basin Metals company, a unit of the munitions group.

Reading a prepared statement, May, chairman of the House Military committee, specifically disclaimed having indorsed a check which had appeared in the record of the Senate committee with the indorsement of "A. J. May" as president of the Cumberland Lumber company, Prestonburg, Ky.

The check was one of several executed by the Erie company and its associate, the Batavia Metal ...ducts company, to the Cumberland Lumber company for lumber which a witness said was never delivered.

"I am not and never have been president of the Cumberland Lumber company and, certainly would not have signed my name as such," May told the House. "I do not know who did it but I did not. I did not endorse that check 'A. J. May, president'. The payee of the check was the Cumberland Lumber company and it was placed to their credit."

Referring to another check, executed by the Erie company for $3,156.47 and bearing the indorsement "Cumberland Lumber company by A. J. May" and the additional signature "A. J. May" below, May said he had advanced funds for the Cumberland company on several occasions and this check "was reimbursement to me for such advances for which I have deposit slips."

"I neither asked for nor received compensation or fee for anything I did," May told his colleagues, adding that "a complete audit of all my dealings with the Cumberland company is being made and will be submitted to the press."

Earlier Testimony Revealed

Before May took the floor Mead introduced into the record of the Senate committee testimony given by the Kentucy congressman at a closed session of the investigative group on June 4, at the same time observing that it did not cover all the matters which had subsequently been discussed by witnesses at public hearings.

May's appearance, Mead said, was at the former's request and was unsworn, without cross-examination. It did not, the chairman said, touch on the question of the "A. J. May" indorsement on the checks to Cumberland.

In connection with May's purported efforts to help the Erie and Batavia concerns with war contracts, Mead said:

"He left the impression with the committee that he had made a few disinterested telephone calls that were more or less incidental. Testimony since revealed that he made many telephone calls that were repetitious and troublesome."

With reference to the same subject, May contended that he had done only what any member of Congress would do in an effort to assist the war effort and obtain vitally needed munitions for the front.

"Perhaps," he said, "I may have been somewhat importunate in urging General Campbell and General Porter (both ordnance officers) to rush the production of war materials in order to get the bloody war to an early end; but I did not then feel, nor do I now, that I did any wrong, nor do I have any pangs of conscience about it."

May identified only as "one Flanagan" the Senate investigator whom he alleged had violated the search and seizure provision of the Constitution. Flanagan, he said, had appeared at the Erie offices with a blank subpoena which required the appearance of an individual with certain papers, including any relating to Mr. May. Only a young woman receptionist was present in the company's office, May said, whereupon the investigator filled out the subpoena with her name and proceeded to use it as a search warrant.

TRUMAN APPEALS FOR CIVIL AIR PACT

JUL 9 1946

Washington, July 8 (A. P.).—President Truman renewed at a White House conference today with Democratic and Republican leaders a request that the Senate act on the 1944 Chicago treaty on international civil aviation.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) told reporters that Mr. Truman expressed his views during the conference which also was attended by Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton and Senate Republican Leader White of Maine.

White told a reporter that while he opposes action at this session, "There's not much I can do to stop it, if the Democrats are determined to call it up."

Clayton has urged early Senate approval, asserting that rapid expansion of post-war civil aviation has made the need for operation of the agreement urgent.

Sent to the Senate on March 12, 1945, by the late President Roosevelt, the treaty would set up an international aviation organization with authority to establish basic standards for international commercial aviation. The agreement cannot become effective until signed by twenty-six countries. Less than a dozen have ratified it thus far, but the State Department contends other nations will fall in line once the United States approves it.

ANTI-ROOSEVELT FUND IN GERMANY

JUL 9 1946

Washington, July 8 (A. P.).—Germany was ready in 1940 to toss a big chunk of cash into the American election campaign, in an effort to block a third term for President Roosevelt. But, said Assistant Attorney-General O. John Rogge, in recounting his recent conversations at Frankfurt with former Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, "the opportunity never presented itself."

Rogge declined to say what sum of money was involved, asserting he is preparing a 30,000-word report on his findings for Attorney-General Tom Clark.

"Goering was perfectly frank with us," Rogge told a reporter. "He admitted it (the money) was to influence the American election. They wanted to make an effort to try and defeat President Roosevelt. But the opportunity never presented itself."

Rogge discussed the forthcoming report somewhat reluctantly, after a dispatch from Frankfurt yesterday, which said investigators working with him had uncovered a pre-war plan by Goering to invest $50,000,000 in United States industries.

The Assistant Attorney-General said that the money involved in the abortive election plan "wasn't $50,000,000" and didn't involve industrial investments, but "more than that I cannot say at this time."

Sweden To Relinquish German Assets To Allies

Washington, July 8 (AP)—Government officials disclosed today that Sweden has agreed to relinquish about three fourths of her $387,000,000 worth of German assets to the Allied Reparations Commission.

A Swedish-Allied agreement, officials said, also provides that about $10,000,000 worth of Swedish-held Nazi "looted" gold will be surrendered to the Allies.

U.S. ABOLISHES BLACKLIST IN WORLD TRADE

JUL 9 1946

Business Weapon, Once Covering 15,466, Down To 5,887 Names

Washington, July 8 (AP)—The United States abolished today its blacklist of firms and persons forbidden to trade with this country because they were alleged to have aided the enemy during the war.

From a wartime peak of 15,446, the list had been whittled down to 5,887 names.

The British and Canadian governments simultaneously withdrew almost identical rosters.

"The withdrawal of the proclaimed list," the State Department said in a formal announcement, "does not in any way constitute a termination of or slackening of the program for the permanent elimination of Axis external influences either in this Hemisphere or in the Eastern Hemisphere."

Inter-American Agreement

Several inter-American agreements, the latest the 1945 Act of Chapultepec, called for the American republics to eliminate Axis influence in the Western Hemisphere.

In Europe, arrangements have been made with Switzerland and Sweden to liquidate German-owned or controlled interests in those countries. Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of State, told a news conference discussions of similar agreements with Spain and Portugal will be intensified soon.

He conceded, in response to a question, that abolishing the black list weakened to some extent America's bargaining power with Spain and Portugal. But, he said, other talking points, which he did not care to name, still remain.

Remaining Controls Noted

Asked whether any controls still exist over trading with German firms in Argentina, Acheson replied in the affirmative and said the Commerce Department still can require export licenses.

Observing that the agreement with Switzerland for liquidation of Nazi assets calls for withdrawal of the blacklist, Acheson said the list would be ineffective if it were lifted in some countries and not in others.

The State Department announcement said abolition of the blacklist does not unfreeze the accounts in this country of all persons formerly on the list. The department said in some cases accounts will continue to be blocked because a person was of German or Japanese nationality.

"Policy Of Freeing Trade"

Nor does withdrawal of the list imply, the department said, that all persons formally on it "are regarded as satisfactory agents for American business."

But cancellation of the list does represent, it said, "an important step in the United States policy of freeing trade from wartime controls as soon as such action becomes possible."

The original American list of 1,834 names was issued on July 17, 1941, and was expanded during the war.

Persons and companies on the list were prevented by the Government from obtaining export licenses, funds, passport visas and use of communication facilities.

OXNAM TURNS FIRE AGAIN ON VATICAN

JUL 9 1946

Columbus, Ohio, July 8 (A. P.).—The Catholic Church, declares Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the New York Methodist Church, is "supporting political movements in Europe that mean its overthrow."

"Why is this?" he asked in a sermon at Ohio State University Stadium yesterday before an assemblage of Methodist war veterans. "It is hard to understand the insistence that Rome proceeds from moral principles in these matters. Its prestige, property and power appear to be the decisive considerations."

Bishop Oxnam, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, questioned the motives of religious leaders who, he said, "summon us to a 'holy war' on Communism."

The "holy war" is viewed by some, he added, "as an attempt to win so-called big business to Roman Catholic support, since the attack on Communism is interpreted by some as an espousal of capitalism. It should be abundantly clear, however, that Rome is not standing for capitalism."

ANDERSON SEEKING CUBAN SUGAR CROP

JUL 9 1946

Washington, July 8 (A. P.).—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson left Washington National Airport today for Havana, in an attempt to resolve deadlocked sugar negotiations between the United States and Cuba. He was accompanied by Guillermo Belt, Cuba's Ambassador to the United States.

Anderson will intervene in the ten-month-old conversations between the United States and Cuba. Well-informed officials said that the United States is willing to buy two crops at a price of 3.675 cents per pound, together with considerable blackstrap molasses and industrial alcohol, but that Cuba is unwilling to sell her 1947 crop at the offered price, and has told United States negotiators any price for next year's crop should be fixed by negotiations in December, this year.

The United States is said to believe it cannot sign a purchase contract for a single crop, since its offer to buy 280,000,000 gallons of molasses at 13.6 cents a gallon and 40,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol at 65 cents a gallon from two crops is conditional on a joint two-year contract.

Disposal Agency Hopes To Triple Rate Of Sales

Washington, July 8 (AP)—The War Assets Administration, declaring itself "far from satisfied" with surplus sales to date, today set as its goal a disposal rate three times its 1946 first-quarter rate.

At the December pace of disposals, it would have taken seven to nineteen years to dispose of various classes of surplus items, said Lieut. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, retiring WAA administrator.

"At the March rate it would take slightly over three years—but "this improvement is not enough," Gregory said in transmitting to Congress his report on operations for the first quarter of this year.

"Accordingly, this administration has set its goals at disposals of $12,000,000,000 during 1946 and $7,000,000,000 during the first half of 1947."

Billion Dollar Bill On Waterways O.K.'d

JUL 9 1946

Washington, July 8 (AP)—House and Senate conferees agreed today on a $1,000,000,000 rivers and harbors bill.

They approved changes made by the Senate after the measure had passed the House. Approval on the floor by the two divisions will send the legislation to the White House.

Representative Dondero (R., Mich.) was voted down on his proposal to cut an authorization for the Arkansas River valley from $150,000,000 to $55,000,000. The estimated total cost of the Arkansas program is $435,000,000.

Projects added by the Senate and approved by the conferees were: Waterway to Empire, La., $900,000; Cow Bayou, Texas, $323,000; Yaquina Bay, Ore., $225,000.

Ada Rehan Saga Now Being Probed

JUL 9 1946

New York, July 8 (AP)—An inquiry into the weird saga of the Ada Rehan, mysterious Liberty ship which set out from San Francisco in August, 1945, for a two-week voyage but didn't come home for nearly a year, was opened here today by the Coast Guard.

Seven crewmen of the ship pleaded guilty of misconduct when the ship was in Suez last November.

Nine crewmen have been charged with misconduct in that they refused to man the ship while the master, Capt. Frank H. Haas, was aboard, delaying the ship's departure.

3 Women Stowaways

Seven of the crew appeared formally. An eighth, whose representative entered an inocent plea, was tried in absentia. A ninth is hospitalized in Shanghai.

Among other things, the inquiry sought to get full details of the capers of a pet beer-and-vodka drinking baboon which finally had to be shot because it took a chip out of the captain's hand, and the story of three women stowaways, one with a 7-year-old son.

Lieut. Com. Raphael McKenzie, the hearing officer, found the charges correct and reserved judgment until tomorrow pending personnel reports from Washington. Under Coast Guard law the men could lose their seamen's certificates, have certificates suspended or be placed on probation.

None of the defendants explained his action.

Will Be Examined Privately

No charges have been placed against Captain Haas but he will be examined privately tomorrow by the Coast Guard.

Those who pleaded guilty to the misconduct charges were Chief Steward William C. Curnow, 28, Berkeley, Cal.; Able Seaman Thomas F. Nee, Jr., 30, Richmond, Cal.; Charles P. Pentraze, 32, El Centro, Cal.; Able Seaman William C. Elledge, Jr., 23, Vallejo, Cal.; Second Cook Gaylord P. Parker, Los Angeles; Thomas E. Osterday, 18, utility messman, of Huntington Park, Cal.; Norman N. Fifer, 18, ordinary seaman, Redwood, Cal.

The eighth man who was tried in absentina was Glen E. Turner, address unavailable. All were members of the Sailors Union of the Pacific (AFL).

Marriage License Form Procured For Thompson

JUL 9 1946

Pittsburgh, July 8 (AP)—Another legal step was taken today along the circuitous path leading to the mending of the war's famed Anglo-American "romance of broken hearts."

An attorney procured a marriage license application form for William (Red) Thompson and Norah Carpenter, the former British service girl who bore him quadruplets.

The attorney, Samuel Keller, indicated the couple would appear in Orphans Court some time tomorrow to ask a waiver of the three-day waiting period required before a license is issued in Pennsylvania.

Recently Divorced

Thompson was recently divorced by his Pittsburgh wife.

Gradually accustoming themselves to the July heat in the United States, Miss Carpenter and her three surviving quadruplets settled down in a modest midtown apartment here seeking rest from their trans-Atlantic trip and a respite from the eyes of the curious.

Thompson saw to it that his good-looking youngsters got plenty of sleep after their 4,000-mile journey from England—a trans-Atlantic plane hop to New York and week-end ride to Pittsburgh.

Friendship avenue neighbors, who glimpsed the children as they ventured into their yard yesterday, spoke of them as "cute," "gorgeous" and well-mannered."

Mrs. Lawrence Starr, one of the neighbors, said:

"Norah told me she isn't used to this heat and the babies aren't, either. She's keeping them in the house while the sun is bright. The babies are just gorgeous."

Bride, Tortured By Germans, Arrives In U.S. From France

JUL 9 1946

New York, July 8 (AP)—An attractive brown-haired Russian girl who underwent Nazi torture and narrowly escaped execution for sabotaging German bombs, and a woman who was beaten frequently in concentration camps and prisons, were among the 350 wives and children of former service men who arrived today on the S.S. Brazil from Le Havre.

The ship also brought 106 enlisted men and army officers and 56 War Shipping Administration employes. Three men stowaways, two of them attempting their second illegal entry, were taken to Ellis Island.

Sent To Germany

The former Nazi prisoners were Mrs. Ludmila Gilbert, 21, wife of former Private Roy Gilbert, of Arco, and Mrs. Marthe Becker, 40, wife of former Water Tender 1/c James A. Becker, of Vancouver, Washington.

Mrs. Gilbert said she was a student at Rostov, Russia, in October, 1942, when German troops sent her to Bremerhaven, Germany, as an involuntary worker.

After two weeks as a servant in the home of a banker, she was discharged as unsatisfactory and sent to jail, where an elderly guard taught her German and smuggled her additional rations, she said. She later was put to work as an interpreter in a bomb plant at Lubberstedt, but one Sunday was assigned to inspect small bombs.

Tortured By Germans

With an SS woman guard next to her, she still managed to remove more than 800 fuses before being discovered. For two weeks she was subjected to having needles forced under all of her fingernails each day and then was sent to a concentration camp.

"I never cried when the Gestapo questioned me and hurt me," she said. "I cried alone in my cell."

She was to have been hanged before an audience of Russian laborers, but the Allies took Bremerhaven before the execution could be carried out.

It was while working for army counterintelligence that she met her husband, who was on guard duty at the quarters of a Russian officer in September, 1945, and they were married last March 7.

Mrs. Becker spent ten months in a concentration camp at Kassel, near Hanover, Germany, after questioning by the Gestapo failed to link her with the French underground.

Albert was charged with failure to report for induction on July 6, 1942 and with failure to report a change of address to his draft board. The others were charged with failure to register for Selective Service.

BY LARRY ALLEN

WARSAW, JULY 6-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE POLISH FOREIGN MINISTRY SAID TONIGHT THAT 19 DEMOBILIZED RUSSIAN SOLDIERS, EN ROUTE FROM GERMANY TO RUSSIA, HAD BEEN SLAIN BY MEMBERS OF THE OUTLAWED NATIONAL ARMED FORCES (NSZ) IN A FOREST NEAR RADOM.

A MINISTRY SPOKESMAN SAID THE RUSSIANS WERE KILLED "ONE BY ONE" WHEN THE NSZ BAND ATTACKED THEIR CAMP ON A HIGHWAY NEAR THE POLISH-RUSSIAN FRONTIER. HE ADDED THAT SLAYINGS OF RUSSIAN SOLDIERS BY THE NSZ WERE BECOMING "RATHER NUMEROUS."

SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE FOREIGN MINISTRY ANNOUNCEMENT, VICE-PREMIER WLADYSLAW GOMULKA TOLD A MEETING OF 3,000 SOCIALIST PARTY WORKERS THAT HIS FELLOW VICE-PREMIER, STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK, AND THE NSZ WERE ATTEMPTING TO PLUNGE POLAND INTO CIVIL WAR.

CITING THE RECENT POGROM IN KIELCE IN WHICH AT LEAST 38 PERSONS WERE KILLED, GOMULKA DECLARED THAT "POLISH FASCISTS" WHO SUPPORTED MIKOLAJCZYK "NOW SURPASSED THEIR MASTERS--THE NAZIS--IN SPREADING ANTI-SEMITISM IN POLAND."

EARLIER, THE FOREIGN MINISTRY ANNOUNCED IT HAD DISPATCHED MILITIAMEN AND SECURITY POLICE TO CZESTOCHOWA TO STEM WHAT APPEARED TO BE EFFORTS TO START A NEW POGROM THERE. A MAN THERE, THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID, ATTRACTED A CROWD BY DISPLAYING A CAMEL. THEN, ANTI-JEWISH LEAFLETS WERE DISTRIBUTED AND ANTI-JEWISH SLOGANS CHANTED.

WITH POLICE STILL INVESTIGATING THE KIELCE POGROM, THE GOVERNMENT SAID TONIGHT THAT SIX PERSONS ACCUSED OF PARTICIPATING IN THE RIOTING THERE WOULD GO ON TRIAL MONDAY BEFORE A SUMMARY MILITARY COURT IN KIELCE. MOLOTOV OPPOSES PLAN BY BYRNES ON DISARMAMENT

Ministers in Clash on Proposals for Future of Germany.

WANTS 40-YEAR CONTROL

Russian Charges Violation of Potsdam Agreement on Reparations.

JUL 10 1946

PARIS, July 9—(AP)—Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes clashed today over America's proposed 25-year German disarmament treaty, informants reported, and Byrnes proposed that special deputies be appointed to study all German problems.

Byrnes asked that the special deputies be named now to consider all phases of the German problem for a report to the next series of meetings by the four power foreign ministers, presumably next autumn. French and American informants said there was no immediate response from the other ministers. Byrnes circulated his proposal at the end of today's meeting of the ministers.

Invitations Issued

Meanwhile, the French government issued formal invitations to 17 other Allied nations for the general European peace conference here July 29, and the ministers asked the United Nations to postpone its General assembly session in New York until Sept. 23 to allow time for diplomats to attend the Paris conference.

The General assembly had been scheduled for Sept. 3. Trygve Lie, U. N. general secretary, had asked the ministers for advice so there would be no conflict with the Paris conference of 21 nations.

The German disarmament treaty proposal, first was advanced by Byrnes during the sessions of the foreign ministers in April and May.

In the course of an hour-long statement assailing this American proposal, Molotov today accused Britain, France and the United States of breaking the Potsdam accord on German reparations to the Soviet Union.

According to American informants, Molotov also branded the suggested 25-year treaty to prevent rearmament of the Reich as "wholly inadequate." The Byrnes proposal does not guarantee demilitarization of German war industry or the political denazification of the Reich, the Soviet foreign minister said. Molotov added that it would not insure against a rebirth of a spirit of aggression in Germany.

Period Held Too Short

The period of 25 years was too short, Molotov said, since such a treaty to be effective should be in force for at least 40 years.

In reply Byrnes accused Russia of violating the Potsdam accord by making levies which were too large on German industry. He pointed out that under the Potsdam agreement reparations were to be limited to a size which would permit Germany to exist without outside help.

Citing a specific example to show that this limitation was not being carried out, Byrnes declared that the United States was going to have to pay $200,000,000 in the 1946-47 fiscal year to keep the American zone of occupation on its feet. A similar sum, he added, was expended in the 1945-46 fiscal year.

Byrnes pointed out that the Potsdam agreement provided that Germany was to be constituted as an economic unit to allow for the free interchange of goods between the various occupation zones and said that this was another clause which had been violated thus far.

American sources quoted Molotov as asserting that "everything" now going on in the Reich was "unlawful." Further Molotov declared that the Soviet proposal to investigate the extent of German disarmament was not being carried out. He added that a thorough over-all plan for Germany's economic disarmament should be prepared and enforced.

Byrnes Replies

Byrnes replied that Molotov apparently had not read the terms of the Allied armistice with Germany which the American secretary said provided for all the things Molotov was asking.

Declaring he would gladly extend his disarmament treaty proposal to 40 years, Byrnes recalled that when he first brought the matter up the period of 25 years had been used simply as a basis of discussion, with 35 or 50 years being offered as alternatives.

Byrnes said that his suggested treaty did not pretend to be more than a demilitarization and disarmament document and did not profess to cover the political issues of reparations or the period of the occupation.

The American treaty, Byrnes explained, was designed to go into operation only when the Allies decided that the occupation of Germany no longer was necessary. The United States now was doing what it had refused to do after the first World War, Byrnes said, adding that he personally was disappointed at the reception the proposal was getting.

Molotov charged that the American proposal made no provision for continuing reparation to Russia and tended to shorten the occupation period.

Demands 10 Billions

The Soviet foreign minister said $10,000,000,000 worth of reparations had been promised to Russia at Yalta. Byrnes replied that this figure had been mentioned only as a basis of discussion and that Molotov was aware of this fact.

Byrnes reminded Molotov that at Potsdam all the leaders of the Big Three, including Prime Minister Stalin, had agreed the figure was much too high. The American secretary added that the United States was not demanding German reparations or territory such as East Prussia which should be of some value to the Soviet Union.

Before turning to the German question, the foreign ministers adopted with one modification the text of the proposed rules of procedure for the peace conference as drafted by the deputy foreign ministers. This change provided that the chairmanship should pass in rotation every three days instead of every week.

The ministers likewise adopted a clause on reparations for the Italian treaty as drafted by the deputies with one slight change providing that claims by other nations such as Yugoslavia, Greece, Albania and Ethiopia would be heard at the conference.

The deputies were asked to finish the texts of the projected treaties by Saturday.

Paris Anxiously Awaiting Russ Declaration

JUL 10 1946

Paris, July 9 (AP)—The Foreign Ministers Council, turning to the German question after finally breaking a four-day deadlock on calling of a 21-nation ...ace conference, anxiously awaited today a promised "important declaration" of Russia's policy toward the Reich.

1946

The log-jam ended last night with the adoption of a French compromise providing that only a few suggested rules of procedure be sent out with invitations to the peace conference, scheduled to open July 29 in Luxembourg Palace.

The suggested rules of procedure will be drafted today by the Deputy Ministers and are slated to be ratified late by the Ministers.

Speculation Aroused

Speculation on the nature of the "important declaration" on Russia's policy toward Germany ran from one extreme to another. Some sources said Russia planned to offer to join Britain, France and the United States in establishing a central administrative organization within a federalized Germany. Others said the Russians would denounce Britain and the United States for conducting "secret negotiations behind the Soviet Union's back."

Tass, the official Russian news agency, has accused the two Western Allies of engaging in private conversations on Germany to which Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov "for some reason" was not invited.

"Secret Talks" Denied

The American delegation sources denied that tri-power "secret talks" on Germany were going on in Paris "to the exclusion of Russia." French, British and American coal technicians are negotiating to increase Germany's coal output, they said, but United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery has kept the Russian Ambassador, Alexandre Bogomolov, advised on the progress of these talks.

France has prepared an elaborate list of proposals for Germany's future, including incorporation of the Saar into the French economic system, the political detachment of the Rhineland from Germany and the international control of the Ruhr industrial basin.

After concluding discussions on Germany, the Council is scheduled to consider the Austrian question and the Italian political situation. Then, presumably, the Ministers will adjourn so that they may attend the peace conference.

Conference Not Shackled

The peace conference will have the right to amend or suspend its rules, and will not be bound by the suggestion of the Foreign Ministers Council. It will be subdivided into five poltical commissions—one for each treaty—and two economic commissions—one for Italy and one for the Balkans as a group, United States informants said.

Membership of the political commissions will be composed of nations which were at war with the former enemy country involved.

A steering committee will be composed of representatives of each of the 21 nations, and its decisions will be taken by a two-thirds majority vote.

Stone Denies He'll Resign

Rome, July 9 (AP)—Rear Adm. Ellery W. Stone, U.S.N., denied today a published report that he would resign as chief Allied comissioner for Italy in protest of the decision of the foreign ministers' council in Paris regarding this country.

The newspaper Il Tempo of Rome had asserted it learned on "good authority that Stone would submit his resignation within a few days."

MEAT DELIVERIES HALTED IN BRITAIN

JUL 10 1946

LONDON, July 9. — (AP) Three million pounds of meat—one week's rations for hundreds of thousands of Britons—piled up in cold storage today as 900 meat truck drivers continued a two-day-old strike described by Food Minister John Strachey as a "very serious matter."

No progress was reported towards settlement of either this dispute or of a walkout by 2,000 longshoremen at Southampton where troops were called in to unload 420 tons of tomatoes threatened with spoilage.

The meat strike, which began in London's big Smithfield market when porters and drivers quit to protest employment of three non-union men, spread to smaller suburban markets.

Strachey criticized employers for not temporarily suspending the non-union men during the negotiations.

With the consent of the striking drivers, other truckmen hauled 1,580 tons of English beef and mutton into refrigerated rooms to prevent spoiling. Thousands of frozen lamb carcasses from abroad, however, remained on warehouse floors when strikers said "they'll keep" for another 24 hours.

The Southampton dockers, on strike since last Saturday, made no announcement concerning their negotiations with employers to settle the strikers' demands for more men to unload each ship.

British Confirm Refusal Of Visa to Rabbi Wise

Just Didn't Want Him and Lipsky in Palestine Now

LONDON, July 9 (AP).—The British Foreign Office said today it had refused visas to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Louis Lipsky to visit the Holy Land "because we just didn't want them in Palestine at this time."

At the Foreign Office it was said that Britain was responsible for peace and order in Palestine and the government regarded the proposed visit of the two American members of the Jewish Agency for Palestine as undesirable.

Dr. Wise declined to comment yesterday on the British Foreign Office's explanation of its refusal of a visa. In a statement on Monday, he said its action confirmed his fears that it was seeking "to conceal behind an iron curtain the truth of British misconduct in Palestine," and he insisted that he had a right as an American citizen to visit Palestine.

Russian Co-Operation In Berlin Given Praise

Berlin, July 9 (AP)—An American Army spokesman said tonight that four-power administration in Berlin's Allied Kommandantur is "going along fine now, with the Russians leading in a spirit of extraordinary co-operation."

Col. Frank Howley, of Drexel Hill, Pa., head of the American Military Government for the Berlin district and a deputy member of the Kommandantur, said that "the good fellowship prevailing now and being evidenced especially by the Russians tops anything I've ever known here."

Howley, in Berlin since the American entry in July, 1945, added that "the Russians are now leading in co-operation and there's none of that obstructionism and stalling they used to practice."

Trace Couple in Soviet Zone

JUL 10 1946

U. S. Authorities Believed Notified on Two of Four Missing Americans.

Berlin, July 9 (A. P.).—An American investigator said tonight that contact had been made with the Russians about Warrant Officer and Mrs. Samuel L. Harrison of San Antonio, Tex., two of the four Americans who disappeared in the Soviet zone last week. He refused to say more, but indicated that the American authorities have been informed of the couple's whereabouts.

The investigator said that nothing has been learned of the whereabouts of Capt. Harold Cobin of 224 West Runyon street, Newark, N. J., an AMG officer in Berlin, and Second Lieut. George E. Wyatt of Oklahoma City, an officer of the 252d Engineer Combat Battalion.

American officials earlier had expressed a belief they were "getting the run-around" from the Russians, who were thought to have arrested the four for illegal entry into the Soviet zone.

The Harrisons were last heard from on July 1 when, together with a German woman, they departed in an American jeep, supposedly to visit a pet shop in the Russian zone to buy a dog.

Wyatt and Cobin were reported to have boarded a train July 4 for a destination somewhere north of Berlin. Cobin's wife, Mary, is scheduled to arrive in Bremerhaven from the United States today and is expected here tomorrow.

was 53 years old and served in the first world war also. His wife followed him around southern training camps for the first six months of his service in the second world war, and he went overseas about two and a half years ago. He is an Army interpreter, speaking German, French and Russian.

Mrs. Cobin left the United States on the S. S. President Tyler June 26.

U. S. Issues Guide List Of Banned Nazi Books

JUL 10 1946

1,000 Titles Given as Well as 35 Periodicals

BERLIN, July 9 (AP).—The United States Office of Military Government issued today a list of 1,000 book titles and thirty-five periodicals being used as guidance in the American zones of occupation in confiscating literature of a Nazi and militarist nature.

The list is described as illustrative of the types and character of Nazi and militarist propaganda which is being destroyed under the Allied Control Council order of May 20. To it are added the writings of Hitler, Goebbels, Mussolini and other generally known Nazis and Fascists, as well as the official publications of the National Socialist government and party on military and political matters.

The list is not designed to be exhaustive, the announcement said, nor will an official index of banned publications, such as the Russians published three months ago, be issued. The Russian index carried the titles of more than 13,000 books and 1,500 magazines.

The military governments for Bavaria, Wurttemberg-Baden, Hesse, the Berlin district and the Bremen district already are collecting banned literature for pulping.

A collection of 150 copies of each specimen will be compiled for military government purposes and for possible exchange, the statement added.

German Trade Barriers Still In Effect, McNarney Notes

JUL 10 1946

Frankfurt, Germany, July 9 (AP)—The United States will seek special economic agreements for western Germany unless the four-power Foreign Ministers' conference achieves agreement on wiping out zonal trade barriers, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney declared today.

The United States European Theater commander, speaking to a news conference as the Foreign Ministers in Paris prepared to take up the German problem, said he had noted no progress there toward German economic centralization.

Sees Long Occupation

McNarney also:

1. Expressed belief American occupation troops must remain in Germany from ten to fifteen years and said there had been no new development in the Army's plan to reduce United States occupation forces to 170,000 by next July 1.

2. Announced that United States Army purchases of Spanish luxury items had been stopped under a Washington directive, hinting that international political reasons were behind the order. The trade in silver, jewelry, brandy and other goods in military stores ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

3. Announced a list of objectives in the democratization process for Germany, including freedom of press and radio from government domination.

Underground Watched

4. Disclosed that potential German underground leaders were kept under close watch and that a main reason for lack of anxiety on this score was that "they lack financial backing."

5. Urged commanders in Germany to adopt a method of screening German girls who associate with American occupation soldiers.

As in Paris, McNarney said, there was no sign at Berlin of agreement among the members of the four-power Allied Control Council on German economic centralization. In fact, he said, the Control Council was in "complete stalemate" on the issue.

"Naturally, if we cannot reach agreement on what we consider necessary we will have to formulate some new agreements with those who are willing to cooperate," he said. "It might be with one or it might be with two powers."

Scrip Money Considered

He said that if the United States issued scrip money to personnel in Germany, replacing the present Allied marks as currency, it probably would be interchangeable with British zone scrip. However, he said, no negotiation is under way in the French or Russian zones for such interchangeability.

Concernng German democratization, McNarney said the Reich's political transformation would be judged by these standards:

Origin with the people and control by the people of political powers; frequent popular elections with no less than two competing parties; separation of parties from instrumentalities of government; maintenance of a bill of rights for individuals; no government domination of press and radio; the rule of law and the political decentralization of the nation so that states reserve all political powers except those specifically granted the Federal Government.

Most Reported Satisfied

So far as the occupation soldiers themselves are concerned, McNarney said, reports on a recent army questionnaire indicate that the large majority are satisfied with themselves as soldiers; with the Army as an occupation force and with their own job in Germany.

He said he was urging upon commanders the adoption of some system for screening the Fräuleins with whom these soldiers associate, although he admitted that no arbitrary standard of an ideal Fräulein would be practical.

He said he was asking army commanders to study, with a view to adoption, the pass system now used in Nuernberg for admission of girls to soldier night clubs. Under such a plan as the theater commander envisions, medical examinations would not be necessary in the future, but the girls would be obliged to show investigators that they were not "of unfavorable or unclean personal appearance" and had been cleared politically and with the police.

Check Reveals Many of Hesse Jewels Missing

R. O'DAY

JUL 10 1946

Owners Identify Thousands of Pieces Stolen From Castle Last November

FRANKFURT AM MAIN, July 9 (AP).—Princess Margareta of Hesse and relatives said today that a considerable number of the Hesse family jewels still are missing, despite the recovery of a vast amount of the stolen treasure in the United States.

Colonel J. W. Durant and his Wac captain wife, the former Kathleen B. Nash, of Chicago, and Major David T. Watson, of Burlingame, Calif., are being held in the case.

The Princess, seventy-four and a granddaughter of Queen Victoria, spent a day with her family checking over the recovered family heirlooms. The jewels were displayed on two black tables, 18 by 12 feet. They had been stolen from Kronberg Castle last November.

Armed guards stood at the doors of the American headquarters building, where the jewels were checked by Princess Margareta, Princess Sophie of Greece, formerly her daughter-in-law, and Princes Phillip and Wolfgang of Hesse. They identified thousands of pieces individually.

The princess, who resembles her famous English grandmother, passed from jewel to jewel saying: "This is mine," or "This is yours." At one item she remarked: "This was the Bible and prayerbook of Queen Victoria, and these bound volumes were letters written to Queen Victoria by her daughters."

Captain Harold Chase, of Salina, Kan., who probably will be an assistant prosecutor in the court martial scheduled for Aug. 1, said the identification of each piece was necessary before detailed charges could be placed against suspects, all members of the United States Army.

He said identification of thousands of loose diamonds, emeralds, rubies and sapphires glittering on the table "probably is impossible because they have been hammered from their settings."

Ideas Wanted By Army in Germany

JUL 10 1946

FRANKFURT, (AP)—In an attempt to spur American soldiers' interest and understanding of occupational problems in Germany the U. S. Army has offered prizes for the best suggestions for improving occupation troop performance.

For ideas on such subjects as "relations with the Germans; relations with our allies; what to do about Displaced Persons; or improvements in Military Government" soldiers may win prizes as high as a 15-day trip and $100 in merchandise.

Civilians may compete, too, for awards ranging up to $250 in merchandise.

Nazi Squirms While Lawyer Recites Guilt

JUL 10 1946

Nuernberg, Germany, July 9 (AP).

Ernst Kaltenbrunner, chief of the German secret police, squirmed in the prisoner's dock today when his attorney declared him guilty of crimes and atrocities committed while serving under Heinrich Himmler.

The lawyer, Kurt Kauffman, told the International Military Tribunal:

"This man suffers a great deal under the uneasiness of his conscience. Kaltenbrunner is guilty; but he is less guilty than he appears.

A "Pathetic" Figure?

"He will await your judgment as the last representative of an ominous symbol of a period of the Reich, darker than any other. And yet he was a man whom one could not meet without a feeling of pathos."

Kaltenbrunner, a tall hawk-nosed policeman, succeeded Himmler's Gestapo assistant, Reinhard Heydrich, after that "hangman of Czechoslovakia" was assassinated. The Germans avenged Heydrich with the destruction of the Czech village of Lidice and the murder of its men over 16.

Prison officials said privately that Kaltenbrunner only yesterday had a bitter argument with Kauffman over the defense summary.

Methods Were "Mitigated"

Kauffman said it was impossible to deny Kaltenbrunner's harsh police methods, which sent thousands to their deaths in concentration camps, but he asserted there were mitigating circumstances:

"He marched with others who desired nothing else than a solution for unstable conditions."

Kauffman pleaded also that Himmler always had the last word and issued the decisive orders; that concentration camp conditions never were reported in detail to Kaltenbrunner; that in the German setup, Kaltenbrunner was "but a small wheel." Himmler committed suicide after his capture; Kaltenbrunner suffered a cerebral hemorrhage in the Nuernberg jail early in the trial.

Only Two Witnesses Per Case

The court announced it wanted to hear only two witnesses in each of the cases against Nazi organizations. The trial was drawing to a close, possibly the end of this month.

Such streamlined procedure has been made possible by daily screening of evidence by a five-man preliminary commission.

Verdict By September 1?

The announcement by Lord Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence, tribunal president, indicated that cases against the High Command, the Gestapo and the SS could be concluded before the end of August and that verdicts might be reached by September 1.

The court this morning resumed hearing of the defense summary of Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel by Dr. Otto Nelte, who said that Keitel gave the impression to fellow-officers he agreed with all Hitler's decisions but that this was not so. The attorney asserted that Keitel kept his disagreements to himself but followed the orders of the Führer because he felt it his duty.

Officer Is Fined $350 in Army's Lichfield Case

JUL 10 1946

Convicted of Letting Guards Hit Prisoners; Defense Calls Him Only a 'Pawn'

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 9 (AP).—Lieutenant Leonard W. Ennis, of Peekskill, N. Y., was convicted, fined $350 and reprimanded today by a court martial for permitting guards to strike soldier prisoners with their hands and clubs at the United States Army Detention Depot at Lichfield, England.

The verdict came after Ennis's attorney, Colonel Edward Chayes, had demanded vindication on the ground that the Lichfield trials were "really a war on the Army and its methods." He asked the court not to make "a scapegoat" of Ennis and asserted that the Lichfield defendants "are merely pawns in this set-up."

"If Army and military methods are really on trial, let it come out in the open," Chayes urged.

But the prosecutor, Captain Charles Sheppard, called the treatment of soldiers imprisoned at Lichfield "revolting and in excess of anything the Army has ever allowed," and asked the court to "exonerate the service" by punishing Ennis.

Cleared of One Charge

The military court, which deliberated four hours after a six-week trial, cleared Ennis of personally mistreating any prisoners, and found him guilty only of the lesser charge of permitting striking of prisoners. The $350 fine given him was the heaviest sentence yet in the trials here at Bad Nauheim, although two guards convicted previously in London receive jail terms of six months and three years. Sentences here have ranged from a reprimand to a $250 fine. Ennis was the second officer to be convicted. Eight enlisted men have been convicted and one acquitted.

Chayes compared the 220-pound athletic Ennis with the "tough Army sergeant created on the screen by Victor McLaglen." He looked tough and he talked tough—but he had a heart of gold, full of faithfulness to the flag and its ideals, Chayes said. He cited Ennis's three battle wounds, his Silver Star and ten-year climb up through Army ranks from private, and attacked the character and credibility of the former guardhouse prisoners who testified against the officer.

Congressman at Trial

In war time, Chayes charged, they dodged front-line service by committing "any offense to get into the guardhouse" where they presented a tremendous disciplinary problem."

"Physical pain was the only type of punishment they feared," he said, conceding that "perhaps aggravated guards did push them around a bit."

"But let's not judge them in the spirit of peace which rules today, but by the Spartan spirit of Bastogne and the Battle of the Bulge which was raging at that time," Chayes said.

A Congressional study of the Lichfield trials was disclosed today by Representative John E. Sheridan, Democrat of Pennsylvania, a member of the House Military Affairs Committee, who said he came here to observe the trials as part of the committee's general investigation of the Army's court-martial system.

"Also," he added, "I am looking very thoroughly into the Lichfield case itself to see if it warrants further investigation by Congress."

Trial Of Lichfield Officer Nears A Decision

JUL 10 1946

Bad Nauheim, Germany, July 9 (AP)—Col. Edward Chayes called the lengthy Lichfield trials today "really a war on the Army and its methods" and asked a military court to "vindicate the Army" by acquitting Lieut. Leonard W. Ennis on charges of cruelty.

The Peekskill (N.Y.) officer is accused of mistreating prisoners at the United States Army guardhouse at Lichfield, England.

Congressman Attends

As his case neared a decision, Representative John E. Sheridan (D., Pa.) disclosed that he was here to observe the trials as part of the House Military Affairs Committee's investigation of the court-martial system.

Col. James A. Kilian, of Highland Park, Ill., former Lichfield commander, is on trial in another courtroom.

Ennis has denied charges of aiding and authorizing cruel and unusual punishments.

A New Victor McLaglen

The prosecutor, Major Charles Sheppard, said the treatment of prisoners at Lichfield was "revolting and in excess of anything the Army has ever allowed." He asked the court to "exonerate the Army" by punishing Ennis.

Chayes, a lawyer from Chicago, compared Ennis with the "tough army sergeant created on the screen by Victor McLaglen."

"He looked tough and he talked tough, but he had a heart of gold, full of faithfulness to the flag and its ideals," Chayes said of Ennis. He cited his three battle wounds, his Silver Star and his ten-year climb through the ranks.

"Lichfield Lounge Lizards"

In contrast, he attacked the character and credibility of former guardhouse prisoners who testified against them. He called the witnesses "cry babies" and "common crooks"; "Lichfield lounge lizards" and "Dead-End Kids." Eighteen of the witnesses are serving court-martial sentences of up to twenty years.

"Now these sinners are becoming saints," Chayes cried. He said that in wartime, they dodged frontline service by committing "any offense to get in the guardhouse," where "they presented a tremendous disciplinary problem."

Sheridan said he was watching the trials.

Nine Convicted So Far

"Also," he added, "I am looking very thoroughly into the Lichfield case itself to see if it warrants further investigation by Congress."

In the trials six officers and ten enlisted guards have been accused and eight enlisted guards and one officer have been convicted.

The long and stormy proceedings have produced frequent complaints of pressure by high army officials. A presidential investigation was asked by the highest ranking defendant, Kilian, Highland Park, Ill., former Lichfield commander, now on trial.

Sheridan, a Philadelphia lawyer, said he planned to spend several days observing the trials and talking to army officials.

Wants 83 Witnesses

In the trial of Kilian, the court studied a defense request for 83 witnesses to be brought here, mostly from the United States.

Kilian's lawyers were asked to specify the nature of the testimony they expected to obtain, so it could be judged whether their testimony would be vital.

The court spent the morning studying the defense outline without announcing any action.

Red Defends Property Shift

JUL 10 1946

L. HEINRICHS

Vienna, July 9 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Ivan Zinjov of the Russian high command in Austria said today that a Russian order transferring German-owned properties in Austria to the Soviet Union would not injure Austrian interests, and warned that any efforts to frustrate the order would "lead to a deterioration of the Austrian economic system."

In an interview distributed by the Russian news agency, Tass, Zinjov said transfer of the properties was in accordance with an agreement reached at Potsdam and would only partially compensate Russia for damage inflicted on her economy by the Germans.

He estimated this damage at 679,000,000,000 rubles. (The official ruble rate is 5.2 to the dollar. Diplomats are permitted to buy rubles at 12 to the dollar.

Claimed Worth 22 Millions

Russia announced last Saturday that she had taken over $22,000,000 worth of industrial property in eastern Austria and all other "German external assets" there.

Zinjov defined as "German property" all property in Austria which belonged to the Germans before 1938, all property which the Germans brought to Austria after the Anschluss, installations erected with German capital, and properties which were purchased by the Germans for fair prices after 1938.

U.S. Contention

The United States has maintained that property taken forcibly by the Germans after the Anschluss is not "German property," as defined by the Postdam agreement.

Zinjov said Russia would consider cases in which the property relationships were not clear and would satisfy Austrian demands if they were well founded.

He estimated that the industrial properties acquired by Russia were only ten [illegible] industrial capacity of Austria. Austrian Government officials, however, have estimated the properties at 75 per cent of the nation's industrial capacity.

Factories To Remain

The General said factories taken over would remain in Austria, would function on the same legal basis of other concerns here and would pay regular t[illegible] Austria.

"On the other hand, efforts to hamper the accomplishment of the order and requests that 'a waiting attitude' be adopted can only lead to deterioration of the Austrian economic situation," he said.

The Austrian Government issued a communiqueé Sunday, urging its citizens to adopt a waiting attitude.

Russian Order Suddenly Halts Deportation Of German Families from Soviet Zone in Austria

JUL 10 1946

VIENNA, July 9. — (AP) The Russian deportation of native Germans and other non-Austrians from the Soviet occupation zone of Vienna was halted abruptly at 4 p. m. today, informed Austrian sources said.

A trainload of deportees, waiting in the northwest railroad station here for movement to Melk, Austria, was stopped, and the families aboard were told to return to their homes in Vienna and environs.

The Russians gave no reason for the sudden cessation of the deportation. One possibility was that a temporary halt was called because the camp at Melk, where refugees are housed pending shipment to Germany was filled.

Started Without Notice

The mass movement was announced Sunday night, without any prior notice to the other Allied military authorities or the Austrian government. Several categories of Germans regarded by the Russians as undesirable were notified to be prepared to leave Austria by Monday morning. The movement has been going forward slowly since then. All were to be sent to the French occupation zone of Germany.

1946

Estimates of the number of persons involved in the deportation varied from 30,000 to 54,000. The exact number is not known since the deportation was ordered by families.

Meanwhile, a noticeably calmer atmosphere prevailed today in the Austrian chancellory after a long weekend of tension over the Russian assumption of ownership of the disputed "German assets" in eastern Austria. There were hints that the Russians had softened their attitude considerably.

Russia contended earlier today, however, that German-owned industrial properties taken over by Russia represented only 10 per cent of the country's industrial capacity, and warned that efforts to frustrate the transfer "can only lead to a deterioriation of the Austrian economic situation."

Austrian government officials, however, estimated the properties represented about 75 per cent of Austria's capacity.

In an interview distributed by Tass agency, Maj. Gen. Ivan Zinjov of the Russian high command in Austria said the transfer of German property into Russia, as agreed upon at Potsdam, would only partially compensate for damage inflicted on Russian economy by the Germans.

Sets Damage Figure

He estimated this damage at 672,000,000,000 rubles. (The official ruble rate is 5.2 to a dollar. Diplomats are permitted to buy 12 to the dollar.)

Zinjov contended that the property transfer would not injure Austrian interests. He declared the Russians would consider cases in which property relationships were not clear and would satisfy Austrian demands if they were well founded.

Russia announced last Saturday she had taken over $22,000,000 worth of industrial properties in eastern Austria along with other "German external assets."

Defines German Property

Zinjov defined as German property all property on Austrian soil which belonged to Germany before 1938, all property which the Germans brought to Austria after the anschluss as well as installations erected with German capital and properties which were purchased by Germans after 1938, in the event former owners received a fair price for the property.

The United States insist that property taken forcibly by the Germans after the anschluss is not "German" as defined in the Potsdam agreement.

The Russian officer said factories taken over would remain in Austria and would function on the same legal basis as all other concern in the country, with all legal t[illegible] being paid to the Austrian state.

"On the other hand, efforts to hamper the accomplishment of the order and requests that 'a waiting attitude' be adopted can only lead to a deterioration of the Austrian economic situation," Zinjov said.

The Austrian government, in a communique two days ago, called on Austrians to adopt a waiting attitude.

In another dispatch today, Tass denied a story in the Sunday issue of the Socialist newspaper Arbeiter Zeitung that the Favoriten workers home had been claimed as Russian property, and called the editorial a "direct betrayal of its readers."

Van Acker Belgian Cabinet Out

Brussels, July 9 (AP)—The three-month-old coalition Government of Socialist Prime Minister Achille van Acker fell today, losing a vote of confidence by a single ballot after a stormy senate debate over his Justice Minister's attitude toward Belgian economic collaborators.

The resignation precipitated a crisis which a Government spokesman predicted would be "difficult to get out of," but he declined to elaborate.

The peak of the weeks-long argument over Government policies came when van Acker asked for a vote of confidence in his cabinet. The vote was 79 to 78.

Meddling In Trials Charged

Van Acker's policies had been under fire for several weeks. They came to a head today with complaints from the senate floor over what was termed the Government's "meddling" in cases pending against certain Belgian industrialists in military courts on charges of economic collaboration with the Germans during the occupation.

Most of the criticism has centered on van Acker's anti-inflation proposals for cutting prices and holding workers' wages at their present levels, and the Government's attitude in the still pending question of the return of King Leopold III to his throne.

Opposed Death Sentences

The showdown came when Henri Rollin, Socialist senator and former Minister of Justice, charged Adolphe van Glabbeke, Minister of Justice, with "meddling" by sending a letter to the president of a military court expressing the opinion that the death sentences should not be passed on defendants who had "collaborated."

The industrialists are being held on a century-old article in the Belgian penal code stipulating the death sentence of persons convicted of supplying the enemy with war equipment while the country is at war.

Van Glabbeke told the senate he had no intention of influencing the military court and that the letter was a "general one" not referring to any particular cases.

Takes Responsibility

Van Acker came to the defense of his Justice Minister and said the Government was jointly responsible for the actions of one of its members. He then called for a vote of confidence. Three Socialist senators, including Rollin, refrained from voting.

Van Acker's coalition government was formed March 31 after a six weeks' discussion following the returns of the February 17 election which gave the Social-Christian party 100,000 votes more than the Socialist, Liberal and Communist parties combined.

Vatican Paper Makes Denial

ROME, July 9 (AP)—L'Osservatore Romano, commenting on charges by Premier Osubka-Morawski of Poland that high church dignitaries had refused an appeal to help prevent anti-Semitism, declared that it "could not but think that the denouncement did not reflect the truth."

The newspaper said that to the school of [illegible]istian charity there is added, [illegible]oland as elsewhere, "a marvel[illegible] application of aids and defens[illegible] for the persecuted, and especially of the Jews."

"The Polish clergy could not have refused to condemn and to cooperate in impeding that which they, with the church and with the gospel, in the name of and through the mandate of Christ, have always condemned and sought to impede," it said.

TRIESTE CAPTIVES ON HUNGER STRIKE

JUL 10 1946

Trieste, July 9 (A. P.).—More than 100 Italian and Slav demonstrators and labor leaders in prison here have gone on hunger strike, protesting—in a signed manifesto — that their arrest was illegal and that they were guilty "only of defending our democratic institutions." The hunger strike began on Saturday.

A number of those held were charged with violating a Military Government order forbidding demonstrations.

Order was restored after a violent counter-demonstration yesterday by 1,000 British troops in protest against the indignities they suffered at the hands of Italian rioters last Saturday.

The disturbance, which was finally broken up by the British military police, lasted for more than an hour, during which a band of British Tommies accompanied by a few American soldiers marched through the Piazza Goldoni, swinging their belts and shouting insults at Italian bystanders. At one point they charged up a hill, striking out at fleeing civilians and smashing windows.

OUTLINES CZECH PLANS

JUL 10 1946

Prague, July 9 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Communist Premier Clemens Gottwald, in his first address to Parliament, said today that recent deportations of Germans and Hungarians from Czecho-Slovakia represented a loss of 500,000 workers and that the nation must double its efforts to make up for the loss. Production, he added, must be increased by 40 per cent.

Gottwald outlined in detail his two-year plan, which sets specific objectives for all major industries and enterprises. He indicated that with good luck the country would be able within two years to dispense with rationing.

In regard to foreign affairs, Gottwald reaffirmed Czecho-Slovakia's middle of the road policy —namely a firm alliance with Russia, but the closest possible cultural and economic relations with England and the United States.

PREMIER SCORES POLISH CATHOLICS

L. ALLEN

Warsaw, July 9 (A. P.).—The provisional government's differences with the Catholic Church were spotlighted today by Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski's assertion that high-ranking prelates in Poland had failed to condemn those responsible for a recent pogrom in Kielce in which forty-one persons were killed.

At a press conference, the Premier named Cardinal Sapieha and the Bishop of Kielce among members of the hierarchy who, he said, had refused a Government request that they appeal to the nation to prevent anti-semitism, rioting and acts of violence by underground organizations.

"If the church would openly condemn murders and internal strife, such as at Kielce, it naturally would help," the Premier said.

He indicated that he saw little prospect of renewing a concordat with the Vatican, saying that "we would like to renew it, but the Vatican still recognizes the Arcazewski government in London."

On June 12, Poland's Catholic bishops, meeting at Czestochowa, issued a statement deploring a wave of unrest which they said was sweeping the nation and calling for an end of killings and violence. They warned that unless conditions were remedied, the situation would "most unfavorably affect the fate of the nation."

BARES POLISH PACTS

JUL 10 1946

Warsaw, July 9 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski said tonight that his Government had supplied the United States with the texts of economic agreements it had negotiated with various nations, thereby fulfilling one of the main conditions for release of a $40,000,000 Export-Import Bank loan.

The Premier said he had reviewed the entire loan and credit situation with United States Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane.

The $40,000,000 Export-Import Bank loan is for the purchase of American locomotives and coal cars for the Polish State railways. Granting of a $50,000,000 United States credit for purchase of trucks and other equipment from American Army surpluses in Europe also was conditioned on receipt of information concerning Poland's economic agreements.

Sun Never Sets On British Publicity

WARSAW—(AP) Youthful Patrick Howarth, press attache for the British embassy here, isn't running competition with Polish political parties, but his work is getting the "play."

He has placed big billboards with pictures of British news events and life in the windows of tourist bureaus in principal cities.

In Cracow, for instance, there's often a crowd of people eight to 10 deep gazing at British photographs. Across the street, usually only two or three interest themselves in a display by the Communist-backed Polish Worker Party of anti-British and anti-capitalistic cartoons.

30,000 Guards On Polish Railways

Warsaw, July 9 (AP)—The newspaper Rzeczpospolita says 30,000 persons are being employed as guards on the Polish State Railways.

Railway officials said the blue-uniformed armed watchmen had contributed greatly to curbing train robberies, frequent during early months of the provisional government.

Polish railways now cover 13,000 miles, compared with 11,000 miles in 1939. Acquisition of former German territories in the west largely accounted for the increase.

Twelve, Including Woman, On Trial For Kielce Pogrom

JUL 10 1946

Kielce, Poland, July 9 (AP)—Eleven men and one woman went on trial for their lives today, charged with inciting mobs to attack the homes of Jews and touching off the July 4 pogrom here in which 41 persons were killed and 40 were injured.

As the trial opened before a high military court, Government investigators announced that the rumor which started the pogrom—the tale of 8-year-old Henryk Blaszczyk that Jews threatened him with death—was found to be false with the boy's confession.

Victims' Relatives In Court

Many relatives of the killed and wounded were among the spectators as the twelve defendants, under heavy militia and security police guard, were marched into the courtroom.

The prosecution charged that the woman defendant, Antonina Biskupska, and one of the men, Edward Jurkowski, were the ringleaders of the mob which hurled stones into the homes of jews.

Four other defendants are charged specifically with seizing a Jewish woman and child during the rioting, taking them to the outskirts and killing them after attacking the woman and beating the child.

Termed Tool Of Fascists

The other six defendants are accused of killings and beatings.

The investigators described young Blaszczyk as a "tool" of Fascist reactionaires who they said were imitating Hitler methods of starting riots against Jews.

Two of the defendants are militiamen, accused of being among the group of militiamen whose shots caused the mob to congregate. The other defendants include barbers, tailors and shopkeepers, whose ages range from 20 to 45.

Hungary Dissolves 220 Clubs

BUDAPEST, July 8 (Delayed) (AP).—Minister of Interior Luszlo Rajk said today that 220 organizations have been dissolved "in order to more efficiently protect the democratic system of the state." He said eighty pistol clubs and twenty-seven hunting clubs were among those abolished.

Greek Editor Gets 4 Years

Athens, July 9 (AP)—The editor of the Leftist newspaper Synagonistis of Yannina, one Christoyorgos, was sentenced to four years in jail and a 2,000,000-drachma ($400) fine by a special military court yesterday for publishing an article "with intent to shake public confidence in the army." He also was ordered banished for one year.

Mercy Asked for Chetniks

BELGRADE, July 9 (AP).—Government-appointed attorneys appealed for mercy today for co-defendants of General Draja Mihailovitvch, telling the court trying them for treason that they were "victims of circumstances" rather than criminals." Zionists' Palestine Program

JUL 10 1946

Jerusalem, July 9 (AP)—The Inner Zionist Council today empowered three Jewish groups to draft detailed proposals for a campaign of nonco-operation with the Palestine Government until arrested Jewish leaders are freed from detention and operations against Palestine Jews are suspended.

At the same time, the Arab Higher Committee weighed its own proposals for nonco-operation with the British.

The Inner Zionist Council gave the go-ahead signal to its own Presidium, to the Jewish Agency's executive committee and to the National Council of Palestine Jews (Vaad Leumi) to work out plans for nonco-operation.

Weizman Visits Prisoners

Dr. Chaim Weizman, president of the world Zionist organization, who said Great Britain had "missed its chance" to restore peace and that the Jews now would "never give up their arms," today visited Moshe Shertok and other arrested Jewish Agency members in Latrun detention camp. The Jewish leaders were interned June 29 following two weeks of disorders throughout the Holy Land.

A member of the Arab Higher Committee said the committee already had drawn up a program to tighten the Arab boycott of Jewish goods and to use nonco-operation as a "preliminary weapon" in opposition to continued Jewish immigration.

Palestine remained outwardly quiet. No Jewish underground operations have been reported since the British occupied Jewish buildings, but the Haganah radio, clandestine voice of the principal underground organization, said the group still was in operation and had not been broken up by the British arrests.

Cunningham, Dempsey Confer

Lieutenant General Sir Alan Cunningham, British High Commissioner for Palestine, and Lieutenant General Sir Miles C. Dempsey, British commander in the Middle East, conferred during the afternoon, but there was no hint of the nature of the talks.

The main Jewish attention was centered on the visit to Jerusalem of Dr. Weizmann, who will go to London soon.

The aged, nearly blind leader, who also is head of the Jewish Agency, said that partition of Palestine into separate Jewish and Arab states must not be ruled out as a possible solution to the problem.

He rejected Prime Minister Attlee's plea to both Jews and Arabs to disarm to speed implementation of the British-American inquiry committee report.

Jews Will Not Yield Arms

"The Arabs do not need their arms," he told a news conference. "They have Trans-Jordan and its army, and Syria and Iraq. But the Jews remember the lesson of the last riots and will never give up their arms. To get them the British would have to plow up every inch of Palestine—and frankly, that would be unprofitable."

Dr. Weizmann assailed British policy with regard to "postwar relations with Middle-Eastern peoples," and referred bitterly to the protection of the Egyptian crown given Haj Amin El Husseini, the Mufti of Jerusalem, while Jewish leaders in Palestine had been imprisoned.

Mufti In Palace, Shertok In Camp

He said the Mufti, who is accused of collaboration with the Nazis, now "lives in a palace in Egypt and Moshe Shertok, who recruited 25,000 young Jews for Britain's armies, is behind bars in the Latrun detention camp."

[The British Foreign Office in London disclosed that Egypt has given qualified assurance that the Mufti, spiritual leader of Palestine's Arabs and bitter foe of Jewish immigration, would be restrained from political activity. Egypt explained, however, the Foreign Office said, that the Mufti was a guest of King Farouk, and that as such the Mufti enjoyed special "protections" of the royal house.]

Predicts Exile Government

New York, July 9 (AP)—Peter H. Bergson, chairman of the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation, said today a government in exile for Palestine would be established this fall in Poland, Czechoslovakia or France, probably the latter.

He made the announcement at the offices of the American League for a Free Palestine, Inc.

Bergson, who came to the United States from Palestine five years ago, said his organization did not advocate a "Jewish state, a Moslem or a Christian state in the religious sense" but a "Palestinian republic."

BRITISH TROOPS BEGIN EVACUATION OF EGYPT

CAIRO, Egypt, July 9—(AP) The first stage of the British evacuation of Egypt provides for removal of all troops from cities to the Suez canal zone within eight months, a reliable informant said tonight.

Troops already are leaving the cities, particularly Alexandria and Cairo.

The informant emphasized Great Britain was finding it necessary to install extensive communications before troops should be shifted in large numbers.

Transfer of all troops into the canal zone would be the first step in fulfilling the British promise to quit all Egypt. From the canal the troops presumably would be moved into British bases in Palestine, Iraq, or other areas in the Middle East.

Singapore Suffers From Some Inflation

SINGAPORE (AP)—A shilling (16 cents) for a glass of water, five pence (about seven cents) extra for ice to cool a beer and five shillings ten penny (about 94 cents) for a good cinema seat are sample prices relaxation-hungary British and Allied servicemen report being charged in Singapore. Despite mention in the House of Commons, prices show no signs of descending. Servicemen say a normal week's pay will last just one day in town.

SAYS CHINESE RED QUITS PEACE QUEST

JUL 10 1946

Nanking, July 9 (AP).—Peace negotiations are in total deadlock, a Chinese Communist spokesman said today, and Gen. Chou En-lai, the chief Communist negotiator, has given up the attempt after three inconclusive conferences with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and his Cabinet. Fighting is breaking out within China "like a series of small fires," the spokesman added, "and unless something is done quickly to stamp them out, they will develop into a grave conflagration."

The spokesman, whose pessimistic outlook was shared by Government officials, also said that Chou conferred for two hours today with Gen. Marshall, the special United States envoy to China, explaining the Communist position.

An American - inspired meeting between Gen. Tu Li-ming, the Government commander in Manchuria, and Gen. Lin Piao, the Communist military leader in the north, is scheduled for Thursday at Changchun, but both sides expressed frank pessimism that they would even get together, much less agree upon a truce.

A meeting between two other opposing generals has been arranged by Brig. - Gen. William T. Clement, U. S. M. C., for Tsingtao next Saturday, the Peiping Catholic newspaper Ishih Pao reported. The generals are Gen. Chen Yi, commander of the Communist forces in Shantung, and Gen. Wang Yao-wu, the Nationalist commander.

The Communists for the second time in recent weeks have ventured a large - scale offensive meanwhile in the vicinity of the United States Marines at Tsingtao. Pushing their North China offensive northward from Shantung, nearly 7,000 Communists were reported in Government dispatches to be assaulting Chingchen, on the Tientsin - Pukow railroad.

Shanghai UNRRA Group Charges Waste, Thievery

S. MOOSA

JUL 10 1946

Shanghai, July 9 (AP)—More than 250 out of 400 UNRRA employés in Shanghai sent a message today to Director General LaGuardia stating that valuable relief supplies in China were being wasted, were deteriorating and were being stolen "while the starving continue to starve and the needy remain without."

The message said it was their considered judgment that the Chinese Government was improperly handling UNRRA supplies and services.

Funds Held Lacking

It asserted that the Chinese Government's failure to provide adequate funds for the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration crippled the operations of projects in many regions and was a prime reason why "supplies pile up in warehouses, undelivered to the needy and hungry."

Meanwhile, the Chinese Government was reported reliably to have informed LaGuardia that J. Franklin Ray, acting director of the UNRRA China office, was persona non grata and should be replaced.

This was believed to be a result of Ray's representations to the Government for financial support for CNRRA.

The message to LaGuardia charged that UNRRA supplies were not delivered in many areas because of political reasons.

"A Political Weapon"

"UNRRA supplies are being used as a political weapon in China," it said. "It would be unfortunate, though justified, if because of continued failure of the Chinese Government you were compelled to direct supplies to the needy elsewhere in the world who would be assured of receiving those supplies."

The signatories expressed confidence in Ray, "who has given inspired leadership in his efforts to correct shortcomings."

Bad Weather Delays Tydings Party In China

Shanghai, July 9 (AP)—Bad flying weather today grounded Stuart Symington, United States Assistant Secretary of War for Air, and his party, who arrived here last night from Tokyo en route to Nanking to pay their respects to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and confer with General Marshall.

The party includes Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, Assistant Postmaster General Gael Sullivan, Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland and Lieut. Gen. John King Cannon of the Army Air Forces.

In Shanghai, they are the guests of Lieut. Gen. Alvin C. Gillem, commandant of United States Army forces in China.

Their Own Paper Finds Some Are Disgracing Service

TIENTSIN, July 9 (AP).—The behavior of ten per cent of the United States Marines in North China is deplorable and may make the Chinese people think all marines are bad, "The North China Marine," service paper, said today.

In a front-page article the newspaper told of four drunken marines who told a Chinese Army private, "Better speak English," and then beat him when he didn't. Another case cited was of a marine who spat at a man from a passing truck.

While such cases were restricted to a minority, there is danger the Chinese people will confuse the ten per cent with the representative ninety per cent, the paper said.

Foreign Office Aid Recalls Roosevelt Message.

R. BRINES

Tokyo, July 9 (A. P.).—The Emperor Hirohito's reaction to the personal message sent by President Roosevelt late in 1941, again became an issue today when Kumaichi Yamamoto, who in 1941 was Chief of the American Section at the Jap Foreign Office, told an American radio correspondent that the Emperor not only received such a message but was drafting a hopeful reply when the attack on Pearl Harbor began.

Marquis Koichi Kido, former Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal and the Emperor's closest adviser, told the Associated Press last September that Hirohito received the message but declined to answer it on the advice of his ministers that it would be "useless to resist the war tide within Japan."

Only a few men alive today know poitively. One of them is Shigenori Togo, then Foreign Minister, who is generally supposed to have delivered the message received from Ambassador Joseph C. Grew early on the morning of December 8, 1941, Japanese time. Togo is now in the prisoners' dock at the war crime trials and has refused numerous requests to tell his story of that momentous period. Kido likewise is a defendant before the International Tribunal.

25 Minutes Before Attack.

Yamamoto—who did not attend the audience, however, and who could therefore have obtained his information only second hand—said that Togo delivered the Roosevelt message to Hirohito at 2:30 A. M., just twenty-five minutes before the attack began, and that the Emperor personally began drafting a reply saying he wanted peace.

Yamamoto also said that while Tojo was acquainted with the war plans generally he did not know the specific strategy of where the first attack would be made. Fleet Admiral Osami Nagano told the Associated Press last October that the Cabinet which Tojo headed discussed war plans so thoroughly there had even been a debate over when to send the war declaration.

Says Hirohito Knew of Plot.

Meanwhile today Gen. Sadao Araki, one-time War Minister, declared in a prison statement that was read before the International Tribunal that Hirohito was in silent attendance at a meeting of the Privy Council in 1931 at which it was decided to "pacify and occupy" Manchuria.

The Emperor knew about the plan, Araki replied when asked whether Hirohito had approved the scheme. Araki added that he himself decided soon after becoming War Minister that Manchuria should be occupied. He is now one of the twenty-seven defendants on trial.

Earlier today the prosecution introduced three telegrams sent the morning after the Mukden incident by the Japanese Consul at Mukden to the then Foreign Minister, Baron Kijuro Shidehara, at Tokyo, blaming the Kwantung Army for the affair and asking the Government to halt the aggression. The Consul "presumed" that the Kwantung Army was "planning to start positive operations" in Manchuria.

Atcheson Hits Propaganda In Soviet Aims for Japan

T. LAMBERT

By The Associated Press.

TOKYO, Wednesday, July 10—The American chairman of the Allied Council for Japan charged today that a Russian proposal for labor legislation in Japan bore the familiar signmarks of "propaganda" and declared that neither "communism nor fascism has any rightful claim to leadership of labor."

"Certain of the suggestions, made today by Lieut. Gen. Kuzma N. Derevyanko, Soviet council member, already are in effect in Japan," said Chairman George Atcheson Jr., "but so far as I know they are foreign to other countries."

Turning to General Derevyanko, Mr. Atcheson said:

"I should like to raise with the Soviet member several questions: Are industrial strikes permitted in his country? Is full freedom of labor unions guaranteed? Are reprisals against workers for participating in strikes forbidden by law or practice? Under five-year plans, have working hours for employes been fixed at eight hours a day or forty-eight hours a week?

"If these practices are not universally observed in his country," Mr. Atcheson said, "why does he, as a member of this council, support them for Japan?"

officer, concluded his testimony by saying anti-communism was adopted as the slogan for advances of the Japanese armies into Manchuria.

He said the Japanese-Manchukuoan treaty for "inseparable relationship" was actually only "window dressing" for Nipponese control of that puppet state.

Under defense questioning Tanaka admitted he had lived for a time next door to Chief Prosecutor Joseph B. Keenan and had received some supplies and rations from the prosecution. There was no further questioning along this line, and Tanaka was dismissed.

A defense attorney was sharply rebuked for "impertinence" by the president of the tribunal.

"Missed The Point"

Sir William Webb, chief justice, declared that the "peace and tranquillity" which Japanese defendants say followed their conquests could not be considered a defense for the 27 accused war plotters.

Hirohito 'Knew About' 1931 Manchuria Plans

JUL 10 1946

T. L. AMBERT

Tokyo, July 9 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito was in silent attendance at a 1931 Privy Council meeting during which it was decided to "pacify and occupy" Manchuria, the International Military Tribunal heard today.

The prosecution in the trial of former Premier Hideki Tojo and 26 other accused war plotters disclosed this in reading prison interrogations of ex-General Sadao Araki, one-time War Minister and now one of the defendants.

Emperor Hirohito knew about the occupation plan, Araki answered when asked if the monarch had approved the scheme. Araki said he himself decided soon after becoming War Minister that the four North China provinces (Manchuria) should be occupied by Japanese troops.

Telegrams From Consul

Earlier the prosecution introduced three telegrams sent the morning after the "Mukden incident" by the Japanese Consul at Mukden to the then Foreign Minister, Baron Kijuro Shidehara, at Tokyo, blaming the Kwantung Army for the affair and asking the Government to halt the aggression.

The consul "presumed" the Kwantung Army was "planning to start positive operations" in Manchuria.

Former Maj. Gen. Ryukichi Tanaka, who was a Kwantung Army

When Lieut. Col. George Furness, an American defense attorney, asked whether the statement was a decision on aggression and if the tribunal held that previous treaties between nations made no difference, Webb replied:

"You completely missed the point. I said the peace and tranquillity brought about by Japanese forces. You are very impertinent. We will deal with you if necessary."

Jap Forced-Labor Evil Resumed

JUL 10 1946

Tokyo, July 9 (AP)—Supreme headquarters investigators declared today they had uncovered evidence of a revival of slavery through contract labor in Japan.

A spokesman said women and girls in large numbers were being put under two or three year labor contracts by their parents, who receive their wages.

New Directive Sought

General MacArthur issued a directive last October 4 which prohibited the practice. A Japanese ordinance followed suit on May 17.

The spokesman said labor recruiting agents were working with business leaders of reviving Japanese industries in re-establishing the system. As a result MacArthur will be asked to issue a new directive providing severe penalties for the recruiter, the employer and the person who receives the workers' pay.

A study of six textile factories now back in production, made by both Japanese and American investigators, revealed that women and girls are back under the old system of living in dormitories where their lives and work are regulated by rules laid down by the company—even as to taking baths.

Other "Forced Labor" Reports

The spokesman said there also were reports of "forced labor" in some remote districts, particularly in northern Japan. Investigators are now seeking detailed evidence of uncovered instances where male laborers were working in compounds against their will and were allowed outside only when accompanied by guards.

Investigators also were checking conditions under which 7,000 women are reported working in the pits of Honshu and Kyushu coal mines and 40,000 others are employed above ground sorting coal on 10 P.M. to 7 A.M. shifts.

Convicted Officer Faces Penalties

Yokohama, July 9 (AP)—Lieut. William E. Wing, of Richmond, Va., today faced dismissal from service, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and eight months in prison at hard labor. He was convicted yesterday of misappropriation of more than $50,000 in Government funds in a currency-juggling transaction.

Wing, former finance officer for Headquarters' 7th Air Service Group, was the third of three officers convicted in the same case by an 8th Army general court.

Others were Lieut. Robert L. Johns, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Flight Officer Raymond F. Befanger, of Boston.

They were charged with having sold American dollars and Philippine pesos to a wealthy Japanese at a 33-to-1 rate. Wing's books were balance in yen at the official 15-to-1 rate and the three pocketed the difference, it was testified.

New Bomb-Power Proof Found

JUL 10 1946

Aboard U.S.S. Mount McKinley, July 9 (AP)—Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, boss of the atomic-test operation, said today he believed the target ship Nevada would have been sunk or totally disabled if the bomb had exploded at the point intended.

He reiterated that the missile dropped July 1 burst at the height desired and described the bomb as "tremendously powerful" in the damage it wrought.

Anderson's Fate

What happened to the destroyer Anderson—listed as "unaccounted for" directly after the explosion and later added to the roll of vessels sunk—was cleared up by the report of an air observer and pictures which showed her afire, ammunition blowing up and settling fast.

Divers studied the transport Gilliam, which unofficial observers believe was almost directly under the blast. Her hull was ripped in two places, indicating she probably went down in a matter of seconds, Blandy said. A deck winch weighing several tons was found well removed from the sunken wreck, attesting to the force of the blast.

Huks 'Victims' In Outbreaks

JUL 10 1946

Manila, July 9 (AP)—Luis Taruc, Hukbalahap leader, asserted today that his armed peasants were the victims, not the aggressors, in Central Luzon's latest bloody fighting which has resulted in 159 deaths.

Taruc urged an impartial investigation to determine responsibility, and suggested United States Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy as mediator. Murphy is due here July 28, accompanying the body of former President Manuel Quezon.

The provost marshal general of the Philippine Army threatened, meanwhile, to use the "full force of the military" to stop the strife. Manila officials conceded privately that the situation was "explosive."

Governors "Foes Of Peasants"

Taruc, who arranged a press conference to explain his group's position, said the governors of Pampanga and Nueva Ecipa provinces, appointed by President Roxas, are "sworn enemies" of the Peasant movement and have turned their military police loose for punitive raids on peasant villages.

The peasants, for self-preservation, he said, are fleeing into the remotest areas, and he asked newsmen to note that most reports of clashes come from these sections of the country.

Taruc said he and other Huk leaders would go personally among the peasants to persuade them to lay down their arms if given adequate guarantees against assault by MP's.

DAY

"Water-Cure" Torture

He declared he could prove to any impartial investigator that the MP's have been guilty of numerous atrocities, including the "water-cure" torture, floggings, cutting out tongues, and even murder.

Taruc took a gloomy view of the future. He said he believed Interior Secretary Jose Zulueta's policies of bloodless pacification would be sabotaged by "reactionary landlords."

Military police said at least 1,000 Huks battled with them in Santa Cruz barrio (township) near Tarlac, and that the fighting left at least 100 peasants and 3 police dead. The noon-to-midnight battle virtually razed the barrio. Most of its farm animals were killed, Gov. Angel Tadeo said. Each side blamed the other for starting the fight.

Casualties Reported

In other clashes, these casualties were reported by the police:

Near La Paz: Seven peasants and three police killed; five police wounded.

In scattered, running fights in Tarlac, Nueva Ecija and Pampanga provinces: 38 Huks, three military police and one town policeman killed.

[The figures were confirmed by military police headquarters at Bamban, Pampanga.]

Havana, Cuba, July 9 (A. He referred all matters related to the investigation to his attorney, Wayne Johnson.

Garsson has been at the National Hotel since May 27 and said he was under treatment for a heart ailment.

In his brief comment, he asserted that his "firm had made very valuable contributions to the war effort. "We did a good job despite racial prejudice," he added without further amplification.

Garsson said he had been ill since November and came to Cuba with his wife because the climate was beneficial to his health.

Senate Prohibits Controls On Meat, Poultry Prices By 49-26 Vote in OPA Test

JUL 10 1946

REPUBLICANS JOIN IN SOLID BLOC TO PASS AMENDMENT

Administration Suffers Stunning Reverse in Fight to Revive OPA Powers.

JUL 10 1946

SECOND VETO HINTED

Dairy Items May Be Added to Products Exempt from Curbs.

WASHINGTON, July 9 — (AP) The Administration suffered a stunning reverse in the OPA battle tonight when the Senate voted, 49 to 26, to outlaw any future price ceilings on meat, poultry, eggs and foods made from them.

This action tore big holes in the pending compromise bill to revive OPA in modified form for one year. Many senators predicted that if the action sticks, President Truman will veto the OPA revival bill, just as he did an extension measure passed before OPA expired June 30.

1946

30.24-4047

The prohibition against the ceilings on meats and the other foods was offered by Senator Wherry (R-Neb) and was backed by a majority of the Republicans and some Democrats.

Substitute Plan Defeated

Previously the Senate had voted down, 51 to 25, another amendment by Senator Thomas (D-Okla) to exempt livestock and poultry and their raw byproducts from future price controls.

Thomas had offered this as a substitute for the Wherry amendment, later adopted.

Thomas' broader amendment would have barred controls not only on the foods themselves but on all raw products derived from them, such as drugs.

The 49 to 26 vote by which the Wherry amendment was adopted boded ill for future Administration efforts to eliminate it in compromising the bill with the House. Although House members have gone on record against lifting meat controls, the Senate had approved the discontinuance of these ceilings only on voice votes previously. With the record now made, Administration leaders expect difficulty in reversing this decision.

Eighteen Democrats joined with 31 Republicans in voting to keep future controls off meat, poultry, eggs and foodstuffs made from them. No Republican opposed the amendment. Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis) joined with 25 Democrats in voting "No."

Seeks Vote on Dairy Products

After this success, Wherry sought to push to an immediate vote a supplemental amendment which would add milk, butter and dairy products to the list of those on which no new controls could be placed.

Senator Eastland (D-Miss) battled to get in for a vote on his amendment to put cottonseed, important as a stock food, on the non-control list.

However, the Senate quit until noon tomorrow without acting on either.

Barkley told reporters the vote on the Wherry amendment indicates to him that milk and dairy products will be added to the exempt list as soon as the Senate gets around to voting on them.

He said he is not sure what will happen to various proposals to take petroleum, cottonseed and tobacco off the control list.

O'Daniel Bids for Filibuster

The Administration leaders' woes were just beginning. Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex), inveterate foe of OPA, made a move to bury the agency permanently by offering the controversial fair employment practices legislation as an amendment to the pending price control revival measure.

Every effort heretofore to pass an FEPC bill has brought a filibuster from southern senators and O'Daniel openly was bidding for another one.

"I'm against FEPC," the Texan told the Senate, "but like OPA it's a bad bill. I don't see why we don't have both of them in the same bag." He added that both are "stinking things."

The parliamentary situation was such that O'Daniel could not ask for an immediate vote upon the FEPC amendment. He promised to call it up later and told the Senate that he planned to talk "as long as God gives me breath to delay a final vote on this bill."

O'Daniel, asking help of other senators in his delaying tactics, said they had material enough to "talk this to death" even if it took a year.

He recalled that similar tactics had prevented a vote on a permanent FEPC and said that is why he now offered it.

As Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) pressed for the test vote on the Wherry amendment, the debate was enlivened by charges that the OPA aimed illegal propaganda against Congress.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) asserted that OPA has been using government funds to "propagandize" Congress into continuing its existence.

Assails Porter, Bowles

"And if the Department of Justice was on the job it would indict Mr. Paul Porter and Mr. Chester Bowles for the violation of the law," he shouted.

Porter remains as administrator of an OPA whose powers lapsed June 30 but Bowles resigned as stabilization director, effective tomorrow.

Taft said the law prohibits any agency from spending government funds to prolong its existence, a course he charged has been taken by OPA.

Taft's charge brought Barkley bouncing to his feet to cry out:

"Every time the names of Mr. Porter or Mr. Bowles are mentioned the Senator from Ohio reacts as though somebody had put an atomic bomb under his chair."

Barkley complained that in reading to the Senate a long list of pamphlets and broadsides, Taft had left the impression that only Communist and fellow-traveler organizations indorse the unfettered continuation of price controls.

He hadn't said that, Taft retorted. But he added that the Communist organizations were well represented, although he said that he does not charge the OPA with taking the Communist party line.

Taft Criticizes AVC Campaign

Taft said he disliked a suggestion in a pamphlet issued by the American Veterans committee that senators and representatives who oppose revival of the OPA without restrictions on its authority be hanged in effigy.

Nor was he particularly pleased, he continued, by the organization's urging that hundreds of persons be enlisted to make long distance telephone calls to the lawmakers while they were in the Senate and House chambers.

LIVESTOCK PRICE HIGHER AT YARDS

Cattle Continue To Pour Into Leading Markets

JUL 10 1946

Chicago, July 9 (AP)—Livestock continued to pour into the country's leading stockyards today—although at a lower rate than yesterday's heavy flow.

Live prices generally were higher, but the retail-price situation remained confused. George Dressler, executive secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, declared it would be two or three weeks before adjustments could be completed and base prices established. Meanwhile, prices were higher in some markets than in others, he said, and prices in some places were unchanged.

Black Market Bids Charged

The big packers are taking more of all kinds of livestock this week, trade authorities said, although they still were taking much less than their normal supply.

P. O. Wilson, secretary-manager of the National Live Stock Producers Association, declared that black-market opeartors have bid live-stock prices up since removal of controls "in order to influence a public demand for continuation of OPA."

"Black-market operators cannot function under a free market economy," Wilson declared, "and may be expected to use every known means to have price control continued."

He declared that livestock "is on the move, and by the end of this week consumers should begin to find adequate supplies available."

Arrivals In 12 Markets

Hog arrivals in twelve leading Western markets were 91,400 head today compared with 109,300 yesterday and 116,000 a week ago. For the first two days this week, receipts totaled 200,700 head, compared with 136,000 a week ago and 112,218 a year ago. Prices at Chicago climbed mostly 50 cents to a top of $17.15 per hundredweight, still below last week's peak of $18.50. At East St. Louis, prices climbed as much as $1.00 to a top of $18.00.

Cattle receipts at the twelve markets dipped to 57,000 head, compared with 100,300 yesterday and 52,878 last week. Cattle receipts were 157,300 head for the first two days, compared with 80,378 last week and 130,877 a year ago. Prices were firm to a shade higher here, with the top equaling yesterday's peak of $22.50 for steers.

Sheep receipts at twelve markets were 21,600 head, and for the first two days of the week totaled 46,100 head, compared with 18,500 for the same period last week and 64,600 a year ago. Spring lambs were strong and mostly 40 cents higher, with the extreme top of $21 to a city butcher, $1.40 higher than yesterday. The practical top was $20.

U.S. May Delay Buying Meat For Famine Aid

JUL 10 1946

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Unless meat-price controls are re-established, the Government may suspend its famine-relief buying until fall when livestock marketings normally are greater.

This possibility was disclosed today by an aide of Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, who said the Administration does not want to bid against American consumers. The official said privately that the Government feared such buying would boost meat prices far above present levels.

Before OPA expired July 1, the Government bought an average of more than 25,000,000 pounds of meat weekly during the first half of 1946 to help fill a foreign commitment of about 1,500,000,000 pounds for the full year.

Heretofore, federally inspected slaughterers were required to set aside a portion of their output for the Government at ceiling prices. The Government was taking between 10 and 15 per cent of the beef, about 40 per cent of the pork and 50 per cent of the lard.

The set-aside requirement was suspended when price controls expired. The Government had hoped, however, that OPA would be reestablished soon and the set-aside orders reinstated.

Under a free market, the price-boosting effects of Government buying would tend to be less in a period of heavy livestock marketings and slaughter than during a season of low marketings.

While sales of meat animals have increased sharply since price controls expired, this nevertheless is the season when marketings are at their lowest. Some of the markets last week and this week represent animals withheld in June by producers who anticipated at least a lapse in price controls and higher prices.

Normally, marketings of livestock begin to pick up in September and reach their peak in January or February. Thus it would be easier, the official explained, for the Government to buy the remainder of its 1946 foreign meat commitments during the last three months of the year than during the summer.

The official emphasized, however, that postponement of Government buying until fall will mean that consumer supplies at that time will be smaller than otherwise would be the case.

Control Is Ended On Clothing Prices

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Confronted with a congressional edict, the Civilian Production Administration tonight scrapped the only remaining price controls designed to insure output of inexpensive clothing.

The agency announced it will continue to set aside fabrics suitable for low and moderately priced garments, but it no longer will require manufacturers to sell clothing made from such materials at or below certain wholesale prices.

Although CPA did not explain in its official announcement why this control is being abandoned, officials said privately that the reason was uncertainty with respect to the Moore amendment to the recently renewed Second War Powers Act.

That amendment, sponsored by Senator Moore (R., Okla.), prohibits any price fixing under the War Powers Act, the law from which CPA derives its authority to allocate fabrics for clothing.

The purpose of that amendment, adopted before expiration of the Price Control Act, was to block a possible move to authorize OPA to set ceilings under other emergency legislation.

Patterson Reveals Plea Of May to Aid Firms

JUL 10 1946

Tells Probers Congressman Called Him to Meet Company Officials.

WASHINGTON, July 9. — (AP) Secretary of War Patterson acknowledged today that he had given his personal attention to the wartime complaints of Illinois munitions makers at request from Rep. May (D-Ky), but firmly denied that he had done them "favors."

In sworn testimony before the Senate War Investigating committee, Patterson produced these developments in the inquiry into the industrial combine's complicated operations and profits:

1. A statement that he went to May's office at the congressmen's summons a few days after government payments to the Erie Basin Metal Products company had been "frozen" to insure recapture of excessive profits. At the congressman's office, he conferred with two men whom he said he could not identify.

Complaint by May

2. An acknowledgement that May had complained to him over a War Production board order halting work on a contract held by Batavia Metal Products company, another of the associated firms, and that he had a subordinate look into it.

3. A declaration that he had intervened with the War Manpower commission to obtain additional labor for Batavia. He emphasized this was done only to get shells for a mounting offensive in Europe.

4. A flat denial that May had asked for, or that he had ordered, award of a big shell contract to Batavia. He termed this "idle gossip and utterly untrue."

5. A statement that he had approved an Army-Navy "E" award for Batavia about which May had inquired. He insisted that he did so only after subordinates informed him that Batavia had exceeded production schedules.

"I am not in the business of doing favors for anyone," Patterson told the committee sharply at one point.

Committee members focused their chief attention upon an order freezing payments to Erie Basin over Patterson's signature on Sept. 6, 1945.

Froze All Profits

George H. Knutson, a member of the War department price adjustment board, testified earlier in the day that the order originally froze all of the profits, but was modified a week later to permit payment of $723,000. Knutson said the modified order was designed to cover repayment of $800,000 which the government expected to collect through renegotiation and $974,000 which the government had advanced to Erie.

Patterson said that a "few days" after issuance of the original freeze order, May, chairman of the influential House Military committee, telephoned asking him to come to his office and he did so. Patterson then was undersecretary of war in charge of production.

He related that he met two men, neither of whom he could identify, in May's office. He expressed belief that one of them might have been Henry Garsson, who has been described by army officers as the "brain" behind development of the Illinois combine.

Patterson said that May himself "didn't have much to say" about the freeze order, but that the two men claimed that it would "prevent them from getting into civilian production."

Referred to Colonel

He said that he referred the two men to Col. Maurice Hirsch of the general staff corps.

Senator Mitchell (D-Wash) read into the record a transcript of a telephone conversation between Garsson and Hirsch referring to the freeze order in which Garsson repeatedly mentioned his conversation with Patterson.

In response to questions, Patterson said that he did not like his name "to be used in an effort to obtain favors." But he insisted that

"that kind of talk"—the conversation between Garsson and Hirsch—doesn't impress Hirsch. He can take care of himself."

Knutson and associates related that contract renegotiators trimmed the war profits of the companies from 26.4 to 9.3 per cent by refusing to allow claims for big Washington entertainment bills, boosted rent fees and claims for "abandoned" machinery. One item in question was an Erie charge of $19,213 for "liquor and miscellaneous gifts." The gifts were said to have included two $138 cigarette lighters and six $120 pen and pencil sets, but it was not ascertained who received them.

Patterson himself brought up the matter of the Batavia eight-inch shell contract which was referred to in an inked-out passage in a War department memorandum introduced last week of a conversation between two War department officials. In that memorandum was a claim that Batavia received the contract as a result of May's request to Patterson.

Did Not Seek Contract

"May never spoke to me about the eight-inch shell contract," said Patterson. "That's idle gossip and utterly untrue."

"I am not arguing any case here for Batavia, no thank you," Patterson added.

Patterson testified that his attention first was called to Batavia's affairs by a "complaint" from Rep. May (D-Ky), chairman of the House Military committee, over the action of the War Production Board in halting work on a contract there.

May has denied that he profited personally through his activities on behalf of the closely-linked Illinois concerns, saying that he was motivated only by a desire to get munitions to the troops.

Recalls Memorandum

Patterson said that his only recollection of his initial contact with Batavia was based upon a memorandum which he drafted for Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, then assistant chief of staff in charge of material, after May telephoned.

That memorandum declared:

"Congressman May of Kentucky has reported to me the case of the Batavia Metal Products company, a concern in Illinois. He says that the Army has sent 350 trucks to this concern for additional work in the way of bracing with steel pieces, etc. His complaint is that although the pieces have all been cut and are lying around the War Production board has stopped the work. I understand from him that the trucks are there and the pieces are there, but that no work can be done and that the project is held down. Please look into the matter."

JUL 10 1946

Promising the committee the full picture of all his dealings with Batavia, Patterson started by recalling the pressure for artillery shells from General Eisenhower, then Supreme Allied commander in Europe, in late 1944.

As a result Patterson, then undersecretary of war in charge of production, said that he toured shell factories to deliver pep talks to the workers and talk over production problems with executives.

Met Henry Garsson

During this trip, he related, he first met Henry Garsson, an official of Batavia who has been described by Army officers as "the brains" behind the promotion of the industrial combine now being investigated.

Patterson said he learned of a controversy between Batavia and the regional office of the War Manpower commission over a contention that Batavia had by-passed WMC and had pirated labor from rival concerns.

"I asked if this could not be adjusted," Patterson said, "because, of course, I was sympathetic with anything that would get the maximum number of eight-inch shells. They said it would be adjusted."

As committee members pressed him upon this point, Patterson held up a hand and commented:

"This was one of the worst emergencies we faced in the whole war. It is rather hard to recapture these times now. But believe me, they were urgent."

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) produced a letter, signed by Garsson and dated in October, 1944, in which he wrote Army procurement officials that he had sufficient manpower to carry out his contracts. Ferguson argued that Garsson evidently had obtained another contract for an associated concern from the Chemical Warfare service with the understanding that the work would be done at Batavia, and then had attempted to get additional labor.

Patterson said he had had no knowledge of this letter.

Near the outset of Patterson's testimony, Chairman Mead (D-NY) read a telegram purportedly from Henry Paynter, recently retained as public relations representative by Garsson, which claimed that Patterson had in his possession "a half ton of wire tapping recordings" of telephone conversations between War department officials and congressmen. The telegram said that among these were conversations in which Mead, President Truman, then a senator, and Ferguson interceded in behalf of war contractors.

Denies Making Recordings

"I have no such recordings, neither half a ton nor any other ton," said Patterson. He added that he personally never used a recording device.

Other War department officials had related that they "pushed a button" to record conversations with members of Congress and top government officials, but insisted that their actions were in the interests of efficiency.

Paynter, taking the stand later, denied sending the telegram Mead read, refused to answer a series of questions, charged the committee with "suppression" of facts and "star chamber proceedings" and shouted "You are not going to scare me" at Senator Ferguson (R-Mich).

While Paynter disclaimed authorship of the telegram to the committee bearing his name, he acknowledged sending another to the Washington Post protesting an editorial critical of May and asking that "amends" be made. In that telegram he referred to a "deliberate, conspiratorial and malicious plot on the part of the employes of the Mead committee" and contended that May had taken an interest in the Garsson contracts because he had received evidence of "racial prejudice" within the War department.

In reply to a question by Ferguson, the witness said he had not assisted May in writing the speech which latter delivered in the House yesterday. In the speech May disclaimed any profit from his relations with the Cumberland Lumber company, part of the Garsson combine.

Does Not Serve Rep. May

Paynter testified also that May was not a client of his. As Ferguson sought to determine whether Paynter had had any recent conversations with May, the witness said at one point that "I'm not sure whether it was Congressman May or not." Thereafter he flatly refused on grounds of "professional ethics" and "professional confidence" to answer questions on that point.

"I'll freeze in hell," he told Ferguson, "before I'll violate any confidence, and I will not answer any more questions on that point."

Paynter told the committee that "anti-Jewish prejudice was the basic consideration in this case." This drew from Mead the declaration that he wished to "disassociate the decent Jewish people of America" from any defense of the Garsson interests.

Commenting on a remark by Paynter that there had been suppression of facts concerning the case, Mead declared, "There is no gestapo in this committee and there is no suppression of information in this committee."

"The only people," he said, "who can't get their testimony before this committee are those who refuse to come here."

Committee Counsel George Meader said that there is a "possibility" that Henry Garsson, one-time internal revenue agent who was instrumental in the promotion of the industrial combine, may be called as a witness tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Garsson's brother, Murray, said in Havana, Cuba, that he is willing to appear before the committee as soon as his doctors pronounce him fit.

He told a newsman that his firms made "very valuable contributions to the war effort," adding without elaboration: "We did a good job despite racial prejudice."

Patterson told the committee that any intimation "racial prejudice" figured in War department contract affairs was "ridiculous," while Undersecretary of War Kenneth C. Royall termed it "entirely untrue."

Royall will resume testimony tomorrow. In a brief appearance today, he told the committee that May had telephoned him on three occasions about the order freezing payments to the Erie Basin Metal Products company.

...voy To China Nominated Amid Dispute Over UNRRA Aid

Washington, July 9 (AP)—President Truman named John Leighton Stuart, a 70-year-old Presbyterian missionary and educator, to be Ambassador to China today, but even before the Senate received the nomination tough new problems were piling up on the China scene.

Fiorella LaGuardia, UNRRA director, announced suspension of all shipments of supplies except emergency foods to China after receiving a protest from more than half the UNRRA staff members in China that goods were not reaching the right people, that ports were jammed with materials and that "political use" of relief supplies was being charged.

Embassy Answers Charge

The Chinese Embassy in Washington said in a statement tonight that the message of the UNRRA staff members to LaGuardia "is obviously one-sided" and that it would be "inadvisable to draw any hasty conclusion from it."

"The handling of UNRRA supplies to China is handicapped by the transportation system which has not yet been restored to normal condition because of the prolonged war of resistance," said the statement.

It added that a "full statement by responsible Chinese authorities . . . will enable the public to form a more just appreciation of the matter."

Reports Chiang Warned

LaGuardia's drastic action halted the shipment to China of a vast quantity of materials worth hundreds of millions of dollars and ranging from textiles and clothing to fertilizers, farm machinery, fishing boats, trucks, locomotives and steel rails.

A statement by UNRRA headquarters said LaGuardia had warned Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek three days ago that he would take such action if the ports were not cleared of relief supplies already delivered.

While LaGaurdia made no mention of political charges, the whole situation was regarded by officials here as reflecting China's increased difficulty in undertaking even basic rehabilitation without unity between the Nationalist faction led by Chiang and the Communists in the North.

Stuart Choice A Surprise

This in turn seemed to set the stage for the appointment of Stuart, a diplomatic dark horse, whose nomination came as a surprise to those authorities here who had expected that the post would go to Lieut. Albert C. Wedemeyer. The General served during the latter part of the war as United States military chief in East Asia. Wedemeyer, now in this country, is expected, however, to get an important new military assignment.

Several reasons for the choice of Stuart were advanced:

1. He is described as having the full approval of Gen. George C. Marshall, who is the President's personal representative in China for the purpose of unifying the country and who continues in that assignment. There are some indications that Marshall may have proposed the appointment in the first place.

Regarded As Expert

2. He is personally acceptable both to Generalissimo Chiang-Kai-shek and Gen. Chou En-lai, the Communist leader.

3. He has had 40 years experience as a missionary in China and is regarded by American diplomacy's "old China hands" as an outstanding expert on Chinese problems. In this capacity it was said, he should be of enormous help to Marshall and in fact he has been working as an unofficial adviser of Marshall for two months.

Simultaneously with the nomination of Stuart, Mr. Truman sent to the Senate the nomination of Robert Butler, St. Paul shipbuilder and banker, to be Ambassador to Australia. Earlier the White House had announced completion of arrangements between Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of State, and Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Foreign Minister, for raising the ranks of the legations at Washington and Canberra to embassies.

The first Australian Ambassador to the United States will be that nation's present Navy Minister, Norman Makin.

Stuart will take the position left vacant by the return from China last fall of Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley. Hurley's retirement from the ambassadorial post was marked by a critical outburst before a Senate committee in which he assailed various American diplomats who had served under him in China.

Stuart's appointment caps off a long and at times exciting career in China. At the outbreak of the Pacific war in December, 1941, he was interned in Peking and held until Japan's surrender. He immediately set about preparing for the reopening of Yenching University, of which he had become president in 1919.

He was educated in the United States at Hampden Sidney College and Union Theological Seminary, in Virginia, and at Princeton University.

He was ordained as a Presbyterian minister and went to China as a missionary in 1905.

U. S. SHIPBUILDER GOES TO AUSTRALIA AS AMBASSADOR

WASHINGTON, July 9 — (AP) President Truman appointed Robert Butler, St. Paul shipbuilder and banker, today as the first American ambassador to Australia as the two countries increased the importance of their diplomatic posts.

Norman Makin, minister of state for the Australian navy, will be his country's first ambassador to Washington.

The legations in Canberra and Washington are being raised to embassies, a joint announcement said, in line with the "added importance of the Pacific area in the eyes of both governments." The White House also said that the change was a "natural consequence of the increasingly close and cordial relations between Australia and the United States."

Nelson T. Johnson, career diplomat who has been minister to Australia, will become secretary-general of the Far Eastern commission, policy making body for conquered Japan.

Butler, a diplomatic newcomer, has a background of administrative service in the Philippines. He served as deputy governor and tribal war justice in Mato, Davo and Lanao provinces after leaving home in his youth to join the Philippine constabulary. He was a U. S. army lieutenant in World War One.

During the last war, Butler built ships at Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis. He is president of the Builders Trust company of St. Paul. He will be 49 next week. The White House said his formal nomination will be sent to the Senate this week.

LIMITED BOYCOTT HITS FRANCO TRADE

JUL 10 1946

WASHINGTON, July 9—(AP) Diplomatic authorities said today that the United States government, in a kind of limited boycott, is spending no money in Franco Spain except under "extreme necessity."

This was the explanation given reporters for the announcement by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney at Frankfort, Germany, that the Army has stopped buying Spanish luxury goods, notably silver jewelry and brandy. Authorities in Germany estimated the value of these purchases for resale in Army post exchanges at about $100,000 annually. But officials here expressed the opinion the sum is somewhat less.

There is no U. S. government ban on commercial relations between private American firms and the Spanish government and people. Nor is there any restriction on Spanish goods being exported to the United States.

However, officials estimated that Franco Spain probably is losing upwards of $2,000,000 in sales to the U. S. government this year because of the general order that agencies should not buy anything in Spain which they can get elsewhere.

During the war U. S. economic warfare agencies bought heavily from Spain, partly to obtain needed supplies and partly to prevent the Germans from getting them. The latter was called "preclusive buying."

Last year, when the Army needed all possible food supplies, blankets and other materials for use in Germany, the State department gave a "go ahead" sign for purchases in Spain. One official estimated that total army purchases to the year's end amounted to $15,000,000.

Opponents of British Loan Resume Their Fire in House

Woodruff Declares It Might Sow Seeds of Third World War by Alarming Reds —Republicans Split Sharply.

JUL 10 1946

Washington, July 9 (A. P.).—The opposition to the $3,750,000,000 British loan fired another blast in the House today, with Representative Woodruff (R.-Mich.) declaring that the huge credit might sow the seeds of a third world war.

"Do I need to tell you," he asked, "that if we give Great Britain $4,500,000,000 (including $3,750,000,000 credit and lend-lease settlement) and then refuse Russia a similar sum, that Russia will immediately conclude we are building up a western bloc against her, and that she will immediately begin to arm for a third world war?"

With administration leaders battling to hold Democratic lines in support of the Senate-approved loan, Republicaan ranks split sharply on the issue.

Eaton Supports Bill.

Representative Eaton of New Jersey, senior Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, threw his support to the loan. So did Representative Herter (R.-Mass.).

Eaton declared that America and Britain can maintain world leadership only "by working together as partners," adding:

"We are making this loan primarily in our own interest. It will help Britain, so severely devastated by the war, to help us develop a sound and profitable world trade as a necessary basis for world peace and security."

Eaton, in his address, cautioned against the existence of two mutually antagonistic ideologies—that of the United States and Britain on one hand and of Russia on the other. He said:

"On one side of this ideological impasse, we have the United States of America, the British Commonwealth of Nations and an impressive group of other peace-loving and progressive nations, standing in varying degrees of free self-government and free individualism; economic, social and spiritual.

"On the other side we have Russia and her satellite and subordinate group of nations standing for absolute totalitarianism in Government, and for the complete and unquestioning subservience of the individual to the despotic authority and control of the State.

"This ideological impasse raises the question for which mankind through long ages of travail must find an answer. The question is this: Is the new world civilization, which must now be created, to be a civilization of slavery or a civilization of freedom?"

Speaker Rayburn (D.- Tex.), clung to his forecast that the ratification legislation would be approved. He said the showdown vote will come either on Friday or Saturday. The Senate ratified the loan on May 10 on a 46 to 34 vote.

Sees Close Victory.

Representative Wolcott of Michigan, senior Republican of the Banking Committee who is leading a party bloc in support of the credit, said, "It looks now like the loan will win by a few votes." He observed that British pronouncements on the Palestine question "apparently have not lost as many votes as we feared."

In this connection Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D.-Cal.) announced her resignation from the Congressional Advisory Board of the Political Action Committee for Palestine, Inc., because of an anti-loan statement issued by the committee.

In a telegram to the group Mrs. Douglas said she "deplores" Britain's policy on Palestine, but added, "I believe the loan essential to our economic welfare."

After President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes had sent personal appeals to Capitol Hill for approval of the loan, Banking Chairman Spence (D.-Ky.) said the outlook "is beautiful."

CHINA SHIP BILL VOTED

WASHINGTON, July 9 — (AP) House acceptance of minor Senate amendments sent to President Truman today legislation authorizing the transfer of 271 surplus small naval vessels to China. The ships, including six destroyer escorts and 20 submarine chasers, are to be used to help China meet part of her immediate navy needs.

SERVICE MEN'S TERMINAL-PAY BILL ADVANCES

'Anti-Inflation' Plan Goes To Senate With Unanimous Committee O.K.

JUL 10 1946

Washington, July 9 (AP)—A so-called "anti-inflationary" plan for staggered payment of about $3,000,000,000 to some 15,000,000 veterans reached the Senate today with blessing from its Military Committee and President Truman.

"This will be ready for Senate action before the OPA bill is finished," Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Col.) said after the Military Committee gave approval.

The payments—part in cash and the bulk in Treasury bonds payable five years after the veterans' discharge and bearing 2½ per cent interest—are a substitute for an immediate cash outlay for terminal leave pay already approved by the House by a 375-to-0 roll call.

Figured For Officers

All commissioned officers who served during the recent war received cash terminal leave payments on release at the rate of two and one half days for each month of service, less time actually spent on leaves.

The substitute is intended to grant all enlisted men and women these same payments, except that cash would be paid only on claims of less than $50, with some exceptions, while the five-year bonds would be issued for payments above $50.

Assistant Press Secretary Eben Ayers told White House reporters that the bond payment substitute "was the President's own idea."

Cash Payments Opposed

The Budget Bureau previously reported that cash payments were opposed by the President. The compromise was worked out by representatives of that agency and the Treasury, War and Navy departments.

The bond payments would be made to all enlisted men and women already discharged and to those still in service who are discharged before July 1, 1947.

Payment by bonds also would be made to officers discharged between the time the law is enacted and July 1, 1947, replacing the cash payments they now receive.

As To Leave In Future

No provision is made to pay for for unusued leave accumulated after July 1, 1947, either by officers or men. The plan stipulates that the armed services are to provide for the taking of leave in the future annually as it accrues to the extent consistent with military requirements and other exigencies."

The leave to be paid for under the plan is all that has accrued since September 8, 1939, the date when the first naval reservists were called up.

John L. Sullivan, Under Secretary of the Navy, appeared before the Senate committee to explain the scheme. He said the President opposed immediate cash payments because of the "serious inflationary effect."

Approval Unanimous

The Senate committee gave speedy and unanimous approval at at executive session after Sullivan's testimony.

In addition to equalizing terminal leave benefits between officers and enlisted personnel during the war the bill also continues this same treatment into the future. However, after September 1 of this year future leave could not be accumulated above 90 days, compared with a top limit of 120 days before that date.

Sullivan explained that if a veteran had $237 in terminal pay due, he would receive $37 cash and a bond for $200, payable within five years. The bond would be face value of the payment due and the interest would be additional.

Provisions For Cash

In addition to cash payments on claims of less than $50, cash would go also to all who were discharged before January 1, 1943; to survivors of those who died after discharge; and to enlisted men or survivors who are under 17 years or mentally disabled.

For men and women discharged after January 1, 1943, the bonds would be dated back to the quarter nearest discharge. Thus if discharged on March 15, 1943, the bonds would be dated April 1, 1943, and mature in 1948.

Sullivan said this would result in staggering payments from 1948 through 1952, "a decided advantage from the budgetary and fiscal standpoint."

Year Allowed For Claims

All claims must be submitted within one year after the proposal becomes law. The sworn statement of the veteran would be accepted as to the terminal pay due him, less time he received for furloughs and passes.

Men who served both as enlisted men and officers would be eligible for the payments because they were discharged as enlisted men at the time they received commissions and were reinducted as officers.

Loans could not be made against the bond and they could not be transferred or assigned. Even a claim by the Government against them would not be valid and they are tax free except for the interest.

Survivors of men who died in combat or service would not be eligible to claim terminal leave because they received a half year of pay and allowances.

HOUSE VOTES TO MAINTAIN SILVER PRICE

JUL 10 1946

Rejects Proposal To Up Cost From 71.11 To 90.3 Cents An Ounce

Washington, July 9 (AP)—The House refused today by a vote of 266 to 23 to accept a Senate proposal for sale of Government silver at 90.3 cents an ounce for two years, then at $1.29.

The Senate's proposal is in the form of a 'rider" to the Treasury Appropriation Bill. It was a substitute for a House proposal to continue the price at 71.11 cents an ounce.

Industrial users have contended the Government's store of silver is the only adequate source of critically needed metal.

Few Supported Motion

Many Westerners and a few others supported in debate the motion by Representative White (D., Idaho) that the House accept the Senate rider. But on a standing vote, the motion found only fifteen supporters against 136 opponents. A roll call vote mustered 23 favorable votes, 266 against.

Representative Taber (R., N.Y.) contended the proposal to pay $1.29 after two years would have the effect of freezing all silver sales for two years while the owners waited for an opportunity to make twenty per cent on their investment.

Would Seek $2.19 Price

The Government has approximately 220,000,000 ounces of "surplus" silver which it could sell to industrial users. Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.) called this a "sterile and worthless hoard" but predicted that if the Senate proposal were accepted the next step would be an effort to obtain a price of $2.19.

The Senate rider also would repeal the transactions tax on silver and remove ceilings on bullion and some types of fabricated silver.

Representative McCormack (D., Mass.) declared that repeal of this "anti-speculation legislation" would provide a bonanza for owners who have held silver off the market pending settlement of the price dispute.

Cites Shortage Causes

Representative Dworshak (R., Idaho), supporting the Senate proposal, told the House that the scarcity of silver for manufacturing purposes has required some fabricators to melt silver coins. He said the shortage is due to three causes:

1. An increased demand abroad.
2. An increased need for industrial use.
3. A decline in production.

Cost of silver production, he said, has gone up materially during recent years and production has dwindled "because silver miners can't produce at the price industry wants to pay."

Pearl Harbor Report Day Extended Until July 16

JUL 10 1946

Committee Said To Be Divided on Placing Blame

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP).—The Congressional Pearl Harbor Committee today got an extension of time until July 16 to make its final report. House approval completed action on a resolution, already adopted by the Senate, moving the deadline from July 10.

Meantime, the committee met behind closed doors to go over the preliminary draft by a five-man subcommittee appointed to write the report.

The group was reported divided on the issue of where the blame should be placed for the surprise the Japanese achieved with their Dec. 7, 1941, raid on Hawaii.

The chairman, Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, told reporters that members of the committee had suggested "many changes" in the subcommittee draft. The committee, Senator Barkley said, will continue closed sessions in an effort to reach an agreement.

Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, a subcommittee member, is drafting a report of his own, and indications are that Congress will get two reports, majority and minority, from the group.

HOUSING AGENCY GETS YALE EXPERT TO PUSH ITS WORK

JUL 10 1946

WASHINGTON, July 9. — (AP) The National Housing agency is reorganizing its technical branch under the direction of Harold D. Hauf, Yale university professor, to handle a major phase of the guaranteed market program aimed at speeding up veterans' emergency housing construction.

Two major functions of the technical branch, as outlined by Housing Expediter Wilton W. Wyatt, are to:

1. Establish technical standards and determine the eligibility of new products and construction methods for government assistance, and

2. Recommend modernization of building codes which in some cities might interfere with uses of new materials or new construction methods.

In unveiling the guaranteed market program today, NHA put into operation the second big government support plan authorized by Congress to help the agency start construction of 2,700,000 new dwellings for veterans by 1948. This augments the $400,000,000 subsidies plan which already is in effect, with premium payments designed to speed up production of clay products, ply-wood and paper line for gypsum board.

Through the guaranteed market program, Wyatt said, NHA hopes to "encourage maximum production of a new type building materials and prefabricated homes by underwriting producers in marketing their products."

The plan allows the Reconstruction Finance corporation to contract with producers for purchase at a fixed price any unit of new materials for prefabricated houses which the producer is unable to sell through his own distribution channels. The government may underwrite the sale of up to 200,000 units at one time, but may not pay more than 90 per cent of a producer's delivery price.

Hauf was granted a leave of absence from Yale university to take the NHA post. While at New Haven he also was a private consultant in architecture and building research.

The guaranteed market program, housing officials said, is designed not only to bolster lagging production of prefabricated houses, but also to develop new types of materials which may be used in construction of conventional type houses. These materials, they said, include metals, plastics, new types of concrete aggregates and other products.

TRUMAN TO REVIEW 442ND INFANTRY

JUL 10 1946

WASHINGTON, July 9 (AP)—President Truman will review the 442nd infantry regimental combat team Monday, according the Japanese-American veterans of the Mediterranean and European theaters honors enjoyed by no other unit in World War II.

Plans announced by the War department today call for a full dress parade on Constitution avenue to the ellipse adjoining the White House.

There Mr. Truman is to affix a Presidential distinguished unit citation banner to the colors of the combat team, preceding a formal review.

DR. EVATT DRAFTS REPORT ON STUDY OF ATOM CONTROLS

JUL 10 1946

F. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, July 9—(AP) Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, drew up today a report summarizing the work of the United Nations atomic sub-committee No. 1 which has completed its task of hearing varying views on how best to control atomic energy.

The Australian also prepared himself for the meeting of the United Nations Security council tomorrow at 3 p.m. At that time he will present, as chairman of the United Nations Atomic Energy commission, the provisional rules adopted by the commission last Wednesday. The Security council must act on these rules.

Dr. Evatt, chairman of the sub-committee No. 1, was expected to have the sub-committee's report ready for final consideration by that six-nation group at its meeting Thursday at 11 a.m. The report, once approved by the sub-committee, will be handed to the working committee of the Atomic Energy commission, probably next Friday.

The sub-committee has had a thorough exchange of views on the whole proposition of outlawing atomic weapons of war and on controlling atomic energy for peacetime use.

It is expected that the full working committee of the Atomic Energy commission will determine the course of future deliberations after receiving this report.

The Security council also will have before it a technical definition of conditions under which the International Court of Justice, sitting at The Hague, will be open to non-member states.

The Security council soon must name a committee to consider applications for membership to the United Nations. The council has set July 15 as the deadline for normal applications to go before the General Assembly at its September meeting. Any application after that will be handled as an extraordinary case if it is put before the coming assembly.

Applications have been submitted by the kingdom of Trans-Jordan, Albania, Siam, the Mongolian People's Republic (Outer Mongolia) and Afghanistan.

New Member Applications May Bring U.N. Conflict

SCRUMICH

New York, July 9 (AP)—A potential source of conflict in the United Nations Security Council appeared to be taking shape today as pending applications for membership in the United Nations were swelled to five by receipt of a petition from the kingdom of Trans-Jordan.

Some new applicants have deep partisan interest in issues which the Council may be called upon to consider in the near future, and it seemed possible that this fact might provoke differences over the question of their admissibility.

The applications must be considered by a special subcommittee of the council before they are presented to the General Assembly meeting scheduled to open here September 3. It is possible that additional applications may be received before the July 15 deadline on petitions to be presented to the forthcoming Assembly session.

Others On List

In addition to Trans-Jordan, nations thus far seeking membership are Albania, Siam, the Mongolian People's Republic (Outer Mongolia) and Afghanistan.

One conflict looms between Russia and the Western powers over Albania, which has the nominal sponsorship of Yugoslavia and the behind-the-scenes support of the Soviet Union.

Britain has taken the lead in opposing Albania, refusing to recognize the regime of Premier Enver Hoxha, which is intimately tied up with the Yugoslav organization of Marshal Tito in the Russian sphere of influence.

France is expected to oppose the application of the Bangkok Government, at least until border difficulties between Indo-China and Siam are settled

Siam's Protest

The Siamese Government has protested to the United Nations against French "aggression" from Indo-China and announced its intention of submitting the frontier dispute to the Security Council under a provision that a nonmember may seek arbitration if it agrees in advance to abide by the Council's decision.

The United States, Britain, China and India have declared they would support a full hearing of the border dispute and sponsor the membership application of Siam.

The Kingdom of Trans-Jordan, which was liberated from a British mandate by treaty last March 21, and set up Amir Abdullah Ibn Hussein as ruler over 300,000 subjects, has been outspoken among the Arab states opposing Jewish immigration into neighboring Palestine.

Several sources have indicated that fulfillment of the British-American Inquiry Committee's recommendation for admission of 100,000 Jews into Palestine would result in formal protests to the United Nations from Arab states or pan-Arabic organizations.

Question Of Outer Mongolia

Outer Mongolia's application pointed out that nation's friendship with the Soviet Union and its alliance with the Russians against Japan in the short period between the dropping of the atom bomb on Hiroshima and the Japanese surrender.

Afghanistan is another neighbor of Russia but the sponsorship for her application has not become apparent.

The Security Council will meet tomorow to act on the provisional rules adopted by its Atomic Energy Commission and to deal with a technical definition of conditions under which the International Court of Justice, sitting at The Hague, shall be open to non-member states.

The Atomic Subcommittee No. 1, will meet again Thursday to consider a report from its chairman, Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia.

NAZI V-2 ROCKET CLIMBS 83 MILES AT TESTING AREA

JUL 10 1946

WHITE SANDS, N. M., July 9.—(AP) A German V-2 rocket was fired to an altitude of 83.5 miles for a new record today at White Sands proving ground.

The huge rocket, laden with data-gathering instruments, was in the air 400.5 second and came to earth 63 miles due north of the launching site.

Col. Harold R. Turner, commanding officer, described it as a "particularly spectacular shoot," witnessed by high ranking officers of the U. S. Army, U. S. Air forces, commercial firms and three representatives of the Royal Canadian Air force.

Another test will be made July 19 if the weather is favorable, Turner said.

Witnesses today included Maj. Gen. W. G. Wyman and Maj. Gen. L. E. Oliver, both of the general staff in Washington; Maj. Gen. E. E. Patridge and Brig. Gen. F. H. Griswold of the Army Air forces.

The firing was under the direction of the U. S. Army ordnance department with General Electric Co. assisting with the installation of data-collecting instruments.

Prior to the firing Turner had described it as "routine."

NUERNBERG, JULY 9-(AP)-THE INTERNATIONAL MILITARY TRIBUNAL ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT IT WISHED TO HEAR ONLY A "COUPLE" OF WITNESSES EACH IN THE CASES AGAINST NAZI ORGANIZATIONS WHICH ARE SLATED TO BEGIN BEFORE THE END OF JULY.

SUCH STREAMLINED PROCEDURE HAS BEEN MADE POSSIBLE BY DAILY SCREENIN OF EVIDENCE BY A FIVE MAN PRELIMINARY COMMISSION.

FRANKFURT, GERMANY, JULY 9-(AP)-GEN. JOSEPH T.MCNARNEY WARNED TODAY THAT THE UNITED STATES WOULD SEEK SPECIAL ECONOMIC PACTS FOR WESTERN GERMANY IF THE FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE LEADING POWERS FAILED TO AGREE ON WIPING OUT ALL ZONAL TRADE BARRIERS WITHIN GERMANY.

THE U.S. COMMANDER IN EUROPE TOLD NEWSMEN HE HAD HEARD OF NO PROGRESS AT THE PARIS CONFERENCE IN DRAFTING A PLAN FOR ECONOMIC CENTRALIZATION OF GERMANY. HE ADDED THAT THE FOUR POWER ALLIED CONTROL COUNCIL IN BERLIN STILL WAS AT A "COMPLETE STALEMATE ON THE SAME ISSUE."

JUL 10 1946

"NATURALLY IF WE CAN'T REACH AGREEMENT ON WHAT WE CONSIDER NECESSARY, WE WILL HAVE TO FORMULATE SOME NEW AGREEMENTS WITH THOSE WHO ARE WILLING TO COOPERATE," MCNARNEY SAID. "IT MIGHT BE WITH ONE OR IT MIGHT BE WITH TWO POWERS."

THE GENERAL SAID THAT IF THE UNITED STATES ISSUED SCRIP MONEY TO ITS TROOPS IN GERMANY, REPLACING THE PRESENT ALLIED MARKS, IT PROBABLY WOULD BE INTERCHANGEABLE WITH BRITISH SCRIP. HE SAID NO NEGOTIATIONS WERE UNDER WAY FOR INTERCANGEABILITY IN TH FRENCH OR RUSSIAN OCCUPATION ZONES.

MCNARNEY TOLD HIS NEWS CONFERENCE THAT ARMY PURCHASES OF SPANISH LUXURY ITEMS, INCLUDING SILVER JEWELRY AND BRANDY, HAD BEEN STOPPED BY A DIRECTIVE FROM WASHINGTON. MILITARY STORES IN THE AMERICAN ZONE FORMERLY SOLD $100,000 OF THE SPANISH GOODS A MONTH AN SOLDIERS CALLED THE ITEMS "FRANCO'S REVENGE." MCNARNEY HINTED THAT THIS LUCRATIVE TRADE WAS ABANDONED BECAUSE OF INTERNATIONAL POLITICS.

HE SAID THERE WAS NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN THE ARMY PLAN TO REDUC U.S. OCCUPATION FORCES TO 170,000 BY NEXT JULY.

HE SAID POTENTIAL GERMAN UNDERGROUND RESISTANCE LEADERS WERE BEING KEPT UNDER CLOSE WATCH AND THAT ONE REASON THEY CAUSED NO ANXIETY WAS THAT THEY HAD NO FINANCIAL BACKING.

ASKED FOR COMMENT ON RECENT STATEMENTS IN WASHINGTON ON THE POSSIBLE LENGTH OF THE AMERICAN OCCUPATION, MCNARNEY SAID:

"PERSONALLY, I BELIEVE WE'VE GOT TO STAY HERE 10 OR 15 YEARS."

WARSAW, JULY 8-(AP)-PREMIER EDWARD OSUBKA-MORAWSKI DECLARED TONIGHT AT A PRESS CONFERENCE THAT TOP-RANKING CATHOLIC CHURCH DIGNITARIES IN POLAND HAD REFUSED TO VOICE CONDEMNATION OF THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE RECENT ANTI-JEWISH POGROM IN THE CITY OF KIELCE WHICH RESULTED IN THE DEATH OF 41 PERSONS.

THE PREMIER ASSERTED THAT THE "GREATEST PART OF THE CLERGY" WAS IDENTIFIED WITH WHAT HE DESCRIBED AS REACTIONARY ELEMENTS. HE SAID THE BISHOP OF KIELCE AND CARDINAL SAPIEHA HAD REFUSED TO CONDEMN KILLINGS AND LAWLESSNESS IN POLAND.

"IF THE CHURCH WOULD OPENLY CONDEMN MURDERS AND INTERNAL STRIFE, SUCH AS AT KIELCE, IT NATURALLY WOULD HELP THE SITUATION," THE PREMIER SAID.

HE ADDED THAT GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS PRESENTED DECLARATIONS TO CHURCH HEADS REQUESTING SUCH ACTION THAT THEY HAD BUT REFUSED. THE PREMIER SAID A DELEGATION OF FRENCH CLERGY, RECENTLY VISITING POLAND, ALSO SUGGESTED THAT CARDINAL SAPIEHA APPEAL TO THE NATION TO PUT AN END TO VIOLENCE. HE SAID THE CARDINAL REFUSED THIS SUGGESTION.

JOZEF CZRANKIEWICZ, SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY, SAID TODAY AT A POLITICAL RALLY THAT THE VISITING FRENCH CLERGYMEN WERE TOLD BY POLISH PRIESTS THAT "POLISH PRIESTS WOULD LOSE MUCH OF THEIR POPULARITY" IF THEY CONDEMNED ANTI-SEMITISM.

Budapest, July 8 (delayed)-(AP)— the ordinary man in Budapest, caught in a fantastic inflation in which one U.S. dollar today will buy 60,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 pengoes, is finding life increasingly difficult and unless something happens he may soon find it impossible.

The highest paid worker— one employed in a reparations factory for instance— earns about $7 monthly. the ordinary day laborer earns roughly $3, and the average intellectual worker about $1 monthly.

This last man and his family suffer. they live on bread, bread hard to digest, and bean orpotato soup. If they have shoes or shirts or jewels they visit the public market where better-fed peasants may relinquish five eggs for one shirt.

but someday somebody is going to have all the shoes and shirts and then death will stalk the streets. most observers think that point will be reached soon.

JUL 10 1946

many hungarians who formerly ate in black market restaurants now are joining the ranks of bread-and-soup eaters because restaurants are not permitted to serve such meals as they formerly did. after being closed for a brief time, restaurants now are limited to menus of fish, eggs, and vegetables. weekend trains are crowded with persons going into the country in the hope of swapping possessions for a good peasant meal.

Everything else is as hard to get as food. shirt stores offer shirts linen for $12, silk for $8. Shoes cost $30. Tailor-made suits are cheap by american standards-- $50-- but if a hungarian could get $50 he would spend it on food.

JUL 10 1946

Few hungarians appear to be complaining.

Nobody knows what will happen to this inflation-wrecked country. Politicans have stated publicly that the inflation will end and normalcy will return sept. 1 when new money is installed. But most politicians will say privately that they actually don't know what will happen then. many think there will be starvation this winter.

Sidewalk cafes-- selling bad coffee and worse cognac-- movies, theaters, the opera house, and night clubs still are open and full of aimless people who think about how bad the bread and soup tastes and sometimes wonder whether they will die when winter comes.

BANGKOK, JULY 9-(AP)-EXACTLY A MONTH HAS PASSED SINCE PALACE ATTENDANTS DISCOVERED YOUNG KING ANANDA MAHIDOL DEAD FROM A BULLET WOUND IN THE HEAD, YET THE MYSTERY SURROUNDING THE ROYAL TRAGEDY APPEARS NO NEARER SOLUTION THAN THE POLITICAL CRISIS IT ENGENDERED.

ONLY ONE FACT DEFINITELY HAS EMERGED FROM THE TOMB OF PESTI-MONTY--THE DEATH WAS NOT AN ACCIDENT, AS THE FIRST COMMUNIQUE SAID. FROM PHYSICIANS TO PAGEBOYS, THE WITNESSES AGREE IT WAS SUICIDE OR MURDER.

TWELVE OF THE 20 MEMBERS OF THE MEDICAL COMMISSION WHICH CONDUCTED A POST MORTEM HELD IT WAS MOST PROBABLY MURDER. BUT THE MAJORITY OF SIAMESE, AMERICANS AND BRITISH OBSERVERS CONSIDER IT WAS SUICIDE, SINCE ONLY TWO ATTENDANTS AND THE QUEEN MOTHER HAD ACCESS TO THE ROYAL BEDCHAMBER IN WHICH THE BODY WAS FOUND, AND THEIR ACTIVITIES ARE BELIEVED FULLY ACCOUNTED FOR.

THE INVESTIGATION ALSO DISCLOSED THAT THE DEATH GUN--A COLT .45--WAS DISCHARGED WHILE NOT MORE THAN TWO INCHES FROM THE KING'S FOREHEAD AND MAY HAVE BEEN PRESSED AGAINST HIS HEAD. THIS IS CONSIDERED TO SUPPORT THE SUICIDE THEORY. THE KING HAD A NEUROTIC FEAR OF CROWDS, WHICH HIS POSITION FORCED HIM TO FACE ALMOST DAILY.

THE KING'S DEATH SHOCKED THE SIAMESE PEOPLE, BUT THE BITTER

PRIDI HAS STRUCK BACK WITH A SERIES OF REPRESSIVE MOVES WHICH ARE REPORTED TO HAVE DISTURBED AMERICAN AND BRITISH DIPLOMATS HERE.

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY HAS BEEN ENDED AND SEVERE PRESS CENSORSHIP INVOKED, RESULTING IN SUSPENSION OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE LIBERTY AND ONE SIAMESE PAPER. FORMER POLICE GENERAL ADUN DETCHARAT, WHO IS POPULARLY CONSIDERED A PRIDI HENCHMAN AND THE SIAMESE STRONGMAN, WAS APPOINTED COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE SIAMESE ARMY.

A PROMINENT DEMOCRATIC PARTY ASSEMBLYMAN HAS BEEN ARRESTED FOR SEDITION AND A POLICE COMMUNIQUE SAID FURTHER ARRESTS WERE PLANNED.

INFORMED SOURCES SAY ALLIED DIPLOMATS ARE FOLLOWING THESE DEVELOPMENTS CLOSELY, BUT MAINTAINING A HANDSOFF POLICY. THEY ARE REPORTED TO BELIEVE THE MEASURES ARE TEMPORARY AND THAT PRIDI, WHO FORMERLY HEADED THE ALLIED-SPONSORED UNDERGROUND, ACTUALLY REMAINS LIBERAL.

THE DANGER OF REVOLUTION BY ANTI-PRIDI ELEMENTS IS CONSIDERED SMALL. THE ANTI-PRIDI GROUP, WHICH IS PREDOMINATLY ROYALIST, IS NOT TIGHTLY ORGANIZED, AND THE ARMY IS UNDER CONTROL OF ADUN, WHO IS DEFINITELY PRIDI'S MAN.

TOKYO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 10-(AP)-THE PRESIDENT OF THE INTERNATIONAL WAR CRIMES COURT TOLD A PROTESTING AMERICAN DEFENSE ATTORNEY HEATEDLY THAT THE TRIBUNAL REFUSES TO BE "SLAVISHLY" BOUND BY DECISIONS HANDED DOWN AT NUERNBERG.

"YOU ARE WRONG IF YOU THINK WE ARE SLAVISHLY GOING TO FOLLOW" PRECEDENTS SET IN NAZI WAR-CRIMINAL TRIALS, CHIEF JUSTICE SIR WILLIAM WEBB OF AUSTRALIA ASSERTED. "THERE ARE FOUR NATIONS (PROSECUTING) AT NUERNBERG. THOSE FOUR AND SEVEN OTHERS ARE HERE."

HE SETTLED BACK IN HIS CHAIR, THEN LEANED FORWARD TO ADD AN AFTERTHOUGHT: "WE PAY THE GREATEST RESPECT TO NUERNBERG DECIS[illegible]S."

HIS COMMENT WAS DIRECTED TO WILLIAM LOGAN OF NEW YORK CITY, COUNSEL FOR MARQUIS KOICHI KIDO, PRE-WAR AND WARTIME ADVISOR TO EMPEROR HIROHITO. LOGAN HAD REQUESTED THAT WHEN THE PROSECUTION READS EXCERPTS FROM A CONFESSION BY A DEFENDANT, THE DEFENSE BE ALLOWED AT THAT TIME TO READ ANY PART THAT EXPLAINS FURTHER THE EXCERPTS. HE CITED A NUERNBERG PRECEDENT.

"IT IS THE DUTY OF THE PROSECUTION TO READ THE WHOLE OF AN ANSWER OR IT MAY OTHERWISE MISLEAD THE COURT," WEBB REPLIED. "IF YOU CHARGE THAT THE PROSECUTION IS SUPPRESSING PARTS, WE WILL INVESTIGATE, AND IF YOUR CHARGE IS FALSE, WE WILL DEAL WITH YOU."

SAID LOGAN, "I AM MAKING NO CHARGE OF SUPPRESSION AND NONE OF FRAUD. I AM ONLY ASKING THAT IF THEY READ ONE PART OF A CONFESSION WE BE ALLOWED IMMEDIATELY TO READ ANY OTHER PART THAT MAY EXPLAIN IT. THAT IS FUNDAMENTAL IN AMERICAN PRACTICE.

MANILA, TUESDAY, JULY 9-(AP)-A LEADING CRIMINAL LAWYER AND POLITICO TODAY FILED A MOTION IN PEOPLE'S COURT WHICH IF GRANTED MIGHT RESULT IN DISMISSAL OF ALL COLLABORATION CASES AGAINST ALLEGED FILIPINO TRAITORS.

HE ARGUED THE UNITED STATES COULD NOT INTERVENE WITHOUT ENCROACHING UPON THE NEW REPUBLIC SOVEREIGNTY.

THE LAWYER, VICENTE FRANCISCO, FILED HIS DISMISSAL MOTION IN THE CASE OF HILARIO MONCADO, LABOR LEADER AND RECENT PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE. IT CONTENDED THAT THE NEW REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES HAS NO JURISDICTION OVER CASES INVOLVING TREASON AGAINST THE RECENT COMMONWEALTH.

MANILA LEGAL EXPERTS AGREED, FOR THE MOST PART, THAT FRANCISCO'S MOTION WAS BASED UPON ESTABLISHED PRECEDENT. FRANCISCO CITED A U.S. SUPREME COURT DECISION, HANDED DOWN AFTER THE PHILIPPINES WERE TRANSFERREE FROM SPANISH TO AMERICAN RULE, WHICH HELD THAT "ALL PROVISIONS OF THE SPANISH PENAL CODE REGARDING TREASON...ARE ABROGATED."

WHEN THE UNITED STATES TRANSFERRED SOVEREIGNTY TO THE NEW REPUBLIC JULY 4, HE ADDED, TREASON LAWS OF THE OLD COMMONWEALTH LIKEWISE WERE ABROGATED.

MANILA,JULY 9-(AP)-DISMISSAL OF CHARGES AGAINST ALL ALLEGED FILIPINO COLLABORATIONISTS WAS ASKED IN PEOPLES' COURT TODAY--AT A TIME WHEN THE UNITED STATES IS IN A POOR POSITION TO INTERVENE.

VICENTE FRANCISCO, A CRIMINAL LAWYER, FILED A DISMISSAL MOTION IN THE CASE OF HILARIO MONCADO, LABOR LEADER AND RECENT PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE. HE CONTENDED THAT THE NEW REPUBLIC ESTABLISHED JULY 4 HAS NO JURISDICTION OVER CASES INVOLVING TREASON CHARGES AGAINST THE RECENT COMMONWEALTH.

TREASON LAWS OF THE COMMONWEALTH WERE AEROGATED, FRANCISCO ASSERTED, WHEN THE U.S. TRANSFERRED SOVEREIGNTY TO THE REPUBLIC.

ANY DIPLOMATIC PRESSURE THE U.S. MIGHT EXERT TO FORCE THE TRIAL OF COLLABORATORS, HE ARGUED, WOULD BE WIDELY INTERPRETED IN THE PHILIPPINES AND FAR EAST AS AN INVASION OF THE SOVEREIGN RIGHTS OF THE NEW REPUBLIC.

Central German Rule Is Urged By Molotov

Russian Calls For Immediate Creation Of Administrative Agencies—Opposes Any Federalization Of Reich.

JUL 11 1946

By Joseph Dynan

PARIS, July 10—(AP)—Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov tonight urged immediate creation of central administrative agencies for Germany looking toward a central German government with which the Allies could sign a peace treaty, and opposed any dismemberment or federalization of the Reich, an American informant said.

Clarifies Soviet Stand

He declared Russia did not believe either in the destruction of Germany as a state or in its transformation into an agricultural rather than industrial country.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, however, declared France would discuss centralization only after Germany's western boundaries have been fixed.

Bidault also hailed as a bulwark to European security the American proposed 25-year treaty to insure German disarmament which the Russian minister criticized sharply yesterday.

Molotov, in a three-hour debate within the four-power council on the German problem, opposed France's contention that the Ruhr, Rhineland and Saar be separated from Germany, unless such a separation was endorsed in a plebiscite of the German people.

Molotov said proposals for the dismemberment of Germany were based upon an idea of destruction of the German state which the Soviet Union could not accept.

He said the Allies had no right to impose these ideas upon the German people.

Revenge Not Good Guide

He explained that the Soviet Union did not believe that revenge was a good guide to policies on Germany and that Russia did not favor its destruction as a state or making it only an agricultural country.

It would be just as unfair, Molotov argued, to identify the whole German people with Hitler as it was to say that the German people had no responsibility at all for Hitler. He, himself, Molotov said, was opposed to depriving Germany of such an important industrial center as the Ruhr.

Molotov said German industry had played an important part in world economy and the main task of the Allies was to transform her into a democratic, peace-loving state, deprived only of her war potential. He urged the ministers to raise the maximum for German steel production as set by the Allies last month.

The Russian urged a four-power inter-Allied control over the industrial Ruhr to prevent the revival of its war industries and said the Soviet Union wanted to be certain that Germany remained completely disarmed, both in a military and an economic sense.

But in criticizing proposals for dismemberment, he said:

"Naturally, if as a result of a plebiscite throughout Germany the German people express their wish to transform Germany into a federal state or if as a result of a plebiscite in various former German states the desire is manifested to break away from Germany, it goes without saying that there cannot be any objection on our part."

Won't Discuss Centralization

Bidault refused to discuss centralization until the Reich's western boundaries were settled, informants said.

Bidault said the disarmament proposal, advanced by U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, would be studied sympathetically by French officials, and he expressed the view that it could promote the solidarity of the Allies with regard to the ever-possible danger of a German military rebirth."

On the matter of a central administration for a unified German economy, however, Bidault reiterated French insistence that German boundaries should be settled before such matters were discussed. He recalled the Potsdam agreement providing that the Allies would seek decentralization and a development of local autonomy in Germany, and he urged that the Reich's future political life begin on the plane of states.

Bidault said there could be no question for the moment of a central German government, and "as for the central administrative agencies so widely discussed, the French government as it has always said, is ready to discuss these as soon as the territory of Germany has been fixed."

He said a central government might be set up months later, but only after the various German states had been firmly established—and then only as a confederation of states rather than a federal state.

Bidault said all the Allies should strive for the total disarmament of Germany, including industrial disarmament as well as military; for the complete fulfillment of the reparations program, and for the promotion of Democratic institutions and a Democratic spirit among Germans.

Industrial Power Cited

And one should bear in mind the fact that, thanks to the industrial might she has achieved, Germany is an important link of the whole system of the world economy. Neither can one forget the fact that more than once this industrial might has formed the base of the armament of aggressive Germany.

Such are the premises from which conclusions are to be drawn.

I proceed from the fact that in the light of the interests of world economy and tranquillity in Europe, it would be incorrect to adopt a course of Germany's annihilation as a state or that of its agrarianization, including the annihilation of its own main industrial centers.

Such a course would result in undermining the economy of Europe, in the dislocation of world economy and in a chronic political crisis in Germany that would spell a threat to peace and tranquillity.

or that of her agrarianization and annihilation of her principal industrial centers will result in making Germany a center where dangerous sentiments of revenge will be nourished and will play into the hands of German reactionaries and will deprive Europe of tranquillity and a stable peace.

One should look not backward but ahead and should be concerned about what is to be done in order that Germany may become a democratic and peace-loving state that will have a developed agriculture, industry and foreign trade but that will be deprived of an opportunity to resuscitate as an aggressive force. Victory over Germany delivers into our hands powerful means to achieve this purpose. It is our duty to utilize these means to the full.

Ruhr's Importance Stressed

It has of late become fashionable to talk about dismemberment of Germany into several "autonomous" states, about federalization of Germany and about separation of the Ruhr from Germany. All such proposals originate in the same policy of destruction and agrarianization of Germany. For it is easy to understand that without the Ruhr Germany cannot exist as an independent and viable state. But I have already said that if the interests of peace and tranquillity are dear to us the destruction of Germany should not be our objective.

Naturally, if as a result of a plebiscite throughout Germany the German people express their wish to transform Germany into a federal state, or if as a result of a plebiscite in various former German states a desire will be manifested to break away from Germany, it goes without saying that there cannot be any objection on our part.

There have been not a few instances in which Allied authorities in the western zones of occupation of Germany have encouraged the idea of a federal structure for Germany. But the attitude of Allied authorities is one thing, whereas a real desire of the German people, or at least a desire of the population of some part of German territory, is another thing.

We, the Soviet people, hold that it is incorrect to impose upon the German people a solution of this question. Such an imposition would not in any case produce any good if only for the reason that it would be precarious.

If on the one hand we should not stand in the way of the rightful aspirations of the German people after the revival of their state on democratic lines, then on the other hand it is our duty to prevent the rise of Germany as an aggressor force. It would be a crime to forget about this sacred duty of ours to the peoples of the world.

If the world is to be safeguarded against an eventual aggression on the part of Germany, the latter should be completely disarmed both militarily and economically and the Ruhr should be placed under an inter-Allied control of four countries with the object of preventing a revival of war industries in Germany.

The program for the complete military and economic disarmament of Germany is not something new. The decisions of the Berlin Conference deal with this in detail. And it is natural that the Ruhr, as the main phase of Germany's war industries, should be kept under the vigilant control of the principal Allied powers. The purpose of complete military and economic disarmament of Germany must also be furthered by a plan for reparations.

The fact that until now no plan for reparations has been drawn up, in spite of the repeated demands of the [Soviet] Government that the corresponding decision of the Berlin Conference be carried out, and the fact that the Ruhr has not been placed under an inter-Allied control, on which the Soviet Government insisted a year ago, is a dangerous thing as far as the maintenance of the future peace and security of the nations is concerned.

Delay Is Termed a Risk

We are of the view that it is impossible to put off the accomplishment of these tasks without running the risk of frustrating the decision to carry out the complete military and economic disarmament of Germany.

Such is the view of the Soviet Government regarding the war industry and war potential of Germany. These considerations cannot hamper the development of peaceful industries in Germany.

In order that the development of German peaceful industries may be of benefit to other peoples who need German coal, metal and manufactured products, Germany should be granted the right of exports and imports, and if this right of foreign trade is to be effectuated we should not put up obstacles to the increase in output of steel, coal and manufactured products of a peaceful nature in Germany—naturally, within certain bounds and provided that an inter-Allied control shall inevitably be established over German industries and over the Ruhr industries in particular.

As we know, the Control Council in Germany recently fixed the level that would be reached by German industries in the near future. Germany has not yet by far reached this level. Nevertheless, it should already now be admitted that the peaceful industries of Germany must receive an opportunity to develop on a wider scale, provided only that this industrial development should really be used to satisfy the peaceful needs of the German people and the requirements of trade with other countries.

Allied Control Is Urged

All this calls for the establishment of proper inter-Allied control over German industries and over the Ruhr industries in particular. Responsibility for the latter cannot rest only upon one of the Allied countries. Adoption of a corresponding program for the development of German peaceful industries that will provide for the development of the foreign trade of Germany as well as for the establishment of inter-Allied control over the whole of German industry satisfies the need for implementation of the decisions of the Berlin Conference that provide for the treatment of Germany as an economic whole.

It remains for me to dwell on the question of the peace treaty with Germany.

Of course we stand in principle for the conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany, but before concluding this treaty there should be set up a single German Government sufficiently democratic in order to be able to extirpate all remnants of fascism in Germany and sufficiently responsible in order to be able to fulfill all its obligations toward the Allies, including and more particularly those in respect to reparations deliveries to the Allies. It goes without saying that we raise no objection to the setting up of a German central administration as a transitional step toward the establishment of a future German government.

From what I have said, it follows that before talking about a peace treaty with Germany, it is necessary to solve the question of setting up an all-German government. However, to this day no German central administration of any kind whatsoever has been created, though the Soviet Government raised this question at the Berlin Conference a year ago. But while at that time this question was put off, it is becoming now particularly urgent as the first step toward the establishment of a future German government.

But even when a German government has been set up it will take a number of years to check up on what this new German government represents and whether it is trustworthy.

A future German government must be such a democratic government as will be able to extirpate the remnants of fascism in Germany and will at the same time be able to fulfill Germany's obligations toward the Allies, and

Texts of Statements by Molotov and Byrnes

JUL 11 1946

By Mr. Molotov

PARIS, July 10 (AP)—The text of Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov's statement on Germany to the Council of Foreign Ministers:

The time has come when we should discuss the fate of Germany and a peace treaty with that country.

The Soviet Government has always held that the spirit of revenge is a poor counselor in such affairs. It will be just as incorrect to identify Hitler Germany with the German people, though the German people cannot divest themselves of the responsibility for Germany's aggression and for its gravest consequences.

The Soviet people went through unparalleled sufferings of occupation as a result of the invasion of the Soviet Union by the German armies. Our losses are great and inestimable. Other peoples of Europe, and not of Europe alone, will long feel the heavy losses and hardship caused by the war that was imposed by Germany.

It is, therefore, natural that the problem of Germany's fate agitates at present not only the minds of the German people but naturally also those of other peoples who are trying to safeguard themselves for the future and to prevent a new aggression by Germany.

I think that even if we adopted such a course, the course of history would subsequently impel us to renounce this course as an abortive and groundless one.

I think, therefore, that our purpose is not to destroy Germany but to transform Germany into a democratic and peace-loving state that, next to its agriculture, will have its own industry and foreign trade but that will be deprived of economic and military potentialities to rise again as an aggressive force.

Stalin's Statement Recalled

While still engaged in the war the Allies declared that they had no intention of destroying the German people. Even at the time when the overweening Hitler openly proclaimed that he wanted to destroy Russia, J. V. Stalin, the head of the Soviet Government, holding these boastful stupidities up to ridicule, said:

"It is no more possible to destroy Germany than to destroy Russia. But the Hitler State can and must be destroyed."

Germany has long held an important position in the world economy. While continuing as a single state Germany will remain an important factor of world trade, which also corresponds to the interests of other peoples.

On the other hand, the policy of Germany's annihilation as a state amongst other things, and that all it will be bound to carry out reparation deliveries to the Allies. Only when we become satisfied that the new German government is able to cope with these tasks and is really honestly fulfilling them in practice, only then will it be possible to speak seriously of concluding a peace treaty with Germany.

Unless this condition is fulfilled Germany cannot claim a peace treaty and the Allied powers will not be able to say that they have fulfilled their duties toward the nations who are demanding that a durable peace and security be assured.

Such is the view of the Soviet Union on the fundamental problems of Germany and on the question of a peace treaty with Germany.

JUL 11 1946

By Mr. Byrnes

PARIS, July 10 (U.P.)—Following is the text of a document on Germany submitted to the Council by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes:

While there is no German government with which a peace treaty can be made, it is of the utmost importance that the Allies should without delay agree among themselves upon the peace settlement which they wish to have German authorities accept.

Agreement among the Allies upon such a settlement is necessary in order to enable them to know the goals toward which the Allied occupation and administration of Germany would be directed.

It is therefore proposed that each member of the Council should appoint a special deputy who will have adequate time to give to the work to represent his Government in the preparation of a peace settlement for Germany.

The special deputies should be instructed to initiate at once an intensive study of the problems involved in a German settlement and to prepare a draft of a proposed settlement for Germany.

The special deputies should be instructed to make interim reports of the progress of their work to the Council. They would be also instructed to proceed with their work with a view to enabling the Council to submit a draft peace settlement for Germany to an Allied conference to be convened on a date to be fixed by the Council of Foreign Ministers.

It is not necessary that there be at that time a German government to accept the settlement. It is essential that the Allies be agreed upon a peace settlement in order that the Allies should know the kind of settlement toward which the Allied occupation and administration should be directed until a German government can be created to accept that settlement.

U. S. Willing to Extend Treaty

JUL 11 1946

Byrnes Agrees to 40-year Plan for Reich to Meet Russian Desires.

L. HEINZERLING

Paris, July 10 (A. P.).—The United States is willing to extend its proposed disarmament treaty for Germany from twenty-five to forty years in meeting Russian assertions that the original plan is inadequate, it was officially disclosed today.

The disclosure came as Secretary of States Byrnes and Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov aired their dispute over the American proosal by publishing the texts of their statements to the Foreign Ministers Council yesterday.

The Russian delegation released the text of Molotov's lengthy statement following last night's session. The American delegation followed suit just before the Foreign Ministers were to assemble today to continue discussion of German problems.

During the clash between Byrnes and Molotov over the proposed disarmament plan, the Soviet Minister described the suggested pact as "wholly inadequate" and asserted it did not insure against the rebirth of militarism in Germany.

Admits Limitations.

Byrnes retorted that he was willing to have the treaty run for forty years, and that it "did not seek to cover everything or to settle reparations questions and political questions and other questions that had been under discussion."

Byrnes also cited his proposal to send a four-Power commission into all four zones of occupied Germany to investigate the extent of German disarmament and demilitarization.

"Then," Byrnes said, "the French representative voted for it and the United Kingdom representative voted for it, and it has not gone into effect yet because the Soviet representative will not vote to allow the fo representatives to go into ever zone."

Proposes German Study.

Meanwhile, the American delegation also released the text of a second United States proposal, first presented to the council June 15. This proposal calls for the appointment of special Deputy Foreign Ministers to outline Allied policy toward Germany for the time when a peace treaty can be written. It further provided that the special deputies "initiate at once an intensive study of the problems involved in the German settlement and to prepare a draft of a proposed settlement for Germany." This proposal was up for discussion today as the Ministers bent their efforts toward final adjournment by this week end.

The Foreign Ministers ordered their deputies to have ready by Saturday, the final drafts of peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Finland. Diplomatic informants said this meant the council might approve the treaties Saturday afternoon and adjourn either at that time or on Sunday.

World War I Hero Gets Final Burial

Lone 1918 Grave in Franc Finally Discovered

PARIS, July 10 (AP).—The body of a World War I soldier, killed in action on Oct. 9, 1918, and listed as "missing," has been found, identified and reburied in an American military cemetery at Romagne, in the Meuse Department.

Officials of the American Battle Monuments Commission identified the soldier as Private First Class Everett Tefft, born in Rhode Island, of the 301st Engineer Battalion, 76th Division, who was killed near the village of Montsec.

Tefft was buried by an Army chaplain of the 76th Division in the civilian cemetery of the then evacuated village. Although the chaplain left a drawing showing the exact location of the grave, attempts to recover the body for reburial in 1920, 1921 and 1928 were without result.

Last month the keeper of Montsec cemetery, while digging a grave, discovered the coffin, which had been buried directly beneath a pathway. A few days later Captain R. A. Slavador, of the training branch, American Graves Registration Command, certified the identity of Tefft, who now lies next to his comrades of the 76th Division who fell in the Meuse-Argonne offensive of 1918.

STALIN IS CALLED MAJOR STRATEGIST

JUL 11 1946

LONDON, July 10 (AP)—Generalissimo Stalin's personal telegrapher said today that the generalissimo's personal directives, in strategy and troop dispositions, had turned the tide for the Red Army in virtually every major crisis of the war.

Specificially mentioning his chief's intervention in the battles for Moscow, Leningrad and Stalingrad, Capt. N. Ponomaryov, in a signed article released today by the press department of the Russian Embassy, said:

"Stalin's knowledge of the details of warfare impressed me profoundly. * * * He would dictate to me directly, after studying situation reports and the map, and his instructions would refer to the regrouping of troops and bringing new reserves into battle and would warn of the enemy's intentions. He knew the complicated names of inhabited places, towns, settlements, rivers and lakes by heart, naming them without looking at the map or his papers.

"On the spot," the telegrapher declares, "he gave detailed indications of what units should be moved to the threatened areas, naming, as always, units and commanders from memory."

U.S. SEIZURES OUT IN AUSTRIA

Washington Opposes Russians Taking German Property

L. HEINZERLING

Vienna, July 10 (AP)—The United States offered today to renounce all claims to German assets in Austria, and declared it would not recognize Russian seizure of German properties in that country classified by the Allies as "forced transfers" to the Germans.

The United States stepped into the Austrian-Russian controversy over reparations even as Chancellor Leopold Figl protested the Soviet plan to seize a large share of Austrian industry in the Soviet zone as "German" reparations.

Truman Message Relayed

Gen. Mark W. Clark, in a note to Figl, declared the United States would not recognize the transfer to Russia of properties falling into the category of forced transfers, as enunciated at the London Conference in January, 1943. At that conference the Allies, including Russia, reserved the right to declare invalid any property transfers in German-occupied areas, even though they were purportedly legal.

Clark's letter to Figl relayed a message from President Truman saying the United States "now agrees to turn over to the Austrian Government as trustee all German assets now physically located in the United States zone" pending negotiations with other Allied powers on the proposal to renounce the American share in those assets.

The letter from Clark, American commander in Austria, was certain to have a deep political effect in Austria. It was disclosed three hours after Figl made an impassioned address to the Austrian Parliament, declaring that removal of property as announced by the Russians would eliminate Austria's chances for economic recovery.

British Support U.S. Stand

[In London, the British Foreign Office said Britain was supporting the United States' stand against the Russian seizure. A spokesman said Britain feared that Austria's economy and even the fulfillment of the promise that Austria would become an independent nation again were threatened by the Soviet action.]

"I take pleasure in informing you," Clark's letter to Figl said, "that the President of the United States, as one of the signers of the Potsdam agreement, has directed me to inform the Austrian Government that the United States Government is now prepared to enter into negotiations with other Allied governments and with the Austrian Government looking toward renunciation of the United States share in German assets in Austria as part of the general settlement of German assets in Austria."

U.S. Note Backs Figl Ideas

The letter said the United States "assures the Austrian Government that such assets may immediately be used for purposes of reconstruction in Austria without fear of removal of the plants and equipment from the United States zone in Austria, but with the question of ownership to be resolved later."

The United States note supported almost completely the ideas presented by Figl to the extraordinary session of the Parliament, when he announced that his Government was not prepared to accept the Soviet interpretation of German assets in the Russian zone. He said that virtually the only property which could be claimed under the Potsdam agreement as German assets was that which the Germans had owned before 1938, the year of Anschluss.

Austrians Show Satisfaction

There was no immediate reaction here to the United States note from Russian sources. Austrian Government sources, however, expressed deep satisfaction.

The Red Army's sudden order transferring a large share of the Austrian industrial potential to the Soviet Union fell like a bombshell upon the Austrians.

The London declaration had stated that the Allied governments were determined to do their utmost to "defeat the methods of dispossession practiced by the governments with which they are at war against the countries and peoples who have been so wantonly assaulted and despoiled."

Socialists Support Figl

The signers, including the Soviet Union, reserved the right "to declare invalid any transfer of, or dealings with, property rights and interests of any description whatsoever which are, or have been situated in territories which have come under occupation or control of governments with which they are at war."

In the Parliament, Figl's People's party stand in the issue won immediate support from the strong Socialist party.

Figl acknowledged that the Germans made heavy industrial installations during their seven years of occupation, but added that "all these investments were carried out largely with Austrian workers, Austrian materials and even with Austrian capital and taxes."

German purchases of property in Austria after Anschluss, he said, were made with German "paper currency," which had no official standing in the world and was at an unfavorable rate in relation to the Austrian schilling. He said there were virtually no voluntary sales of property to the Germans.

AUSTRIAN GRAB BY REDS MEETS U. S. OPPOSITION

Clark Announces We Will Not Recognize Seizure of German Assets.

JUL 11 1946

REVEALS TRUMAN STATEMENT

General Says America Is Ready to Give Nazi Properties to Vienna Government.

L. HEINZERLING

Vienna, July 10 (A. P.).—The United States Government announced today that it would not recognize the Russian confiscation in the Soviet zone of Austria of German properties which fell into the category of forced transfers as defined at the London Conference of January, 1943.

At that conference, the Allies agreed that they would not recognize the transfer of properties to German ownership in German-occupied areas if such transfers were made forcible, even if there was apparent willingness on the part of former owners.

Gen. Mark W. Clark, United States Commander in Austria, announced at the same time that the United States was prepared to turn over to Austrian trusteeship all German assets in the American zone pending negotiations of the Allied Powers on the United States proposal to renounce the American share in German assets in Austria.

Communication From Truman.

Clark presented the Austrian Government a communication from President Truman, only three hours after Chancellor Leopold Gigl had appeared before an extraordinary session of the Austrian Parliament to announce that his Government was not prepared to accept the Russian interpretation of German assets in the Russian zone.

The United States pronouncement was certain to have the heaviest reverberations in Austria, where the Red Army's sudden order transferring a large share of Austria's industrial potential to the Soviet Union had caused consternation.

The pronouncement concluded with these words:

"The United States Government also wishes to make clear that it will recognize no physical transfer of property as conforming to the terms of the Potsdam Agreement which does not also conform to the terms of the United Nations' declaration on forced transfer of January, 1943, and which does not leave to Austria the sovereign control of an independent country over the resources within its borders, which was envisioned in the Moscow declaration of 1943."

Austrians Pleased.

There was no immediate reaction to the United States note from the Russians, but Austrian Government spokesmen expressed great satisfaction.

Properties claimed by the Russians represent a large proportion of Austrian industrial capacity and their loss at this time would be a severe blow to the Austrian economy.

Clark's action followed closely the abrupt order of Col.-Gen. L. V. Kurrasov, Soviet commander, announcing the transfer of all German assets in the Russian zone to Soviet ownership.

"I take pleasure in informing you," said Clark's letter to Figl, "that the President of the United States, as one of the signers of the Potsdam Agreement, has directed me to inform the Austrian Government that the United States Government is now prepared to enter into negotiations with other Allied governments and with the Austrian Government looking toward renunciation of the United States share in German assets in Austria as part of the general settlement of German assets in Austria."

Ready To Turn Over Assets.

The United States Government "now agrees to turn over to the Austrian Government as trustee all German assets now physically located in the United States zone" pending the negotiations with other Powers, Clark said in his letter.

"It assures the Austrian Government that such assets may immediately be used for purposes of reconstruction in Austria without fear of removal of the plants and equipment from the United States zone in Austria, but with the question of ownership to be resolved later."

Figl placed his Government squarely against the Russian plan for controlling a large proportion of Austrian industry, declaring the only German property in Austria to which the Russians or other occupying powers were entitled was property legally acquired before the German annexation of 1938.

The strong Socialist party immediately joined with Figl's Peoples' party in support of the Government stand. The Communist group—four members of Parliament—introduced a resolution embodying its own viewpoint, but it was rejected with only the four Communist votes in its support.

Meanwhile Russian authorities were reported to have halted their announced deportation of native Germans and other non-Austrians from the Soviet occupation zone of Vienna.

No reason was given by the Russians for the abrupt cessation.

Russ Halt Austria Deportation Moves

Vienna, July 10 (AP)—Russian authorities were reported today to have halted their announced deportation of native Germans and other non-Austrians from the Soviet occupation zone of Vienna.

No reason was given by the Russians for the abrupt cessation, which was said to have occurred yesterday afternoon when deportees waiting in a railroad station were told to return to their homes.

There was some speculation that the halt was merely temporary and was called because the camp at Melk, where the refugees are housed pending shipment to Germany, was filled.

The Russians announced the deportation—estimated to affect 30,000 to 54,000 persons—Sunday night, and the movement had been going forward slowly since then.

McNarney Queries Reds On 4 Missing Americans

E. SHAFFER

Soldiers and Woman Reported Held in Soviet Zone

BERLIN, July 10 (AP).—General Joseph T. McNarney, American commander in Europe, was reported tonight to have intervened with Russian authorities for the release of four Americans apparently held incommunicado for more than a week after crossing into the Soviet zone without authorization.

McNarney declined to comment, but it was learned that at today's meeting of the Allied Control Council he and Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, his Russian counterpart, had a long and spirited conversation, and one informant said it was safe to assume their talk centered on the missing Americans.

NIGHT

One intelligence officer said it is believed all four are held at Oranienburg, north of Berlin and the site of the Soviet provincial headquarters. But American officers at the Berlin district headquarters said they had no news of their whereabouts.

The four missing Americans are Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison, of San Antonio, Tex., and his wife, Helen, missing since July 1; Captain Harold Cobin, of Newark, N. J., and Lieutenant George Wyatt, of Oklahoma City, missing since July 4.

4 Missing Americans 'Located' In Russ Zone

Berlin, July 10 (AP)—An American intelligence officer said today the four Americans who disappeared in the Russian occupation zone last week were believed held at Oranienburg, a Soviet provincial headquarters north of Berlin.

Indications were that Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, United States commander in Europe, might intervene since security authorities have been unable to secure definite information from the Russians. McNarney was here for an Allied Control Council meeting.

The four, believed accused of making unauthorized entries into the Russian zone, were Warrant Officer and Mrs. Samuel L. Harrison, of San Antonio, Texas; Capt. Harold Cobin, of New York and Newark, N.J., and Lieut. George Wyatt, of Oklahoma City.

OPPOSES TOO MUCH SYMPATHY IN REICH

--Berlin, July 10 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Deputy American Military Governor, today cautioned personnel in the military government that "there is a tendency to become overly sympathetic" toward the Germans.

In a public letter reviewing the military government's work in its first year, he said:

"As we are further removed from the war and become more closely familiar with the German people there is a tendency to become overly sympathetic.

"We cannot be too considerate in the human aspects of our job nor in the measures which prove the true democracy of America.

"However, we can be human, just and considerate and still remember that our objectives in Germany cannot be accomplished unless we carry out faithfully and de-industrializat measures which Allied stat n have found necessary to world."

GEM SUSPECTS PARTED

Frankfurt, July 10 (A. P.).—Military police said today they had parted Col. J. W. Durant and his Wac captain bride and confined them on separate floors in the Carlton Hotel to await court-martial in the fabulous Hesse crown jewel theft. Army officers said they believed the couple—married in May only a short time before their arrest in Chicago—had been parted "because they probably will be tried individually."

The couple, major suspects in the theft of the $1,500,000 collection of gems, were separated last night. They had lived together in a guarded two-room suite since they were brought back to Frankfurt June 19.

CONFER AT NUERNBERG

Nuernberg, July 10 (A. P.).—The International Tribunal interrupted the flow of summing-up addresses by defense counsel at the war crimes trial for a closed session this afternoon to deal with legal problems.

From 1939 to 1944 he was Ambassador to the exiled governments of Poland, Belgium, Holland, Greece, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia in London.

Trials of 3 Officers Put Off; Kilian Quoted as Saying He Made Rules at Prison

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 10 (AP).—The last of ten enlisted men court-martialed on charges of cruelties to G. I. prisoners at the Lichfield, England, detention depot was convicted today, and postponements were granted to three of the four officers remaining to be tried.

NIGHT

Private First Class Arthur B. Duncan, twenty-four, of Elizabethtown, N. C., a Normandy invasion veteran, was convicted of striking a guardhouse prisoner with a club and was fined $50. Eight other enlisted men have been convicted, and one escaped with a reprimand.

Postponements were announced in the trials of Captain Joseph A. Robertson, of Toledo; Major Richard LoBuono, East Pittsburgh, Pa., and Major Herbert W. Bluhm, Chicago. The latter two postponements were indefinite, and Captain Robertson's case was put off until July 22. Two lieutenants have been convicted of permitting the beating, and have been fined $250 and $350.

Captain Robertson was called to the stand today in the continuing trial of Colonel James A. Kilian, Lichfield depot commander who is accused of dictating the "be tough" policy of the guardhouse. He quoted Kilian as saying that the rules in force at the guardhouse were Kilian's own.

"Did any one at any time authorize you to hit prisoners or authorize other individuals to hit them?" Captain Robertson was asked.

"No," he replied, adding, "for my own protection I'd like to say that never have I ordered any officer or guard to mistreat a prisoner."

The prosecutor, Major Joseph S. Robinson, of New York, asserted that "these guards and minor officials were simply pawns carrying out orders which were contrary to Army regulations, and it was Kilian who issued the orders."

Lichfield Guard Fined $50

Bad Nauheim, Germany, July 10 (AP)—Pfc. Arthur B. Duncan, 24, of Elizabethtown, N.C., was convicted by a court-martial today of striking a Lichfield guardhouse prisoner with a club and was fined $50.

The little black-haired veteran of the Normandy invasion denied the charge and won acquittal on accusations of striking several other prisoners.

DAY

Duncan was the first to be tried among ten enlisted guards accused of beating soldier-prisoners in the United States Army's Lichfield (England) guardhouse during the last year of the war.

Nine were convicted and one was acquitted.

Two officers also have been convicted of permitting beatings and four other officers face similar charges.

GERMAN WINS ON APPEAL

Gen. Student Cleared of Crimes in Battle of Crete

JUL 11 1946

LUENEBURG, Germany, July 10 (AP)—A five-year sentence imposed on Col. Gen. Kurt Student, former commander in chief of German forces on Crete, who was accused of war crimes, was set aside today by the British Thirtieth Corps Headquarters.

Student was charged with bombing Red Cross installations, dressing German soldiers in the Allies' uniforms and cruelties to civilians, but several Allied officers testified that the charges were false and that he had fought fairly.

Mihailovic Makes Plea For His Life

C. PALMER

Belgrade, July 10 (AP)—Gen. Draja Mihailovic, pleading in an almost expressionless tone of voice for his life, denied tonight that he was guilty of committing war crimes and asked the court to judge him as a man who was "swept by a gale of the world in a whirlpool of events and difficulties."

The bearded former Yugoslav Minister of War made a four-hour speech before a crowded courtroom. It was his final statement of the trial. Mihailovic and 23 codefendants are accused of treachery and collaboration with the Germans.

"I Am A Soldier"

Mihailovic—who had been hailed as a war hero by the Allied world when he organized mountain resistance against the Germans in 1941—gave a detailed account of his Chetnik military operations. He asserted that he had "an absolute hatred for the Germans."

Declaring "I have turned against me as (against) no other men," Mihailovic concluded his plea by saying: "I am a soldier. I organized resistance against the Germans. I am sorry that one could think that I was not being loyal to my country."

Balkan Union Favored

Frequently referring to his notes the 53-year-old Chetnik leader sought to refute the testimony of prosecution witnesses that his Chetnik units had fought side by side with the Germans against the Yugoslav Partisans of Premier Marshal Tito.

Declaring that he "never made an agreement with any enemy," Mihailovic said he always maintained a hostile attitude toward the Germans and had fought constantly for the Balkan unity of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Albania, Romania, Greece and Hungary.

"I was in favor of a Balkan union because I felt that through it a greater state could be forged."

He Admits Mistakes

Pleading that he was swept into the confusion of political intrigue, Mihailovic said: "I do not say that I made no mistakes but everyone was making mistakes."

Explaining how he chose to remain in the Yugoslav hills in 1941 and fight, the defendant said: "I didn't want to imitate the Russian refugees. I wanted to remain in my country."

He referred to his contact with the former Yugoslav government in exile in London and said: "The government had great influence, and I was its representative. I ask the court to be fair in its evaluation of my work."

POLAND VOTES THREE ISSUES

June 30 Referendum Questions Carry By 2 To 1

Warsaw, July 10 (AP) — Semi-official returns from Poland's June 30 referendum showed today that the three questions submitted to the voters had been carried by affirmative majorities of more than 2 to 1.

Concerned principally with the policies of the Moscow-born Polish provisional Government, the referendum asked the voters:

Do you want a one-house Parliment?

Do you approve of the provisional Government's nationalization of basic industries and agrarian policies under which large estates are split up and parceled out to peasants?

Do you approve of the establishment of Poland's western frontiers on the Oder and Neisse rivers?

On the first question the vote was 7,844,522 affirmative and 3,686,029 negative the returns showed. This was the question on which the opposition Polish Peasant party [illegible] by Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolojczyk had urged a "no" vote.

Peasant Support Asked

Peasant party members were asked to support the other two questions. The vote on question two was 8,896.105 affirmative and 2,634,446 negative and on question 3 was 10,534,697 affirmative and 995,854 negative.

Government quarters were said to be concerned at the size of the vote cast against the maintenance of Poland's new western frontiers in what formerly was German territory. The negative vote on question 3 was construed as largely attributable, Government sources said, to many underground elements and Fascist adherents from the days of the Nazi occupation.

Poles Report Ouster Of 800,000 Germans

Warsaw, July 10 (A. P.).—The Polish Government announced today that a total of 600,000 Germans have been expelled from Lower Silesia and 200,000 from the Szczecin (Stettin) area, former German territories which have been incorporated into the new Poland.

Reparations Goods Arriving In Poland

Warsaw, July 9 [AP—Delayed]—The Polish Government announced today that deliveries of Poland's share of war reparations from Germany have started from the Russian zone.

Under an agreement with Russia, Poland is to receive fifteen per cent of the reparations allotted to the U.S.S.R., which, it is estimated here, will total about $20,000,000 worth of goods.

Commodities which Poland expects to receive include 177 tons of potash fertilizers, 7,000 tons of synthetic gasoline, 33,000 tons of synthetic rubber, 30,000 tons of various chemicals and numerous other items.

Poland and Argentina Renew Relations

Warsaw, July 9 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Government announced today that Poland is re-establishing diplomatic relations with Argentina.

Death Penalty Sought In Trial For Pogrom

Kielce, Poland, July 10 (AP)—The trial before a high military court of eleven men and one woman charged with touching off the July 4 pogrom in which 41 Jews were killed is scheduled to be concluded by next Tuesday. The prosecution says it will produce evidence which will warrant the death penalty.

The Government charged that the woman, Antonina Biskupska, and one of the men, Edward Jurkowski, led a mob which stoned the homes of Jews. Four other defendants are accused of attacking and killing a Jewish woman and beating and killing a Jewish child.

In Czestochowa, Catholic Bishop Teodor Kubina issued a statement condemning the Kielce incident. He said the church had no information that any Christian had been harmed by a Jew and that any stories to that effect were stupid.

Poznan Gauleiter Sentenced To Hang

Poznan, Poland, July 9 [AP—Delayed]—Poland's Supreme National Tribunal today sentenced Arthur Greiser, once German gauleiter of Poznan province, to death while workmen were driving the last nails in the scaffold where he will be hanged.

Greiser, 49, pleaded innocent to charges of collaboration, exterminating Polish people and culture and sending thousands of Poles to concentration camps. He blamed everything on Adolf Hitler and Heinrich Himmler, the suicide who headed the German Gestapo.

Jews Flee to Czechoslovakia

WALBRZYCH, Poland, July 10 (AP)—Jews in mass flight from Poland are coming through mountain passes in caravans and trucks, and are crossing the frontier into Czechoslovakia, with Palestine as their ultimate destination. In this coal mining city southwest of Wroslaw and twelve miles from the Czechoslovak border, 25,000 Jews recently repatriated from Russia are concentrated awaiting their chance to leave Poland.

One leader of the Jewish colony whose name cannot be used said hundreds of Jews were leaving here daily. He said some were paying persons to help them cross the frontier, while others were crossing on foot at unguarded points.

He said most of the Jews wanted to go to Palestine, and that very few were trying to settle on farm lands. The influx of Jews caused resentment among Poles who already had settled on farms. While there have been no anti-Semitic incidents so far, the whole area has been under close watch by law enforcement agencies.

The Jewish leader said he estimated that Jews were getting through to Palestine in eight days to three months. He said a majority of the Jews who had been demobilized from the Russian armies had expressed an intention of joining Jewish defense organizations in Palestine to combat the British.

city. At other points their welcome was not especially hearty because of the feeding and housing problem. Here the Czechs provide a camp, food, medical care and a chance to rest for a few hours before resuming flight.

Police are registering the fugitives, and those able to travel are loaded on a special train for the ride to the southern border at Bratislava. From there they are being sent to Vienna, and one officer said he had not the "slightest idea" what becomes of them then. Many are hopeful of getting to Palestine somehow.

AP Secretary Freed In Romania

Bucharest, July 9 [(AP)—Delayed]—Valery Cordun-Fastikovsky, 23-year-old secretary in the Bucharest office of the Associated Press was freed today by Romanian police, who announced that accusations of "subversive activity" lodged against him July 3 had been dropped.

Authorities said the complaint, based on Cordun-Fastikovsky's actions in 1941-42, was unsubstantiated.

Fastikovsky, the son of a Ukrainian father and a Swiss mother, was born in Iran and is of Iranian nationality.

Jews Flee Into Czechoslovakia From Poland by the Hundreds

A. STEINKOFF

By The Associated Press

NACHOD, Czechoslovakia, July 10.—Hundreds of frightened Jews fleeing from terror in Poland were stampeding across the border to this frontier city today.

Up to 5 p. m., 686 had arrived. Undoubtedly hundreds of others are hiding or have become lost in the mountains. The arriving fugitives told of thousands more within Poland who are moving toward the mountain passes which to them mean security.

Virtually none of the fugitives had passes or other documents authorizing them to be on Czech soil. Many smuggled themselves in between frontier posts. Others told of paying bribes in Poland to be led to a place where the border is open.

But this was not necessary. Czech patrolmen were letting them in and directing them to a barracks camp on the edge of this

Greeks Will Denounce Attacks By Albanians

Athens, July 10 (AP)—A Foreign Ministry spokesman said today the Government had instructed the Greek ambassarods at Washington, London, Paris and Moscow to "denounce attacks by regular Albanian troops against the Greek border and invite attention to the serious consequences which recurrence may entail."

Reports from Yannina said a Greek frontier quardhouse near Delvinaki was taken Sunday morning in a surprise attack and recaptured by Greek reinforcements.

The reports said two Greek soldiers were missing and a third was wounded.

They added the attack was made by about 80 Albanian soldiers aided by members of Elas, military arm of the EAM coalition of Greek leftist parties.

Italian Coalition Frames Program

Rome, July 10 (AP)—A compromise agreement on a domestic economic program today appeared to have opened the way for a new coalition government of Christian Democrats, Socialists and Communists—Italy's three major parties.

Optimism prevailed following a night-long session of political leaders that Alcide de Gasperi, Christian Democratic head, would be able to present the new cabinet to President Enrico de Nicola within the next 48 hours.

The program upon which the leaders were reported to have agreed called for a subsidy to all married workmen, including those now unemployed; increased rations, lowered food and clothing prices, heavier taxes on property, agrarian reforms and continued appropriation of uncultivated land for distribution to peasants. The program also calls for industrial reforms, including the eventual nationalization of electrical power.

Thinks Reds Conduct Rocket Experiments

STOCKHOLM, July 10 (AP)—Shining missiles seen in the last 24 hours traveling at great altitude with high speed caused speculation today by the newspaper Aftonbladet that Russians are conducting rocket experiments on Baltic bases.

The recent missiles were described by witnesses as "a greenish blue shining ball giving off a tail of light of the same color."

Similar sights two months ago were reported from about 10 places in Sweden and several places in Finland.

The Aftonbladet quoted a Swedish bomb technical expert as saying the sights occurred too frequently to be celestial phenomena. Russians likely are trying out giant rockets directed by remote control making them return to the starting point.

7 Danes Sentenced To Die as Traitors

Copenhagen, July 10 (A. P.).—Seven Danes accused of being members of the Peter Group, notorious terror gang operating in Denmark under German supervision during the occupation, were condemned to death today. Four others were sentenced to life imprisonment.

UNRRA Use Criticized By Russians

R. JAMES

Moscow, July 10 (AP)—The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia accused the United States and Britain today of using UNRRA for political purposes, and charged that Herbert Hoover's recent world food mission was used "for open anti-Democratic, anti-Communist, anti-Soviet propaganda."

The Communist party newspaper Pravda meanwhile, charged that anti-Soviet organizations were given protection by the occupation authorities in the American and British zones of Germany, and said these organizations sought to separate the Ukraine and White Russia from the Soviet Union.

The Izvestia article, written by Commentator S. Gorodetsky, acknowledged that Britain and America had initiated the drive for food relief, but added that "the political aims of this campaign have a still more important meaning."

"Political Blackmail" Charged

It said "certain circles" in America and Britain "are striving to use the relief campaign for far-reaching economic, and particularly political, purposes."

Gorodetsky attributed to "foreign progressive circles," otherwise unidentified, an accusation that the British and Americans were employing food politics as a means of "political blackmail" in a manner similar to that in which he said "atomic politics" was being used.

Gorodetsky singled out as an example the recent action of the United States House of Representatives on conditions under which UNRRA appropriations are to be made, and said this "was directed at the practical stoppage of UNRRA supplies to the Byelo-Russian (White Russian) and Ukrainian republics."

Refers To Hoover's Tour

[The deficiency appropriations bill passed by the House June 28 and sent to the Senate allotted $465,000,000 to UNRRA and contained a proviso that the money could not be used in countries which censored news accounts of UNRRA's activities.]

Referring to former President Hoover's tour as head of President Truman's food mission, the writer said this was "a clear illustration of the political aims pursued in actively reactionary circles in America and England in the realm of foodstuffs."

The Pravda article, entitled "anti-Soviet organizations under the protection of Anglo-American occupation authorities," presented a list of organizations which it said were Fascist and were being sheltered in the British and American zones of Germany.

Ukrainian Center

Among these, the article said, was the Ukrainian Center, "a Fascist organization which spreads slanders and inventions against the Soviet Union." The writer, Y. A. Viktoryv, said this group was headed by Vasily Shmulyak, "a German Ukrainian Nationalist" who once "served in the German police."

Among the other leaders of alleged Ukrainian, White Russian and Baltic organizations in western Germany the writer mentioned one who wore "an American uniform" and another who was said to work for UNRRA.

It added that in both the British and American zones there was "a widely developed network of anti-Soviet organizations pompously flourishing under the wings of the occupation authorities."

"Who gave the right to the American and English occupation authorities to tread on the promises to root out fascism, the remnants of Hitlerite influence, and (the promises) to render support in the development of democratic principles in European countries which were solemnly undertaken by the Allied powers?" the article demanded.

Reds Study Motor Equipment.

Moscow, July 10 (A. P.).—Red Star announced today a five-year plan for scientific experimental work by a technical committee of the Automobile Administration Ministry of the armed forces on the question of equipping the armed forces with modern cars and trailers.

Reds Say U. S. Uses UNRRA for Political Gain

Izvestia Charges Hoover's Famine Tour Was to Spread Anti-Soviet Propaganda.

Moscow, July 10 (A. P.).—Izvestia declared today that the United States and Great Britain had employed UNRRA food to exert "political pressure" on countries aided, and charged that the purpose of Herbert Hoover's recent world-circling famine tour was to spread "anti-Soviet propaganda."

The Government newspaper, in an article written by S. Gorodetsky, also quoted "foreign progressive circles" as saying that reactionaries in Britain and the United States were using UNRRA as a means of "political blackmail." This so-called blackmail" was compared with what was described as "atomic politics" in the United States.

The article said that "specific circles" in the two western nations were "striving to use the help (UNRRA) campaign for far-reaching economic and especially political purposes."

"These aims have little relation to the love of human beings, but are directly connected with the most aggressive side of politics," Izvestia said.

The article asserted that, although UNRRA relief was distributed through a special intergovernmental organization, "however, as a matter of fact, this organization is nothing other than an apparatus of the United States and England."

Finds Fault in Hoover Trip.

Hoover's tour was described as "a clear illustration of the political aims pursued by reactionary circles in America and England in the realm of foodstuffs and supplies." The newspaper said the tour was "for open anti-democratic, anti-Communist, anti-Soviet propaganda."

Izvestia charged specifically that the Western Powers used foodstuffs to "support reactionary groups ruling in separate countries or as a means of pressure on democratic governments in the interest of reactionary circles."

The article said that the recent bill passed by the United States House of Representatives, providing that American correspondents must be free to report the use of UNRRA funds, was a sample of "political pressure."

[A deficiency appropriations bill passed June 28 by the United States House and sent to the Senate allotted $465,000,000 to UNRRA, and contained a proviso that the funds could not be used in countries which censored news accounts of UNRRA activities.]

Izvestia asserted that this bill was "directed at the practical stoppage of UNRRA supplies to White Russia and the Ukrainian republics."

Pravda Also Critical.

Meanwhile the Communist party newspaper Pravda asserted that the "American and English occupation zones of Germany have become shelters for criminals and Hitlerite offsprings."

It listed several organizations operating in the zones of the Western Allies and charged that the organizations wanted to separate the Ukraine and White Russia from the Soviet Union.

Pravda listed the organizations as the Ukrainian Center, the Ukrainian Regional Committee, the Byelo-Russian (White Russian) Committee, the United Baltic Committee, the Latvian Society and the Central Committee of Lithuanian Emigrants.

"In the camps for displaced persons and in UNRRA camps, there are various elements—persons who emigrated from the Soviet Union long ago and actual war criminals—who should be turned over to the Soviet Government," Pravda said. "In both the American and English zones exist a widely developed network of anti-Soviet organizations, previously flourishing under the wings of occupational authorities.

"Who gave the right to the American and English occupational authorities to tread on promises to root out Fascism and the remnants of Hitlerite influence?" the treatise asked.

The newspaper singled out one Vassily Shmulyak, who was termed a "German Ukrainian national, who served the German police," asserting that he "now heads the Fascist organization, the Ukrainian Center, which spreads slanders and inventions against the Soviet Union."

Another target of the invective was an alleged employee of UNRRA, who Pravda said, "wears an American uniform."

Jews Plan Non-co-operation

Three Groups at Work on Campaign to Force Palestine Demands on British.

Jerusalem, July 10 (A. P.).—The threat of a Jewish campaign of non-co-operation with the Palestine Government took definite shape today as the Inner Zionist Council authorized the drafting of measures to implement the program.

At the same time a spokesman for the Arab Higher Committee announced that that group had already drawn up a plan to tighten the Arab boycott of Jewish goods and to take up non-co-operation as a "preliminary weapon" to fight further Jewish immigration into Palestine.

[In a broadcast picked up at New York today by CBS, the British radio said that the Palestine Arab Higher Committee has demanded in a note to the British High Commissioner that "the Jewish Agency be dissolved, alleging that it has been mixed up in terrorism and illegal immigration."]

Three Groups At Work.

The action of the Inner Zionist Council was designed to reinforce its demand for the release of the Jewish leaders arrested by the British military authorities on June 29 following a two-week wave of violence and sabotage in Palestine. The council gave the green light to its own presidium, to the executive committee of the Jewish Agency and to the National Council of Palestine Jews (Vaad Leumi) to work out the plans for non-co-operation.

The decision followed yesterday's assertion by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, that the British had "missed their chance" to restore peace in Palestine and that the Jews would "never give up their arms." His statement was echoed last night by the illegal radio of Haganah, the Jewish underground organization.

Meanwhile today the Jewish Agency said it was officially informed by the Palestine Government that the agency's building here, under British occupation since June 29, would be returned to it later today.

Leaders Facing Trial.

London, July 10 (A. P.).—Men suspected of leading underground organizations in [illegible] will be brought to trial a[illegible] rest of the more than 2,000 [illegible] arrested on June 29 will be released, authoritative spokesmen said today. Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, the High Commissioner for Palestine, was stated by persons close to Prime Minister Attlee to have recommended this course of action to the Cabinet, and that it was reasonable to assume it has been approved.

Meanwhile, the gravity of the Palestine situation was reflected here when the London Institute of Underwriters announced an increase of insurance rates on shipping for risks arising from strikes, riots and civil commotion. The new rate to and from Palestine is five-sixteenths of 1 per cent; the old rate one-fifth of 1 per cent.

In the House of Commons the mass arrest of Zionist leaders on the Jewish Sabbath were criticized by Dr. S. Segal, who told the Colonial Secretary, George Hall, that nothing could have done more to persuade the Jews of Palestine that they were engaged in a holy war.

Hall disclosed that ninety-two mortars, 5,267 mortar bombs, 5,017 grenades, ten machine-guns, 321 rifles, seventy-eight pistols and 420,000 rounds of ammunition had been seized in the raids on Jewish settlements, plus quantities of demolition explosives and other military stores and equipment. He was cheered by the House when, in reply to a question by Segal, he declared that the damage caused was "not only insignificant, but entirely justified."

Hears Leaders Are Freed.

Liverpool, July 10 (A. P.).—Rabbi I. J. Unterman, newly elected Chief Rabbi of Tel Aviv, said last night that he had been informed that all the arrested members of the Jewish Agency's executive committee in Palestine have been released. He expressed the hope that other Zionist leaders would be released soon.

Moslems May Oppose British Plans For India

By Walter Mason

NEW DELHI, July 10—(AP)—The secretary of the Moslem League declared today that "it would be suicidal for the Moslem League" to enter the Indian Constituent Assembly under present circumstances, and indicated the League might withdraw its acceptance of the British plan for an Indian constitution.

Proposals Accepted Earlier

The league earlier had accepted the British cabinet mission's proposals for a constitution, and for an interim government of India, but last night announced it had called a meeting of its council for July 28 and 29 "to decide what course of action shall be adopted."

Today the league secretary, Nawabzada Liaquat Ali Khan, said the council session was called in view of "serious developments," and declared that the cabinet mission's "anxiety to succeed has made them fail."

He declined in an interview to predict what action the council might take.

The All-India Congress party, chief rival of the Moslem league, recently in Bombay ratified acceptance of the constituent assembly plan, but took the view that phases to which the congress objected could be changed in the constituent assembly.

Statement Included

These included the mission's statement that Indian provinces might realign themselves only after a given period. Congress leaders expressed opinion this could be changed so that they could make such groupings as they wished at the outset.

This viewpoint, Liaquat Ali Khan declared, made the Congress party's acceptance "conditional" and in reality "they have accepted nothing."

The Congress Party's standpoint, he said, would make the constituent assembly a sovereign body and "if it is established as a sovereign body, we would have no place in that because we would be one against four in the assembly."

In Bombay, meanwhile, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, new president of the all-India Congress Party, said his party would go to the constituent assembly without "advance commitments," and that its principal objective would be to make the assembly succeed.

Nehru last night announced the appointment of a new Congress Party working committee of 14 members, including four Moslems and two women. One of the members is Sarat Chandra Bose, leader of the Congress Party in the central assembly, and brother of Subhas Chandra Bose, who organized the "Indian National Army" with Japanese aid.

Secretary Hints League May Reverse Charter Stand.

New Delhi, July 10 (A. P.).—The secretary of the Moslem League Nawabzada Liaquat Ali Khan, indicated today that the league would probably withdraw its acceptance of the British Cabinet Mission's plan for an Indian Constitution. He declared it would be suicidal for the Moslems to participate as the situation now stands.

"The mission's anxiety to succeed has made them fail," he observed in an interview. He declined, however, to predict what action the league council might take at its special meeting called for July 28 and 29 in Bombay. The council is to decide its future course in view of what he called serious developments.

Leaders of the rival All-India Congress party took the view at their recent congress in Bombay—when the acceptance of the Constituent Assembly plan was ratified—that phases to which the party objected could be remedied in the Constituent Assembly. Liaquat Ali Khan declared that this made the Congress party's acceptance conditional. "In reality they have accepted nothing," he said, having previously turned down the British plan for an interim government which the Moslem League accepted."

Bombay, July 10 (A. P.).—Jawaharlal Nehru, new president of the Congress party, declared today that it "will not accept any treaty imposed on the country by Britain or any attempt to perpetuate her vested interests in India."

Insisting that any treaty will be agreed to "only on terms of equality between India and Britain," Nehru declared at his first press conference since assuming the leadership that his party would go into the Constituent Assembly without advance commitments and that its main objective would be to make the Assembly a success.

Britons Injured By Bomb In Cairo

Cairo, July 10 (AP)—Five British soldiers and one Egyptian policeman were injured tonight in the explosion of a bomb tossed from a speeding automobile near the British barracks.

Earlier the police seized 1,000 persons, including leaders of opposition political groups, today in a "precautionary measure" on the eve of a scheduled general strike, banned by the Egyptian Government.

Youth groups had planned the strike and "day of mourning" on the July 11 anniversary of the British shelling of Alexandria in 1882. The police said those arrested included 200 members of the youth groups of the Kotla (Wafdist bloc) and Wafdist political parties.

Selim Zaki Pasha, Cairo police chief, said those jailed would be detained until the threat of a strike had passed. Four newspapers—Al Misri, Al Wafd Al Misri, Al Kotla, and Misr El Fattat—which appealed to Egyptians to observe the strike and day of mourning were confiscated on orders of the Minister of Interior, the police added.

1,000 Egyptians Held In Anti-Strike Action

Cairo, July 10 (AP)—About 1,000 persons, 200 of them described by police as leaders of the youth groups of the Kotla (Wafdist bloc) and Wafdist political parties, were arrested today as the Government forbade a general strike tomorrow.

The arrests were officially termed "a precautionary measure."

Police Chief Selim Zaki Pasha said the group would be detained until the threat of strike subsided.

The youth groups called the general strike and "day of mourning" an an anniversary observation for the British shelling of the naval base of Alexandria on July 11, 1882.

Selim Zaki Pasha asserted that the Government expected no trouble tomorrow, but "we are prepared should anything arise."

Police confiscated four morning newspapers on orders of the Ministry of Interior because they published strike appeals.

U. S. Army Surplus Is Sold To Siamese

SINGAPORE, — (AP) — Disposal of U.S. Army surplus property has been completed in the Singapore area, which embraces Malaya, the Netherlands East Indies, Siam, Burma and Indo-China.

The American taxpayer received back approximately $300,000 or 70 cents out of every dollar originally invested in properly declared surplus, according to Maj. W. J. Skinner of Westchester, O., Foreign Liquidation Commission representative here.

The Singapore office also has contracted with Siam to fill a $10,000,000 order from stocks in the southwest Pacific Theatre. This order, linked with Siam's efforts to boost rice production for hungry Asia, will include locomotives, trucks and similar equipment.

UNRRA Aid Blocked; Chinese Reds Charge

Peiping, July 9 (AP—Delayed)—A Communist spokesman asserted today that Central Government military authorities have blockaded the shipment of UNRRA supplies into Communist-held areas of North China and Manchuria for political and military reasons.

He said fewer than three per cent of the 167,152 tons of UNRRA supplies transported into the ten northern provinces up to mid-June had been distributed to Chinese in Communist-dominated areas.

An estimated 60 per cent of the northern provinces is reliably reported in Communist hands.

Basic Policy Cited

The spokesman pointed to UNRRA's basic policy that relief should be given regardless of political belief, and noted that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had assured UNRRA that supplies were being admitted into all areas of China.

Government and military authorities, the Communist spokesman said, have imposed a tight blockade on Communist areas and through this have been using UNRRA as pressure to gain concessions.

Thousands of Chinese, unable to obtain UNRRA aid, are reported dying for lack of food and medicine.

Relief Shipment Crisis For China

Nanking, July 10 (AP)—China faced a new crisis today, that of suspension of all relief shipments save emergency foods.

Announcement in Washington of the UNRRA action, coupled with criticism of Generalissimo Chiang's Government, drew a charge of "unfair" from a Government relief spokesman and an assessment of relief conditions by Chinese Communist spokesmen in support of the criticism.

In Washington, UNRRA's director general, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, said suspension of the shipments was decided upon after more than half of UNRRA's 400 staff members in China accused Chiang's Government of failing to get materials to millions in the interior and of using relief goods for political ends.

In Shanghai, T. F. Tsiang, director general of the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, which takes over all goods from UNRRA, declined comment, but his deputy in Nanking, Dr. Dison Hsueh Feng-po, said:

"It is unfair to stress that only two per cent of UNRRA deliveries to China are going to Communist areas because the great bulk of imports are communications equipment including railway, locomotives, cars, and so forth, turned over directly to the National Government for the rehabilitation of rail lines and highways."

A Chinese Communist spokesman in Nanking said one third of China's population lives in Communist-controlled areas, but only one half of one per cent of UNRRA imports to China have penetrated those sectors. He said military and political reasons were behind the blockade.

German Brewers Kept To Save Shanghai Beer

Nanking, July 10 (AP)—Premier T. V. Soong has intervened to assure Shanghai its beer supply. Three German brewers were removed by Soong's orders from a repatriated list three hours before their ship sailed from Shanghai.

Peng Hsueh-pei, China's Minister of Information, made public the action today. Among others covered in Soong's order were four dye experts and a tanning technician.

Anti-U.S. Parade Fails To Come Off

Shanghai, July 10 (AP)—All American army personnel in Shanghai was restricted to quarters until 11 A. M. the other day because reports that a big anti-American parade was brewing.

The parade failed to materialize, but American military police kept vigilant guard throughout the day.

Mayor K. C. Wu asserted the Communists were responsible for the anti-American hue of the recent civil war demonstrations in Shanghai.

Demobilization Speeded

Shanghai, July 10 (AP) — The United States Army China Service Command, announcing a speedup in demobilization today, said all nonvolunteer enlisted fathers and all enlisted men (except volunteers) with twenty months' service as of September 30 would be returned home in August. Those with eighteen months' service as of November 30 will be shipped home in October.

The announcement said this implemented the War Department demobilization directives under the Draft Extension Act.

U. S. AND SOVIET MEMBERS AGAIN CLASH IN TOKYO

Atcheson Assails Russian Labor Proposals as Propaganda.

BRITON TWICE BACKS RED

American Chairman Then Raises Question Whether Delegates Mean to Support MacArthur.

Tokyo, July 10 (A. P.).—The Russian member of the Allied Council for Japan submitted a twenty-two point proposal for Japanese labor legislation today, and touched off a controversy in which the British member sided with him against the American Chairman of the Council, George Atcheson Jr.

Atcheson declared that the Russian proposal bore the familiar mark of propaganda, and that neither "Communism nor Fascism has any rightful claim to the leadership of labor."

Certain of the suggestions, he continued, are already in effect in Japan, "but so far as I know they are foreign to other countries." Then turning to the Russian member, Lieut.-Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko, he said: "I should like to raise with the Soviet member several questions: Are industrial strikes permitted in his country? Is full freedom of labor unions guaranteed? Are reprisals against workers for participating in strikes forbidden by law or practice? Under the Five-Year Plans, have working hours for employees been fixed at eight hours a day or forty-eight hours a week?

"If these practices are not universally observed in his country," Atcheson said, "Why does he, as a member of this council, support them for Japan?"

Advises Trip to Russia.

Derevyanko countered with: "I am sorry that the chairman attempts—and not for the first time—to force his understandings of the Potsdam Declaration and to utilize the Allied Council for propaganda for his political conceptions."

The highlights of his proposal were provisions for the forty-eight-hour week, two weeks' vacation with pay, unemployment allowances and annuities for the aged.

Sees No Propaganda.

Derevyanko suggested Atcheson "get acquainted with" the basic laws of the U. S. S. R. and labor legislation. "If this is insufficient," he said, "then I can only advise Mr. Atcheson to make a trip to the Soviet Union and get acquainted." He also protested that Atcheson's questions on Russian labor were not within the purview of the Allied Council.

The British delegate, W. MacMahon Ball, said that he had been studying the Soviet suggestions for signs of Communist propaganda. "But," he continued, "I just can't find any. It seems to be quite a conservative document. I think it unfortunate when an Allied Council member puts forward a proposal for the protection and social welfare of Japanese workers that such proposal is automatically stigmatized as Communist propaganda."

There were other clashes before the council adjourned to July 24.

Atcheson and Derevyanko disagreed on the Russian's recommendation that Gen. MacArthur order the dissolution of a Japanese commission to investigate war causes. Here also Ball agreed with Derevyanko. Atcheson then questioned whether the council members intended to collaborate with MacArthur.

The Russian requested information on compensation paid by the Japanese Government to former war industries and proposed that such claims be canceled. If already paid in blocked funds he suggested that they be returned to the Japanese Treasury.

The Allied finance office, Lieut.-Commander P. G. Akin of Washington, D. C., told the council that Japanese Finance Ministry records showed that such claims as of April 1, 1946, totaled 74,954,000,000 yen (almost $5,000,000,000).

Jap Propaganda Plan Of 1935 Revealed

Tokyo, July 10 (AP)—Fully two years before Japan created the 1937 China incident the Kwantung Army prepared a plan of propaganda "to convince the whole world of our lawfulness," the International War Crimes tribunal heard today.

This was disclosed in a secret army document introduced by the prosecution, which sought to show that some of the 27 alleged war plotters now on trial were deeply involved in plans for Japanese expansion on the Asiatic mainland.

The document contained this point to be sold to the Chinese public:

"It must be made clear that when we do dispatch our military forces to China some time in the future we do it for the purpose of punishing the Chinese military clique and not the Chinese people at large."

Invasion Plan

The plan was sent by Gen. Juzo Nishio, chief of staff of the Kwantung Army, to Vice Minister of War Motoo Furusho in Tokyo December 12, 1935. It clearly said the army would go into China proper—yet the incident which "necessitated" such action came two years later.

One phase of the propaganda plan was to make the Chinese think they were "burning with desire for independence because the Central Govrnment had too long treated them like a colony." (Japan set up an autonomous state in North China as a buffer for Manchuria.)

The plan called for fomenting anti-Kumontang and anti-Communist agitation in North China, and "as for the Chinese people and the army in the rest of China, we shall take measures to form an antiwar atmosphere."

Word On Nuernberg

Earlier, Chief Justice Sir William Webb said the tribunal had the "greatest respect" for the decisions at the Nazi war-crimes trial at Nuernberg but would not be bound by those decisions.

Addressing his remarks to an American defense attorney, Sir William said:

"You are wrong if you think we are slavishly going to follow" precedents set at Nuernberg. There were four nations prosecuting at Nuernberg, he added, while "those four and seven others are here."

The defense attorney, William Logan of New York, had requested that when the prosecution reads excerpts from a defendant's confession, the defense be allowed at that time to read any part that explains further the excerpts. Logan cited a Nuernberg precedent.

Reacted Sharply

While he reacted sharply to the reference to the Nuernberg precedent, Sir William said it was the duty of the prosecution "to read the whole of an answer or it may otherwise mislead the court."

Testimony today centered on a Privy Council session at which Japan decided to acquire provinces in North China.

The chief justice announced that the court would adjourn at noon until Monday morning to permit completion of an air-conditioning system in the sweltering courtroom.

"The heat is interfering with the proper discharge of our duties," Sir William said, after another tiff with defense counsel.

German Trials Do Not Bind Tokyo Court

TOKYO, Wednesday, July 10. (AP)—The president of the international war crimes court told a protesting American defense attorney heatedly that the tribunal refuses to be "slavishly" bound by decisions handed down at Nuernberg.

"You are wrong if you think we are slavishly going to follow" precedents set in Nazi war-criminal trials, Chief Justice Sir William Webb of Australia asserted. "There are four nations (prosecuting) at Nuernberg. Those four and seven others are here."

He settled back in his chair, then leaned forward to add an afterthought: "We pay the greatest respect to Nuernberg decisions."

His comment was directed to William Logan of New York City, counsel for Marquis Koichi Kido, pre-war and wartime advisor to Emperor Hirohito. Logan had requested that when the prosecution reads excerpts from a confession by a defendant, the defense be allowed at that time to read any part that explains further the excerpts. He cited a Nuernberg precedent.

Webb Replies

"It is the duty of the prosecution to read the whole of an answer or it may otherwise mislead the court," Webb replied. "If you charge that the prosecution is suppressing parts, we will investigate, and if your charge is false, we will deal with you."

Said Logan, "I am making no charge of suppression and none of fraud. I am only asking that if they read one part of a confession we be allowed immediately to read any other part that may explain it. That is fundamental in American practice.

Sir William said the court did not care to change its attitude, and the trial resumed with the prosecution reading brief excerpts from a confession by Gen. Sadao Araki, former war minister. His statement concerned a privy council session in which Japan decided to acquire four North-China provinces.

After the mid-morning recess, Sir William announced that because the heat was interfering with the work of the tribunal, the court would adjjourn at noon until Monday morning to permit completion of an air conditioning system.

"This is one of the gravest cases ever tried," said the Australian justice. "We should have reasonable comfort. x x x We really feel that if we adjourn it will speed up the air conditioning."

Forrestal Lands At Tokyo Airport

Tokyo, July 10 (A. P.).—Navy Secretary Forrestal flew in from Shanghai today and arranged to confer with Gen. MacArthur this evening. He expects to leave tomorrow on another leg of his world trip.

Diet Building Awes All Except The Texan

Tokyo, July 10 (AP)—American congressmen toured Japan's big Diet Building today and drew these conclusions:

Senator Hugh Butler, of Nebraska—"It puts the Washington Capitol to shame."

Senator Allen J. Ellender, of Louisiana—"Luxurious!"

But a Texan—Representative Eugene Worley—topped them all with—"Well, it does compare favorably with the Texas Legislature."

Three Congressmen Returning From Tokyo

Tokyo, July 10 (AP)—Senator Owen Brewster (R., Maine) and Representatives Fred L. Crawford (R., Mich.) and Karl M. LeCompte (R., Iowa) will leave today by plane for Washington after a brief visit here.

Going on around the world en route home will be Senators Allen J. Ellender (R., La.) and Hugh Butler (R., Neb.), and Representatives George P. Miller (D., Cal.) and Eugene Worley (D., Texas). All came to Tokyo after observing the atomic-bomb test at Bikini.

Raids Hit 3,000,000 Homes

Tokyo, July 10 (AP)—American air-raids caused the destruction of 3,000,000 Japanese homes, the Justice Ministry announced today. Of these, 2,400,000 actually were wiped out and 600,000 were cleared for strategic reasons.

Consideration Set On Jap Constitution

Tokyo, July 10 (AP)—Point-by-point consideration of Japan's proposed new constitution will begin in the Diet (Parliament) tomorrow, with some official misgivings over its anti-war clauses but full evidence it will be approved without substantial changes.

Final interpellations on the document produced Japanese opinions that the United Nations Security Council would guarantee the defense of Japan if her armed forces were abolished.

Legislators are seeking eventual membership in the United Nations.

52,428 Japs Repatriated In Week

Tokyo, July 10 (AP)—A total of 52,428 Japanese, presumably all civilians, were repatriated from Manchuria last week, Allied headquarters reported. They came from the port of Hulutao.

An estimated 1,075,000 Japanese are still in Manchuria, but their whereabouts, particularly as regards troops, has been a matter of discussion before the Allied Control Council, with the United States vainly asking the Russian delegate for information.

'Mikado' Will Have Its Tokyo Premiere

Operetta's First Hearing Scheduled July 22

TOKYO, July 10 (AP).—The Gilbert and Sullivan operetta "The Mikado," hitherto banned in Japan because of its satirization of the emperor, will be staged July 22 at the Ernie Pyle Theater.

A cast of sixty-five singers with a sixty-piece orchestra augmented by a Japanese girls' ensemble will present the operetta. It is the most lavish show yet attempted by the Ernie Pyle production unit.

Sponsored by the Army, and with Army personnel augmented by American civilian actresses permanently assigned to the production unit, the theater is turning out a series of professionally competent shows which are touring the Pacific areas. Civilian War Department employees in the Tokyo area are assisting.

Last week's "My Sister Eileen" and this week's "The Man Who Came to Dinner" brought ovations from crowds of Allied soldiers and civilians filling the seats of the huge theater at every performance.

Edward S. Stephenson, director for "The Mikado," said it was necessary to send to the United States for the score, as no copies or recordings could be found in Japan. Stephenson, a graduate of the Pasadena Playhouse School Theater, led his own repertoire company in America for several seasons.

BOMB MAY TOSS SHIPS INTO AIR

Blandy Predicts Results of Next 'A' Test.

Aboard U. S. S. McKinley, July 10 (A. P.).—One million tons of water—a column nearly a half mile in diameter and 8,000 to 10,000 feet high—will be blown into the air by the underwater atomic bomb, Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy estimated today.

The task force commander said ships within the column area "will get an awful working over" and those near the center are likely to be tossed into the air "in pieces if not together."

Blandy also made these points at a press conference:

There will be high waves, as much as 100 feet, flung out from the column, but their height will fall off rapidly and probably will not exceed ten feet by the time they hit the shore of Bikini Island. Some ships may be capsized by the wave. "I think there will be considerable damage from the wave action as well as the shock of the bomb."

Scientists estimate the diameter of the water column from 2,000 to 2,500 feet and figure it will rise in solid form from 8,000 to 10,000 feet; a geyser-like spray may reach 20,000 feet.

May Contaminate Rain.

Radioactive spray may become part of natural clouds, and contamination may be dropped later in the form of normal rainfall. For this reason Eniwetok Island, west of Bikini, is to be evacuated.

Radioactive contamination of the water and ships will be hundreds of times greater than in the previous blast, scientists estimate. Most of the water in the column and spray will fall back into the lagoon, thus further contaminating the target ships.

It is now planned to explode the bomb about 8:30 A. M. Bikini time July 25 (5:30 P. M., New York time, July 24), but no definite program has been set as yet pending later weather data. The bomb will be detonated by radio impulse from a trigger ship about twenty miles away. Blandy assured newsmen there would be no danger of any freak radio signal setting it off prematurely.

Brides To Leave Soon

Canberra, July 10 (AP)—A United States Legation spokesman said today the first Australian fiancees of American service men probably would leave for the United States early in August on the Marine Falcon. Approximately 1,000 fiancees are waiting here for transportation.

Huks To Surrender If Taken Into Army

Manila, July 10 (AP)—Five thousand Hukbalahaps (armed peasants) of Nueva Ecija province offered today to lay down their arms if taken into the Philippine Army.

José Deleon, their chieftain, came down from the mountains with seven lieutenants under a pledge of safety and were escorted to Manila for a conference with Interior Secretary José Zulueta.

Deleon told Zulueta the Hukbalahaps wanted only the assurance they could live peacefully, without constant attacks by Government military police and provincial civil guards.

Zulueta planned to take the Hukbalahap delegation to Malacanan Palace for talks with President Manuel Roxas.

No new clashes in troubled Pampanga and Nueva Ecija provinces were reported today. Skirmishes have cost 159 lives the last few days.

Build Air Strip to Aid Search for Flyer

Edmonton, July 10 (A. P.).—Two Canadian paratroopers toiled today to complete an emergency landing field in the wilderness north of Fort Nelson, B. C., in order to facilitate the search for an American civilian pilot.

A United States Army plane was waiting to fly an expert Indian tracker into the wilds as soon as word is received that the landing strip is ready.

Authorities hoped the tracker might find some clue to the whereabouts of the missing flyer, Jack Barber of Jamestown, N. Y., who disappeared early last week on a flight to Anchorage, Alaska. His light plane was found in a creek bed, where it had made a forced landing, and it was believed Barber had set off on foot in an effort to reach civilization.

SENATE ACTS TO SAVE U.S. TABLE

Controls To Stay On Grain

Barkley Jubilant—Sees Other Food Prices Affected.

PETROLEUM BARS ARE LET DOWN

Moore Sponsors Amendment Ending Gasoline And Oil Ceilings.

By Francis J. Kelly

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—The Senate tonight conditionally exempted petroleum and its products from any revived price control, along with other items, but refused to exempt grains in a single but important concession to the administration.

The petroleum amendment was adopted on a roll call vote of 40 to 30, shortly after a proposal to exempt grains had been defeated, 32 to 40.

The amendment exempting gasoline, oil and all other petroleum products from revived price ceilings was sponsored by Senator Moore (R-Okla). It forbids the imposition of price controls unless a de-control board to be set up under the bill finds the supply insufficient to meet the domestic demand.

Voting Lines Split

Previous voting lines split apart as the Senate rejected the grain amendment offered by Republican Senator Reed from the important wheat producing state of Kansas.

Previously the chamber had tied a veto invitation to the OPA revival bill by voting 51 to 27 to exempt milk and dairy products from price control if and when it is revived.

A couple of hours earlier the Senate had adopted a similar exemption for cottonseed, soy beans and products made from them. That vote was 42 to 34.

Livestock, meat and poultry controls came out of the bill yesterday by a 49 to 26 rollcall.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) led the successful battle against the grains amendment tonight by asserting that it would affect the price of bread and other foods on every American table.

But other attempts to write exemptions into the measure were in the offing. A number of Senators wanted specific decontrols on tobacco, gasoline and petroleum.

Changes Distasteful

From the way Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) and other administration wheelhorses lined up against the amendments it was obvious the changes were extremely distasteful to the Democratic high command. But the administration had lost control of the situation to a coalition of Republicans and Democrats.

Eighteen Democrats balloted to bar controls over milk and its products. The only Republican who voted with Barkley was Senator Revercomb of West Virginia.

Barkley declined to express an opinion as to whether President Truman would reject a measure loaded down with specific decontrols. But Mr. Truman gave strong hint of his attitude June 29, when he vetoed the first price control extension bill.

He said then that he did not object to the formulation of standards for decontrol, or to the establishment of an independent decontrol board to review applications for the lifting of controls—"provided that the standards were modified to make sure that, during the next crucial six months, ceilings do not have to be lifted where it is clear that serious price rises would result."

Chairman Wagner (D-NY) of the banking committee has estimated that the forced decontrol of meat, poultry and dairy products alone would add between $4,350,000,000 and $6,000,000,000 to the nation's yearly food bill. Barkley daily is presenting statistics to the Senate showing the rise in commodity levels.

Before the Senate voted on the cottonseed-soy beans amendment, Barkley pleaded with his colleagues to trefrain from adding provisions which he said would make the bill "ridiculous." He got a quick answer—15 Democrats lined up with 27 Republicans to approve the exemption.

30. 24-4065

Senator Eastland (D-Miss), sponsor of the amendment, argued that with controls removed from animal fats and oils under the meat amendment, they must come off competing vegetable oils also, to prevent "chaos and havoc." Barkley repeated it was unwise to attach "ridiculous amendments" out of deference to local interests and local advantages.

only in types of inexpensive clothing which previously sold at specified OPA ceilings. Thus they have to make the same kind of clothing they did before, but there are no strings on prices.

Last Clothing Price Curb Cut

CPA Chief Believes That Rivalry Among Manufacturers Will Hold the Line.

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—Snipping the last price control threat on clothing, the Government today pinned its inexpensive garment hopes on industry competition.

In cutting the threat, Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small expressed the belief that rivalry among clothing manufacturers would serve to hold their prices in line. The only clothing price curb left after the OPA died on July 1 was knocked out last night when Small announced that the CPA will continue to allocate a big supply of cloth for garments that should sell at low or moderate prices—but the agency no longer will see that they do.

The CPA announced no reason for this, but officials who asked to remain anonymous attributed the action to the Moore amendment to the second war powers act, a law which ten days ago was continued until next March 31. CPA's authority to allocate fabric for low-cost clothing stems from the act.

The Moore Amendment.

The Moore amendment, tacked on to the renewal measure, prohibits any price fixing under that legislation. In sponsoring the amendment, Senator Moore (R.-Okla.) sought to make sure that the OPA could not fix ceilings under any law except the price control act, which later expired. CPA was not sure whether the Moore amendment actually outlawed its clothing price curbs, but it decided to take no chances.

Under the old custom, CPA helped garment makers obtain fabric only if they agreed to sell clothes at or under certain wholesale prices. Retail ceilings were fixed by the OPA. Under the new CPA o[illegible]ation, manufacturers may [illegible] priority fabric

OPA Box Score

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Here is the box score on Senate amendments to exempt specific items from price ceilings under any revival of OPA:

Exempted for Meat and Poultry, by Senator Wherry (R., Neb.)—Adopted, 49 to 26.

Exemption for Milk and Dairy Products, by Wherry—Adopted, 51 to 27.

Exemption for Cottonseed, Soybeans and Their Products, by Senator Eastland (D., Miss.)—Adopted, 42 to 34.

Exemption for Grains and Their Byproducts, by Senator Reed (R., Kan.)—Defeated, 32 to 40.

Exemption for Petroleum and Its Products so Long as Supply Exceeds Domestic Demand, by Senator Moore (R., Okla.)—Adopted, 40 to 30.

Steelman Plea For Economy Expected

Washington, July 10 (AP)—A call for deep cuts in Federal spending is expected to be made by Reconversion Director John R. Steelman in his first report to Congress and President Truman, due tomorrow.

Government officials said Steelman's recommendations for paring the budget will be the first formal pronouncement on fiscal policy ever issued by the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

Details of the reported economy plans were not divulged in advance but their objective is a balanced budget, despite impending appropriations far in excess of original estimates.

Terminal Pay Big Item

One big potential expense—although it may be spread over several years—is the projected $3,000,000,000 terminal-leave pay outlay to some 15,000,000 former GI's. A compromise "anti-inflation" plan for making these payments went to the Senate yesterday with President Truman's blessing.

Even without this item, such previously uncounted expenses as Philippines war damages, housing subsidies and scores of others have upset the original estimate of a $35,000,000,000 budget for the current fiscal year. At present the anticipated total is closer to $40,000,000,000.

Tax Revenue Higher

On the other hand, tax revenues have been buoyed up by high business activity, so that the Treasury still hopes for a balance if strict economy can be achieved. Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder declared for these goals at a news conference shortly after taking office last month.

The Reconversion Office shied away from any fiscal policy statements while the present Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson was Secretary of the Treasury, for Vinson regarded the fiscal field as his alone. Snyder has no such objections and, in fact, is reported to have had a hand in framing the proposals to be issued by Steelman, his OWMR successor.

Bond Phase Important

The immediate drain on the Treasury likely to be imposed by any terminal-leave pay plan for enlisted men will be lessened if Congress approves the "anti-inflationary" feature. This calls for the bulk of the payments to be in Treasury bonds, payable five years after the veteran's discharge.

The House already has approved an immediate cash outlay of the full sum. The bonds-and-cash compromise approved by Mr. Truman and the Senate Military Committee will be ready for Senate action before the OPA bill is out of the way.

Committee Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D., Col.) said last night. It provides for cash payments only on claims of less than $50, with 2½ per cent bonds for payments above $50.

Price Index Up 16% In 10 Days

Washington, July 10 (AP)—The Bureau of Labor Statistics commodity price index rose today to 232 or approximately two per cent, a total rise of sixteen per cent in the ten days since OPA controls expired.

Today's index rise was featured by trading price increases for grains, livestock, cocoa, hides and cotton.

Prices Generally Firm, Survey Reveals

New York, July 10 (AP)—News papers, taking a post-OPA look at the overall price picture and prospects in leading cities, today found a general "hold-the-line" attitude, despite sharp increases in some instances and continuing scarcities in a few lines.

In general, they said meat and dairy products prices were up substantially, with supplies of the former increasing. Some cities where meat counters remained relatively bare, thought there would be enough to satisfy demands within a few days.

Not Sure Of Future

A number of newspapers found that meat and dairy-price rises did no more than offset the loss of Government subsidies. Other lines of consumer goods were reported stable, but there was a question as to whether prices would go up when present inventories are exhausted.

The rent situation presented a complex and somewhat tangled appearance. It was confused by reports of sharp increases by some landlords, as others stuck to former OPA levels. The majority apparently made little or no upward adjustment.

Real-estate men seemed to agree that a fifteen per cent increase would be appropriate.

Situation In Major Cities

Here was the picture in major cities, as drawn by the newspapers:

NEW YORK—Milk at 18 and 21 cents, highest in 26 years; butter reported at 80 cents to as much as $1.25; meat up, supplies increasing, good stocks expected in few days, prices going as high as one report of $1.40 a pound for beef liver; buyers' strike threatened by New York City Consumer Council, embracing 65 civic, labor and social-welfare organizations claiming 250,000 membership; rents kept at OPA marks by State law.

Eviction-Hearing Flood Expected

CHICAGO—Times survey shows eight of twenty basic food items up since July 1, with hamburger selling at 70 to 90 cents and some merchants refusing to sell butter because of high price with others paying 76½ cents wholesale, renters' courts jammed and bailiffs prelicting a flood of eviction hearings; Sun says established merchants interested in holding steady customers by attempting to hold the line on food, but others marking up prices on scarce items; Daily News said a meat and poultry price battle was developing between legitimate packers and former black-market operators, with prospect of lower prices for consumers; Tribune declared competition between major packers and Eastern independents already had forced declines, egg futures prices fell for fifth consecutive day.

SAN FRANCISCO—Food prices up 10 to 15 per cent generally; rents frozen at 15 per cent above old ceilings, but papers say they would "go out of sight" otherwise; many landlords asking how to increase charges legally; butter up to 80 cents plus, and in some cases offered as high as $1.

Better Meat Anticipated

LOS ANGELES—Times and Herald and Express expect better meat cuts by week end at probable 10 cents a pound or more increase, report record livestock sales in last two days; rents pegged generally at 15 per cent above OPA by law, rent-eviction reports dwindling; Examiner quotes OPA Food Price C[illegible] Leonard Kearns as saying a check showed meat prices up as much as 116 per cent on hamburger, 102 per cent on sirloin, 75 per cent on bacon and 67 per cent on poultry.

BOSTON—Meat supplies increasing, with major chains and independents holding the line, scattered sales at above black-market prices; retail trade in other items reflects no change.

ATLANTA — Better-known food stores not raising prices, despite meat scarcity; most landlords either holding prices or making moderate increases.

Rent Control Tried

DENVER—City Council gives preliminary approval to ordinance holding rents within ten per cent of June 30 level, but court tests expected if ordinance is passed.

DALLAS—Heavy cattle receipts at Fort Worth stockyards, good meat supply expected by week end; consumers paying more-than-subsidy increase at times for meat, poultry, bread and milk; lumber reported arriving from east Texas mills at $10 per 1,000 board feet less than in previous weeks; organized landlords asking that rents not be raised more than ten per cent, but more than 300 eviction suits filed in past week.

Meat Up 20 P.C.

NEW ORLEANS—Times-Picayune says meat up to 20 per cent, with other items 5 to 30 per cent; real-estate agencies trying to hold prices, although some increases range up to 60 per cent; normal meat supply expected in 60 days and surplus in 90.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Price condition spotty, but meats lead increases with an estimated boost of 15 to 20 per cent or more on some items; increases in some other foods, but no general break, rents under control in District, but occasional increases near by in Virginia and Maryland.

Dairy Products Rise Twice

ST. LOUIS—Dairy products rise for second time in week, but Globe Democrat says staples, apparel, fuel and consumer goods generally remaining stationary; milk now 18½ cents, butter 79; landlords mostly seeking about 15 per cent higher rents, but some want 150 to even 350 per cent more; meat much more plentiful, prices expected to drop slightly within week or two.

MIAMI, FLA.—Sirloin steak, 55 to 89 cents a pound, compared with 32 to 47 under OPA, other types at comparable prices; milk up to 22 and 23 cents, butter ranges from slightly above OPA's 67 cents to as high as 95; some rent difficulties, American Veterans Committee picketing two apartments where rents were raised.

RECORD CORN CROP REPORTED

Wheat, Oats, Potatoes, Rice Near Top Marks

Washington, July 10 (AP)—A record corn crop and near-record crops of wheat, oats, potatoes and rice were indicated by a Government report today, which said this year's farm production outlook has seldom been surpassed.

The condition of all crops on July 1 was the best in seven years except for 1942. The combined acreage of all crops has been exceeded since 1932 only in the past three years. Further, the indicated yields per acre of most crops are above average.

Perhaps the brightest part of the report was the forecast for grain, for supplies have been reduced to dangerously low levels by exports to hungry areas and by heavy feeding to livestock.

Feed Grain Output Gains

The department said the production of feed grains may be the largest on record. Should final production turn out as now indicated, production of livestock products could be maintained near last year's levels through 1947.

The corn crop was forecast at 3,341,646,000 bushels, compared with the previous record of $3,228,000,000 in 1944. Last year's crop was 3,018,410,000 and production for the ten-year (1935-44) average was 2,608,499,000.

The wheat crop was indicated at 1,090,092,000 bushels, compared with 1,033,000,000 forecast in mid-June, a record of 1,123,143,000 produced last year, and a ten-year average of 843,692,000. Despite the bumper crop, wheat will be insufficient to meet both unrestricted domestic demands and foreign commitments for the year ahead.

Winter Wheat Crop Rises

The winter wheat crop was put at 857,163,000 compared with 823,177,000 last year and a ten-year average of 618,019,000. Durham wheat was forecast at 26,089,000 bushels compared with 35,020,000 last year and a ten-year average of 31,900,000. Production of other spring wheat was indicated at 206,840,000 bushels compared with 264,946,000 last year and a ten-year average of 193,774,000.

The outlook for other crops included:

Rye production may be the smallest since the drought of the 30's. The production of oats—vital as livestock feed—was indicated at a near record of 1,471,026,000 bushels. Barley production was indicated to be the smallest since 1937.

The expected tonnage of hay is below the level of the past four years, but the carryover of old hay is large.

Oil Seeds Not Favorable

One of the least favorable parts of the report was a forecast that production of oil seed crops—soy beans, peanuts and flaxseed—will be below high wartime levels. The oil seeds provide materials for margarine, shortening, salad oils and paints. Supplies of food fats and oils are now far short of domestic demands.

Large crops of tobacco, citrus and most other fruits were forecast.

Production of dry beans and sweet potatoes will be below average.

The report said production of milk and eggs is being maintained at near-record levels.

Many Factors Involved

The aggregate acreage of 52 principal crops on July 1 was indicated at nearly 346,000,000 acres, about 700,000 less than last year.

The department said many factors, in addition to favorable weather, have affected 1946 prospects. An opportunity to get into fields earlier than usual, in March and April, permitted northern farmers to use labor and machinery to the best advantage.

An improvement in the supply of itinerant labor for sugar beets, fruits and beans and the local labor required for tobacco, peanuts and truck crops were said to have made acreage increases feasible for those crops which offer high returns per acre.

The department said sugar production in this country should be about 25 per cent more than in 1945.

The aggregate tonnage of commercial truck crops for the first nine months of the year was indicated to be seven per cent larger than last year and 34 per cent above average.

Phila. Workers Refuse To Buy Milk

Philadelphia, July 10 (AP)—Night-shift workers at the Cramp Shipbuilding Company here last night protested prices of 14 cents for a pint of milk and 10 cents for half pints—a 2-cent increase for both.

Shop stewards, all members of Local 42, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO), picketed plant commissaries, local President Albert Meyers announced.

No worker purchased milk, he said, although 900 pints and half pints regularly are sold each night. He said day-shift stewards will also picket the booths.

In near-by Camden, CIO pickets ringed four dairies in protest of a 3-cent-a-quart increase in milk.

Portland Marts Will Be Picketed

Portland, Ore., July 10 (AP)—Picketing of food markets here where prices have been raised "excessively" will begin tomorrow, the Portland anti-inflation committee announced.

Leroy Hersh, chairman of the group, sponsored by the American Veterans Committee and supported by vote of the CIO Industrial Union Council, said a mass meeting would also be held here Friday night to organize opposition to higher prices.

Ron Roley, president of the CIO council, declared that the union would urge voters to "get a new lineup in Congress," and said congressmen who have helped scuttle price control have "double-crossed American workingmen by emasculating the one bulwark against inflation."

Hardy Testifies May Intervened For War Firm

Asked Only Equal Chance; Royall Reveals Criminal Inquiry Into Combine

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP).—Brigadier General Roswell Hardy testified today that Representative Andrew J. May, Democrat, of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Committee, exerted "influence" on behalf of an Illinois munitions combine, but that he sought only an "equal opportunity" for it with other war contractors. General Hardy, war-time chief of the Ordnance Department's ammunition division, told the Senate War Investigating Committee that Representative May had intervened on several occasions on behalf of Batavia Metal Products Company, a dominant concern in what Chairman James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, has termed a "sprawling paper empire."

In response to a question from Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, General Hardy said he knew of no occasion when Representative May had sought more than an "equal opportunity."

Under Senator Ferguson's pressing examination, General Hardy related that he became aware that "outside influence" was being exercised in behalf of Batavia in late 1944 or early 1945, and that it was "generally known" in the War Department.

Earlier in the day Kenneth C. Royall, Under Secretary of War, disclosed that the Justice Department has opened an inquiry to determine whether criminal proceedings against the promoters of the Illinois combine would be warranted.

He told the Senate committee that he had asked Attorney General Tom C. Clark to look into the complicated financial manipulations of the Erie Basin and the Batavia Metal Products companies, affiliates of the Illinois chain.

He read into the records a response from the Attorney General's office advising the War Department that acceptance of an offer by Batavia to settle an "overpayment" on a war contract might make successful prosecution of a criminal case "more difficult."

The Under Secretary testified that he asked for the inquiry after learning in May about a government "overpayment" to Batavia of more than $1,000,000 on a big contract for bomb parts.

He said that this "overpayment" stemmed from a $4,500,000 advance to Batavia in May of last year—part of which was repaid in the form of deliveries until contract termination left more than $1,000,000 outstanding.

Mr. Royall testified that Batavia had made a "tentative" offer of $959,855.69 to settle the government's claim by paying $140,000 down when an agreement was reached and $50,000 a month thereafter.

Testimony on the "overpayment" and the Justice Department investigation came amid these developments:

1. Three promoters of the munitions combine gave the committee a clear bill of health on statements that the committee's inquiry into their operations was motivated by anti-Semitism. Telegrams came from Mr. Garsson, Allen Bigellman and Joseph T. Weiss, saying the religious issue was raised without their authorization and that it was "without foundation."

2. Introduction of a report by Lieutenant Colonel C. M. Cheatham of the War Department Inspector General's office which said that the chemical warfare service's industrial division in Washington had "restrained" officers in the Chicago district from pressing for a prompt settlement of the overpayment to Batavia.

Colonel Cheatham testified that a conference of Army negotiators in Washington had decided against sending Batavia a firm demand for settlement of the overpayment after telephoning Albert W. Jacobson, legal advisor in the chemical warfare service.

He said that Mr. Jacobson was quoted, in an interoffice memorandum, as telling the conference by telephone that the settlement should be made on a "give and take basis."

As a side issue, the committee delved further into a telegram purportedly signed by Henry Paynter, a publicity man, which Mr. Paynter denied sending. Senator Mead announced that as a result of the denial, Mr. Paynter's testimony of yesterday will be referred to the Justice Department for "proper action."

"Refusal to answer questions and generally contemptuous conduct, grave as they may be, are not comparable to outright perjury or false and fraudulent statements obviously calculated to impede and deter the committee," said a statement which Senator Mead read into the record.

Mr. Paynter told of being hired by Wayne Johnson, New York attorney representing Garsson interests.

The telegram, sent to two Washington newspapers, reported that Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson had numerous recordings of telephone conversations in which Senator Mead, President Truman as a senator, and Senator Ferguson had intervened with the War Department on behalf of contractors. Secretary Patterson yesterday denied this, and Mr. Paynter subsequently said he had not sent the telegram.

Ben Gilbert, city editor of "The Washington Post," and Benedict M. Morgan, rewrite man of "The Washington Times-Herald," testified today, however, that Mr. Paynter previously had acknowledged to them his authorship of the telegram.

'Paper Empire' Traced In War Profit Probe

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Here is the corporate structure of the "sprawling paper empire" that received $78,094,100 in war munitions contracts, as outlined before the Senate War Investigating Committee: (The descriptive phrase is Chairman Mead's (D. N.Y.).

Development of the Illinois combine was traced through three groups:

GROUP 1—Total awards, $44,879,193.

Illinois Watchcase Company incorporated 1895 and bought December 22, 1941, by A. B. Gellman and J. T. Weiss. The fixed assets were valued at $137,400. Eight days later, Gellman and Weiss sold these assets to themselves for $230,400 by dissolving into a new corporation with the same ownership and the same name.

Absorbed Five-Day-Old Firm

Illinois Watchcase Company, which became the surety and war plant for Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., of Elgin, Ill., which was incorporated in Illinois February 4, 1942. Erie Basin absorbed a corporation with the same name organized five days earlier in New York. Its directors were Gellman, Weiss and the Garsson brothers, Henry and Murray. Joseph T. Freeman was its Washington representative.

The committee has obtained testimony that this corporation received its first contract February 28, 1942, and three years later bought a plant in Kansas for $35,000, with the Government agreeing to tool and equip it.

Lumber Company Affiliated

Affiliated with this group was the Cumberland Lumber Company, incorporated in Delaware June 15, 1943, with Henry Garsson as president and for whom Chairman May (D., Ky.) of the House Military Committee has been listed as Kentucky agent. The committee claims that Erie Basin and another affiliated company paid $48,634.07 to Cumberland for lumber that was never delivered.

GROUP 2—Total awards, $30,685,147.

This began with the United States Wind Engine and Pump Company, an 85-year-old concern manufacturing such items as windmills and pumps. It was sold September 27, 1941, to

New Partnership Created

Three liquidating partnerships, among them one owned by the Gellman and Weiss families. This combination the same day formed the United States Wind Engine and Pump Company. On October 31, 1942, the Gellman-Weiss group bought out one of the liquidating partnerships and created a new partnership,

The United States Wind and Pump Company. The next step came when the Batavia Metal Products Company, Inc., was organized in May, 1942, with the Garssons and Weiss among the officials. Its directors formed the United States Engine and Pump Company. Its stock was used as collateral for Batavia to purchase the United States Wind Engine and Pump Company for $400,000. The latter company later bought the Challenge Company, which, on June 22, 1945, was incorporated as the United States Challenge Company to serve as sales representatives for Batavia and the United States Engine and Pump Company.

Other Evolutions Listed

GROUP 3—Total awards, $2,529,760.

This group had its origin with the National Machine Works, incorporated June 4, 1890, and sold to the Weiss and Gellman families, which bought the equipment for $125,000 and leased its real estate for $12,600 a year. They formed the National Machinery Works, Inc., September 6, 1944. The Weiss and Gellman families also owned all the stock in

The Interstate Machinery Company, Inc., of Chicago, Ill., incorporated August 11, 1943. This corporation formed

The Pershing Engineering Company, which did a large percentage of interstate's designing work, and

The Thorndale Building Corporation, which subsequently bought the old National Machine Works real estate.

Arms 'Overpayment' Probed For Royall

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Under Secretary of War Kenneth Royall disclosed today that he had asked the Justice Department for a complete investigation of an "overpayment" of more than $1,000,000 received by Batavia Metal Products Company on a war contract.

He told the Senate War Investigating Committee, digging into the operations of an Illinois munitions combine, that he also had asked Attorney General Tom Clark to inquire into the earnings and costs of Erie Basin Metal Products Company, an affiliate of Batavia.

In a letter to Clark which he made public at the committee hearing, Royall said that he understood that the Justice Department even then was inquiring into the tax affairs of the two companies.

Awaits Full Report

Royall's disclosure came after he had testified earlier that Representative May (D., Ky.), chairman of the House Military Committee, had attributed to him responsibility for an investigation of the Kentucky Congressman's relations with Erie.

Royall told the committee that he first learned of the "overpayment" to Batavia during May through a report from his executive officer.

He then asked for a complete report, he said, of the activities of all persons connected with the overpayment. He said that he had not as yet receive dthat full report, but that he expected it within a day or two.

Preliminary Report Received

Meanwhile, he said, he had received a preliminary report.

Using that as the basis for his testimony, he told the committee that Batavia had received an advance of $4,500,000 in May of 1945 on a contract for construction of bomb components.

Meanwhile, the committee denied that testimony had been suppressed in its investigation of the Illinois munitions combine and announced that company officials will be called to testify soon.

George Meader, committee counsel, said there was a "possibility" that Dr. Henry Garsson, central figure in what Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) has described as a "paper empire," would take the stand before the end of the day.

Challenged By Paynter

The assertion that the committee had not permitted one side of the story to be told was made late yesterday by Henry M. Paynter, Washington public-relations counsel, who said spokesmen for the Garsson interests "told you most of the story in star-chamber proceedings and you suppressed it as you did Congressman May's testimony."

He referred to Chairman May (D., Ky.), of the House Military Committee, who has been pictured as having brought pressure to bear on War Department officials in behalf of the Illinois munitions makers.

Mead Takes Up Challenge

Mead replied that witnesses for the Garsson group would have appeared earlier except that their attorney had requested a postponement.

"There is no gestapo in this committee and there is no suppression of information in this committee," Mead declared.

This interchange occurred after the committee heard Secretary of War Patterson describe these incidents, which occurred while he was Under Secretary:

1. On March 1, 1943, May telephoned with a "complaint" that work had been ordered stopped at the plant of the Batavia Metal

30.24-4067

Products Company, Batavia, Ill. It was explained to May that this was in connection with a cut-back in Army orders.

May's Call To Patterson

2. On March 24, 1945, May telephoned Patterson, "making inquiries as to the possibilities of an Army-Navy "E" award to the Batavia company. Two days later Patterson referred the matter to the Award Board. On April 19, 1945, the Secretary wrote May, informing him the award had been granted.

3. A few days after Patterson had frozen all payments to the Erie Basin Metal Products Company on September 6, 1945, to assure Government recovery of surplus profits, he went to May's office at the latter's request. There he met two men, whose names he could not recall, who protested that the order would "prevent them from getting into civilian production." The Secretary testified that he took no action other than to refer the two men to Col. Maurice Hirsch of the General Staff Corps.

Patterson Denies Favoritism

Patterson emphatically denied that he had done anyone any favors, asserting "I am not in the business of doing favors for anyone."

Earlier army renegotiation officials had testified that the order freezing Erie payments was modified one week after its issuance, the modification having the effect of releasing $723,000 of Government funds to the contractors.

In its final form it restricted only funds sufficient to assure possible collection of $800,000 of excess profits through renegotiation and $974,000 of advance payments.

Paynter Balks At Questions

Paynter's appearance on the stand was marked by his refusal to answer, on grounds of "professional confidence," a series of questions by Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) as to whether he had telephoned or called on May, among others.

He acknowledged authorship of a telegram to the Washington Post in which he charged a "deliberate, conspiratorial and malicious plot on the part of the employés of the Mead committee" and urged that "amends" be made to Representative May.

"I'll freeze in hell before I'll violate any confidence, and I will not answer any more questions on that point," he told Ferguson at one point. Again, he shouted, "You are not going to scare me."

CONGRESS FACES SILVER DEADLOCK

Senate Again Rejects House's Stand On Low Price

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Senators today offered what they termed a "fair compromise" to the House in the long congressional deadlock over the pegged price of silver.

With a chorus of "no's" they again rejected the twice-approved house demand that the Treasury sell its surplus silver at 71.11 cents an ounce.

Instead, the Senate asked that the price of 90.3 cents be authorized, but agreed to drop earlier demands that this automatically increase after two years to $1.29.

House Gave Instructions

Only yesterday the House, by a 266-to-22 vote, had instructed its conferees to stick to 71.11 cents. The Senate today forced another conference.

Meanwhile, industrial users are reported melting down silver dollars and other coins to obtain emergency supplies of the white metal and Treasury and Post Office Department employés are threatened with payless pay days.

The silver price provision is a rider in the annual appropriation bill carrying funds to operate those two departments for the fiscal year that started July 1. The rider has been in dispute between the Senate and House for weeks with both chambers refusing to budge.

Made Futile Effort

Senators Green (D., R.I.), Brooks (R., Ill.) and McMahon (D., Conn.) made a futile effort to get the Senate to agree to the House 71.11-cent price again today.

Green remarked that the Treasury had sold silver at that price for three years up to last December 31. He said that since then silver fabricators, manufacturers of photographic and electrical goods, and jewelers had been forced to suspend production because Congress had not fixed a price. Brooks declared that backers of the higher silver price are trying to get a "little subsidy."

But the veteran Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), regular presiding officer and chairman of the Appropriations Committee, won the shouting votes of both southerners and westerners from silver-producing states for what McKellar said was a "fair and reasonable compromise."

McKellar said silver prices had gone up "enormously," that thousands of Government workers need their pay checks and that the Government could "well afford to let silver go up to 90 cents."

Don't Listen, Vote

"I appeal to you," McKellar said from his front-row seat with arms outstretched, "I beg of you not to carry on this fight, not to listen to either side, but to vote for this compromise."

Senator Murdock (D., Utah) joined McKellar to observe it was not the silver of the West being sold, but "silver that belongs to the people of the United States."

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) wanted to know why industry had not been able to buy foreign silver if the Treasury is unable to dispose of some 219,000,000 ounces it is holding.

Green replied that everybody in the world has been "hoarding silver" awaiting outcome of the congressional dispute and hoping prices would go to 90.3 cents or even $1.29 an ounce.

Senators Quote LaGuardia as Criticizing UNRRA Workers in China.

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—Senators said today Fiorello H. LaGuardia, director-general of the UNRRA, had sharply criticized UNRRA workers in China for making public a protest that relief supplies were being misused there.

These Senators, who asked that their names be kept secret, said that LaGuardia told a closed session of the Senate Appropriations Committee that he had not yet received the cabled protest sent by UNRRA workers in Shanghai even though it had been released to the press. He was said to have described this procedure as wholly unappropriate.

LaGuardia himself declined to give any details to reporters after leaving the committee room, but the Senators said that he had defended his action in cutting off UNRRA shipments to China, except for emergency supplies.

Sees Parallel in East Europe.

The subject came up, Senator Bridges (R.-N. H.) disclosed, when he and other Senators asked LaGuardia why he had halted Chinese shipments and had not "taken similar action as a result of reports of mismanagement and use of relief supplies for political purposes in Yugoslavia, Poland and other countries."

LaGuardia and Assistant Secretary of State W. L. Clayton appeared before the committee to urge approval of a $465,000,000 UNRRA fund already voted by the House and to request removal of a so-called "free press" amendment, which would deny use of the funds to any nation that failed to admit accredited press representatives for the purpose of sending back uncensored reports on UNRRA operations.

Suspension of the relief shipment to China coincided with President Truman's designation of 70-year-old John Leighton Stuart, a veteran Presbyterian missionary, to be Ambassador to China. Diplomatic authorities predicted that Stuart's appointment will bolster Gen. Marshall's attempts to bring about unity in China.

Stuart-Marshall Aid Is Seen

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Diplomatic authorities predicted today the ambassadorial assignment given 70-year-old John Leighton Stuart, veteran Presbyterian missionary, will bolster Gen. George C. Marshall's struggle to unite China's Communist and Nationalist factions.

These officials expressed more cautious optimism, however, in speculating on either the speed or degree of success which Marshall and Stuart may achieve. Some said China's problems appear to be pining up rather than dissolving.

The latest development in the tangled situation came almost simultaneously with President Truman's nomination of Stuart as envoy to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Government.

UNRRA Shipments

UNRRA Director General Fiorello H. LaGuardia announced that effective at noon yesterday all shipments of badly needed relief and rehabilitation supplies—except emergency foods—were being suspended.

He acted after more than half of UNRRA's 400 staff members in China had (1) accused Chiang's Government of failing to get the materials from China's ports to the millions in the interior who needed them, and (2) contended that some relief goods were being diverted for political ends.

LaGuardia's action was one of the most drastic ever taken by UNRRA. It cut off shipments to China of farm machinery, fertilizers, fishing boats, trucks, steel rails, locomotives, clothing and textiles.

Hopes For Clearing Up

UNRRA officials expressed the hope that the situation might be cleared up soon.

But some persons here suggested that LaGuardia's action might have the incidental result of putting Chiang Kai-shek in a tough spot politically, particularly if the suspension lasts long enough for his critics to make political capital out of it.

This would be especially true if LaGuardia carried out his threat, also made public yesterday, to cut off even the food supplies unless they are distributed to UNRRA's satisfaction.

Cheng Pao-nan, representative here for the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, expressed surprise at what he termed LaGuardia's "unilateral action." He denied that there has been an accumulation of UNRRA goods in Shanghai or other Chinese ports.

"Hasty Conclusion"

The Chinese Embassy urged that no "hasty conclusion" be drawn from the UNRRA staff reports from Shanghai.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, Chairman McKellar (D., Tenn.), of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the Chinese dispute would come up for consideration today during LaGuardia's scheduled testimony behind closed doors on a $465,000,000 final UNRRA fund.

The allotment is included in a deficiency appropriation measure already passed by the House.

The difficulties over the UNRRA program in China dramatically spotlighted the situation with which General Marshall and Stuart are confronted in their unification efforts.

Behind the scenes the difficulties are even greater, for officials here report moves by both Nationalist and Communist extremists to try to force American withdrawal so they can fight out their dispute themselves. Each side is said to be motivated by conviction that it could win in an unlimited conflict.

British Credit Action Stalled By Absentees

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Poor attendance of House members for the $3,750,000,000 British loan debate worried Administration leaders today as a showdown vote was set for Saturday on the international issue.

Evidence of inattention of those on hand yesterday, with a buzz of conversation drowning out the speakers, brought a protest from Speaker Rayburn and a scolding from Representative Charles Eaton (R., N.J.).

Eaton declared "this thing called debate is a most abysmal failure."

"We stand here face to face with one of the greatest problems facing the world," he said, "and we treat it as if it were a whistling schoolboy."

Conversations Noisy

Rayburn, who had left the speaker's chair, arose on the floor to protest that the House was not in order, as Eaton sought to address the House in favor of the loan, over the noise of private conversations.

The New Jersey member, a former minister, said he would "not argue against empty seats. I used to do it in church, but I'm not going to do it here."

During most of the debate fewer than 100 of the 433 members remained on the floor. Many members were back in their home districts working for re-election, but Rayburn said he hopes to have them back here Saturday for a vote.

Debate Deferred A Day

on the loan came today after a A 24-hour suspension of debate flurry over Britain's policy in Palestine.

Advocates of a permanent Fair Employment Practices Committee insisted on taking up the regular Wednesday legislative calendar, hopeful of getting an FEPC bill on the docket before Congress adjourns for the summer.

Bloom Indorses Loan

Debate on the loan took a dramatic turn late yesterday when Chairman Sol Bloom (D., N.Y.) of the Foreign Affairs Committee declared:

"This is not a Jewish question. It has nothing to do with the Jewish question in Palestine. I'm voting as an American and not as a Jew. I intend to vote for the British loan."

Bloom had the House clerk read a statement by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, a leader of the Zionist movement, in which Wise said: "Whatever be the wrongdoing of the British Government in Palestine cannot alter my conviction that the British loan is imperatively needed."

Representative Celler (D., N.Y.), frequent critic of Britain's policy in Palestine, called for rejection of the credit.

U. S. New Zealand Settle Lend-lease

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—A lend-lease settlement agreement was signed today by the United States and New Zealand, the State Department announced.

Under the terms of the settlement, signed by Acting Secretary of State Acheson and New Zealand's Finance Minister, Walter Nash, New Zealand will pay $5,500,000 to the United States. The sum will be spent in New Zealand for the purchase of real estate, United States buildings and "for the furtherance of cultural relations of mutual benefit to the two countries."

U. S. Membership Okayed

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Legislation for United States membership in the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organizations was approved today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Two amendments were proposed to the measure already passed by the House.

800,000-soldier Army Is Urged By Eisenhower

Believes Strength Must Be Maintained For 15-20 Years.

WASHINGTON, July 10—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower believes the United States must maintain an army of approximately 800,000 men for the next 15 to 20 years, compared with 188,000 in 1939.

He expressed that belief today to the House military committee as he pleaded for prompt approval of legislation permitting a doubling of the officer personnel of the regular army—from 25,000 to 50,000.

The committee approved the bill, already passed by the Senate. "I can see no possibility in the next 15 to 20 years" of the army's going below 800,000 men, the chief of staff told the committee.

That figure, he explained, would result from a gradual tapering off from the 1,070,000 officers and men expected to be in uniform on July 1, 1947.

Half of the 800,000, he estimated, would be in the air forces.

Of the 50,000 regulars, 27,500 would be assigned to the air forces, 11,000 to ground forces and 11,500 to the service forces.

Many ROTC Products

Many of the new officers, Eisenhower said, would be products of the ROTC and Officer Candidate schools. He asserted his belief that every opportunity should be given to men to rise from the ranks and become officers. Only in that way, he declared, can the army be truly democratic.

The general said he does not believe the West Point Military Academy should be enlarged to provide all the additional officers.

"The source of army officers should never be exclusively West Point," he said, adding that he believes in the old military adage that "every private has a marshal's baton in his knapsack."

"We are getting woefully short of officers," he said, and unless the situation is corrected promptly it is "going to embarrass us very badly."

While the army now has thousands of temporary officers on active duty, he explained, it may lose some of the best unless hope for permanent commissions can be held out.

"It's the most important single personnel problem I have," he told the committee.

Enlistments Up In Army

Washington, July 10 (AP)—An upturn in the number of army volunteers has reversed a two-month downward trend.

Reports to the War Department today showed that 13,094 recruits, the largest number since April, signed up during the week ending June 21. This brought the number of volunteers since the Army's intensive recruiting campaign started last Fall up to 821,884.

Asserting that the upswing may be only temporary, Army officials withheld judgment on whether it would have any bearing on the continuing need for the draft.

During July and August the War Department is relying entirely on recruiting for replacements, and has made no calls on Selective Service for manpower.

The increase in volunteer recruiting, officials noted, coincided with the period when Congress was debating extension of the draft and increasing pay of army personnel.

Tougher Training

Meanwhile, longer and tougher training for officer candidates was ordered today by Gen. Jacob L. Devers, chief of the Army Ground Forces.

Instead of the present seventeen weeks, enlisted men seeking a second lieutenant's commission must undergo 24 weeks training at Fort Benning, Ga., and "only the most promising cadets" will be retained after the first eight weeks, Devers announced.

After graduation, the successful men will undergo two additional months' training at one of fourteen special branch schools.

Three classes of 200 men each will start training at Fort Benning every two months from quotas allotted each arm and service.

Hall Appointed To General Staff

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower rounded out the reorganized War Department general staff today by appointing Lieut. Gen. Charles P. Hall director of the organization and training division.

Hall, a native of Sardis, Miss., and wartime commander of the 11th Army Corps in the Pacific, relieves Brig. Gen. G. L. Eberle, who has been acting chief of the division.

Officer School Made Harder

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP).—Longer and tougher training for officer candidates was ordered today by General Jacob L. Devers, chief of the Army Ground Forces.

Instead of the present seventeen weeks, enlisted men seeking a second-lieutenant's commission must undergo twenty-four weeks of training at Fort Benning, Ga., and "only the most promising cadets" will be retained after the first eight weeks, General Devers announced.

Truman Gets Urn Of Bastogne Soil

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Baron Silvercruys, the Belgian Ambassador, presented to President Truman today an urn of earth from the Bastogne battlefield where American troops had turned back the Germans in the battle of the bulge in early 1945.

The presentation was made on the south lawn of the White House. Belgian officers accompanied the Ambassador, and in the group with Mr. Truman was Maj. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, whose 101st Airborne Division helped to halt the German spearhead.

Mr. Truman accepted the urn in the name of the American people.

President Nominates Washington And Bryan

Washington, July 10 (AP)—George Washington and William Jennings Bryan were back in the news today.

George Thomas Washington, a kinsman of the first President, was nominated by President Truman to be assistant Solicitor General of the United States.

William Jennings Bryan, Jr., son of the three-time Democratic nominee for President, was appointed for a new term as Collector of Customs at Los Angeles.

George T. Washington is a descendant of Col. Samuel Washington, brother of the Revolutionary leader. In the Society of the Cincinnati, made up of descendants of Revolutionary War officers, he represents the first President as his nearest living relative.

Canada Invited To Atom Talks Despite Russia

Gromyko Is Foiled—Invokes Veto For Sixth Time.

F.C. ARPENTER

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP)—Soviet Russia sought unsuccessfully by invoking the veto today to bar Canada from taking part in atomic energy discussions in the United Nations Security Council. Australia simultaneously demanded that the whole veto question be aired at the coming general assembly meeting in September.

Over the objections of Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko, the Security Council invited Canada to the Council table today at a session billed to discuss policies adopted by the atomic energy commission. Canada is one of the nations which helped build the atomic bomb.

Gromyko told the Council he reserved his right to bring up the question later. However, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia in a brief, heated conversation with Gromyko after the Council session said the question applied only to today's meeting; that Canada would have to be invited each time the Council met to sit at the table if the Council held that Canada's interests were involved.

Gromyko insisted after talking with Evatt that "the question is still open."

Evatt Letter Released

The United Nations Secretariat released a letter from Evatt to the secretary-general requesting that the veto question be placed on the agenda of the General Assembly meeting in September. Developments in the Council, in which Russia has invoked the veto five times and sought to do so today, foreshadow an extended debate.

Gromyko did not choose to carry his stand on the veto to the showdown stage at this meeting.

General A. G. L. McNaughton, Canada's representative on the atomic energy commission, sat with the council delegates during part of the heated discussion over whether he should have that right. Canada and the 11 nations on the Security Council make up the atomic energy commission.

When the Council met Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, chairman of the atomic energy commission, proposed formally that Canada be invited to sit with the Council in discussions on atomic matters but without a vote.

Gromyko, who invoked the veto three times at the last Council meeting on the Spanish question, immediately objected. He said it was a new question requiring time for study and asked that it be postponed.

Dr. Costillo Najera, council chairman, called for a vote and the count was nine nations for the resolution, Russia against and Poland abstaining.

Gromyko then announced it was a question of substance and his negative vote was a veto.

U.N. Is Facing Reshuffling Of Plans

C. GROMICH

New York, July 10 (AP)—The United Nations secretariat was confronted today with the probable necessity of reshuffling its manifold arrangements for the General Assembly meeting here in September to avoid a conflict in dates with the Paris peace conference.

The Big Four Foreign Ministers in Paris decided yesterday to ask the United Nations to postpone the Assembly session from September 3 to September 23 because of the probability that the peace conference will be in session on the earlier date.

The shift would involve a rearrangement of living quarters for some 5,000 persons—a problem complicated by the acute housing shortage and the fact that October is one of the two busiest convention months in New York.

Affects Deadlines

It would also disrupt the timing of Security Council actions, such as the deadline for receipt and consideration of new membership applications, which had been pegged on the assumption that the Assembly would meet September 3.

Extraordinary procedures will have to be adopted to permit a postponement, a United Nations spokesman said. These would probably involve circularizing the 51 member nations for their approval.

Steps to be taken may be agreed upon in Europe by the Big Four conferees and Secretary General Trygve Lie, who is inspecting United Nations establishments there. Lie, who anticipated the conflict in dates, wrote the Foreign Ministers before he left New York and asked for details of their plans.

Council To Meet

Meanwhile, the Security Council, after taking the maximum permissible layoff since its stormy debate on the Spanish question fourteen days ago, was summoned into session today to consider routine matters.

There was no indication as to when the Spanish case or the equally controversial Iranian issue would be revived before the Council. Either may be placed on the current agenda in advance of any meeting at the request of any member, but there was no call for discussion of them at today's session.

The Council was expected to devote its immediate attention to ratification of the rules of procedure adopted by its Atomic Energy Commission.

The Council was also expected to fix a date for its next meeting to consider the report of Dr. H. V. Evatt, of Australia, chairman of the atomic commission, on the first phase of negotiations for a world atomic control plan.

Wainwright, 15 GIs Relive Old Memories

MILWAUKEE, July 10 (AP)— Fifteen soldiers and a general met today beneath the bright sun of triumph for the first time and time turned back for them to the long night of a defeat which America well may remember when the victories are forgotten.

Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright stepped from the twin engined plane which brought him, with P-51 escort, from Michigan's Selfridge field, took the flourish of an Army band and greeted local dignitaries assembled at Billy Mitchell field. Then he turned toward a handful of men in faded tropics and that was when time turned back.

The first two men in the unit saluted and the general started to acknowledge it, then put his arms around them instead.

"Gather round me, boys," he said. Thus Wainwright, who in hopelessness became one of history's own generals, met the shattered fragments of the "Janesville Tanks"—A Company, 192nd Tank Battalion, the armor which stood so long between the Japanese and the men of Bataan.

With tears frankly on his face, the general said, "in view of the great tribulations we underwent on northern Luzon—at Bataan and Corregidor—it's a great privilege to be here with you today. God bless you."

Then the general walked quickly away.

SECOND NIGHT LEAD FOREIGN MINISTERS

BY JOSEPH DYNAN

PARIS, JULY 10-(AP)-SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER V.M.MOLOTOV FLATLY OPPOSED TONIGHT ANY PLAN FOR GERMANY'S FUTURE WHICH WOULD DISMEMBER, FEDERALIZE OR REDUCE THE REICH TO THE STATUS OF AN AGRICULTURAL STATE.

HE CALLED FOR THE SETTING UP AT ONCE OF A CENTRAL GERMAN ADMINISTRATION "AS A TRANSITIONAL STEP TOWARD THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A FUTURE GERMAN GOVERNMENT" WITH WHICH THE ALLIES COULD SIGN A PEACE TREATY.

IN A LENGTHY SPEECH TO THE FOUR-POWER FOREIGN MINISTERS COUNCIL ON RUSSIA'S VIEWS ON THE FUNDAMENTAL PROBLEMS OF GERMANY, MOLOTOV DEMANDED:

ESTABLISHMENT OF A SYSTEM OF FOUR-POWER INTERALLIED CONTROL OVER ALL GERMAN INDUSTRIES AND OVER THE KEY RUHR PLANTS IN PARTICULAR. THE RURH NOW IS ADMINISTERED EXCLUSIVELY BY THE BRITISH.

DRAFTING OF A PLAN TO ASSURE GERMAN REPARATIONS DELIVERIES TO THE ALLIES AS A MEANS OF FURTHERING THE "COMPLETE MILITARY AND ECONOMIC DISARMAMENT" OF THE REICH.

MOLOTOV'S STATEMENT ON THE NEED FOR GERMAN CENTRALIZATION PLACED HIM SQUARELY AT ODDS WITH GEORGES BIDAULT, FRENCH PRESIDENT AND FOREIGN MINISTER. BIDAULT DECLARED THAT FRANCE WOULD DISCUSS CENTRALIZATION OF THE REICH ONLY AFTER GERMANY'S WESTERN BOUNDARIES HAVE BEEN FIXED. THE FRENCH HAVE ASKED THAT THE RUHR, RHINELAND AND THE SAAR BE SEPARATED FROM GERMANY.

MOLOTOV DECLARED IT WAS "EASY TO UNDERSTAND THAT WITHOUT THE RUHR GERMANY CANNOT EXIST AS AN INDEPENDENT AND STABLE STATE."

ANY PLAN TO ANNIHILATE GERMANY AS A STATE OR TO TURN HER INTO A RURAL NATION WITH HER MAIN INDUSTRIAL CENTERS DESTROYED WOULD RUN COUNTER TO "THE INTERESTS OF WORLD ECONOMY AND TRANQUILITY IN EUROPE," HE SAID.

SUCH A POLICY, THE SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER ADDED, WOULD TRANSFORM GERMANY INTO A CENTER WHERE "DANGEROUS SENTIMENTS OF REVENGE" WOULD BE NOURISHED AND WOULD "PLAY INTO THE HANDS OF GERMAN REACTIONARIES."

PROPOSALS TO FEDERALIZE GERMANY HAVE BEEN DISCUSSED AS A METHOD OF LESSENING THE CENTRALIZING POWER OF A FUTURE GERMAN GOVERNMENT. DISCUSSING THESE PROPOSALS MOLOTOV SAID:

"THERE HAVE BEEN NOT A FEW INSTANCES IN WHICH ALLIED AUTHORITIES IN THE WESTERN ZONES OF OCCUPATION OF GERMANY HAVE ENCOURAGED THE IDEA OF A FEDERAL STRUCTURE FOR GERMANY. THE ATTITUDE OF ALLIED AUTHORITIES IS ONE THING, WHEREAS, A REAL DESIRE OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE, OR AT LEAST A DESIRE OF THE POPULATION OF SOME PART OF GERMAN TERRITORY IS ANOTHER THING.

"WE, THE SOVIET PEOPLE, HOLD THAT IT IS INCORRECT TO IMPOSE UPON THE GERMAN PEOPLE A SOLUTION OF THIS QUESTION. SUCH AN IMPOSITION WOULD NOT IN ANY CASE PRODUCE ANY GOOD IF ONLY FOR THE REASON THAT IT WILL BE PRECARIOUS."

HE EXPLAINED THAT NATURALLY RUSSIA WOULD NOT OBJECT TO FEDERALIZATION OF GERMANY OR THE SEPARATION OF FORMER GERMAN STATES FROM THE REICH IF PLEBISCITES REVEALED THAT SUCH CHANGES CONFORMED TO THE EXPRESSED WISHES OF THE GERMANS THEMSELVES.

DURING THEIR THREE-HOUR DEBATE THE FOREIGN MINISTERS RETURNED AGAIN TO CONSIDERATION OF U.S. SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES F.BYRNES' PROPOSAL FOR A 25-YEAR TREATY TO INSURE GERMAN DISARMAMENT.

BIDAULT HAILED THE AMERICAN PROPOSAL AS A BULWARK TO EUROPEAN SECURITY AND SAID THE MATTER WOULD BE STUDIED SYMPATHETICALLY BY FRENCH OFFICIALS. HE EXPRESSED THE VIEW THAT IT COULD "PROMOTE THE SOLIDARITY OF THE ALLIES WITH REGARD TO THE EVER-POSSIBLE DANGER OF A GERMAN MILITARY REBIRTH."

MOLOTOV, WHO YESTERDAY CHARACTERIZED BYRNES' PROPOSAL AS "WHOLLY INADEQUATE", SAID TODAY HE WOULD STUDY IT FURTHER.

BOTH BIDAULT AND BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ERNEST BEVIN APPROVEDL BYRNES' VPROPOSAL TO APPOINT SPECIAL DEPUTIES TO STUDY GERMAN ISSUES AND REPORT BACK TO THE MINISTERS COUNCIL SOMETIME LATER THIS YEAR.

MOLOTOV, HOWEVER, MAINTAINED IT WAS TOO SOON TO APPOINT SUCH A COMMISSION AND URGED INSTEAD THAT THE FOREIGN MINISTERS HOLD A SPECIAL MEETING LATER THIS YEAR TO DISCUSS GERMAN QUESTIONS EXCLUSIVELY.

CENTERING THE DISCUSSION ON THE PRESENT ZONAL ADMINISTRATION OF GERMANY, BEVIN COMPLAINED THAT THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT HAD PREVENTED FULFILLMENT OF POTSDAM PLEDGES TO ALLOW EXPORT AND IMPORT EXCHANGES AMONG THE VARIOUS ALLIED ZONES OF OCCUPATION IN GERMANY.

DECLARING THE BRITISH OCCUPATION ZONE WAS COSTING BRITAIN $320,000,000 A YEAR, BEVIN DEMANDED THAT GERMANY BE TREATED AS AN ECONOMIC UNIT AND PROMISED THAT THE BRITISH ZONE WOULD COOPERATE WITH OTHRR ZONES ON A BASIS OF RECIPROCITY.

BRITISH SOURCES QUOTED BEVIN AS SAYING THAT THERE SHOULD BE AN INSPECTION OF THE VARIOUS ZONES TO INSURE GERMANY'S DISARMAMENT. THE BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY SAID HE HAD RECEIVED REPORTS--WHICH HE HAD NOT ACCEPTED AS NECESSARILY ACCURATE--THAT THE MANUFACTURE OF MUNITIONS WAS CONTINUING IN THE RUSSIAN ZONE. FOR SMOOTH RELATIONS AMONG THE POWERS, HE ADDED, THIS SITUATION SHOULD BE EXAMINED AND ALL "FALSE REPORTS" LAID TO REST.

BEVIN SUPPORTED BYRNES' REQUEST TO MOLOTOV TO INSTRUCT THE RUSSIAN

MEMBER OF THE ALLIED CONTROL COUNCIL IN BERLIN TO PERMIT A FOUR-POWER INVESTIGATION OF ALL THE ZONES--WITH THE INVESTIGATION COVERING BOTH MILITARY AND ECONOMIC DISARMAMENT.

AT THE END OF THE SESSION BEVIN SUBMITTED A PAPER CALLING FOR IMMEDIATE CONSIDERATION OF GERMANY AS AN ECONOMIC UNIT, AND MOLOTOV SUBMITTED ONE CALLING FOR A FOUR-POWER COMMISSION TO INQUIRE INTO GERMAN DEMOBILIZATION IN THE FOUR ZONES. BOTH MATTERS WILL BE DISCUSSED BY THE MINISTERS TOMORROW.

IN HIS OUTLINE OF RUSSIAN POLICY ON GERMANY, MOLOTOV SAID THAT PROPOSALS FOR THE DISMEMBERMENT OF GERMANY WERE BASED UPON AN IDEA OF DESTRUCTION OF THE GERMAN STATE WHICH THE SOVIET UNION COULD NOT ACCEPT.

Central Rule in Germany Is Demanded by Byrnes

DYNAM

Beaten Nation Must Have Economic Unity, Says U. S. Minister.

PARIS, July 11 (AP)—Secretary of State James F. Byrnes called tonight for the establishment of a central administration in Germany to give the beaten nation economic unity and declared that the "American government has never sought to impose a peace of vengeance" upon the Reich.

Byrnes further told the four-power foreign ministers council that if an agreement was not reached now on a centralization plan, the United States wanted an economic merger of any two or more of the present four Allied zones of occupation.

NIGHT

Explains U.S. Policy

In two statements Byrnes gave a detailed account of American policy on Germany. The American secretary expressed the hope that the British threat to go ahead immediately with autonomous control of the British zone could be avoided.

Byrnes defined America's position 24 hours after Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov had pictured Russia as favoring a reunified and self-sufficient Germany. Both men said they regarded the revival of Germany's peaceful industries as essential to the economic revival of Europe.

Byrnes said the government of the United States believed that:

1—While Germany's economic revival along peaceful lines is essential, this revival of the Reich should not be given "priority over the economic revival of countries Germany has devastated."

2—The Allies now should make clear to the German people the essential terms of the peace settlement which the Germans will be expected to accept and observe. This step should be taken, Byrnes explained, "to give democratic forces in Germany a chance to assert themselves."

Opposes Mass Occupation

3—Allied controls and small security forces must be maintained in Germany for a long period "but mass occupations and occupation government of Germany, if extended over a prolonged period, will defeat our purposes."

4—The Germans must be given a "chance to minimize" by their own efforts the difficulties and hardships they are going to experience. If the Germans "are not given that chance they will ascribe their difficulties and hardships to the Allied occupation and not to the devastating war of aggression which their leaders brought upon them and the world."

5—The four-powered foreign ministers should appoint special deputies to set up machinery "to work out definite lines" of a German peace settlement.

Byrnes made his statement after Molotov had called for the setting up at once of a central German administration "as a transitional step toward the establishment of a future German government" with which the Allies could sign a peace treaty.

Demands Four-Power Control

Molotov also said that Russia opposed any plan which would dismember, federalize or reduce Germany to the status of an agricultural state. The Soviet foreign minister demanded the establishment of a system of four-power interallied control over all German industries and over the key Ruhr plants in particular and asked that a plan be drafted to assure German reparation deliveries to the Allies.

The five-hour meeting of the ministers today produced no agreements. But the ministers decided that they would hold a special meeting on German problems in the autumn after the adjournment of the United Nations General assembly in New York. The date for the ministers' autumn session was not fixed.

While Byrnes and Molotov were placing themselves on record in favor of centralization, the French delegation heard with open dismay British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's statement that Britain was going ahead immediately with "autonomous" control of its zone.

Bevin took his stand in the light of the council's inability to agree on an inter-zonal exchange of goods which he proposed yesterday in order to reduce Britain's huge occupation costs. Bevin's proposal was similar in its aim to the economic merger plan advanced by Byrnes.

A French spokesman said this was an "extremely grave" decision because it meant Britain was going to set about putting German industry back on its feet.

Byrnes said his offer for economic merging extended to all zones and explained that conversations already had been carried on with some British and some Russian officials on the subject. He did not identify the officials.

The American secretary said the merging plan would be open at all times on equal terms for the participation of any government which did not elect to participate in the beginning.

French delegation members made no secret of the fact that they were not enthusiastic about the plan for the economic unity of Germany, but said they would accept the proposal "since that seems to be the only way of settling the reparations question."

Referring to the present zonal system in the Reich, Byrnes said: "We cannot continue indefinitely to administer Germany in four air-tight compartments."

He said the United States was willing to exclude the Saar from the authority of any central German agency so that it could be administered by the French government, as at present, until Germany's western boundaries finally were determined.

Georges Bidault, French president and foreign minister, has refused to discuss any liberalization of German occupation rule until the Ruhr, the Rhineland and the Saar are detached from Germany.

French Communists today joined with other members of the French cabinet in giving unanimous endorsement to this policy.

Thus the French Communists—often accused by their opponents of taking orders from Moscow—have placed themselves behind Bidault and against the Russian stand as outlined by Molotov.

Text of Byrnes's Statements on Germany

PARIS, July 11 (AP).—The complete text of a statement by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes to the Council of Foreign Ministers on American policy on establishment of central controls in Germany:

I hope that we can avoid the situation outlined by Mr. Bevin. I still hope that my colleagues at this meeting will agree to the establishment of central German administrative agencies necessary to secure economic unity in Germany.

The United States will agree that the Saar region be excluded from the authority of these central agencies so that it can be administered, as at present, by the French government until the western boundaries are finally determined.

If the Council cannot agree upon central administrative agencies, then the United States, as a last resort, makes another suggestion. At present no zone of Germany can be regarded as fully self-sustaining. Treatment of any two zones as an economic unit would improve conditions in both zones.

Recently officials of the United States zone have met with officials of the United Kingdom zone to discuss agricultural policies. Meetings have been held between German economic officials from the Soviet and United States zones during which agreement was reached, with the approval of the military governments, for the exchange of some products.

ing administration of Germany as an economic unit, the United States will join with any other occupying government or governments in Germany for treatment of our respective zones as an economic unit.

We are prepared to instruct our military representatives in Germany to proceed immediately with the representatives of any other occupying government to establish German administrative machinery for the administration of our zones as an economic unit.

It is the view of the United States delegation that such arrangement could be accomplished without interference with the existing quadripartite government of Germany. The proposed arrangement should at all times be open on equal terms for participation of any government which did not elect to participate in the beginning. This proposal is not intended to divide Germany, but on the contrary to expedite its treatment as an economic unit.

We cannot continue to administer Germany in four airtight compartments, preventing, as I stated a few days ago, exchange between the four zones of goods, communications and even ideas. The condition of the present situation will result in inflation and economic paralysis. It will result in increased costs to the occupying powers and unnecessary suffering to the German people.

The United States is unwilling to share responsibility for continuance of such conditions. We feel it our duty to exhaust every effort to secure the co-operation of the occupying powers in administering Germany as an economic unit.

Reply to Molotov

The compete text of a statement by Mr. Byrnes on American policy regarding treatment of Germany, a statement in reply to the Russian policy statement made Wednesday by Soviet Foreign Minister Viacheslav M. Molotov:

The American government has never sought to impose a peace of vengeance upon Germany. The American government regards the economic revival of Germany as essential to the economic revival of Europe. It favors industrial revival of Germany on peaceful lines. It does not favor and has never favored, however, giving economic revival of Germany priority over economic revival of countries Germany has devastated.

The American government has supported and will continue to support necessary measures to denazify Germany and to give democratic forces in Germany a chance to assert themselves. But the American government does not believe that the democratic forces in Germany can assert themselves unless they are given a fair chance to do so.

The American government is convinced that the way to give democratic forces in Germany a chance to assert themselves is for the Allies to make clear to the German people the essential terms of the peace settlement which they expect the German people to accept and observe.

The Allies should make clear just what the disarmament which they expect the German people to observe means. They should make clear the reparations deliveries which they expect to exact, so that the German people will know that the harder they work the sooner they will be permitted to share in the benefits of that work.

Should Define Boundaries

The Allies should make clear to the Germans what the future boundaries of Germany will be and the limits within which Germans may govern themselves. They should make clear to the Germans that so long as they observe clear the definite standards laid down by the Allies, there will be no interference with their efforts to rebuild their economic and political life for the benefit of themselves and of Europe as a whole.

Talk of a long or short occupation is misleading. Controls and small security forces must be reserved for a long period of time to ensure Germany's observance of the terms of agreed settlement. But mass occupations and occupation governments of Germany, if extended over a prolonged period, will defeat our purposes. The Germans are, at best, going to experience difficulties and hardships. They must be given a chance to minimize those difficulties and hardships by their own efforts. If they are not given that chance they will ascribe their difficulties and hardships to Allied occupation and not to the devastating war of aggression which their leaders brought upon them and the world.

It is therefore the duty of the Allies to set up machinery to work out the definite lines of a peace settlement which they expect Germany to accept and observe. I urge upon my colleagues that we should appoint special deputies for this purpose and give them directives.

If we fail to do this we will be confessing to the world our own lack of constructive purpose and our inability to agree, and will betray millions who died in order that freedom might live.

REDS EMERGE AS CHAMPIONS OF GERMANY

Molotov's Policy Speech Calls for a Nation Self-sufficient.

J. DYNAN

OPPOSES DISMEMBERMENT

Some See Statement as Bid for Popularity in Reich and as Aid to Communists.

Paris, July 11 (A. P.).—Russia emerged today as the champion of a reunified and self-sufficient Germany on the basis of a policy-charting speech yesterday by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov.

Addressing his colleagues on the Foreign Ministers Council, Molotov flatly opposed the dismemberment or federization of Germany or reduction of the Reich to an agricultural state.

The speech was the first clear-cut expression of the Kremlin's attitude toward Germany since the end of the war. Some quarters here were inclined to write off the address as a Russian bid for popularity within the Reich, and as a move to strengthen the forces of German Communists.

It was generally conceded that Molotov, in the eyes of the average German, now stood for a Germany governed by Germans, and for the return of a decent standard of living.

French official quarters expressed dismay that the Russian policy of unification was in direct conflict with the French proposal to separate the Ruhr, the Saar and the Rhineland from the remainder of the Reich.

But France's Foreign Minister and President, Georges Bidault, won a victory at home in the conference backyard. The French Cabinet unanimously voted today to uphold his stand on Germany to date, which included a demand for internationalizing the Ruhr and which contributed to delaying a unified four-Power Germany policy. The Information Ministry said Communist Ministers voted for the Bidault motion.

Resumes German Debate.

It was not immediately clear whether the Russian statement of policy would delay the adjournment of the council, tentatively planned for this week end. The Ministers were called into session today to resume discussions on Germany. They are scheduled to approve final drafts of peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Finland on Saturday.

[Paris correspondents say there will be a full statement today by Secretary of State Byrnes on the future of Germany, BBC, heard by NBC, said today.]

Molotov urged the Ministers not to be governed by "the spirit of revenge" in dealing with Germany, and said that Russia would not object to the splitting up of the Reich if plebiscites should show that this was the desire of the Germans involved. He urged the immediate creation of a central German administration "as a transitional step toward the establishment of a future German government" with which the Allies eventually could sign a peace treaty.

Asks 4-Power Controls.

"Our purpose is not to destroy Germany but to transform Germany into a democratic and peace-loving state which, next to its agriculture, will have its own industry and foreign trade, but which will be deprived of economic and military potentialities to rise again as an aggressive force," Molotov said.

He called for the establishment of a system of four-Power control over German industries and over key Ruhr plants in particular. At present the Ruhr is administered exclusively by the British.

Molotov also demanded that a plan be drafted to assure the delivery of German reparations to the Allies as a means of furthering the "complete military and economic disarmament" of the Reich.

Opposes U.S. Proposal

The Russian Foreign Minister urged that the Council meet later this year to discuss German questions exclusively. He opposed a proposal by United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that special deputies be appointed to study the German situation and report back to the Council.

Byrnes's suggestion was supported by the other two members of the Big Four—Georges Bidault, French President and Foreign Minister, and Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Secretary.

Bevin complained that Russia had prevented fulfillment of Potsdam pledges to allow import and export exchanges among the various Allied zones of occupation in Germany. He submitted a paper asking for immediate consideration of Germany as an economic unit.

MINISTERS AT PARIS NEAR ADJOURNMENT

PARIS, July 11—(AP) Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov asked the four-power foreign ministers council today to clear up its slate and adjourn by tomorrow afternoon.

Telling of the Russian's request, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, an American advisor, said in a jocular vein:

"Molotov wanted to pull down the iron curtain tomorrow night. But I think it will be Saturday night at least."

YANKS FLEE IN LONDON

London, July 11 (A. P.).—The American Military Police and Scotland Yard men searched London today for two American military prisoners who held up their four guards and escaped yesterday in the Army truck in which they were being taken from Southampton to the Tidworth Detention Barracks.

The military authorities identified the two men as Staff Sgt. Charles Noonan, a 24-year-old parachute trooper, and Charles de Bruin, a merchant seaman. Their home towns and the charges on which they were sentenced were not available, military officials said, because Noonan's records were "on the Continent" and the Army had no file on De Bruin. The police found the truck abandoned in a suburb of London early today.

CAPT. COBIN'S WIFE WAITS IN BERLIN

Berlin, July 11 (A. P.).—Mrs. Mary Cobin of 224 West Runyon street, Newark, N. J., was at first frightened when told by newspaper men on her arrival in Berlin that her husband, Capt. Harold Cobin, was one of the four Americans who disappeared last week into the Russian zone and who, apparently, are being held there for unauthorized entry. She felt reassured soon afterward, however, when told that there had been such cases previously.

Mrs. Cobin was with a group of other Army men's dependents who arrived here to join their husbands. The others were met by their husbands at the Wannsee railroad station.

AMERICAN SLAIN IN MUNICH

Brooklyn Soldier and German Girl Shot in Park

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, Germany, July 11 (AP)—The American Third Army announced today that a 19-year-old American soldier had been killed last Saturday night while sitting on a Munich park bench with a German girl.

The soldier was identified as Pfc. Nunzio F. Raia of 95 Degraw Street, Brooklyn. The announcement said that the girl, Martha Lukow, had been wounded in the shoulder by a second shot from the killer's gun. The unidentified killer, whose tracks were obliterated by rain, apparently crept up behind the couple, firing, first, a bullet that pierced Private Raia's right shoulder and entered his heart, the announcement said.

U.S. Soldier Kills Russian Sentry

Heidelberg, Germany, July 11 (AP)—An American soldier shot and killed a Russian sentry on the American-Soviet zonal border in Germany last Sunday after the Russian bayonetted a German woman on the United States side of the line, the 3d Army provost marshal announced today.

The announcement said United States and Soviet authorities had determined that the American constabulary trooper "fired in self-defense" when the Russian charged him with a fixed bayonet.

British To Destroy Helgoland Naval Base

Herford, Germany, July 11 (AP)—The British said officially today that the former German naval base of Helgoland would be destroyed to eliminate its future war potential.

"There can be no peacetime application for miles of tunnels 150 feet below the ground, U-boat pens, permanent gun batteries and the artificial harbor in the island, a mile and a half long and a half mile wide," the announcement said.

The date of the demolition was not announced.

FRICK DEFENDED AS BUREAUCRAT IN HITLER REGIME

NUERNBERG, July 11—(AP) Defense attorneys today portrayed Wilhelm Frick, Hitler's minister of the interior, as just a "bureaucrat" performing a civil service job, and Hans Frank, former governor-general of Poland, as a man who had tried on 14 occasions to quit the Hitler government.

Frick's attorney, Dr. Otto Pannenbecker, in a final defense summary before the International Military tribunal, said Frick never was taken into the Fuehrer's confidence, and had carried out his civil service administrative job within legal bounds.

"Frick was a true specialist in domestic administration who was not considered competent for military, foreign, or political questions," he said.

"He was good enough for establishment of a civilian administration in case of any possible war, according to Hitler's opinion, but the latter's foreign, political, and military plans were none of the former's (Frick's) business."

Pannenbecker said the Gestapo originated within Frick's department, but that Frick never had actual supervision of it, that that was completely Himmler's domain. Frick objected frequently to the conduct of the secret police but Hitler and Himmler ignored him, he added.

Dr. Alfred Seidl, attorney for Frank, said Hitler refused to accept Frank's resignation each time it was offered.

Frank, he added, became so disturbed over the change in Germany from a state based on law to a state governed by police brutality that he tried to bring the matter to public attention, but the only consequence was that Hitler forbade him to speak in public.

Seidl said Frank avoided force in the recruitment of Poles for work in Germany, that he fought against the methods of the police in that occupied country, and that he had nothing to do with the administration of the Oswiecim concentration camp.

Nazi 'Tried 14 Times' To Quit Poland Post

Nuernberg, July 11 (AP)—Counsel for Hans Frank told the International Military Tribunal today that the former Governor General of Poland tried fourteen times to sever his ties with the Hitler Government, but that Hitler refused to accept his resignation.

The attorney, Dr. Alfred Seidl, said Frank was so disturbed by the Reich's change from a state based on law to a state governed by police brutality that he finally undertook to call the matter to the public's attention.

"Constant Battle" With Police

He said that Frank, in four speeches to German attorneys in 1943, repudiated "every form of police state and championed the idea of a state resting on law and independence of the judiciary."

Frank fought a constant battle with the police in Poland and lost each time, Seidl said. As Bavarian leader before the war he demanded dissolution of the infamous Dachau concentration camp, the attorney added.

He declared that the administration of the Oswiecim concentration camp in Poland was not under Frank's direction and that Frank had avoided forced recruitment of Poles for work in the Reich.

Allies Are Accused

The attorney argued that the concentration camps as such are all right, declaring that the Allies have imprisoned upward of 300,000 Germans for their political beliefs.

As for alleged German violations of the rules of warfare in the Polish campaign, the Allies killed more than 1,000,000 civilian in air-raids, including 300,000 in Dresden alone, and many thousands more by atomic bombs in Japan, Seidl said.

Kilian's Command To Be Tougher Told

Officer Defendant Accuses Lichfield Commander

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 11 (AP).—Major Richard E. LoBuono told an American military court today that Colonel James A. Kilian, former commander of the United States Army detention camp at Lichfield, England, once ordered him to "be tougher" on guardhouse prisoners there.

"I said I just couldn't do it," said LoBuono, and added that he subsequently was removed from supervision of the guardhouse. LoBuono himself is awaiting trial. He was formerly a Lichfield provost marshal.

LoBuono, whose home is in East Pittsburgh, Pa., testified also that Kilian "tried to color my testimony" by "pressure" at the start of the present long series of Lichfield trials, in which nine enlisted men and two officers have been convicted of committing or permitting cruelties on soldier prisoners. He did not describe the nature of the "pressure" he said had been brought upon him.

LoBuono told the court, in response to a question, that it was Kilian who made all the rules and determined all the policies regarding the operation of the guardhouse. Kilian, a veteran cavalry officer from Highland Park, Ill., is charged with aiding and authorizing the beating and mistreatment of prisoners while he was in command at Lichfield.

73 Guilty of Killing Yank P. W.'s

Three S S Generals Involved in Slaughter of 900 Americans and Belgians.

Dachau, July 11 (A. P.).—Seventy-three Waffen S S veterans, including three generals, were found guilty by an American military court today of the slaughter of 900 American war prisoners and Belgian civilians in the Battle of the Bulge.

The president of the court, speaking after an hour's deliberation, announced all seventy-three defendants were "found guilty of the particulars and charges."

The defendants included Gen. Josef (Sepp) Dietrich, commander of the Sixth Panzer Army and survivor of Hitler's original beer hall putsch in nearby Munich; Lieut.-Gen. Hermann Priess, commander of the First S.S. Panzer Corps; Brig.-Gen. Fritz Kraemer, chief of staff of the Sixth Panzer Army.

The burden of prosecution evidence was directed against Col. Joachim Peiper, daredevil commander of "Task Force Peiper," whose men participated in the massacre of unarmed American prisoners at Malmedy.

Largest Mass Conviction.

After the verdict of the stern-faced American officers serving as judges was made known, defense counsel began presenting evidence that might be considered as extenuating when sentence is passed, possibly early next week.

Spectators were generally surprised that all 73 defendants had been convicted. It was the largest mass conviction yet handed down by American justice against accused German war criminals.

Peiper, like his fellow prisoners, took the court's announcement stoically. An American lieutenant colonel, Hal D. McCown, flew the Atlantic to testify in his defense, telling how a number of American captives were released by Peiper when the Germans were thrown back in the Ardennes counter-offensive.

The prosecution at the last minute dropped charges against one of the original seventy-four defendants, Marcel Boltz, a 19-year-old Alsatian machine gunner. Boltz testified against his former comrades and said he had been promised repatriation to France.

Pleads for Leniency.

Col. Willis Everett of Atlanta, Ga., a member of defense counsel, pleaded for leniency for all the accused before the court retired.

Accusing the prosecution of "tricks, ruses and beatings," Everett declared: "Does the Army of the United States generally conduct its affairs in this manner? You and I know the answer. Our Army is hard, but fair."

"May it never be said," he continued, "that stark retribution has been found to masquerade in a military Government cloak of false legalism."

Summarizing the eight-week trial, Everett quoted from the works of Thomas Payne: "He that would make his own liberty secure must guard even his enemy from oppression."

73 Germans Guilty in Massacre Of American Prisoners in Belgium

Three Generals Among Those Convicted for Slayings During 1944 Battle in Ardennes —One Defendant Cleared

DACHAU, Germany, July 11 (AP)—An American military court today convicted seventy-three Elite Guards, including three generals, of the slaughter of 900 American war prisoners and Belgian civilians in the battle of the Bulge in December, 1944.

The sentences, possibly death, may be pronounced next week. The verdict was the largest mass conviction yet handed down by American justice against German war criminals.

The prosecution at the last minute dropped charges against one of the original seventy-four defendants, Marcel Boltz, a 19-year-old Alsatian machine-gunner. He testified against his former comrades and said he had received a promise of repatriation to France.

The defendants included Col. Gen. Josef (Sepp) Dietrich, commander of the Sixth Armored Division and survivor of Adolf Hitler's original beer-hall putsch; Lieut. Gen. Hermann Priess, commander of the First Elite Guard Armored Corps, and Brig. Gen. Fritz Kraemer, Chief of Staff of the Sixth Armored Division. Most of the prosecution's evidence was directed against Col. Joachim Peiper, daredevil commander of "Task-Force Peiper," whose men participated in the massacre of unarmed American prisoners at Malmedy.

Lieut. Col. Hal D. McCown had flown the Atlantic to testify in Peiper's defense. Colonel McCown said that a number of American captives had been released by Peiper when the Germans were thrown back in their Ardennes counter-offensive in December, 1944.

The prosecution used a number of statements from the defendants to show that the Elite Guards had been instructed to wage warfare ruthlessly and, in effect, authorized to kill prisoners when the break-through effort was launched. Its witnesses included several Americans who escaped death at Malmedy. The Germans were charged with killing 750 Americans and 150 Belgians.

MIKHAILOVICH ASKS MERCY

Reviews Career and Says He Hated Germans.

Belgrade, July 11 (A. P.).—The trial of Gen. Draja Mikhailovich moved swiftly toward its climax today following the former Yugoslav War Minister's final plea for his life, in which he voiced "an absolute hatred for the Germans" and denied charges that he had collaborated with them.

In a four-hour address yesterday to the war crimes tribunal before which he and twenty-three others are on trial, Mikhailovich reviewed his career as leader of the Chetniks and asked the court "to be fair in its evaluation of my work."

"I do not say that I made no mistakes, but every one was making mistakes," Mikhailovich declared as he pictured for the tribunal the "whirlpool of events and difficulties" with which he was confronted.

The Chetnik chieftain, hailed by the Allied world as the leader of Yugoslav resistance forces in 1941, referred frequently to his notes as he sought to refute the testimony of prosecution witnesses that his men had fought side by side with the Germans against Marshal Tito's Partisans.

He declared that he had "never made an agreement with any enemy," that he had always maintained a hostile attitude toward the Germans and had fought constantly for the Balkan unity of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Albania, Romania, Greece and Hungary.

"I was in favor of a Balkan union because I felt that through it a greater state could be forged," he said.

Pleading that he had been swept into the confusion of political intrigue when his only interest was to drive out the Germans, Mikhailovich asserted that "events turned against me as (against) no other man."

He ended his plea by declaring: "I am a soldier. I organized resistance against the Germans. I am sorry that any one could think that I was not being loyal to my country."

Jews in Flight From Poland

Huge Exodus Under Way as Pogrom Sequel —25,000 Massed Near Czech Border.

Warsaw, July 11 (A. P.).—A mass exodus of thousands of Jews was reported under way today in Poland, scene of a recent pogrom that resulted in forty-one deaths.

Twenty-five thousand Jews reportedly repatriated from Russia, there was "great interest in the are concentrated at Walbrzych, coal mining city southwest of Wroclaw and twelve miles form the Czecho-Slovakia border, awaiting a chance to leave the country. Others are coming through the mountain passes daily in caravans and trucks, with Palestine as their ultimate destination.

[A dispatch from Nachod, Czecho-Slovakia, said that hundreds of frightened Jews, fleeing from Poland, were arriving at that frontier city daily.]

A Jewish leader said that hundreds of Jews were leaving Walbrzych daily, either crossing the frontier on foot or unguarded points or paying some one to help them cross by other methods. All through Lowker Silesia Jews from Russia are banding together to protect themselves against any anti-Jewish outbreaks.

United States Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane told Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski yesterday that military authorities in the American zone of Germany were "perturbed" over the possibility of an increased influx of Jews because of the recent pogrom in Kielce. He discussed the

Served in Moscow

Atkinson was The Times' correspondent in Moscow from August, 1945, to May, 1946. He and his wife left the Soviet capital about a month ago to return to the United States.

(Atkinson went to the Soviet capital after serving about three years as a war correspondent in China for The Times. A native of Melrose, Mass., and a Harvard graduate, he had been drama critic of The Times from 1925 to 1942.

(His views on Russia were published by The Times this week in a series of three articles. He declared that while the Russian people were sincere and good-hearted, they were ruled by a totalitarian, anti-foreign government whose leaders have a phobia about the rest of the world.

(He said Soviet leaders were victims of their own isolation and unable to analyze information from abroad because they have lived all their lives behind an "iron curtain," a phrase which Atkinson declared was "marvelously apt."

Lauds Russian People

("On the whole the Russian people are admirable people—genuine, hard working and practical," he wrote. "You can trust their strength, native intelligence and courage.

("But between us and the Russian people stands the Soviet government. Despite its sanctimonious use of the word 'democracy' it is a

Government Anti-Foreign

("The spirit of the Soviet government is anti-foreign. Ever since the bloody purges of 1936 there has been a nameless terror about foreigners, who are regarded as spies and enemies of the Soviet Union."

("Whether the Soviet government and the Communist party, which are virtually identical, are promoting revolutionary changes in the United States and Great Britain is not circumstantially known, although there is reason to believe that they are meddling in the politics of France by subsidizing and advising the French Communist party.")

Zaslavsky said that Atkinson was "repeating old twaddle without noting in what a laughable, foolish position he was placing himself" in Those sentenced to die were: Josef Sliwa, Antoni Pruszkowski, Kasimierz Nowakowski, Stefan Mzur, Edward Jurkowski, Josef Pokrzywinski, Julian Chorazak, Wlabysla Blachut and Josef Kuklinski.

The government charged that the woman defendant and Jurkowski were the ringleaders of the mob. Sliwa, Pruszkowski, Nowakowski and Mzur were charged specifically with seizing a Jewish woman and child during the rioting, taking them to the outskirts of the city and killing them after attacking the woman and beating the child.

Admitted "Qualified Guilt"

The trial opened two days ago and the government had promised swift action. All the defendants, upon examination by a military prosecutor, had admitted participation and "qualified guilt" in the attacks, but resisted prosecution attempts to show specific killings.

As the trial opened government investigators said that the rumor which started the pogrom—the tale of an eight-year-old boy that Jews had threatened him with death—was found to be false with the boy's confession.

The boy, Henryx Blaszczyk, had told militiamen on July 4 that he had been imprisoned by Jews. His confession brought out that at the time he actually was at the home of friends of his father in the neighboring village of Piekarki.

The investigation described the child as a "tool" of "fascist reactionaries" who they said were imitating Hitler methods of starting riots against Jews.

Many relatives of the 41 persons killed, and the 40 wounded in the mob action, were among the spectators as the 12 defendants were brought into the courtroom under heavy militia and security police guard.

During the trial yesterday, one defendant testified that stones and boards were used to beat Jews to death and identified several of his co-defendants as having participated in the rioting.

American and British field security forces ranged the city in jeeps to break up fights and Francesco Magnelli, police inspector, predicted "large-scale bloodshed" in the next few days unless passions quieted.

By noon not a single shop in Trieste was open, and streetcars were halted.

As the strikers began moving back, hundreds of Italian youths appeared in the Via Carduccio and attacked several individual strikers.

One large group attempted to attack Communist party headquarters but was beaten back by the civil police. When the crowd cleared there was blood on the street before the building.

Greek Troops Repel 'Albanian Attacks'

Athens, July 11 (AP)—Dispatches from Albanian frontier today reported that Greek troops had repelled a new series of attacks on frontier posts by Albanian forces. The latest attacks were launched at Kakavia and Krostovitsi by superior and heavily armed Albanian troops.

Greek guards took seven prisoners during the fighting, in which the Albanians were assisted by members of the ELAS, military arm of the EAM coalition of Greek Leftist parties, the dispatches added.

Yesterday reports from Yannina said a Greek frontier post near Delvinaki was taken by Albanian forces in a surprise attack Sunday, but later was recaptured.

The Pravda writer retorted:

"These words witness that 'our correspondent' from one New York institution understands as much about the ideas and arts as another or 'our correspondents' from the Chicago Stockyards understands about oranges. But let Atkinson's philosophy and aesthetics remain with him. What is important is that he was weary in Moscow, saw nothing new and what he did see seemed to him old and reactionary. But in this case, why the 'iron curtain?'"

Former Theater Critic

[Before becoming a foreign correspondent in China and then Russia, Atkinson for years was theater critic for the New York Times.]

The Pravda article then dealt with Atkinson's statemens saying that inside the Soviet Union there existed no kind of freedom, no democracy but only totalitarianism.

Salavsky said the Times writer was repeating "old twaddle" without noting "in what a laughable and foolish situation he placed himself. This is not plain slander; this is undisguised slander."

Dealing with Atkinson's claim that there were grounds for believing the Soviet Union was interfering in French politics, subsidizing the French Communst party and giving it directives, the Pravda writer said:

"It would be altogether useless to speak with this savage. It is impossible for this product of the stock exchange and the black market to understand that the party, uniting an appreciable part of the French people, does not need directives and will not tolerate any such directives.

Judges "By Dollars"

Russia Assails U.S. Writer For Article Criticizing Soviet

MOSCOW, July 11—(AP) Pravda assailed Brooks Atkinson, former Moscow correspondent for the New York Times, as an untalented slanderer" and "gangster of the pen" in an article today criticizing Atkinson's published views on Russia.

David Zaslavsky, editorial writer for the official Communist newspaper, denounced Atkinson for his statements that the Soviet government was totalitarian and that Soviet leaders lived behind an "iron curtain."

The Pravda writer applied such terms as "product of the stock exchange and black market" and "savage" in criticizing Atkinson for declaring that the general level of the Soviet theater, art and music was low and for stating there were members of the politburo of the Communist party."

(He said that "by nature the (Soviet) government is a machine for generating power inside the Soviet Union and as far outside as the power can be made to extend; and all attempts to deal with it in terms of frendship are doomed to failure. Although we are not enemies, we are not friends; and the most we can hope for is an armed peace for the next few years."

(Atkinson attributed a part of the difficulties with the Soviet Union to "the ignorance of the Soviet leaders."

("Very few of them have been outside the Soviet Union," he said. "After many years of isolation, and also some bitter experiences with foreign countries, they have developed a phobia about the rest of the world.

Three Other Leaders in July 4 Pogrom Get Prison Terms.

KIELCE, Poland, July 11—(AP) A military court today sentenced to death nine of the 12 defendants charged with setting off the bloody July 4 pogrom here and gave prison terms to the other three.

Trieste Strikers In Street Fights

Trieste, July 11 (AP)—Street fighting and police gunfire injured several persons today as thousands of striking workers surged into the heart of Trieste, forcing closure of shops and industrial establishments still remaining open.

Venezia Giulia police fired volleys into the air to break up crowds, wounding some persons. Others were hurt in street clashes. A count of casualties could not be obtained immediately.

TRIESTE SWEPT BY LARGE-SCALE STREET FIGHTING

Many Injured as Strikers Force End of Business at Center of City.

Trieste, July 11 (A. P.).—Large-scale disorders swept Trieste again today as thousands of striking workers broke into the center of town to close shops and industrial establishments still open. Several persons were injured in the street fighting, and others were wounded when the civil police fired pistols into the air to break up the mobs.

The American and British military police and the British field security forces ranged the city in jeeps to break up fights. By noon not a single shop was opeen in Trieste and street-car traffic was halted.

As the strikers began moving out of the city, groups of hundreds of Italian youth appeared in the Via Carduccio and attacked several individual strikers. One large group attempted to attack Communist party headquarters, but was beaten back by the police. When the crowd cleared there was blood on the street in front of the building.

Police Inspector Frances Magnelli predicted large-scale bloodshed in the next few days unless passions quieted.

N.Y. Times Writer Hit By Pravda

Moscow, July 11 (AP)—The official Communist newspaper Pravda asserted today that Brooks Atkinson, former New York Times correspondent in Moscow, was an "untalented slanderer," " a gangster of the pen" and a "produce of the stock exchange and black market."

The Pravda writer, David Zaslavsky, criticized Atkinson for saying he found "an iron curtain" in Russia and that this term is a "devilishly appropriate expression."

The Pravda writer said Atkinson was a writer who "jumps out" after living "ten months behind that infamous 'curtain'."

"What A Sensation"

The Pravda article continued:

"What a sensation! Pricking up their ears and straining their eyes, the trusting American people are ready to know the secrets of the descreened world. But there awaits them deep disappointment."

Atkinson was quoted as saying: "In Moscow exists no kind of new ideas, everything old is repeated with regularity, leading to dullness. The general level of the theaters, art and music are low. In the main, answer to the question of what sum Romeo paid for the love of Juliet."

The Pravda article said Atkinson's articles were evidences of demands of the "newspaper monopoly capitalists" for "freedom of the press."

"They demand full freedom for slanders and lies," the Pravda article asserted. "They want to establish as international law the irresponsibility of swindlers and bandits of the pen."

Articles In Times

A series of three articles by Atkinson, giving his opinions of Russia based on his ten months stay in Mascow, were published in the New York Times this week.

Atkinson said the United States would have to abandon "the familiar concepts of friendship" in dealing with Russia because "friendship is not wanted, is not possible and is not involved."

Writing of the Soviet Government, Atkinson said that "despite its sanctimonious use of the word 'democracy,' it is a totalitarian government" and "the familiar dictatorship of the proletariat is actually a dictatorship of the thirteen members of the Politburo of the Communist Party."

Products Of Revolution

Atkinson pictured the thirteen men as products of revolution and of an age when Russia was shunned. He declared that "there are no freedoms inside the Soviet Union." He said the United States and Russia were "not enemies, but we are not friends."

"The most we can hope for is an armed peace for the next few years," Atkinson wrote. "Where our interests lie, we have to apply equal power in the opposite direction. The spirit of the Soviet Government is fundamentally reactionary, as its attitude toward defeated nations and the behavior of the Red Army in Manchuria suggests."

He declared that an estimated 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 political prisoners were living in jail or exile. He said that "it is not the nature of men like members of the Politburo to feel secure" because they were "leaders of a backward poorly organized country that is trying to lift itself by its bootstraps in a hurry."

Anti-Foreign Spirit

"The spirit of the Soviet Government is anti-foreign," Atkinson wrote. "There has been a nameless terror about foreigners, who are regarded as spies and enemies. The leaders imagine every man's hand is against them; they imagine they are surrounded."

The correspondent said he suspected that the Russian leaders "are rather commonplace men who have no experience in democracy at home and are confused by manifestations of democracy abroad."

He wrote that "the basic fact is that the Soviet Union is a socialist state developing and expanding in a capitalist world" and that "according to the Communist party line, the Soviet is not secure as long as capitalistic countries like the United States and Great Britain hold dominant positions in the world."

He expressed the opinion, however, that "the two western democracies could get along with the Soviet Union more profitably than Nazi Germany during the period of the fraudulent pact of friendship."

[At the Times offices in New York it was said that neither the Times nor Atkinson intended to make any reply to Zaslavsky's attack.]

Tass Calls Byrnes, Bevin 'Arbitrary'

Moscow, July 11 (AP)—The Russian news agency Tass, in a Paris dispatch, accused United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of being "one sided and aribtrary" in presenting their views on Germany to the Foreign Ministers Council.

The dispatch said that Byrnes had failed to answer satisfactorily Russian criticism of his proposal for a treaty guaranteeing German disarmament for 25 years, and had "defended the American General (Lieut. Gen. Lucius D.) Clay for his illegal stoppage of reparations deliveries from the American zone to Russia."

Tass said that Bevin was "just as one sided and arbitrary as the American representative."

Moscow papers gave prominent display to a statement made to the Council yesterday by Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov concerning the future of Germany and the signing of a peace treaty with the Reich.

Mongols Thank Reds For Saving World

Moscow, July 11 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Stalin and Marshal Choi Bolsan, Premier of the Mongolian People's Republic, exchanged greetings today in connection with the republic's twenty-fifth anniversary.

The Mongolian Premier said that Russia had "saved the world from Fascist enslavement," and thanked Stalin and Russia for assisting the republic in "strengthening its independence."

HAIFA IMMIGRANTS WIN CONCESSION

Jerusalem, July 11 (A. P.).—A hunger strike of 1,000 illegal Jewish immigrants aboard three quarantine ships in Haifa harbor ended this afternoon. The Jews will be landed tomorrow. They had protested against their long detention aboard the ships.

The authorities said they had planned to transfer the refugees to the Athlit Detention Camp today, but that no accommodations were available ashore.

The Athlit camp is still crowded with 1,290 other illegal immigrants who arrived earlier aboard the refugee ship Josiah Wedgwood. Their release is expected to begin about July 15, the authorities said.

Meanwhile today the underground Jewish radio announced that one of two Jews kidnaped and charged with compiicity in the recent British raids has been sentenced to expulsion from Jerusalem and the other set free. The "Supreme court of the Jewish resistance movement" ordered exile rather than death for Benyamin Papanek because the evidence against him "was not 100 per cent complete," the radio declared. Otto Freund, kidnaped with Papanek from their Haifa apartment last week, was acquitted and released immediately, it was added.

The police authorities last week said that they believed the two men, both former Czech soldiers, had been executed.

One Czech Freed, Other Expelled

JERUSALEM, July 11 (AP)—The Haganah-controlled secret Jewish radio station "Voice of Israel" announced today that one of two Czech Jews kidnapped for alleged complicity in recent British raids had been sentenced to expulsion from Jerusalem and that the other had been freed.

The broadcast said the "Supreme Court of the Jewish Resistance Movement" had ordered expulsion rather than death for Benjamin Papanek because the evidence against him "was not 100 per cent complete."

Otto Freund, kidnapped with Papanek from their Haifa apartment last week, was acquitted and released immediately, the broadcast added.

Jewish Search Closed

Jerusalem, July 11 (AP)—An official communiqué from the office of the High Commissioner for Palestine said today that searches of Jewish settlements, as started June 29, have ceased and that troops have been withdrawn "to normal locations."

SIAM'S U.N. PLEA ON BORDER LANDS IS TOUCHY ISSUE

BANGKOK, July 11—(AP) Siam's announced intention of placing the Indochina border question before the United Nations confronts U.N. with an issue which informed British and American sources here consider as potentially explosive.

Behind the Bangkok government's move lies a frank desire to resolve the prolonged controversy over the Laotian and Cambodian territories before the rains end in October. The Siamese say they fear than unless their issue at least is on the U.N. agenda before the dry season France may reoccupy the territory.

No Resistance Expected

If the French march in, no significant resistance is likely since Siam maintains only token police forces in the areas concerned. Use of force by a major power against a small natich, however, would pose a grave international question.

Motivating the urgent French desire to regain territories ceded under Japanese pressure after the shortlived "Mekong river war" in 1941 is a desire to rebuild French prestige in southeast Asia.

It is generally considered that France lost more face than any other European power in this area—firstly because of the 1940 collapse, secondly because of Vichy-controlled Indochina administration accepted the role of subservient collaborator until the Japanese finally seized direct control in March 1945.

The Siamese border issue is an especially bitter pill to French pride since Siam's other wartime territorial acquisitions—four British-protected Malay states and two Burmese Shan states—were returned by Siam as soon as Japan was defeated.

Dares Not Act

sue, either before the United Nations or a general peace convention. Then Siam's historical, ethnological and cultural claims to the territory can be pressed.

The explanation of the Siamese refusal to return Indochinese territories—and the behind the scenes reason why the issue was appealed to the United Nations—lies in the internal political situation. Both the present government and previous postwar cabinets realized that Anglo-American refusal to recognize cessions made under Axis pressure makes return of disputed territories inevitable. But no Siamese government has dared to take action because it would mean immediate political disaster.

Behind the intense public feeling over the issue lies the history of French-Siamese relations. Five times since 1869 Siam has ceded territories to France, the total loss being 467,500 square kilometers. The last two cessions in 1904 and 1907 cost Siam the territories now in dispute—the right bank of the Mekong opposite Luang Prabang and the Cambodian rice areas around Battambang.

When Field Marshal Luang Pinul Songgram instituted a military dictatorship in 1938 a wave of intense nationalism swept Siam. Months of agitation preceding the Siamese-inspired hostilities against the French along the Mekong made a lasting impression on the Siamese people. Then the Japanese intervened and forced France to give in.

Now Siamese leaders privately admit the United Nations almost certainly will return these territories to France, but they believe that if the decision is made by the United Nations and not in direct negotiation with France the Siamese government may escape political disaster.

Once the Japanese taint is wiped clean by return of the territories, the Siamese hope to revive the is-

Singapore, July 11 (AP)—Twelve Japanese, including Lieut. Col. Sumida Haruzo, chief of the Japanese military police here during the occupation, were hanged today following their conviction for wartime atrocities.

Shanghai Lacks News As Coolies Strike

Shanghai, July 11 (AP)—Picketed by striking delivery coolies, all four foreign news services in Shanghai suspended operations today rather than risk violence.

The city's 40 newspapers were left without world news, except what a few could pick up on their own short-wave radios.

Want Pay Doubled

The Associated Press, the United Press, Reuter and Agence France Presse suspended service when delivery coolies picketed their offices and interfered with an attempt to issue a skeleton news report to member papers.

The coolies demanded double the present pay of about $40 (United States) monthly, which news managers termed prohibitive to continued operations. They declined an offer by Mayor K. C. Wu to obtain rice for them at official prices—far below the black-market price most Chinese are compelled to pay.

U.S. FARM MISSION SURVEYS CHINA TO AID FAMINE FIGHT

SHANGHAI, July 11—(AP) Famine, which always skulks at the threshold of teeming, hungry China, is being attacked by 10 American experts in agriculture.

They have begun a survey that will carry them to every corner of China, and they hope to learn how much American agrarian know-how can be transported and made applicable to this sprawling nation.

Chinese specialists will pool their knowledge of conditions in China, and after the survey is over they'll all sit down to draw up a report for the Chinese government.

Has Three Objectives

Dr. Claude Burton Hutchison, vice president of the University of California and dean of its College of Agriculture, told interviewers that the Sino-American agricultural mission has three objectives:

To advise on immediate steps to ease famine already taking its toll in China.

To advise the government on a national agricultural program that would keep famine permanently at arm's length.

To recommend certain agricultural projects in which the U. S. might co-operate with the Chinese government.

(Dr. Hutchison did not elaborate on this, but it might mean such projects as joint research, or reclamation, such as the two governments now are undertaking on the Yellow river).

Dr. Hutchison said the mission would review every phase of Chinese agriculture. Although food is the pressing problem, American members included experts on tung oil, carpet wool and silk.

Nanking Blames Relief Head Shift

Nanking, July 11 (AP)—A Chinese Government spokesman, commenting on the relief supply crisis, inferred today that a change in UNRRA leadership in China was partly to blame.

The Government spokesman said that when the UNRRA China director was relieved last May, and J. Franklin Ray was given the temporary position, "LaGuardia's representative explained to the Chinese Government that a man of bigger caliber was sought as permanent director."

The spokesman added "that among others former Governor Charles Edison of New Jersey was offered the post."

"The Chinese Government, in view of the complexities and difficulties of the position, urged that a permanent director should be appointed as soon as possible," he added.

"One result of the change of leadership was that distribution of supplies to the interior dwindled sharply."

Wang Appeals For Peace

Nanking, July 11 (AP)—Communist spokesman Wang Ping-nan asked newsmen today, "How can China sit at a peace conference as a sponsor when there is no peace in China?"

"China must end her civil war first; then she will be in a position to participate in making peace."

30.24 -4081

Wang commented regarding Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's proposed exclusion of China as a sponsor nation for the forthcoming peace-treaty conferences in Paris.

Reds In China Plan College

Peiping, July 11 (AP)—The Chinese Communists are founding a university to which students preferring capitalism will be welcome—provided they unl er their capital and pay their own way.

Students and professors who dote on communism will practice it by living under a communal system, but the capitalists in their midst will have to live "on their own means."

That is the way Chancellor Fan Wan-lan put it in explaining the operations of North Fan Tah University, soon to be established at Shuntu, in southern Hupeh province of central China.

The party line will be hewn to in feeding the mouths of the students, but in feeding the intellects of the students the party line will be pitched out the window, says the chancellor.

Fan says that the university will not be interested in the political tinge of the professors, since absolute freedom of thought and action is the first requirement of progressive education.

Since 1939 Fan has been at Communist headquarters in Yenan doing research and organizing historical material for students at the new university, he said. The university already has more than 700 enrolled, he reported.

A 1917 graduate of the University of Peiping, Fan has taught at National University of Peiping, Sino-French University, Catholic University for Women and China College.

The last teaching job he had was up around the Honan province border in northern Hupeh from 1937 to 1939—his students young guerrillas, his curriculum the fine art of exterminating Japanese.

JAP RENUNCIATION OF WAR IS OPPOSED

Tokyo, July 11 (A. P.).—Elimination of the clauses renouncing war and prohibiting the maintenance of any Japanese armed forces was demanded as a Diet committee today began consideration of Japan's proposed new constitution. The Co-operative Democrats, a minority party that holds forty-two seats in the Lower House, submitted this first formal request for deletion of the "anti-war" clauses. The party's proposed working would omit any mention of military forces or of war.

Most Japanese have refrained from criticizing strongly the proposed renunciation of war and of armed forces.

The Co-operative Democrats also suggested other changes, among them elimination of the phrase "sovereign will of the people" as the specified foundation of the Emperor's position as "a symbol of State." They also proposed deleting a provision limiting the Emperor's state functions to those listed in the new constitution.

The indications were that the document would probably be approved without substantial change, however.

The Communist party, meanwhile, is seeking passage by the Diet of a land reform program calling for the expropriation of all land over an average of three cho (seven and a half acres). An exception would be made on Hokkaido Island, where holdings up to ten cho (twenty-five acres) would be exempt from confiscation. The plan calls for expropriation also of land owned by war criminals, and of excess property of the Imperial family.

Gen. Cramer Is Made U. S. Judge in Tokyo

Tokyo, July 11 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Myron C. Cramer, former Judge Advocate-General of the United States Army, was named today to succeed Justice John O. Higgins as the American member of the International Military Tribunal. He is expected to arrive here on Monday.

Justice Higgins, who is Chief Justice of the Superior Judicial Court of Massachusetts, is scheduled to leave Tokyo tomorrow. He has been here since March 1 and since April 29 has been sitting with the tribunal hearing the case against former Premier Hideki Tojo and twenty-six other major war crimes suspects. Cramer, a native of Connecticut, was graduated from Wesleyan University.

Fun Will Cost Japs More

Tokyo, July 11 (AP)—Drinking, dancing and racetrack betting will be more expensive in the future, Tokyo newspapers lamented today.

Under the projected budget program, taxes will hike the price of a half gallon of sake to 40 yen ($2.70). Ten years ago it cost about one tenth that.

A 100 per cent. tax on dance tickets will rocket the price of a five-minute waltz up to 5 yen (35 cents.).

Bettors at race tracks will have to kick back twenty per cent. of their winnings.

The only consolation, the papers said, is that the proposed taxes will not go into effect unt.l September.

Jap Prince To Rent Home

Tokyo, July 11 (AP)—Prince Nabuhito Takamatsu, you er brother of Emperor Hirohito, he offered to rent his mansion to raise money, Tokyo newspapers reported today.

They said the Prince, whose assets were frozen by Allied directive, would prefer some 'worth-while" association as a tenant.

800 Japs Stricken With Food Poisoning

Tokyo, July 11 (A. P.).—More than 800 workers were ill today of ptomaine poisoning caused by eating tainted fish loaves served at twenty factories. The police described the mass poisoning as the worst ever experienced here. No deaths were reported.

Bombed City Recovering

Utsunomiya, Japan, July 11 (AP)—A year ago today this city of 80,000 population was burning fiercely from an air-raid by United States naval carrier planes. Two days later it was struck again by B-29 fire bombers. The 7,000 buildings which went up in smoke nearly obliterated the city.

But today, 83 per cent of all the destroyed houses have been rebuilt and there are more restaurants than before the raids.

The city, in the center of the Honshu Island lumber and tile-manufacturing area, will complete reconstruction of five schools by next month and a new prefectural hospital is well along.

Progressive planning plus adequate resources, municipal officials explained, account for the recovery far in advance of that in most other sections of the country.

U.S. Pacific Bases Urged

Sydney, Australia, July 11 (AP)—The Sydney Morning Herald today, in an editorial, urged that the United States be permitted to retain her present Southwest Pacific bases—including Manus Island—on almost any terms acceptable to Washington.

"We need America in the South Pacific far more than she needs us," the Herald declared.

...DE SAILS AT LAST

Sydney, July 11 (A. P.).—Carrying 850 passengers, including 276 brides of American service men and their children, the steamship Mariposa left tonight after a two and a half hours' delay caused by a waterside dispute. The work of loading stores and baggage was done by members of the crew and American service men aboard.

Among the passengers was Mrs. Josephine Hatton, 19-year-old bride of former Seaman William Hatton of Headland, Ala. It was her third attempt to get away. She balked at the last minute after she had boarded the David C. Shanks in April and the

FRANCO BOYCOTT PLANED

Latin-American Trade Group to Refuse to Handle Cargo

MEXICO CITY, July 11 (AP)—A Latin American Labor Confederation boycott of shipments to and from Spain, as a protest against the Franco Government, was announced today by Vicente Lombardo Toledano, President.

Beginning July 18, Señor Lombardo Toledano said, Latin-American workers will refuse to load or unload Spanish cargo. Workers in other parts of the world may join the blockade, he added.

He said many Spanish shipments were arriving indirectly in Latin America. Wines, sardines and oils are reaching Mexico by way of Cuba, he maintained.

Navy Health Plan Defeats Black Death

PEARL HARBOR—(AP) Plague, the Black Death of the Middle Ages, has stricken the orient again in recent months.

Yet, no fatalities have resulted from this dread disease among Navy men serving in the Far East who have been carrying out Allied occupation and re[illegible]ation policies, asserts the Pacific Fleet Medical Office.

Several outbreaks of smallpox have occurred in areas where Navy men are stationed—but no Naval cases have been reported. Diseases which have ravaged native populations have been controlled among Navy personnel through sanitation, vaccination and education.

"The increase of oriental diseases among Navy men has been negligible," Fleet Medical Officer Commodore W. E. Kellum (MC), USN, of Bethesda, Md., said. "As a matter of fact, the general health of men on duty in the Pacific is better than those in the continental United States."

Roxas Tightens Luzon Grip

Manila, July 11 (AP)—One thousand military police were dispatched unexpectedly today to Pampanga province, center of peasant unrest, as President Roxas expressed optimism over prospects for a quick settlement of the central Luzon trouble.

Military police strength in Pampanga was nearly doubled with the new arrivals. An MP spokesman said the transfer was designed to "protect peaceful citizens and enable the Government to act with vigor wherever its authority is challenged."

President Roxas conferred with Jose Deleon, a leader of he Hukbalahaps (armed peasants) and emerged with the statement he was "very much encouraged" about the matter. Deleon has proposed that his 5,000 followers in Nueva Ecija province lay down their arms if taken into the Philippine Army.

The reports said, however, that conditions remained critical at Chenkuansun, 25 miles south of Tientsin, and that the Reds had tightened their encirclement of Tsanghsien, 25 miles below Chingchen.

Senate Rejects Taft Plan To Restrict OPA Controls On Manufactured Articles

AMENDMENT FAILS ON 40-40 TIE VOTE IN NIGHT SESSION

Barkley's Compromise Formula Remains Intact in OPA Revival.

RENT BOOSTS KILLED

Hawkes of New Jersey Proposes Increases Totaling 15 Percent.

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP) The Administration won a major round in the OPA revival fight tonight when the Senate defeated an attempt by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to deprive OPA of discretion and force it to raise manufacturers price ceilings to cover increased costs.

The decision came on the closest possible margin—a 40 to 40 vote. A tie vote defeats an attempt to amend a bill.

This action removed one of the last major hurdles to Senate passage later of a measure to restore some price and rent controls for one year.

Truman Urges Action

The vote came only a few hours after President Truman told his news conference that every day which passes without price controls increases the country's danger of runaway inflation, which he said thus far had been prevented.

Rejection of the Taft proposal left intact in the bill a compromise formula worked out by Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) for prices of manufacturers, processors and producers.

Briefly it would require the revitalized OPA to boost ceilings to add an industry's average cost increases to the average prices for 1940.

Taft said he agreed to such a formula, substituted for his proposal which President Truman criticized severely in the June 29 veto of the original OPA bill, but he sought to knock out exemptions under which he said the OPA could refuse to raise any ceilings.

Opposes Exemptions

These exemptions would allow OPA to:

1. Make "reasonable adjustments" for conditions resulting from abnormal production.

2. Grant price increases only to expand production in cases where ceilings broke even with current costs and thus provided no profits.

3. Deny increases where to grant them would reduce the production of needed items.

Taft charged these would "nullify entirely" the price increase directive.

After rejection of the Taft amendment, Senator McClellan (D-Ark.) proposed that, if and when OPA is restored, ceiling prices for logs, lumber and lumber products be set high enough to provide the current production cost for 90 per cent of the output. It was adopted on voice vote.

The Senate then recessed at 10:55 p. m. E.S.T. until noon tomorrow.

Earlier in the day, the Senate approved 50 to 20 an amendment preventing OPA from applying rent ceilings in any state which has its own rent control system, or sets up such a system in the future. The amendment was sponsored by Senators Knowland (R-Calif.) and Ferguson (R-Mich.).

The chamber also beat back, 58 to 14, an amendment to force an increase in rent ceilings throughout the nation.

After rejecting the Taft proposal on the tie vote, the Senate sealed its verdict by voting 46 to 34 against reconsidering it.

Taft asserted that the purpose of his amendment "is to get increased production." He said he was not interested in the size of profits, but in "a pricing scale that will get reasonable production, fill up the shelves, and get rid of shortages."

"What could be fairer," Taft asked, "than to recognize increased costs in increased prices?"

A manufacturer, he contended, should be "on the same basis as before the war" and should get pre-war prices plus increased material, labor and other costs brought about by the war.

Senator Huffman (D-Ohio) declared that the Taft proposal "will completely wreck all possibility of price stabilization."

Even without it, he said, the OPA bill has been amended to the point that it is "absolutely ineffective."

The Senate has approved amendments prohibiting any price curbs on meat, milk, butter, gasoline and several other products.

Recess to Attend Party

Tonight's action on the Taft proposal was taken after a two-hour recess during which about one-third of the Senate members attended a cocktail party given by Senator Guffey (D-Pa) for Senator Radcliffe (D-Md). Radcliffe, defeated in the recent Maryland primaries, will end his senatorial career when Congress adjourns.

President Fears Inflation

Mr. Truman issued a statement saying that while "runaway inflation" has been prevented up to the present time "all of the ground we have so laboriously won against inflation will be irretrievably lost without a workable price control law."

"Every day that passes without a law on the books increases that danger," he said.

During the Senate struggle over a bill reviving OPA for one year, the agency's critics have studded it with amendments prohibiting any price curbs on meat, milk, butter, gasoline and several other products.

Mr. Truman declined to say whether he would sign the bill if it reached him with such amendments. Democratic Leader Barkley of the Senate was counting on a Senate-House conference to arrive at some compromise more acceptable to the President.

During the day the Senate overwhelmingly rejected a proposal by Senator Hawkes (R-NJ) to permit an immediate five percent increase in rents, with additional boosts of that same amount on next Nov. 30 and March 31.

Hawkes told his colleagues 8,200,000 landlords had been "tied to the post economically' by increasing costs while rents were frozen. Taft charged that the Office of Price Administration had "disregarded the law" by failing to permit any rent rises despite mounting costs.

Barkley replied it was "bad policy for Congress" to try to tell those administering rent controls what they should do.

Congress might as well try to tell the Interstate Commerce commission, he said, how much the freight rate should be for "shipping a piano from New Jersey to Kentucky."

Hawkes got the support of only eight other Republicans and five Democrats in the vote.

Delay Threatened

Barkley worked for a passage vote under the compulsion of a threat by Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) to call before the Senate proposals to reject President Truman's government reorganization orders.

These orders will become effective at midnight July 18 if both houses do not disapprove. The House passed resolutions which would kill the orders. The Senate Judiciary committee voted, in effect, to sustain the orders. But under the law the House resolutions to kill the reorganization went to the Senate calendar with privileged status under which any senator could call them up.

Wiley moved to bring them up today, an action which would lay the OPA bill aside. When Barkley protested this was "playing into the hands of those who want delay," Wiley said he would wait until tomorrow, adding that he won't be turned aside then.

This threat obviously pleased Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex.), who walked over to confer briefly with Wiley. O'Daniel told reporters he expected to "say quite a few words" before any final passage vote. Since he talked on the subject for more than eight solid hours two weeks ago, colleagues knew his capabilities.

BUYERS PICKET MANY STORES IN PRICE FIGHT

Leaders Claim Strike Shows Results In Philadelphia And Camden

Philadelphia, July 11 (AP)—Pickets marched in front of Philadelphia and Camden stores today to back up their demands for a nationwide buyers' strike as a protest against rising prices.

More than 100 stores were picketed in Camden, across the Delaware river, and the drive already is showing results, said William T. Harker, president of Local No. 1, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, CIO. Harker said pickets had been withdrawn from seven or eight stores after owners restored OPA price levels.

Huge Market Picketed

The huge Reading Terminal Market—largest food market in Philadelphia, was picketed by men carrying signs which read:

"This market is violating OPA ceiling prices. Remember in November." And:

"CIO fights for OPA extension."

Inside, meats lines found steaks at 69 cents a pound; butter at 85 cents; and eggs at 69 cents a dozen.

As the pickets marched, a sound truck blared:

"Don't buy anything. Tell your milkman not to leave any milk. Join the fight against inflation or your money will be worth nothing."

Wear Tattered Clothing

Teen agers paraded in tattered clothing, carrying placards: "This is what the well-dressed worker will wear without OPA."

The executive board of the Philadelphia Industrial Union Council, representing about 155,000 CIO members, voted to call on the national CIO to promote a buyers' strike, urging:

"Further inflation will make meaningless the recent wage gains that workers have obtained through collective bargaining. The only resources left to organized labor is further recourse to collective bargaining."

Urged To Buy Only Necessities

The board urged its members to buy only absolute necessities, "so that those behind this inflation will know that this nation and its common people will not tolerate runaway prices and excessive profits."

Wholesale meat prices here, the OPA said, have risen as much as 100 per cent. Butter was retailing at 75 cents to $1.16 a pound.

Joseph B. Dougherty, local president of the Transport Workers Union, CIO, said members would make a house-to-house canvass in support of a buyers' strike and ask residents to report overceiling prices.

Meat Dealer Asks Court To Halt Buyers' Pickets

Louisville, July 11 (AP) — A retail meat dealer filed suit in Circuit Court today to halt picketing by members of the "buyers on strike" committee, recently organized by the Jefferson County Citizens Political Action Committee to combat rising living costs.

The action immediately brought an announcement of plans for additional picketing from Walter Case, a leader of the buyers' strike movement and representative of the CIO Transport Workers Union.

The suit was filed by Louis Karem, former OPA enforcement officer here and proprietor of Standard Market, one of four retail meat establishments picketed yesterday by two women members of the buyers' strike committee.

SPENDING CUTS ARE DEMANDED BY STEELMAN

OWMR Director Says Army and Navy Should Be Slashed Deepest.

WOULD DEFER PUBLIC WORKS

And Restrict Civilian Agencies to Halt Flow of U. S. Funds Into Private Hands.

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—Reconversion Director John R. Steelman today demanded new slashes in Federal spending and pointed at the Army and Navy as the places to cut deepest.

Economy may be achieved there, Steelman told President Truman and Congress, without hampering operations aimed at fulfilling world obligations, furthering American interests and keeping global peace.

While terming the revival of price control the No. 1 essential in warding off costly and irretrievable inflation, the reconversion boss said this action should be coupled with lower Government costs, continued high taxes and credit controls, and, if possible, a Federal budget surplus.

Less spending by the civilian agencies and postponement of public works would help to halt the flow of Government dollars into private hands, Steelman said in his first quarterly report as director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, but he added:

"If a major cut in the inflationary impact of Federal expenditures is to be sought, expenditure plans of the Army and Navy must be re-examined in the light of the present need for anti-inflationary action."

The armed forces, he said, represent 45 per cent of all proposed outlays—except those for interest and refunds—in a 1947 budget which was intended to total $35,800,000,000 but which has risen an estimated 10 to 15 per cent to $40,000,000,000 or more.

Civilian Agency Costs.

On the other hand, the civilian agencies—legislative, judicial and executive—will cost "little more than $2,000,000,000 or 6 per cent of total expenditures." If major economies are to come, Steelman said, they "must be sought elsewhere."

Three-fifth of the outlays of the Army and Navy are earmarked for purposes other than the direct paying, feeding, clothing, training and transporting of soldiers and sailors, the OWMR director pointed out.

He did not specify which of the "other purposes" should be cut, but he suggested that many might be postponed if they could not be chopped down. He continued:

"The merger of the military and naval departments, which the President has repeatedly urged, can achieve economies by the elimination of duplicating expenditures."

Steelman led off his report with the announcement that "production of over-the-counter consumer goods for the first half of 1946 was the highest in either peace or war.'"

And until June 30—when OPA expired—"runaway inflation had been prevented," Steelman said.

"But today, we are threatened with the loss of the controls which we have used to maintain stabilization and to protect production," the report continued.

"We stand at the crossroads; we must choose now whether we shall move forward through the final stages of reconversion with effective price and wage controls, or whether we are prepared to take the risk of abandoning such controls at a time when supply and demand still are radically out of balance.

"After world war I, we came to this same crossroads and took the wrong turning. We have managed things better this time, and our production has increased far more rapidly under price controls than it did after the last war when all controls were removed."

Looks at Price Control.

Steelman reviewed the arguments against the price control bill vetoed by Mr. Truman, declared that subsidies are an "indispensable" part of price regulation, and asserted that in any new act, OPA must have the power to make dealers absorb some of the higher costs paid by manufacturers.

He acknowledged it is "eminently desirable" that Congress fix policies for the lifting of price controls. OPA would "welcome," he said, the aid of a board—such as that proposed in the vetoed act—which would decide when specific ceilings should be removed.

During the April-May-June quarter, Steelman said consumers' purchases rose by $2,000,000,000 over the preceding quarter and this "may have been wholly due to price rises." Department store sales were double those of the same period in 1941, he said, yet shortages persisted because of terrific consumer demand and the failure of some industries—automobiles and refrigerators among others—to come close to pre-war output.

Other highlights of the report:

Food—Consumption of meats, vegetables and milk is well above 1941, and in general shortages will continue through the year.

Jobs — "One of the most encouraging aspects of our reconversion effort"; unemployment has stayed low despite heavy discharges of soldiers and sailors, while the civilian labor force has climbed to 57,600,000.

Income—Total income paid to individuals during the first three months of this year was at an annual rate of $157,000,000,000, less than 3.5 per cent below the booming wartime level.

Materials—"Serious shortages" of iron, steel, copper, lead and tin, caused in large part by strikes. Now production is rising rapidly.

Famine Relief—Americans still must conserve food, for Europe will need help for "at least another year." This means, for the consumer, continued shortages of cereals and meats; for the farmer, "a continued high demand for food."

Textiles and Clothing—Woolens and rayons are coming in all-time record yardage, cotton production is rising but production "is no match for today's heavy demand" for fabrics and men's suits."

Housing — Through May, the country was 34 per cent along the way toward its goal of 1,200,000 new dwellings started in 1946; total construction is at a higher level than at any time since 1943, when was construction was at its height.

PRICES FOR FOOD TERMED 'SPOTTY'

Survey Finds Many Unchanged But Others Going Up

Washington, July 11 (AP)—The Bureau of Labor Statistics said today the retail food price situation is "spotty" with many staple foods remaining unchanged but with prices for others going up in "an increasing number of stores."

The bureau based its statement on a spot survey of food prices in twelve cities on Tuesday. It noted that wholesale price boosts have "for the most part" not yet reached the retail market level. It mentioned removal of subsidies in connected with milk-price rises but did not discuss the effect of the lapse in the Federal payments on other commodities.

"An increasing number of stores were charging higher prices for meats, butter, milk and some other foods," the report said.

"Supplies of meats, butter and poultry were still so small that prices were often not available, especially in Eastern cities.

Confused Situation

"Prices have moved up rapidly in some stores and have remained relatively stable in others, reflecting the generally confused situation in the markets pending a decision on price controls."

The special survey applied only to food prices. The bureau is making a separate special survey of all consumer prices in three cities, Washington, Birmingham, Ala., and San Francisco, and expects to release it next week.

The twelve-city food survey said:

"Prices of milk sold through grocery stores advanced in eleven of the twelve cities surveyed following the removal of subsidies on July 1. Prices in Cleveland remained unchanged at 15 cents a quart.

The greatest increase was 24 per cent in Washington, D.C., where some stores raised the prices by 3 cents and others by 4 cents per quart. Other cities with increases of more than five per cent in milk since June 15 were Chicago, Savannah, Boston, Denver, Detroit, Houston, Los Angeles and Kansas City.

Butter "Very Scarce"

"Supplies of butter were very scarce in most localities, but a few stores were selling it on July 9 at prices ranging from 62 to 90 cents per pound. Where butter was available, prices quoted were 19 per cent up in New York, 22 per cent in Chicago, 30 per cent in Cleveland, 37 per cent in Pittsburgh and up by smaller amounts in the other cities surveyed. However, a considerable number of stores are still selling butter at OPA's ceilings.

"Supplies of meats were still too limited to provide reliable estimates of price changes except in a few cities. However, among the stores having meats for sale a substantial proportion kept prices steady while some prices quoted were as high as $1 per pound for round steak, 65 cents for chuck roast, 75 cents for pork chops and 69 cents per pound for bacon.

"In Kansas City the prices of round steak ranged from 43 to 75 cents per pound; in Pittsburgh an independent store hiked round steak 29 cents, and in Los Angeles one independent's price went from 42 cents on June 18 to 75 cents on July 9. Similar changes were found for other meats priced.

Chicken Prices Rise

"Prices of chicken, when available, were generally higher than in June, the highest average increase being reported in New York, about fourteen per cent, with the level in most stores in the twelve cities varying from 50 to 60 cents a pound. Egg prices are up about four per cent, the usual seasonal increase.

"Prices of oranges increased in most stores, although average prices in Chicago were lower than in June. The greatest increase was in Houston—seventeen per cent. Sugar prices were higher in most cities by 1 or 2 cents on a five-pound package.

"Prices of bread and flour were generally the same, with supplies of the latter very short in many localities. A few decreases were reported for flour and coffee. Canned goods and shortening prices were stable, with extreme scarcities of shortening and canned tomatoes.

FARMERS UNION DESERTS TRUMAN

Denver, July 11 (A. P.).—The National Farmers Union, which claims 400,000 members, has broken with the Truman administration and is "pulling out of Washington to mobilize for the economic M-day it feels is coming," the organization's president, James Patton, declared in an interview today. "The union has lost confidence in the Truman administration's doing anything about legislation we consider important," he said.

The move does not mean a step toward the support of the Republican party, Patton emphasized, "because we have lost faith in Congress as a whole as well as the administration." Patton cited the President's veto of the OPA extension bill on the one hand and his request for strong emergency labor powers on the other as examples of the administration's "inconsistency" which had caused the union to withdraw its support. The directors of the union believe the trend in Washington is toward inflation to be followed by deflation, Patton also declared.

A special Presidential committee, headed by Senator Hatch (D.-N. M.), expressed a similar opinion in a separate report as to the value of the test. Saying that the results amply justify the expenditure and that further tests are equally desirable and necessary, this group of observers reported to Mr. Truman:

"You made a wise decision when you approved the plans for this test and they have been carried out with extraordinary skill, diligence and ingenuity. The test just completed has again proven that the atomic bomb is a weapon of terrific power when used on land or sea."

Their distance from the blast, the committee said, led many observers to entertain an "initial opinion that the bomb employed was somewhat under par." It commented: "It is now, however, safe to state that the energy was of the same order of magnitude as in the case of previous atomic detonations, between the highest and lowest of this bomb's predecessors." The Compton group recommended additional research on atomic energy.

Cost Not Established.

There has been no authoritative estimate as to the cost of the test. Some Congress members critical of the experiment declared the cost was $100,000,000 or more, but the Army and Navy disputed that. One difficulty in figuring the cost, military men said, is what value to place on obsolete warships.

"Examination of the flashburn effects produced by the initial radiation from the explosion indicates that casualties would have been high among exposed personnel," the report continued.

"However, it is the opinion of the board that persons sheltered within the hull of a ship or even on deck in the shadow of radiation from the bomb would not have been immediately incapacitated by burns alone, whatever might have been the subsequent radiological effects.

Await Further Facts.

"Within the area of extensive blast damage to ship superstructures there is evidence that personnel within the ships would have been exposed to a lethal dosage of radiological effects.

"Personnel casualties due to blast would no doubt have been high for those in exposed positions on vessels within one-half mile of the target center. Beyond this, any discussion of the blast effect upon personnel will have to await the detailed reports of the medical specialists."

In addition to Compton, the members of the experts board were Bardley Dewey, Thomas F. Farrell, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, Lieut.-Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, Rear Admiral W. R. Purnell and Rear Admiral R. A. Ofstie, Navy Tells of Next Test.

Aboard U. S. S. Mount McKinley, July 11 (A. P.).—The chance that the second atomic test bomb will explode prematurely is only "one in a million," Capt. Christian Engleman, Navy electronics expert, told a press conference today.

Engleman, Col. Thomas J. Betts, security chief, and other electronics authorities attached to the atomic task force detailed for the press the elaborate precautions which will be taken to insure against premature explosion.

Safeguards against the contingency include both electronic and manual devices, Betts explained. The last man to leave the lagoon will throw a switch which will permit the bomb mechanism to receive radio impulses which will bring the explosion.

After the last man is well away in a fast boat, the trigger ship Cumberland will begin sending a series of impulses "like a seventeen combination lock," with the operation impossible if the entire sequence is not followed.

The experts agreed that the elaborate precautions against premature detonation increased the chance that the bomb might not go off on the signal since the more gadgets built into any machine the more the chance of malfunction.

The first bomb test showed that ionization produced by the bomb burst did not interfere with electronic operations, the experts

'A' Bomb Test Yielded Ship Data

Experts Tell Truman They Got Facts for Redesign of Navy Vessels.

PRESIDENT REVEALS REPORT

Scientists Contend Effort and Expense of Experiment Were Amply Justified.

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—A board of experts advised President Truman today that the Bikini atomic bomb test provided adequate data for the redesign of Navy vessels "to minimize damage to superstructures and deck personnel from this type of bomb."

"A vast amount of data which will prove invaluable throughout scientific and engineering fields has been made available by this test," the report added.

The evaluation board, representing the joint chiefs of staff, was headed by Dr. Karl T. Compton, noted physicist.

President Truman made public the board's report at his news conference.

"There can be no question," the board told him, "that the effort and expense involved in his test has been amply justified both by the information secured and by greatly narrowing the range of speculation and argument."

Texts of Atom Reports to President

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—The complete texts of a preliminary report of the evaluation board for the atomic-bomb tests, made public by the White House today, and of a White House release embracing the report of a Presidential commission on the atomic-bomb test:

By the Evaluation Board

In compliance with its directive from the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the evaluation board for the atomic-bomb tests has submitted a preliminary report of the test held at Bikini Atoll on 1 July, 1946. The members of this board were: Dr. Karl T. Compton, chairman; Mr. Bradley Dewey, deputy chairman; Mr. Thomas F. Farrell, General Joseph W. Stilwell, U. S. A.; Lieutenant General Lewis H. Brereton, U. S. A.; Rear Admiral W. R. Purnell, U. S. N.; Rear Admiral R. A. Ofstie, U. S. N.

The report which follows covers the general observations of this board.

"The members of the board inspected target ships the day before the test, witnessed the explosion from an airplane twenty miles distant, and then approached to within nine miles of the atoll for a brief view. On the following day, as soon as safety clearance had been received, the members flew to Bikini and began their examination of ship damage. Many photographs have been studied, and military and scientific specialists interviewed in an attempt to obtain an over-all understanding of test results prior to the compilation of all the data.

"From its previous study of the plans for the test and from its observations in the Bikini area the board considers that the test was well conceived and executed by the services in close co-operation with a large civilian staff. It is satisfied that the conditions of the test were well chosen and that the highest skill

"Effective precautions appear to have been taken to safeguard personnel against radioactivity and associated dangers.

"The board's present information is that the bomb exploded, with an intensity which approached the best of the three previous atomic bombs, over a point 1,500 to 2,000 feet westerly of the assigned target and at approximately the planned altitude.

"The target array in no sense represented an actual naval disposition but was designed to obtain the maximum data from a single explosion. The most important effects produced by the bomb are the following:

"A. A destroyer and two transports sank promptly and another destroyer capsized. It later sank, and the Japanese cruiser Sakawa sank the following day. The superstructure of the submarine Skate was so badly damaged as to make it unsafe to submerge the vessel. The light carrier Independence was badly wrecked by the explosion, gutted by fire and further damaged by internal explosions of low order, including those of torpedoes. All the above vessels were within one-half mile of the explosion point.

"B. Numerous fires were started on other ships, including one on a ship two miles distant, which was apparently due to some unusual circumstance since the other fires were much closer. Here it should be remembered that the target ship decks carried a great variety of test material not ordinarily exposed on the decks of naval vessels.

"C. The only major combatant ships within one-half mile of the explosion point were the battleships Nevada and Arkansas and the heavy cruiser Pensacola. The blast struck these from the after quarter. Apparently little damage was done to their hulls or their main turrets but their superstructures were badly wrecked. These ships were unquestionably put out of action was relatively little damage at distances greater than three-fourths of a mile.

"E. The primary material effects noted were due to blast, buckling of decks and bulkheads, and destruction or deformation of lightly constructed exposed objects, including stacks, masts, and antennae. Secondary effects were due to fire, and it is noteworthy that Army Quartermaster stores and miscellaneous equipment placed on the decks for the test proved more vulnerable than normal naval deck gear. It should be pointed out that since the targets carried no personnel the fires were uncontrolled and undoubtedly there was more damage than there would have been under battle conditions. Singularly, although considerable amounts of explosive ordnance were exposed on decks and in gun turrets, there is no indication on ships which remained afloat that any of this material was exploded by direct action of the atomic bomb. Fire-fighting ships entered the target area as soon as they could obtain radiological security permission and subdued a number of fires. The speed and efficiency with which these ships acted preserved for later examination a great deal of evidence of bomb action which might otherwise have been lost.

"F. Examination of the flash-burn effects produced by the initial radiation from the explosion indicates that casualties would have been high among exposed personnel. However, it is the opinion of the board that persons sheltered within the hull of a ship or even on deck in the shadow of radiation from the bomb would not have been immediately incapacitated by burns alone, whatever might have been the subsequent radiological effects.

"G. Within the area of extensive blast damage to ship superstructures there is evidence that personnel within the ships would have been exposed to a lethal dosage of radiological effects.

"Personnel casualties due to blast would no doubt have been high for those in exposed positions on vessels within one-half mile of the target center. Beyond this, any discussion of the blast effect upon personnel will have to wait the detailed reports of the medical specialists.

"In general no significant unexpected phenomena occurred, although the test was designed to cope with considerable variation from predictions. There was no large water wave formed. The radioactive residue dissipitated in the manner expected. No damage occurred on Bikini Island, about three miles from the explosion center.

"From what it has seen and from what it has ascertained from data now available, the board is able to make certain general observations.

"A. The atomic bomb dropped at Bikini damaged more ships than have ever before been damaged by a single explosion.

"B. The test has provided adequate data of a sort necessary for the redesign of naval vessels to minimize damage to superstructures and deck personnel from this type of bomb. Because of the nature of the first test (air burst) little information has been obtained on hull effects. Damage to ships' hulls will be studied specifically in the second test when a bomb will be exploded under water.

"C. A vast amount of data which will prove invaluable throughout scientific and engineering fields has been made available by this test. Once more the importance of large-scale research has been dramatically demonstrated. There can be no question that the effort and expense involved in this test has been amply justified both by the information secured and by greatly narrowing the range of speculation and argument. Moreover, it is clear to the board that only by further large-scale research and development can the United States retain its present position of scientific leadership. This must be done in the interests of national safety.

"The board desires to say that it has had the fullest co-operation of the task force commander, and that every opportunity has been afforded it in carrying out its mission. The members of the board have had access to all data thus far accumulated and have had every facility for personally inspecting the results of the test."

By the Presidential Commission

The President has received the following preliminary report of the first Bikini atom bomb test from the President's evaluation commission, which witnessed the test on July 1.

The report, signed in behalf of the commission of the chairman, Senator Carl A. Hatch, of New Mexico, was transmitted by radio from the U. S. S. Mt. McKinley, flagship of Admiral Blandy off Bikini.

The other members of the President's commission are:

Senator Leverett Saltonstall, Massachusetts: Representative Chet Holifield, California; Representative Walter G. Andrews, New York; Dr. Edward U. Condon, director, United States Bureau of Standards, Washington; Dr. Karl T. Compton, president, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass.; Mr. Bradley Dewey, Cambridge, Mass.; Mr. William S. Newell, Bath, Me., and Mr. Fred Searls, New York.

The text of the report follows:

"Dear Mr. President:

"Your evaluation commission, divided between positions at sea and in the area, witnessed the first Bikini test at 33 seconds after 9 a. m. local time on July 1, E. S. T., and has since completed a survey of the damage. The second test, wherein the bomb will be exploded under water, will in some respects be of greater interest, for it will have no precedent.

"The report of your commission, required by its directive of May 18, must await the assembling of considerable data deriving from instrumental and photographic measurements and analysis of fission product samples. However, we believe that it lies within the scope of your directive and may be of possible assistance to you, to submit, now, the following brief observations made from the layman's point of view, but with such accuracy as is presently available:

"1. The organization and execution of the operation was magnificently handled and has commanded our continuous admiration. The bomb was dropped under favorable weather conditions about thirty seconds after the time set. The greatest credit is due Admiral Blandy and the officers and enlisted personnel of both services, who with scientists and other civilians, have served and are serving under him with a display of team work

PERIL TO SECURITY OF NATION IS SEEN BY A-BOMB CHIEFS

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP) A report that atom bomb security officers "think that the peace and security of the United States is definitely in danger" set off a new row today over military vs. civilian control of atomic energy.

The report, by Ernie Adamson, chief investigator for the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities, complained of the activities of scientific societies with headquarters inside the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic project reservation.

Committee Delays Decision

It overshadowed the business at hand before the House Rules committee and resulted in postponement of a decision by that group on clearing for House action a bill for domestic control of the new power.

Adamson's report, dated June 26, disclosed that four weeks ago Adamson and Chairman Wood (D-Ga.) of the UnAmerican Activities committee took testimony at the Tennessee project.

This testimony, Adamson reported, shows that scientific societies with headquarters inside the reservation "are very active in support of international civilian control of the manufacture of atomic materials," and their activities "are devoted to the creation of some form of world government."

Sees Danger to U. S.

"The security officers at Oak Ridge think that the peace and security of the United States is definitely in danger," Adamson reported.

"If jurisdiction and control of the Oak Ridge reservation passes into civilian hands, the political plans for exploiting the place are well advanced and there would undoubtedly be trouble in the reservation within six months."

One of the young scientists, Adamson continued, commented "to the effect that the power of the atomic bomb was much greater from a political viewpoint than from its physical aspect."

His own conclusion, Adamson said, it that the Army should exercise permanent control over the manufacture of atomic energy.

He disclosed that Wood is contemplating introducing legislation to set aside Oak Ridge as a permanent military reservation.

that must be seen to be fully appreciated.

"2. Their conservatively safe distance from the burst led many observers to entertain an initial opinion that the bomb employed was somewhat under par. It is now, however, safe to state that the energy was of the same order of magnitude as in the case of previous atomic detonations, between the highest and lowest of this bomb's three predecessors.

"3. The accuracy of the drop was such that the explosion occurred within the area included within the allowance for the probable error of the elevation of drop, and detonation was probably within 100 feet of the altitude. Nevertheless, the explosion actually occurred several hundred yards west of a point directly above the target ship Nevada and therefore entirely west of the closely spaced array of capital ships.

"4. There were ninety targets anchored in the lagoon when the bomb exploded. These were not in battle formation but were placed in positions to give the largest amount of desired technical information with especially closed concentration around the center target point. Those ships anchored a mile or more from the point of drop largely escaped injury. Those within a mile were sunk or suffered damage varying with the distance from the point of detonation and with the type of ship construction. On explosion, a destroyer and two transports sank promptly. A second destroyer and the Japanese cruiser Sakawa sank within twenty-four hours. The light carrier Independence was gutted with fire and resultant explosions. The submarine Skate was heavily damaged and later towed away. All of these were near the point of explosion. The other ships, including the only two capital ships which were within one-half mile of the detonation, received damage that would require more or less complete overhaul. And in most cases, repair at major bases before they could again be used for combat. A study of this damage will point the way to changes in design which should minimize damage from blast and heat.

"Beyond these ships there was extensive damage to superstructure, radar, and fire control. Had the ships within the damage area been manned, casualties and psychological injuries would have required a large percentage of replacements. Until the readings of complex instruments and the future life history of animals within the ships have been determined no accurate appraisal of potential damage to humans with the ships can be made.

"5. No wave or blast damage could be noticed on Bikini Island, which is approximately three miles from the point of detonation.

"6. We are of the unanimous opinion that the first test amply justified the expenditure required to conduct it and the second test is equally desirable and necessary. You made a wise decision when you approved the plans for these tests and they have been carried out with extraordinary skill, diligence and ingenuity. The test just completed has again proven that the atomic bomb is a weapon of terrific power when used on land or sea.

"Most respectfully yours,

"CARL A. HATCH,

"Chairman for the commission."

ADVANCE PAYMENT TO ILLINOIS FIRMS BARED AT HEARING

War Dept. Employe Who Approved Orders Was Aided by Rep. May.

TRUMAN BACKS INQUIRY

Will Give Permission if Plea Is Made to Examine Tax Records.

WASHINGTON, July 11 — (AP) Albert W. Jacobson, a War Department employe, testified today that he okayed millions of dollars of advance payments to a munitions combine. He also testified that Rep. May (D-Ky) recommended him for reinstatement to the bar, from which he resigned under "pressure" in 1938.

Jacobson insisted to the Senate War Investigating committee, however, that there was no connection between his approval of the payments and the "humanitarian" service he said May did for him. He defied "anyone to put a finger" on any wrong-doing.

"Well," observed Chairman Mead (D-NY), "collectively this is a mess. And I don't know whether a finger or a hand or an octopus had something to do with it. I don't think an imaginative fiction writer could write a story like this."

Resigned in 1938

As Jacobson outlined his career to the committee, he resigned from the bar here in 1938 after the Bar association's grievance committee started to investigate him, entered government service as a typist-clerk at $1,620 a year in 1939, and rose to the post of acting chief of the legal division in the Army's Chemical Warfare service as a civilian employe at $9,975 a year.

Jacobson was called to the stand as the committee sought details of what part he played in the approval of advance payments to the munitions combine headed by Henry Garsson.

His lengthy examination caused postponement until tomorrow of testimony from Garsson himself. Garsson, returning here today from out of town, told reporters that Benjamin Franklin Fields, an ex-convict previously mentioned in the inquiry, had no connection with his company's activities. Senator Mitchell (D-Wash), a committee member, has said that Fields offered him a $5,000 campaign contribution if he would persuade his colleagues to "lay off" the inquiry.

Truman Backs Committee

President Truman emphasized meanwhile that the committee, which he headed as a senator, has his full cooperation. In reply to news conference questions, the President reported that the committee members consulted him in advance of their inquiry and told him they had evidence of unconscionable war profits.

Mr. Truman said the committee so far has not asked for authority to examine income tax records. He added that if such a request is made and it appears justified, the permission will be granted.

Jacobson sprinkled his testimony liberally with declarations that his statements were based "on my best recollection," frequently declared that he could not remember details of his past activities, and said once, "my recollection can be very bad."

He declared that he has had a "casual acquaintance' since 1941 with May, chairman of the House Military committee, who has acknowledged aiding Ab munitions comoine but denied that he profited from that help.

Pressed for details on how and when he first met May, Jacobson told the committee he could not "remember exactly. It was somewhere around town, in some hotel somewhere, At different affa

Jacobson said that in 1941 he was a member of an "informal" three-man committee for making advance payments on war contracts, but he said that it did not "function" and he could not remember whether it had ever met.

Received Advance Payment

Testimony has been introduced previously that it was during this period that Erie Basin Metal Products company, one of the chain now under investigation, received an advance payment of $972,000. Jacobson insisted he had nothing to do with that.

He declared that Col. Herbert Heiss was a member of the "informal committee" at the time. Committee Counsel George Meader said that Heiss now is employed by Garsson as a sales manager on civilian production.

Jacobson, under questioning, acknowledged that in later years he had recommended approval of advances for companies in the combine after reviewing the facts and prepared the forms for submission to the chief of the Chemical Warfare service industrial division.

Committee members pressed for an explanation of how well he knew the Garsson brothers, Henry and Murray, and their Washington representative, Joseph Freeman. He told the committee that he had met them during the transaction of War department business, and that he saw one or the other of them in the chemical warfare building on an average of once a week. He said that he had attended Freeman's wedding.

He acknowledged preparing forms for air priorities for the Garssons and for Freeman, but said that he had done so at the request of other divisions in Chemical Warfare service and that it was "normal procedure."

The committee turned then to May's letter of recommendation for Jacobson's reinstatement to the bar of the District of Columbia, and the circumstances behind Jacobson's resignation.

"Where does May fit in?" inquired a committee member.

Went to Rep. May

"I don't think he knew anything about me," said Jacobson. "I went to him as a humanitarian proposition."

He told the committee that he resigned under "pressure" from friends in October of 1938 after they discovered that he was being investigated by the bar association's grievance committee. He said he did so because he felt "prominent" members of his family might be injured by publicity and because that was one case in which he felt that he "might be criticized."

"It was the first fight I ever ran from in my life, and it's the last one," he remarked.

Committee investigators then produced a copy of a letter which May wrote in Jacobson's behalf to the chief justice of the District of Columbia.

In it, May declared that "several years ago" he had learned that Jacobson had resigned, that May had investigated and found that Jacobson "has not only the confidence of his superiors, but he has mine."

May wrote that he considered Jacobson "thoroughly worthy of favorable consideration" for reinstatement.

Jacobson said that his petition for reinstatement "for the thing I want most in my life" is still pending.

Report Studied

Committee investigators then produced the Bar association grievance committee's report on Jacobson which was filed at the time the court accepted his resignation. It cited three cases.

The first centered around alleged misadministration of $15,000 in funds. Jacobson conceded that he could be "criticized" in that case, but asserted "nobody lost any money."

The second, he said, concerned a "fur coat" and he called the charge unfounded. Committee investigators cited the grievance committee report which said that an expensive ermine wrap, stolen from a furrier, turned up two years later at another furrier, purportedly brought there for repairs by Jacobson. The report quoted Jacobson as saying first that he had purchased the coat for his wife, and later as declaring that it had been left in his possession by a "reliable" client.

The third case involved an out-of-court settlement of a case in which the grievance committee reported that Jacobson "withheld" money paid to him as counsel for the defendant until he learned of impending disbarment proceedings.

Mead commented that it was "unfortunate" that the War department did not investigate the background of its employes when "things like this occur."

Testimony that Rep. May protested three times against the War department's cutback of the Batavia Metal Products company's shell contract was given today to the Senate War investigating committee.

The senators also heard fresh details of how May helped the company to get a coveted "E" award which Army Ordinance was reluctant to bestow and which Chairman Mead (D-NY) of the committee called "indefensible."

"What price political expediency," read a notation scribbled across the War department's file on the award of the "E" for efficiency to Batavia.

Admits Making Notation

Milton H. Pettit, wartime chairman of the Ordnance committee on "E" awards, acknowledged authorship of the notation and testified that the award had been rushed through with "unprecedented speed" under "highly unusual" circumstances.

Mead commented, after hearing the details, that the award had a "degrogatory effect upon the producers of America" and constituted a "blemish" on the award program.

Pettit was called as the committee pried deeper into the complicated operations and profits of 19 closely-linked corporations in an effort to learn how and why they obtained the "Washington influence" credited to them by War department officials.

Repeatedly, May's name bobbed up as the committee concentrated its attention upon the Batavia firm.

Committee Counsel George Meader introduced the transcript of a telephone conversation between May and Brig. Gen. Roswell Hardy on May 7, 1945. Hardy confirmed it had taken place.

Questioned on Cutback

It covered a cutback in Army ordnance's orders for eight-inch shells from Batavia, reducing the monthly production requirements from 25,000 to 10,000. Hardy had testified that Batavia was the second highest cost producer of this type shell.

In the transcript, May was quoted as saying that Henry Garsson, "a friend of mine," had just informed him of the cutback and adding, "I am not interested in the company, he is a friend of mine."

Garsson, a dismissed internal revenue agent, has been described by Army officers as "the brain" behind promotion of the industrial combine which handled more than $78,000,000 in war contracts.

In his telephone conversation, May told Hardy that the reduction in business for Batavia was "hard on a fellow. He has to lay off about 300 men." He suggested that ordnance give Batavia an order for another type of material, saying, "I would like for you to consider him for that stuff."

Hardy broke into that conversation to say that "Kaiser"—apparently Henry Kaiser—"also was cut back on the eight inch shell; that he was knocked down even more."

Hardy told the committee that May made two additional phone callsabout the eight inch-shell reduction. But he said that he refused to change it.

The committee turned then to the Army-Navy "E" awarded Batavia for efficiency. Hardy acknowledged that it was given solely on the basis of production, whereas the specified procedure included consideration of such factors as use of manpower, absenteeism and plant capabilities. He acknowledged, too, that it was the only award which he had given his personal atention.

Pettit testified that Batavia never would have received the award if it had been left up to Chicago district ordnance officers—the normal procedure. They had protested the company's manpower handling, its production efficiency standards and its prices.

He said it was his "understanding" that the speed and the unusual proceedings by which it was granted were due to May's intercession. Testimony has been introduced previously that May telephoned ordnance suggesting Batavia get the award.

U.S. FUTURE RESTS ON BRITISH LOAN, HULL TELLS HOUSE

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Cordell Hull played an Administration trump card today for the $3,750,000,000 British loan, telling the House its vote on Saturday will test America's leadership for world cooperation and peace.

"There will be ruin for us and the world if we sit still," said the retired Secretary of State and right hand of Franklyn D. Roosevelt in guiding the nation's wartime foreign policy. Hull's arguments were made in a 1,500-word letter read to the House by Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex).

"This cinches it," said Rep. Priest (D-Tenn), after Hull's letter was read. Priest, the acting Democratic whip, has been polling and re-polling the membership for a week in an effort to find victory in the impending closely-drawn vote.

The Senate has approved the loan. The House plans to vote Saturday.

Priest said his latest poll shows Democrats favoring the loan six to one, and that five members previously opposed had informed him they now will vote for it. Opponents reported that a Republican poll indicated a large ratio in opposition.

Taking the floor immediately after Hull's letter was read, Rep. Knutson (R-Minn) said "over the years a halo of super-wisdom has grown over Mr. Hull that is not warranted. He has been wrong as many times as he has been right."

The Minnesotan said he would prefer to take advice on financial matters from Jesse Jones, former Commerce secretary, who had opposed the loan in its present form as a subsidy for Britain and called for the posting of collateral by the British before credit is extended.

An amendment along the line of Jones' suggestion has been drawn by Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill) and probably will present the legislation's severest test.

My major interest in international economic problems relates to the development of world trade and commerce, which I regard as one of the pillars of international peace and an indispensable factor in progress toward the achievement of freedom from want and in the promotion of all phases of the general welfare.

Ever since 1916, when as a member of the House I first proposed concrete measures for placing trade relations among nations on a sound and workable basis, I have continued to urge upon our country the overwhelming need for our country to exercise, in its own best interest, a growing measure of leadership in promoting mutually beneficial international economic relations. I have consistently advocated the view that the prosperity of our country and of all countries inescapably depends upon their ability to produce useful goods and services efficiently and to exchange their surpluses with each other economically and to their mutual benefit.

Results After Last War Cited

Unfortunately, for some years after the first World War, our country followed the tragically mistaken policy of hampering, by means of trade restrictions and obstructions, the inflow of useful foreign goods, and at the same time promoting, by means of huge indiscriminate loans, the sales abroad of our domestic surpluses. The inevitable consequences of that policy were forcefully brought home to us by the extreme and arbitrary measures of rigid governmental control for time-honored and proven policies of economic freedom. That tendency is all too manifest in the world today. If it continues and develops the result will be bitter economic strife among nations from which we cannot escape unscathed.

Warns of Totalitarian Trade

Our own economic system, based on the doctrine of free enterprise, cannot endure in a world of economic conflict, in which other nations increasingly regiment their production and both their domestic and foreign trade increasingly resort to the destructive practices of totalitarian economics and gradually drag the world down to that level.

For our own sake we must now exert all the influence we have toward reversing this fatal trend. There will be ruin for us and for the world if we sit still. Doing nothing in such a case becomes a positive evil.

For economic conflict is but the beginning of political calamity. Within countries it creates poverty and breeds dictators. Among countries it creates constant animosities and breeds aggressors.

The world is today confronted with an inescapable choice as fraught with decisive significance as any that the human race has ever faced. Reduced to its most fundamental terms that choice is between a growing cooperation among nations in the economic, political and other fields or a growing hermit-like aloofness on the part of nations toward each other which must inevitably lead to increasing international discord and possibly to the final supreme catastrophe of another World War.

While all countries must face this basic choice and must act on it, our country's exceptional size and strength give it a position of special responsibility. It is we more than any other single nation who will determine the direction in which mankind will now go. Our people and our Government have no higher duty to our nation than to work wholeheartedly for international cooperation as against extreme nationalism, for freedom as against regimentation, for world peace as against world discord and war.

Loan Called a Crucial Test

In recent years we have repeatedly assumed and carried forward the heavy responsibilities of world leadership in support of international cooperation and peace by urging other nations capable of doing so to assume similar responsibility; by urging all nations to work for cooperation and peace and, above all, by our own example.

The British loan is a crucial test for us. The men, women and children of Britain have borne untold hardships and have made enormous sacrifices in the second World War. They now need our financial assistance to make it possible for them to rebuild their gravely depleted economy. By thus helping them we can enable Britain once again to become a great influence in helping us to lead the world in the direction which is so vital to us and to all members of the United Nations—in the direction of peace and well-being for all of us.

Denied our aid at this particular juncture, the British people will find themselves compelled more and more to regulate and regiment their economic life in a desperate struggle for survival. In doing this, they will be forced to adopt policies which will render impossible the urgently needed resumption in the world of an adequate and mutually advantageous flow of goods and services among nations.

By denying financial help to Britain so necessary for its economic rehabilitation we would be promoting economic war instead of economic peace. And we would be undermining the foundations of international cooperation. Not only Britain, but we ourselves and the world, would suffer in consequence—needlessly and tragically.

I am well aware that some of our ablest financial experts, including a number of my best friends, hold opposing views on many aspects of the financial arrangements represented by the proposed loan to Britain.

Puts "Central Problem" First

I will not undertake to pass on all of these points. But I do feel this: At this time when conditions everywhere are increasingly critical, the central problem before us is not the technical or even other important aspects of this particular method of financing trade. The problem now is whether we shall press ahead before it is too late, with the program of developing and strengthening the economic foundations of freedom and peace.

The British Government has made clear that once Britain gets a financial breathing spell, which the loan would permit, it will go forward with us wholeheartedly in leading the world to a state of affairs in which trade and production, and enterprise can function again as major factors in bringing about prosperity and peace for all countries. This is of inestimable importance. Loans like the proposed loan to Britain, which make possible a return to economic sanity, are a wholly different matter from some of the loans we made in the Twenties which were merely a cover for unsound and suicidal trade policies.

Our failure to act affirmatively on the British loan will result in far greater injury to us and to the whole broad movement for economic restoration than any specific shortcomings of the proposed financial arrangements.

The loan to Britain is not of course a panacea for all of the world's present economic and political ills. There are many other phases of international relations in which our influence and our example will have a determining effect. But our action on the loan is a test—and a very important test—of our intentions and our leadership.

I am sure that our country will want to meet this test with a full sense of our own immense responsibility.

Sincerely yours,
CORDELL HULL.

Administration-Poll Report

Administration leaders said a poll of the 239 Democrats indicated a 5-to-1 ratio for the legislation, already approved by the Senate, 46 to 34.

They sent out calls for absentee members after a checkup yesterday showed that 141 of the 433 members were not present. Many are waging primary campaigns back home.

Speaker Rayburn (D., Texas) said a plane was ready to return ten members from the Philippines, where they attended the July 4 independence ceremonies. The atom-bomb test delegation is expected back also by Saturday.

May Follow Jones Plan

Dirksen indicated the collateral plan may follow suggestions of Jesse Jones, former Secretary of Commerce, who has described the loan agreement in its present form as "subsidizing the British Empire."

Dirksen did say that his amendment would make no proposal that the United States accept as collateral title to British islands on which this country now has bases.

Base Transfer Urged

Representative Jed Johnson (D., Okla.), however, came up with an amendment proposing that Britain transfer to the United States title to such British possessions in the Pacific as the President may deem necessary for defense of this country. The bases would be returned to Britain after the loan was repaid.

Jones, in a letter to the Banking Committee last month, argued that no money should be loaned to Britain for expenditure in other countries without proper security, "particularly since the British have substantial profitable investments and operations in the United States which could be used as collateral."

Loss for French Communists

The effect in France, particularly on French Communists and their position there, is at the moment a subject of great speculation here. The first conclusion being drawn is that French Communists have probably suffered a loss in their arguments for support by the French people.

Molotov's statement to Foreign Ministers Bevin and Bidault and Secretary of State Byrnes presumably ends a great dilemma in which the Russians have found themselves since the end of the war. They were caught between conflicting German and French interests of tremendous political importance and for months, according to officials here, they either straddled the issues or evaded them.

The issues were and are fairly simple. France wants a very weak Germany. She wants the Ruhr and Rhineland either wholly or partially separated from the new German state. The United States and Britain have been cool to the French ideas but inclined to try to compromise them in a manner acceptable to the French people.

Franc's ideas for western Germany obviously are political dynamite inside Germany where the territorial integrity of the country is a sure-fire political issue for all parties.

Molotov told the foreign ministers that Russia gavored a disarmed but healthy German state. He flatly opposed separation of western territory and any kind of Anglo-American federation idea. Equally he opposed dividing Germany on other lines and he topped off his argument by denouncing the idea of making Germany an agricultural state, something which no major government has seriously considered since the controversy here over the Morgenthau plan.

This latter idea particularly caused diplomatic officials here to read into Molotov's statements a bid for political support for Communism inside Germany.

The Russians are able to take this position because they have already gotten what they wanted from Eastern Germany, both in an economic and a territorial sense. Those decisions were taken by the Big Three at Potsdam a year ago. Russia's firm stand against German dismemberment today has caused some officials here to comment that the Russians would like now to cover up and put away any future concern of German political leaders over their territorial losses in the east.

Text of Cordell Hull's Appeal for British Loan

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 11—Following is the text of a letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn by former Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the British loan:

Dear Mr. Speaker:

As a private citizen, but one who for thirty years has supported and worked actively for international economic cooperation, I have been following with great interest the debate which has been going on, in and out of the Congress, on the proposed loan to Great Britain in its relation to the whole international situation. As I told you when I telephoned you to inquire as to the present status of the matter, I have been increasingly disturbed lest the broad and compelling features of this whole situation be overlooked.

bitter lessons of the great depression.

Twelve years ago our country entered upon a new course. It began to exercise its immense influence in the direction of economic sanity, with a marked promise of success. This course was unhappily interrupted by a new world war.

Today, following that war, we are again confronted with a crisis in international economic relations. This new crisis is more profound, more difficult, more fraught with danger than any we have as yet had to face.

Many parts of the world have been devastated by the war. Unemployment, misery and even starvation stalk the earth. There is always a tendency after a great war or crisis for the nations, caught in the toils of a desperate struggle for economic survival, to seek safety in substituting ex-

Collateral Urged As Condition For Loan

Washington, July 11 (AP)—Critics of the $3,750,000,000 British loan lined up today behind a proposed amendment requiring Britain to post collateral for any advance of United States credit.

Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.) announced he will offer the amendment and will support the loan bill if collateral is required. A final vote on the issue is set for Saturday.

Representative Landis (R., Ind.), a leader of the opposition, announced that a poll of the 192 Republican House members showed 141 against extending the credit, 30 for and 21 undecided. Representative Wolcott, Michigan Republican, predicted 50 to 60 of his party will support the ratifica-

NEW RED POLICY BACKING GERMANY IS SEEN AT PARIS

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP)—Premier Stalin appears to have made one of Europe's great decisions in laying down Russia's new policy on Germany. He had a choice between Germany and France and he chose Germany.

This is the significance seen by top diplomatic authorities here in the Russian policy declaration made by Foreign Minister Molotov at the Paris conference yesterday.

U.N. WITH POWER WILL WIN PEACE, TRUMAN BELIEVES

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP) President Truman expressed the view today that world peace will be attained "if we can implement the United Nations organization with a police force behind it sufficient to make its mandates stand up."

He called for the strong international police force, without going into details, in an extemporaneous address to 150 educators who called at the White House.

The President urged them to help "overcome those prejudices which cause wars—religious prejudices, economic prejudices, misunderstandings between races and people of different languages."

The President followed up his remarks by recommending, through the Budget bureau, an appropriation of $100,000,000 for the Federal Works agency to provide non-housing facilities needed at institutions offering courses to veterans.

The educators, attending a conference on emergency problems in higher education called by the American Council of Education, also heard from four other government officials.

1. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Veterans administrator, told them that the education of veterans is a state responsibility and his agency intends to keep it that way. He reported that 3,000,000 veterans have applied for training and that 900,000 may seek admission to schools and colleges next fall.

2. John D. Small, Civilian Production administrator, promised that his agency will "go out of its way" to help colleges and universities with essential construction programs. He said that "if the work is necessary and it cannot be reasonably postponed, it will be authorized."

3. John R. Steelman, reconversion director, announced that the President intends to appoint a national commission to study how higher education "can be made to contribute most effectively" to the nation's welfare. This had been recommended by Steelman's predecessor, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

4. Maj. Gen. G. B. Erskine, head of the Labor department's Retraining and Reemployment administration, suggested Federal allotments to states to enable them to supervice on-the-job training for veterans.

NO SECRET PARIS ACTIONS

Truman Says Public Knows All He Does on Big 4 Meetings

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—President Truman declared today that the American public were as well informed as he himself about the work of the Foreign Ministers Conference in Paris. He told his news conference that although he had talked regularly with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes by telephone, there had been nothing between Mr. Byrnes and him that has not been in the newspapers.

Mr. Truman said that Mr. Byrnes would be home shortly and would make a statement on the Paris meeting immediately after his arrival. The President expressed a preference to withhold his own comment pending Mr. Byrnes' statement.

The President declined to discuss the Palestine situation on the ground that Cabinet committees of Great Britain and the United States now were meeting to implement the Anglo-American inquiry recommendation for the admission of 100,000 Jews into Palesine.

Truman Promises Economy To Aid in Inflation Fight

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP) The White House put more steam into its anti-inflation drive tonight by promising to cut Federal spending.

President Truman endorsed a report by his new reconversion director, John R. Steelman, calling for reduced outlays by the government—particularly by the peacetime Army and Navy—and for a "workable" OPA law.

"Government expenditures will be reduced," Mr. Truman said in a statement at his news conference in connection with issuance of Steelman's quarterly report.

Costs to Be Revised

"Military and veterans program costs which have been rising above earlier estimates will be revised, to determine where they can be reduced without endangering national security or causing unjustified hardship."

The President pridefully summarized the progress made by mid-year—production at "the highest level ever attained in peacetime"; more people working "than ever before"; the nation "meeting in full our commitments to ship food to the starving peoples of the world"; eight out of every 10 returned veterans already at work.

The President said he had directed Steelman to coordinate fully the activities of all government agencies to attain the high volume of production needed to ward off inflation.

The carving of government expenditures is part of a review of Federal fiscal and monetary policies, he said.

"All deferrable construction and public works projects using Federal funds will be studied with a view to saving strategic materials and diminishing inflationary pressures x x x.

"All these measures are necessary but they are no substitute for specific price control until full production is attained."

Mr. Truman laid emphasis on the number of Americans at work—"four and a half million more than in 1941, our highest prewar year"—and on the record made by industry in absorbing veterans.

"But we shall not be satisfied until the rest of our veterans have suitable employment opportunities," he said.

Steelman, only recently installed as head of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, declared in his quarterly report that price control should be bu'warked by government economy, continued high taxes and credit controls, and a Federal budget balance or surplus.

Logical Place For C

Because the armed forces a. assigned "not far from half" the proposed expenditures of the new fiscal year government agencies, they are the logical places for the economy ax to bite deepest, Steelman said in his first quarterly report to Mr. Truman and the Congress.

"Without price control, other powers of the government would be inadequate to stabilize the economy under present abnormal conditions," Steelman said.

"But if price control is in effect, it can be aided powerfully by other weapons aimed chiefly at reducing excessive demand."

"We must not hamper the present operations of the armed forces, who are fulfilling international obligations essential to the advancement of American interests and to progress toward lasting world peace," Steelman said.

"Economy may be possible, however, without interfering with this function."

He added:

"If a major cut in the inflationary impact of Federal expenditures is to be sought, expenditure plans of the Army and Navy—45 per cent of all proposed expenditures other than interest and refunds—must be reexamined in the light of the present need for anti-inflationary action."

Hopes For Economy

"It is to be hoped also that the merger of the military and naval departments, which the Pre[illegible]t has repeatedly urged, can ac[illegible]e economies by the eliminat[illegible] of duplicating expenditures."

In the year since the government made its first cautious steps toward reconversion, United States production of goods and services has hit "the highest point in peacetime history," the report stated.

Output of over-the-counter goods for consumers so far in 1946 outreaches anything achieved in war or peace, Steelman pointed out, "certainly, up to June 30, runaway inflation had been prevented."

"But today we are threatened with the loss of the controls which we have used to maintain stabilization and to protect production.

"We stand at the crossroads; we must choose now whether we shall move forward through the final stages of reconversion with effective price and wage controls, or whether we are prepared to take the risk of abandoning such controls at a time when supply and demand still are radically out of balance."

Conciliatory Tone

Steelman's language on price control was conciliatory toward Congress. It is "eminently desirable," he said, that Congress should set the policies for price changes and the removal of ceilings. Further, OPA would "welcome" the aid of a decontrol board—like the one provided in the OPA extension act which Mr. Truman vetoed—to state when specific items should be released from control.

His language was milder than that used by Stabilization Director Chester Bowles, who left the government yesterday. Yet Steelman made it clear the Administration is standing pat on its major stabilization demands.

He named as essentials of any new OPA act: Continuation of the principle that dealers must absorb some of the increases in manufacturing costs; reasonable earnings levels for entire industries, rather than a profit on each item; subsidies to some producers, instead of price increases to offset higher costs; "enforceable" ceilings.

"Every day that passes now without a price control law on the books increases the danger that our price ceiling structure will be shattered beyond repair and that the ground we have so laboriously won against inflation will be irretrievably lost."

Our people are earning more money and they are purchasing a greater volume of goods than ever before in peace time.

We are meeting in full our commitments to ship food to the starving peoples of the world.

reduced without endangering national security or causing unjustified hardship. All these measures are necessary but they are no substitute for specific price control until full production is attained.

Truman on Reconversion

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—The complete text of President Truman's statement in connection with John R. Steelman's report on reconversion progress follows:

It is a good thing, from time to time, for all of us to take stock of the progress we have made toward our peace-time domestic goal of sustained full production and full employment.

John R. Steelman's report on reconversion sets forth some facts and figures which a good many people have been inclined to overlook in the heat of debate. Up to June 30 the setbacks which we suffered had been disproportionately magnified.

The facts are that:

Production by mid-year reached the highest level ever attained in peace time.

More people are working now than ever before—four and a half million more than in 1941, our highest pre-war year. Particularly gratifying is the fact that eight out of every ten returned veterans already have jobs; but we shall not be satisfied until the rest of our veterans have suitable employment opportunities. The number of people looking for work was only slightly above two and a half million by the end of June.

Although public attention was focused on the soft-coal and railroad strikes, the great majority of workers remained on their jobs. Fewer man days of idleness due to industrial disputes were recorded during the last quarter than in the first three months of this year.

We have made more progress than many thought possible toward providing new houses for our people.

Certainly, up to this point, runaway inflation has been prevented.

But as the seventh report of the reconversion director points out, all of the ground we have so laboriously won against inflation will be irretrievably lost without a workable price control law. Every day that passes without a law on the books increases that danger.

The Administration is determined to do everything within its power, under the authority granted by Congress, to maintain the gains we have made and to continue moving toward our goal.

To this end, I have directed Mr. Steelman to co-ordinate to the fullest extent the activities of the executive agencies of the government which can assist both industry and labor to attain the high volume of production necessary to ward off inflation.

To supplement pending price-control measures, the Administration is reviewing its fiscal and monetary policies. Government expenditures will be reduced. All deferrable construction and public works projects using Federal funds will be studied with a view to saving strategic materials and diminishing inflationary pressures. Military and veterans' program costs which have been rising above earlier estimates will be reviewed to determine where they can be

U.S. And Britain To Exchange Data

Washington, July 11 (AP)—Britain and America will continue their wartime arrangements for the exchange of general economic information, the Commerce Department announced today.

Simultaneous announcement was scheduled by the British Board of Trade in London.

QUITS PALESTINE GROUP

WASHINGTON, July 11 — (AP) Rep. Lane (D-Mass), today disassociated himself from the Political Action committee for Palestine, asserting in the House that the organization's secretary, Rabbi Barnuch Forff, "through questionable methods, has tried to force my hand."

...aughan To Co-ordinate ...ruman's Veterans' Data

Washington, July 11 (AP)—President Truman today appointed Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan as White House co-ordinator of matters involving veterans.

The assignment is in addition to Vaughan's duties as military aide to the President.

"The need for co-ordination at White House level has long been evident since there are some fourteen Federal agencies directly involved in veterans' affairs," the President said in a statement.

In the new post, the White House said, Vaughan will handle certain preliminaries on veterans' policy matters which come to Mr. Truman for decision.

Job-to-Vet Flag Given to Krug

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—A new service flag designed to stimulate the employment of veterans was presented to Interior Secretary Krug today by the American Veterans Committee, of which he is a member. The presentation was made by Charles G. Bolte, A. V. C. chairman, and Robert L. Marx of New York city, who designed the flag.

The banner is similar to service flags already in use, but has a V to represent the number of veterans being employed by the firm flying it.

Clark Argues Right to Seat

U. S. Judge Seeking Post He Left to Enter Army Sees Threat to Veterans.

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—Declaring that "we veterans are in danger of being chucked out," former United States Circuit Judge William Clark of Princeton, N. J., asked a Senate Judiciary sub-committee today to help him get his old job back under the Selective Service act.

Clark testified at a hearing on President Truman's nomination of United States District Court Judge Harry E. Kalodner of Philadelphia to the Third Circuit Appeals Court, where Clark previously sat, that any vacancy on the court belonged to him, not Kalodner. He said the Senate should "withhold its advice and consent" to the appointment of any one else.

Clark and his lawyer, Lloyd Paul Stryker of New York, told the committee that opposition to Kalodner's appointment was in no sense a reflection on his fitness.

Is Suing Government.

Clark, who is suing the Government in the United States Court of Claims for restoration to his old job and for nearly $10,000 in back pay, entered the Army in 1942 as a lieutenant-colonel at the age of 51. He also served in world war I.

He told Senator McCarran (D.-Nev.), chairman of the Judiciary subcommittee that his resignation on the Circuit Court was not accepted by the late President Roosevelt. However, he said, the President later acted on an "unsound theory" of dual office holding—propounded, he said, by Francis Biddle, then Attorney-General, and notified Clark of acceptance of the resignation.

"I hope," said Clark, "this hearing may check a tendency to whittle down the G. I. Bill of Rights. Why indeed should private employers abide by its provision if the United States Government does not?"

Doubts Jurisdiction.

McCarran said it appeared offhand to him that the committee has no jurisdiction to say whether there is or is not a vacancy on the court. Stryker said it has.

Citing Clark's record in the two world wars—he was wounded and decorated in each—Stryker declared: "If any man merits the protection of the (veterans) laws, I would say that he (Clark) is too modest to say that here's the man."

Clark, now 55, said he objects to any "super-seniority" for veterans which would give them advantages "in seeking positions they had neved held before," but he added: "It is not that type of preference that the statutes under which I claim provides for. It, as you know, performs a simple act of justice. It prevents veterans' service to their country causing them to sacrifice the position, both public and private, they had given up to go to war."

He said Federal Judges are appointed to serve during good behavior and added: "The people will be interested to note that the Department of Justice (which denies his claim to the job), considers fighting for your country bad behavior."

Names Other Judges.

Clark recited a list of six other Federal Judges, including Supreme Court Justices Jackson, Roberts and Murphy, who he said, were given leaves of absence for war duties and said: "None of these gentlemen were held by Mr. Biddle or the present Attorney-General, Mr. Clark, to have vacated their judgeship."

Clark told the committee that on returning to civilian status last year, he went to see Senator Guffey (D.-Pa.), to enlist his help in getting back on the court.

He said Guffey had decided to recommend two Pennsylvania Democrats for vacancies then existing on the court. Clark said he objected that such appointments would not only violate his Selective Service rights, but would unbalance the court politically and geographically.

He said that although New Jersey originates only one-third fewer cases in the Third Circuit Court than does Pennsylvania, the latter would have four judges to New Jersey's one and all would be Democrats. Clark is a Republican.

He said he told Guffey that the Third Circuit Court would become the only court in the United States whose members all belonged to the same political party.

"As you know," he said, "my argument had no effect on the distinguished Senator."

Guffey, a visitor at the hearing, chuckled and mumbled something which sounded like "that's right."

Hero Of Marine Corps Promoted And Retired

Washington, July 11 (AP)—Col. Evans F. Carlson, the leader of "Carlson's Raiders," has been promoted to brigadier general and retired from active service, it was announced today.

One of the Marine Corps' most decorated officers, Carlson was retired because of physical disability resulting from wounds suffered at the battle of Saipan in July, 1944, the Marine Corps said. Carlson was wounded going to the aid of an enlisted man who had fallen in the battle.

LAGUARDIA LEAVES FOR CAIRO SUNDAY

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—Fiorello H. LaGuardia, UNRRA director general, accompanied by the American and Russian members of the UNRRA Council, is scheduled to leave on Sunday for Cairo on a visit to North Africa and Europe prior to the UNRRA council meeting at Geneva on August 5. Accompanying LaGuardia will be C. Tyler Wood of the State Department, alternate American member of the UNRRA council; and N. I. Feonov, Russian council member. In addition to Cairo, Athens, Rome, Belgrade, Warsaw and the American occupation zone of Germany are on their itinerary.

UNRRA headquarters said today that the committee of the UNRRA council for the Far East, scheduled to convene in Shanghai on July 17, will be concerned primarily with distribution of UNRRA supplies in China. LaGuardia two days ago stopped all agency supplies to China except foodstuffs.

25,000 U. S. Bodies Sought in Europe by Army

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—Europe is being systematically searched "from Gibraltar to Murmansk," the Army reported today, in an effort to find and identify the bodies of more than 25,000 Americans killed in the recent world war. An estimated five years will be required to complete the task, which already has engaged the efforts of some 14,000 soldiers, civilians and prisoners of war.

Airmen shot down in isolated parts of Germany account for a large proportion of those listed as missing in Europe. Also sought are the bodies of several hundred intelligence men killed and buried in remote corners of the Balkans and the Middle East.

Actually, by the latest reports, there are 6,132 whose whereabouts are undetermined. In addition, 3,929 who lie in United States military cemeteries are unidentified, and 15,486 have been recorded as buried in known, but isolated locations.

The search, gradually gaining momentum since VE-day, is being carried out by the American Graves Registration Command with main headquarters at Versailles, France. It involves intensive checking of records, questioning local residents, and running down countless clews.

Mobile groups operating under three field commands of the registration service have started to comb every area where Americans fought. The searchers are directed to cover every square mile within designated areas, varying from 50 to 100 miles, guided by casualty battle maps and lists, as well as local records. Any indication of atrocities is turned over to an accompanying crimes team.

Thus far, 134,00 American dead are buried in thirty-six military cemeteries. Possibly 80 per cent, it has been estimated, will be returned to the United States for reburial. The others will lie in six or more permanent cemeteries abroad.

682,114 Strength Set For National Guard

25 Infantry Divisions and 2 of Armor Planned

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—The War Department disclosed orders today for a post-war National Guard of 682,114 officers and enlisted men—twice the size of the per-war guard force.

Major General Butler B. Miltonberger, chief of the department's National Guard Bureau, announced an upward revision in strength to twenty-five infantry divisions and two armored ones.

General Miltonberger told reporters that the guard would be "a highly trained, mobile M-Day Force" and added that "under a directive from General Dwight D. Eisenhower, we are setting up units individually as soon as they are ready."

General Miltonberger predicted that all the divisions and several score smaller combat units would be in process of activation by the end of the year. At their present pace, he said the eighty-four National Guard air squadrons that are planned would be ready by Nov. 1. Squadrons at St. Louis and Denver are to be the first.

He told of plans to create two new infantry divisions, but they were not identified. General Miltonberger announced, however, that the 44th Infantry Division, previously allocated to New Jersey, had been shifted to Illinois. New Jersey will get the 50th Armored Division and Texas the 49th Armored Division.

All states and territories except Hawaii have now accepted their troop allotments, General Miltonberger said, and eighteen states have been authorized to go ahead with actual organization.

Under new war plans, General Miltonberger emphasized that the coast artillery would be a highly mobile unit, equipped with radar and other modern equipment to cope with guided missiles and rockets of the atomic age.

2,000 WAC's To Ship Overseas In 4 Months

Washington, July 11 (AP)—More than 2,000 WAC's will be shipped overseas during the next four months.

The War Department said today they will serve in the European and Pacific theaters and with the Caribbean Defense commands. The initial shipment of 300 will go to Germany the first week in August.

The majority will be selected from volunteers now on active duty, but a small portion will be recruited from women who have been discharged. In order to receive an overseas assignment WAC's are asked to agree to serve for the duration plus six months.

WAC's going to the Pacific will be assigned to General MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo and at headquarters of the 8th Army in Yokohama.

Last Of POW's Due To Leave U.S. Soon

Washington, July 11 (AP)—More than fourteen months after V-E day, arrangements were completed today to send back to Germany the last of more than 370,000 prisoners of war brought to this country.

The final group, aside from fewer than 300 sick or classed as incorrigibles, is scheduled to sail July 22 from New York, War Department officials said.

All are Germans. The last of the Japanese and Italian POW's were returned to their homelands early this year.

Prospects for the immediate release of this last batch of prisoners once they hit Germany again are uncertain.

Some Face British Custody

Under an arrangement with Great Britain, 175,000 of the final group held in the United States were to be turned over to British custody. However, about half of these already have gone to the United Kingdom and the others have been sent to the British occupied zone of Germany, where selected war prisoners work in the Ruhr coal mines and on other jobs.

The United States rapidly is freeing the remainder of its war prisoners, aside from those charged with war crimes. A total of 141,000 still in American custody in Germany will be reduced to about 3,000 sick and incorrigibles by the end of this year, under plans reported to Congress.

Once 370,000 In U.S.

In the meantime, they have helped relieve the army's manpower problem in Europe—while drawing the 80 cents a day minimum pay fixed by the Geneva convention.

During the peak period before the Nazi collapse more than 315,000 German war prisoners were scattered among special camps in every section of this country, along with some 50,000 Italians and fewer than 5,000 Japanese.

Prior to their repatriation, selected individuals among the Wehrmacht prisoners were trained in democratic ways of life at a school at Fort Eustis, Va. This school now has been closed.

HOUSE STANDS PAT ON ITS PROPOSAL FOR SILVER PRICE

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP) Standing pat on its proposal to sell government silver at 77.11 cents an ounce, the House today tossed the problem back in the lap of the Senate which yesterday approved a compromise at 90.3 cents.

"We couldn't send the bill to conference with the group which the Senate instructed to hold out for 90.3; that wouldn't be a conference," Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.) told a reporter. Taber was a member of the House conference committee.

"If the Senate wants to confer further," he said, "let them have a roll call vote on the contested amendment, and either accept the House proposal or send an uninstructed committee to conference to try again for a compromise."

The wrangle over silver prices has been going on for six months while private silver sellers waited for some indication of the price to be charged for the government store. The supplies available to industry meanwhile dwindled to a point where one user reported it was melting silver dollars to obtain the metal.

That practice meant the industry was paying $1.29 an ounce for silver, which is the goal of some western senators. The Senate's original proposal would have fixed the price at 90.3 cents for two years, then boosted it to $1.29.

The authority to sell government silver, bought to support silver certificates and make silver coins, is contained in an amendment which the House attached to the Treasury-Post Office appropriation bill for the 1947 fiscal year. Funds for the two departments are held up until the matter is settled.

The Senate version of the price rider also would repeal the transactions tax on silver and remove the price ceiling on certain silver products and on bullion.

Chairmanship Of PAC Seen Hard To Fill

Washington, July 11 (AP)—Sidney Hillman's place as chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee was wide open today—in the middle of the nation's primary elections.

CIO leaders said Hillman's death leaves a gap in the Congress of Industrial Organizations which will be hard to fill. Few had any definite idea as to a logical successor.

Walter Reuther, president of the CIO Auto Workers, said here: "There is only one man qualified to take Sidney Hillman's place, and that man is (CIO President) Phil Murray. But he certainly has burdens enough already."

Murray, the man who will appoint Hillman's successor, said:

"I have given no thought to it."

Several Names Discussed

Though few at the CIO had any prediction as to the next CIO-PAC chairman, several names were being discussed as possibilities.

One guess was that Murray would take over the job—for a time at least—in addition to his other duties as CIO head and president of the CIO Steelworkers Union.

Some thought R. J. Thomas, defeated by Reuther for the UAW presidency last March, had a chance for the job. He is PAC secretary-treasurer.

Others considered it more likely that one of Hillman's three assistant PAC chairmen might be elevated. These are the full-time men who carry out the policies of the eight-man PAC: Thomas Burns, Tilford Dudley and Jack Kroll.

Heads Southern Drive

Van Bittner, vice chairman of the committee, was believed to be out of the picture because he is busy directing the CIO Southern organizing drive.

Besides Thomas and Van Bittner, other surviving members of the PAC are Emil Rieve, president of the Textile Workers Union; Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the United Electrical Workers; David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of Murray's Steelworkers; John Green, president of the Marine and Shipbuilding Workers; and Sherman Dalrymple, former president of the Rubber Workers.

Carey Also Possible

Another possibility is James Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer.

Funeral services for Hillman will be held in New York at Carnegie Hall tomorrow noon. Dr. Stephen S. Wise will officiate.

The body will lie in state at Carnegie Hall until 11 A.M., after being transferred from Riverside Memorial Chapel today. Interment will be in Westchester Hills Cemetery, Hastings, N.Y.

Truman Bastille Day Address

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—President Truman today made a brief recorded address to be beamed to France on July 14, Bastille Day. The White House said it will be broadcast by the international broadcasting division of the State Department and will be made public at that time.

FBI CHIEF IS HEARD ON REDIN EVIDENCE

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said today that he has advised Attorney-General Tom C. Clark that it is up to the prosecution to decide what testimony should be adduced in the espionage-conspiracy case of Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin, the Russian naval officer, on trial in the Federal Court in Seattle.

The question came up after Judge Lloyd L. Black, presiding, had called on the Attorney-General's office to supply "whispering wire" recordings, if any, of Redin's conversations with a shipyard engineer, Herbert C. Kennedy. Redin is accused of having purchased naval secrets from Kennedy.

In reply to this request, Hoover's office said today, the FBI chief told Clark last Saturday that United States Attorney Victor E. Anderson could use his own discretion as to what testimony should be given.

ATOMIC BOARD ARGUES VETO

Russian Reported Rejecting Antonomy Proposal

M. HARRELSON

New York, July 11 (AP)—An authoritative source said today that Soviet Russia had rejected Australia's proposal for an autonomous authority to control atomic energy and had again refused to surrender her veto right on matters connected with atomic control.

This source said Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate, insisted on placing all atomic control under the United Nations Security Council without altering the present veto rights of the five permanent members of the Council.

Gromyko's declaration was made at a closed session of a special subcommitee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

Phase Of Study Completed

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, chairman of the subcommittee, said today's session wound up another phase of atomic experts' efforts to work out an effective system of control for the lethal weapon.

Evatt confirmed reports that Gromyko had given his views both on the veto question and on proposals for an autonomous agency, but he declined to give details.

Another informant who was present said, however, that Gromyko argued that all questions connected wtih the use of atomic energy were directly concerned with world peace.

Will Refuse To Submit

Evatt said he told Gromyko that countries which had atomic raw materials would never agree to submit any control plan unless the big powers agreed to surrender their veto powers over atomic matters.

Gromyko was represented as insisting, however, that the regular Security Council rules—including the veto—should apply to atomic questions.

Evatt said he would report on the five meetings of the subcommittee when the twelve-nation working committee meets in a closed session tomorrow.

New Committees Sought

Asserting it was now time to start putting a control system on paper "in ABC language," Evatt said he would propose the creation of several subcommittees. These would include:

A group of five or six members to work out specific plans for controls, inspections and other measures to insure that atomic energy would not be used for destructive purposes.

Another group to work on legal questions, such as determining the relationship between an atomic-control agency and the United Nations. This group, he said, would study the veto question and decide whether an amendment to the United Nations Charter would be necessary.

A twelve-nation scientific panel to take up the exchange of scientific information and the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

Review Of Veto Demanded By Australia

GROMYCH

New York, July 11 (AP)—A formal Australian demand for review of the veto rule by the United Nations General Assembly occupied the attention of United Nations delegates today after Soviet Russia had tried to use the veto yesterday to bar Canada from Security Council deliberations on atomic energy.

The Russian move was blocked by a ruling by Council Chairman Francisco Castillo Najera, of Mexico, but Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko's grim insistence that he would again seek to veto Canada's attendance spurred a campaign for restriction of the veto power to major questions bearing on the most serious and grave matters affecting the peace.

DAY

Australian Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt, who sought to convince Gromyko in heated debate on and off the Council floor yesterday that he could not exclude Canada willy-nilly, led the campaign by formally requesting that the veto rule be listed for discussion by the General Assembly in September.

Elated At Success

Visibly elated over the success of challenging maneuvers he led to block Gromyko's latest veto attempt, Evatt indulged in a whimsical paraphrase before the Council: "Sufficient to the day is the veto thereof."

The remark prefaced his salutation to Dr. Castillo Najera, who is retiring from the Council presidency after Mexico's one-month term in the chair.

Castillo Najera took his leave of the Council by saying in part:

"Owing to recent incidents in the deliberations of this Council, a growing sentiment has developed in public opinion, reflected in the world press, toward the study of a way of revising the Charter in order to prevent the veto's being extended to cases which do not really merit such a disproportionate measure as the veto constitutes."

Gromyko's Reply

Gromyko, replying in his turn to Castillo Najera's farewell, expressed doubts as to the merits of valedictories of retiring chairmen, and replied:

"If Dr. Najera hopes to achieve important results from this statement, his hopes will be disappointed; his statement will not have the effect that he expects."

The situation yesterday developed like this:

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, of Canada, asked permission to attend yesterday's Council meeting, at which rules of procedure for the Atomic Energy Commission were to be discussed.

Came As Surprise

Gromyko protested that the Canadian request came as a surprise and asked postpontment of consideration until the next meeting.

Castillo Najera and Evatt cited a Charter provision that any United Nations member may be accorded nonvoting participation in Council discussion of questions which in the Council's view especially affect that member.

Nine members voted to invite Canada to sit in, Russia voted in opposition and Poland abstained from voting.

Gromyko promptly announced that his vote was a veto, contending that the question was one of substance rather than procedure.

"I consider that it is a question of procedure under the Charter and so I invite the representative of Canada to make his place at the table of the Council," Castillo Najera retorted.

Evatt Ready

The majority, led by Evatt, was ready to forestall any attempt by Russia to substantiate her attempted veto by demanding a vote on the president's ruling that it was a procedural matter.

Evatt interpreted the rules to mean that the vote must be made on the challenge rather than on the president's ruling.

Gromyko then left the matter pending, but declared he reserved the right to raise the question again.

Ex-Officer Admits Making $37,000 Illegally Overseas

Azerbaijan Rule Still In Question

Princeton, N.J., July 11 (AP)—Hussein Ala, Iranian Ambassador to the United States, said tonight that "the Iranian Government still has not regained control of Azerbaijan."

Speaking before the Whig Cliosophic Society of Princeton University, Ala declared "it is still not certain that all Russian forces—some may be in civilian dress—have left Iran."

He said that Iranian officials were unable to reach the northern province to check on the departure of the Russians because the railroad and airline were controlled by Soviet forces, and they had not turned them over to his Government.

Ala disclosed that he had written to his Government suggesting "that an international company be organized in which the Russians, British, Americans, Dutch and others hold shares to pool the oil of Iran."

He added that this company should be controlled by the Social and Economic Council of the United Nations.

He made the statement after saying that "the Russians have suggested a joint stock company with them holding 51 per cent of the stock" be formed "to explore and exploit the oil in Iran."

The Iranian Ambassador said that he had not yet received a reply to his suggestion, and added:

"Why should not oil, which is just as explosive as the atomic bomb be dealt with by a special committee of the United Nations?"

the Army in 1941 and won a commission because he spoke English, Polish and German fluently.

Smuggling Story Checked

Kauffmann also disclosed he had smuggled jewelry and silverware stolen in Germany into this country. He said he placed the goods in safe-deposit vaults in Boston banks. FBI agents and custom officers said they were checking this phase of the story.

Harry J. Neginger, chief of detectives of the Bankers' Protective Association, said Kauffmann had 41 money orders totaling $3,700 on him when he was arrested. Nebinger said Kauffmann told him he had already cashed many money orders in New York and Boston banks.

Philadelphia, July 11 (AP)—Harry Kauffmann, 31-year-old German refugee who served as an army intelligence officer during World War II, was held in jail today on a forgery charge after telling police how he accumulated $37,000 through black-market operations overseas.

Kauffmann told Police Lieutenant William Greenhalgh he smuggled the money to the United States by photostating and forging enlisted men's documents and then using the papers to purchase army money orders.

Arrested In Bank

The former native of Stuttgart, Germany, who is now a resident of Brookline, Mass., was arrested yesterday while converting money orders into $6,000 cash in a Philadelphia bank, Greenhalgh said.

Kauffmann faces arraignment on the forgery charge before Magistrate J. A. Roberts.

Additionally, the ex-officer was accused of forging, counterfeiting and illegally using eleven army discharge papers in a Federal charge. He gets a hearing on those counts Monday before United States District Court Judge George A. Welsh.

Greenhalgh said Kauffmann told him he emigrated to the United States in 1939 and obtained a job with a textile firm. He enlisted in the army in 1941 and was discharged in 1945 as a technical sergeant.

Second Stowaway Follows Oil Heir

San Francisco, July 11 (AP)—Oilrich Johnny Oeschner's second stowaway girl admirer was headed for a Federal corrective institution today.

Theresa Ann Briston, 16, pleaded guilty yesterday to theft of $2,060 from Mrs. Dorothy Munson, of Honolulu, aboard the liner Matsonia en route from Hawaii to the United States. Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman sentenced her to three years in an institution of the "training type" to be selected by Attorney General Tom Clark.

Theresa came to this country, she said, to be with Johnny after a romance among the palms of Hawaii, where he was stationed with the United States Navy.

First Pursuit

The Hawaiian romances of the Oakland (Cal.) 20-year-old oil heir began when he was followed there by his stowaway plumber No. 1, Marguerite Human.

Johnny and Marguerite announced that their marriage was impending, but territorial authorities said that Oeschner wasn't old enough to marry in Hawaii without his parent's consent. His mother packed her lawyer off to Honolulu with instructions to oppose the marriage. Johnny later was quoted by his mother as saying he never wanted to see Marguerite again.

Charged With Theft

When Johnny came sailing home for discharge, Theresa followed, saying she and Johnny had fallen in love. However, Federal authorities picked her up and charged her with theft of the money last June 2.

Her attorney, Sol Abrams, said Theresa submitted voluntarily to prosecution and that the information listed her as a juvenile delinquent.

london, ~~e~~ july 11--(ap)--british diplomatic informants said today that the ~~world~~ british government was astonished and perplexed that congressional critics in washington should make recent actions in palestine a basis for opposing the loan to britain.

they described the official british view ~~as~~ the loan was NOT a political prize, to be granted or withheld for what britain does ~~in palestine or some other~~ POLITICALLY IN SOME part of the world, but an economic matter totally divorced from palestine.

the informants said that britain regards the economic reasons for the loan as justified and advantageous both to the united states and britain, strictly on the basis of reviving world trade.

official quarters were understood to have acted on this assumption when counter-measures were ordered against jewish underground groups in palestine 10 days ago. diplomatic informants said this accounted for what appeared to be "bad timing" in regard to the position of the loan.

london, july 11-(ap)- tempers flared in the house of commons today over the question of whether some members had associated with fascists--- a touchy question since author h. g. wells raised it last week in connection with the royal family.

conservative a. t. lennox-boyd asserted that food minister john strachey once was a "close associate of sir oswald mosley." laborite raymond blackburn than asked whether lennox-boyd had been "an associate of franco and the fascists in spain."

lennox-boyd did not answer the question but, ending the flurry, said he had meant only that strachey was an associate of mosley before sir oswald founded the british fascist union.

strachey was not in the house at the time. he bolted the labor party with mosley in 1931, but severed ties with mosley several years before the latter's fascist career began.

wells' blast against the royal family meanwhile appeared to hav splattered out, most of the british public having heard of it only vaguely if at all.

he asked in a magazine article last friday if the ruling house had been involved in mosley's finances. mosley denied that it had and official quarters ignored the question.

LONDON, JULY 11-(AP)-A BOARD OF TRADE WHITE PAPER DISCLOSED TODAY THAT BRITAIN HAS A WARTIME ACCUMULATED SURPLUS OF WOOL SUFFICIENT TO SUPPLY UNITED KINGDOM CONSUMERS FOR TWO YEARS WITHOUT FURTHER PURCHASES.

THE REPORT GAVE DETAILS OF THE PLAN ANNOUNCED JUNE 23 WHEREBY THE UNITED KINGDOM JOINED WITH NEW ZEALAND, AUSTRALIA AND SOUTH AFRICA IN SETTING UP AN ORGANIZATION TO DISPOSE OF THE SURPLUS WHILE MAINTAINING STABLE PRICES.

THE REPORT SAID THAT THE UNITED KINGDOM HELD 3,250 MILLION POUNDS OF WOOL, VALUED AT ABOUT £170,000,000 ($680,000,000) ON JUNE 30, 1945.

IT EXPLAINED THAT THIS SURPLUS WAS CREATED BY BRITAIN'S AGREEMENT IN 1940 TO PURCHASE 1,500 MILLION POUNDS OF WOOL ANNUALLY FOR THE PERIOD OF THE WAR AND ONE YEAR THEREAFTER FROM NEW ZEALAND, AUSTRALIA AND SOUTH AFRICA. THIS REPRESENTS ABOUT TWO-THIRDS OF THE WORLD'S ANNUAL EXPORTABLE WOOL SUPPLY.

"THE HOLDING OF A STOCK OF THIS SIZE IS A SERIOUS BURDEN," THE REPORT SAID. "AND ITS EXISTENCE IS A CLOUD HANGING OVER THE MARKET. IT IS CONSEQUENTLY NECESSARY, IN ALL OUR INTERESTS, THAT IT SHOULD BE REDUCED AS RAPIDLY AS POSSIBLE, WHILE AT THE SAME TIME BEING FIRMLY HELD. IT IS NO LESS ESSENTIAL THAT ITS DISPOSAL SHOULD BE CAREFULLY INTEGRATED WITH THE MARKETING OF THE CURRENT CLIP."

THE REPORT SAID THAT COMPLETE DISPOSAL OF THE SURPLUS WOULD TAKE 12 OR 13 YEARS.

4 MINISTERS ADJOURN SESSION; REDS ARE BLAMED

Russia Bars Moves to Settle Austrian, German Problems Quickly.

RESUME IN FALL

Molotov Refuses to Support Plan for Central Administration in Reich.

PARIS, July 12—(AP) The four-power foreign ministers' council adjourned its 28-day session today after Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov stood firm against any move that would have led to immediate settlement of Austrian or German problems, a British source said.

The Soviet minister blocked an American proposal that would have established a special commission to draft a peace treaty with Austria and declined to permit the authorization of a commission to draw up a definition of German assets in Austria, the British informant said.

Central Body Opposed

Molotov likewise refused to support a plan to set up a central administration for all Germany except the Saar basin.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin presided at the night session which wound up the current meeting of the ministers of the United States, Great Britain, France and Russia.

His gavel dropped at 9:10 p.m. (3:10 p.m. Eastern Standard Time) and he commented:

"Well, we shall meet again at the peace conference."

American sources said Molotov's opposition to making any immediate decision on the Austrian situation was closely allied to his charge that several hundred thousand displaced persons who have fascist and pro-Hitler backgrounds still are in Austria.

These persons must be deported, Molotov has reiterated. The other ministers previously indicated they would support such a deportation move.

Question Came Over

At the close of the discussion on Germany, President Georges Bidault of France said he would bring up the question of the next meeting of the ministers—a special one in the fall—and would demand the right of other nations interested in the problem to sit in with the four-power ministers.

Bidault named Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Denmark as the interested nations. U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes said he would support Bidault's proposal.

The French government earlier this week, at the instruction of the foreign ministers' council, sent out invitations to 17 other nations to participate in a general European peace conference to be convened here July 29.

In their final session, the ministers again went over the five draft treaties for Italy, Finland and the Balkans and sent them back to their deputies to make some final changes before next Wednesday.

Cruiser for Greece

The ministers, allotting certain Italian naval vessels to Yugoslavia and Greece, agreed that Greece should receive a medium cruiser to replace one sunk by the Italians during the war and that Yugoslavia should be given fighting ships aggregating 5,000 tons, of which at least 3,000 tons should be in fighting condition.

Then Bevin told the council there were eight points in the Italian and Balkan treaties that did not satisfy his government and that he would not sign any peace treaty until the points were satisfied, the British informant said.

The British source listed the points as including the Danube question, the disposition of United Nations property in Italy, compensation for damage to Allied property in enemy countries, the handling of industrial, literary and artistic property rights and a provision for "most favored nation" treatment in aviation and British property in the Balkans.

The ministers agreed on the form of setting up a committee to draft the internationalization of Trieste, but a split between Molotov and the Western Powers again appeared when Byrnes proposed that Yugoslavia be required to pledge a "human rights" document for Italians in the areas ceded to Yugoslavia.

Needs Time for Study

Molotov repeated his opposition to setting up a central administration in Germany, American informants said, with a plea that he "had to have more time to study it."

The ministers, however, approved a French proposal that the Allied Control Council in Berlin implement German coal production reports.

Byrnes said tonight he was uncertain whether he would return to the United States or remain in Europe until the peace conference convenes. President Truman's plane "Sacred Cow" was at an airport here waiting to fly Byrnes to the United States if he decided to make the trip.

Some of Byrnes friends have been urging him to take a short vacation in Europe prior to the conference.

Sens. Vandenberg (R-Mich) and Senator Connally (D-Tex), Byrnes advisers at the council sessions, plan to fly to the United States, leaving Paris at 1 p. m. (Paris time—7 a.m. Eastern Standard time) tomorrow.

In the morning session, Byrnes declared that Russia had already received directly or indirectly $14,000,000,000 in reparations from Germany. Earlier this week Molotov asked for $10,000,000,000 in war damages from Italy.

Morning Developments

These were the prime developments of the ministers' morning session:

1. Byrnes proposed immediate steps toward establishment of central economic agencies in Germany after French Foreign minister Georges Bidault, in a remarkable concession, agreed to go along if the coal-rich Saar was not included. Molotov asked further time to study the condition that the Saar be incorporated into the French monetary and economic systems.

2. Molotov agreed to start work on the Austrian treaty, long sought by the United States, if 437,000 "fascist" refugees were expelled by the Austrian government. Byrnes promised to discuss this stipulation later.

3. Byrnes' reparations statement, made to the ministers yesterday but released today, said that taxable property in that part of Silesia taken from western Germany was valued at $1,500,000,000. Russia gave [illegible] and in return for part [illegible]nd. Taxable property [illegible]sberg area, which [illegible]ssia, was valued at $2,500,000,000, Byrnes said.

This was agreed [illegible] Potsdam in addition to [illegible] that Russian reparations should come from the Soviet zone, except for limited plant deliveries from other zones, Byrnes continued. He said the only mention of $10,000,000,000 reparations had been at the preceding Yalta conference, and it was taken then only as a basis for study.

He said his figures showed that "the Allies have been endeavoring so far as possible to cooperate with the Soviet government in its efforts to secure reparations, and are still going to do so in carrying out the Potsdam agreement if the whole Potsdam agreement is observed."

Russia 'Already 14 Billion Up In Reparations'

Paris, July 12 (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes said in a statement on German reparations today that the Russians already have received directly or indirectly $14,000,000,000 in territory and equipment.

The Russians through Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, demanded $10,000,000,000 reparations of Germany earlier this week.

Byrnes acknowledged that an accurate valuation was difficult, but he said the detachment of eastern Germauy, including Silesia, as decided at the Potsdam conference, placed $14,000,000,000 worth of German property under Soviet control.

Former Polish Area Cited

Under another agreement, this area was placed under Polish administration in compensation for portions of eastern Poland which Soviet Russia absorbed, the Secretary pointed out.

The Council of Foreign Ministers heard a proposal by Byrnes for economic unification of Germany but no decision was reached. France demanded that the Saar be excluded from the unification and integrated into French economy, and Russia asked more time to study the Saar, an American informant said.

Secretary of State Byrnes proposed that the Berlin control council of the United States, Russia, France and the United Kingdom be instructed immediately to set up the machinery for such a merger. The proposal was temporarily tabled.

Asks Exclusion Of Saar

The American informant said Byrnes made his new proposal after President-Foreign Minister Georges Bidault of France said in a conciliatory statement that the Saar should be excluded from such a unification and be incorporated fully in the French economy.

Byrnes yesterday had told his colleagues that the United States was ready to proceed with an economic merger of the occupation zones.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin discussed Byrnes's new unification proposal in favorable terms and said his Government would study it "urgently."

Austrian Problem Up

After Byrnes' new plan was tabled, the American suggested that the session discuss Austria. Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of Russia suggested that deputies be instructed to begin work on an Austrian treaty after they have finished the drafts of accords with the defeated nations.

American sources said Molotov's proposal was coupled with a demand that the Austrian Government be told to oust from the western occupation zones of Austria 437,000 "remnants of Hitlerism"—such as Yugoslav Chetniks, Croat Ustachis, elements of General Anders's Polish army, and Russian and Ukrainian White Guards.

Says He Lacks Data

Byrnes replied that he lacked sufficient data to discuss the Austrian displaced persons problem, but that he thought he would be in a position to talk about it at the afternoon session. Byrnes and his British and French colleagues were said by the American source to have agreed in principle to the ouster of such persons.

Bidault told the Ministers France would consent to "provisionally treat Germany, in its actual frontiers, as an economic unit." He said France would insist, however, that the machinery for a merger such as Byrnes asked be headed by Allied personnel and not by German officials.

Molotov Asks Delay

Byrnes commented that since the United States was prepared to make an exception of the Saar, the Council appeared agreed on the establishment of machinery for a unified Germany. Therefore, he proposed that the Council instruct the Berlin Control Council to establish the machinery.

Molotov replied he would have to study the French proposal. Byrnes asked him why. Molotov answered that he wanted to examine the Saar question.

After World War I, the 726-square mile Saar territory was placed under a commission responsible to the League of Nations for fifteen years. Although France was given absolute possession of its mines as compensation for German destruction in Northern France. In 1935, more than 90 per cent of the 770,000 people of the Saar voted to return to Germany in one of Hitler's earliest territorial gains.

Russ Points Listed

An American informant said Molotov's proposal for Austria embraced these points:

1. Ratification by the Council of an Allied control council agreement of June 28 enlarging Austrian jurisdiction to assist in the liquidation of "Hitlerite elements" in Austria.

2. The Ministers' Council should note that in Austria's western occupation zones there were 437,000 so-called displaced persons who constituted a threat to Autria's internal situation and that of neighboring states, and that their evacuation was essential, obligatory and urgent.

Conditional French Okay

Bidault was quote as saying France would consent to "the provisional treatment of Germany, in her actual frontiers, as an economic unit," on the condition that administrative machinery set up to accomplish this be headed by Allied personnel and not German.

A new American plan designed to restore economic order in Germany was presented to the ministers last night.

The American proposal, presented by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, called for the establishment of a central administration in Germany, superseding what Byrnes described as the present "airtight compartments" of the four occupation zones.

Byrnes said that if the American proposal were turned down, his Government was willing as a last resort to make an economic merger of its occupation zone with that of any member or members of the Big Four.

Statements by Byrnes and Bidault

PARIS, July 12 (AP)—The text of a statement on reparations made by United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes to the Foreign Ministers Council yesterday and made public by the United States delegation today follows:

If the chairman wants to discuss reparations, I shall discuss reparations. It is true that at Yalta Mr. [Ivan M.] Maisky, representing the Soviet Government, presented a statement and suggested reparations at $20,000,000,000, $10,000,000,000 to go to the Soviet Government.

30.29-4099

The language read by Mr. Molotov showed what Mr. Roosevelt agreed to was only to study as a basis for discussion the suggestion of the Soviet Government. The language of the protocol shows that the Soviet proposal was passed to the Moscow Reparations Commission as one of the proposals to be considered by the commission.

In good faith a representative of the United States on the Reparations Commission went to Moscow and wrote to Mr. Maisky a letter, the first paragraph of which is as follows:

"I was informed this morning that for the third time you again postponed the scheduled plenary meeting of the Allied Commission on Reparations. As in the case of the other postponements, this plenary meeting was scheduled to discuss your original memorandum No. 2, which embodies the Soviet proposal referred to in the Crimea protocol. The American delegation has now been here twenty-two days. We have not received a single figure supporting the Soviet proposal nor has any attempt been made on the part of the Soviet Government to enlighten either the American delegation, or so far as I know, the British delegation as to the basis of this Soviet proposal."

Says Potsdam Pact Is Guide

This letter was dated July 3, before the Potsdam meeting on July 14. When we met at Potsdam on July 15, the Soviet Government had no figures to justify the suggestion made by Mr. Maisky back in February. Marshal Stalin there agreed to what the reparations program would be, and it is set forth in the Potsdam Agreement and not in an ex-parte statement by Mr. Maisky back in the Crimea five or six months earlier.

I think we are doing everything we can to stand by the Berlin Agreement. We can agree on that. We must stand by the reparations agreement at Berlin as well as to all the other agreements. It was agreed that the reparations, so far as the Soviet Government is concerned, should come from its own zone, except as it expressly provided for limited plant deliveries from the western zone and from the assignment of certain assets in certain countries.

I know that there is no way of appraising the reparations that have been secured from the Soviet zone. I do not suppose the Soviet Government has a way of doing it, but the Soviet Government did receive, as a result of the agreement at Yalta, territory formerly part of Silesia, and which because of the agreement was taken from Germany and placed under Poland in compensation for that part of Poland east of the Curzon Line transferred to the U.S.S.R. It had taxable property in that area given to Poland in the amount of $11,500,000,000. In the Koenigsberg (Kaliningrad) area, given to Russia, the taxable property is $2,500,000,000. This shows that the Allies have been endeavoring so far as possible to cooperate with the Soviet Government in its efforts to secure reparations and are still going to do so in carrying out the Potsdam Agreement if the whole Potsdam Agreement is observed.

Statement by Bidault

We have discussed three important problems concerning Germany's future: the problem of economic unity of Germany, which certain delegations link to that of continuation of reparations; the problem of central German administration; the problem of coal.

The French delegation briefly recalls its Government's position on these questions which are of prime interest to France's security and prosperity.

(1) While the French Government has not modified its viewpoint, often expressed, on central German administrations, and still believes their creation should be bound up with an examination of its propositions relative to the future of the Ruhr and Rhineland, it was never opposed—in view of factual necessities—to the provisional treatment of Germany in her actual frontiers as an economic unity, without waiting for a discussion of the future status of the territories in question. Moreover, I made that clear in a letter I sent to the American Ambassador in Paris, March 1, 1946.

Wants Saar Area Excluded

(2) In that regard, the French Government is not opposed to the eventual creation of Allied bureaus, with German personnel, which, dependent upon the Control Council of Berlin, would provisionally begin to put into practice the principles of economic unity for Germany in the fields of domestic and foreign trade, money, etc. We ask, in any event, that the sphere of the central Allied bureaus not include the Saar, which should be immediately integrated into the economy and monetary sphere of France.

(3) France believes that the measures to take in setting up a unified German economy cannot justify any increase in German coal consumption at the present time. The French Government believes that the development of inter-zone trade and a better planning of economy in each zone would permit a lowering of the costs of the occupying powers, without any compromise of the indispensable development of the exportation of coal.

(4) The question of coal exportation is, I repeat, vital for the French and we demand the assurance that for a great number of years we will receive an important, fixed amount of German coal. Those guarantees, in our views, should result from the reintegration of the Saar in our customs territory and from the internationalization of the Ruhr, as we have always made clear.

The coal problem must be made the object of study by the Foreign Ministers Council, for the immediate present and the future. That is why we have submitted to the Council a draft resolution in that respect.

This called for a committee of inquiry to investigate German coal production and distribution.

ASK INVESTIGATION OF BRITISH PRESS

London, July 12 (A. P.).—Labor Members of Parliament circulated a motion today demanding a sweeping investigation of the British press, including the extent of monopoly in chain ownership and "the extent of financial and advertising influence on the presentation and suppression of news."

More than 100 members already have signed the motion and more are expected to add their names within the next few days. It was presented by Haydn Davies and Michael Foot, Labor members and contributors to national newspapers.

Growing Labor party displeasure with certain segments of the British press critical of its Socialist Government was expressed last Monday by Herbert Morrison, Lord president of the council.

"One of the elements of the modern press I am especially unhappy about," he said in a speech before the Suburban Co-operative Society, "is the Kemsley Gramophone chain of over twenty newspapers.

Viscount Kemsley, whose publications include the London Daily Graphic, Sunday Times and Sunday Chronicle, replied to Morrison in a published statement in which he announced the intention to continue "assailing a Government so willfully bent on placing its ideology before the nation's first necessities—food, fuel, work and homes."

BRITISH SUBSIDIES UP

London, July 12 (A. P.).—Minister of Agriculture Tom Williams announced today a $44,000,000 increase in Government food subsidies to help British farmers boost production and meet rising costs. Williams told the House of Commons both milk and wheat subsidies would rise after August 1.

As an inducement for farmers to thresh and sell as much as possible of this year's wheat crop, the price will be raised 30 cents a hundredweight in all grades in August and September. The price for next year's crop will go up 50 cents a hundredweight.

The average price of milk will be raised about 2 cents a gallon after August 1, while an additional payment of about 4 cents will be made in the slack production months of November, December and January.

Father Of English Girl's Baby One Of 2 A.W.O.L. GI's

Barnstaple, England, July 12 (AP). Court records showed today that 19-year-old Dorothy Mackie was the mother of a year-old infant whose father, she claimed, was one of two a.w.o.l. American soldiers sheltered by her family for nearly two years.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mackie were fined $80 each in Magistrate's Court Wednesday for aiding the Americans, identified by a United States military police officer as Private Johnny Caudill, of Melvin, Ky., and Private Carl Luther Simerley, of Lenoir City, Tenn. Both soldiers were said to be in Paris awaiting courts-martial.

Miss Mackie, who was given a suspended fine of $40 and placed on probation for two years, claimed she lived in a hut with Simerley, and the arresting constable quoted her as saying: "I have a baby, of which Carl Simerley is the father."

Lived On Watercress

Miss Mackie, a tall, slender blonde, testified the two Americans stayed at her parents' home beginning in August, 1944, and "mother passed them off as cousins when anyone saw them." Last May, she said, her father turned them all out and she joined the soldiers living in a hut in a near-by wood.

"We lived mostly on watercress in the woods," she told the court.

The arresting constable substantiated this and described the little hut in which he found them living "in a primitive manner" with shreds of watercress scattered on the floor.

They were reported to have boarded a train July 4 bound for Oranienburg, north of Berlin.

TWO MISSING YANKS MAY RETURN SOON

BERLIN, July 12—(AP) An authoritative source in the military government predicted tonight that the return of two of the four Americans who vanished into the Russian occupation zone might be expected within 48 hours. The four have been held by the Russians for entering the zone without written authorization.

The two to be released, the informant said, are Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison of San Antonio, Tex., and his wife, Helen. They entered the Soviet zone July 1, reportedly to buy a dog at a pet shop.

There was still no word on the two others missing, Capt. Harold Cobin of Newark, N. J., and Lieut. George E. Wyatt of Oklahoma City.

FUNK IS PICTURED AS JEWS' FRIEND

Counsel Asks Court Not to Pass Vengeful Sentence on Former Reichsbank Head

NUREMBERG, Germany, July 12 (AP)—The International Military Tribunal was asked today to mete out "a just sentence to Walther Funk, former Reichsbank president, "that does not destroy and take revenge and sow hate for the future." The plea was made by Funk's attorney, Fritz Sauter.

In a final defense summary he said that the knowledge of concentration camp atrocities that Funk had obtained at the war crimes trials had filled him "with heavy guilt and deep shame for what the Germans perpetrated on millions of wretched people."

"Anyone who participated in such unheard of atrocities should atone for it in the most rigorous way, according to the opinion of the entire German people," Sauter said, but he urged the tribunal not to make Funk "atone for other people's guilt."

He contended that Funk had sought to help, rather than persecute Jews, and that his client was not aware that deposits in Reichsbank included gold teeth, spectacles and other items taken from concentration camp victims.

Dr. Hans Marx had declared earlier that his client, Julius Streicher, had been made politically impotent in 1940 and was unable to influence Germans to violence against Jews, as the prosecution charged. Streicher was former editor of an anti-Semitic paper and Gauleiter of Franconia.

Marx said that Hitler was responsible for the killing of Jews and that Streicher wanted only to resettle them outside Germany.

STREICHER PAINTED AS NAZI NONENTITY

Nuernberg, July 12 (A. P.).—Julius Streicher, Jew-baiting editor, was described to the International Military Tribunal today as a man politically dead in the Reich after 1940 and thus unable to influence Germans to acts of violence, as the prosecution contends.

Dr. Hanns Marx presented the defense summary for the former Gauleiter of Franconia with this declaration:

"In 1939 Streicher was completely pushed aside and was even forbidden to talk in public. As of February, 1940, he was removed as Gauleiter and lived on an estate cut off from all connections. Even party members were forbidden to visit him there."

By nullifying his political position, Marx said," the official German State Government recognized Streicher as what he actually was, the unimportant publisher of a really unimportant weekly."

Marx conceded though that the "unimportant" weekly sold almost 400,000 copies at the height of its popularity.

"By writing on the same subject for years in a clumsy, crude and violent manner the defendant Streicher has brought upon himself the hatred of the world," the attorney commented. "He created a strong feeling against himself which resulted in rating his importance and influence far beyond their real importance."

PROSECUTION RESTS IN LICHFIELD CASE

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 12—(AP) The prosecution rested its case today against Col. James A. Kilian, accused of cruelty to prisoners at the Lichfield, Eng., camp he formerly commanded, after a defense attorney was held in contempt of court and a court member was accused and exonerated of being prejudiced.

Lt. Leonard W. Ennis of Peekskill, N. Y., a prosecution witness, was threatened with being held in contempt during the stormy court martial session.

The defense for Kilian, from Highland Park, Ill., will open its case Monday.

Prosecutor Maj. Joseph S. Robinson of New York city charged that Col. Hardin Sweeney of the military court was prejudiced, but the court upheld Sweeney in his denial and refused the prosecution's demand that the Omaha, Nebr., officer be removed.

Lt. Col. Raymond E. Ford of Fort Pierce, Fla., Kilian's attorney, was held in contempt when he charged that the court's law member, Col. William Beck, Jr., of Griffin, Ga., had "prearranged" a technical ruling in favor of the prosecution.

Lichfield Case Against Kilian Is Completed

Court Member Accused of Bias, Defense Attorney Charged With Contempt

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 12 (AP).—The prosecution completed presentation of its cruelty case against Colonel James A. Kilian today at a stormy court session in which a court member was accused of being prejudiced, a defense attorney was held in contempt of court and a prosecution witness was threatened with a similar contempt charge.

Colonel Hardin Sweeney, of Omaha, one of the eight officers on the court, was accused by the prosecution for the second time in the trial of being biased in favor of Kilian, of Highland Park, Ill., who is charged with cruelty to prisoners in the American Army guardhouse at Lichfield, England, of which he was the commandant.

Sweeney has acknowledged knowing Kilian for twenty-nine years.

Referring to the first time three weeks ago when Sweeney denied a charge of bias, Prosecutor Major J. S. Robinson, of New York City, said, "Events since then have, to my mind, established the contrary." He cited "what has gone on here in court, and the questions Colonel Sweeney has asked."

Throughout the trial, Sweeney has been one of the closest questioners of prosecution witnesses.

Again Sweeney denied that he was partial, and declared he was capable of rendering a fair and just verdict.

The court refused the prosecution demand that Sweeney be removed from the bench.

Held in contempt was Lieutenant Colonel Raymond E. Ford, of Fort Pierce, Fla., Kilian's attorney, who charged that the military court's law member, Colonel William Beck jr., of Griffin, Ga., had "prearranged" a technical ruling in favor of the prosecution.

It was an argument over accepting testimony which led to the contempt action against Ford.

Beck upheld the prosecution, and, turning to a big law book, took but a few seconds to find the authority for his ruling.

"Apparently this is prearranged," Ford cried.

"Meaning what?" snapped Brigadier General Robert M. Montague, court president, "Explain to the court."

"I don't know why I should," answered Ford. "There must have been some prior knowledge that this was coming up."

"Subject to objection by any member, the court holds the defense counsel in contempt of this court," declared Montague.

No one objected and Ford sat down, commenting, "I've nothing further to say." No penalty against Ford was announced.

A few minutes later defense witness Lieutenant Leonard W. Ennis, of Peekskill, N. Y., interrupted a bombardment of prosecution questions by shouting from the witness stand: "I'll take another court martial rather than go through this. I refuse to answer any more questions."

Contempt Charge Dropped

"Subject to objection by any member of the court, the witness will be held in contempt," said the court president. One court member objected, and after a closed conference the court announced Ennis would not be held in contempt.

Ennis, who three days ago was fined $350 for permitting Lichfield guards to club prisoners while he was an executive officer at the camp, then apologized to the court and promised to answer questions "to the best of my ability."

"But I ask the court," he appealed, "to protect me against these inferences by the prosecutor."

Prosecutor Robinson had accused Ennis of "at least twenty times testifying directly contrary to his testimony in the Smith case." He referred to Sergeant Judson H. Smith, the first of nine Lichfield guards convicted of beating prisoners.

Robinson succeeded in having the court declare Ennis a "hostile witness" so he could examine him sharply about orders Kilian might have given concerning treatment of prisoners.

Charges Intimidation

Ennis testified he was "intimidated" by Captain Earl Carroll, of Los Angeles, assistant prosecutor in the Smith trial, into "making some inconsistent remarks."

"Carroll kept telling me everybody was unloading this thing into my lap and saying, 'what you ought to do is put it up where it belongs—in Kilian's lap.'" Ennis said.

"Did Carroll ask you to make false statements?" asked Robinson.

"No," Ennis answered, "but he baited us, played one officer against another to get us to say things against each other.

"Once he told me, 'If you give me the key to who gave you your instructions, I'll get you immunity. If you don't, I'll see you hang. Don't be a scapegoat.'

"There was pressure brought to bear on us, and under the pressure the accused enlisted men tried to pass the buck up to the officers. Then when the officers came on, each one tried to pass it up higher."

GI VENEREAL DISEASE RATE 50% IN EUROPE

Army Calls It 'Probably Worst In American Military History'

Frankfurt, Germany, July 12 (AP). The United States Army said today the venereal disease rate among its troops in Europe "is probably the highest in American military history." A medical officer reported more than half the troops in some areas were infected in the course of a year.

"The trend is still upward," the report said, despite three months of strict discipline ordered by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, theater commander, in an effort to check the rising rate.

"The rate of venereal disease infection among United States troops in the European theater is the highest since the beginning of the war, and probably the highest in American military history," the office of the chief surgeon in the theater said.

Recommend Severe Punishment

Officers revealed unofficially that recommendations for severe punishment of the soldiers had been sent to Washington, including confinement in stockades.

"But," they said, "it probably would take an act of Congress to impose corporal punishment which now appears the only way to stop the increase."

On June 16, the average rate of infection in Europe was 26.1 per cent over a year's time. This was up 5.3 points from the figure given April 25, when McNarney ordered a strict return to garrison life.

"But in some areas, the figure is more than twice the average," a medical officer said.

Reasons For Rising Rate

The rate on the day the Germans surrendered was 7.49 per cent per year.

The Army attributed the rising rate to:

Decreasing number of troops in relation to the number of promiscuous women.

Youth and relative irresponsibility of troop replacements.

High disease rate among German civilians because of state-sponsored promiscuity under the Nazi regime.

Food shortages causing girls to trade themselves for chocolate bars.

Faulty but widespread soldier faith in penicillin as a cure-all for venereal diseases.

The Army said the rate continues to rise "despite adequate prophylactic stations, vice raids and treatment centers for German civilians at which proper drugs are available."

96 G. I.'S ARRESTED FOR REICH PETTING

Frankfurt, July 12 (A. P.).—Ninety-six American soldiers were arrested by United States Third Army Military Police during the last six days for public petting with German frauleins, it was announced today.

The arrests were made following Gen. Joseph T. McNarney's crackdown on displays of affection.

In Nuernberg, Military Police arrested seventy-one soldiers in a four-day period between July 4 and 9. Many soldiers were ordered to pay $5 fines. Others were turned over to their commanding officers for disciplinary action.

Niemoeller to Lecture Here

FRANKFURT AM MAIN, July 12 (AP).—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, German clergyman who was imprisoned in a Nazi concentration camp for eight years, expects to make a lecture tour of the larger American cities next winter in an "attempt to explain the tired, apathetic state of mind of the German people." He said in an interview that he had accepted an invitation to make a six to eight week tour of the United States under the auspices of the World Council of Churches.

British Doom Three Officers

WUPPERTAL, Germany, July 11 (AP)—Gen. Albrecht Oberg, former Gestapo chief in Paris, and two other senior German officers were sentenced to death today by a British military court that convicted them of participation in the execution of sixty captured British airmen. The two others were Col. Erich Isselhorst, Gestapo chief of southwest Germany and Alsace, and Lieut. Col. Wilhelm Schneider, a member of the Strasbourg Gestapo.

Austria To Speed Denazification

Vienna, July 12 (AP)—A geared-up denazification program for Austria was proposed today by Gen Mark W. Clark and adopted by the Allied Control Council at a session which lasted seven hours and ended without a communiqué being issued.

To speed elimination of Nazis from positions of any influence, the plan called for the Allied commanders to list them to the Austrian Government for action by category—first, any with important positions in the Government; second, those with positions of influence and responsibility in industry.

The Russians had complained that the denazification program heretofore had moved too slowly.

Another point of considerable discussion today was the July allocation of liquid fuel—all produced within the Russian zone. The allocation again was below the amount the Americans have said was necessary for the UNRRA's Austrian relief program.

Of crude-oil production, now figured at 60,000 tons, about 25,000 tons have been going to Austrian use—the rest presumably to the Red army or as Russian export.

Italy's Major Parties Compose Differences

Rome, June 12 (AP)Italy's major political parties succeeded late tonight in composing their differences and in assigning portfolios for the country's first republican cabinet.

Alcide de Gasperi, leader of Italy's number one political party—the Christian Democrats—who was asked ten days ago by President Enrico de Nicola to form the new government, retained the presidency of the Council of Ministers and also took over the much-sought-after Ministry of Interior. His party also received six other cabinet positions.

The Socialists and Communists, Italy's second and third ranking political parties, each received four of the seventeen cabinet positions, while an independent party retained the sixteenth cabinet post.

The Republicans accepted the Ministry of War, while an eighteenth Minister, without portfolio, was expected to go to another member of he party.

ITALIANS DECLINE BID

Rome, July 12 (A. P.).—British Air Vice-Marshal Ian Brodie, senior officer in the air subcommission of the Allied Commission, said today that 150 Italian Army, Navy and Air officers declined an invitation to a reception the subcommission is giving tonight.

"They were very nice about it," Brodie said in an interview, "but the decision was taken at a higher level that, in the present delicate political situation, it would not be wise for them to accept."

He said the party now would be an Anglo-American affair, with French and other Allied officers in Rome also invited.

Italian resentment over decisions of the Paris Foreign Ministers Conference has been expressed by official spokesmen from Premier De Gasperi down.

Trieste Quieter After Arrests

TRIESTE, July 12 (AP).—Quiet returned to this city today after yesterday's disorders in which several were hurt and fifty-two arrested by civil and military police. Most stores that closed yesterday were again open, but shipyard workers remained on strike.

Czechs May Ask $4,000,000,000

Prague, July 12 (A. P.).—A report to Parliament indicated today that Czecho-Slovakia would claim about $4,000,000,000 war damages to buildings and other property from Germany as part of her reparation account.

22 MORE JEWS SLAIN IN POLAND

WARSAW, July 12 (AP)—Twenty-two more Jews have been killed in fresh outbreaks of persecution, government reports said today, and violence against Jews appeared to be spreading despite government efforts at suppression.

Officials blamed outlawed bands hiding in forests for the latest killings, which occurred on highways and trains between Lodz and Breslau.

Armored Cars in Action

The government has reinforced militia and security police and put armored cars into action in efforts to protect Jewish travelers. Jews have been dragged from automobiles and trains and shot by groups which the government declared were "facist reactionaries" such as NSZ bandits.

Newspapers declared the killers were agents of Gen. Wladislaw Anders, who commanded Polish troops fighting in Italy, and that they were trying to provoke civil war in Poland.

Many Jews have concentrated in semi-stockades in various sections of Poland for protection.

Spokesman said that most Jews in Poland want to leave the country for America or Palestine.

22 MORE JEWS KILLED IN NEW POLISH TERROR

Victims Reported Taking Part in Mass Flights Following Pogrom.

Warsaw, July 12 (A. P.).—The slaying of twenty-two Jews attempting to flee a new wave of persecution in Poland was reported today as the Government prepared to execute nine persons convicted of instigating the July 4 pogrom at Kielce.

Meanwhile August Cardinal Hlond placed responsibility for "dangerous tensions" in Poland upon Jewish governmental officials. He attributed "deterioration" in the internal situation in Poland "to Jews who today occupy leading positions in Poland's Government and try to introduce a governmental structure which a majority of the people do not desire."

Replying to charges by Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski that Catholic church officials in Poland had refused to condemn the Kielce pogrom, the Cardinal said that a pastoral letter read in churches July 7 deplored the "tragic and regrettable events of Kielce."

The twenty-two newly reported slayings occurred on highways and railroad trains between Lodz and Wroclaw (Breslau), as the victims were participating in the mass flights which followed the pogrom. Outlawed bands hidden in the forests were blamed for the deaths.

All reports indicated that while the Government apparently was doing its utmost to afford protection to the Jews, anti-Semitic acts were spreading throughout the country. Even the use of armored cars and the reinforcing of militia and security police by the Government have not halted the upsurge of violence.

The Jewish people — those who have known tragedy under the Nazi occupation and those being repatriated by the tens of thousands from Russia — are seeking to protect themselves by massing in semi-stockades situated in various sectors of Poland.

They live in continual fear of their lives. Many do not dare to travel, for it is a daily occurrence for Jews to be dragged from automobiles and coaches by bandits and shot to death.

See Civil War Plot.

The Government blames the outbreak on "Fascist reactionaries," and newspapers generally attribute it to agents of Gen. Wladislaw Anders, who commanded the Polish troops fighting in Italy. The press charges these agents with trying to provoke civil war by murdering Jews and members of the Communist-backed Workers party.

Governmental and other informants said that "if a Polish soldier or politician is killed, nothing is said about it. But if a single Jew is killed, then it becomes an international incident." They declared that many Poles risked their lives by giving shelter to Jews during the Nazi occupation.

Nevertheless, 99 per cent of the Jews now in Poland want to go to America or Palestine. Many apparently look to President Truman to break down British opposition to their entry into Palestine.

The Government yesterday concluded its swift trial of twelve persons accused of touching off the Kielce pogrom, which resulted in forty-one deaths. Besides the nine men sentenced to death, one woman and two men received jail sentences.

ALBANIANS WARNED

Athens, July 12 (A. P.).—Dispatches from Salonika today quoted Defense Minister Peter Mavromichalis as declaring that Greece would "no longer tolerate the continuation of attacks against her border by Albanians."

"If the attacks continue we shall take the initiative and eliminate them," Mavromichalis told a press conference.

His statement followed repeated reports of attacks by Albanian troops on Greek frontier posts and on Greek farmers at work near the border.

In Athens a hand grenade was thrown early this morning against the House of Miltiades Prophyrogennis, member of the central committee of the Communist party. Window panes were shattered, but no one was hurt. Prophyrogennis was Minister of Labor in the Cabinet of former Premier George Papandreou.

Athenian Killed By Grenades

Athens, July 12 (AP)—One person was killed and fourteen others, most of them children, were wounded tonight when two hand grenades were thrown at a grocery store owned by a Communist. The attackers escaped.

Mihailovic Verdict Date

Belgrade, July 12 (AP)—The president of the war crimes court trying Gen. Draja Mihailovic and 23 codefendants announced today that the verdict would be delivered at 8 A.M. Monday.

Final speeches on behalf of the defendants were completed early today.

Hungary Halts Circulation of Inflated Pengo

Replaces It by Index Pengo Based on Price Indices; New Money Unit Planned

BUDAPEST, July 11 (AP).—The Hungarian Finance Ministry ordered the fantastically inflated pengo withdrawn from circulation today after it reached the dizzy figure of 500 quintillions to the American dollar. Before the war, the pengo was worth 29.12 cents.

The pengo was ordered replaced by the complicated "index pengo," popularly called the "tax pengo" because it was created in January primarily for paying taxes.

The index pengo crept into use for ordinary business exchanges about a week ago. Its value is based on prices, salaries and numerous other indices of the national economy. One American dollar was quoted today at 6,500,000 index pengoes.

Official circles expressed hope the index pengo would remain fairly steady until Aug. 1, when a new money called "forints" is to appear. The value of the forints has not been announced. Guesses have ranged from five to the dollar to fifty to the dollar.

Official circles said the present food situation is not conducive to a stable economy. Yesterday, for instance, no potatoes were in the market, despite extremely high prices.

An official of an American company, who maintains a large house, said he has increasing difficulty in obtaining food. This has been rare for persons with dollars to spend.

Officials said that when the forints appear next month, prices of all items will be pegged to the new money, in hope of maintaining it at normal levels.

Invitation to Churchill Canceled by Norse King

He Withdrew Bid After Fulton Speech Against Russia

OSLO, Norway, July 12 (AP).—A highly reliable informant said today King Haakon VII had invited Winston Churchill to Norway, and then asked him not to come after Churchill's "iron curtain" speech in Fulton, Mo., criticizing Russia.

(In London, Churchill's secretary said the former Prime Minister had no comment).

The informant, who may not be named, said the monarch wrote a hearty invitation to the British war-time leader several months ago. But after the Fulton speech, the King expressed the opinion that "it would not be the right moment" for Churchill to come.

It was feared, the informant said, that Churchill's presence in Norway might be used as a pretext that the Norwegian government shared his views on international politics.

The informant said that Russia applied no pressure.

Arabs Demand Jews' Arrest; Jewish Agency Leader Freed

Jerusalem, July 12 (AP) — The Arab Higher Executive Committee demanded today the arrest and trial of Jewish Agency leaders and other Jews "responsible for the state of affairs in Palestine."

Earlier the British freed Rabbi J. L. Fishman, 71-year-old acting head of the agency executive, from the Latrun concentration camp because of "the precarious condition of his health."

In a letter to Lieutenant General Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine High Commissioner, the four-man Arab committee charged that Jewish leaders "have for a long time been aiding and supporting Jewish defense and terrorist organizations . . . responsible for the wave of murder, destruction, intimidation and incitement which has swept the country and resulted in a serious loss of Arab and non-Jewish life and property."

Arrested On June 29

Signed by Jamal el Husseini, committee vice chairman, the letter recalled military trials were held for "hundreds of Arabs" in 1936 and asked that Jewish leaders be tried similarly "in the interests of equity and justice."

Rabbi Fishman was among Jewish leaders arrested during the widespread military operations in Palestine on June 29.

An official announcement on his release stressed that Cunningham acted "purely on medical advice in view of Fishman's age and precarious condition of his health from which he suffered before he was arrested, and which was unrelated to the circumstances of his detention."

No Instances Of Violence

Jews have charged that he was mishandled by British soldiers.

The British were still holding Moshe Shertok, Dr. Bernard Joseph and Isaac Gruenbaum, other members of the agency executive seized by the British June 29 and taken to the Latrun camp.

There were no instances of violence reported in the Holy Land, but British military headquarters ordered troops to carry heavy arms at all times and to move about in groups of not less than four when they are out of their barracks.

Mission On Palestine Confers With Attlee

London, July 12 (AP)—Deputies of President Truman's Cabinet Committee on Palestine were hurried immediately after their arrival today to a conference with Prime Minister Attlee, then opened with British officials talks on British-American recommendations for solving strife in the Holy Land.

Meanwhile, informed British sources said new evidence purportedly linking Jewish leaders in Palestine with recent underground violence was flown to London for consideration by the British Cabinet.

W. Averell Harriman, United States Ambassador, met the deputies and took them to No. 10 Downing Street. They included Henry F. Grady, for the State Department; Goldthwaite H. Dorr, for the Secretary of War, and Herbert E. Gaston, for the Secretary of the Treasury.

No final decision will be made in the discussions, but the negotiations will explore all recommendations of the British-American Inquiry Committee on Palestine, including the military and political aspects involved if approval is given to the committee's recommendation that 100,000 Jews be permitted to enter Palestine.

British Release Rabbi Fishman

71-year-old Palestine Leader Freed Because of Health—Others Are Retained.

Jerusalem, July 12 (A. P.).—Rabbi J. L. Fishman, 71-year-old acting head of the Jewish Agency Executive Committee, was released today from L Trun detention camp and returned to Jerusalem.

An official announcement said that the Palestine High Commissioner, in ordering Fishman's release, "acted purely on medical advice" in view of the rabbi's age and the precarious condition of health from which he suffered before his arrest and which was unrelated to the circumstances of his detention."

Rabbi Fishman, who was arrested two weeks ago in the British roundup of Jewish leaders, had been the center of a controversy between leaders of the London office of the Jewish Agency, who had charged that he was assaulted by his captors, and the British Government, which denied the accusation.

British authorities still retained Moses Shertok, Dr. Bernard Joseph and Isaac Gruenbaum, members of the Jewish Agency Executive Committee, who also were arrested in the roundup.

Troops Are Restricted.

British military headquarters, meanwhile, issued orders forbidding British troops in Palestine to move about outside their barracks in groups of less than four, and directing that they carry arms at all times.

The order followed publication last night of a communique from the office of the High Commissioner of Palestine expressing hope that there would be "no further need for widespread military action" to maintain order in the Holy Land, but warning that further outbreaks of violence "will be dealt with with the utmost rigor."

The communique said that searches of Jewish settlements, which British troops began June 29, had been completed and that the troops had been withdarwn to "normal locations." The searches resulted in the discovery and seizure of numerous caches of contraband munitions.

Another announcement said that seventy-one more Jews had been released from the Rafa detention camp, bringing to 645 the number released in recent days. All those released had been arrested two weeks ago when the British rounded up more than 2,000 persons suspected of complicity in activities of the Jewish underground.

Siam's King Slain, Doctors Testify

Bangkok, Siam, July 12 (AP)—Dr. Choob Chotikaasthlen, Siamese doctor on the medical commission which exhaustively studied the body of King Ananda Mahidol, steadfastly maintained today that the youthful monarch was murdered.

The king was found shot to death under strange circumstances last month.

Dr. Choob testified at an inquiry that the King's arm was found relaxed at his side, and that it would have been clenched had he shot himself in suicide.

Another Doctor Agrees

Mom Luang Sanitwong, another member of the medical commission, testified that, although the King always wore glasses, he was not wearing them when his body was found.

Another doctor, Kaset Sandiwongse, said that when he was examining the body on the day after the death he heard Dr. Luang Nit Vetvisit, chief of the medical department, comment upon the discovery of a small hole at the back of the King's head:

"Strange, there was none yesday."

Both witnesses expressed belief that the King had been assassinated.

CHINA RELIEF CHIEF DENIES BAN ON REDS

Tsiang Says Bad Transport Has Handicapped Sending of Supplies to Communists

SHANGHAI, July 12 (AP)—The director of the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration said today that the ravages of war—not politics—dammed the flow of food to China's starving millions.

The director, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, told newspaper men he had instructed his representative in Washington to try to persuade Fiorello H. La Guardia, Director General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration to rescind an order reducing relief for needy China.

Dr. Tsiang styled "misleading" allegations by Tung Pi-wu, of the Chinese Communist relief organization in Nanking, that only half of 1 per cent of Chinese relief filtered through government blockades to stricken Communist areas.

"Local interference by both sides" was conceded, but Dr. Tsiang declared these violated orders issued by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and the Communist command.

China, he continued, suffered an almost complete breakdown under the Japanese, yet up to July 3 his staff accomplished the task of moving from wharves 480,140 of the 559,000 tons of supplies unloaded by UNRRA ships.

He admitted that a message sent to Mr. La Guardia by 300 UNRRA employes in Shanghai, charging that UNRRA supplies were neither quickly nor equitably distributed "might contain a measure of justification," but was misleading because it did not take China's difficulties into account.

La Guardia Firm With Chiang

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—F. H. La Guardia, Director General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, has cabled directly to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek a demand that China's "unsatisfactory" handling of relief supplies be overhauled.

Mr. La Guardia's cable was sent May 29 and delivered June 6. It came to light tonight in the record of Senate Appropriations Committee hearings on a bill carrying a House-approved allocation of $465,000,000 for UNRRA and other items.

Mr. La Guardia told the Senate committee that his message to Generalissimo Chiang "might not be couched in diplomatic language, but I tried to make it so he would understand."

China Asks UNRRA Cut Be Restored

Shanghai, July 12 (AP)—T. F. Tsiang, head of the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said today he was asking UNRRA Director General LaGuardia to rescind the order drastically cutting relief supplies being sent to China.

LaGuardia last Tuesday ordered all but emergency food supplies withheld from China because of alleged mishandling by the Chinese Government.

Tsiang said that so far as he knew, LaGuardia took action without consulting the council of 47 member nations or the UNRRA Central Committee.

Admits Local Interference

He admitted that "local interference by both sides" had prevented supplies from reaching assigned areas, contravening instructions issued in November by both Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Communist commanders.

But Tsiang described as "misleading" allegations that less than two per cent of UNRRA goods had reached Communist areas of China.

First, he said, a considerable part of the UNRRA supplies such as locomotives, rail equipment, ships and machinery for river work has not been distributed at all; secondly, 80 per cent of all UNRRA tonnage for China is food in one form or another, and the Communist areas are in the main better supplied as far as food is concerned.

He said the CNRRA recently established two offices specifically for the relief of persons in Communist areas, at Chefoo and Hotseh, in Shantung province.

Tsiang declared that he had kept in constant touch with Communist Gen. Chou En-lai and Tung Pi-wu, chairman of the Communist Relief Organization, and neither had ever complained about discrimination.

[Tung said at Nanking today that half of one per cent of all UNRRA supplies sent China had seeped through to Communist areas.

"60 P.C. Destitute"

[Tung said there were 26,000,000 destitute Chinese Communists—60 per cent of China's 42,000,000 starving persons.

[He asserted that not one Chinese Communist has been appointed to CNRRA (Chinese Relief and Rehabilitation Administration), which works in conjunction with United Nations relief.]

Tsiang said that while accusations of mishandling UNRRA cargoes by the Chinese Government might contain a measure of justification, they did not take into account the difficulties encountered in carrying out the relief program in China after years of enemy occupation.

China, he said, suffered almost a complete breakdown in communications. River shipping tonnage is less than half its prewar size. Yet, he declared, his staff accomplished the "formidable task" of moving from the wharves 480,140 tons out of the 559,040 tons discharged by UNRRA ships up to July 3.

Marshall Peace Conferences Resumed

Nanking, July 12 (AP) — Gen. George C. Marshall resumed active peace negotiations today after a lull of several days as dispatches from North China reported heavy Communist attacks against Government positions in Hopei and Shantung provinces.

Marshall, special presidential envoy, visited Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek after conferring yesterday with the Communist negotiator, Gen. Chou En-lai.

This aroused speculation in the Nanking press that new peace proposals were forthcoming.

New Plan Reported

The Chinese Army mouthpiece, Peace Daily, reported that Marshall was drafting a new compromise proposal for submission to the committee of three, but there was no confirmation available at Marshall's headquarters.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Masterson reported from Peiping that a large force of Communists drove forward in a three-pronged attack on Tsanghsien, in Hopei province, and were massing heavy troop concentrations in the Peiping and Tientsin areas.

In western Shangtung, he reported, 10,000 Communists opened a heavy assault on Liucheng, which they have kept encircled for more than six months. Fighting in the streets was reported.

Other Attacks Reported

Another strong force of Communists was said to be striking at Licheng, a suburb of the Shantung province capital of Tsinan, while at the other end of the peninsula Communists launched attacks on Chimo, 20 miles south of Tsingtao, site of the United States Marine and naval base.

Lieut. Gen. Tsai Wen-chih, chief of staff of the Chinese Government branch at Executive (Truce) Headquarters, arranged to fly from Peiping to Tsingtao to confer with Marine Brig. Gen William T. Clement.

CHINA REDS REPORTED MASSING NEAR PEIPING

NANKING, July 12 (AP)—Chinese Communists were reported attacking or massing troops today around three North China cities where United States marines stand guard, dispatches from Peiping asserted.

As Gen. George C. Marshall conferred with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on what was believed to be a new compromise, reports poured in of battles or imminent battles in potentially explosive North China.

One account said the Communists were attacking immediately south of the Shantung port of Tsingtao, where marines only recently prepared defense positions for eventualities.

Another report said the Communists had massed heavily in the areas of the two Hopeh cities of Peiping and Tientsin, to the northwest of Tsingtao, where other marines are on duty.

In western Shantung, he reported, 10,000 Communists opened a heavy assault on Liucheng, which they have kept encircled for more than six months. Fighting in the streets was reported.

Another strong force of Communists was said to be striking at Licheng, a suburb of the Shantung province capital of Tsinan, while at the other end of the peninsula Communists launched attacks on Tsimo.

Chinese Seize Spanish Legation

Peiping, July 12 (A. P.).—Municipal police seized and sealed the chancellery in the Spanish legation today and ordered Consul Ricardo Muniz to leave, sources close to the Consul said.

The Chinese Government, which has had no diplomatic relations with Spain since the Spanish civil war, ordered the legation closed March 28 and about ten days ago informed Muniz the Foreign Office section of the Peiping Police Bureau would occupy the compound.

223 Ships Sunk Near Kyushu Are Salvaged

Tokyo, July 12 (AP)—One fifth of the estimated 1,115 Japanese vessels sunk during the war around Kyushu, southernmost home island, have been salvaged, Kyodo news agency reported today.

Skilled workmen, Kyodo said, believe it will take six years to clear the sunken hulks from the waters around Kyushu.

Gen. Ho Arrives in Tokyo

TOKYO, July 12 (AP)—Gen. Ho Ying-chin, one of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's top generals, arrived by air from China today en route to the United States to attend the United Nations conference. General Ho, former Chief of Staff of the Chinese armed forces, will stop over here for two or three days, and will see Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Ernie Pyle Honored At Ie Shima Rites

Ie Shima, July 12 (A. P.).—W. Stuart Symington, Assistant Secretary of War for Air, laid a wreath today at the foot of a monument erected to the memory of Ernie Pyle, the war correspondent.

"Here lie brave men who only fourteen months ago took this base from the enemy," Symington told 200 soldiers and a sprinkling of Red Cross girls standing in an American cemetery.

"Among these brave men whose deeds and hopes he wrote about lies Ernie Pyle, best loved of American war correspondents."

Pyle was killed April 18, 1945, during the fight for this tiny Japanese island.

Arkansas And Saratoga In Next-Test Hot Spot

Aboard U.S.S. Mt. McKinley, Bikini, July 12 (AP)—The old battleship Arkansas and the carrier Saratoga are on the hot spot for the second atomic-bomb test July 25.

The veteran vessels showed up today among the cluster of ships which appear scheduled to be closest to the atomic depth charge which Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy expects to fling ships and parts of ships high on top of a gigantic column of water.

The Saratoga, which was far on the outside of the first target array, steamed into a new inner position today. The Arkansas, the oldest battleship in the Navy which was damaged heavily in the first atomic blast, was maneuvered not far from the carrier.

Most Changes Near Center

Admiral Blandy said most of the changes in the guinea-pig fleet lineup would be made near the center, with the array of ships on the outer fringe modified only a little.

The Admiral announced also that the scheduled explosion hour for the second test would be 8.50 A.M. Bikini time July 25 (4.50 P.M. E.S.T. July 24).

Dr. Norris E. Bradbury, Los Alamos (N.M.) laboratory director, said he believed there would be little or no light brilliancy from the scheduled underwater blast, but if there was any light, it probably would take the form of a red glow.

Disposal Of Ships Planned

Admiral Blandy said the target ships which survive this second test and are able to operate under their own power will be returned to Pearl Harbor. Those unable to move under their own power will be sunk, either in Bikini lagoon or at sea.

The danger of radioactive water drifting well out into the ocean is one reason given by the military authorities for warning all ships to steer clear of the Bikini test scene. They might pick up radioactive contamination by taking on water for drinking or other purposes.

Boarding Delay May Be Long

Task-force officials are prepared to wait two or three weeks, if necessary, before boarding for inspections because of the possibility of raidoactivity aboard.

"Any ship in the world immediately below the first atom-bomb blast would have been sunk," said Admiral Blandy in discussing the first test.

Senate Exempts Tobacco, Grain from OPA Ceilings In Early Morning Session

30.29-4103

MOTION TO HOLD OPA SUPERVISION TO RENTS BEATEN

Early Morning Rollcall Votes 61 to 12 Against Proposal.

NEAR FINAL VOTE

Several Other Amendments Shouted Through—OPA Appropriations Slashed.

WASHINGTON, July 13 (Saturday)—(AP) A sleepy-eyed Senate still argued over an OPA Revival bill early today after bedecking it with new amendments, exempting grain and tobacco from price control.

During the chamber's marathon session, a proposal by Senator Robertson (R-Wyo) to limit the powers of OPA to rent control alone was beaten on a rollcall vote of 61 to 12.

But other amendments, according special treatment to transportation lines, southern pine pulpwood and cotton textile manufacturers were shouted through.

The Senate Appropriations committee meanwhile took another slash at the funds which OPA has requested for another year's operation. The OPA had asked $142,000,000, compared with $150,171,000 which it received for the year ending June 30. The House cut this to $106,000,000. The Senate committee approved $56,000,000.

The dozen senators voting to limit OPA to rent controls were: Ball (R-Minn), Bridges (R-NH), Brooks (R-Ill), Gurney (R-SD), McCarran (D-Nev), Moore (R-Okla), O'Daniel (D-Tex), Reed (R-Kan), Robertson (R-Wyo), Wherry (R-Neb), Wiley (R-Wis) and Wilson (R-Ia).

Rejected on a 46 to 29 vote was an attempt by Senator Wherry (R-Neb), to write into the bill a guarantee that distributors, wholesalers and retailers shall get price ceilings high enough to cover their 1940 discounts and markups.

The proposal differed only in details from a provision criticized severely by President Truman in his veto of the original OPA extension bill.

Wherry told his colleagues the amendment would prevent any revived OPA from forcing the corner grocery or drug store to absorb increased operations costs.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky), contended that a pricing provision already in the bill would give more relief to retailers than the Wherry amendment.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla), then called up a substitute proposal to continue OPA till February 1, 1947, with authority as it existed before June 30, when price controls expired.

Pepper immediately modified the proposal, however, to call for the establishment of an independent board which could order price controls lifted from specific commodities.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky), battled vigorously against the exemption for grain and feed and forced two roll-call votes. But with the opposition riding high, other amendments were whooped through by voice votes.

Barkley announced that the Senate would sit into the night "as late as necessary" in an effort to complete action on the badly battered bill. It would renew the OPA until next June 30, but with restrictions which some congressmen considered greater than those in the original measure which President Truman denounced and vetoed.

Meat, poultry, milk, dairy products, petroleum and other items were specifically exempted from price ceilings even before the grain and tobacco amendments.

Add Amendments

Then, on voice votes, these further amendments were tacked on:

1. A provision that any ceiling on southern pine used for pulpwood must be as high as that on timber from other areas. This was by Senator Russell (D-Ga), who said former ceilings on southern wood were as much as $4 a cord below that for other sections. Barkley observed that the amendment would order a price uniformity that "never existed" before.

2. A prohibition against requiring integrated cotton textile concerns (those whose operations go straight through from raw cotton to finished product), to charge less than others. Senator Johnston (D-SC), one of the sponsors, said the OPA last February ordered a three per cent price differential against such concerns, and contended it was discriminatory. Johnston was joined in the amendment by Senators George (D-Ga), Hoey (D-NC), and Millikin (R-Colo).

3. A ban against the Commodity Credit corporation's paying more than 3.675 cents a pound for imported sugar. Senator Murdock (D-Utah), said an agreement was reached between the corporation and representatives of the domestic sugar industry on the limitation.

The tobacco amendment, covering cigars, cigarettes and all tobacco products as well as the raw commodity, was offered by Senator Hoey (D-NC), and adopted quickly on a voice vote.

The grain amendment was introduced originally by Senator Bridges (R-NH), with the primary purpose of encouraging greater output of poultry and livestock feed. Barkley sought to raise a point of order against it and Bridges changed it so that it would apply to feed but not to grain.

Grain Amendment Passed

Senator Overton (D-La), however, offered Bridges' original amendment, applying to both grain and feed, as a substitute, and this was adopted on a roll call vote of 42 to 36. Then on a technicality a second vote was taken, with the result 45 to 35.

At Barkley's point of order, Senator Tobey (R-NH), appealed to the Democratic leader for "fairness."

"Have a heart, Alben," Tobey pleaded.

"I appreciate the 'Macedonian cry,'" Barkley replied, referring to a recent exchange between Tobey and President Truman. Tobey wrote that he was making a "Macedonian cry" (cry for help) on behalf of New England poultry-raisers needing grain. The President replied that famine needs came first.

For four hours, after meeting at noon, the Senate considered other matters than OPA, until Senator Bridges (R-NH) called up his grain amendment.

A proposal by Senator Reed (R-Kans) to exempt grains and products made from them was defeated on Wednesday, 40 to 32, largely on the argument that it would remove controls from flour and probably bread.

Bridges' amendment specified that the exemption should apply only to the grains themselves and to poultry and livestock feed made from grain.

"This amendment," Bridges explained to the Senate, "is aimed primarily to meet the desperate situation in areas of this country that are deficient grain areas."

Those include the east and west coast states, he said.

Another New Hamphire Republican, Senator Tobey, appealed for relief from a tight feed situation which, he said, threatens dairy herds and poultry flocks with forced liquidation.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) doggedly backing up the line for the administration, tried in vain to get Bridges' proposal ruled out of order on the ground it was practically the same as the amendment beaten Wednesday. Bridges argued his amendment is "wholly different."

She then asked unanimous consent for immediate consideration of the Wolcott bill. The speaker asked whether she had consulted him and notified him she was going to make the request. When Mrs. Luce replied that she had not, Rayburn stated:

"The chair refuses to recognize the gentlewoman for that purpose."

Rayburn subsequently said that since he took office in 1940 it has been a custom to consult the floor leaders and the chair before making such requests. He then remarked that "the chair intends to continue to exercise it (that custom) as long as he occupies the present position because the chair wants the House to proceed in an orderly fashion."

Mrs. Luce then inquired whether she might "now ask unanimous consent to bring up the bill tomorrow?"

"The chair will meet that question when the time comes," Rayburn replied.

The Connecticut congresswoman was not through with the matter. First thing today she recalled to the speaker that he had said she must present her request to him before bringing up the resolution.

"May I inquire at this moment," she asked, "when I shall have an opportunity to present the resolution to the House?"

The next move is up to Mrs. Luce.

Speaker Rayburn Stalls, Rejects Her Pleas to Take Up Measure.

By ERNEST G. WARREN

WASHINGTON, July 12—(AP) Representative Clare Booth Luce, (R-Conn) is feuding with Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex).

The Connecticut congresswoman wants action on a resolution by Representative Wolcott (R-Mich) to restore rent controls lifted with the death of OPA. The Speaker won't recognize her for that purpose.

Late yesterday Mrs. Luce obtained permission to address the House for one minute. Price-Manipulating Probe Proposed

Washington, July 12 (AP)—Creation of a special House committee to investigate monopolistic practices designed to manipulate prices was proposed today by Representative Sikes (D., Fla.), who said he favored starting out with newsprint.

A committee of five members would be empowered to "make a study and investigation of any agreements or contracts, any grade practices, any combinations, cartels, monopolies or any other means by which prices are controlled or manipulated in violation of the anti-trust laws."

Sikes said that, if the committee were authorized, he believed it should inquire first into the newsprint situation, "on which considerable material has been submitted to me by publishers and printers."

The authors of investigation resolutions usually are named to head committees proposed for the purposes.

Newsprint Price Increased

Montreal, July 12 (AP)—Eight newsprint manufacturers have announced an increase of $6.80 a ton in the standard price of newsprint to customers in the United States and Canada.

Definite indications that the price hoist is general throughout the Canadian newsprint industry came today with the statements from Price Brothers and Company, Ltd., Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Mills, Ld., and Donnacona Paper Company, Ltd.

The increase, resulting from the recent revaluation of the Canadian dollar, brings the standard price of newsprint delivered at New York city to $73.80 a ton, and the price in Montreal to $69.80.

Others Are Listed

Firms which last night announced similar increases are Consolidated Paper Corporation, Ltd.; Canadian International Paper Company, Abitibi Power and Paper Company, Ltd.; the Great Lakes Paper Company and Powell River Company, Ltd.

An Anglo-Canadian official said in Quebec today that the price boost was a "general increase which is the same with us as with other companies—and it applies t

Canada and the United States as far as we are concerned."

Price Brothers officials in Quebec issued a similar statement.

OPA Protest Plan Of CIO Is Assailed

Detroit, July 12 (AP)—The nation-wide OPA protest demonstrations scheduled by the CIO United Auto Workers for next Tuesday "merely add to the fuel of inflation," George Romney, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, asserted today.

Romney declared that the two-hour stoppage authorized by the UAW-CIO to protest congressional action on the OPA is the "height of folly."

"To shut down hundreds of vehicle and parts plants for two hours on Tuesday for any purpose under present circumstances . . . will cost workers . . . hundreds of thousands of dollars in current loss of wages and further delay needed production," the A.M.A. chief said.

Union officers have instructed UAW-CIO locals throughout the country that they may stop work for not more than two hours on any one shift where plant managements do not allow time off for the demonstrations.

Romney said that automobile production for the first six months of the year has reached only 27 per cent of that scheduled because of materials and parts shortages "due to strikes and other needless interruptions."

As a result, he said, automobile workers have already lost $431,000,000, adding:

"Not until we accept the fact that the best way to avert inflation is to take off our coats and go to work will we prevent prices from rising and resume the pattern of reducing prices through greater productivity and higher output."

U.S. Famine Help Promises Kept

Washington, July 12 (AP)—President Truman said today the nation, through the determined efforts of everyone, has made good on its first famine relief promises.

Reporting on the fiscal year which ended June 30, he said that in the case of food grains, the major relief commodity, exports exceeded the country's commitments.

The President cautioned, however, that continued co-operation would be necessary if the country is to do its full share to relieve the hunger he said still exists in the world.

Report By Anderson.

Mr. Truman's statement was issued in connection with a report by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson which said foreign food shipments during the past twelve months totaled more than 16,500,000 long tons—or about 16½ per cent of the nation's supply.

However, about 60 per cent of the shipments were food grains, such as wheat, corn, rice, rye and oats. For these Anderson said the Government worked by two standards: (1) the total quantity officially promised shortage areas—400,000,000 bushels. (2) the quantity the country hoped to be able to ship—417,000,000 bushels.

Anderson said the 400,000,000-bushel commitment was exceeded by June 30. He promised that the 417,000,000-bushel figure would be met by the end of this month.

Bulk To Devastated Areas

Other exports (in pounds) included: meats, 1,350,800,000; dairy products, principally cheese, evaporated milk and dried milk, 1,680,800,000; food fats and oils, 783,200,000; other items, including dry beans and peas, potatoes, sweet potatoes, fruits, vegetables, sugar, eggs and canned fish, 7,040,000,000.

Anderson said the bulk of the food went to war-devastated areas where starvation threatened.

Looking to the future, he asserted that while "the worst of the immediate dangers of famine have been forestalled, serious food needs abroad will continue for some time."

Needs Hinge On Harvests

He added that overseas needs in the year ahead cannot be determined until this year's harvests are completed. But the United States nevertheless has made plans to export up to 250,000,000 bushels of wheat, he said, and tentative plans are being made for shipments of other major commodities.

However, the Government's program designed to obtain wheat, meats and some other foods for export has been brought to a standstill by the expiration of price controls. The Government has chosen to remain out of the market for these foods temporarily in order not to engage in a price-bidding spree with domestic consumers.

In the event food price controls are not re-established, the Government may find it necessary to overhaul its entire relief program.

One suggestion advanced in official circles is that the Government withdraw from the market as purchasing agent and let the various foreign countries and the UNRRA do their own buying through regular commercial channels.

Steers Hit Record Price Of $23.25

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—Cattle swept to a new record price of $23.25 a hundred pounds on the hoof today, and hogs pushed to within 25 cents of the modern record as supplies of both were markedly lower than in recent sessions.

A short load of choice 1,148-pound steers brought the record return, up 25 cents from yesterday and Wednesday, when the record of $23.00 was established.

Good and choice hogs weighing 250 pounds or less brought the market top of $18.25, a quarter under the modern record value of $18.50 set July 1. All hogs today were 50 to 75 cents a hundred pounds higher than yesterday.

Other Markets High

Other markets showed similar strength in hog prices. St. Louis set a new 27-year top of $18.75 on hogs weighing 160 pounds and up, while Omaha, Neb., had sales up 75 cents to $1 higher than yesterday to top at $18.25.

Also at St. Louis, good and choice lambs continued at $21, equalling yesterday's record mark since 1920.

Chicago Union Stock Yards received 8,500 hogs for sale and 4,000 shipped in direct to packers for the lowest total since the first of the month.

MAY IS SILENT ON INVITATION TO FACE PROBERS

Members of Senate Committee Talk of Subpoenaing Him if He Refuses.

WOULD QUIZ WITNESSES

War Profits Investigators Excuse Fields, Garsson from Testifying.

WASHINGTON, July 12. — (AP) The question whether Rep. May (D-Ky), will appear before a senate committee investigating a munitions combine was still up in the air tonight after two other prospective witnesses had been excused because they refused to waive their constitutional immunity.

There were these developments bearing on May, who is chairman of the House Military committee and who, according to witnesses, was active in helping the munitions makers in their dealings with the War department:

1. The Senate War Investigating committee invited him to appear. Some members talked of subpoening him if he refused.

2. May replied that he would consider the invitation "most seriously" but stipulated that he have the right to cross-examine witnesses, use committee subpoena powers to obtain additional records, and call witnesses of his own.

3. Chairman Mead (D-NY), of the Senate committee told reporters these stipulations were contrary to usual practices of legislative investigations, and expressed the opinion that the hearing should not be turned into a court.

Stand on Rights

Earlier in the day, Dr. Henry Garsson, promoter of the munitions combine, and Benjamin F. Fields, Washington press agent, had refused to waive their constitutional protection against being required to answer questions which might incriminate them. When they took that position, the committee dismissed them and declined to take their prepared testimony.

May wrote Mead that he wanted assurance that "the public x x x may be given the full benefit of the purpose for which you assert you are holding public hearings in this matter at all."

May set up his provisos in answering a letter Mead sent him earlier in the day saying that May, in an executive session June 4, "did not furnish the full, complete and accurrate facts" the committee should know.

May has denied in a public statement that he profited personally from relations with the munition's combination—which Mead has called "a war profiteering paper empire."

Mead said his committee would meet tomorrow to act on May's reply to his letter inviting an appearance.

Giving his own personal views Mead told reporters that May "wants to conduct our investigation." He said he knew of no instance in which a legislative investigating committee had accorded an individual all the rights May sought.

Opportunity to Explain

"We'll give him (May) ample opportunity to explain in great detail every allegation, every charge and every insinuation made against him during the progress of our examination of witnesses," Mead said.

But he added that would be done only if the congressman "will agree to answer the questions and otherwise undergo the examination which is customary to the conduct of legislative investigating committees."

Referring to May's appearance before an executive session last month, Mead declared:

"I'll say again to Andy May his testimony was wholly inadequate and he hasn't, unfortunately, had an opportunity to answer the allegations and charges.

"And we can't, in fairness to him, close the records without asking him to completely and categorically answer."

Garsson and Fields separately took the course of silence after being reminded by Chairman Mead (D-NY) that the constitution's fifth amendment prohibits any person from being required to testify against himself in a case which may lead to criminal prosecution.

Mead asked whether they would, in the face of that provision, agree to answer "all questions frankly, fully and completely."

Fields' decision to stand on his constitutional rights came in the midst of an angrily-sputtered protest that he had appeared "voluntarily, without an attorney, before an obviously hostile committee—a declaration which drew from Mead a retort that he was there as a result of a subpoena.

Garsson Makes Decision

A few minutes later the diminutive and dapper Garsson more quietly made the same decision on the advice of his lawyer as Mead and Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) protested that they were not interested in "pretty speeches and self-serving statements."

Both were promptly excused from the stand.

The dramatic interruption in the committee's inquiry came only a few hours after it had sent a politely-worded, but firm, invitation to Representative May (D-Ky) to testify in public on the wartime help he gave Garsson and the Illinois industrial combine.

That help was conceded by Garsson himself in a statement which he intended to read to the committee, but which one of his aides parceled out instead to the press "for whatever you want to do with it."

May has denied that he profited personally through his activities on behalf of the munitions makers, and declared that his efforts were designed to aid the war effort.

Garsson, described by May in War department memoranda as a "good friend," took the same line in his 22-page 4,000 word statement. He declared flatly that neither Erie Basin nor Batavia—two metal products companies in the combine—had received contracts as a result of May's intercession.

To the contrary, he said that "the war effort was considerably aided by Chairman May's activities in behalf of the companies, and their unprecedented production records would not have been achieved without this help."

Denies Anything Criminal

Garsson, hustled away from the committee room door by Capitol police as a score of newsmen were attempting to question him, told reporters in another corridor that no one connected with his companies had done anything "criminal."

He said that he had given his account of the company's wartime activities to the committee in executive session and, except for his attorney's advice, would be willing to do so again "so that the public can get the other side of the story."

He said that he had stood on his constitutional rights when he appeared before the executive session, but declared that he was ordered on that occasion "to go head and testify anyway."

In the turmoil which marked the departure of Garsson and Fields, Mead recessed the committee until Monday when he said that A. B. Gellman and J. T. Weiss, two of Garsson's associates, and Joseph Freeman, their Washington representative, would be called.

But before the day's end, Senator Mitchell (D-Wash.) read into the record a statement which included these paragraphs:

"It seems to me that a real purpose has already been served by witness Fields. His action should be a warning to men of his kind and a suggestion to those government workers who apparently must withstand improper approaches, that committees of Congress stand ready to support them in every possible way.

"Cooperation between individuals in government with congressional committees would make Washington an unhealthy place for all those who make shady practices pay big dividends. Unraveled here in this case are the sordid manipulations so foreign to the American spirit and so costly to the taxpayers' pocketbooks."

Text of May's Reply to Senator Mead

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 12—Following is the text of a letter from Representative May replying to an invitation from Senator Mead to testify before the munitions inquiry:

Dear Senator Mead:

Invitation to appear before your committee by letter over your signature of even date herewith is acknowledged.

I am not fully advised of the testimony as to my "intercession" on behalf of the companies to which you advert. I know only what the press has reported in that regard.

I am not unmindful, however, that I appeared before your committee on June 4, 1946, in executive session. I requested to do so in order that I might state my knowledge of the facts as I recalled them. I put no limitation whatsoever on that examination. It was as exhaustive as your committee wished to make it. I answered fully and completely.

I naturally assumed your committee had made a thorough investigation through its agents before it proceeded even to executive session. Neither you nor your committee indicated any inadequacy in my testimony at that time. I believed myself justified in concluding that I had explained what your committee desired to know.

Public Benefit Sought

Since then I have given public explanation of all of my activities in connection with the matters you have been investigating and with reference to "War Department officials" whom you mention in your letter.

So far as the testimony of Mr. L. W. Fields and Mr. A. C. Brown is concerned, whom you also mention in your letter, as their testimony relates to your invitation, may I say I will be only too glad to consider that invitation most seriously provided I am given the assurance that the public in turn may be given the full benefit of the purpose for which you assert you are holding public hearings in this matter at all.

With that purpose in view, namely, that the public may get the facts and all the facts, in other words, "the full, complete and accurate facts which the committee should know in connection with its investigation of the above-mentioned companies," and which the public, too, should know upon "full, complete and accurate" examination and cross-examination into the integrity of the recitation and recollection of those facts, will you kindly indicate to me whether I will be accorded the right by your committee to have recalled for cross-examination by counsel of my selection the witnesses who have appeared up to this time and given evidence in regard to the matters and things you write about, as well also the right to have called as witnesses such additional persons as that counsel may request?

Will you also indicate whether I will be accorded the right to have presented to your committee by use of its process all records in the War Department which such counsel would be pleased to have for the committee's disposal and the information of the public?

The press and editorial comments have indicated this matter one of great public concern. I am sure that your committee would not intentionally deny the usual democratic processes for a full and complete hearing in the presentation of testimony affecting me in view of this deep public concern.

The benefit of counsel for proper direction and the right of cross-examination are recognized universally in our system of justice as an integral part of the procedure which guarantees judicial exposition of facts, a comment which appears particularly appropriate at this time and in this proceeding.

I believe, too, that your own sense of fairness and your own desire for justice, as well as that of all of your constituents in the great State which you represent, will recognize the fairness of this request and its appropriateness.

Our constitutional guarantees of that assurance, not only to our own citizens but even as they relate to the great foreign-born population of our nation, sufficiently warrant this presentation of mine for that assurance.

I await your reply and am,

Sincerely yours,

[Signed] A. J. MAY.

Nervous About Atom Control

Legislators Disturbed by Report Oak Ridge Officers See Peril to U. S. Security.

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—A report that Oak Ridge security officers think "the peace and security of the United States is definitely in danger" raised a roadblock against the administration's atomic control legislation today. House Republicans showed a disposition to sidetrack all atom bills until world conditions become more settled.

Representative Elston (R.-Ohio) put it this way: "Before we talk about entering into international agreements concerning atomic energy, we should reach other agreements concerning the future of world peace. We shouldn't put the cart before the horse."

He was commenting on a report read to the House yesterday by Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R.-N. J.), ranking minority member of the Committee on Un-American Activities.

The report, by Ernie Adamson, chief investigator for the committee, said he and Chairman Wood (D.-Ga.) had been investigating "subversive activities" at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic project and had found that:

1. Members of scientific societies there "are very active in support of international civilian control" of atomic materials and are "devoted to the creation of some form of world government."

2. Some officers of the societies "admit communication with persons outside of the United States."

3. "The security officers at Oak Ridge think that the peace and security of the United States is definitely in danger."

Scientists Are Defended.

Walter C. Beard Jr. and John H. Bull of the Oak Ridge engineers and scientists said in a statement last night their organization "has at all times remained within the security bounds" defined by the Manhattan District security officer. "We never have been accused of violating project security," they asserted.

The House originally was slated to start debate next week on domestic atomic energy control legislation, including the adminstration-backed Senate bill providing for exclusive civilian control through a five-member commission. But after hearing Thomas's Oak Ridge report, members of the Rules Committee showed a disinclination to send any measure along for floor discussion.

Elston said: "The way things stand now the bomb is under control of the Army and we know the secret is safe. It will remain that way so long as there is no legislation changing the status."

Says Whole World Watches

And every country in the world, he added, is watching the House vote, scheduled for tomorrow.

If America fails in its role as world leader, "it will leave other countries and peoples the easy prey to the influence of totalitarianism," McCormack declared, adding:

"We have either to take our place in the world as the leader in preserving and strengthening those truths we believe in—and that means vision and courageous leadership—or we will go back again into provincialism and isolationism."

Loan "Licked," Says Landis

Representative Landis (R., Ind.) said that the credit "is more likely to promote war than preserve peace."

Landis said before he took the floor: "We have the loan licked."

Administration leaders, however, were confident of victory.

Disputing the declaration by Cordell Hull, retired Secretary of State, that the loan vote will test America's leadership for world cooperation and peace, Landis in a prepared speech said:

"I fully realize that America as a nation cannot enjoy permanent good health surrounded by a world which is seriously ill. I believe it also follows that a sick or weakened America cannot effectively contribute to the ills of the world."

Urges "Spending Spree" Stop

He admonished that "the New Deal spending spree" must stop.

Dismissing any threat of foreign-trade restrictions if the loan is not made, Landis asserted: "America is capable of looking after herself in a trade war."

The week-long debate on the loan, already approved 46-34 by the Senate, will end tonight.

Meanwhile, loan critics piled up amendments, on which the House will begin voting tomorrow: these were in the offing:

1. By Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.) to require that Britain put up collateral for any advance of money. His amendment probably will follow suggestions by Jesse Jones, former Secretary of Commerce, who has insisted that the British have ample investments in America and elsewhere to back a loan.

2. By Representative W. Sterling Cole (R., N.Y.), stipulating that Britain deed to the United States certain island areas in the Atlantic where this country now has 99-year leases for military bases.

Urges Credit, Not Cash

3. By Representative Jed Johnson (D., Okla.), to require that credit, rather than cash, be extended to Britain for goods purchased in the United States; that interest on the loan begin immediately instead of after five years and that the interest rate be the same as that charged American war veterans on money borrowed for housing.

"It is not intended as political in character, nor does it provide economic benefits in return for past or future political or military assistance."

Barry Opposes Loan.

Representative William Barry (D.-N. Y.) called for defeat of the loan, telling the House:

"The argument, that we must give Britain this money in order to save it from Communism, is to my mind premature.

"The time for that approach is if and when we decide that the United Nations is a failure and that it is impossible to get along with Russia, and we must, therefore, form an anti-Russian economic bloc.

"If that time comes, and I hope it doesn't, we can then decide how much money we can afford to give England for the purpose of carrying on economic warfare against that part of the world dominated by Russia. Such a policy may very likely lead to war."

Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse (D.-Conn.) called for approval of the loan, saying: "A vote for the British credit is a vote for a chance that our grandchildren will live in a world of peace."

Meanwhile Representative J. LeRoy Johnson (R.-Cal.) informed the House that he has changed his mind and will vote for the loan.

Johnson said in the Congressional Record that he fully concluded many months ago that the loan would be unwise, but that on more mature reflection he believes it will help break down the barriers of trade and help advance the cause of international understanding.

Describing England as one of America's best prospective customers, he asserted that the loan would provide that country "dollar credit with which to buy our products while she is using her pounds sterling to rehabilitate herself from the devastating effects of the great war."

House Rushing Toward Vote.

"I have been reliably informed that 75 per cent of the dried fruits which we exported before the war were bought by the United Kingdom," he added. "A small surplus of 5 per cent or the whole market of that product."

With the House rushing toward more of any product might wreck a vote tomorrow, Representative Landis (R.-Ind.) said that the credit "is more likely to promote war than preserve peace." He told newspaper men before he went on the floor "we have the loan licked." adminstration leaders, however, were confident of victory.

Disputing the declaration by Cordell Hull, retired Secretary of State, that the loan vote will test America's leadership for world cooperation and peace, Landis said:

"I fully realize that America as a nation cannot enjoy permanent good health surrounded by a world which is seriously ill. I believe it also follows that a sick or weakened America cannot effectively contribute to the ills of the world."

He admonished that "the New Deal spending spree" must stop.

Dismissing any threat of foreign trade restrictions if the loan is not made, Landis asserted "America is capable of looking after herself in a trade war."

Debate Ends Tonight.

The week-long debate on the loan, already approved 46—34 by the Senate, ends tonight. Meanwhile, loan critics piled up the following amendments, on which the House will begin voting tomorrow.

1. By Representative Dirksen (R.-Ill.), to require that Britain put up collateral for any advance of money. His amendment probably will follow suggestions by Jesse Jones, former Secretary of Commerce, who has insisted that the British have ample investments in America and elsewhere to back a loan.

2. By Representative W. Sterling Cole (R.-N. Y.), stipulating that Britain deed to the United States certain island areas in the Atlantic where this country now has ninety-nine-year leases for military bases.

3. By Representative Jed Johnson (D.-Okla.), to require that credit rather than cash be extended to Britain for goods purchased in the United States; that interest on the loan begin immediately instead of after five years and that the interest rate be the same as that charged American war veterans on money borrowed for housing.

Orbit Of Soviet Cited In Plea For Loan

Washington, July 12 (AP)—House Democratic Leader McCormick said today that the British loan presents the issue of whether the United States will take "our necessary role in world affairs" or leave "practically all of the other nations of the world, against their will and desires, subject to the influence, gravity and the orbit of the Soviet Union."

Pleading for House ratification of the Senate-approved $3,750,000,000 credit, the Massachusetts member said: "Whether or not we like it, the fact remains that practically all of the countries of the world are looking to either Washington or to Moscow."

McCormack Backs British Loan

House Leader Says Without It Nations Will Be Subject to Orbit of Russia.

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—House Democratic Leader McCormack said today that the British loan presents the issue of whether the United States will take "our necessary role in world affairs" or leave "practically all of the other nations of the world, against their will and desires, subject to the influence, gravity and the orbit of the Soviet Union."

Pleading for House ratification of the Senate-approved $3,750,000,000 credit, the Massachusetts member said that, "Whether or not we like it, the fact remains that practically all of the countries of the world are looking to either Washington or to Moscow." And every country in the world, he added, is watching the House vote, scheduled for tomorrow.

Denies Creation of Bloc.

McCormack declared that the British loan "does not mean we are creating an American-Anglo economic bloc," adding:

"The loan has for its basic purpose the prevention of economic blocs, not the creation of a new one."

"First of all the agreement is purely a business arrangement in which both the United States and England have made and have received important economic concessions.

BRITISH LOAN POLL

WASHINGTON, July 12 — (AP) The latest polls of house members on the $3,750,000,000 British loan tonight showed 188 for the credit and 163 against, with 80 uncommitted. Others were not reached.

By parties, the pros and cons were listed thus:

Democrats—158 for, 22 against, 59 not committed. This poll was made by Representative Priest of Tennessee, acting Democratic whip.

Republicans—30 for, 141 against, 21 not committed. This poll was made by Representative Landis (R-Ind), a leader of the opposition.

DRAFT AGE RISE FROM 29 TO 34 ASKED BY ARMY

Change Revealed as Desired in September When Inductions Resume.

RESULT OF 18-YEAR-OLD BAN

Expect to Scrape Bottom of Man Power Barrel by Next March.

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—The Army has recommended to President Truman that the top draft age be raised from 29 to 34 years when induction calls are resumed in September. Few, if any, men over 26 have been drafted since V-J day last August.

The War Department recommendation was disclosed today by an official completely familiar with it, after the American Council on Education heard an assertion last night that Selective Service expects to "scrape the bottom of the manpower barrel as it's never been scraped before" by next March.

The declaration came from Col. George A. Irvin, chief of the demobilization division of Selective Service, who mentioned only incidentally in the course of his informal address that the Army does not want any men over 35. Heretofore, the Army has been reluctant to take men over 25, although, while the stop-gap draft extension law was in effect from May 15 to June 30, men through 29 were being processed for induction.

Explains Cause of Change.

Informed of Irvin's new age reference, the official who asked not to be quoted by name said the change of Army mind came about because the current draft act bans inductions of 18-year-olds, about 25,000 of whom made up the bulk of draft calls in recent months. With this prime source of manpower dried up by law, the official asserted, the Army decided it would have to go above the 30-year bracket to fill its needs. Fathers are specifically exempt under the new act.

Mr. Truman first cut the top draft age from 37 to 29 years after V-E Day and trimmed it to 25 on V-J day. However, 18-year-olds remained subject to the draft until the wartime act expired May 15. The stop-gap law narrowed the age limit to men 20 through 29, while the nine-month extension measure passed last month broadened this to include men 19 through 44.

Relying on Enlistments.

Shortly before the bill's final passage, however, the War Department announced it would issue no draft calls during July or August, relying instead on voluntary enlistments during those two months.

Irwin told the Educational Council last night that voluntary enlistments between now and March 31, when the present Selective Service act expires, are expected to fall 225,000 men short of the 1,786,000 men the armed services have said they will need. He added that "virtually every man will be drafted who can meet the requirements of the military forces" and is not exempt by law.

This will mean, he said, that the only male undergraduates over 19 left in colleges will be war veterans, fathers, farmers, those with physical disabilities or students in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine or theology.

'SUPER-SENIORITY' VIEWS CONFLICT

WASHINGTON, July 12. — (AP) Sharply conflicting views about who is to pay millions of dollars in wage claims resulting from the recent Supereme court dicision voiding "super seniority" were offered to a Senate military affairs subcommittee today.

Selective Service officers and Howard E. Blood, appearing for the National Association of Manufacturers, urged the Senate to approve a bill already passed by the House. It would free employers of liability when they gave World War II veterans their old jobs and displaced non-veterans. Claims are by the non-veterans chiefly under union contracts.

The Supreme court on May 27 decided that veterans could not displace non-veterans with equal service or seniority. This reversed the directive that had been given thousands of employers by Selective Service.

Bill is Assailed

Martin Miller, representative of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, told the committee that the bill was an attempt to "bail out some foolish employers who were not willing to ask for some competent legal advice" and "place liability" on the workers who were displaced.

Shane MacCarthy and Thomas J. Kalis, appearing for Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, opposed the legislation as denying any relief to non-veteran workers who were demoted, transferred, or discharged under selective service rulings later reversed by the Supreme court.

Blood, president of the Norge division of the Borg-Warner corporation, said employers agreed with Congress that veterans should be rehired "even though that action resulted in the discharge of a non-veteran having greater seniority."

He said the Supreme court decision reversed this policy and "employers who relied in good faith on the official interpretation of Selective Service should now be given protection against possible liability resulting from alleged breach of seniority clauses of collective bargaining agreements."

Krug Sets UpUnit toAid Hawaii

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—The Interior Department established today a Pacific branch in its division of territories and island possessions. The branch, recently authorized by Congress, will be headed by Eric Beecroft, of Berkeley, Calif., Secretary J. A. Krug announced. Mr. Beecroft has been a special assistant to the Secretary. He came to the department from the Foreign Economic Administration, after serving as agent of the United States Commercial Company in India during the war. "The primary object of the Pacific branch will be to assist the Territory of Hawaii pending the final attainment of full representation as a state in the national Congress," Mr. Krug said.

NEWS CENSORSHIP BAN REWRITTEN BY SENATOR

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—The Senate Appropriations committee tonight rewrote a house-approved news censorship ban in sending to the senate a $2,700,000,000 money bill carrying $465,000,000 to finance UNRRA activities for the remainder of the year.

The senate committee provided, in effect, that countries which already have news censorship may retain such restraints without losing UNRRA. aid, bpt must agree not to delete or modify dispatches concerning UNRRA activities.

This compromise was authored by Senator Ball (R-Minn), former newspaper reporter, as a substitute for a house provision that assistant Secretary of State William L. Clayton told the committee was aimed directly at Russia and would be likely to make that war ally "mad."

Col. Schwarzkopf Is Up for Promotion

Washington, July 12 (A. P.)—President Truman today nominated Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, who has been directing the training of the gendarmerie force in Iran since 1942, to the temporary rank of Brigadier-General.

Col. Schwarzkopf was superintendent of the New Jersey State Police at the time of the Lindbergh kidnaping and played a leading role in the resulting investigations. His home is Lawrenceville, N. J.

He commanded the 114th Infantry Regiment at Fort Dix, N. J., in 1941 and later the 113th Infantry Combat Team at Fort Hancock, N. J.

TREASURY BLOCKED ON SILVER PRICE

WASHINGTON, July 12—(AP) The Senate for a third time refused today to allow the Treasury to sell surplus silver for 71.1 cents an ounce.

By a 54 to 25 rollcall vote, it once more asked the House to accept a Senate provision that would fix the price at 90.3 cents an ounce.

Senator Green (D-RI), forced the vote by a move to accept the House figure of 71.11. He said this would merely be "a floor" and the Treasury could sell at 90 cents or even higher if it wished.

Western and Southern senators joined in opposing the Green motion. They were aided by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) who said an increase from 71.11 to 90.3 cents was a "fair price" in relation to increased costs.

Senate action once more deadlocked the annual Treasury-Post-office appropriation bill to which the silver price rider is attached.

Military Supply Bill Passed

Washington, July 12 (AP)—The $7,263,000,000 military supply bill for the 1946-47 fiscal year was cleared to the White House today after first the House, then the Senate, accepted a conference committee's recommendation to permit transfers from fund to fund within the bill, up to a maximum of four per cent.

Senate Unit O.K.'s Bill With UNRRA Funds

Washington, July 12 (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee tonight rewrote a House-approved news censorship ban in sending to the Senate a $2,700,000,000 money bill carrying $465,000,000 to finance UNRRA activities for the remainder of the year.

The Senate committee provided, in effect, that countries which already have news censorship may retain such restraints without losing UNRRA aid, but must agree not to delete or modify dispatches concerning UNRRA activities.

This compromise was drafted by Senator Ball (R., Minn.), former newspaper reporter, as a substitute for a House provision that Assistant Secretary of State William L. Clayton told the committee was aimed directly at Russia and would be likely to make that war ally "mad."

Russians Fail To Balk Australians

New York, July 12 (AP)—Soviet Russia fought for more than three hours today to block Australian proposals for machinery to draft an atomic control plan, but was defeated on two measures and finally gave up on a third proposal.

The wordy battle took place in a stormy three-hour closed meeting of the working committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission which heard the chairman, Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Foreign Minister, reject Russia's atomic control plan as "impossible."

Similar To Baruch Plan

Evatt, reporting on the work of a six-nation subcommittee, proposed a broad international treaty to put into effect an atomic control system similar to that advocated by Bernard M. Baruch, the United States member.

One of the delegates, who did not wish to be identified, said Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate, took issue with Evatt's report at one point because the Australian failed to mention Russia as one of the nations which had been helpful in the subcommittee's work.

The real fight did not begin, however, until after Evatt had completed his report and Baruch had made a short speech indorsing his recommendations for an autonomous atomic control agency and the surrender of the veto power on atomic questions by the five big powers.

Many Protests By Gromyko

Evatt then proposed the creation of three committtees to start work at once drafting a control plan on the basis of principles laid down so far in discussions both in public and private meetings.

Gromyko was said to have protested almost every point in Evatt's proposals, accounting for the lengthy session. At one point Evatt, obviously annoyed by the long discussions, told the Soviet delegate he was "talking too much."

"Not half as much as you are," Gromyko retorted.

Sources close to Evatt said the Australian delegate felt very strongly about Gromyko's strenuous opposition to what he considered minor points.

Three Committees Voted

The working committee finally voted to establish three twelve-nation committees. The first was a committee to make recommendations on measures of control, sanctions and observance of measures to insure the prevention of the use of atomic energy for destructive purpose.

This was approved by a vote of 10 to 2, with Russia and Poland voting against it.

A second committee was created to study legal questions, and will handle such complex questions as the relationship between the atomic-control agency and the Security Council. This will include the controversial veto question. Russia stood alone in opposition to this, with Poland abstaining.

Eyatt Opposes Russian Plan

The third committee will be made up of scientific and technical experts who will consider and recommend proposals for the exchange of scientific information and for development of atomic energy for peaceful uses.

Gromyko raised the question whether this meant that scientific information would be exchanged immediately among the nations, declaring that he saw no reason why this should not be done. After Baruch declared that no information would be exchanged at this stage, Gromyko finally supported the proposal.

In his prepared report, Evatt opposed Russia's proposal for the immediate outlawing of atomic-bomb production and for atomic control by the Security Council.

Evatt Would Have Control Plan

He said any move to outlaw the production of atomic weapons must be embodied in a broad control program, as proposed by the United States, and that such a control system must be entirely free from big power veto.

The treaty suggested by Evatt would lay down a control plan, set up an international agency to administer the plan, ban the use of atomic energy for destructive purposes and set up a time table for the various parts of the plan to become effective.

"It is in my opinion," he declared, "legally and practically impossible for the functions of the Security Council to be enlarged in order to include the multifarious and detailed executive decisions involved in the administration of a treaty providing for the control and development of atomic energy."

Baruch Repeats Demands

Baruch said he was highly pleased with Evatt's proposals and that he approved the plan in principle. Commenting on Gromyko's proposal for the outlawing of atomic weapons, Baruch said a "solemn expression of pious intent is not enough," and declared that the first step must be the creation of a strong atomic-control agency.

Baruch restated his earlier demands for swift penalties for violators and declared that there must be no veto.

"We do not attack the whole system of veto agreed upon at San Francisco last year," Baruch said, adding that under the United States plan the veto would be surrendered only on matters connected with atomic energy.

"The success of this commission in dealing with this question will be the keynote of our deliberations," he said.

Separate Atom Agency Seen As Doomed

New York, July 12 (AP)—Australia's proposal for an autonomous world atomic control agency which would maintain only one ultimate link with the United Nations Security Council was apparently doomed today under the threat of Russian veto when and if it reaches the Council.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko's flat opposition and his reiterated refusal to surrender the veto on atomic matters were made known as Australian Foreign Minister H. V. Evatt prepared to lay his program today before the twelve-nation United Nations atomic working committee.

Evatt's report, winding up the first phase of atomic discussions, covers the five meetings of a special six-nation atomic subcommittee.

Russia's Stand

After the subcommittee's final meeting, an authoritative source said Gromyko had insisted in secret session that Russia would stand only for atomic control under Security Council administration without alteration of the veto rights of the Big Five permanent members.

Under the Australian plan, which has the indicated support of the United States and others, the Security Council would have nothing to do with atomic affairs except to handle flagrant warlike violations of the proposed atomic controls.

Gromyko's rejection of the Australian plan revived contentions in some circles that the United Nations Charter should be amended on the veto subject because it was framed before the atom bomb was unveiled with its decisive potentials for war or peace.

Evatt has already undertaken the leadership of a movement, mainly springing up among the small-nation members, for general revision and restriction of the veto power accorded each of the Big Five.

Veto Review Asked

After blocking off Gromyko's unsuccessful attempt to veto the attendance of the Canadian member of the Atomic Energy Commission from a Security Council meeting two days ago on atomic subjects, Evatt requested that the veto rules should be reviewed by the General Assembly meeting in September.

A Charter amendment, however, can be achieved only by two-thirds vote of the Assembly with the concurrence of all the Big Five powers, thus leaving Russia in position to circumvent Evatt's efforts in the Assembly.

Evatt, in confirming reports that Gromyko had stated his views on the Australian program and the veto, did not say whether his report as Atomic Commission chairman would be revised to meet the Russian opposition. Australia gives up the chairmanship to Brazil under rotation after this week.

Gromyko Firm

Gromyko was reported steadfast in his contention that atomic control and the chartered functions of the Security Council in maintaining peace are inseparable.

Evatt said he told Gromyko that nations having atomic raw materials would not enter into a control program unless the big powers yielded their power of veto on atomics.

The assertion was made by Dr. L. B. Borst of Napierville, Ill., spokesman at a joint press conference held by himself and Dr. Paul S. Henshaw and Dr. C. Starr.

Dr. Borst and Dr. Henshaw are members of the executive committee of the Association of Oak Ridge Engineers and Scientists which earlier had telegraphed Representative Sabath (D-Ill.), chairman of the House rules committee:

"As far as the statement of Representative Thomas (New Jersey Republican and ranking minority member of the unAmerican committee) is concerned, that the Oak Ridge scientist organizations are engaged in subversive activities, it should be sufficient to point out that since their inception the actions of these groups have been within the jurisdiction and under the surveillance of the security division of the Manhattan district (a War department agency)."

Urges Action on Bill

The telegram urged speedy action on the McMahon bill.

Referring to the committee's charge that some officers of the societies "admit communication with persons outside of the United States x x x," Dr. Borst declared:

"This association has had no correspondence with anyone outside the United States. We have over three hundred members and have no control over individual members, so I can't speak for them."

Borst asserted that Chairman Wood (D-Ga) and Ernie Adamson, committee investigator, who made the preliminary report on which the committee based its charges, spent only four hours at Oak Ridge last June 4.

Replying to an accusation that the scientists stood for "world government," Borst said:

"We are for world government in the same sense the Baruch report and the United States State department—that is, we want international control of atomic energy established."

Dr. Borst said he and other scientists talked to Wood and Adamson at the same time as organizers for the C.I.O. and the A.F.L., but denied there was any connection between the association and either labor group. Both labor organizations have been active here for weeks in seeking to organize workers in the atomic plants.

The committee had taken cognizance of this activity and asserted the C.I.O. "seems to be in close contact with the members of the scientific societies."

'Nothing To Rebut', Says Redin Defense

Seattle, July 12 (AP) — Defense counsel for Russian Navy Lieutenant Nicolai G. Redin said today before his trial on espionage and conspiracy charges resumed on its ninteenth day that the Government "presented nothing to rebut" in its rebuttal testimony.

Permitted to offer more witnesses of his own after the Government concludes an expected hour or so of more rebuttal testimony this forenoon, Attorney Tracy E. Griffin aid he saw no reason to do so. That is, unless the Government should offer some evidence he deems needs a reply this forenoon, he added. Redin is accused of buying secrets about the U.S.S. Yellowstone, destroyer tender, for $250.

"So far, the Government has presented nothing to rebut," Griffin said, referring to the testimony of several witnesses yesterday afternoon.

To Move For Dismissal

"We will move for a dismissal of the charges when the Government concludes its case."

Government witnesses, among them Capt. Sherman S. Lilliard, who was in charge of readying United States naval vessels turned over to Russia in this area during the war, testified yesterday that armament, gunfire control and radar on such vessels was not new and that such equipment on the Yellowstone was a navy secret. The defense denies that Redin made any "deals," and further, that if any information was obtained, it was not secret and Russia already knew all about it.

Meanwhile Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black, in comment to counsel in the jury's absence, apparently undermined some of the defense groundwork.

Judge's Comment

"I expect to give the jury instructions that the fact that some navy information was given or known to a foreign country did not give the right to acquire secret information," Judge Black said after the jury left the courtroom yesterday.

"The United States Government has the right to say what it keeps secret."

The defense, among other testimony, has brought out evidence that a great many American naval and merchant ships and much information, on machinery, equipment, armament, radar and fire control, were exchanged with Soviet Russia. Some of the data which Herbert G. Kennedy testified Redin bought from him was of that nature.

"Shouting At A Woman"

The attractive brunette wife of Redin, Galina, on the stand much of yesterday before the defense rested, denied that her husband had taken part in any "deals" charged. After Chief Assistant United States District Attorney Allan Pomeroy protested to the court at one time that she was "making speeches" to the jury and spoke loudly, halting her, she walked to him as she left the stand and, shaking her finger, said, angrily:

"In my country no gentleman shouts at a woman."

Pomeroy said nothing.

Oak Ridge Scientists Deny 'Subversive' Actions Charge

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., July 12—(AP) Charges by the House committee on unAmerican activities that members of Oak Ridge scientific societies had engaged in "subversive activities" were described as "preposterous" today by three scientists who added:

"They (the House committee) are raising a red herring in an attempt to block action by the House Rules committee on the McMahon bill for civilian control of atomic energy."

The tests were made on the 37-inch cyclotron, smallest and oldest of the atom smashers developed by Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence.

In these operations the small atom smasher served as a pilot instrument for the gigantic cyclotron now being built by Dr. Lawrence and his large group of nuclear researchers. Confirmation of the McMillan-Veksler principle means that the builders can go ahead with assurance that their production of doubled power is correct.

This principle deals with the Einstein theory that particles moving at high speed gain weight in proportion to the velocity increase. The function of the cyclotron is to whirl atomic particles around in a circular chamber until they can come out at high speed and collide with a target atom.

Time Lag Offset

To increase the speed the cyclotron gives the bullet an electrical push every time it completes a half-circle. These pushes are cumulative, causing the bullet to go faster and faster and in an ever-widening circle. But when their speed gets to the point that they begin to take on added weight, they lag a little behind the regularly spaced frequency of the electrical kicks and thus no longer gain speed.

Dr. McMillan, while working on the atomic bomb at Los Alamos, N.M., conceived the idea of slowing the rate of the electrical kicks to compensate for this lag. Almost at the same time Veksler, working independently in the Soviet Union, evolved the same idea.

Atomic Power Is Developed Closer To Cosmic Ray's

Berkeley, Cal., July 12 (AP)—Successful tests of a new principle which will enable cyclotrons to double the striking force of their atomic projectiles were announced today at the University of California radiation laboratory.

The new principle, discovered simultaneously by Dr. Edwin M. McMillan, of the radiation laboratory, and by V. Veksler, a Russian scientist, applies frequency modulation to cyclotrons.

In radio, frequency modulation yields superior tones and reduces static. In cyclotrons it increases the number of electric kicks that can be given a projectile, thus adding to the speed and effectiveness of the nuclear bullet.

Rival Of Cosmic Ray

This increase represents another step in the efforts of nuclear physicists to produce an atomic bullet approaching the power of cosmic rays.

ROMANIA:

1. ROMANIA'S FRONTIERS OF JAN. 1, 1938, WERE RECOGNIZED, CONFIRMING THE TRANSFER OF BESSARABIA TO RUSSIA BUT RETURNING TRANSYLVANIA

30.41-4109

TO ROMANIA FROM HUNGARY. SOUTHERN DOBRUDJA WAS LEFT WITH BULGARIA.

2. GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA WERE INSTRUCTED TO PRESENT THEIR REPARATIONS CLAIMS AGAINST BULGARIA TO THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

3. THE BULGARIAN AIRFORCE WAS LIMITED TO 150 PLANES AND THE NAVY TO APPROXIMATELY 7,000 TONS.

4. RUSSIA AGREED TO WITHDRAW HER TROOPS OF OCCUPATION WITHIN 90 DAYS AFTER THE TREATY IS EFFECTIVE.

HUNGARY:

1. THE RETURN OF TRANSYLVANIA TO ROMANIA WAS AGREED TO.

2. THE HUNGARIAN AIRFORCE WAS LIMITED TO 150 PLANES.

1. THERE WERE NO OUTSTANDING POINTS OF DISAGREEMENT AND THE COUNCIL APPROVED THE TREATY DRAFTED BY THE DEPUTY FOREIGN MINISTERS.

AFTER DISCUSSING THE ISSUE FOR SEVERAL DAYS, THE MINISTERS AGREED TO CONVOKE THE EUROPEAN PEACE CONFERENCE FOR JULY 29 IN PARIS. THEY DREW UP A FEW RULES OF PROCEDURE FOR SUBMISSION TO THE CONFERENCE AS RECOMMENDATIONS, AND THEN TOOK UP GERMAN PROBLEMS.

B35

GERMANY:

1. MOLOTOV SEVERELY CRITIGIZED AN AMERICAN-PROPOSED 25-YEAR GERMAN

JUL 13

DISARMAMENT TREATY AS BEING "INADEQUATE" BUT HE AGREED TO STUDY IT.
FRANCE AND BRITAIN WELCOMED THE PROPOSAL.
2. MOLOTOV OPPOSED BYRNES' SUGGESTION THAT A SPECIAL COMMISSION OF DEPUTIES BE APPOINTED TO DRAW UP A COMMON POLICY ON GERMANY, LOOKING TOWARD A FUTURE PEACE TREATY. BIDAULT AND BEVIN ACCEPTED THE PROPOSAL, BUT THE COUNCIL FINALLY AGREED TO MOLOTOV'S PROPOSAL FOR A SPECIAL COUNCIL SESSION, AFTER THE UNITED NATIONS ASSEMBLY MEETING IN SEPTEMBER, TO DISCUSS GERMAN PROBLEMS.

UU701PED

PARIS--FIRST ADD
3. MOLOTOV OPPOSED AN AMERICAN PROPOSALS FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF A COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE MILITARY AND ECONOMIC DEMOBILIZATION IN THE FOUR ZONES OF OCCUPATION IN GERMANY. HE AGREED TO THE FIRST POINT BUT WAS AGAINST THE SECOND, BECAUSE, HE SAID, NO PLAN FOR ECONOMIC DEMOBILIZATION HAS BEEN DRAWN UP. BRITAIN AND FRANCE FAVORED THE AMERICAN PLAN.
4. MOLOTOV OPPOSED BRITISH AND AMERICAN PROPOSALS TO HAVE THE FOUR-POWER ALLIED CONTROL OF A CENTRAL ADMINISTRATION IN GERMANY.
5. A FRENCH PROPOSAL TO HAVE THE MINISTERS BEFORE SEPT. 1 ON GERMANY'S COUNCIL IN BERLIN REPORT TO THE MINISTERS DOWN ON FRENCH DEMANDS FOR SEPARATION OF COAL SITUATION WAS ADOPTED.
6. MOLOTOV TURNED THUMBS DOWN ON FRENCH DEMANDS FOR SEPARATION OF THE RUHR AND RHINELAND FROM GERMANY. HE SAID THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT

WAS OPPOSED TO ANY FORM OF FEDERALIZATION WHICH WAS NOT VOTED BY THE GERMAN PEOPLE.

AUSTRIA:

1. MOLOTOV DECLINED TO APPROVE AN AMERICAN PROPOSAL, SUPPORTED BY BRITAIN AND FRANCE, TO APPOINT SPECIAL DEPUTIES TO PREPARE A PEACE TREATY WITH AUSTRIA. THE SOVIET MINISTER WANTED TO LINK A PROPOSAL TO EVACUATE DISPLACED PERSONS IN AUSTRIA TO PEACE TREATY SUGGESTIONS. BYRNES AND BEVIN SAID THEY NEEDED TIME TO STUDY THE DISPLACED PERSONS PROBLEM.

2. MOLOTOV SAID HE WANTED MORE TIME TO STUDY A BRITISH PROPOSAL TO SET UP A GROUP OF EXPERTS TO FIND A DEFINITION OF GERMAN ASSETS IN AUSTRIA.

BERLIN, JULY 12-(AP)-BERLIN NEWSPAPERS, THE MAJORITY OF WHICH ARE CONTROLLED BY RUSSIA, PROMINENTLY DISPLAYED TODAY THE REMARKS OF RUSSIAN FOREIGN MINISTER V.M. MOLOTOV ABOUT THE FUTURE OF GERMANY.

REMARKS OF THE UNITED STATES, BRITISH AND FRENCH FOREIGN MINISTERS WERE PUBLISHED IN SMALLER SPACE AND LESS CONSPICOUSLY. ONLY IN THE THREE NEWSPAPERS LICENSED BY THE WESTERN ALLIES WERE THE RUSSIAN DEMANDS FOR $10,000,000,000 REPARATIONS GIVEN PROMINENCE.

THE RUSSIAN-CONTROLLED NEWSPAPERS PRAISED MOLOTOV EDITORIALLY FOR HIS ADDRESS TO THE FOREIGN MINISTERS' COUNCIL IN PARIS IN WHICH HE SAID RUSSIA FAVORS NO DISMEMBERMENT OF GERMANY AGAINST THE WISHES OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE, NO AGRARIANIZATION OR DESTRUCTION OF GERMAN INDUSTRIAL CENTERS, AND NO POLICY OF REVENGE.

OTTO GROTEWOHL, CO-CHAIRMAN OF THE RUSSIAN-SPONSORED SOCIALIST UNITY PARTY, WAS QUOTED AS ASSERTING THAT THE SPEECH WAS "ANOTHER PROOF THAT THE RUSSIANS ARE NOT TAKING A VENGEFUL ATTITUDE TOWARD GERMANY, BY MAKING THIS ESPOUSAL OF GERMAN UNITY AND A FIGHT TO KEEP THE RUHR GERMAN."

THE CHRISTIAN DEMOCRATIC UNION NEWSPAPER, NEUE ZEIT, PRAISED MOLOTOV'S OPPOSITION TO A FEDERALIST ORGANIZATION OF GERMANY.

THE BERLINER ZEITUNG PRAISED THE MOLOTOV PLAN AND COMPARED ECONOMIC CONDITIONS IN THE OCCUPATION ZONES OF THE WESTERN ALLIES UNFAVORABLY WITH THAT IN THE AGRICULTURAL RUSSIAN ZONE. THE NEWSPAPER ASSERTED THAT RECOVERY IN THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH ZONES WAS RETARDED "NOT SO MUCH BY LACK OF RAW MATERIALS, BUT BY FAILURE TO OUST THE NAZIS AND MONO-CAPITALISTS."
